The Bank of England Putting

We learn by cable telegram that the Bank of England, at a special meeting of the directors yesterday morning, raised the rate of discount to six per cent, which is an advance of one per cent on the rate previously reported. Our readers generally ed practice of the Bank whenever specie or overtrading and speculation. The recent large shipments of gold from England to this coun try and the great decline of the premium here furnished sufficient according to late accounts, a tendency to excessive speculation and trading. The effect in this country may temporarily arrest the decline of gold. Strange as it may seem to those unacquainted with unancial matters, it is a fact that the Bank of England-this toreign institution-can regulate to a consider able extent the price of gold and values here. When we can emancipate ourselves from that thraidom, or, in other words, when we cease to be largely a debtor nation, we may talk of returning to and holding on to specie payments. N doubt a portion of the specie coming to this country is on account of a more favorable state of trade and the exchanges, and this is both gra tifying and promising; but it is said a good deal comes to be recoined here for the China market, the difference being four per cent in favor of American coinage over that of England in China. Six per cent is a very high rate of discount at the Bank of England, and, therefore; the cause for it is not get an ordinary character. Still, as we said our financial position, arising from the state of trade, is too strong to be scriously affected by this ac-
