Why Lee Lost Gettysburg.

Major Daniel, of Lynchburg, in his oration before the Virginia division of the Confederate army of Northern Virginia at Richmond, said that the battle of Gettysburg was the result of the mutual ignorance of both Lee and Meade of the advance of each other, both moving towards Gettysburg on misinformation as to each other's course, and meeting in the great decisive struggle, as it were, by chance. Among the causes which led to the defeat of Lee, the orator enumerated the following:—The absence of Stuart's cavalry, separated from Lee by a change of direction of the federal army while under Hooker; the ignorance of Stuart of the subsequent movements of Lee, and the consequent loss of information on the part of Lee of the Federal movements. The first day of the fight was a chapter of accidents, and the field was chosen rather by fate than by foresight, for it was Lee's intention not to attack the Federals in Pennsylvania if it could be avoided. The delay on the second day in making the attack, due perhaps to the tardiness of Longstreet's movements and the prolonged absence of Pickett's division, was fatal. The failure of Rhoads, either by miscalculation of distance or other causes, to support Early in time on the second day, was also cited among the causes of defeat.

Again, on the third day, Longstreet repeated his unfortunate and unexplained delay; then there was the exhaustion of the supply of artillery ammunition, and besides all these the failure of Wilcox to close in upon Pickett's right, thereby causing a gap by which Pettigrew's and Trimble's brigades were shattered and driven back, and Pickett was unsupported. Yet Lee nobly assumed the whole fault of defeat, saying to Wilcox:—"Never mind, general, it is all my fault." The orator defended Lee for not advancing at once upon his temporary success of the first day, and also Meade for not immediately advancing upon Lee with all his forces on the failure of Pickett's charge. But the defeat was decisive. Had success attended the skill of Lee and the valor of his troops, Baltimore and Washington would have fallen, foreign recognition would have followed, and the full and firm establishment of the Confederacy would have been assured. If Lee failed, he failed in an attempt that other men would pale to think of. Lee, in assuming the fault of defeat, had crucified his own glorious reputation as a vicarious sacrifice for his lieutenant and his men.

PERSONAL.

The Count de Pourtales, of Paris, is in New York.

The health of Hon. A. H. Stephens, of Georgia, is still on the decline.

Julia, the only child of General Stonewall Jackson, is to be the recipient of an endowment fund.

P. T. Barum has presented a pack of English fox hounds to General Custer for use on the plains.

Senator Sargent, of California, has been appointed orator for the ensuing year by the Grand Master of Masons.

On the 4th instant Major General Alvin G. Gillem died near Nashville, Tennessee. He was a brave soldier and a good citizen.

J. H. Burch, a colored member of the Louisiana Legislature was married a few days ago, to the widow of Lieutenant Governor Dunn.

Myra Clark Gaines is in Washington taking preliminary measures in her suit against her former counsel, Hon. Olsby Casah, United States Minister to Spain.

Governor Claflin, of Massachusetts, has placed in the Chapel of Wellesley Female College a memorial window in honor of his daughter, who died in Europe last spring.

M. Buffet, the French Premier, recently informed the Versailles Assembly that he had appointed mayors to office from all parties, and not on a purely partisan basis.

Thomas Carlyle reached his eightieth year on the 4th inst. Preparations are making by his friends to present him an address signed by eighty persons in England and Scotland, and a gold medal to accompany it has Carlyle's head on the obverse and the date and a few words on the reverse side. Copies of the medal in silver and bronze are to be presented to public repositories, and the subscribers, if they wish are each to have one.

Prince Albert, of Prussia, has been transferred from Hanover to Breslau in order to be near his mother, who lives at Castle Camerz and to whom he is devotedly attached. The Westminster Gazette considers the removal of Prince Albert a great loss to the aristocratic circles of Hanover. His palace in that city was noted for the dramatic and musical entertainments given there in the winter season, under the direction of the actress Rosa Preussburg, by aristocratic amateurs, and of which the Prince's masterly piano-playing and his admirable musical compositions were often the most charming features.

The New Hampshire State Centennial Association proposes to purchase and remove to Philadelphia the house in which Horace Greely was born. Its owner, however, demands an exorbitant price for it.

Western Texas

The world is just at the present moment beginning to find out through various sources, at the great Western and Northern Exposition, the extent of the Texas...

Chicago, Dec. 14.—The stock gave seven thousand dollars bail for his appearance in St. Louis.

Cincinnati Dec. 14.—The slaughter this season amounts to 239,374 against 213,043 last season.

Saratoga, Dec. 14.—Ex-Treasurer Mann has suddenly disappeared from Ballston, and it is thought that he has fled.

New York, Dec. 14.—The break in the direct cable is fifty to seventy fathoms water. The Faraday will come from London to repair it.

New York, Dec. 14.—Loans decreased two and five-eighths millions; specie increased one and one-eighth millions; legal tenders decreased two and three-eighths millions; deposits decreased three and seven-eighths millions; reserve decreased fifty-three thousand.

Boston, Dec. 14.—A remarkable attempt to blackmail F. Goldsworthy, one of the largest furniture dealers here, has culminated in the exposure of the plot, and the arrest of Ezra T. Goodwin, a private detective and chief inspector.

This we see in the future, great capital of the future Empire—San Antonio—thousands of restless spirits, seeking after wealth. These are the pioneers of the coming millions, whose footsteps will follow the great benefactors of the world.

The husbandman, the manufacturer, the promoter of the arts and sciences, and all that go to make up a world of prosperity, refinement and contentment.

Then, where still by the great central city of the Western world its position is already demonstrated in the advance and growth of San Antonio.

Without artificial communication with the outer world, it grows without an effort of its own. Its magnificent distances already extend beyond the limits of the capital of these United States, and may in time even eclipse them.

What then is a glorious contemplation, and citizens of Western Texas, and particularly of San Antonio, should feel proud, that the chances in the future for becoming the great capital of a magnificent Empire are greater than that anticipated by even St. Louis.

We have already extended these remarks beyond the limits of a small daily journal, but they are, we trust, sufficient to instill a new idea into the minds of the present generation of Western Texas as to what is in store for them and their descendants.

Central between two oceans, on the line of the great Southern Pacific railroad, which will pour into her lap the vast riches of Mexico, the point at which all the railroads from the East and North converge, with several Gulf ports, she is the commercial capital of the West.

Another Railroad Accident. TWO MEN KILLED AND CONDUCTOR JOHN GREY BADLY WOUNDED.

We are again called upon to chronicle another terrible railroad accident, resulting in the loss of life. Yesterday afternoon, between three and four o'clock, just as a construction train had crossed Plum Creek bridge, over the west end of Leaning, on the Galveston, Harrisburg and San Antonio Railroad, the engine slipped over, falling several feet. One man was killed instantly, one fatally and one badly injured.

KILLED AND INJURED. Mr. McCoy, the inspector, killed. Mr. McCoy, stock agent of the railroad company, skull fractured, brains oozing out, died after reaching Harrisburg.

Conductor John Gray, internally injured, and at first it was thought fatally, as he refused Harrisburg speeches and is sensible. Our latest information was to the effect that Mr. Gray was much better.

The German opposition is so long since opposed the Emperor with arrangements is obtaining the transportation of 1,400,000 francs to destroy the Emperor's Italian trip. But the Emperor's trip is not to be abandoned. The Emperor will go to work with a magnificent train and demonstrated, in their own satisfaction, that he was one of the most intelligent old campaigners that ever disgraced Germany.

A. T. Stewart of New York with a wealth estimated at forty millions, is now over eighty years old, but does as closely to his vast business as if he was in the prime of life. He is childless, and has no heirs, and his estate is to be divided among his children in England. He intends to leave the bulk of his money to various institutions in and around New York.

Dr. Charles Danahy, a prominent physician of New Brunswick, New Jersey, was murdered and robbed and his body thrown into the canal on Thursday night last.

Miss Meigs, daughter of the American General, is said to be the belle of Berlin.

A witty woman says that many men think it's virtue that keeps him from turning a rascal, when it's only a full stomach. One should be careful, and not mistake potatoes for principles.

A milkman was awakened by a wag in the night with the announcement that his best cow was choking. He forthwith jumped up to save the life of the animal, when he found a turnip stuck in the mouth of a pump.

Havana, Dec. 14.—The Foro de Cuba, commenting on that part of the President's Message which relates to Cuba, says General Grant's language seems to have been chosen to wound the susceptibilities of the Spaniards. He seems to be playing with fire. He does not know the temperament of the Spaniards any more than Napoleon.

The Diario censures the tone of the message which was published while negotiations were pending between the United States and Spain. It praises faintly the President's refusal to acknowledge the Cuban insurgents as belligerents, and says that the part of the message relating to Spain is studiously obscure. Finally the Diario, at the conclusion of two columns and a half of criticisms, says: "We believe General Grant has disgraced the insurgents, and has pride in his unfounded assertions. His entire message is contrary to the spirit of the American people who continually desire peace, and has talked to us."

District Court Yesterday.

TRIAL OF COLBAITH FOR THE MURDER OF ED SAPPINGTON.

The case of the State of Texas vs. John Boyet and Zack Colbath, charged with the murder of Ed Sappington, was called in the District Court yesterday.

The counsel for the defense were Messrs. Leo Tarlton and John D. Meredith, for the prosecution, N. O. Green, District Attorney, assisted by M. G. Anderson and Judge Ogden.

An effort was made by Colbath's counsel for a postponement of the trial on account of the illness of the defendant, and application was made for a change of venue; both of which proved unavailing.

The prisoner was then arraigned, and pleaded not guilty. The following is the substance of the

STATE'S EVIDENCE:

Robert Jackson, (colored) was sworn. "I knew Ed Sappington; he is now dead; we were riding out a Saturday night, and when we got near the San Pedro Creek the old man rode up and asked Ed where he was going; Ed replied it was none of his business; the men rode off but soon returned; the prisoner then asked if this was Flores street; Ed said yes, when he shot him. The horse then started, and the men went off. This occurred about three months ago. There is the man who did the shooting, sitting over there"

[pointing at the prisoner.]

Cross-examined: "I was sitting in the carriage; the men were opposite Mr. Deitler; the men came up and halted; we did not stop until we got into the creek; I saw the prisoner in jail; went there expecting to see the man who shot Ed. I knew the prisoner, because the moon was shining very bright, and he rode right up to the carriage; they did not make a loud noise when they halted; there were no cross words; the prisoner did not say he was going to shoot; the old man asked us where we were going; Ed said it was none of his business; he came back and asked what he meant; Ed said no harm had been done; then the man asked, 'Is this Flores street?' We had gone about one hundred yards when they came back a second time; the young man was behind the carriage; the old man was a little ahead of the young man. It was a clear night. They told me to go around to the jail, and showed me the man who did the shooting; have had no conversations with any other witnesses in reference to the case. The shooting was done on the right side, coming down Flores street; the shot was fired by the prisoner; he was holding his gun on Ed when he asked was this Flores street; he fired; when the shot was fired, they turned back; I picked the prisoner out in jail among several." [The old man alluded to by the witness is Robert Colbath, the younger of the two.]

The testimony of Leo Jackson was substantially the same as the preceding, as was also Miss Jackson's, except that she was no kin to Ed Sappington; was engaged to be married to him that she was sitting by the side of Sappington when she was shot; and that the ball passed through his body, and into her leg; that she knew the young man Colbath when he was brought to her bed; she was in bed four weeks from the time of the shooting.

Miss Southall (colored) testified: "I knew Ed Sappington; I live up towards the Springs; on the night of the shooting I heard a conversation near my gate; the young man told the old man, 'Let's go into camp.' The young man said, 'Come on, Frank, we must go.' The old man said, 'I don't think you hurt him.' The young man said, 'Yes, I did. I look dead like at the end of a week.' I would know the old man if I saw him, but don't know the young man; the old man was hunched-backed; it was a moonshine night; I did not notice the old man's coat; both men had hats on; the front man had a gun in his hand; I think I would know the man if I saw him; he was a hump-shouldered man; I think I would know him by his feet also."

They were then dispatched for by the District Attorney, and the witness was sent into an adjoining room. When Boyet had finished, she was seated; she was re-called; the Attorney for the State then asked her to point Boyet out of the crowd. She said she thought she could, if he was standing up, whereupon the Judge requested all present to stand up, which was complied with. The witness then pointed out Boyet, one of the defendants, and said: "There is the man!"

Dr. Geo. Cappel testified as to the character of the wound, and said that Ed Sappington died from the effects of the same.

The city Detective, Phil Shardin, was called by the defense, and who was, by the way, their only witness; but no new facts were elicited, except that the two men were arrested without difficulty.

This was the closing of the testimony. The prisoner having just recovered from a severe attack of typhoid fever, and having had a chill the day before, was looking wretchedly, and had to be sustained by stimulants.

N. O. Green, District Attorney, began his address at 5:30 p. m., and closed a telling speech at 13 minutes to 4.

Leo Tarlton for the defendant, then arose, but was so hoarse that he could not speak loud, and was thus disabled to make a proper defense. He said that among the peculiarities of the case were the facts that all the witnesses had been called by the State, and that there was much prejudice against the prisoner. He wished to call the jury's attention to one fact, and that was that no premeditation was proven.

John D. Meredith made a speech of 18 minutes duration, more than once drawing tears from the hardened prisoner at the bar, and seemed to favorably impress the jury.

M. G. Anderson closed for the prosecution in one of those powerful efforts which he knows so well how to make—demanding from the jury a verdict for death. His arguments closed at seven minutes to five o'clock, when the jury retired.

At 4:30 o'clock, this evening, the jury returned the following verdict: "We, the jury, find the defendant guilty, as charged in the indictment, and recommend him to the mercy of the Governor."

Here is justice, regardless of race or color, after a fair trial and from a very intelligent jury. The jury hung with 11 to 1 in favor of death. The ultimate verdict means death.

Resolutions of Respect.

The undersigned committee, appointed on yesterday to draft resolutions expressive of the sense of the Bar in regard to the death of H. MacCormack, reported to the District Court the following resolutions:

WHEREAS it has pleased Almighty God to take from our midst Harry MacCormack, Esq., in the prime of life, and in the midst of his usefulness as an attorney and citizen, therefore be it

Resolved: That while we bow in humble submission to this inscrutable decree of Divine Providence we yet deeply deplore the sudden demise of our fellow-citizen, friend and brother attorney, whose genial nature won the love and confidence of all who knew him.

Resolved: That we tender to his bereaved family the sincere condolences of sympathy, thinking hearts, and trust that the "angel" who "tempers the winds to the shorn lamb," will sustain and comfort them in their affliction.

Resolved: That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the District Court, and a certificate copy be forwarded to the family of the deceased, and to the city newspapers for publication.

READ THIS.—Mr. George Hilgert has just received, directly from Germany, the latest lot of Hirschen and Cassimere ever imported to this section. They are, in fact, the finest cloths manufactured anywhere, for wet and out suits, as well as for single garments. As Mr. Hilgert did cash for the stock, he got them at a low price, and is enabled to furnish them from them at very low figures. Those who are desirous should call and examine the quality of these goods—they will be satisfied beyond all doubt. Hilgert is a no-wind, no-art fashionable dealer, for the good character of his work, and is sure to give perfect satisfaction in fitting as well as strength of make.
