THURSDAY MORNING, June 2nd, 1876.

The Senate Committee investigating the Lunatic Asylum will report that the managers of the institution have been imposed on by merchants who furnished supplies, and that the system by which supplies are procured is defective.

We hope both the Democratic and Republican parties will hold their approaching conventions to nominate candidates for Congress from the Western District of Texas in the city of San Antonio. It will be more convenient than any other place that can be named. It is thought that the calls for these conventions were published.

EX-GOVERNOR WARREN has left the Democratic party of Louisiana, with which he has been acting ever since he went out of office, and, a few days since, made a speech before the Republican State Convention in New Orleans, in which he declared that he would support the Republican nominees, State and National, in the coming election. Nobody here, we hope.

SENATOR McCLARY opposed the bill making horse-stealing a hanging offense, at the discretion of the jury, and he did fight. The pressure brought to bear upon the members of the Legislature, by the prevalent lawlessness in the State should not cause them to stop any such rash measures. It would be nothing else than a partial recognition of the mobocratic murders who have been in the habit of hanging horse thieves without law.

SENATOR FORD strongly opposed the new bill concerning the holding of stock. Mr. Ford said the bill could not be enforced. Such a law would lead to bloodshed. To provide that stock should not be held within half a mile of any house, whether the land owner, by occupant or not, were present. It would prove a dead letter.

MR. JOHN HANCOCK will continue his mission for an election to Congress from the Austin Branch District by the Democratic party of that District. Such is the estimate placed upon the ability, patriotism, and national standing of Judge Hancock that men of all parties throughout the State will delight to see him promoted either by re-election to the House, by election to the United States Senate, or by nomination for either the Vice Presidency or Presidency. There is a State pride in the character and success of Judge Hancock such as few men can claim.

THE MICHIGAN. The Austin correspondent of the Dallas News says that Mr. Long wants the accumulated interest due the Mechanical and Agricultural College and the State University to be funded in State bonds. The interest on State bonds is now about $100 a day, and, if the obligations of the State constantly increasing are all to be met by bonds, and so on for a long time, the interest will amount to $1500 a day—an amount sufficient in itself to support the State government. The people will then be added with a tax to an amount twice as large as would have been necessary if one selling treasury had never been called in the opinion of Doctors Bond and Gordon.

The penitentiary must be in a horrible condition, if we may credit the letter from Haverhill to the San Marcos Free Press, which was published yesterday. When we say that such a state of things is a disgrace to the State we exercise a more than usual control of our indignation, and of the use of the Queen's English. Some of our friends say we must not blame Gov. Coke for this, and "for all our mercies" in being permitted to live, while thousands of our fellow citizens are being robbed and murdered. We begin to agree with them. Coke is absolutely helpless. He is not to blame, and we take it all back. But can't he get out of the way, and let Gov. Hubbard, say his hand is bringing the State out of this fearful condition? Can the Legislature do nothing for the State? Have we no leading statesmen, whose minds in that body? Shall the State, with all its precious freight of material, moral, and social interests, be allowed to run headlong to ruin, without check or control, like a mill-race without an engineer, or a steam boiler without a safety valve?

THE AGRICULTURAL AND MECHANICAL COLLEGE.

On Saturday last, Mr. Newland called up the bill for appropriation of forty thousand dollars to complete the Mechanical and Agricultural College.

Mr. Hutchins proposed to reduce the amount twenty thousand; he considered that the embarrassed condition of our finances required the utmost economy and the greatest vigilance in making expenditures. The several legislatures from 1871 to this time had made appropriations to finish this college, and it again asks for money.

Mr. Lang thought that the Board of Visitors, the Governor and the Senate Committee having decided that the larger sum was necessary, it would be throwing the money away to give a less amount, and not putting the institution in running order.

Mr. Hollard (for his color) said the national government had given aid to these colleges without saying they should benefit any one race, and yet this college was only for whites.

Mr. Roberts also opposed the bill because it was only for the benefit of whites.

Mr. Lang showed that the Legislature had no objection in the matter. Either the $40,000 must be given, or the State must refund $14,000 to the general government.

Mr. Newland held that the bill made no difference between the races; and the available annual interest should be divided equitably between the whites and blacks.

Mr. Lang favored measures to provide the colored youth with a branch college. Mr. Campbell was favorable to the education of colored youths. The duty of the white people to the colored, the obligations of the State to them, and of humanity, demanded their education.

Messrs. Holland and Roberts signed their willingness to vote for the bill. Mr. Campbell had announced that a measure was now before the Legislature to establish a branch college or university for colored youths, and the bill passed to enactment, and under suspension of the rules finally passed.

[For the EXPRESS.]
OUR LETTER FROM THE CENTENNIAL.

At last there seems to be a gleam of hope that the great Centennial show is not intended only for "the privileged few," people of means and leisure can go at any time, but the workers, both men and women, can only await themselves of certain hours, and why should they be debarred of the pleasure of visiting this wonderful exposition, by the closing of the entrance at such an early hour? I see by the Philadelphia papers that General Director Goshorn has issued an order that the grounds shall be kept open until nine o'clock next Saturday evening. I trust that this will be continued every evening so that the class who work for their daily bread may enjoy this privilege in the cool and pleasant hours of the evening with their families, and I am convinced that if the Commissioners would open the Exposition on Sunday, that not only they would be benefited, but all the people would unite in honoring and observing all the requirements of the Commissioners. The drinking saloons ought to be closed, and all disorderly characters refused an entrance. Let the experiment be tried, of opening it one half of the day, say after 2 o'clock. The pleasant hours of the day in mid-summer are the hours of twilight and the grounds of the Exposition never appear to better advantage or more enjoyable than just at the time when admittance is refused to visitors.

The general wish is expressed that the extension of the hours of Saturday next may be but the beginning of a reform which is loudly called for.

The Commissioners are losing vast sums of money by their policy in this respect. The revenues could not fail to be largely increased and their coffers would be speedily replenished.

There were over forty thousand admissions on Tuesday last, twenty-eight thousand paid, and the remainder free admissions. It seems incredible at first glance that so many as fourteen thousand persons should be admitted free on a single day, but this is readily accounted for when we reflect that there are at least three thousand exhibitors. Many of these exhibitors have two or three attendants, and some as many as twenty different employees engaged in the manufacture of glass, of soap, of matches, of ribbon, and of hundreds of other articles, and it would be unjust to charge admission fees for those who have done so much toward rendering their contributions to the Exposition itself so varied and attractive. Many of these exhibitors have expended as much as from fifteen to twenty thousand dollars and in several cases still higher sums in this manner, and their personal expenses during the six months from May to November, will be considerable. Many of the exhibitors are doing much towards paying their expenses, by the sale of various articles, and the foreigners are erecting bazaars outside which cannot fail to bring them a profitable return. The foreigners have already disposed of many of their most elegant articles of jewelry, of china, of bronzes, and of textile fabrics. The purchasers must allow their selections to remain until the close of the Exposition, and are required to pay one-half down at the time of purchase, the remainder upon delivery of the goods. The treasury regulations in regard to bonding and paying duties have prevented some nationalities from even unpacking their goods. The Brazilian diplomats, said to be the richest and most expensive in the collection, were immediately returned to the Empire, on account of the heavy payment of bonds demanded, and yet no one can complain even of this, for if the government did not exercise the most rigid discipline there would be ample means for defrauding the revenue. "Landsdown Ravine," apart from its many natural beauties, at the present time offers many new attractions. Within a stone's throw of Memorial Hall, and only a short distance from the main building, the surroundings are as carefully secluded in this charming resort, as if you were miles away from this busy scene. In the heart of the ravine a pavilion has been erected from which Gilmore's orchestra discourses exquisite music every morning and afternoon. Comfortable seats have been provided for hundreds of people, and it is one of the most agreeable resting places on the fair grounds. The ravine is spanned by a number of rustic bridges, one of which connects Memorial Hall with Horticultural Hall. In one of the most retired sections of this ravine, a hunter's camp has been erected. The hut is covered with cedar boughs and filled with guns, rifles, pistols, fishing tackle, and sporting equipments of every description, the head of a stuffed catamount and some other wild animals, help to add interest to the place. A tame bear is chained to a tree near by. A cooking hut has been extemporized where the manner of dressing and preparing food is explained or exhibited. A miniature dam has been built where the Indian's bark canoe is exhibited.

In the Belgian department are four pairs of shoes and stockings that attract much attention by their several peculiarities. They were made and sent by an artist de soulers in Brussels who announced his intention some time since of representing the four seasons in his work. They were made on the last of Madame Berghmans, the regent of the Mt. Yveron Ladies' Association, who resides during the winter in Washington but is a native of Philadelphia. She is one of his customers—whose exquisite little feet seem to have been framed for tread only on the roses of life. The first, representing Spring, are slashed and embroidered with tiny spring flowers, and have on the plianth dainty knots of plaited swiss muslin—the white silk stockings are also embroidered with wild garden flowers. The Summer pair have a blue ground, on which are wrought squares in straw, and bordered with field flowers and ears of corn in colored silks—the stockings are a genuine ciel blue, embroidered like the shoes. The Autumn pair have a dark ground, embroidered with dead leaves and ornamented with knots of green velvet of a hue that suggests leaves in a process of decay. The stockings are of brown silk, embroidered with garlands of dead leaves. The Winter shoes are the prettiest and quaintest of all, for they are each made of an ermine's skin, the fur, of course, being on the outside, with the little heads disposed over the top of the instep, the tiny muzzles resting on the toes. The stockings are dark brown silk, embroidered with leafless trees covered with snow.

FACTS BY WHICH DECIDE.
In those specious but insignificant advertisements of C. Pratt & Co., they endeavor to convince the public that our STAR OIL and TERRELL'S are identical in name, which they know, even better than we could ever attempt to convince them, is not the case. There is by no means one of the inferior grades of oil; it is in every respect equal and fully up to the standard standard (not the standard) of Astral, and like the latter 12 degrees below the boiling point of water (not the standard) of Astral, propose to furnish the Public, guaranteed equivalent in every respect to Astral, at One Dollar a case less than our STAR OIL, which we sell at the price of Astral, although our STAR OIL is 10 degrees better, hence safer, and consequently has the preference of the consuming public.
