HOW THEY LIKE IT.

An old just-book tells the story of a dumb wife, whose husband spent all his fortune to obtain a cure for her imperfection; and having succeeded, and having had some experience of her own ability, he said he would gladly give the other half to have her restored to her first condition. Possibly it was under the instigation of a similar feeling that Grant's late Secretary of War, Don Cameron, said, when he heard the name of the new Cabinet, "We had better have had Tilden."

And the telegraph tells us, also, that neither Blaine, Morton, Conkling, nor anybody else is satisfied. That means, of course, anybody else of their sort of course. If all this be true, we think it is a fair presumption that other people may have some cause for satisfaction. Blaine probably pressed the cause of his "little hob," Eugene Hale, Zach Chandler's son-in-law, who was officiously conspicuous in manipulating the Hibernian Board of New Orleans; and Conkling probably does not take overmuch joy in seeing promoted to the head of the Cabinet a gentleman, whose arrior in favor of his style of Republicanism, and Grantism in particular, has been of the weakest sort. In fact it was a question long after the Presidential campaign was opened, which side Mr. Ervrie would take in the fight. And it cannot be imagined that either Conkling or Morton can take much delight in seeing a man put into the Cabinet of a Republican President, whom they formerly helped to step out of the Republican party five years ago. If Zach Chandler had been told six months ago that, on leaving the Cabinet, he would give place to Carl Schurz, he would have returned to his old business of selling dry goods in Detroit sooner than had helped to elect a man who would make such an appointment. He doubtless heartily joins in the chorus to Don Cameron's tune: "We had better have had Tilden." There is also political future for the Camerons and the Chandlers, if such men as Ervrie and Blaine are to be in the ascendant. The latter has never been in executive office. Mr. Ervrie is not only well known as a distinguished lawyer, but also as Attorney General during a part of the term of Andrew Johnson. It seems he has just now signified himself by advising Gov. Chamberlain of South Carolina to resign and give way to Wade Hampton.

The new Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. John Sherman, long time Senator from Ohio, and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, will do well if he fills the place of Secretary Morrill, who goes out "with all the honors." It is safe to say he can't get well down to the low level of Grant's favorite Secretaries, Bostwell and Richardson. But he is a politician, and not of a broad pattern. He does not owe his place so much to his ability as to personal friendship.

The new Postmaster General, Key, has been sometimes called a Democrat. He succeeds to Andrew Johnson's place as Senator from Tennessee. He has not the national reputation of John Hancock of Texas, who was talked of for the place, and whom we hoped to see made a member of the Cabinet. Mr. Key is of Perry, Ind., and Mr. Thompson of Indiana, are yet to be tried in executive office. They can hardly be said, either of them, to be known to the country; and we fear their appointment is more owing to their locality, and the demand of local politicians, than to any special fitness of the Cabinet. Judge Devens, a member of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, must be an improvement upon Grandmother Tull, and Landis Williams, an Attorney General, the newspapers mentioned his name as a candidate for Senator, when George Hoar was lately elected; but his position in the party was not high enough to attract votes.

From this it may be seen that the rabid partisan politicians have not had matters all their own way. The course of partisanship does not run smooth; and there is some indication that the country may become turbulent. Mr. Ervrie and Mr. Schurz are likely to be the leading power in the Cabinet; and they have little sympathy with the Blaine and Morton of the Senate. Nor will they much need to cultivate the friendship of those fast named gentlemen, for they have just been defeated in their attempt to fast into the Senate, without a hearing, the notorious Kellogg of Louisiana, who claims his place there by virtue of the certificate of the self-styled Governor Packard.

There is a suspicion that Blaine made his last attempt to log Kellogg in by the ears in order to "get the start" of the President and his Cabinet on the "Louisiana question." If he had got a vote of the Senate in his favor he might have been member of the situation, for a time at least, and dictated terms to the President and his Cabinet. But he failed; and the White House is free from the embarrassment of having Southern matters prejudged by the Senate. It is now the President's opportunity. May he improve it, wisely?

The Kansas Legislature is owing to the Governor Hubbard is expected to welcome the illustrious body when it reaches Austin.

The Limestone News says: "Mr. Mills can now be elected to any office under the gift of the people of Texas—Congressman, Governor, Senator—any thing—just name the office and take it, Roger Q."

AN IMPORTANT MATTER.

It is an established truth that the inhabitants of a city depend principally for their existence on the products of the surrounding country. If they are non-producers, they must live upon the labor of the producers—the men who till the soil and raise the stock. The latter, however, depend upon the former for a market for their products—they make the trade of a city by selling their productions and purchasing their stores and necessaries to the comfort of life. The city is the distributor, the forwarder, moving articles of trade where they are in demand, exporting and importing, and maintaining the equilibrium.

But there enters here another great agent of prosperity, and which gives to a city a commercial vigor, and serves to promote their growth wherever in proper proportion. We allude to the manufacturer. The manufacturer employs labor, builds up, transforms the raw products of the country into things useful and ornamental, and is an invaluable acquisition to any city. San Antonio offers unequalled inducements for manufacturing enterprises, and there is no industry or acquisition she so easily misses as that of manufacturing. Without it we are dependent upon extraneous sources, for almost all articles of manufacture.

Among the principal cities of Texas, San Antonio stands almost alone in the absence of manufacturing establishments. Beyond Maj. Kampmann's sash and blind factory, the puddling furnace of Schulte & Nixon, the soap factories of Messrs Menger and Scheiner, the ice and gas factories, we possess no manufacturing facilities, save a tall chimney, here or here, but no machinery. We have no villages of laboring men, and are greatly deplete of the benefits of mechanics and mechanics, who are a foundation and support to all branches of trade.

It being, within our power, we should become a manufacturing center. Possessing the best of water power, the best of the country in the way of land, inviting buildings, we afford superior inducements for the establishment of manufacturing.

First, the railroad company should remove their shops to our city. Numerous excellent sites for their business can be obtained—sites upon our rushing river, with the finest water power, and every thing convenient to advance the interests of the company in this respect. Their repair shops are now located about Houston and Harrisburg, where it is notorious, unhealthily, and where the circumstances are not near so favorable as could attend their removal to San Antonio.

These shops established here, a blast or puddling furnace might be started in connection with them. Iron ore in abundance exists in the hills west of us, coal abundant, and equal determination would remain to attach this as a branch of their shop work. We have given the railroad company a liberal bonus to bring their road to our city, and it seems to us that they should in a measure regard the road and direct interests of the city. Once the idea predominant that San Antonio is a good point for manufacturing, and the benefit-influence would induce the establishment of coal, cotton, and oil manufactories along the banks of our river.

The advantages of railroads are many and important, but competition in trade is aroused, and disadvantages follow both ways in a battle against competitors. We must build up our city, and settle the country about as with good, industrious people. The wholesale and retail merchant are equally interested in this, every citizen should feel concerned in it. We expect the Pease road to be a great benefit—expecting, will not make it such—we have our part to perform as citizens, and only the exertions of the people, combined with the labors of the railroad company, can reach that end. Col. Pease and his agents will do all in their power to induce immigration, but one is the chief laborer. We desire to see great wholesale and commission houses, elegant retail establishments, all kinds of business systematically and prosperously conducted in San Antonio, to the end, that this may become the point for distributing articles of trade throughout all Western Texas for all time. We must first secure for San Antonio the title of a city in fact as well as in name—a city, because she possesses the popular and commercial qualifications which make a city. We have, as it were, to commence, even yet, to lay the foundations of a city here.

But it may be asked, how can all this be accomplished? Let there be established a Western Texas Immigration Society. Let the land owners meet together and mutually consult one another's interests, and organize for a purpose from the achievement of which a common benefit would come. Let them place liberal values upon their lands, describe the country honestly and truthfully, and advertise it to the world. Officers should be appointed to attend especially to the objects of such an organization. Our agricultural, stock-raising, manufacturing and general industrial resources, should be described and advertised everywhere. Inducements should be offered to immigrants, and which no other section of the country could successfully compete. That the result would redound to the good of every man, woman and child living or doing business in Western Texas, is positively certain. Let our merchants, our lawyers, our real estate dealers, our land owners, inaugurate such an enterprise. The expense and trouble would be justified a thousand fold by the good achieved.

This Statesman publishes a letter from one who was forty one years ago present at the signing of the Declaration of Texas Independence on the Brazos. The correspondent says that of the fifty eight signers, but four are now alive, viz: Edwin Waller, at present a citizen of Hempstead, Waller county, Texas; aged 76; a native of Virginia. He served in the battle of Velasco, in 1832, and at the siege of Bexar, in 1835. John W. Tanton, of Mountain City, Hayes county, Texas; aged 66; a native of Tennessee; served at the siege of Bexar and the battle of San Jacinto. W. B. Seaton, of Sherman, Colorado county; a native of Virginia; served in the battle of San Jacinto. Charles H. Stewart, of Montgomery, Montgomery county, Texas; aged 79; a native of South Carolina; was at the battle of Velasco. Of the brave men who stormed Bexar in 1835, and the 750 who really achieved the independence of Texas on the battle-field of San Jacinto, to-day not more than 100 survive.

The Houston Telegraph was sold at public outcry on the 6th instant, at the instance of B. A. Shepard, who held a mortgage against it, for $6,000.

OUR WHEALELE TRADE.

An incomplete article appeared in our issue of yesterday, without comment upon it. As we neglected commenting upon the assertions made yesterday, we take this opportunity of doing so.

Speaking of the advantages and disadvantages of railroad connection, the writer asserts that our wholesale trade had received no benefit from the arrival of the railroad—that it was at a standstill—that the country merchants preferred going to Galveston to buy, now that easy opportunity was before them, and that the fact was hereafter that we are a close observer of the business of our city, and realize the business situation to be more favorable at present than it ever has been. The railroad has opened up an easy access to the great commercial marts, and goods are put down here now at less cost, and in greater quantities, than ever before in the history of San Antonio. That the railroad has been a disadvantage to any class of our citizens, is not possible. It is looked upon as the beneficent agent through whose good influence all our trades and callings are to advance. If there was any dependency with our wholesale merchants prior to the advent of the railroad, it has disappeared, and given place to home and foreign trade, and the prosperity that is dawning upon our city. As we have taken occasion to remark elsewhere, the expectation is that thousands of people will pour into our section, to develop its resources. These people will depend upon San Antonio for the necessities of life. Our merchants will prosper thereby. The villages west of us are growing, and are told that new stores are being put up along the roads leading west from the city—that the country is improving more rapidly than we San Antonians have any idea of. All supplies are obtained from the princely merchants of our city. With all this improvement going on, which has been greatly enhanced since the arrival of the railroad, it is not possible that our business men are not profitably advancing day by day.

As to the country merchants going to Galveston, we have never heard of such a thing. Daily we witness carts and wagons loading at our stores for western merchants. Go out to the railroad freight depot, and you find that the great quantities of freight arriving are consigned to San Antonio merchants. Country dealers know they can obtain better bargains, on better terms, in San Antonio, than at any other point in America. It is decidedly to their advantage to buy here, and the thought of going to Galveston has probably never entered their minds. We shall devote our labors to the country more earnestly than in the past, to bringing immigrants to Western Texas, for with people to develop the great country about us, we must all prosper.

PATRICK DONAN, one of the most extreme and violent Southern men, has written a letter to President Hayes, in which he says:

"You will go into office under something of a cloud, but I have it in my power to dispel every mist and shadow, and to shine forth resplendent in the clear sunlight of immortal fame. If you go to the glorious dignity of an occasion such as heaven scarce affords to any man once in a century if, you show yourself a patriot instead of a partisan, and if you support the whole country with your support. The long suffering South will stand by you as a unit. With the exception of a few malignant fanatics, the entire 4,000,000 of your countrymen, of every creed and color, will endorse and sustain you. Peace, real peace will once more spread her white wings over our long discordant land. True reconstruction, delayed by passion and by folly through the many days of weary years, will at last be effected. The Union will be restored in deed and in truth, a Union of hearts and hands, of interests, sympathies and inclinations, well as of mere territory, mountains, lakes and streams. The old fraternal feelings (but unlamented) of our fathers, will be awakened. From Maine to California, and from Minnesota to Florida, the altars of nationalism will be rekindled. Under the influence of your confidence and hope, business will revive; our languishing industries will begin to raise their heads; long-buried properties will return to our stores and our work-shops; and from every village and hamlet, every hillside and valley, from ocean to ocean, will ascend a glad, universal chorus of thanksgiving to the All-wise and All-merciful God of Nations, for the 'good time coming.' come in haste."

Report of the Chinese Investigation Committee.

The report of the Congressional committee sent to investigate and report upon the subject of Chinese immigration, and presented to the Senate by Mr. Sargent of California, is decidedly against Mongolian immigration to America. We publish the substance of the report:

"In conducting the investigation, one hundred and thirty Chinese were interviewed on the Pacific coast. The testimony was mainly that of lawyers, doctors, merchants, divines, and others of like standing; and it is their belief that the apparent prosperity derived from the presence of Chinese, is deceptive and unendurable, ruinous to our country, and a menace to the peace and safety of the Pacific coast. The number of Chinese residents of San Francisco averages about thirty-five hundred a year; they live in filthy dwellings, in narrow quarters, disregarding health and fire ordinances, and their vices are corrupting to the morals of the city, especially of the young. They are reduced to wretchedness, and are driven to starvation wages for white people, and engrossed so much of the labor of the city as to deprive the most for white, consequently men are growing up in idleness, and young men are compelled to resort to doubtful means of support. The hardships resulting from these causes bear with special weight upon women.

"In reading the testimony it will become painfully evident that the Pacific coast must in time become either American or Mongolian, these two forces being already in active opposition. They do not amalgamate, and all conditions are opposed to any assimilation. They can work for wages that the white race necessities of life to an American; their presence discourages and retards white immigration to the Pacific States. Chinese women in California are bought and sold for prostitution, and treated worse than dogs.

"The committee recommend that measures be taken by the Executive looking to a modification of the existing treaty with China, confining it strictly to commercial purposes; and that Congress legislate to restrain the great influx of Asiatics to this country. It is not believed that either of these measures would be looked upon with disfavor by the Chinese government. Whether this is or not, a duty is being laid upon us, and a terrible scourge, but are patiently waiting for relief from Congress.

"The fact that Senator Morton's effort in this position were ineffectual, evidence of the determination of President Hayes to act independently of his predecessor's governing councilors.

flashes out in large display type: "San Antonio: the oldest, healthiest and most beautiful city on the continent, better...

Mr. E. A. Rawlings, representing the new...

Dear our fellow-citizens, holding patents for...

defamatory reports, and as it will be circulated abroad by almost the hundred thousands, our people will appreciate the courtesy of the railroad managers.

This telegram was an answer to one sent to Mr. Redfield regarding an item in yesterday's Herald, announcing the insolvency of the firm of E. F. Redfield & Co., Music Dealers. How the report came to be circulated, is unknown, as we are told there is no basis for it whatever. E. F. Redfield & Co. are the most extensive...

Texas for the past ten months with the greatest satisfaction and success. Mr. Rawlings desires us to assure the public of the utter and absolute falsity of the report circulated. The business of the company was never in a better condition than at present.

A Strange Insurance Agent Tackles the Menger Hotel Boys.

The other day a sleek looking individual entered the Menger and taking of his hat...

placed it upon the counter. This he took some papers and documents out of his hat...

and spread them on the counter. He asked for Mr. Menger and then pulled some papers and documents out of a side pocket...

These he spread on the counter, and then went into another side pocket and pulled out another lot of papers and added to the pile. After ransacking his left coat pocket, and drawing forth some other documents, he told William Menger he was an insurance agent, and wanted to show him some testimonials, with which remark he made a dive into his right coat pocket and brought out some notes...

papers, the whole pile fairly covering the counter. Menger took a look at the man, then at the papers, and grinning a ghastly grin, said, "What a fine lot of testimonials, but a safe retreat is the best way." With a smile that was as cold as ice, the agent quietly remarked, "I often find 'em that way, but they always recover," and then tackled the clerk and talked to him until the poor fellow was forced to cry out, "Speak louder, for I can't see."

EXTRAORDINARY EXCITEMENT.

A Sensation on Military Plaza.

Yesterday morning a boy named Kelley was fined $5 by the Recorder for getting into a row, and after the discharge was pronounced, he made a bold dash for liberty by breaking through the crowd and running as if for dear life across Military Plaza. The police started in pursuit of the boy, and the crowd started in pursuit of the police. Merchants left their counters, to take part in the race, and all the litters in the neighborhood took part, nearly everybody crying "stop him!" and the greatest excitement prevailed. Occasionally some man would make a grab at the boy, and missing his hold, tumble to the ground, and two or three others coming up would tumble over the prostrate man, thereby giving the boy a fresh start; but a man on horseback finally joined in the chase and caught the fugitive. Then everybody wanted to know what the fugitive had done guilty of, and the excitement cooled down as despatches, stage-robber, incendiary, murderer, etc., was suggested; but when some one said he stole a cow, it was like touching the spark of fire to a can of dynamite, and everybody thought he ought to be hung on the first lamp post. When the fact of the case was made known, however, there never was a more disgusted crowd.

A BADLY MIXED CASE. The constitution containing the above clause was ratified on February 15th, 1876, to go into effect on the 15th of April following.

Several merchants refused to pay the occupation tax assessed in the ordinance of February 17th, 1876, and a test case, that of Mary Tierney, appeared from the Mayor's Court to the County Court, where it was ably argued pro and con, resulted adversely to the city. The following is a portion of Judge Dwyer's decision in the case:

"It is considered by the court that the defendant's plea that the ordinance of the city of San Antonio, entitled 'an ordinance to levy occupation taxes for the support of the government of the city of San Antonio for the fiscal year beginning March 1, 1876' approved February 17, 1876, is unconstitutional, null and void, be sustained and prevail in so far as it imposes and levies an occupation tax upon defendant for keeping a bar-room or drinking saloon; and subject her to fine for keeping said bar-room or drinking saloon without first having obtained a license therefor. It is further considered by the court and so adjudged that the defendant is not guilty, and that she go home without day, and that the said plaintiff corporation take nothing by its suit, and that it pay all costs in the behalf incurred, for which let execution issue."

The claim of the city, we believe, is based on the assumption that the occupation tax complained of was authorized by the constitution in force at the time of the levy; and that all ordinances passed in conformity with that constitution and prior to April 15th, 1876, when the new constitution went into effect, should be recognized as lawful for the time they were intended to effect.
