An Answer to Squire Coke's Reckless Falshoods about the Public Schools.

Judge Coke, Democratic candidate for Governor, in his speech at Sherman, used the following language, which is claimed by Democratic sheets to be argument:

"In regard to the charge of Bu-vis, that the 13th Legislature broke up the Free Schools Judge Coke showed they were dead before the meeting of the 13th Legislature. It took $5,000,000 to run the Public Schools, and that was insufficient to pay the teachers and officers; it took it all and more, unless the Gross stole it. There were levied and collected from the sale of school lands $50,000, and the 13th Legislature made an appropriation of $450,000, and that is all gone and there are teachers still unpaid, and not a school house has been erected that anybody knows of."

Mr. Coke must have known when he uttered the above that he was stating deliberate falshoods, false in every particular.

This answer, to Gov. Davis' charge, that the Public Schools were dead before the meeting of the 13th Legislature, every man, woman and child in the State knows to be false, as on the meeting of that disreputable body, there were eight hundred and twenty-four free schools, two thousand one hundred and ninety-four teachers with a daily attendance of nearly ninety thousand children; and not until the month of May, when the old law was repealed, was there any serious falling off of the attendance, but on the contrary an increase.

In his own county there were 25 free schools, and thirty teachers, with an attendance of one thousand and thirty-seven children, against an attendance the year before of over two thousand.

We admit that to keep up the schools for twenty months, with an average attendance of nearly one hundred and thirty thousand children, it cost about two million dollars. And here let parents calculate the difference of cost between private and public schools.

Regarding his attack on Col. De Gree, Superintendent of Public Instruction, we have only to refer Mr. Coke to the proceedings of the "Star Chamber" investigation of his official conduct, and its result. Attacks on him have become state.

Two million and five hundred thousand dollars have never been levied on the people of Texas, much less paid. Mr. Coke is responsible to day, for the non collection of the school tax in his county. Until within the last three months, no school tax had been collected in his county, and so far as he could, he helped the 13th Legislature in their efforts to break up the 13th school of the State, by demanding against the payment of the school tax, and thereby starving teachers into a submission to their will, the breaking up of the free schools.

Mr. Coke's statement shows the $50,000, received from the sale of school lands, is a creation of his own mind.

The 13th Legislature appropriated $400,000, and not $450,000, after that body had been informed that there was due the teachers of the State, over $100,000.

Although this noble body of office seekers and reformers (if had pledged themselves by an unanimous resolution, not to adjourn until an appropriation had been made to pay the teachers what was due them, not an effort was made by that disreputable body, to ascertain the amount due, but they only made an appropriation of $400,000, while they like a would pay only one-half the amount due the teachers.

The McLennan county teachers, as well as those from Travis county will sponsor Gov. Davis' charge, next December at the ballot box.
They know that this charge is correct, and that Mr. Coke, and others of like ilk, (taxpayers conversation) are responsible for the sufferings of their families, Mr. Coke's teachers belong to the intelligent class of rotters, and will not be satisfied with your endorsement of the present school law, or your condemnation of the old one. They know that Gov. Davis has been their steadfast friend, and perhaps the widows and orphans of this State, whom you helped to place in their helpless position, by urging the ordinance of session, will let you hear from them, at the next general election.

As to the building of school houses in the State, we take this opportunity to inform Mr. Coke, and his adherents, that over 500 hundred have been built, at a cost of over one hundred thousand dollars.
The same has been done in every county in the State, and the publication of our articles.

An extraordinary incident recently took place in Munich, in the will of a rich Catholic lady, who reand its tributaries during the past year, was equal to 1,519,000,000 feet.

This quantity, estimating the yield of the pine lands at 10,000 feet per acre, would require the denudation of 150,000 acres, or nearly 200 million of land.

Differences Between the Americans and the English.
(M. D. Conway's Letter to the Cincinnati Commercial.)

The American physique is generally different from the English, the accent very different—the Americans usually giving an upward inflexion at the end of a sentence when the English give a downward one. The English voice is more flat, more monotonous, and usually in a lower tone. But I cannot help thinking that the difference is generally permanent, because it is more radical, and blends with both the American character and with the circumstances, and which he is necessarily placed in a foreign land.

As to these circumstances, they must give him a certain feeling of helplessness—in the presence of a hotel keeper or shop keeper. He will meet their demands without surprise, not knowing the standard of prices. When an Englishman would at least grumble at the stated price or perhaps walk out indignantly, the American discloses his ignorance, and thereby his nationality, by continued inability, even if he does not purchase. But still more, there are in the American certain traits which are unconscious and habitual. For one thing his sense of equality appears at every moment, and that, in a region of snob and an atmosphere of servility, constitutes a very important distinction. Every English shopkeeper is servile, and meets his customer as he would meet his master.
He does not expect to be treated as a gentleman in an equal, and the American who speaks to him respectfully excites a momentary surprise. Again, the English people always come bluntly to the point.
So word ever passes between buyer and seller except such as is needed for the dry purposes of commercial bargain. But the American—the ladies particularly—will converse about what they are purchasing, or they will converse pleasantly with clerks and shop-girls, as if the latter were human beings. In general society another thing may be noted of Americans. They speak clearly and positively about a matter. Although they have the reputation of being a people who resist "in one region, or "ground," and "celebrate" in another, really Americans are a people who assert a thing which they know, without hesitation or misgiving that they may be wrong. But the English in society are never positive. Even when they are most certain they say, "I believe not," or "I think" so and so. They are so habitually de-fervent in this respect as to be sometimes misleading. I knew an American once to express a conviction in the presence of an eminent Englishman with reference to something which the latter knew was impossible. The Englishman said, "I think you must be mistaken; at least I have never known it to be so." It was a question of fact, and the American afterwards spent several hours in trying to discover whether he or his courteous English acquaintance was right. He found not only that the Englishman was right, but that what he thought a fact was contrary to the British Constitution. This the Englishman must have known absolutely, and yet he spoke in such a de-fervent, doubting way that the American was left to search into the matter for himself. Had he remained here longer he would have discovered that even a Englishman of science could hardly commit himself without reservation to the reality of the earth or the quality of a triangle; I have sometimes thought that when these gentlemen are most certain of a thing they are then most likely to "continue to suggest" it with great heat and vigor. And this difference between the Englishman and the American still more marked, among the ladies of the respective countries—though it may in some cases manifest itself in an implement of frequency of superlatives and superlatives on one side, and of full honey limitations on the other, may be recognized in higher characteristic. The cultivated Englishman is very careful, and had rather un-derstate his own than overstate it.
He knows how to be silent and to say "I don't know." The cultivated American has much greater confidence in himself, is never contained to be in a neutral tone, and has much of that confidence of speech and that frankness in saying just what he thinks, when in Europe is limited in the French people.

in the State, we take this oppor-

cently died, occurred the following:
"This, my last will and testament, is not to be opened except in the presence of the Chief Judge, the head of the Catholic faith, and the head of the Jewish congregation." These gentlemen, on opening the will, learned that her property had been assigned to Jews, her words running as follows: "During the whole course of my life I have given my best attention to investigate the various creeds, and I have seen that the Jewish religion is the purest of all; among all nationalities I have never noticed any possessing

To the Republicans of the 19th Senatorial District. SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 22, 1873.

As Chairman of the Republican Executive Committee of the 29th Senatorial District, I am instructed to call a convention of the Republicans of this district to meet at the town of Boerne, Kendall county, on Saturday, the 26th day of October, 1873, to place in nomination candidates for members of the legislature to be voted for at the approaching election.

The counties composing this district are: Bexar, Gillespie, Atascosa, Comal, Wilson, Kimball, Kendall, Mason, Banders, Kerr, Menard and Edwards.

The coming election is one of vast importance, and its results will have an enduring influence for good or ill upon the future of our beloved State. It is therefore to be considered as a contest between the people of this State and the people of the world.

The Outlook.

It is a kind of time-honored practice with the partisan press and among the noisy party oracles that are accustomed to dispense wisdom at street corners and about whisky-shops, to pronounce dramatically startling judgments, whenever any important party-action has taken place. Nothing less than a "Sedan" or "Waterloo" will answer, to even faintly describe the exultation of opponents; while those on the other side do not begin to tolerate any doubt as to the absolute certainty of victory.

Will the kind reader allow us to quietly step beyond this political rubbish, onto clear ground? For the last few days, the nominations of the Republican Convention have been the all-absorbing topics of conversation in political circles and among the people at large. Time enough has passed now, to enable any attentive observer to recognize and understand existing currents of feeling.

Particular emphasis is given to the question of nationality. Our antagonists gleefully point to the predominance of German names on our ticket, as to the vulnerable point. We could readily retort by releasing to a similar prominence of American names on the democratic ticket, if there were any argumentative force, in doing so; but we emphatically decline. We prefer to judge the case in accordance to its own intrinsic merits, without looking either to the right or to the left.

We certainly all agree that when ever political action is taken in this Republic, we all are in act capacity as American citizens, and in no other. Whenever any other starting point is chosen, the attainment of sound political results is logically impossible. This happens to be one of the historical lessons that every American citizen has had full opportunity to thoroughly comprehend. The ignoble downfall of Know nothingism has settled this matter, for all times to come.

The men, then, that constituted our County Convention, met as American citizens, and as such only, and consequently, the men nominated were nominated as worthy, competent and popular American citizens, and not as Germans.

It has been said—by way of palliating a supposed wrong—that the German cast of our ticket was a mere accident, and, again, on the part of those, who would gladly impeach the honor of the German delegates—that it was the result of preconcerted arrangements, looking towards the exclusive enjoyment of the honors and emoluments of office, to the unjust exclusion of others. The truth of both assertions, we positively deny. It is our deliberate opinion that neither accidents nor conspiracies are responsible for the results—but that the nomination of many Germans is the most natural and legitimate thing in the world.

Let us see! There are but few Americans, Irishmen and Mexicans in this county, that cooperate with the Republican party. Germans and Negroes constitute the bulk of the party. The latter, with few exceptions—without education; as a general thing, they understand perfectly well that their time for aspiring to office has not, as yet, come. Their good sense in this respect is an honor to them. When combinations for a Republican State Ticket were under debate, the negroes in a body resolved, not to claim any State office for themselves; they acted prudently, and they are certain to always do so, as long as they turn a deaf ear to the insidious whisperings of those demagogues.

As to the English speaking white Republicans, why should they have a better right to be looked upon as the champions of negro-interests, than the Germans? Why should they have a better claim on the support of the colored voters, than the Germans? Do they preach better Republican doctrine? Are they more honest, more intelligent, more popular? We do not know of one among them, that ever advanced such claims, on his own account.

We do not wish to be misunderstood; if the convention had nominated Lockwood instead of Bonnet, as it came very near doing so, for one, would have been well pleased thereat, and the like we may safely claim of all good German Republicans. But since the latter has been nominated, we cannot comprehend, why his nationality should be an impediment upon the rights of the

The careful distribution of offices among different nationalities is partly expediency and bribery in its coarsest form. Honest, competent, popular men should be selected without regard to nationalities or color.

The fact that mostly Germans were selected in this case is a well deserved compliment to them: They are Republican to the core, Liberals in all essential points, as well as the more rigid Radicals; they have always looked upon the oppressed negroes, with the eye of purely human sympathy, have been their kind neighbors and political friends for years and years; they are numerous, reliable and—the principal tax payers in this city.

In the clear light of all these facts, is it not the most natural thing, that the colored voters should trustfully turn towards the Germans and support them for public office?

But Demagogues care but little for facts, all they desire is plausibility; and it will be long, before we shall hear the last of German Know nothingism.

The Commissioner made a demand of the Comanche, the neighbors of the Kiowa, to deliver up the Comanche who had raided in Texas. The chiefs demurred to this, saying to arrest these men would occasion serious, if not armed resistance and trouble. They also objected to pointing out the men in order that they might be arrested by United States troops, saying this would be the same in effect as if the Comanche chiefs themselves had made the arrest. The Commissioner then reminded them of their treaty obligations, to do such things as that which he required, and warned them he would give them thirty days to consider the matter, if at the expiration of that time they continued to refuse, he would withhold from them the rations and other supplies stipulated in the treaty, which they had broken. Soon after this threat the chiefs, and they afterward deliver to the government five other Indians of their tribe who were now raiding in Texas. To this the Commissioner made no objection, and the chiefs furnished scouts to accompany a detachment of troops in pursuit of the raiders. It was considered a good gain. The Indians acknowledge their obligations and show a disposition to carry them out.

In consideration of this favor, they say they will readily comply with the terms of the release.
