SPEECH OF COL. JOHN A. JOYCE BEFORK

touching speeches we have read in many a day is that of Col. Joyce before the Court at Jefferson City, Missouri, just before sentence to the Penitentiary for three Years mountains, the sun shines warmly and a half, and to pay a fine of $3.-000. We reproduce it is as striking curiosity in its line. Eloquence and courage he undoubtedly has, guilty or not guilty. He had refused to fight his case any longer before the court, and demanded sentence. He said :

I was indicted for failure to report in writing certain alleged knowledge and information of certain fradulent transactions of petrified perjurers. The jury found me guitty on the counts, but as a matter of fact the conclusion was as false as the evidence. I agree that it had the appearance to the jury of a fail-ure of duty. We know, however, that things are not always what they seem. I simply declare upon my honor as a man, and my allegiance as an American citizen, here in the presence of this honorable court, to the whole world, and fac-ing my God, that I AM ABSOLUTETY INNOCENT of the charges trumped up against me by pretended friends and viper enemies. It has not been shown in evidence, or even intimated by any body, that I ever received a single cent to may frand of the revenue. Then where is the motive that in-duced me to withhold the information I Aid make a report in writing to Supervisor McDonald and Commissioner Douglass. The re-port it is alleged, was not in full-neither was the information in my possession full or complete, as the facts were out of my district and

THE THEORY I REPORTED was in Missouri. The District Attorney of the United States, in his concluding speech, introduced my copy-book, showing the transmitted letter to Supervisor McDonald as something fradulent. My lawyers or myself had no opportunity to explain the letter in evidence, which could have been done to the utmost satisfaction of everybody concerned Your Honor, trom the beginning of the case to the end, extended me the kindest consideration and fairest ruling. For this I thank you in the name of the people and in the name of justice- I stand here to-day strong and hold in consisions innote. My beart is actuated by

Like Raisigh, I may have puffed smoke through the window at the execution of some official Essex, but I sever yet trampled upon the royal robes of the Virgin Queen. For myself, I have no fear of any punishment on earth, yet in that ever DARKENED MY LIFE, and in consideration of the support I owe my wife and children, I ask that magnanimity at this bar of justice that would be reasonably claimed by yourself under like circumstances. A few short years will sepulchre the living of to-day with the dead of yesterday, and the celestial sunlight of to-morrow will bring us all to the bar of Omnipo-tence, when the Judge, jury, law-the son recently born to the Princess yer and client will meet upon the Imperial of Brazill, Computer of Eu, bring na all to the bar of Omnipolevel of eternity and part upon the square of final judgment. Then all hearts shall be laid bare, and truth will rise in splendid triamph.

THE BLOOD OF INNOCENCE flows free and unruffled through the life channels of this frame, and the artificial lusters that surround the victims of crime find no lodgment in my heart. When I look back to the field of battle, where I fought and bled for my country in the hour of terrible trial, I wonder whether patriotism was but a name, and gratitude of nathe brave to destruction. My slmple sin is that of omission, and for it I suffer the deepest humiliation, while the glorious services and recollections of the past are buried

But the rain falls lightly on the on the plains, and the flood even now is settling into its former bed where the crystal waters shall again reflect the green foliage.

> THE OAK AND SYCAMORE, and the gentle breezes and birds of spring shall make merry music in the cathedral aisles of a generous nation. The prison walls that hemmed in Galileo, Columbus Tases and Napoleon did not measure the minds of the men. It is true their bodies suffered some torture, but the proud spirit that rose in their hearts leaped the bounds of clay, and soared away into the illimitable regions of science, poetry and war, making them monarchs of the hour and masters of eternity. Hamble as I am in the walks of life, my soul is inspired by THEIR ILLUSTRIOUS EXAMPLE, and it shall be my future endeavor to show the world that although I perjured testimony, yet, like a mountain crag. I shall breast the pelting storm and lift my head clear and bold to the coming sunshine of truth and redemption. I have done.

The speaker was deeply affected during the delivery of his oration. He was listened to with marked attention.

AT THE CLOSE of his speech, Judge Kreket proceeded to sentence him, in substance saying he had no doubt as to his guilt, and regretted that it was not otherwise. After some remarks, brief, pointed and earnest, he pronounced the sentence to be imprisonment for three and a half years in the Missouri Penitentiary, and assessed a fine of 3.000.

Who is to be the Speaker!

The next important event in the political history of the country, now that the State elections are over, is the election of Speaker of the House of Representatives in the next Congress. The House having a considerable Democratic majority, will, of course, elect a Democratic Speaker. The prominent candidates for the position are, Hoss. Samuel J. Raudall of Pennsylvania, Fernande Wood and Semuel S. Cox of New York, and M C. Kerr of Indiana, Mr. Raudall accus to be the man of the strongest personal and political character of all the candidates. He is forty-eight years old, has served seven consecutive forme in Congress, in handsome in person and courteous in manner, is an industries member, is well versed in parliamentary law, and would make an excellent Speak er. He is a moderate or medium man on the finance question, and is said to have been the father of the ludistion plank in the Pennsylvania platform, which was most ingeniously drawn. After all the complaints made against the City Council about streets and sidewalks, they have done a great deal. As one instance, compare Houston street, from the Iron Bridge to the Alamo Plaza, with the mud-hole it was a year or two ago.

Some of our side-walks are so narrow on business and pleasure thoroughfares, that it requires good-natured politeness of all who are passing to make the passage of persons going different ways agreeable to all concerned. Real gentlemen and ladies never fail in this sort of politeness. Some, whose gentility consists only in the superabundant and gaudy covering of their bodies, often let their coarseness out by a failure in this espect.

Baby-wagons attended only by nurses, had better be kept off the narrow side suggestions made by the many idlers one walks of Commerce street. In the rush of the crowd and the roar of the wheels, there is constant danger to the little ones, and we have long feared some South persons get in a way of not counting the change they receive in making parchases. They either refrain from this from indelence, nervousness or headlessiess, or from the absurd notion that they will seem mean. Tradesmen always prefor that change should be combted before their customers leave the shop, as they are eften annayed by requests to correct errors which they are doubtful about having made. The sooner one learns to count change received carefully, the better will it be for him, for then will he place him self in a position to reach the plane of common-sense and business dealing.

GENERALS ORD AUGER. -- HEADQUARTERS TO BE MOVED .- A RAILROAD TO SAN ANTONIO HER GREAT NECESSITY.

AUSTIN, November 15th, 1875. When the San Antonian leaves the old village, and mounted on the top of a stage coach, starts on a trip to the juside world. he glances fondly back from the eastern hill tops on the lovely scene, awaking to the life of a new day, with all the tenderness of a lover about to leave his sweetheart. He feels that no matter how far he may wander, or how many strange cities be may visit, old San Autonio will occupy the first place in his heart, and that she will wear the same old quaint look on his return, hardly changing a feature; - the sweet river will be there, the well-known streets and their well-known signs, and the same people will daily walk its pavements, The steam horse has never invaded its ancient precincts bringing constant changes-Swarms of strangers, and yankee progressiveness, so that the San Autonian who goes abroad, expects to find everything when he returns home as he left it. But go abroad if you would learn the news at home. GENERALS ORD AND AUGER AND HEAD-

QUARTERS General Ord's visit to Austin is much commented on here and numerous are the suggestions made by the many idlers one meets at every torn; and one learns some strange things. It is positively asserted by knowing ones, that San Antonio is to less her Headquarters; that the gentlemen who run the War Department at Washington consider our old town as among the places of the past; and it has leaked out that even General Anger, so idolized by our vittems, so present by the Herald, so complimented with addresses, did all this rower to have Medagarters are recommended. so complimented with addresses, did all in his power to have Headquarters removed; and now, that General Ord is unfriently and will set be slew to point out sausse, sufficient for the removal; and who saus blame him; so far as he is personally concerned the San Antonians have sad been ever attentive, while at this phase he is run over with attention. But Austin will not be chosen if Headquarters. Austin will not be chosen if Headquarters are moved; the all powerful Texas Pacific Railroad with its influence will take it to Daffas or Fort Worth. The Hie Grande and its troubleseme border line is small potatoes to the Tom Scott road.

potatoes to the Tom Scott road.

Austin is very confident that Uncle Sam will come there and pay out his green-backs, where they are received at par,—and that poor old San Autonio, with all its loyalty, will sit insack cloth and sches.

The Austinites, no doubt would be willing to institute the stars and stripes for the popular blue flaw with a single star. The "bounie blue flag with a single star." The "Trav's Rifles" would exchange their bob-tailed banner for the national colors; and everything could be made lovely.

A RAILBOAD OUR ONLY HOPE. But yesterday, First Worth was worth very little; to-day it has awakened to a new life and activity almost unparalleled in the history of towns born of railroad extensions. The Fort Worth people have organized a construction company to grade and tie the road from Dallas to their city. and now eight and ten stage coaches daily empty their over loads of passengers, and thousands of new people are crowding in and about them seeking homes. A $150,000 botel is among the new enterprises, and town property is going up in price daily San Antonio is yet upon the asfe side; West Texas has had no rush and is hard to get around the old town and reach the commanding officer post of San Antonio great countries beyond it, but life is shart and ten years more and many of bur old citizens who have been clinging to hope that the new era would be soon ushered in, may themselves see the light of cterni-ty, and their children left to fight out the new lattle of life against the mollern invader. desirable a place that even Gen. Ord would not find it in this heart to leave us. Can't we build at Any day that our as a Christian geotieman, one who had lived and died in the service of his country, and possessed of a character which resources of our people without the sid of a dollar public tax; but would it not be better and fairer to let the burden fall upon the property of the county! Four handsed thousand dollars would build us a road to the Guadanpe. This represents but alout one eixteenth of the real value of our property? Latent people with in on their own account, organize a home company to the front, our Kampmanns, Devines, Guilbeans, Grenets, Twoniga, Breckenridges, Adamses, Joe Duyers, Steres, Mavericks, Vances Landas, Grosses, Callagnans, Lowes, why old man Lowe could build it binself. Where is My Momo?

BY ELIZABETH H. JORDAN.

left the dusty, bustling mart, In summer's sultry hoers, and sought my cottage home apart 'Midst vine and cedar bowers. 'Mides vine and cedar cowers.
The hirds were warbling in the grove,
The children on the green,
And all was joy, and all was love
In that bright, happy scene.

From this loved spot no more I'll roam, Here I will live and die, And only change my happy home For a lasting one on high.

Presumptions! wouldn't thou dare dispose

Low, erring, feeble, vain! E'en then the whirling cyclone rose, O'er city, sea and plain. The winds approach with maddening roar, Ships, houses, trees are gove; The farious billows lash the shore, To drive destruction on. Fierce was the struggle then with death— Life—life—is each ones thought. Twas given with the Almighty's breath, And now all else is naught.

A noble youth was swept along In that tempestoous hour, His heart was bold, his hand was strong With more than manhood's power Oh Father, listen to my prayer, Before Thy throne I bow, The widow trusted to my care, Oh spare those orphans now.

The raft sped on 'midst gloom and rear, And neared a vessel's side, "Oh God! our trials now are o'er, We are saved," the mother cried.

And now an aged man passed on, And now an aged man passed on,
Three females in his care,
His bark was frail, his faith was strong
That God would hear their prayer;
With fearful speed—ou, on they fly,
When 'midst the tempest's rear,
And breakers dashing wild and high
Thay're cast upon the shere;
Brave men awaiting on the land
Their prompt assistance gave,
With Christian hearts and willing hands
The exhausted crew to save. The exhausted crew to save.

And battling now amid the roat Of winds and waves so wild, Ajeweet outfiding child.

Dear mother," said an infant girl, "Cease thus to moan and ery, To God, who sent this fearful whirl Me'll raise our prayers on high. We love our Maker, mother dear, And ou His name we'll call, Our feeble accents he will hear-He loves his creatures all. And now a house is drifting on,

Full, full of human freight;
Their last support on earth is gone—
Oh, what must be their fate?
Mothers are there with children all. And sires with trembling hand, They cannot choose, can not save all Of that devoted band. Now one by one they're passing through
The billows and the gloom,
Darkness hides their fate from view,
But acreams announce their doom.

Hark I group of fear and pain arise.
Wild prayers are shricked on highOh Pather, listen to their orise.
And let the storm pass by: Tis done—but lo! the works of art,
Man's pride, his wealth and powe
The debris of his busy mart— All scattered in an Bont, All churches mingle in their fall, No creed divides them there; The gay saloon, the dancing ball, Alike in ruin share. here homes of love and lotty demes There homes of love and toney
Are scattered for all times,
And there the inmates of those homes
Liccold in mud and slines
There infants found a watery bad,
Man's strength and beauty badwar, Bowed to the oungeror's power

Where is my home, my happy home!" "I asked in wild despair, asked again "where is my home?" And Echo answered "Where
