BY KATE HILLARD.

Hold the sea shell to thine ear, And the nurmur of the wave From its rosy depths mayet hear, Like a voice from out the grave Calling thre' the night to thee!

Low and soft and far-away,
From a client, distant shore,
Where is neither night nor day,
Nor the sound of playing oar;
Fall sleep beside that sea! Low and soft, but constant still,

For it murmurs evermore With a steady, pulsing thrill, Of the waves upon the shore, And it tells nought else to thee Hold my heart up to thine ear,
And the old beloved name
Singing thro its depths mayst hear,
And the song is still the same,
This a murmur from the sea:

From the great sea of my love, Far-reaching, calm and wide, Where nor stores nor tempests move, Nor chos the constant tide. And the waves still ang of thee!

Do not let it die! My second mother, for I remember no other, was my idea of ewomanly gentleness, propriety and elegance. She used, before marriage, to be quite a belle and was often known to trip the light fantas tic toe. One evening, as my father played a tune on a violin, my mother arose and in the most graceful manner possible to conceive, commenced to dance around the room. I didn't know what to make of it. I was speechless with consternation and delight. My father looked on with surprise. Never in the whole course of my life had I seen such a thing attempted in my father's house. It was delicious, and I got a lesson then which has lasted me ever since. I think to this day if mother had danced oftener and said catechism a little less, it would have been better for us all. Mercurial Potsoning in Den

Some statements having become current, asserting the objection ableness of using the red-sulphide of merenry for artificial gums, on account of its producing salivation, an experienced dentist writes to of such an idea, He says that not only is the sulphide of mercury very insoluble even in concentrated icids, and not attacked by alkaline fluids, but, in the case of gums, each particle is, as it were, surrounded by a film of India-rubber, which helps to protect it from being acted A pea pod, four inches in length, upon-if such protection were neces sary. The writer states that he has made very large quantities of vermillion, and always taken care to protect the workmen from the ef-fects of the mercury itself, but without being able to prevent them from handling the vermillion rather carehandling the vermillion rather care-leasly, or from inhaling some of the dust—and yet without the first case of mercurial poisoning having made its appearance, the same workmen having been employed for years, and all enjoying good health.

The Bolles of Seville.

Seville woman justify their repu tation for beauty more thoroughly than those of any other Spanish city; prettiness is a more appropriate term to specify their personal atractions. They resemble each other to a surprising degree as in all pure races of a marked type. Their eyes, fringed with long, black shes, produce an effect of white and black unknown to our colder less passionate clime. It seems as if the sun had left its impression on those magnificient orbs, equally noticeable in the face of some two STRIBLING & SHOOK year old children and in the gipsy girls of France. The gleaming and glancing and burning of these eyes has a very expressive word in Spanish called ofear, which is full of subtle meaning, although these eyethrusts, so embarrassing to strangers, have nothing particularly significant. The large, ardent, velvety eye of a young Sevillance glance upor a dog in the street with the same intensity she would bestow upon some more worthy object. The ex-quisite smallness of the ladies' feet is too well known to dwell upon; many could be easily held in a child's hand, and the fair Andalusi ans are justly proud of this quality, and wear shoes accordingly, not differing so very much from the Chinese shoes.

Democratic Law and Order.

There appeared in the Express, about a mouth ago, a rather lengthy a democratic paper, which depreca-ted very much the condition of affairs in that section of the State. There was a better fend of long standing between two families, which threatened to eulminate in a general battle, such formidable proportion had it assumed. Assasinations and counter-assessinations had been kept for many years, until at last 'two organized bodies of armed men were expected to sugage in a pitched battle at any moment. The Advocate reminded the sheriff of his duty, and the next thing we hear of in this connection is the summoning of every able-bodied man in De Witt county to prevent poses advance toward the expected from Yorktown. He is met on the road by two warlike bodies of armed men under the command of two chieftains, Joe Tumlinson and Wesley Hardin. The high sheriff is condescendingly informed that no disturbance of the public peace is ntended, and that there is no cause for alarm, that the misunderstanding was altogether of a personal na ture, that both parties had agreed to a truce and were on their way to the court house, to draw up the re- Herald says, the balloon that account quisite treaty. The sheriff is charmed with this proceeding, (his predecessor had been shot for not minding his own business in a similar matter,) the poses is disbanded, the ringleaders sign their decuments and "order reigns in Warnaw," until the ball is again set in motion by the first assassination

The leader of one of these cut-throat gange was Wesley Hardin, who had just killed Jack Helm.

He had frequently imbrued his hands in human blood, and at that very time and on this occasion the shariff had in his pocket several capacies for his arrest. Among his followers were a number of out-laws known to the sher fl and his friends.

The law forbidding the carrying of RAN FRANCHO tendly weapons is still on the statute book, but it does not occur to his employ a young Chinese cook. the sheriff that there is ony violaor apparent. He does not seem think that unything out of the my has taken place, and there the powerless to execute the law; that his own life would be the cost of any attempt to do so, and we cannot say that he is much to blame under the circumstances.

This state of society is not peculiar to De Witt county. It is the natural consequence of the abolition of the State police. It is the legitimate fruit of democratic ascendancy. This is a mild type of democratic "law and order."

The people know this, and have had about enough of it.

Gov. Davis and the Washing ton Republicun.

The re-nomination of Gov. Davis FOR COMMISSIONER OF GENERAL as the republican press. He is, excellent progress in New York. and has been for years, regarded as the leader of the Texas Republicaus. Yet, in spite of all this, the Washington Nat. Republican, the St. Louis Globe and other influential republican journals have gone out of their way to vie with the press of the Texas Democracy in slandering and villifying Gov.

Now, that their good or bad will ike to have some explanation of a course of conduct, which has been pursued by but one so-called Republi can journal, viz: the Houston Mercury, a part of whose paid service it is to lie the Governor out of countenance.

It can not now be denied that the iournals in question have been eithor lamentably ignorant of Texas affairs, and therefore should have informed themselves, before they attacked the record of Gov. Davis, or else, the conclusion is inevitable, the insurgents. that their columns are at the dispo aal of those who can jurnish "a consideration."

Now, that the Texas Republicans have spoken, it remains to be seen if the Republican has the decency to acknowledge that it has been deceived by persons actuated by unworthy motives.

BRUTAL ASSAULT.-On Thursday night about 10 o'clock a linck drove up to Walker's barber shop on Soledad street, and the driver, Wm. Pfefferling, enquired where he was, and gave other signs of mental aberration. He was found to be covered with blood, flowing from a number of ghastly wounds on his head, evidently made by some blust instrument. Medical assistance was rendered, and the wounded man is not considered in danger. He is rather reticent about the matter, but the facts are substantially as follows. A man living on the Medius, named Patrick Kinney, hird Pfefferling's back (an open one) and directed him to drive up Acequia street. When out in the prairie semewhere be youd the old Baylor house, he nnexpectedly began to beat Pfefferling, who was driving, over the bead with a six shooter, outsing and bruising him in the manner deseribed. He then left him to drive back
