Before the time of the newspapers people could not hear promptly of the rimes committed at a distance; now the public must have a general jail delivery. of three or four continents at the breakfast toble. The morning journal makes the criminal and the charlatan welcome in a million bouseholds with the day. it enables a single offender to pour forth his story of concept, imposture, or party in his behalf, and occupies a whole nation in discussing his pretence to an estate, or his domestic troubles, or his ignorance of French. It has not, perhaps, been sufficiently remarked that the modern press does not merely discover ill things; it creates them also by giving popular voice to every one who is interested in darkening counsel. The journals are the making of the liar. They, or rather the public taste which they consuit, in spite of their despotic prerogatives, enable the pretender or princes could not command in did times. The peers gives expression to all the lower forces of society, hitherto unorganized; if it able intelligence, it able ignorance just as well. When Andubon the great naturalist, was in Kentucky, he was well between the force of the explosion acquainted with Daniel Bone, on the water and the heavy tide. and was his intimate Triend They made frequent expeditions into the and the surface of the water calm, forests, the scientist after his bugs and birds, and the pioneer in Search of something of a more substantial nature. A feat of Boone's, which tide disturbed the serenity of the has probably escaped the attention of those who love to record remieniscences of this brave old pioneer, is thus described by Prof. Audu-

"Barking off squirrels is delightful sport, and in my opinion, re that speeded past Hallett's Point, quires a greater degree of accuracy than any other. I first witnessed this manner of procuring squirrels whilst near the town of Frankfort, Ky. The performer was the cele brated Daniel Boone. We walked out together, and followed the rocky margin of the Kentucky River until we reached a place of flat land, thickly govered with black walnuts, oaks and hickories. As the general mast was a good one that year, squirrels were seen My companion, a stout, hale, ath-letic man, dressed in a homespun hunting shirt, bare legged and moccasined, carried a long and heavy rills, which, while leading. gamboling on every tree around us. heavy rifle, which, while loading, he said had proved efficient in all his former undertakings, and which he hoped would not fail on this oc. stem, and then to fill these holes doubts existent in the mind of the with cream colored on. OUR CITY-REFORM NEEDED.

We are all well aware of the fact that our city has been suffering for years past, from an injudicious system in the management of her affairs.

In making this assertion, however, we don't wish to be understood as reflecting upon any of our city Administrationspast or present. Our officials, moving along quietly in the tootsteps of their preors, have done all that could probably have been done under the circum stances. Our object just now is simply to show the injudiciousness of this old system, and how extremely necessary it is to have it "kicked aside" in order to make room for something more in harmony with the spirit of the times, as also with the wishes and wants of the people The bare idea that we should continue to whole down the horse's throat.
