SUSPENSION OF C. R. JONHS & CC.

The business community of Austin was thrown into considerable consternation on Saturday last, by an announcement from C. R. Johns & Co., to the effect that "owing to the embarrassoients arising from the financial stringency of the times, and the impractability of realizing from our assetts, we have been compelled to suspend our banking operations, and take steps look-

The firm, it states, was but as stock shelders each one would only be liable to the extent of the value of the stock held by him. It also states that on the evening of the day before the suspension, several thousand dollars were deposited, and up to the time the bank closed, heavy deposits were made.

STUBBORN ENERGY.

The sight presented, could it be obtain ed at one survey, of the amount of work accomplished in the world, or in even one nation, in but a single day, would give us a curious idea of the immense changes; made by and through the energies of man in the world in which we live. The full power of a people is never developed, however, in the direction of their advancement. Man, as a working machine, is not different in many respects, taken on the average, from the inanimate machinery which he controls. With him, as well, friction enters an important element, and uses up his energies and consumes his powers. There are many drawbacks that check his progress. In the great humanhive which honevcombs the world, there is a due proportion of queen bees and drones, whose existence is sapped frem the labor of the thusy bees who work all the weary hours, and this proportion is by no means a small one. They are the parasites we see daily in our streets. How do they exist, save on the hard earned bread of others? Notwithstanding such drawbracks, each dead weights, which have to be carried, there is a great mass of the human race impregnated with an pany, and no notice was given of the some kinds of fever, as often breaks fundamental change in the concern, and out in a fresh place. In no place not one person in a hundred in Austin has this very important feature knew of the change. As partners, the in man's character been more developed, Richardson, Texas, to which post he will private property of each partner was than in the little country, whose shores liable for the debts of the partnership, are lashed by the stormy waves of the North Ses, once known in history as the Notherlands, new caffed Holland. Its people bave long-enjoyed the reputation of slow plodding and easy going, but they have withal, wrapped within them an immensity of energy, which has more than once recorded some of the greatest achievements that grace the history of modern times. They made the land which now teoms with all the products civilization has stimulated; reclaimed at from the devouring inroads of the watery elements, by a system of dykes, which have been proof against their great adversary. lot next to the Courthones. Another great piece of work has been achieved by this Dutch people, in the opening of the North Set Canal, a work likely to be of incalculable benefit to com merce. It was began in the spring of 1 65, and now, after eleven years of mighty toil, it approaches completion. William I, more than a half century ago, declared that the line, on which this canal is being cut, was the true source from Amsterdam
