FRIDAY MORNING, May 19th, 1876.

We return our thanks to Hon. J. H. McLeary, Senator from this District, for favors.

This State Gazette says that the Statesman and Telegraph, and other papers which supported Coke for the Senatorship, are now clamoring for his resignation of the Governorship.

The sheriff of Lampasas county, in a communication to the Dispatch, explains why it was he gave up the keys of the jail to the body of armed men who released Scott Corby and John Jones.

The Agricultural and Mechanical College of the State, located at Bryan, got $25,000, we believe, from the Fourteenth Legislature, to complete it, and now asks for $50,000 more for the same purpose.

New Hampshire enjoys the enviable distinction of being the only State in the Union to retain in her organic law a clause imposing a religious test on the aspirant to civil office.

The substitute bill reported by the Committee for Senate Bills, defining the duties of county attorneys and regulating performance of the same, was adopted in lieu of the three Senate bills.

The following action appears among the Senate proceedings of Monday: Senator Crain offered the following as a substitute for the amendment offered by Senator Thompson.

Senator Terrell has offered an important resolution in the body of which he is a member, which we shall be pleased to watch in all its progress and results.

Senator Crain had said that one county attorney in his own district was not even licensed to practice law, and why should such a man be treated with the liberality of the citizen?

DR. ORESTES A. BROWNSON.

The death of this distinguished thinker and writer was recently announced. We will recollect the rising of his early fame, and the sensation produced in the country when, having commenced as a Universalist preacher, he joined the Catholic Church in 1844, after having run through the gamut of all the religious persuasions.

Dr. Brownsong established his Quarterly Review, which for thirty years he sustained single-handed, meantime publishing many volumes on philosophical subjects which were translated into the European languages, winning for their author a high name.

The Irish World says that in discussing philosophical and theological questions he was frequently accused of giving expression to advanced and mistaken ideas.

He possessed a great mind and a great heart, and he put forth both with all his might, according to the best light he had, in laborious, honest, and pure life.

He spoke in his last faithfully to the end of his days, and his made his impress for the better on American life and literature.

Each route must be bid for entire, and on separate proposals. This requirement will be strictly enforced, and bids will not be entertained for portions only of the route.

Bidders must state the rate, per one hundred pounds, for the whole distance, between the points named in each route at which they will transport the stores during the entire period above mentioned.

Contractors may be required to transport supplies, to and from points, not exceeding one hundred miles, and they must observe the limits of the regular routes, also to any point back on the route, or to any of the original points of departure, or from one point to another on the route.

The Government reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

No bid will be entertained from a person who has previously defaulted or failed in the performance of any contract with the Government.

Blank forms of contracts, showing the conditions which will be required, must accompany and be a part of the proposals.

Proposals for each route should be placed in separate envelopes, plainly addressed "Proposals for Route No. 1," and addressed to the undersigned.

Wesleyan Texas, as a rule, professed Hancock to Coke for United States Senator, and so they did Ireland and Derive.

We would feel very much gratified if those members of the Legislature from Western Texas who supported Richard Coke for Senator would be so kind as to state to the public what inducements his Excellency held out to them in order to obtain their votes.

We are at a loss to understand the motive and animus of the Austin State Gazette when it says that Governor Coke is under a positive pledge that he will continue to act as Governor until February next, and it is idle for the press to be inventing excuses for his escaping the responsibility attached to his administration by an early resignation.

Swanton Brady, of the Houston District, making his mark in the Legislature, as he generally does wherever he is. Let him keep his "head level" and not go too fast, and he will achieve distinction for himself in the Fifteenth Legislature.

FACTS BY WHICH DECIDE. TRADE MARK.

In those specious but insignificant advertisements of C. Pratt & Co., they endeavor to convince the public that our STAR OIL and FEELERS are identical, the same, which they know, even better than we, could ever attempt to convince them, is NOT THE CASE.

Our certificates, formerly published, (originals of which can be seen at our office) from our local, distinguished chemists, Messrs. Geo. H. Kallinger, A. Neste and E. Dreiss, who tested both oils, and declare our Star Oil by 12 degrees better than Astral. In addition to the certificate alluded to, we herewith annex a certificate from Chemist Theo. Odet.

At your request, I have tested the sample of Star Oil taken from the store of George Dalling, and find the flashing point at one hundred and thirty-three (133) degrees Fahrenheit, the burning point at one hundred and forty-four (144) degrees Fahrenheit. Astral oil, taken from the store of E. Kotsch & Co., the flashing point at one hundred and twenty-one (121) degrees, and the burning point at one hundred and thirty-two degrees Fahrenheit. I am of the opinion that the Star Oil is by all means the best and safest oil.

Will the firm of this city please publish the results of the tests made with a case of our Star Oil, sent to New York for that purpose, a few months ago. WAGNER & RUMMEL.

THE JEWS OF ENGLAND.

The Laughlin Magazine gives a most interesting account, in its first issue, of the Jews in England, from whom our own Jews chiefly descend.

The Jews of England, it appears, constitute three distinct bodies, called respectively the Sephardim, the Ashkenazim, and the German and Polish Jews, and West London Congregation of Jews.

It must be understood that these communities do not form distinct sects; at most, they are only distant sects.

There is no difference, between them in dogma, creed or belief, and with very few exceptions, which will be explained further on, they practice the same religious observances, with no more dissimilarity than may be seen between any two Parish Churches.

In fact, the disagreements separating these Jewish bodies are of less importance than the diversity of views existing in the Church of England, leaving out of the question the serious discrepancies dividing the Establishment from other sects of Christianity.

Nevertheless, for reasons that will be understood hereafter, each of the three Jewish communities of Great Britain possesses a complete autonomy in religious, educational and charitable matters.

Each one relieves its own poor when needed, marries its own sons and daughters, and buries its own dead. Yet the members of the various bodies live in amity and concord together, working harmoniously in the cause of charity, education and progress, and heartily co-operating in continual effort to raise physically and mentally the condition of this race.

The first Jews who came to this country from Holland during the protectorate of Oliver Cromwell and under the reign of Charles I. were descended from Israelites who had emigrated thither from Spain and Portugal.

They were mostly men of great refinement and education. They founded a synagogue, brought over a rabbi from Holland, and established a Jewish congregation with stringent laws.

A constitution was formed, which was handed from father to son, and which exists to the present day, with only such changes as were rendered imperative by the progress of enlightenment and the exigencies of modern notions.

The Portuguese Jews were the Tories of Judaism; they felt as much reluctance to introduce even the most moderate reform as the Wellington Ministry in granting Catholic emancipation.

Perhaps they were guided by Spanish traditions; certainly for a long time they were averse to popular government. Their authorities ruled with a kindly yet very tight hand, and the Jewish elders could not lightly look over disobedience. The restrictions imposed by their own chiefs upon the Jews on their re-establishment in England may have been necessary in those days, but would sound somewhat strange in our ears.

It is certain that until our own time very little latitude was allowed by the Portuguese elders to those under their guidance; by an unbending rigidity they lost from their community such a man as Isaac D'Israeli, and they contributed to the rise of a schism among their own body.

Yet they were glorious men in their way, those ancient Sephardim elders. Noble minded, generous, philanthropic, and, in most instances truly devout men, and firm believers in the traditions of their race, they stand out before us like the figures of the old French Huguenots—honorable, loyal and staunch to their religion, even to the verge of intolerance.

on the income-tax, the Royal Titles bill and the Prince of Wales visit to India, he was greeted with shouting and yelling. Mr. Willis then rose to speak but his voice was drowned in cheering for the Queen, and the Prince of Wales, and even for the income-tax. He, however, continued speaking, although not a word that he said could be heard, until, during a temporary lull, the Chairman called out all who were gentlemen put on the howling dogs of counter-jumpers who were making the disturbance, and who, he said, did not care for the income-tax, because they were never likely to have to pay it, as they had not brains enough to earn more than about 18 shillings a week.

Several men pulled of their coats, and a general rush was made into the quarter of the room where the cheering had been most vociferous. A fight took place, in which sticks were freely used, and which ended in the friends of the Magna Charta driving their opponents out of the hall, one boy being thrown head-first out of a window. A charge was made at the door by those who had been turned out, but they were repulsed, and a window was then opened, and a furious fight with sticks took place, several persons receiving rather serious blows. The meeting broke up in disorder, but not before a resolution was passed forming a branch of the Magna Charta Association at Barret.

STATE NEWS.

The head of the great publishing house of D. Appleton & Co., of New York is traversing Texas.

The total tax of Austin county is forty five cents; of Victoria, thirty cents. Immigrants observe these facts, and the Legislature should look into the origin of local taxation.

Governor Coke should hang the murderers that hanged the negro thief, without law or license, near Hearne. The negro was a constitutional thief of fifteen years standing, but, for all that, was entitled to a jury, and this mob violence must be suppressed.

That solemn, long-faced newspaper, that never cracked a joke in all its goodly life, says the location of the foul prison pens of Texas at the head of the San Marcos, is an abomination of the first water, and should be denounced by the entire press.

Capt. How is at Weatherford to determine the route of the Waco branch of the Central road. What will become of the country if Doc Adams ever gains access to a loco motive? First a race, then a fight for possession of the track, and we believe Doc will but it off.

The Blanco Day Bee, which is not a blanket sheet, but keeps things warm and lively about Blanco city, so called, says "a gold and silver mine has been discovered within fifteen miles of this place. The ore is yielding a large per cent of the pure metal. This is no humbug or sensational article. A great rush is being made to the place and the best geologists pronounce it a success."

If the one-legged railway from Pecos to the City does not go to Hemphred, Hemphred will be legless, its whole legitimate business disappears, and it will be as helpless an Austin when all the counties north of there go to the road at Round Rock, where the International will linger listlessly because the depot grounds on the avenue are inaccessible. Every fellow thought he could make his jack who owns a water lot, and the depot became vapor, and the whole scheme, and the riches of Mexican lot owners, evaporated.

It often happens that a newspaperer from one hundred or more newspapers scribbles a statement or fact to the wrong authority. Thus the Statesman said sometime ago that the wheat crop about Fort Worth was a partial failure. The fact recited was taken perhaps from some other than a Fort Worth paper, which the writer supposed to be before him. One paper is sometimes substituted accidentally, by a sea breeze and the hurrying writer of countless memoranda gives credit to the wrong source, and if the Fort Worth editor did this sort of work daily he would hardly resort to coarse epithets in correcting a natural and often unavoidable error.—Statesman.

There are many phases of savage life that might not be amiss to adopt as laws of civilized existence. For instance, a squaw belonging to the Indians occupying a portion of Modoc county, Cal., recently undertook the practice of medicine, and tried her skill upon one of the tribe who happened to be ill. The result was the patient died, and the squaw, in accordance with a custom among the Indians, was put to death for undertaking that which she could not accomplish.

The fire was quenched without the aid of the departments.

As Dr. Kenealy is coming over to the Centennial, this little sketch of the sort of meetings which he and his worthy son with the Turkish name Ahmed most delight in, may interest the placid Philadelphians.

On Tuesday evening Mr. Ahmed Kenealy addressed a crowded meeting in the Temperance Hall, Barret. The chair was occupied by Captain Morrison. On Mr. Kenealy rising he was greeted with mingled applause and hooting. He spoke at some length on the injustice which had been done to the claimant, and was loudly applauded; but when he began to comment

SOURCE DEMOCRATS—Governor Henry A. Wise, in his argument before the House Election Committee, in the contest of Platt vs. Goode, describes the Conservative party of Virginia as composed of seceder-kant Democrats, red-waisted Whigs and Greeleyites, and said that under no circumstances would he ally himself with such an organization. Politics in Virginia, he said, were so much Democratic that even the trees wept turpentine. When he was Governor he would have hanged Greeley had he caught him. He praised General Grant as a magnanimous hero, and worthy to receive the sword of Robert E. Lee.

RULING PASSION—The anque and somewhat startling spectacle of a baby standing on its head in a gutter, while its carriage lay partly overturned in the street, opened the eyes of Bowery people yesterday. The fond mother who was also the propelling power of the vehicle, was gazing pensively into a show window no doubt deliberating whether she would have her new dress trimmed with the same material, cut bias or with flounces, when the baby-carriage started on an independent journey down town, quickly ended by the catastrophe.

At the recent dedication of a monument to the Confederate dead at Bowling Green, Ky., Wm. C. P. Breckinridge, of Lexington, who delivered the dedicatory address, concluded as follows: "We dedicate with tears. We invoke God's blessing upon all whose hearts bleed for those who never returned, and in His great name we dedicate it to the future of an unbroken peace between the States and a new and holier brotherhood among the citizens of this mighty republic. And may the God of Freedom make universal and perpetual the reign of a true liberty!"
