Scrap and Cleanings.
AUTUMN.
In Autumn when the withered leaves are falling,
When on the trees both the dead and the calling,
And the wind whistles through the bare, shivering
I dream of happy days long since departed,
The good and the bad, of soft bright eyes (Glasses of love all lost and broken-hearted that dated
PROVIDENCE.
God's ways seem dark, but open, or late
They touch the shining walls of day,
The evil cannot brook delay.
The good can wait, and wait, and wait,
Give criminal knives their hour of crime:
Ye have the future grand and great,
The safe approach of fresh time, (Long-looked-for
THE WEST WIND.
The West wind breaths of russet hoaths,
And yellow pride of woods grown old;
The West wind dies from Autumn skies,
And the golden leaves fall to the sea,
But the golden leaves fall to the sea,
That shine the glories of the West.
When dressed for the evening, the girls Seize an hour of dream on their loaves, Nor blame them—for what is an evening
But a dress that is apt for eyes?
TEXAS ITEMS.
DALLAS COUNTY.—There is much rumor running to and fro in Dallas on account of yellow fever, and the News gets off the following as a specimen of medical life there at present:
"First doctor—its yellow fever;
second ditto—its malarial; third ditto—its typho swamp; fourth—its epithelial of the thorax, super-induced by miasmatic memorabilia fifth—I have been practicing twenty years with yellow fever, and the case referred to is purely bilious and boron in its diagnosis; sixth —as for the remedy, four grains of hydro chloride of cinchona of best quality, tintured with the mucilage of my jams, applied externally will certainly afford relief. Seventh—there are two mild cases here, or else there is a heap of fuss and feathers about two cases of bilious fever. Eight and ninth—So you have been visiting one of my cases, have you? Well, then! The fur and the glassware, sunshades, and we draw the curtain."
