"Backward. Pin Backward."
[From the Waco Reporter]
Backward, pin backward, my skirts in their flight,
Make me look small again just for to-night;
I am so weary and my skirts are so long,
Sweeping the pavement as I walk along,
Gathering the dirt from out the street,
Looked at by every one that I meet,
Mother, dear mother, I know I'm a fright,
Pin backward my skirts, mother pin 'em back tight.
Mother, dear mother, the day is so warm,
And I'm so tired of this dress I have on;
It is so clumsy and don't fit me right,
Pin it back, mother, pin it back tight.
Now, I am ready, don't I look sweet?
Smiling on all I happen to meet,
I'm in the fashion, so that is all right,
Pin back my skirts, mother, pin 'em back tight.
Mother, dear mother, say can there be harm,
In wearing these dresses that show off the form?
But what is a poor girl going to do?
If all the world wears them she must wear them too.
Only those who are thin, 'tis they who're afraid,
To show off a form that isn't well made,
You may laugh if you please, but you know that I'm right,
Pin back my skirts, mother, pin 'em back tight.
"BELLE RINGER."

Interviewing a Farmer
Wishing to keep posted as to the condition of the crops, and to ascertain the exact amount of damage done by the recent flood, a reporter of the Ledger started out this morning on an interviewing expedition. He was fortunate enough to encounter a farmer at the edge of the town bringing a load of hay into the city. Burning with enthusiasm, the reporter hailed him. He halted and the following colloquy to place:
"How are you friend?"
"Tired."
"What's hay now?"
"Same as it always was."
"What's that?"
"Dried grass."
"What did you think of the rain?"
"Thought it was damp."
"Didn't raise anything, then, eh?"
"Nothing but an umbrella."
"What did your neighbors get?"
"Chills and fever."
"What are you doing now?"
"Setting out here in the sun, and may be missing a chance to sell this hay. Come up here if you want to talk."
The reporter scrambled up to the side of his new-made acquaintance, and as they jolted on he again produced his note-book and continued:
"What did the farmers do last spring?"
"Ran everything in the ground as usual."
"Did your wheat do anything?"
"Yes."
"What?"
"Sprouted."
"Can you raise any tobacco now?"
"Yes. Don you want a chew?"
"How are the potatoes?"
"Under the weather somewhat, but able to be out."
Becoming just the least bit discouraged, the reporter asked timidly:
"Will you bring many beets to the city this year?"
"Got a load now," was the rejoinder, as he checked his horse and said: "Guess you'd better plant what I've told you, and see what I'll yield. Here's where you git off." Remembering that it was just about time to report at the office, the baffled searcher after news climbed down the side of the wagon and thinking that a soft answer turneth away wrath, he calmly said:
"That's nice hay, my friend, where did it come from?"
"Timothy seed," was the reply.
The interrogator grew faint, but he summoned up courage enough to ask:
"What do you think you'll get for it?"
"Cash, of course. Get up Whitey this fellow will talk us blind in a minute. He asks more questions than a catechism," and before the discouraged representative of the press could recover from his surprise, the hay wagon had turned an adjacent corner.—Louisville (Ky.) Ledger
A Tenth Warden rather under the influence of liquor approached an acquaintance the other day and remarked:
"See here, Bill, they say you called a sheep-thief."
"Yes, I did."
"Well, you've got to apologize of 'em, liek you!"
"I'll be happy to apologize, I thank you a sheep-thief; but I mispoke myself—I meant to say you had been caught stealing a horse!"
"That's maaly," said the Tenth Warden; "less take a drink. I think I'd pick up my horse."
