AT DOLMEN the Germans pointed four of Krupp's cannon, loaded with balls that collectively weighed twelve hundred weight, against a target made like a section of the skin of the best English iron clad, and the cannon were then discharged simultaneously by the electric wire, and the target was annihilated. The British feel worse over this than boy who has recently sat down on a bent pin. All of Britain's inventive genius will now be concentrated on the construction of a gun large enough to reach Prussia with its range, throwing a ball with sufficient force and of ample weight to smash any one of the confederate provinces into an unrecognizable pulp. Yet "peace reigns in Europe," saith Madame Rumor.

A COMMITTEE of photographers, embracing the names of the best known members of that profession in several of the great cities of the country, have issued an address to their fellows inviting subscriptions to a fund of $20,000 for the purpose of building a separate hall, to be devoted to their art in the Centennial Exhibition next year. Of the amount $5,000 has been pledged by the Philadelphia photographers, and the remainder, if raised at all must be subscribed by the 23rd instant. An engraving of the proposed building is printed in the current number of the Photographer magazine. The design is ornamental and the structure would be an attractive adjunct of the Exhibition.

Wendell Phillips, Abolitionist O'Connell.

We clip the following concluding extracts from the splendid oration delivered by Wendell Phillips at the O'Connell Centennial celebration in Boston:

HIS BRAVERY COMPARED WITH GREAT MEN.

O'Connell owed it to his eloquence. I do not think I should exaggerate if I said that God, since he made Demosthenes, never made a man so fit for the great work as He did O'Connell. You may think I am partial to my hero, very naturally. But John Randolph of Roanoke, who hated an Irishman almost as much as did a Yankee, when he got to London and heard O'Connell, the old slaveholder held up his hands and said: "This is the man—those are the lips, the most eloquent that speak English in my day." And I think he was right. [Applause.] Webster could address a bunch of judges; Everett could charm a college; Choate could debate a jury; Clay could magnetize a Senate; Tom Corwin could hold the mob in his right hand; but none of them could do more than that one thing. The wonder of O'Connell was that he could out-talk Corwin; he could charm a colleague better than Everett; delude a jury better than a Choate, and leave Clay himself far behind in magnetizing a Senate; I have heard all the majestic orators of America, who are singularly famed on the world's circumference. I know what was the majestic of Webster; I know what it was to melt under magnetism of Henry Clay; I have seen eloquence in the iron logic of Calhoun; but all three together never surpassed; and no one of them ever equaled, the great Irishman. [Applause.] In the first place he had—what is half the power with a popular orator—a majestic presence. God put that royal soul into a body as royal. He had, in early youth, the brow of Jove or Jupiter, and the statue of Apollo; a little O'Connell would have been no O'Connell at all. [Laughter.]

HIS INTEGRITY.

Now, he owed this to the integrity of his life. He never shut his eyes on the wrongs of one race to vindicate another. When the Chartist came he gave them a vote; when the Dissenters came he gave them a vote; and when the anti-Slavery party came he gave them a vote. When Kosciusko came to this country, he went down to Faneuil Hall, and said: "There is a flag without a stain; there is a people without a crime." We said to him: "Oh, Kosciusko, son of the Magyar, come to break the chains of Hungary, have you no word to say of four millions of negroes bound under a bondage twice as bitter as that of Hungary?" he said: "I will praise anything, I would forget everybody to help Hungary." Well, O'Connell never said that. [Applause.] When I was at Naples I met Sir Thomas Birkdale, who hated the Irishman heartily. When I went up to him I said: "Was O'Connell the scamp that Harriet Martineau painted him?" Taking both my hands in his, the old giant, looking down on me said: "Scamp! He was the honestest man that ever entered the House!" And then he told me this story. Said he: When O'Connell entered the House he had one other vote besides his own—two on the Irish question. At that time, said Buck stone, "the anti-slavery cause was so poor that there was only one other member besides myself who spoke on its behalf, and that was Dr. Lushington—Dr. Lushington who is just dead—and we made an agreement that when Lushington spoke I should cheer him, and when I spoke he should cheer me! [Laughter.] They were the only cheers we got. [Benevolent laughter.] At moment when O'Connell entered the House there were twenty-seven members who went to him, whom we used to call the "West India members," because they always voted for slavery. They said to O'Connell: "At last you are in, and have got two votes. Now, if you will never go down to Freemasons Tavern with Macaulay and Brougham and the anti-slavery society, there are twenty-seven votes to you on every Irish question. The most interesting feature of the proceedings was the gratification of the colored and Irish citizens, which was hearty and complete.

GRASSHOPPERS.

Omaha, August 7.—Reports from along the line of the Union Pacific, to-day, say the wind has been blowing hard from the north for three days. Immense clouds of grasshoppers are flying south, along the line from Elm creek, east, as far as Silver creek, with a few clear streaks. At Willow island, they have commenced on the corn, having already done considerable damage. At most points, but few have alighted, and but little damage is done.

CHOKING HAGGARD.

Loudon, August 7.—According to accounts from Damascus, to the 22d of July, the cholera was raging there. Four hundred cases were daily reported, but the real number was concealed. The Christian quarters are deserted; sudden deaths occur in the streets; there are no physicians, medicines nor supplies. The disease is also bad at Antioch, Deir, Hama, Hamah and Salabijeh, and among the Druze missions. Mission schools are closed, and the children are dispersed.

AN AMERICAN VICTORIOUS.

St. Paul, August 7.—Mr. Schoules, of Vicksburg, won the silver cup in the rifle-drill exhibition company.

A large number of prominent Odd Fellows from the United States were present at the dedication of the new Odd Fellows Hall in London, Ont., Monday afternoon. Four hundred from Cleveland received an enthusiastic welcome. A big and supper wound up the celebration.

JAH DELIVERY AT WAXAHACHIE.

Palmer, Aug. 9.—About two o'clock last night all the prisoners confined in the Waxahachie jail made their escape by breaking the locks. There were six confined in the jail at the time of the breaking. At the time they made their escape the jailor was not around, and as they free access to all parts of the jail, it was an easy matter for them to make their escape. Two of the prisoners were in for the rescue of Fannin's law May 1, for horse stealing, and the balance for petty offenses. Oliver, charged with horse stealing, refused to go at first, preferring to stand trial, but was taken by force until they got about four miles from Waxahachie, where they let him go, and he turned and gave himself up to the Sheriff.

POPULAR.

So popular have Dr. Price's True Flavoring Extracts and Cream Baking Powder become that but few kitchens are without them. The extract is delicious, and the flavoring powder is equal to any in the market. Fine specimens at the table and higher delight in the lighter edibles supplied by the careful housekeeper. Dr. Price has succeeded in both these domestic necessities, in producing articles domestic unequalled. His flavorings are peculiarly delicious, and so highly concentrated that it takes but a small quantity to impart the characteristic quality of the article. His Cream Baking Powder should be bought in cans, as loose powder is largely adulterated, and often sold as Dr. Price's when it is not.

VICTOR HELMAMP, THE CRAZY THIEF RETURNS AND COMMITS SUICIDE.—Some days since, a large sum of money was stolen from Mr. Jake Richard's residence, on Avenue D and 4th street. The amount of money was not exactly known, but it was over $1000; it was mainly the hard earnings of Mr. Richards and his wife, and was kept in an old wardrobe. Shortly after the money was taken, a half-witted German who had been working about the house, left and from his action and lavish expenditure of money, suspicion rested on him, but he managed to escape before the officers of the law were informed. The master was put in the hands of Capt. Lyons, former city detective who was vigorously at work to capture the thief. Yesterday Capt. Lyons received a telegram saying that Helmamp had left for San Antonio, and he supposed he had been arrested and was being brought back by an officer, but this was a mistake, he had fled to Boston on his own account to return home. He arrived in this city a day or two ago, put up at the Bradkett House, and it seems that on yesterday he left his hotel and was found by a colored man near the Alamo Ford, in a dying condition having poisoned himself. Letters found with his effects addressed to Mr. Howling stated that if he did not return by 4 o'clock it might be known he had killed himself. He was removed to the hospital, but not expected to live. The money was found about him, he seems to have spent the money lavishly, $600 going into the pocket of some woman, and the balance scattered all along the route to Galveston.

Ovation to Hon. Julius Berends.

Last night the friends of Hon. Julius Berends tendered him an ovation, he may well be proud of.

Between 8 and 9 P. M. a procession of citizens, mostly Germans, carrying torches, and headed by a brass band, proceeded to the German-English school, and after some music Mr. Berends was called on and came forward and made an address, but the old man was greatly affected by the ovation. Many gathered about him were a large number of his old friends, the grounds being filled with people, and more particularly a number of school children, whose tender hearts seem to be overflowing with grief at parting with their kind instructor. It was enough to have stirred the heart of a stoic, and Mr. Berends was excusable if his voice grew husky, and his eyes, unused to tears, were moistened.

In his remarks Mr. Berends spoke of his labor among our people and reviewed the history of the school over which he had so long and ably presided. At the conclusion of his remarks the procession again formed, and marched to Karlsberg garden and dispersed. The night was lovely and a large number of people of all ages turned out to get a farewell glimpse at Mr. Berends before his departure for Europe, where he intends to remain.

At 10 P. M. the doors of the Casino Hall were thrown open and an assemblage of a hundred of our leading citizens sat down to a supper, given in honor of Mr. Berends, Mayor French and Judge Devine presiding at one of the principal tables. Then began a series of toasts and speeches, interspersed with songs and instrumental music. The speeches were all in German, except that of Judge Devine, who, being called upon, responded in a glowing eulogium upon the life, character and career of Mr. Berends, praising his eloquence in the cause of education in particular. He said: "In seeking to honor Julius Berends you honor yourselves, as a man you should honor and bless him. (If blossoms—were worth anything.) The Judge spoke in the strongest terms in favor of education, giving the motto of an English statesman, uttered one hundred years ago: "Education is the chief defense of nations." He likened Mr. Berends to a good builder who laid his foundation well in order that his office might stand, which was the foundation upon which rested the office of our social fabric.

Hon. Ferdinand Hahn had much to say towards making his creation a success presented at one of the tables with dignity.

Capt. Karber who was also an active participant, was master of the outdoor ceremonies. Mr. Grieseck, President of the Casino Association, presided gaily over the assemblage in the Hall. One table was occupied almost exclusively by young men, who had been pupils under Mr. Berends, and toward whom the heart of the old man seemed to be continually drawn.

It was a most pleasant affair, and sprung from the spontaneous feelings of Mr. Berends' friends.

Mr. Berends has been a resident among us for nearly a quarter of a century, he has had a constant interest in the cause of education. He was looked up to by all the laboring classes of our people, particularly the Germans, as a safe adviser and guide, and was a leader. He figured somewhat in politics, espousing the cause of the Republican party until seduced into the ranks of the Democracy, where he found it too congenial for a man of his principles, and did not remain for a while. His name from our miles range beyond for his talents among a class directly in the cause of progress, and with the reputation of an honest and hard worked man.

Many of his old friends, who had supported the Patriotic Society, went with him to the new country, and gave him a warm and loving welcome to his old home.

Discovery of a Mine of Amber.

A large deposit of amber has been discovered in the Kurische Haft, near the village of Schwarzen, Germany, about twelve miles South of Memel. It has been known for many years that amber existed in the soil of the Kurische Haft, from the fact that the dredgers employed by the Government for the purpose of clearing away the shallow spot near Schwarzen, that impeded navigation, had brought up pieces of amber; there, however, were appropriated by the laborers, and no particular attention was paid to the matter till recently. Some speculative persons have made an offer to the German Government not only to do the dredging required at their own expense, but also to pay a daily rent provided the amber they might find should become their own property. The proposal was accepted and the rent fixed at twenty-five thalers for each working day. The dredging was begun by four machines, worked by horses; eighteen other dredges and two tugboats, with about one thousand laborers, are now engaged in the industry. The ground covers an area of several miles, and a yearly rent of 2000 thalers is paid by the company to the Government.

Turks Better than Christians.

[From a Constantinople Letter in the Boston Advertiser.]

Nothing has surprised me more than the contrast this city presents to most European and American cities in the way of temperance. Wine and stimulants are forbidden in the Koran, and coffee is the universal drink everywhere. At all the scales or steamboat landings on the Bosphorus nothing but coffee—Turkish coffee—is to be had for drink at the numerous restaurants that line its banks. A party of English, returning from Egypt, spent a day in Istanbul viewing the sights. They told me they made diligent searches for something to drink, but could not obtain even a glass of beer—noting but coffee. In Peru, on the opposite side of the Horn, the European section, occasionally, though rarely, a restaurant may be found where wines and liquors are sold. This may, perhaps, be accounted for in part from the fact that no one can sell without a license and licenses are very high.

Tobacco chewing seems to be unknown here. I have not seen an instance since I have been here, nor a spittoon; but smoking is universal. Cigars are rarely seen, and common pipes never. Europeans and Americans use cigarettes, and these are made up as occasion demands. For this purpose they carry a small box containing small striped paper, made of wood for this use, and fine tobacco, with which they roll up one or more cigarettes as wanted, insert in an amber tube, and all is done save lighting. Easy as this seems, it requires skill and manipulation. They are very delicate, are not offensive to ladies, who permit them in their reception rooms as a matter of course. The Turk, if at home, smokes his chibouque, which is a wooden tube six feet long, with either tip at one end and an earthen bowl at the other, resting in a polished brass saucer upon the floor. If it is a restaurant, he smokes the narghileh, the apparatus for which there abounds. This machine is composed of a flexible tube, one inch in diameter and two yards long, attached with brass mountings, to a large glass urn or bottle, partly filled with water, and so constructed that the smoke is all forced through the water to be cooled and purified. In actual consumption of tobacco, the Americans, in smoking alone (to say nothing of chewing), far exceed this people, and also every other I have ever seen.

STEINWAY

Grand, Square and Upright Pianos.

Have obtained the Highest Honors ever awarded to any Piano Manufacturer in the World.

First of the Grand Gold Medal of Honor WORLD'S FAIR, PARIS, 1867.

The world's greatest pianists and composers, including the renowned Dr. Franz Liszt; Anton Rubinstein; Busch; Kullak; Dr. J. W. Hill; M. J. Mathews, of the Academies of Fine Arts of Paris, Berlin and Stockholm; Professor Helmholtz of Berlin, the highest authority in the science of Acoustics; as well as the piano purchases of Europe and America, all unite in the unanimous verdict of the over all others, and declare it to be the STANDARD PIANO of the WORLD.

Superiority of the Steinway Piano

All American Piano manufacturers, with a few exceptions, and a large number of the most celebrated European makers have been forced to copy the Steinway scale, penitentiaries of construction and various improvements, and to adopt the Steinway Overstring System.

Of their immense number of testimonials

STEINWAY & SONS beg to submit the following:

ANTON RUBINSTEIN.

New York, May 24, 1873.

Gentlemen.—On the eve of returning to Europe, I deem it my pleasant duty to express to you my most heartfelt thanks for all the kindness and courtesy you have shown me during my stay in the United States. I have been greatly pleased with your splendid pianofortes, which ones we have done full justice to their world wide reputation, both for skill and craftsmanship. It is a pleasure right to defend of them as a party, that they should be party redressed of grievances. This was written for the purpose of whipping into the spirit of the Chirgan bill certain recalcitrant Democratic members, and the judge of "prior claim" was far from recognizing that the Democrats came up squarely to the support of that bill.—Toledo Com.—NO INDEPENDENCE.

creed the intention to negotiate a $10,000,000 loan to indemnify the Porto Rico slave-owners.

WEINHEIM, September 3d, 1873.

Mrs. STEINWAY & SONS,

Representative Office, New York.

Grand Piano now stands in my music room and presents a harmonious totality of admirable qualities, a detailed enumeration of which is the more superfluous as this instrument fully justifies the world wide reputation that for years you have everywhere enjoyed.

After so much well deserved praise, permit me also to add my homage and the expression of my undegraded admiration, with which I remain,

Very sincerely yours,

FRANZ LISZT.

Letter addressed to Metzendorf the celebrated composer, dated from Weinheim the 27th of the same month, 1873.

"Please tell Mr. Steinway that his splendid upright piano stands in brilliant advantage at the Festival performances at the Wartburg, where, last Tuesday, it served under my fingers as 'The Orchestra,' exciting general admiration."

Yours very truly,

FRANZ LISZT.
