FACTS BY WHICH DECIDE

In those spacious but insignificant advertisements of C. Pratt & Co., they endeavor to convince the public that our STAR OIL and PEERLESS are identically the same, which they know, even better than we could ever attempt to convince them, is NOT THE CASE. Peerless is by no means one of the inferior grades of oil; it is not every respect equal and fully up to the actual standard (not the advented) of Astual, and is like the latter 12 degrees below the burning point of our STAR OIL. Now we propose to Furnish the Peerless, guaranteed equivalent in every respect to Astral, at One Dollar a case less than our STAR OIL, which we sell at the price of Astral, although our STAR OIL is 12 degrees better, hence saler, and consequently has the preference of the consuming public.

Prostill a remain (From the New York Murcery.) Few Americans have any conception of the fabulous extravagance of the daily life of the Suitan of Turkey. There is nothing to equal the Golden Horn anywhere in the world. The Sultan has defaulted on his debts, and he is generally considered to be in serious political trouble. Yet, in spite of all his difficulties, his enormous establishment is kept up undiminished, and his faithful Mussulmans contribute cheerfully to suppport the successor of the Prophet in a style of life so gorgeous as to surpass witness the spectacle of his land. man companion, he said to him: "Well, thou must go to Rawcliff's The Grand Turk keeps in his pay not less than three hundred a fitty cooks to prepare the meals for trimself and his court; he has four hundred and twenty coachmen, fired salutes in his honor. jockeys and stable boys, and his many gardens and parks are looked after by two hundred and twenty five watchmen, guards and gardeners, not counting the detail of and Carporation of Portamouth. two or three regiments of soldiers every day for duty at the palaces and parks. LETTER FROM BOERNE

BOERNE, Texas, May 19, 1876

Dear Express 12 100 cm b 1 The best way to convert anti-railroad men is to put them aboard of one of thos roaring, swaying, bumping stages which attle out of San Antonio several times a week. The trip to Boerne is, however, a ery pleasant one, and is made delightful by the wit and wisdom of that great favorite, Mr. Harwood, the driver. One of his maxims, being of great value to the agricultural community, is appended:

You plow deep, While sluggards sleep; And you'll have corn To sell and keep." Now, that is just a solid chunk of wis

I was reminded, at the hour of starting man translated a well-known line of Latin so ingeniously wrong that he escaped well-merited punishment. He read : "Nemo mortalium omnibus horis sagit." and said :

"No mortal knows the hour the stage starts." Rather a free rendering of "omnibus, which word, however, was once translated by a witty young lady who said it with a terrifying yell, and the whole batmeant "to kiss every one in the room I wonder what she would have made of

"syllabus ?" To kiss on the hose, probably. A number of strangers are at Boerne with the design-"To see the pleasant fields, the crystal fountains. And take the gentle air among the moun -taine."

Where, according to St. Bernard, "a sick man site upon a green bank, and when the dog-star parcheth the plains, and !ries | man by the name of Smith, bought out up rivers, he lies in a shady bower"-(the Mr. Harrison's dry goods and grocery Saint does not say whether it is a 'right' store. The visit of these young men to or a 'left' hower) -and feeds his eyes with the city was to purchase goods to complete variety of objects, herbs, trees, to comfort their stocks. his misery; and fitts his cars with that sweet and various harmony of birds."

Now, that is all very pretty, but if the faint had been obliged to butter his pedal extremities with bacon-rind, to cure redbug bites, and to count twenty before he broke the commandment about swearing when the pulex irritans were uncom monly festive, and to skirmish around his suburbs in search of "ticks," and to scrape have foresworn poetle phrases, and adopted a more vigorous style.

I heard a story too good to be lost, and you shall have it. Outle was telling me how his brother, when at college, was neked to write some verses. Having pro-LAR SHE HE DWDY

"The Sun's perpendicular rays Illuming the depths of the cos--" he started for a walk to gain the divine afilstu. A mischievens friend coming in and seeing the lines, saided :

A squaw and this chief had fied into a room attached to the old city hall, of which the office building of Messrs Adams & Wickes is the only remaining portion. Lt. Dunnington approached the door of the building, and observing a human form, fired-he had shot the squaw-and just as the report of his rifle proclaimed her death, an arrow pierced the Lieutenant's heart, and he fell also, It was now too dark to see. A battalion of men surrounded the room in which the Indian had refuged, and it was thought better to wait until morn to renew the efforts for of school-boy days, when a young gentle his capture, than to trade life for life. But presently along came Auton Lockmar, a ovial and wily man, and of a full gift of bravery. Said he, "I'll get bim out of there." Lockmar then took cotton and tar, and made it into balls, mounted the roof with a grow bar, tore away the shingles, and setting one of the balls on fire dropped it upon the Indian's head.
