The report states that after a full biduity the the tasts, and after thorough examination of Lawrence Harney and other witnessed, it appeared that in 1866 white whomber of the House of Representatives of the 20th Congress, Mr. Kern did, in the exeminate did right or privilege, nominate Green for in appointment in the regular sense. The Committee, however, had found no difficharge as to the payment of money to Mr. Kerr was unclahifiedly false, and that Mr. Kerratood fully exonerated from all disallification admitting his paracount honor or official integrity. The Committee had found nothing in the whole progress

REIGHS, AC. KINGSBURY, June 9, 1876.

It was fairly daylight when I left my caught up my valice and made for the Menger Hotel to take the stage for Kingsbury on my way to the Porkopolis of America. Mr. Muncey, the centennial stage agent had impressed me with the importance of being on hand at six o'clock precisely or size I would be laft behind, is spite of the fact that I flourished in his presence a commission from the Express to act as its negation correspondent. The truth is, the stage coach is doomed, and it will not be many months before travelers who seek the exhilarating exercise of a stage ride will be compelled to go meat. Muncey knowe this and don't care a fig

How sleepy beaded the old town seemed this moraing as I burried through its deserted streets, the only stir being in the violatity of the markets; and on the eve of starting upon a trip to one of the busiest centers of America, I could not resist the train of thoughts that possessed me as the picture of the old town unfolded before me this June morning. The market, the dusty waste of open square, the lazy Mexican wood merchant, the easy, careless gait of the market goess we had Antonians get used to our old town-we see nothing amies in dusty, desolate squares, descrated by light meat stalls, nothing of poorly paved strasts we think very little of looks, and care very little about the opinion of the outside claimed by many-intelligent men we must world. THE STAGE RIDE TO KINGSBURY Upon a pleasant spring day, over a good road free from dust and mud, with a stage comfortably filled with agreeable companions, is a trip to be enjoyed rather than dreaded. Ascending the hills cast of the historic city, a view is had of the city and valley not surpassed in loveliness in the world; this is not the hanguage of a native enthusiast, but of one who has fravoled and associated with travelers, Col. T. who was a fellow traveler this morning, and who has been over all the notable spots of the globe, expressed this opinion of the lovely scenes spread out before us from the hill top. The ugly streets, the bare squares, the utter lack of ornament or finish in all our public works or buildings with its church spires, its roofs, its embowered premises, and its beautiful surroundings, softened by the distance and the

A SAD, SAD OCCURRENCE .- On Sanday white a party were out picnicking and fishing on the Licen, eight pailes from the city, Mr. Veltmann's family being amolig the number, including their little son, Charley, a boy five years of age, a sadthing happened. Little Charley strayed away from camp and lost himself in the chapparal. Learth was immediately comweeged after the child was missed, and beralds sent to surrounding ranches and to San Antonio ecliciting | halp | for the search. Mr. Joseph Dwyer, near whom country residence the occurrence took place, went personally to the assistence, and Mr. Braden and others of San Antonio also cent out help. All efforts to find the child, however, proved fruitless, as he was accidentally discovered by a Mexican fisherman at three o'clock yesterday evening. His body was found abo a half milefrom where he wee first missed, in the water, near the bank, his little arm only sticking out, and his hand clasping the limb of a bush. It was a death grip he naturally made to save his life. We presume the little fellow strayed off in the bushes, and when darkness, made more hideous by the terrible rain storm which visited this section Sunday night, came upon him, that he unawares rail into the deep water hole in the Leona, where he was found.

The event is a very sad one, and brings deep grief suddenly upon his father, mother and other relatives. He will be buried this morning at 10 o'clock.

-W. P. Howard & Co. ate beginning to make things lively in the real cetatline, and a rush of business is crowding in spon them. They are well known to our citizens as prompt and reliable business
