How Gen. John H. Morgan was Killed—The simple Facts and Egregious Errors Connected.

The story again goes through the press that Gen. John H. Morgan was betrayed by a Mrs. Williams, a sister-in-law of Major Williams of Morgan's staff. This lady, afterwards divorced, was at the residence of the mother-in-law, but left the house an hour or two before Morgan's arrival and did not know that he had been in the ancient town till after he was killed. Morgan was strongly attached to the Williams family, and their residence was most attractive in all its incidents. Its walls within were garnished with all the appliances of taste and art, and the mother of Major Williams was an educated and admirable woman. She was rich, too, and herself of famous lineage. Her deceased husband was the grandson of the hero of Kings Mountain. Morgan was especially addicted to the good things of this life. When he entered the house, leaving his command several miles away, the matronly Mrs. Williams insisted that neither her son nor the General should remain during the night; but Morgan recked more of the hot rolls, juicy steaks, and Mocha coffee of the breakfast table than of dangers of capture or death and the dowry bed of the spacious apartment above stairs invited him to delightful repose. He would not listen to the suggestions of Mrs. Williams or of Miss N. N. Scott, a granddaughter of Hugh L. White, then of the household. It was Miss Scott who ran to Morgan's room and aroused him at sunrise next morning with the announcement that the house was surrounded by Federal soldiers. Morgan drew on his boots and pantaloons, and ran down the stairs and out into a vineyard of two acres, of the stately old brick mansion. He crossed this garden and concealed himself for a time beneath a church built inside this garden by the Williams family Greenville was full of "torches"—so-called—and Morgan was discovered by one of these, and Federal soldiers were directed to the spot. He came out, and ran back across the garden towards the residence, and was shot in the back while crossing the garden by a soldier named Moses Campbell, of Tennessee, who was on the outside of the enclosure. Morgan fell. The corpse was borne away towards Gen. Gillem's headquarters, eighteen miles distant, and afterwards returned through the intervention of Colonel Jim Brownlow to Mrs. Williams residence, Gen. Gillem, in this behalf, doing everything that became a gentleman and soldier. He has stated, in a note heretofore published by the writer of this, that he was advised of Morgan's presence in Greenville by negroes and others, and that Mrs. Williams—the daughter-in-law, now of Little Rock, Arkansas—had no agency whatever in procuring Morgan's death. The story made her famous. She never denied its truthfulness. Major Williams, more fortunate than his commander, escaped death and capture. Instead of crossing the vineyard he concealed himself beneath the straw that constituted the bed of a great Newfoundland dog that slept under the steps leading into the backyard and vineyard. The dog seemed to comprehend the situation and rested quietly while the master rested behind and beneath him; but the position and odors and fleas were intolerable, and young Williams, when he heard the huzzinga in the main street, two hundred yards distant, and when silence reigned about the house, sought concealment in a well in which there was no water. It was covered with logs and partially with stones and earth. He had not been there an hour till squads of soldiers were searching for him everywhere. He heard their oaths and imprecations and often expressed amazement that he could have disappeared so suddenly and mysteriously. A soldier stood above the well and said he was going to fire his repeater into its depths; but an old negress passing at the moment said to him that the well was more than five hundred feet deep, and he might kill the devil if the bullet went to the bottom. The soldier was invited to share delicacies furnished by the fat old queen of the kitchen, and that night Williams crawled out of the well and was concealed by this faithful negress beneath the floor of her cabin.—Austin Statesman.

THE POLITICAL OUT-LOOK AT AUSTIN—THE CHANGERS AND THE ANTI-CHANGERS—THE FATE OF THE NEW MUDDLE.

AUSTIN, Nov. 13, 1875.

The eyes of Texas are upon Austin at the present time. The Convention, the fair and the gathering in of Democratic wire-pullers are the chief features. If it is not too late to speak of the panorama, as it passes before the disinterested spectator, let us look in upon THE CONVENTION which comes first in view. A granger member is expounding the new doctrine of reform of low salaries, &c., while fifteen or twenty big-headed members are trying to hold down the breaks upon this new Democratic wagon that is now freighted with the destinies of the State and to which it is proposed to harness the democracy in the coming political campaign. The Convention is evidently the elephant of the Texas Democracy and the wise ones of the party are trying to devise some means to take care of it. A Democratic State Convention has been called to assemble at Galveston in January. In making this call, Mr. Sayers, the chairman of the Democratic State Executive Committee, has committed the members of the Constitutional Convention upon the assumption that they represent the democracy; but this conclusion was marked by angry words which indicate a storm in the future. The Fair furnished a good excuse for the presence of Throckmorton, Ashbel Smith and others who can be termed the WIRE PULLERS and the "spectator" watches with surprise the activity of these important individuals and hears the expressions of opposition to the work of the Convention. The new constitution must be defeated at any cost, and the ambition of Mr. Coke, who aspires to Senatorial honors, must be nipped in the bud; but how can this be done while Coke holds all the trump cards and has the friendly assistance of the all powerful grange. Coke for Governor and Lang for Lt. Governor,—then the election of Coke to the U. S. Senate and the Grange left in quiet possession of the throne of power. No wonder then that Throckmorton, Hancock, and men of their calibre are casting about them for some relief from this catastrophe. If the coming Convention at Galveston adopts the new Constitution and champions it before the people it may be that there will be independent candidates, and that lifelong Democrats will boldly take the stump as converts to Republicanism, the only progressive party of the country; one such is already reported. But will all this defeat the new Constitution? Wise nose-counters say not, that the ten "outs" to one "in" will alone carry it without a single principle being evoked, and it looks reasonable and natural that the aspirant for Sheriff, or Clerk, or Justice of the Peace, or District Judge, unless he be the present incumbent would not deliberately put the knife to his own throat by urging the defeat of the new Constitution, as its defeat would be his defeat. Not so with the big wire-pullers; they would willingly place themselves at the head of the masses to lead them against the new Constitution and to defeat the all powerful grange movement. In this turmoil how will the Republican act? Its true position is opposition to the overthrow of its own labors, the present Constitution, but the desire for a change—a new deal—has taken strong hold of a large section of the party and the question is left as the Constitutional Convention was an open one—each Republican to acting on his own basis. The Democratic leaders have sown to the storm and now they are about to harvest the whirlwind; poetic justice is certain to overtake them. They have practiced great deceit upon the people of Texas. They promised reforms they never even inaugurated; they promised virtue and intelligence in high places; they promised low taxes; they promised a constitution born of the very essence of statesmanship, of patriotism, and democratic excellence. But instead of all this they have pulled down the tall Vendome column erected in honor of Radicalism, and the people are asking that its shattered blocks be again placed in position and inscribed with the old mottoes "Common Schools," "Immigration" and

"Internal improvements." The commune now rulling the hour at the Capital will work its own condemnation. They propose revolution, and carry the red flag of Grangerism—if they win, they destroy the democracy—if they lose, the victory will be worse than a defeat to the democracy in the end. In my next I will tell what I saw at the fair. BEXAR.

WEDNESDAY EVENING Nov. 17

GOVERNOR COKE and his friends, we hear, do not care a rush whether the new Constitution is defeated or ratified. Discreet religion supreme.

LET us have the articles of the new Constitution already adopted. Let the people have them now. Let the papers everywhere publish them.

LET all good men, without regard to parties, resist fixing the vote on the Constitution with the election of State officers.

TO-day the monument over the grave of the immortal Southern poet, Edgar Allan Poe, in Westminster Churchyard, Baltimore, is to be unveiled.

THANKSGIVING DAY comes on November 25th, as appointed by the President, and most of the Governors of the States. It will be observed throughout the Union, and, we hope, in this city.

BISHOP GARRETT, of the Episcopal Diocese of North Texas, announces that St. Andrew's Day, November 30th, is Intercession day for the Anglican communion throughout the world, in behalf of the mission work.

No partyism, or partisan nominations or elections should be mixed up with the vote on the Constitution. It should be voted on solely on its merits, as recently in Alabama, North Carolina and Missouri. This election trick will damn its author.

LOOK out for a revolt against the Coke programme in the Galveston Convention. If Coke wins there, look out for another Convention, and another Democratic ticket. If not that, look out for an independent Democratic State ticket.

THE Texas and Pacific railroad, we learn, is at the bottom of much of the confusion and uncertainty in the Convention. If it gets the relief it asks, it will go for the Constitution; if not, it will not. The Twelfth Legislature and the Convention are neck and neck in the race for immortality.

THE Dallas Sunday Press, J. N. Bartholow, editor and proprietor, is a new weekly journal, literary, miscellaneous and domestic. It is an excellent journal. Mr. Bartholow was one of our co-laborers in journalism in Houston some years since, and is an experienced writer and editor.

VICE-PRESIDENT Wilson is still in a very weak and precarious state of health, at Washington. Since his partial attack of apoplexy while in a bath, a short time since, he has gained strength very slowly. It is plain that his life is in danger. He is one of the soundest, most moderate, and most patriotic men in the country.

SUPREME JUDGES are to receive a salary of $3,500 under the new Constitution, and District Judges $2,500. There are in twenty-five judicial districts. Unless county court jurisdiction is greatly enlarged, the District Judges will be overworked and poorly paid. The county court question is exciting a considerable degree of difference and discussion.

PEOPLE of Texas, read and study your new Constitution thoroughly before you vote to ratify it. Every right, liberty, and interest you have in the world is involved in it. You must defend them yourselves, by your votes, for the politicians will not do it for you. They are trying to rush its ratification through, backed by the enforcement of a party State Convention, and coupled with the election of party nominees, so that the masses will have neither time to study it, nor opportunity to vote upon its merits.

MASON J. D. BAYNES, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, publishes an address to the party, urging the election of delegates to the State Convention at Galveston, January 5th, 1876, to get party candidates ready to rush the ratification of the Constitution, and to ride into office on its back. The conspiracy against the State is completely organized. They can defeat it if they will. The majority of their sovereigns are the majority of their numbers, and they are only a few.

The Austin Statesman.
We have often admitted the force, pungency, and often wit and taste of the editorials of the Statesman, and have frequently given utterance to our approbation. We also felt partial to it because it was an independent paper. We believe in independent journalism, let it come from either the Democratic or Republican side of politics. Independent journalism and independent voters in both parties are necessary to their purity and necessary to the parity and wisdom of the administration of both National and State governments.

Of late, however, the Statesman has uttered sentiments and indulged in language that we feel in duty bound to condemn. We quote some of these utterances. We had complimented the Statesman for refusing to rejoice over the Democratic victory in Mississippi, where there is a Republican majority of 35,000 on a full and fair vote. We did this in no party spirit. We should have as promptly and fully condemned the Republican party had it obtained a victory in the same way. The Statesman responds as follows:

"The San Antonio EXPRESS, referring to the Statesman's report that the people of Mississippi are all degraded by agencies made necessary to be employed in elections because suffrage is universal, says:

"Our people will learn that, aside from the wrong of the thing, such equivocal victories in the South turns the whole North against them."

"We do not see why the whole North should be turned against those Mississippians who properly did not hesitate to resort to all arts and acts necessary to overthrow a system of government that was radically and judicially rotten and radically ruinous, radically disgraceful and utterly intolerable. If the necessity had intervened, Ames should have been driven by force of arms from the savagely ruled State."

We know nothing positive in relation to the administration of Governor Ames. We are not his apologist, or champions. Generally, we favor the election of old and well-known citizens of the State to such positions as he holds. But we fear that the Statesman has more objections to the politics of Governor Ames than anything else. Governor Walker, of Virginia, is a "carpet-bagger," so called, but he is a Democrat, and the Statesman has not a word of dispraise in relation to him. Governor Chamberlain of South Carolina is a Republican, gives the State a good government, and has the support of good men of both parties. Governor Kellogg of Louisiana, a Republican, is doing his best to redeem the State from the misery inflicted on it by Governor Warmoth, a renegade Republican whom the Democrats made their leader in the last election. But the Statesman has no approbation for them.

And then the Statesman's approval of mob violence, revolution, and bloodshed is outrageous, as well as highly impolitic, and injurious to the South. It further says, in regard to Mississippi, in another paragraph that—

"To rescue the State from the mastery of knaves, invested with office by the imbecile fabric, there was no degree of violence or force or of folly that was not justifiable and right."

We will not use the language necessary to convey our conception of the folly and wickedness of such recommendations of lawlessness, bloodshed and murder as the Statesman is guilty of in the two quotations above. They have only to be put in practice to kill the Democratic party in the North, and ultimately in the South.

THE MASON COUNTY troubles, according to a correspondent of the Austin Statesman, are caused by a band of cutthroats who gather there occasionally to steal and kill somebody. The people of the county are mostly farmers and stock-raisers, of whom five-eighths are Germans, and nearly all are good, law-abiding citizens. The assassins have made war on the German citizens, and they have had to organize to defend themselves. The Americans, who have not suffered much, have taken but little part in the strife, through fear of assassination, yet they sympathize with the Germans. The correspondent says:

"The control of the finances and offices of the county has for many years been in the hands of two or three shrewd, crafty and dishonest men, who have 'got away' with a large amount of the county and State taxes, by which means, as well as by having a very dishonest cattle inspector of the county under their dictation, they have become measurably rich. Two years since all this was broken up and changed by the election of Clark as sheriff, and an honest inspector of cattle, Hoesler, who was murdered the other day. They were honest men, who neither the cajolery, threats nor money of the clique could seduce; hence the one was waylaid and shot and the other has been ambushed perhaps a thousand times, but has always escaped by his courage or vigilance. This is the whole matter in a nutshell, with the additional aggravation of the mobbing of the Beckness and of Tim Williamson last spring. There is ample testimony to acquit the Germans of any and all complicity in this matter, but the outlaws seized the occasion to charge it upon these innocent people in order to accomplish their own nefarious ends. It can be established in any court of justice that the above lynching was done by a mob of Americans from another county. There are no 'two parties' or factions here, as is so often mistaken abroad."

The Albany Journal prescribes an inflexible rule of success to either party—secure the opposition of the New York Tribune.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Dr. Cupples and party recently killed over five hundred quail, besides a number of ducks, while on a hunting expedition in the vicinity of Graytown.

If the old saying that he is idle who might be better employed, were made to work in San Antonio, how many of our citizens would be considered out of employment!

The season for flowers is almost over, but what a pleasure it is to get home after a hard day's work and find a nice bouquet on your table in the month of November. It cheers one's soul.

Rough, vulgar language is, to say the least, abominable. As a bird's worth is judged by its tone, so is a man's character judged by his expressions. We make this remark for the benefit of those who use vulgar slang upon our streets.

W. W. Gamble has just received a number of copies of the "Texas Scrap Book," by Baker. It is a very interesting and well gotten up book, and merits the reading of every body. Call and see Mr. Gamble.

It was very cold this morning, and the sky was overcast with watery-looking clouds, which led some to predict a snow-storm. It snows but seldom here—we can remember of only four storms during our entire life time.

Our Weekly edition was printed this morning. Persons wishing to purchase will please call at the book-stores, or our office. The edition is a large one, and contains a large quantity of news.

A horse hitched near a well in the neighborhood of the New Orleans store yesterday, pushed the cover off and fell in, carrying the walling with him. A number of men were at work all the afternoon cleaning out, but still they did not reach the bottom. It is rather an uncomfortable position his horse occupies.

The young man Glenn, we speak of yesterday as having been murdered on the Mexican border, was from New York City. It is our opinion that he was killed by the Mexicans, although quite a number are of a different opinion, thinking he fell at the hands of his companion, Frank R. Brown. At all events, we should not oppose a looking into the affair.

There are a great many wild turkeys coming into town. They sell rapidly at 50 and 75 cents a piece. The wild turkey is preferred to the tame one by most persons. The meat is of finer quality, and a sweeter and more agreeable taste. Hunting them is a good business to those who know their roosts.

Many fear that the capitalists who are tending the railroad enterprises, will not do anything until it is too late. The only thing remaining to be done, is for San Antonians to fix the matter among themselves. If there is another proposition submitted to the people of B-xar county, persons living in the country will not vote upon it, and the consequence would be an utter defeat. As the path of duty seems so well defined, the citizens are clamorous that it should be followed to the purpose.

This week, so far, has been a cold one, and his had a good effect on the nerves of nearly every one. The people like weather just about the temperature of the present.

In case the Street Railway Company decide to run cars on Main street, it is suggested that the line be an air line—suspended some thirty feet from the ground—and that loading and unloading be effected by mounting step-ladders. It is undecided how distant the stations should be from one another, but that minor difficulty will be settled in time.

"Great heavens," remarked a bland-looking stranger to us this forenoon, "you have much more of a city here than I had any expectation of seeing, and your business houses are among the best filled in the State,—and your location—why, it is perfectly charming." We remarked that we had our town to be unequalled in many respects by any in the State, and that as far as beauty and healthfulness went, none presumed to rival us—about the only thing we could not boast of, was a lack of railroad facilities, and these we hoped soon to have. We left him standing on Main street bridge, in a mood of perfect infatuation with the beautiful river scenery.

Those boisterous human beings, called auctioneers, are a source of amusement to the country people. We noticed a grizzled old gentleman laughing to himself this morning, over the strange and peculiar language used by a couple of them, who make their appearances on Main Plaza of mornings. On asking the old man what was the matter, he told us he was laughing at the show—never had so much fun before. We told him Wright and Trecoot were good men, knew their business, and made large and profitable sales.

City Council Proceedings.

REGULAR MEETING.

Tuesday, November 16th, 1875.

Present—His Honor, Mayor Fiedel, and all the Councilmen.

A petition was presented from Mr. G. W. Blackbridge, for permission to fence certain land belonging to the City, in the vicinity of the rock quarries. Petition granted and Mayor authorized to make lease.

Petition from J. W. Cook, policeman, asking the city to pay a fine imposed upon him by the District Court. The petitioner claimed that said fine was imposed while he was acting under defined rules. Petition referred to Finance Committee for action.

Felipe Calvera wanted a pistol returned to him, which had been confiscated before the Recorder. The Council refused to grant his request.

Louis Neri petitioned for permission to build an addition to his house on Presidio street. Referred to Fire Committee.

An offer of Ed Braden to exchange certain notes, matured and maturing at 90c on the dollar was referred to Finance Committee, which has conferred power to accept Mr. Braden's offer.

The report of the Finance Committee recommending the acceptance of the offer of Messrs. Kampmann and Wurzbach to exchange city notes for bonds at 90c was unanimously adopted.

The Finance Committee reported the reports of the City Marshal and Collector for the month of October, to be correct.

The same committee requested that the ordinance regulating the collection of dues in the market be strictly enforced.

A petition of citizens living on Commerce street, recommending ways and means for the proper supply of water in the event of fires, was, on motion, referred to the joint committee composed of the Public Improvement and Fire Committees, and the City Engineer.

The Committee on Petitions and Ordinances reported an ordinance changing the boundaries of the Wards. The rules were suspended and the ordinance unanimously passed.

The same committee also reported the following ordinances: Defining the duties of the Street Commissioner; defining the duties of the City Treasurer; regulating elections; and one preventing encroachments on the San Antonio river, near the San Pedro Creek and the Irrigating Ditches.

The committee to whom had been referred the assessment of property benefited by macadamizing the streets, recommended that the same be levied and collected. Report adopted.

Alderman Sweeney presented an ordinance and Alderman Prosser the following resolution, referring to the improvement of side-walks:

WHEREAS, A public necessity exists that steps should be taken to initiate a system of street side-walks, at the earliest practicable period, therefore

Resolved, That the Public Improvement Committee be and are hereby directed to take into consideration the expediency of inaugurating a thorough system of street side-walk improvements in the city of San Antonio, and that they report their action in the matter at the next regular meeting of the Council.

Referred to Public Improvement Committee and Committee on Petitions and Ordinances.

MILITARY ITEMS.—On the recommendation of the Medical Director of the Department, the contract of Acting Assistant Surgeon R. B. Grimes, U. S. Army, is annulled at his request—to take effect from the 12th instant.

Doctor Grimes is (in accordance with the terms of his contract) entitled to mileage from Fort Griffin, Texas, to New York City, N. Y.

Second Lieutenant C. H. Lester, 34th Infantry, will, in addition to the duties of Acting Assistant Quartermaster at Austin, Texas, perform those of Acting Commissary of Subsistence.

First Lieutenant M. W. Saxton, 24th Infantry, is relieved as a member of the General Court Martial instituted by paragraph H, Special Orders No. 204, current series, from these Headquarters.

Colonel Edward Hatch, 9th Cavalry, is relieved as Acting Assistant Inspector General of the Department—to date from the 6th instant—and is continued on temporary duty.

The Side-Walk Question.

We observe from the City-Council proceedings, that the side-walk question is again brought up. Improvement of the side-walks is styled a public necessity, which it most certainly is, if there is such a thing as a public necessity. Our side walks are a disgrace to the city, and instead of being a convenience, they are a great inconvenience and discomfort to pedestrians. They always have been but a lot of rocks, or gravel thrown together as cheaply as possible, becoming displaced in no time after they are laid, and making a rough way of constant up and down, where even, comfortable walks should be. The flat sand-stone, so generally used, should be ruled out by the Council, as it soon gets broken, and on damp mornings becomes very slippery. It being too hard to absorb moisture. The rock quarried in the vicinity of the head of the river, it is true, is soft, and wears away, but it can be replaced every few years at little expense, and as it is the best we have for the purpose, should be the material used. We shall see what will be done in this revival of the side-walk question.

THE HORSES attached to Easer's beer wagon ran away from their driver this morning, crossing the iron bridge at a fearful rate. The horses were heading for home and it is probable that no damage was done. A small boy on the bridge asked an EXPRESS reporter whether Mr. Easer would have to pay a fine on account of the horses passing over the bridge faster than the law allowed. The reporter thought no.

YESTERDAY afternoon just at the close of our work we were most agreeably surprised by the reception of some half dozen bottles of Mr. Wm. Easer's home-made beer. To say it was delicious, we only speak the truth, as all hands are willing to testify. We are much obliged to Mr. Easer for this treat and our types say they hope he will renew his treat at no distant time, and that he may succeed in life as he deservedly merits.

Press and Pulpit.

The Austin Statesman and the Rev. H. V. Philpot, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in that city, have become involved in a very bitter and unpleasant controversy. It seems that the preacher, both in his sermons, and letters to the Galveston Christian Advocate, has denounced the drunkenness which he alleges prevail in Austin, denounces the saloons, and denounces the press of the city, for what he considers neglect of duty in the premises, charging the saloons and the newspapers with mutually sustaining each other. He seems particularly to have indicated the Statesman in these denunciations. That paper has not neglected its defense by any means. The bitterness of the controversy may be indicated by the following from the last issue of the Statesman:

"If the starchy correspondent of the Galveston Christian Advocate who generally succeeds, even when speaking, in writing himself down an ass, in and out of the pulpit, again refers to the Statesman in his published letters, we may take occasion to tell what we and others think of him. It is the peculiar province of the pulpit to wage war upon vice, and he may say what he pleases about drunkenness and we will oppose with him; but we do not propose to become preachers of the gospel, or to invade the province of the pulpit, or to have a sanctified idiot shape our course or condemn it unjustly with impunity."

It is a good rule for every man, preacher, editor, or what not, to attend to his own business. The whole public sentiment of this country will sustain a public speaker who tries to win the people from drunkenness or any other vice, if he be wise and charitable; but otherwise it will not. "He that winneth souls is wise."

Austin Statesman on Suffrage.

The Austin Statesman is in a very bad humor, because of the defeat in the Convention of one of its pet ideas—that of restricted suffrage. It attempts to show the evils of universal and unrestricted suffrage in various editorials, paragraphs and columns from its columns, from day to day. It seems especially alarmed lest the votes of poor men in county elections, should be destructive of all property values, and all hope of prosperity. It designates and describes all poor men who are not made to pay a certain amount of taxes before they are allowed to vote, as the "mob," the "rabble," "robbers," "rogues," "villains," and the like.

Our contemporary is extreme in its views, and extreme in its language, and therefore does not treat this grave subject with the discrimination and wisdom demanded. Restricted suffrage is contrary to the whole spirit of this government. There are, in every community, as many men of intelligence, character, virtue and patriotism among the poor, as there are among those better off. And yet the Statesman would brand them, in the organic law of the State, as belonging to the very scum of mankind. Let the Statesman be proposed stigma and disability be put upon the honest, but poor, or unfortunate gentlemen of Texas in the new Constitution, and thousands of them will take the stump against it, tens of thousands will work against it, and it will be signally and deservedly defeated.

The Huguenots in America.

On the revocation of the edict of Nantes in 1685, at least 500,000 Huguenots took refuge in foreign countries. From this time for many years, their cause was completely broken in France. In 1705 there was not a single organized congregation of Huguenots left in all France. So early as 1655, Colligot attempted, but without success, to establish a Huguenot colony in Brazil. In 1662, he sent out two ships under the command of Jean Ribault, on a voyage of exploration to Florida, but the attempt to establish a colony was unsuccessful. Many departed for North America even before the revocation of the edict of Nantes. Some settled in and around Amsterdam, now New York, where their family names are frequent. Others found homes in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Virginia. But South Carolina was their favorite resting place, and a large number of the foremost families in that State are of Huguenot origin. This class of immigrants has contributed, in proportion to its numbers, a vast share to the culture and prosperity of the United States. Wherever they settle they are noted for severe morality, great charity, and politeness and elegance of manners. Of seven Presidents who directed the deliberations of the Congress of Philadelphia during the Revolution, three, Henry Laurens, John Jay and Elias Boudinot, were of Huguenot parentage.
