City Votes Move To Old City Hall

Monday night at 7:30 p.m., the final meeting of the year for the Fine Arts Booster Club is scheduled in the band hall at Muleshoe High School.

Parents of high school and junior high school students involved in band, art and speech are encouraged to attend this officer election meeting. New officers will be chosen for the 1979-80 school year.

Following a lengthy discussion Tuesday morning, and after hearing Bailey County Judge Glen Williams explain that members of the Bailey County Commissioners Court had decided not to honor a decision to turn police dispatching services over to city control, the Muleshoe City Council approved moving the City Police Department from the Bailey County Law Enforcement Center. They approved relocating City Police to the old City Hall, a city-owned building.

David and Roger Otwell, cousins of Jerrell Otwell, of Muleshoe, will perform in a benefit concert at their home town of Tullia Tuesday.

On February 28, during a joint meeting of the Muleshoe City Council and the Bailey County Commissioners Court, former Mayor Ken Henry, speaking for the city council, informed the county that if the city was not given control of the police dispatching services immediately, they were moving their operation on October 1.

During the February 28 meeting, the commissioners verbally approved unanimously, to turn the dispatching services over to city control on April 1, with the city continuing to pay the 60 percent of salaries they were already paying. This action was followed the next day, when commissioners met and formally approved the change, and it was recorded in the minutes for the change to be effective on April 1.

The Otwell twins are regular performers on the Lawrence Welk Show.

After being questioned by members of commissioners court, former Mayor Henry and City Manager Dave Marr read numerous documentations of what they said was considered to be 'poor judgment' or 'inefficient' dispatching practices.

Last Tuesday, Judge Williams told the city council that the dispatching situation had been a matter of discussion for a couple of years, and, that in fact, he had discussed it with Dave (Marr) many times and that Dave had been in commissioners court many times on the same matter.

Brad Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Davis, will receive his bachelor's degree in religion and physical education in spring commencement at Wayland Baptist College in Levelland.

At the time of the February 28 meeting, the city manager told commissioners that city officers had

With crop planting right here, farmers welcomed a general rain that will help prepare land for early planting. Early Tuesday morning, and again Tuesday night, welcome rain fell throughout the area.

Although a narrow, seven to eight mile band of hail was reported east of Muleshoe about eight to ten miles from Muleshoe, the hail apparently did no great damage to early growth.

He added that corn producers probably received the rain with mixed emotions as they will be out of the fields and unable to plant for two or three days.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — The Texas Senate passed legislation this week by Sen. Bill Meier of Eules that will alter the Consumer Protection Act. Some say "alter" is not a strong enough word for what the proposed changes will do to the six-year-old consumer law.

Backers of the consumer act had predicted such a seige would happen this session, and when the attack came, proponents of the law, led by Sen. Lloyd Doggett of Austin and Sen. Babe Schwartz of Galveston, vowed to grind the Senate to a halt with filibusters and talkathons.

Doggett claimed Meier's bill would "gut" the consumer law. Schwartz said the proposed changes would tip the scale in favor of the seller and leave the buyer out in the cold. Despite such charges, Meier easily garnered enough votes to bring up his bill on the Senate floor and when he did, the fight was all but over to save the consumer protection act from becoming what some observers said would be only a ghost of its former self. Lacking enough votes to kill Meier's legislation, opposing senators could only hope to put off the inevitable and maybe squeeze a compromise or two out of Meier and his forces.

Doggett, in his now famous filibuster tennis shoes

("Not sneakers," he said. "It's the sneakers we're after here.") and Schwartz, running on what appeared to be an endless supply of energy, engineered two separate filibusters lasting a total of almost 25 hours.

One talkathon by Doggett was against a measure by Sen. Tom Creighton, not Meier. But Creighton's bill, which eventually passed the Senate, which lets auto dealers add on a $35 charge for getting cars licensed and registered, drew fire from Doggett. Schwartz and others because it too, they felt, like Meier's bill, was spawned by the business lobby and left consumers to fend for themselves.

While each side traded flak over Creighton's bill, senators tried to reach some compromise on the real target of the Doggett-Schwartz filibusters—the consumer protection law.

Some compromises were worked out, but those were called "cosmetic" by Doggett, who helped write the consumer protection act before ever coming to the Senate, and there were few who disagreed with his appraisal of the compromises reached.

If Meier's bill gets through the House and past the governor's desk, consumers can expect these changes in the law that for the past six years has guaranteed them a redress of their grievances with the business world: 1) consumers would not have the right to bring class action suits, but the attorney general will still have that power, 2) triple damages will no longer be mandatory but up to the judge or a jury, 3) consumers will now have to prove that a businessman knowingly sold them a deceptive product or committed a fraudulent act, and other "alterations."

Meier said his bill "strikes a balance" between consumer and businessman. But

Sen. Ron Clower summed up the opposition's feelings when he said: "We don't have a consumer protection act. We have a consumer-fraud act."

In The House

Legislation regulating strip mining of coal, lignite and uranium has glided through the House with so few objections that you would think legislators didn't know Texas was sitting on substantial deposits of those resources.

In fact, by 1985, Texas, already third in uranium reserves, will probably become one of the country's biggest producers of coal and lignite. Deposits stretch from Texarkana to Laredo.

Legislators are aware of such facts, and some lawmakers even pointed out that not long ago you couldn't have passed a strip mining bill without lengthy and sometimes heated discussions. But, at this point, legislators appear resigned to the fact that bills pushed by Speaker Bill Clayton and his "team" are for all practical purposes unstoppable. The strip mining bill is only one example. "I may have been born under a tub, but I wasn't born yesterday," said one lawmaker. "Ten or 25 people can't stop 'em," that same legislator added, speaking specifically about the strip mining legislation muscled through the House by the Clayton forces.

Help children play safely and happily by providing them with safe playground equipment.

Playground equipment related injuries send about 118,000 children to hospital emergency rooms each year, according to U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates.

Most injuries occur to children under 10 years old with falls from slides and climbing equipment the most frequent hazards.

Parents can use the following suggestions to help safeguard their children from playground injury:

• Select equipment wisely and take care with placement.

To help reduce the severity of injuries from falls, place equipment on a grassy or soft ground surface -- never on hard surfaces such as concrete, blacktop, brick or cinder.

Locate equipment at least six feet from fences, walkways, walls or other play areas.

Set equipment legs in concrete below ground level to prevent a tripping hazard.

• Place metal sliding boards to prevent burns from sun - heated sliding surfaces. Construct a landing pit in front of slides from sand or similar materials. Place a block under each end of the seesaw so that children will not catch their feet if the board descends too rapidly.

• Make maintenance checks at the beginning of the play season and at least every two weeks during the season.

Tighten any loose nuts, bolts or hooks.

Apply tape over protruding screws or bolts and over sharp or rough edges, especially on swing seats and slide edges.

Replace rusted parts, including swing chains.

Replace worn ropes on climbing nets and tire swings or standing swings attached to a tree. Nylon or synthetic rope is usually more durable than rope made of natural fibers.

Oil any moving parts, sand and repaint any rusted metal tubing with un-leaded paint, sand any wooden equipment, refill landing pits and cover foundations with several inches of soil.

Barns were present for the show.

Shown for spring were jackets with narrow lapels and looser cuts; vests in various styles; blouses with small collars tied at the neck with narrow ties and pants with pleated waistlines and narrow straight legs. Polyester dress were shown for evening wear and skirts were shown for a more casual look.

Winners of the door prizes were Marilyn Engleking, Becky Nowland, Teresa King, JoAnn McGuire, ElFredia McGehee, Barbara Matthews and Karen Saxton.

Cake and punch were served to guests following the show from a table covered with a white and yellow floral cloth. A silk flower arrangement in spring colors centered the table.

In Fashion

Clutch bags have won favor in fashion circles. The smaller bag, with or without a handle, will be a complement to new spring outfits.

A stunning, casual wrap is shown in crisp, linen-look polyester. It skims the body beautifully from shawl collar to the breezy opening when you walk.

A sneak preview of fall coats reveals they are more shapely. The redingote and princess are favored styles.

The Budget & Welfare

The latest Gallup Poll shows 78 percent of the American people favor a constitutional amendment to require the federal government to balance its budget. Twelve percent oppose such an amendment and ten percent have no opinion on the question.

This is an unusually high majority and proves again the heavy sentiment in America today for less government spending. It's about the same margin of support as was registered (81%) in a similar poll last year.

When asked where cuts in the budget should be made, more than half those questioned favored cuts in the expanding federal welfare program (54%) while another sizable group (29%) favored cuts in defense spending.

These results are interesting because considerable opposition is developing in Congress to the balanced budget amendment. Nor is the White House in favor of such an amendment.

But California Governor Jerry Brown is, and he is planning to base his presidential nomination campaign, to a considerable degree, on this issue. At present he has the vast majority behind him. The interesting test in the next fifteen months will be whether those in power (those spending the money) can change public opinion. If not, they will have to change their position or risk political defeat.

Financing Congressional Elections

Hearings were recently completed in the House on a bill which would amend the Federal Elections Act of 1971 to provide for federal government funding of congressional campaigns. A similar bill is being pushed in the Senate.

The idea behind this effort sounds good, at first glance. It's said only the rich have enough money to conduct an election campaign nowadays, which could cost anything from two or three hundred thousand dollars to much more. So, it's argued, let the taxpayers finance all candidates.

The fallacy with this theory is that it would, in effect, perpetuate office holders in their congressional and Senate seats. That's because a moderate limit on expenditures greatly favors the incumbent. He begins with a big staff, free mailing, travel expenses, offices in his home district, or state, and a nice salary--plus the fact that he, as a member of Congress, is news, whatever he does.

With the same financing as a challenger, the incumbent would, in effect, have an enormous advantage. Columnist James Kilpatrick suggests, because of this, that the bills now being pushed be titled the "incumbent's protection bill," and there is much in this suggestion.

We already have federally-financed presidential elections. That recent innovation hasn't been tested sufficiently yet; certainly there have been abuses and many violations. The move to have the taxpayer also foot the bill for all congressional candidates is therefore, at best, premature.

Bush & Ford

Next month George Bush is expected to announce his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination. Already he is visiting all areas of the country--and he supposedly has the blessing of former President Gerald Ford.

While Mr. Bush is a serious candidate, and certainly eminently qualified, the feeling is very strong that if he finds he can't win the nomination in Detroit he will throw his support to former President Ford. A Ford-Bush ticket could evolve, if that situation arises.

James Baker, who ran Mr. Ford's near-successful comeback campaign in 1976, is Bush's campaign manager; he estimates that about ninety percent of the top people in the Bush campaign today are former Ford supporters. He also has the blessing of former President Ford.

George Bush is the first choice of a surprising number of veteran government servants, editors and intellectuals. If he has one drawback, it's the claim of some that he doesn't have a strong enough political base nationally to win the nomination. In the several high offices he has held, however, the verdict is almost unanimous that he performed very ably.

Bush has served as a Congressman, U.S. Ambassador to the U.N., U.S. liaison officer to China, director of the Central Intelligence Agency and national chairman of the Republican Party. That adds up to a broad background of experience and, being from Texas, he automatically challenges for the Dixie vote, which put President Carter into the White House in 1976.

Political observers will be watching the polls as they measure Bush's voter appeal after his announcement next month, and during the early primaries next year, to gauge his chances. That he is an able and capable candidate is beyond much doubt.

VENEZUELA & OIL
CARACAS, VENEZUELA --Vice President Walter F. Mondale told political leaders recently the United States is "enormously grateful" for Venezuela's increased oil sales to help fill the gap caused by the revolution in Iran.

It's good that most of us never know what other people think of us.

JOHN ADAMS IN WASHINGTON

The Mail-
In The Future-
Electronic Letters-

By John Hanly Adams

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- Some day you'll have a choice of putting a 15-cent stamp on a letter and dropping it in the mail box--or handing your letter to a machine that will send a facsimile copy to Aunt Minnie for 9 to 10 cents.

This is a fairly certain prospect in the view of Postmaster General William F. Bolger. From a recent interview with this correspondent--

Q. A postal union leader is quoted as saying 300,000 postal workers may lose their jobs during the next 10 years because business will shift to electronic mail in place of first-class letters. Is that likely to happen?

Bolger: I think those figures are premature. Electronic communications will have an impact on the Postal Service, but I don't think in that magnitude that soon. Also I don't know yet what our role will be in the electronic field. I believe we should have a role; at the very least in delivering hard copy produced by electronic transmission methods. Whether we should be involved in the transmission itself is an issue where a public policy decision has to be made. I am firmly convinced we have a role there but just what it is I can't say until a White House study on this, and Congressional in-put, lead to a policy decision.

Q. The Postal Service has a monopoly on delivery of letters. But why should you also get a monopoly in the new field of electronic communications?

Bolger: I wouldn't push for taking over the black-box to black-box message type of transmission from one business to another, or even from a business to your home. I can't see us exercising a monopoly over that. On the other hand, if a business transmits messages to me as a third party and it comes out in a hard copy that has to be delivered, I think that's our monopoly and we should keep it as a monopoly. That's where the government's role lies: to make sure all the public everywhere is served equally well, from Alaska to downtown to our big cities. Beyond that, I do think the Postal Service should be involved at least on a competitive basis in this new way of distributing messages, if we can reduce transmission costs. I don't see that it's any different from technical advances in the past. We participated in changing from quill pens to typewriters. This is no different.

Q. You seem to be hinting there will be a day when I can take a letter to a post office and facsimile it to-- Bolger: Sure. On a demonstration basis we're going to do that in May or June, sending messages from Washington and New York to six other countries.

Q. Will that be cheaper?
Bolger: We've had some studies made. In terms of today's costs we're looking at sending an average one-page letter for 9 to 10 cents where you pay 15 cents now.

AUSTIN--During the last year I have made numerous attempts in urging Federal officials to intervene in a major effort to complete the Sohio Pipeline. It appears that our goal is now on the horizon. We in Texas and the nation need the completion of this vital pipeline so we may bring Alaskan crude to Texas and the nation.

On March 13, 1979, Sohio announced its intention to terminate plans for the construction of a crude oil pipeline from California, to Midland. In announcing its withdrawal, Sohio indicated that delays in the permitting process and the threat of protracted litigation in California had threatened the economic viability of the project.

This pipeline project is in the national interest. The pipeline is already laid and the physical modifications necessary for crude oil shipment are relatively modest. It would provide an efficient means for distributing Alaskan North Slope crude that is surplus to West Coast needs to inland markets. To that end, the Carter Administration has continuously supported the construction of west to east pipelines and has endorsed appropriate action to expedite both the approval and construction of such systems.

A three-pronged approach has been developed; first, Sohio has agreed to reactivate its application before the South Coast Air Quality Management District on the pledge of Federal and State officials that every effort would be made to remove the remaining obstacles within six months. The Board Chairman has agreed to proceed with consideration and completion of the application in a timely man-

PEKING ON CRITICISM

PEKING -- Peking authorities have banned public demonstrations and wall posters critical of the government. This left the capital nearly bare of slogans and the city's newspaper indicated most residents favor the restrictions.

ARABS & AMERICA

BAGHDAD, IRAQ -- Arab League foreign ministers rejected demands for economic sanctions against the United States and Yasser Arafat angrily pulled his Palestine Liberation Organization delegates out of the meeting.

ON LUNG CANCER

DAYTONA BEACH, FLA. --A Canadian scientist, Dr. Thomas H. M. Stewart of the University of Ottawa, reported limited success in using a lung tumor vaccine to treat early lung cancer and said he hopes in a few years to try to immunize high-risk people against the usually fatal disease.

GOV. HOSPITAL CARE

WASHINGTON -- The government has ordered its Public Health Service hospitals around the country to stop giving facelifts and other purely cosmetic surgery to military wives and other patients who would have to pay for it anywhere else.

Tax Relief Is Extended To Victims

State Comptroller Bob Bullock, Thursday, ordered tax relief measures for tornado victims in the Wichita Falls and Vernon area.

"Residents in that tornado-ravaged area are too busy pulling their lives together to have to worry about meeting state tax deadlines," Bullock said. "Many businesses simply do not have records because they were destroyed in the devastation that hit on Tuesday and they need all the help and assistance we can give."

Bullock said he intends to waive any penalty or interest payment on late tax returns from businesses and individuals affected by the tornado.

He also said that in the coming weeks his office resources will be made available to those merchants who want to reconstruct business and tax records from data on file in Austin.

Bullock also advised Wichita Falls - Vernon residents to disregard computer-generated tax delinquency notices until recovery is made in the area. "The last thing someone who lost a home or a loved one needs now is a dun notice from the tax collector. These folks deserve the biggest break they can get and I am going to give it to them," he said.

A special tax task force was activated in the Comptroller's Office to provide continuing help to tornado victims on tax-related problems and that representatives of the Comptroller's Office would be in the tornado-damaged area in the coming weeks.

A preliminary survey by the Comptroller's Office revealed that more than 300 businesses were destroyed or severely damaged in Wichita Falls - some 60 in one shopping center alone.

Jammie read 44 books to be the top reader and Sue Hair collected the most money at $70.

Treatment Is Needed For Evergreen Disease

A fungus disease is attacking longleaf evergreens across the South Plains, and prompt action is needed to combat it. The disease is called "needlecast," and it is attacking junipers and Arizona Cypress as well as spruce and pines, said Dr. Robert Berry, area plant pathologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

It appears as a yellow spot, turning into a brown band around the needles. The needle turns brown to the tip and eventually drops off, Berry explained. The infection is happening now and will continue for the next few weeks as new growth comes out on the evergreens, he said. Infection is much faster in periods of dew and rainy weather. "There is no control for it once the needles are infected. They must be protected in advance by a chemical treatment to the foliage," he said.

Several general broad-spectrum fungicides work well, the plant pathologist said. He reported that good results have been obtained with copper fungicides and with maneb and zineb materials. These are available at garden supply stores and nurseries.

Three applications of fungicide at 10 day intervals in the spring and two more about September will provide season-long protection for 1979 growth, berry said.

On pines and spruces, application should start when the candle -- the new growth on the tip of the branch -- is fully emerged. On cedars and cyprus, application should start as soon as the new green needles have emerged.

If a plant has not had a problem with needlecast, treatment may not be imminent, the Extension specialist said. "But if a plant had needlecast last year, it will be worse this year," he cautioned.

Judging Contest To Feature Students

Some 1,600 vocational agriculture students from throughout West Texas will converge on the Texas Tech University campus Saturday, April 21, to participate in the 52nd annual Texas Tech Vocational Agriculture Judging Contest. Coordinating the event is General Superintendent Jerry D. Stockton, chairperson of the university's Department of Agricultural Education. A special guest will be W.H. Meischen, executive director of the Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association, Austin.

Eleven contests will be held, with winners in six of them going on to Areas I and II of the state Future Farmers of America competition. The five other events are known as Texas Tech contests. These are related to cotton, wool, crops, land and range and pasture plants. The latter contests were established because of their importance to the economy of the South Plains.

The livestock, dairy cattle and wool contests will be held at the new Livestock Arena, the first time this facility has been used for the annual vocational agricultural judging events.

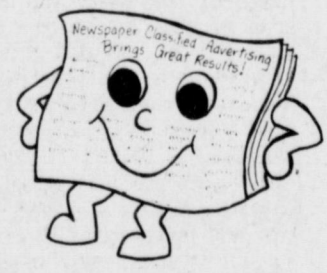

Events begin at 7:30 a.m. and results are to be announced at 2 p.m. in the University Center Ballroom. Immediately after these announcements Jay Eudy, Area I vocational agriculture supervisor, and Supervisor Hulan Harris of Area II will certify the teams from their areas who qualify to attend the state FFA Judging Contest April 28 at Texas A&M University.

He said the main concern seemed to be about the quality of dispatching services being rendered. Judge Williams said he was neither an officer or a dispatcher, and did not know what constituted good dispatching. He said the proposed change had been accompanied by so many rumors and so much unrest that commissioners were now reluctant to follow through with the proposed change.

He also cited a lack of being able to come to agreement on the allotment of office space, or division of space for the city and county officers. Judge Williams said that although they had tried to work out an agreement for suitable office space, they had been unable to do so.

The judge commented, "The commissioners feel it will not work to implement a change in the procedure as it is now, and the sheriff will continue to operate the dispatching services."

He also said the commissioners have not passed an order rescinding their former decision to make the change. "Because I did not think it was necessary."

Also in a response to a question from council member Ronnie Shafer, about problems encountered in attempting to allot office space, Judge Williams commented, "I thought it was very gracious of the city police to offer to take the basement for city police operations." However, he added that the offer had been vetoed as it would close two restrooms in the basement to public use, leaving only two public restrooms on the first floor and would close the basement as a shelter during severe weather.

Also, incoming Mayor Charles Bratcher asked of the feasibility of having a management study made on operations of the law enforcement center. Judge Williams said such a study had been made by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards, and added they had recommended that operation of the police radios be turned over to city control.

Remodeling of the old city hall is expected to get underway shortly, changing some of the rooms into offices for city police officers and the radio dispatching service.

It was explained that the move will require an additional expenditure on the part of the city of about $1,000 per month in order to have 24-hour a day, seven day a week dispatching services and for additional utilities and incidental expenses.

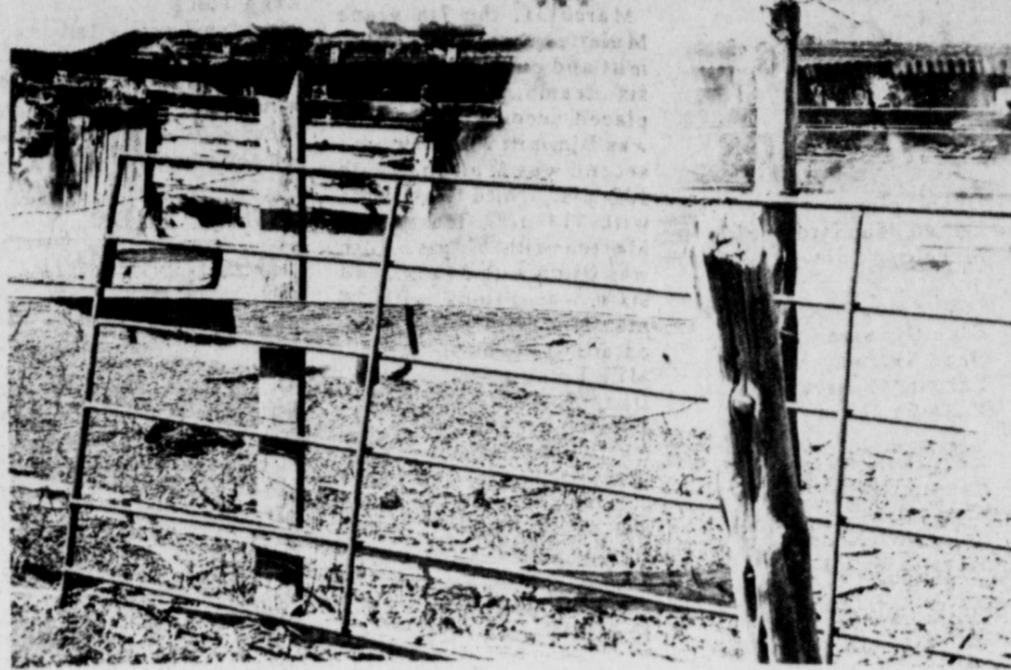

The city also plans to move their teletype with the new operation, according to the city manager, and they will obtain another console with funds already allotted.

In other action, the city approved a six month budget in excess of $700,000 to operate the city until a budget for a year will be approved on October 1.

They also adopted an ordinance keeping the one percent sales tax currently collected on electric and gas utility bills and set the prices for the swimming pool for the current year.

They approved $1 for each day at the pool, or $20 for a season ticket. The $1 will be charged for all ages. It was explained that the season ticket will be approximately 35 cents per day, if used during each day of the 69 day season.

In another ordinance, garbage prices were revised, with householders to be charged an additional $1 per month. A slight revision is also being made in the charges to all businesses, and was approved by the city council.

EASTER FIRE... Firemen from the Muleshoe Fire Department responded to what was initially reported to be a house fire Sunday afternoon. Approximately one mile north of Muleshoe, they found a blazing barn. The barn, owned by Mack Reid, was totally consumed in the fire.

At Bula, Robert Claunch said they received from two and a half to three inches of rain with very little hail, "not enough to hurt anything."

Another two inches was reported in the Needmore area, with Lester Howard receiving around two inches just southwest of Needmore.

Guy Austin at West Camp received just about what was received in Muleshoe, around an inch and a half.

From Progress, Loyd Williams said Tuesday night he had received around an inch of rain Tuesday morning, followed by approximately one half inch Tuesday night.

North and east of Needmore, Morris Killough received from three inches on one farm to two inches on the other farm, and Jesse Ray Carter said he had received slightly over an inch of rain.

In the Maple area, Bill Eubanks reported a fairly "general" two inches or rain with larger amounts falling in isolated locations.

Tim Foster at Lazbuddie, said around an inch and a half of rain had fallen in the Lazbuddie area, with no hail and no wind. A little hail accompanied the Tuesday morning rainstorm, but failed to hurt anything.

At presstime, cloudy skies still lingered in the area, and more thunderstorms were predicted during Wednesday and possibly extending into Thursday.

and run accident. Justice of the Peace K.B. Martin pronounced the victim, 28 year old Florenca Segura of Clovis, dead at the scene of the accident.

Trooper Thomas called his sergeant Thurman Kefter, from Plainview, to help check the mysterious accident, which occurred more than one half mile from the nearest house.

After the DPS sergeant arrived at the accident site, the woman's body was moved to Muleshoe. She was taken to a medical examiner's office in Albuquerque by Singleton - Ellis Funeral Home ambulance for an autopsy. She was returned to Muffley Funeral Home in Clovis for final services.

In Muleshoe Monday morning to assist with the preliminary investigation were Clovis Police Chief Nelson Worley, and CPD ID officers Leon Morris and Joe Thomas. They took their mobile crime lab to the accident site.

Also assisting in the investigation were Bailey County Sheriff Dee Clements, District Attorney Jack Young and DA Investigator, Dick Pylant.

Officers traced Ms. Segura to the Midway Dance Hall, located between Clovis and Portales, and witnesses there told officers the victim had left the dance with a man at approximately 11:30 p.m. Sunday night, some two hours before her body was found.

The investigators are attempting to trace down her final two hours or less before her body was found on the highway. She had apparently been struck by a vehicle and the body was dragged down the highway for approximately 50 yards.

At presstime, officers were still seeking a Texas man to question in connection with the Clovis woman's death. He has been described as being approximately 20 years of age, between 5-4 and 5-5 and weighing 120 - 125 pounds. When last seen, he was wearing blue jeans, a brown shirt and reddish-brown shoes. He is suspected to not be driving a vehicle.

eyes and answers
Weston A. Pettey, O.D.

Dear Dr. Pettey: My doctor says I have the beginnings of a cataract. But my eyes don't seem too bad for my age, and my husband has looked into my eyes carefully and he can't see anything clouded over. Do cataracts gradually get worse?

First, except in far advanced cases, cataracts are difficult to see with the naked eye. They are not a growth over the front of the eye nor behind the eye, but an increasing cloudiness of the lens inside the eye. An optometrist or ophthalmologist, using a special instrument, can detect developing cataracts as a part of a routine vision examination. Often the "second sight" of older patients, when they can once again see to read without glasses, is a sign of beginning cataract.

Yes, cataracts are a developing condition. Until the vision deteriorates to a point that the person can no longer perform normal activities, the optometrist can vary the eyeglass prescription to help. When vision becomes untreatable with eyeglasses or with special devices available in a low vision clinic, referral is made to the ophthalmologist for consideration of surgical removal of the lens. Vision is then most often restored through special contact lenses, glasses, or an artificial lens implant. NOTE: One of the best low vision clinics in the U.S. is in Houston, Texas, at the College of Optometry, University of Houston. Many of the patients being served there are those who cannot be helped medically or surgically. The clinic's equipment includes telescopic glasses, portable magnifiers, closed circuit television magnifiers, and a number of other devices to help the patients read and write

Gasohol Bills Recommended For Passage

The Senate Natural Resources Committee reported both of Senator Bob Price's gasohol bills to the full Senate with a favorable recommendation Tuesday.

Senator Price called one witness, Carl King, of the Texas Corn Growers Association, during the brief committee hearing. Acting Chairman of that committee, Senator Bob Vale of San Antonio, told Senator Price that the committee was all for his gasohol program and the bills were voted out of committee unanimously.

S.B. No. 644 provides for development contracts in the amount of $20 million to be made available to any person, corporation, partnership, municipality, etc., for the construction of gasohol or related facilities.

S.B. No. 645 provides for the state funding of a pilot gasohol plant. The Texas Energy Advisory Council will determine the amount of funding for the plant.

"We did our homework," commented Senator Price on the favorable committee action. "I think we are getting closer to the gasohol revolution that will sweep this country in the years ahead. I am confident that the legislation will pass the full Senate," said Senator Price.

PARKS CROWDED ON EASTER

Easter weekend seems to herald the appearance of more local parks visitors with many state parks overflowing by mid-afternoon.

"The picnic tables are usually full by 2 p.m. and traffic control is really a problem at Palo Duro Park near Canyon in the Texas Panhandle," said Leonard Winstead, regional park director for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

"All the parks superintendents recommend that Easter day visitors go early if they want a picnic table and if they are staying overnight, make reservations," Winstead continued.

More facts about state parks are listed in the new parks information leaflet available at all P&WD offices.

Additional information can be obtained by calling toll-free 800 - 252 - 9327.

STEPS IN REGISTERING YOUR BOAT

Many Texas boat owners are still not familiar with the boat and motor titing rules administered by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Even though the Texas certificate of title law became effective over three years ago, Texas game wardens are still finding unregistered boats on public lakes in Texas.

All new / unregistered motorboats in excess of 14 feet in length, and new outboard motors of 12 or more horsepower are required to be titled when bought, transferred or sold.

Title applications and manufacturers statement of origin must accompany a request for boat titling for new boats and outboard motors.

All boat hulls, new and/or old, less than 14 feet in length and outboard motors, new and/or old, less than 12 horsepower are not required to title, but may title if the owner so desires.

There is a procedure for the SELLER and BUYER to follow.

The SELLER must: (1) execute bills of sale if titles for boat and outboard motor have not been issued; (2) properly assign titles to purchaser if titles have been issued. Licensed marine dealers must use dealer assignments and show current dealer number. All must notify the P&WD within 15 days from date of sale.

The BUYER must obtain and fill out applications for title, boat and motor, and mail or bring to the

P&WD office applications, assigned titles or notarized bill of sale with the required fees (title fee $3.50 for each boat or outboard motor in addition to a transfer fee of $1). Application forms may be obtained from the P&WD offices or the marine dealers.

In addition to obtaining certificate of title for boats over 14 feet in length and outboard motors over 12 horsepower, all motorboats operating on public waters must be issued a certificate of number. This number regulation has been required for 11 years in Texas.

Boaters cannot operate their motorboats without this certificate of number on board, therefore, boaters should exercise care so as not to lose this certificate.

If you lose or accidentally destroy this certificate, a new duplicate can be obtained by filling out form PWD-309 and mailing the form together with a statutory fee of $1 to the P&WD, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Tx. 78744.

All boats are required to display the assigned number on both sides of the bow. Only this assigned number can be displayed along with the validation decal.

Cattlemen Can Expect Good Price

With a decline in cattle numbers, cattlemen can look for improved prices into the 1980 - 84 period, says a livestock marketing specialist.

Dr. Ed Uvacek with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service says there are fewer cattle and calves on farms and ranches now than a year ago as well as fewer beef cows and replacement heifers.

"All this points to improved cattle prices for the next five years or so," believes Uvacek. "Current forecasts predict a new cattle cycle with a few years of herd buildup, peaking in cattle numbers by 1985 or 86."

"Remember, however, that the cattle cycle is only numbers," reminds Uvacek. "In reality, it reflects the producer's reaction to profitability in the cattle business. Producers expand their herds when a profit is made or anticipated and decrease their herd size during periods of poor prices."

"At the bottom of the cycle, supplies are usually low and prices improve. In turn, this stimulates producers to expand their herds. That's where we are now," contends the marketing specialist.

"Eventually, there will be over-production, near the peak of the cycle, and prices will decline again."

Generally, cattle numbers are opposite to price levels, according to Uvacek. There is considerable lag, however, so the price and numbers cycles don't match evenly. "If 1979 does begin a new cycle, cattlemen should expect high prices on through about 1984 or 85," he predicts. "Prices will then decline somewhat as the new cycle peak approaches."

Production costs will continue to plague cattlemen, notes Uvacek. Even without a price decline, the cost-price squeeze will create severe economic problems for the cattleman by the mid-1980s. Rapidly rising costs will force cattlemen to become more market oriented and more efficient. Production practices will have to yield to sound marketing decisions for maximum net returns.

Home-Buyers Decide On Purchase Quicker

If you thought houses were selling like hotcakes in 1978, you were right.

A national survey conducted by The Family Housing Bureau, a public information service of Chicago Title Insurance Company, shows that home buyers in 1978 made their home-buying decisions much more quickly and looked at fewer homes than did buyers in the two preceding years. And over 80 percent wound up buying single-family homes that had previously been lived in.

Consumer Food News

Budget buys at Texas grocery markets this week include fryer chickens and potatoes.

Also, look for specials on canned and frozen produce, according to Gwendolyn Clyatt, a consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

This week's price-quality trends are the following:

POULTRY... Feature prices appear on whole fryers and parts. Buy extras and freeze for summertime menus, since today's prices will be real bargains compared to mid summer prices.

Eggs also have bargain prices, since a two-egg serving costs only 16 cents if a dozen eggs costs 96 cents.

FRESH VEGETABLES... Potatoes are probably the most economical vegetable on the market today. Also, watch for price drops on lettuce and fresh Florida corn. Other economical items are cucumbers, dry onions and squash.

Look for feature prices on carrots, bell peppers and green onions in some markets. Reasonable prices appear on radishes, broccoli, rutabagas, mushrooms and greens.

FISH... Although prices seem high, fish is more economical than red meat as shown in cost per serving comparisons.

DAIRY... Features include buttermilk, skim milk, yogurt and sour cream.

GROCERY MARKET AISLES... Look for special prices on canned fruits and vegetables, along with pasta products, tuna and peanut butter.

FROZEN FOOD CHESTS. Specials include vegetables, fried chicken, pizzas, ice cream.

FRESH FRUITS... Best buys include bananas, pineapple, apples, avocados and oranges.

BEEF... A few features include arm and boneless chuck roasts, ground beef, chuck and sirloin steaks and liver.

PORK... Specials may appear on quarter loins cut into chops, loin-end chops and roasts. Also, consider semi-boneless hams and 5-7 pound canned hams.
