Machete-wielding terrorists want to avenge deaths

By BROOKS JACKSON

WASHINGTON (AP) - Machetewielding terrorists, bent on revenge against Black Muslim leaders they blame for a 1973 mass murder, held more than 100 hostages in three buildings today, and threatened to chop off captives' heads unless demands for retribution are met.

Twenty-four hours after the siege began, police and the heavily armed terrorists, some with automatic weapons, were at a standoff. No deadline for meeting of demands had been set by the invaders.

There were indications the terrorists had sufficient supplies to hold out for a time. During a tense night, a man who identified himself as Khalifa Hamaas Abdul Khaalis, leader of the gunmen who invaded and occupied three buildings, talked frequently with reporters by telephone. Asked if he expected his demand that Black Muslim leaders be delivered to him would be met, the terrorist said, "If they don't, the worst is to come, yet, the worst is to come ... I'm prepared to die."

At mid-morning, however, District of Columbia Mayor Walter Washington said hostages were "not suffering, other than being confined." City officials said unidentified diplomats were involved in efforts to negotiate with the terrorists. Abdul Khaalis confirmed he had talked to representatives of foreign nations.

A spokesman for the Iranian Embassy said today that ambassadors of three Moslem countries - Iran, Egypt and Pakistan - had spoken to Khaalis at the Carter administration's request to urge the gunmen to be "compassionate and to see reason." The spokesman said Khaalis had not responded positively to the appeal.

Police said the men were armed with rifles, shotguns, automatic weapons and machetes.

The gunmen all were believed to be members of the tiny, predominantly black Hanafi Moslem sect. They seized the headquarters of B'nai B'rith, a Jewish social service organization; the Islamic Center, a Moslem mosque; and the District of Columbia city hall

During the takeover of city hall, a black reporter for a Washington radio station was shot to death and a city councilman and three other persons were wounded. Eight other persons were injured during the take (Continued on Page 2A)

New TI plant might open in 2 months

Officials hope a Texas Instruments plant, which will employ ap-proximately 1,000 workers during its first year of operation, will be in operation in Midland by May, representatives of the company announced at a press conference this morning.

Construction for a permanent site is slated to begin during the last half of 1978.

The company has leased the 66,500square-foot Windecker Reaearch Building located at Midland Regional Air Terminal. It has purchased a 200acre tract of land approximately 10 miles from Midland at the southeast intersection of FM 1788 and Interstate Products to be manufactured in the Midland plant have not been determined but the plant will be part of Texas Instruments' consumer products operation which now manufactures calculators and watches, the officials said.

Company representatives said the plant will be operated in connection with its "management and technology center" for consumer products which is being consolidated in Lubbock.

The Lubbock plant now includes consumer and professional calculator FCC's (fabrication-customer centers), calculator division purchasing and quality and reliability assurance operations, time products division assembly operations, the consumer products repair and service center and the raw and finished goods

Midland is another step on the consolidation of the management and technology center for consumer products in Lubbock. The objective of establishing this kind of consumer products business center is to provide for planned growth in the consumer products area and to strengthen single-site responsibility for this area of the company's business, officials said.

Approximately 30 families will be transferred to Midland, with about 10 of the families coming from Dallas and the other 20 from Lubbock.

In moving most of the consumer products operation from Dallas to Lubbock, the company is transferring approximately 200 to 300 technical and administrative jobs.

The company purchased the land for its permanent site from Scharbauer Brothers and Co.

Texas Instruments has had operations in Midland many years, including a seismic data processing center and supervisory headquarters for West Texas geophysical ex-ploration crews of Geophysical Services Inc., a wholly-owned sub-sidiary. Both are located in leased space at 201 W. Wall St.

The company plans to be involved in the upcoming jobs fair to be held March 27 in the old Boone Publications Building at Air Terminal.

While in Midland, officials of Texas Instruments from both Dallas and Lubbock met with chamber of commerce representatives from Midland and Odessa.

murder charged to President Idi Amin in Uganda.

The United States voted for the anti-Chilean resolution Wednesday although the Carter administration repudiated the admission by its representative at the meeting that the U.S. government had a part in the "subversion" of the elected Marxist government overthrown by the junta.

The resolution denounced "constant and flagrant violations of human rights" in Chile and was adopted by a 26-1 vote. Uruguay cast the negative vote, while Jordan and four LatinAmerican nations - Peru, Panama, Costa Rica and Ecuador abstained

The United States during the Nixon and Ford administrations abstained on similar resolutions critical of the Chilean junta, but this time it was among the cosponsors of the resolution, along with the Soviet Union and Cuba. The change presumably reflected President Carter's stated concern for human rights throughout the world.

By a vote of 17-8, the human rights body also adopted a Cuban motion to take up in private session a British resolution calling for an inquiry by the commission into the human rights situation in Uganda.

Washington, meanwhile, called U.S. delegate Brady Tyson home for having expressed to the commission on Tuesday "profoundest regrets for the role some (U.S.) government officials, agencies and private groups played in the subversion" of the Chilean regime of Marxist President Salvador Allende in 1973.

LATE NEWS

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is promising a major American effort to convene a Middle East peace conference in Geneva before the year is out. He said he could envision a settlement in which Israeli forces might be authorized to go beyond their country's established borders to protest against sudden Arab attacks.

Wholesale price hike highest in months

WASHINGTON (AP) — The higher cost of coffee, poultry, fruits and vegetables helped push wholesale prices up ninetenths of a per cent in February, the government said today. It was the biggest increase in 16 months.

Labor Department analysts said they were unable to determine how much of the increase could be attributed to the severe winter. But the jump in the inflation rate at the wholesale level comes against a backdrop of drought in Western states and a citrus and vegetable freeze in Florida.

Fuel prices also were up sharply during the month. Department analysts said the increase appeared larger than the true underlying rate of price rise because natural gas producers were refunding money to customers in the months prior to December, and that kept prices for those months lower than normal.

The latest overall increase compared to a five-tenths of a per cent rise in January and marked the big-gest gain since the 1.2 per cent advance in October 1975.

The monthly increase for February worked out to a compound annual rate of about 11 per cent and left wholesale prices 6 per cent ahead of where they were a year ago.

The wholesale price index stood at 190, signifying that the goods which cost $100 in 1967 now cost $190.

Although increases in wholesale prices are not translated dollar-fordollar into higher consumer prices in succeeding months, the wholesale price index does provide an indication of the inflationary pressures per-colating through the economy.

White heeds call to Washington

-AP Lamerah

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Texas Agriculture Commissioner John White is going to Washington to be No. 2 man in the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

'The challenges presented by President Carter's appointment cannot be ignored," he told a news conference Wednesday shortly after the White House announced he would be Deputy Secretary of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"It is an opportunity to participate in decisions which affect food and fiber production throughout the world.

The man who has been Texas' commissioner for 26 years said his top priority in Washington would be "to try to make it possible for farmers and ranchers to make a living."

White's voice broke as he spoke of leaving Texas.

"From the depth of my heart this has been about the hardest thing I have ever done," he said.

"But I want you to know I'm not quitting Texas. I will maintain my residence in Austin and I will continue to vote in Travis County (Austin) and I will maintain my interest in Texas politics as I always have." White was introduced by Gov.

Dolph Briscoe who said later he would not name a successor to White until after the U.S. Senate confirms the appointment, which might take several weeks.

"I'm not going to resign until I go on their payroll," he said. "If I miss a pay day, I'm busted."

White, 52, was a surprise winner of the state commissioner's job in 1950 when he was only 26 years old. He is currently recognized as dean of state agriculture commissioners in the terms of years in office.

He has been outspoken in criticism of Republican farm policies and called former Secretary Earl Butz the most "notoriously political, ambitious" secretary he had ever known.

White said one reason the appointment was not announced earlier was because of his insistence on an exemption to one provision of the ethice code for Carter's appointees.

"The way the code is interpreted now I could not have held office in state government after I returned from Washington if it was concerned with the U.S. Department of Agriculture," White said. "I asked for an exception to that and it was granted last week."

White was born on a small tenant farm near Newport. in northwest Texas, on Nov. 28, 1924. He graduated from Iowa Park High School in 1942, earning a scholarship to Texas Tech where he received a degree in agriculture in 1946. Later he did graduate work at Texas A&M

Transplanted physician now in produce business

How would you like a radical change of pace, a change of status, a change in your situation and means? Ahhh

Yes, that's a thought to ponder, once you've figured out if you're sliding down those socio-economic scales or climbing upward. A fellow by the name of Mohsen

Abdel Nabi is doing both.

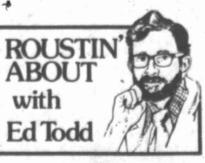

And pretty soon, he'll be doing more climbing than sliding.

You see, Nabi, the Egyptian, studied seven years in medical school, labored another seven years as a physician and surgeon, and eventually found himself struggling for a livelihood as a clerk in a fresh vegetable and fruit market.

That's a change, all right — from Cairo, Egypt, to Midland, Texas.

But it was of his choosing, after a fashion.

Nabi, age 34, suave, handsome and married, was an obstetrician and gynecologist when he left his native

Cairo in May 1975 to visit his Americanized brother in Midland.

Now the brother, Hosni Nabi, like himself, was successful, professionally.

Dr. Nabi, the brother, was and is a teacher and a scholar. He's a professor and is chairman of the science department at Midland College.

The other Dr. Nabi, the physiciansurgeon, was doing right well at his practice in Cairo, where socialized

Teaching all youngsters to read will test skills of educators

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

"The American public believes it's paying for (schools to teach) reading," and they have a right to expect the schools to teach it. the director of reading for Dallas schools told area teachers Wednesday.

Dr. Alvin Granowsky spoke to a group of reading teachers and principals from West Texas, including about 35 Midland representatives, Wednesday at the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale building at Air Terminal.

Center.

Granowsky told the teachers reading is the key to education. and thus the key to success in American society.

desegregation of the elementary grades forces school systems to re-evaluate their reading programs which seem to have been successful.

Middle class children will learn to read whatever reading pro-gram is developed because their parents will see that problems are solved at an early stage. But when deprived students are brought in, the reading program must stand on its own, he said.

Teachers often are unable to cope with the fact that their traditional methods simply are not working, he said.

Although the schools have an obligation to teach reading, the most important factor in a child's learning to read is "the quality of home life" which is usually related to the parents' educa-tional level, he said.

In homes where both parents

went to college, only .6 per cent of the children experience "massive reading failure," he said. If neither parent has more than an eighth grade education, that level rises to 8 per cent. And if neither parent has had any schooling at all, the odds are one in four the child will fail at reading.

Middle class children have reading problems, but parents see to it that they are corrected at an early stage, Granowsky said. He told the teachers the test for success is not how well middle class children read, but rather how children from "deprived" homes do. Although the influence of the home makes it difficult for schools to be held accountable for learning, there are some things medicine controls the health-care field.

"I came over here to visit my brother," said Nabi, the surgeon, who had seen his brother but once in the 15 years since he left Egypt for the states to study for the master's and doctoral (Ph.D) degrees in science.

Apparently, Nabi, the physiciansurgeon, took a fancy to Midland and to the prospects of practicing medicine in the good of' U.S. of A.

"I decided to stay right here." said the visiting doctor. So he did

But Nabi had a couple of problems to work out before he could settle down in the fashion he visualized for his station in life.

Firstly, he had the yearning to get his bride. Soria, a law student, over here. The American embassy, for reasons that seem to passeth all understanding, refused to grant her a visa to tag along with her husband to the states. Eventually, of course, she got over here as an immigrant.

Secondly, he had, and has, the driving desire to be sanctioned to practice medicine Stateside and to reestablish his profession and status.

To do that, he delved into selftaught refresher courses, you might say, to prepare himself for the examination.

After the coming of those favorable results, Nabi plans to work for two years under a fellowship at the medical school at Texas Tech University. He wants to be exposed to the latest techniques and equipment in his specialized field.

Meanwhile, he is stocking, checking and sacking produce at Bob Alexander's Imperial Produce Market on Midland's well-to-do northwest sector.

It's a living.

"You go to a (practicing) doctor, and he'll tell you the same thing," Alexander said.

One of these days, Nabi definitely plans on being a practicing doctor an obstetrician-gynecologist himself.

"And one day I will be a doctor. again," he said. (His late father was a physician who taught at the Cairo medical school.)

His wife, however, may never be a lawver.

"You know," Nabi said, "law 💰 different, unlike medicine." The practice of law varies greatly from state to state, nation to nation, Medical techniques and practices, however, are fairly standard throughout the so-called civilized and Westernized world. Too, unlike her husband, she is not fluent in English.

The siege continued through the night with police uncertain how many hostages were being held and how many terrorists were in the buildings. Gripp's report to WTOP indicated of those demanded to be served up to ders of seven Hanafis, six of whom were Abdul Khaalis' children, appeared to be the principal motive for the sudden invasion of the three buildings late Wednesday morning. Five Philadelphia Black Muslims were convicted of the 1973 slayings and each was sentenced to 140 years in prison.

In telephone conversations with newsmen, Abdul Khaalis blamed Black Muslim leaders, including heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali, for the slayings of his children and demanded that County finds space for new court office

By JUDY JOHNSTON

The space problem the Midland County Courthouse faces with the creation of the new 283rd District Court is solved temporarily - almost.

County Commissioners this morning started work to enter into an agreement with W. V. "Red" Roberts for use of about 2,100 square feet of office space on the second floor of the Metro Building

However, a decision as to whether the Justice of the Peace offices or the Domestic Relations Court offices will move out of the courthouse was postponed until all involved persons were consulted.

The building is across from the courthouse at 119 N. Colorado St.

Commissioners authorized County Attorney Les Acker to draft the agreement between the county and Roberts and authorized County Judge Barbara Culver to execute the agreement.

The agreement would allow the county to use the nine offices of the space on a virtually rent-free basis until the lease expires Oct. 1.

In return, Roberts likely would receive a tax break because the county is a non-profitmaking organization, pending approval by the Internal Revenue Service.

Such an agreement would entail a token rental fee, probably $1, 'commissioners said. Roberts made his proposal that the county occupy the office space after the commmissioners had considered about seven other alternatives. They agreed that the use of the Metro Building space was the most convenient temporary alternative.

Roberts is the lease-holder of the office space, having assumed the lease from a firm which moved from the space into some of Roberts' office space at 206 N. Main St.

"This doesn't solve anything on a permanent basis...it would just take some of the pressure off as far as time is concerned," Commissioner Durward Wright said.

The new court will become operative April 1, according to the bill creating it. The commissioners already had decided that the new court would occupy the court and office space now occupied by the Domestic Relations Court.

The commissioners will meet with both the justice of the peace office and the domestic relations and district court clerk's offices before deciding which of those offices will occupy the nine rooms available in the Metro Building.

Blowing dust, winds rampage through area

Strong March winds between 30 and 40 mph are expected to churn up a little bit of that ole' West Texas dust today.

Fortunately, this dry spring gale promises to calm down a bit tonight. when winds are expected to lull between 15 and 20 mph.

With the stiff breeze, temperatures are going to be cooler than Wednesday, the weatherman says, with a high today in the mid-70s and a low tonight in the mid-30s.

The day began nice enough, though, with a slight dew this morning and warm temperatures.

Andrews reported 48 degrees at 8 a.m. with clear skies and no wind. It was also clear and almost windless this morning in Rankin, Crane, Big Lake, Stanton, Odessa and Lamesa.

Considerable blowing dust was expected on the South Plains today and the cool front was expected to stir up showers and thunderstorm activity in Central and East Texas, the Associated Press said

Although most of the state had clear, calm weather early today. some shower activity was reported in Southeast Texas during the night and winds gusted to 30 mph. in the El Paso and Guadalupe Pass areas.

Early morning temperature readings ranged from the 30s at Marfa in Southwest Texas to the 50s over the rest of the state and some areas along the gulf coast had readings approaching the low 60s. Some early morning readings included 52 at Wichita Falls, 54 at Abilene, 55 at Longview and 53 at San Angelo and Dallas-Fort Worth.

B'nai B'rith building for persons requiring regular medication. A trickle of hostages continued to be released for medical reasons.

The phone report from the District building hostage, Allan Gripp, an aide to the president of the D.C. city council, was the first from that group and quoted one terrorist as shouting: 'We are Hanafi Moslems to the death. If the police have any idea of storming this room, it puts all of our lives in immediate danger, as well as the hostages at the B'nai B'rith.'

As police sought to calm the situation, they asked the White House to forego a ceremonial gun salute on the mansion's lawn two blocks from the District building. It was to herald the arrival of British Prime Minister James Callaghan, but was canceled "because of concern it might be misunderstood" by the terrorists, Protocol Chief Evan Dobelle said.

In developments outside Washington:

-Moustapha Akkad, who produced a film about Islamic prophet Mohammad which the terrorists demanded be withdrawn from distribution, offered today in New York City to show the film to the Hanafis and to destroy it if they found it offensive.

-In Camden, N.J., officials at the county jail increased security for Ronald Harvey, one of those convicted of the 1973 Hanafi slavings. "They are guarding him very closely," said a spokesman. Harvey is one that one of the gunmen in the District building is a son of Abdul Khaalis.

The largest group of hostages was being held in the eighthfloor cafeteria of the B'nai B'rith headquarters, seven blocks north of the White House. An official of B'nai B'rith estimated that as many as 118 people were in the hands of the terrorists. Another 14 hostages were being held at the Islamic Center on Washington's Embassy Row and seven were inside the District Building, located on Pennsylvania Avenue within sight of the White House grounds.

Abdul Khaalis described himself as the leader of the Hanafi Moslems.

His son-in-law. Abdul Aziz, was contacied in the northwest Washington headquarters of the Hanafi Moslems where the murders took place four years ago. Abdul Aziz told reporters that if the demands of the terrorists were not met, "heads will be chopped off. A killing room will be set up at B'nai B'rith and heads will be thrown out of windows."

Mayor Walter Washington, who had been barricaded in his city hall office for several hours early in the takeover but later escaped the building, said early today that foreign diplomats were involved in discussions with the Hanafi gunmen. Abdul Khaalis denied any knowledge of such negotiations.

the schools can and should be expected to do, Granowsky said.

First, teachers can be held accountable for knowing how much each child already has learned.

He said the Dallas schools have devised a test to show exactly what skills the child knows and which ones he does not know.

Then, schools can be held accountable for having a "program that makes sense." That includes teaching skills the children do not know but not teaching them things they already do know, he said. "A child has a right to an education even if he is in school," Granowsky said.

Another obligation of the school system is to let parents know what they can do to help, he said. In Dallas, this takes the form of parent conferences in which the teacher shows the parent the result of the skills test and ways he can help the child learn the needed skills

He criticized teachers who do not allow children to take books home "because they'll read ahead and ruin

If every effort has been made to help the child learn, and results still have not been obtained, the teacher, parent and principal may have to decide to keep the child back, he said. "Dallas is trying to make a commitment to end social promotion," Granowsky said. - 6-

"You let kids into the second grade without reading, they wind up in the third grade without reading," he said, but no child should be kept back because the teacher did not do the best possible job.

Legislators now are "mixing in" to . establish standards of accountability. he said. He predicted some type of accountability legislation will be passed in Texas and said educators should be trying to come up with suggestions instead of "reacting" to other proposals.

Letting teachers, parents and children know exactly what is expected causes them to function better. 'Let's raise a generation of children who can take on the fourth 'R'.' responsiblity, he said.

distributor immediately stopped the film in mid-screening after learning of Abdul Khaalis' demand. Abdul Khaalis said the film was "a fairy tale" that demeaned and distorted the Islamic faith, although few other Moslems have objected to it.

In Chicago, Wallace Muhammad denied responsibility for the 1973 Hanafi slayings and said he deplored Wednesday's violence.

Four to six gunmen, including Khaalis, stormed the B'nai B'rith headquarters around 11 a.m., wounding eight persons and herding 100 or more hostages onto the top floor of the eight-story building. Police said 43 persons either were released or escaped the terrorists by hiding.

Whalen Lake hearing set April 15 by TRC

AUSTIN - A hearing to review current salt water disposal practices at Whalen Lake in Andrews County has been scheduled April 15 here by the Texas Railroad Commission's Oil and Gas Division

The hearing, called on the Commission's own motion, will primarily review disposal practices of the Whalen Corp., operated by Triton Oil and Gas Corp. of Dallas.

Environmentalists claim that approximately 140 dead migratory birds have been found near the lake since December.

For several months a special federal grand jury in Midland has been investigating a broad spectrum of water pollution problems at the lake

Whalen Lake is described as a "no drainage" lake 15 miles west of Andrews and about three miles south of Frankel City.

The grand jury investigation involves several oil companies, including at least five major oil producers. At least eight oil companies use the lake to dump waste salt water Midlanders may be able to travel to Oklahoma City and Tulsa, Okla., by a more direct air route if a Civil Aeronautics Board judge's decision stands.

Judge Frank M. Whiting has ruled Continental Airlines can drop Wichita Falls and Lawton, Okla., for five years from a flight which originates in Midland, and also stops in Lubbock. before reaching Oklahoma City. The flight concludes in Tulsa.

The judge approved a plan in which Rio Airlines will provide service to Wichita Falls and Lawton.

Persons opposing the decision have 21 days from last Monday to file petitions for review of the decision. The decision automatically would go into effect if there are no filings but the City of Wichita Falls is expected to fight the plan.

Continental expects to tie the new flight plan in with other airline schedules for better connections to Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, New York City, Washington, D.C., and other stops east and north.

BUCHAREST - After an initial reaction that Bucharest, which escaped heavy damage in World War II, had been bombed, the city realized that for the third time in the century it had experienced a severe tremor from a historic fault deep under the Carpathia Mountains 135 miles to the northeast.

It will be weeks before the total cost of the catastrophe can be added up, but most Romanians already know what the bottom line will read many more years of economic hardship for a country which has the lowest standard of living among the East European Communist trading community and second from last in all of Europe.

(Albania is assumed to have the lowest economic standing of all Euro-pean countries but publishes few reliable statistics.)

Nicholae Ceausescu, president and Communist Party chief who rules Romania with dictatorial power, con-ceded last year that the total output for his country amounted to a little more than $1,000 for each of its 21.5 million inhabitants.

Since industrial Western countries, on the average, produce four times as much, Ceausescu said: "no matter what we do, we must consume only a quarter of what they do."

The official Romanian policy since the Communists took power after World War II has been to invest heavi-ly in building an industrial base for the country and to pay most of the bills by holding down the consumer portion of the economy.

Under Ceausescu for the last 12 years, the policy has been intensified to produce mixed results.

Industrial growth has been very impressive, but has been achieved by devoting a remarkable one-third of the national income to investments and by restraining consumer output through absolute political control.

As a result, Romanians have small incomes and very few places to spend the money they get. The gap in living standards between Bucharest, where 1.7 per cent of the Romanians live, and the countryside is immense.

The country has also failed to develop its agriculture although the southern plain includes some of Europe's richest farmland.

Saccharin ban may make some get prescriptions

PAGE SA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Diabetics and others who can't eat sugar might be able to get saccharin as a prescription drug after the proposed federal ban on the artificial sweetener goes into effect. The Food and Drug Administration announced the ban on saccharin Wednesday, citing a Canadian study that found large doses of the sweetener caused cancer in laboratory rate.

cancer in laboratory rats.

Canada simultaneously banned saccharin. The FEA said it would take at least 120 days to put the ban into effect, but it called on manufacturers "to discontinue use of saccharin as soon as possible." In announcing the ban, the FDA said it would consider allowing some limited use of saccharin to continue because no substitutes for it would be available in the near future.

But Acting FDA Commissioner Sherwin Gardner said any decision on the prescription approach was still months away.

Canada said those on restricted diets will be able to buy pure saccharin only in drug stores after Sept. 1.

Diet soft drinks account for three-quarters of the five million pounds of saccharin used yearly in the United States. A spokesman for the National Soft Drink Association said the industry would try to develop new low-calorie beverages without sac-

The Coca-Cola Co. said it regretted the FDA's ac-tion, but would comply with the request to discon-tinue saccharin use as soon as possible.

We will have reformulated low calorie drinks ready for the market" before the FDA ban takes effect, Coke executive vice president Charles W. Adams said in a statement from Coke's Atlanta headquarters.

The Canadian study showed that the sweetener caused bladder cancers in rats fed a diet of 5 per cent pure saccharin for their entire lives. To consume an equivalent amount of saccharin, a human would have to drink 800 twelve-ounce diet sodas a day for a lifetime, Gardner said.

Gardner said that while he could not assess the economic impact of the decision, it would be 'substantial, no question about it."

While diet food industy spokesmen disagreed with the FDA over the scientific evidence, they agreed with the economic assessment.

The ban "will kick the legs from under us," said William L. Brooks, 7-Up bottling plant manager in Reno, Nev. "Any call for a ban of saccharin is an outrageous and harmful action," said Marvin Eisenstadt, ex-ecutive vice president of Cumberland Packing Co. of Brooklyn, N.Y., which uses saccharin in its Sweet 'N Low, the leading table top sweetener. He charged that the action was based upon "flimsy scientific evidence" and goes against more than 30 other health tests since 1970 that cleared saccharin of possible harm possible harm.

Under the FDA order, it will take the agency 30 days to draft and publish the ban. After allowing 60 days for comments from interested parties, the agency will take another 30 days to finalize the rule. This means the ban could not take affect until July

Welcome, Engineers

A meeting of unusual significance and long-range benefits to the nation and its citizens presently is being held in the Hilton Inn in the Tall City.

It is the 10th Biennial Permian Basin Oil and Gas Recovery Conference which is sponsored by the Permian Basin and Trans-Pecos Sections of the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME. The conference opened Wednesday afternoon, with sessions scheduled today and Friday.

Scores of petroleum engineers from a wide area of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico are on hand for the sessions. A number of technical papers are being or will be delivered by some of the nation's top petroleum engineers. specialists in their particular fields.

The recovery of every drop of oil and foot of natural gas possible from oil and gas fields in the Permian Basin and elsewhere is of tremendous importance today as the nation, led by the petroleum industry, strives to ease the critical energy shortage and to reduce the nation's reliance on foreign crude oil and other petroleum products.

This is exactly what the petroleum engineers are considering and discussing at their Midland conference. And if this doesn't make it one of the most important sessions held anywhere this week, we do not know what does.

Midland and Midlanders express appreciation to the engineers for their dedicated efforts, while at the same time congratulating them on their achievements through the years. They have done tremendous jobs in oil and gas recovery in years past and they are coming up with even greater accomplishments now. Here's wishing for them even greater success in the future.

Meanwhile, the Tall City and its residents direct a most cordial. sincere, typically West Texas -welcome to the conference visitors. May their visit here be highly productive and most enjoyable from every standpoint.

WASHINGTON - Despite a generally virtuoso performance fielding questions from a hostile Senate Armed Services Committee in his bid to become disarmament chief. Paul Warnke has been hurt by an alteration of past congressional testimony he was asked to submit in writing to Senate critics.

Responding to written questions from the committee, Warnke pointed to his 1972 testimony to substantiate his claim of long-standing concern about the Soviet arms buildup. But super-lawyer Warnke submitted a rearranged, partial quote and altered the meaning by eliminating a highly significant comma.

at not only further

Warnke wrote Jackson, "that 'numerical superiority which is not translatable into any sort of military capability or any sort of political potential has no purpose."" He was, he said, quoting his own testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on June 28, 1972 But Warnke's actual testimony five years ago was different: "It seems to me...that the continuation of the missile numbers game is in fact a mindless exercise, that there is no purpose in either side's achieving a numerical superiority, which is not translatable into either any sort of military capability or any sort of political potential. Such Warnke statements can be found in abundance. But Warnke's reply to Jackson altered his June 1972 testimony, eliminating pointed words ("mindless exercise" for example). More important, by eliminating the comma after ''numerical superiority," the meaning was transformed. The loss of the comma means Warnke no longer declares numerical superiority to be absolutely irrelevant; it indicates only that it may be irrelevant.

ART BUCHWALD Separate checks at White House meals

WASHINGTON - President Carter was asked many questions at his callin last Saturday. The one that fascinated me the most was when a young man asked why the President's son Chip and Chip's wife and their son were living in the White House on the taxpayers' money.

The President responded by saying, in part, "Well, I think you ought to know that all personal expenses of our family are paid out of my pocket, or the pocket of my children. Our food is kept separate; we pay for all of it. All our clothes and so forth are paid for out of our own pocket

Had I been the questioner I would have followed up with "Mr. President, how do you keep track of what each person eats?" Since I couldn't, I'm going to speculate on what might take place at a Carter family dinner.

They've just finished eating and the President takes out a yellow pad and pencil. "All right, now, let's see what everyone ate. Chip, what did you have?'

"I had tomato soup, fried chicken, mashed potatoes, cole slaw and cherry pie.

"Didn't I see you drink a glass of milk?" the President asks. "I forgot about the milk," Chip says

"I'll bet," Amy says mischievously.

"Pa, she's picking on me again," Chip says.

who had planned to support Warnke as director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) but oppose him as chief SALT (strategic arms limitation talks) negotiator. Now Griffin plans to vote against Senate confirmation for both posts. REAGAN AND RIGHTS

Ronald Reagan, a propounced hardliner on the Soviet Union who fully backs President Carter's human rights campaign, thinks Mr. Carter went too far in writing his letter to Soviet dissident leader Andrei Sakharov. While saying the analogy is by no means exact, he tells intimates that political reaction here to a letter from Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev to the head of the radical Puerto Rican independence group called F.A.L.N. in New York would differ only in degree from Kremlin reaction to Mr. Carter's letter to Sakharov. A footnote: Reagan would not cool the human rights campaign, but he would run it under strict rules of diplomatic conduct (communications from a head of state only to a head of state) and he would increase, not cut, defense spending to prepare for possible Soviet counter-action. IDI AMIN AND FIDEL

The President says, "Did Caron have the same?"

"I had a hot roll," Caron replies. The President says, "The hot roll comes with the meal. Now, Ma, what did you have?'

Miss Lillian says, "I thought I was invited here for dinner."

"I'm sorry, Ma, everybody has to pay for their own food at the White House.

"Well, you know I don't like chicken, so I had some broiled trout." The President looks up the price of trout on the engraved White House menu and writes it down.

"Grandma had cottage cheese, too," Amy says.

"But I didn't have soup," Miss Lillian says. "You're not going to charge me for the soup and the cottage cheese.'

"No, you can have one or the other.

"Yes, Jimmy, and a salad." "What kind of dressing?" the President asks.

"Does it make any difference?"

"I suppose not, but if we get audited by the GSA I want the records straight. All right, Billy, what did you have for dinner?'

"Two beers," Billy says. "He did not," Amy says. "He had four beers. One, two, three, four !" "I brought two of them with me," Billy says. "Besides, I didn't eat anything. I don't see why I should be

But even as he is continuing to assert that he intends to try his best to keep his promises, the President is acknowledging that it may not be possible for him to do 80.

Circumstances change, as he explained in his recent news conference, and as President he must reserve the right to change position with the changing circumstances.

An example is the report that the Central Intelligence Agency paid large sums in secret to King Hussein of Jordan.

As a campaigner, Mr. Carter promised to reduce present defense expenditures by $5 to $7 billion.

As President, he has recommended a defense budget that is $10 billion higher than this year. He would not promise any specific reduction in total defense spending in years to come. He said any cuts would depend in part upon what the Russians do in the arms race.

Thus presidential responsibilities take precedence over campaign promises. Realistically, the American people wouldn't want it any other way.

Warnke's critics on the Armed Services Committee but has alarmed some Senators who had not been totally committed against him. Although Warnke surely will be confirmed by the Senate, the vote against him - perhaps 35 Senators or more - now seems destined to be embarrassingly high.

Warnke's confirmation process once promised to generate a useful debate on opposing theories of arms control. Instead, when he hardened his line before the committee, the debate shifted from his convictions to his credibility.

One frustrated Warnke critic, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, submitted this question, asking for a reply in writing: how do you square your frequent past comments that Soviet numerical superiority in nuclear weapons is meaningless with your present claim that you were worried about "numerical disparity" between the U.S. and the Soviet Union as far back as 1972?

"I specifically stated (in 1972),"

Jackson was angered by the change. So was Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan, one of Warnke's few critics on the Foreign Relations Committee,

A sudden behind-the-scenes warming of relations between Idi Amin and Fidel Castro gives the Ugandan dictator some Cuban security against any effort to overthrow him

Official Africa-watchers here now believe that Castro would airlift to Uganda elements of his Cuban expeditionary force, based in Angola, to oppose any anti-Amin military action - either from within or without.

That gives Amin additional latitude in forging ahead with internal repression. But it also shows the pervasive impact on all African affairs of the continued Cuban presence in Angola.

A footnote: Official circles here now assert the accuracy of a Tanzanian report that Amin personally murdered Archbishop Janani Luwum

"We'll pay for you," the President says. "Well, let's see - it seems to add up just right. Wait a minute. I seem to be short 20 cents.

Amy says, "You forgot the baby's warm milk.

"That's it. I forgot the baby!" the President says. "Does anyone want more coffee?" Miss Lillian says, "No, thanks. On my Social Security I can't afford it.'

Radio show was big hit, but nitty-gritty work lags WASHINGTON - Familiarity can breed affection and political support. That's what Jimmy Carter got - instead of contempt - for his enor-mously successful radio show. The . dominates the action, the Republican paid for it, and tossed in Uncle Walter Cronkite for extras, just to make it more friendly. That movie, "Net-work," isn't so crazy after all.

At this point in time, to use a sad phrase, all the Republicans can do is wait and watch. Mr. Carter has demonstrated that he can use the media like no President since, who, Kennedy, or Roosevelt? But Republicans can grump that Mr. Carter has spent most of his time on image and public relations since taking office seven weeks ago and, indeed, is way behind in some of his nitty-gritty work.

The U.S. government, at this point, is as immobilized as it was in the worst of Watergate, No less than Gen. Alexander Haig, who was in town last week, and who has been through a few years in the White House, made that observation after experiencing the Carter White House. But back to the big radio show. CBS offered the time and facilities free to Mr. Carter, in order for him to "communicate" with the American people. What followed were 42 sets of questions from a cross section of America. Some were good, some were trivial, but all gave Mr. Carter a chance to advertise himself, soft-sell style.

Jimmy said "Hi" to "Pete" and "Cheryl" and "Mark" and all the others, as though they were born and raised in Plains. He painted favorable vignettes of himself - telling "Susan Ellen" how he likes to go walking with Rosalynn in the woods and fields, hunt arrowheads and hold hands with her: describing for "Miss Phyllis Dupere" how, as a youngster, he was eager to do quite dangerous things, like going into the atomic submarine program, only now he was older and probably enlarge his image, and sell himself to the public, gratis? Does the other party, and we need opposition in our political system, have an equal right to time?

"We weren't concerned with being fair in this project," said Emerson Stone, a vice president of CBS radio. "In many ways it was like a news conference, with follow-up questions."

Yes, indeed, we should have some

The political declaration also stressed the need to maintain a complete boycott on ties with Israel, and long-term program for co-operation in many Rhodesia and South Africa "as long as these regimes obstinately pursue racist, expansionist and aggressive policies."

The statement put the oil embargo at the top of the list of ways of pressuring these countries.

The fourth document, on economic and financial co-operation, emphasized the need to strengthen the African Development Bank in Abidjan, Ivory Coast, and the Arab Development Bank for Africa, based in Khartoum, Sunday.

It further stressed the need for increased two-way preferential treatment in Afro-Arab trade, and for further Arab investment in Africa.

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) - Years of farm labor strife marked by occasional violence in California appear to be ending with the giant Teemsters Union leaving the fields to Cesar Chavez' scrappy United Farm Workers.

Chavez and Teamsters International President Frank Fitzsimmons are to announce an agreement today which would split organizing rights: the UFW will get sole jurisdiction in the fields, the Teamsters sole jurisdiction over cannery workers.

nouncement at a 2 p.m. EST news conference at Western Conference of Teamsters headquarters in Burlingame comes after negotiations that began late last year. They were conducted quietly without the pressure of a crisis in the fields and with only occasional public comments from Chavez.

Chavez gained national fame when he struck the table grape workers of central California in 1965 and led a five-year boycott. But the Teamsters Union was first to organize field hands. It signed a contract in the Salinas farming region in 1961 with Bud Antle, one of the nation's largest lettuce growers.

Almost a decade later, a battle for dominance in that region sparked the bitter dispute between the two unions.

Southwest Bell chief Son asks law to stop life says service too low

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - It took 10 days for 78year-old Annie Farabee to die.

"She was unconscious, really just being kept alive by a machine. She was in a great deal of pain...gasping...every breath was a labor." recalled her son.

Four years later, her son, Sen. Ray Farabee D-Wichita Falls, is sponsoring a bill that would allow Texans to write a "living will" to keep their life from being artificially prolonged by machines.

The proposal, in effect, would allow patients to order their doctors to withhold or withdraw any artificial life-sustaining procedures when the patient is found to be terminally ill.

The Senate Jurisprudence Committee will consider the measure next week.

"I've heard from several persons on this. That feedback and my personal experience with my mother's condition have convinced me that this is needed," said Farabee.

'My mother went through an agonizing period where it was clearcut and known that she was terminally ill and had no prospects for recovery," he added. "But we went on maintaining her life.

'It's not fair for family members to have to make that decision. Most of us have faced it before. This legislation seeks to remove some of that burden.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) - The president of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. says the giant utility needs more money to keep up with growing demands for service in Texas. "People may not want to accept this," said Zane E. Barnes of St. Louis, "but, realistically, the price of (telephone) service is too low.

And, realistically, the recent rate order of the Texas Public Utility Commission (PUS) didn't change that very, very hard economic fact," he told a civic club luncheon Wednesday.

Barnes was critical of the PUC order early this year which granted Southwestern Bell only $57 million of the $298 million statewide rate hike it had sought in Texas.

He said telephone rates have lagged behind inflation which, "coupled with your high rate of growth, makes repricing service the only realistic alternative we have left.

House gets racing bill

"So while I agree that cutting our rate request to the bone may be popular with the public. I can't call it realistic policy, nor is it in the longterm public interest," Barnes said.

In a news conference later, he said Southwestern Bell will seek a new rate increase for Texas unless it can overturn in the court PUC's recent order.

"We certainly think we're entitled to a fair return on our investment. If we do not prevail in the courts, then we'll go back to the commission with a brand new case," he said.

So far, the company has been unsuccessful in its court challenges of the PUC order.

Barnes also said Southwestern Bell is concerned about efforts in the Texas Legislature to overturn the PUC's approval for the company to charge for directory assistance calls in excess of 10 per month within the local dialing area.

The Texas Medical Association, which is spending thousands of dollars to support Farabee's massive malpractice bill, has not taken a position on the natural death proposal.

In fact, Farabee has no organized support behind him. He's drumming up support in the House by himself and rounding up his own wit-nesses. "Frankly," he admitted, "it's a hassle."

Farabee's bill includes several safeguards and doesn't allow anyone other than the patient to issue "natural death" orders to the doctor.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - A legalized horse race betting bill, which would bring the ponies and the betting windows only to counties where ap-proved by the voters, has been introduced in the House.

Speaker Bill Clayton referred the measure to the House Intergovernmental Affairs committee, chaired by Rep. Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

Panel considers sichool fund bills

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)- A Senate subcommittee will spiend the rest of March wrestling with five different sciliool finance bills - all of which have hefty support lin an attempt to hammer out a single proposal

The Senate Education Committee held lengthy he arings on the complex measures Wednesday night be fore referring them all to the same subcommittee. wi sich Chairman Oscar Mauzy will name later.

Mauzy said he wants a single bill before the co.mmittee by "the first or second week in April."

All five proposals are aimed at increasing state aid to local school districts and all dent the state's pro jected $2.9 billion surplus - in amounts ranging fro m $595 million to $1.6 billion.

7 The issue of teacher pay raises, which brought an est imated 1,000 teachers into the Senate chamber for We dnesday night's hearings, drew the most dis cussion.

" I do not apologize for bringing up the subject of tea cher salaries," said Vernon Robinson, president of "the Texas Classroom Teachers Association, who sai d the average salary for a Texas teacher is about $2,1 000 below the $13,297 national average.

I 'he Texas State Teachers Association, powerful Sent. A.M. Aikin Jr., D-Paris, and 10 other senators have lined up behind a $1.6 billion measure that would hike teacher salaries by 25 per cent and in-cresuse the state's share of the Foundation School Program from 75 to 85 per cent.

D1: Nolan Estes of Dallas, representing the state's school administrators, agreed with the teachers. "A state: that ranks 10th or 11th in the nation in wealth ough t to rank higher than 25th in what it pays its teachers," he said.

Es tes, however, was speaking in favor of a $997 million bill by Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, that would raise teacher pay by 21 per cent.

A growing number of businesses, municipal agen-cies and individuals with a financial stake in the weather are turning to private meteorologists to sup-plement the forecasts provided by the National Weather Service.

No one knows exactly how many private weather services are operating around the country. The American Meteorological Society lists 70 companies in its professional directory and that doesn't count forecasters on the staffs of large corporations, airlines, etc.

The private services work from the same information that is available to government forecasters. In fact, most of the information which the private forecasters use is provided by the government from its satellite, radar and other observations.

"They (the private services) really take over where the National Weather Service leaves off," said Dr. Kenneth C. Spengler, executive director of the meteorological society. "A private service will tailor-make its forecast for a client."

The recent cold wave has put the weather - and the private services - in the spotlight. "People are waking up to the fact that the weather is doggone important," said Spengler.

One of the best-known of the private forecasting operations is Weather Services Corp. of Bedford, Mass. "We work with individual clients who have a weather service problem," said company president John Wallace, whose annual fees run from the "hundreds up to the thousands," depending on the type and frequency of service provided.

Clients of Wallace and other forecasters include commodity brokers who want to know whether to buy or sell; airlines concerned about the routes their pilots will fly; utilities preparing for increased fuel demands in times of cold weather; ski resorts dependent on the weather for business, and radio and television stations looking for detailed predictions.

Are the private weather services more accurate? "It's hard to say," replied Wallace, "Weather is not an exact science. We make our goofs."

Dr. Duane Cooley of the weather service said the private meteorologists "do a different kind of forecasting." He added: "They can concentrate on one customer and update their forecast, call the customer and notify them of the latest information. "The National Weather Service has to deal with the public as a whole ... and to provide for general groups of users such as the farmers in a state.

The weather service has 52 full forecast offices which put out forecasts for one state or zones that can cover several states. In addition, there are 250 local offices making more detailed forecasts.

How accurate are the forecasts? Cooley cited rain predictions, saying that if the weather service says there is a 50 per cent or greater probability of rain, it's considered a rain forecast. Fifty per cent or less is considered a no-rain forecast. On that basis, he said, the weather service is about 85 per cent correct over the nation as a whole when it comes to 12 to 24hour forecasts.

Acupuncture now used in treatment of pets

SINGAPORE (AP) - If the ancient Chinese medical art of acupuncture is good enough for modern man, it's good enough for man's best friend. So says veterinarian James Tan, who has used acupuncture needles to treat ailing pets.

"Veterinary acupuncture is similar to acupunc-ture on human beings. The disadvantage is that animals cannot communicate and tell you where it's hurting." said Tan.

"People here are skeptical about acupuncture for animals because it's something new to them."

Tan says he has experimented on nine four-legged patients.

"I've only tried it out on cats and dogs, but would love to try it on horses if I get a chance ... I have seen it succeed where Western medicine had failed."

WASHINGTON-Here's how area House members were recorded on major roll call votes Feb. 24 through Mar. 2.

ETHICS CODE-Rejected, 79 for and 344 against, an amendment striking from the new ethics code a ned to take provision limiting the outside income a House member can receive. Those voting against the of a jump rice index amendment supported the limitation, which says a e. Traders

House member can earn no more than 15 per cent of the most e, rose 11/s his salary in outside "earned income." Presently company there is no limitation.

The 15 per cent limit was a key part of the overall ethics code later adopted by the full House on a nearunanimous vote. The code, embodied in H Res 287, applies only to House members. A similar code is under consideration in the Senate.

The new code also requires detailed public reporting of outside income and gifts, bans official travel by lame-duck congressmen, prohibits members from having privately financed office "slush funds," and restricts the use of free-mailing privileges during election periods.

The 15 per cent restriction applies only to earned income from second jobs and excludes "unearned income" such as from stock dividends. This distinction was cited by many of the 79 members voting to strike the provision. "If the genuine concern here is for integrity, then all outside income regardless of source should be eliminated," said Rep. Mario Biaggi (D-N.Y.), a supporter of the amendment.

Opponents of the amendment said a congressman who receives "earned income" from a law practice or some other job often is perceived by the public as "cashing in" on his status as a congressman. Income from stocks, they argued, presents much less potential for real or apparent conflict-of-interest, for although it is not limited it must be fully disclosed to constituents under the new ethics code.

Reps. Samuel Hail (D-1), James Collins (R-3), Ray Roberts (D-4), Jack Brooks (D-9), John Young (D-14), Omar Burleson (D-17), Robert Krueger (D-21) and Dale Milford (D-24) voted "yea."

Reps. Charles Wilson (D-2), Jim Mattox (D-5), Bill Archer (R-7), Bob Eckhardt (D-8), Jake Pickle (D-10), W. R. Poage (D-11), James Wright (D-12), Jack Hightower (D-13), Kika de la Garza (D-15), Richard White (D-16), Barbara Jordan (D-18), George Mahon (D-19), Bob Gammage (D-22) and Abraham (D-23) voted "nay."

Reps. Okin Teagun (D-16) and Henery Gonzales (D-20) did not vote

ETHICS CODE-Rejected, 187 for and 235 against, an amendment to prevent the new ethics code from outlawing the "slush fund" office accounts that an estimated 40 per cent of the members maintain. Defeat of the amendment left intact the abolition of such accounts. The amendment was proposed to the new ethics code, later adopted by the House (see above vote).

Today day Award winner dies

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Jim Metcalf, winner of a Peabody Award in 1976 for his weekly New Orleans television program, "A Sunday Journal," died Tuesday night, a year after he was stricken with cancer.

Metcalf began the half-hour program in 1972. It usually had features of the New Orleans area and Louisiana, along with his own poetry and commentary.

The Peabody is one of the highest awards in broadcast journalism.

In addition to his television work, Metcalf had three volumes of poetry published. A native of Texas, he worked in that state more than a decade before coming to New Orleans as a news anchorman in 1966.

Metcalf, whose age was not immediately available, had not produced the Sunday Journal for the past six months.

EAGLE RIVER, Alaska - Dale and Ruth Briggs still live in the log home here that Briggs built when the couple came north from Kansas in 1948, drawn by the mystique of Alaska and the promise of free land.

"When we first came," Ruth Briggs said the other day, "we were without electricity. We hauled our own water. There were no modern conveniences.

"Believe me, it was not easy. I still say you can't live off the land here. You really had to work and you had to have some means of support. Dale worked at the local army base. You couldn't just go out in the back yard and shoot a moose.

"At my age, I wouldn't do it again. But I've never been sorry. It was worth it. But free? Don't you believe

Hardly a day goes by that letters are not delivered to state and federal land offices in Anchorage from people in the lower 48 states looking for a new and simpler life in what they imagine to be the "last frontier."

Chuck Albrecht, an information officer for the Alaska Division of Lands, pawed through a stack of mail on his desk last week, found a typical letter and handed it to a visitor. "We got 25,000 like it last year," he said.

The letter, both poignant and hopeful, was directed to Gov. Jay Hammond by a man named Kenneth D. Ryan.

'Several months ago I left my home in South Dakota to embark on an adventure," Ryan wrote. "I fulfilled a lifelong dream and came to Alaska...(but) I find it impossible to buy or lease land in Alaska.

"It is incomprehensible that there is 576,000 square miles of wildnerness out there and I have found it impossible to secure a mere five acres for the purpose of building a cabin. Have I missed something?"

To Ryan and everybody else who writes, the response is brutally frank': There is no free land in Alaska, and what is for sale is not cheap.

Incredible as it might seem, Alaska, which contains one-sixth of the land mass of the United States and is bigger than California, Texas and Montana combined, is land poor.

"Homesteading in Alaska: A Thing of the Past" reads the title of a onepage notice routinely sent by the federal Bureau of Land Management to those who inquire.

"...Land in Alaska is not available for settlement purposes," it reads. 'The Bureau of Land Management does not anticipate that land will be available for settlement purposes in the near future."

Behind the scarcity of land for settlement is the fact that Alaska now is undergoing a major land ownership shuffle involving both the state and federal governments and the state's native corporations.

Meanwhile, government programs to transfer lands to private owners have been suspended.

Before Alaska became a state in 1959, 99 per cent of the land here was in the hands of the federal government. But the new state was authorized to choose 103.3 million acres - a chunk bigger than California - from a total of more than 360 million, a laborious process that continues to this day.

The situation was further complicated by the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act of 1971, which granted 40 million acres to the state's Eskimos, Indians and Aleuts.

So far, the native groups have taken title to only 4 million acres.

Meanwhile, Congress is' trying to decide which 80 million acres it will take under the same act to add to the national parks, forests, wildlife refuges and wild and scenic river systems in the state.

With passage of the native claims act, an earlier Interior Department order instituting a freeze on federal lands in the state was revoked.

But the only land left for homesteading was "really rotten." according to Kerry Cartier of the Bureau of Land Management.

LION PAUL MURRAY, left, doesn't miss a bet in selling tickets to the Downtown Lions Club's Pancake Jamboree, scheduled March 19, as he exchanges tickets for dollars with Bill Larsen of the Pop-Up Toastmasters Club, who presented a program at Wednesday's Lions Club meeting. Murray is leading the field in advance ticket sales.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is it possible that someone could have a heart attack without knowing it? I thought there was just no way a heart attack could pass unnoticed. But my uncle thinks that maybe he had one some eight months ago and simply did not pay attention to it at the time.-Frieda G.

Dear Frieda: You can indeed have a heart attack and not know it-a small one, of course. And it is thought that anywhere from 20 to 60 per cent of all heart attacks go unrecognized by the patient or the doctor or both.

There is a very interesting study that has just been completed by Dr. Jack Medalie of Tel-Aviv University and U. Goldbourt of the National Heart and Lung Institute. They followed 9,509 healthy adults 40 years old or more for five years. Each year, there were, on the average, 3.6 heart attacks per 1,000 people that went unrecognized at the time and 5.3 per 1,000 recognized attacks.

The researchers then kept track of the whole group

Risk factors connected with the silent attacks included cigarette smoking, high blood pressure and blood vessel disease. Cholesterol didn't seem to play a significant role, even though it is considered an important factor in the more serious attacks.

Meanwhile, I hope that your uncle has been carefully checked by a doctor to see if he has any condition that should be attended to.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My doctor says that I am "obese." He gave me a diet, which is hard for me to follow, and told me I needed some exercise. I don't know what kind, and I'm afraid to try because I am so heavy. What can you suggest ?-P.Q

Dear P.Q.: After a thorough medical checkup and a clean bill of health, it may help to attend a diet group

Somehow, the close contact with other people who are struggling with weight does what nothing else can do to keep morale up and weight going down. In your case, I would suggest you search for a group like The Diet Workshop, Weight Watchers, TOPS, or Eaters Anonymous. Part of the Workshop program is to teach some simple exercises. These are done while you remain seated in your chair so that there is a minimum of stress and strain. Once you have lost enough weight to feel confident, you might find a program from my new book, "Doctor Solomon's Proven Master Plan for Total Body Fitness and Maintenance" (Putnam). You are doing a very good thing for yourself, and exercise will help you trim down as you slim down.

Bartenders get social training

By GORDON HANSON

FARGO, N.D. (AP) - Got a problem? Don't know where to turn? See a Fargo bartender or hairdresser. They may offer you more than booze and beauty and tell you where you can get help. Some area bartenders and beauticians — daily recipients of woe and worry from troubled customers - are being groomed to help patrons find ways to deal with life's challenges.

Workshops for barkeeps and beauticians are being held because they "are in unique professions to promote mental health and prevent mental illness." says Lois Quam, publicity director for the Cass County Mental Health Association, a workshop cosponsor.

'Patrons have found that bartenders are willing listeners who don't make damning judgments when they hear of a person's problems," she says.

Seventy beauty college students recently com-pleted a workshop, called "Shampoo, Set and Sympathy," to help guide women who don't know where to turn with their troubles.

"What we're trying to do is train them to be good listeners, and to recognize people in trouble and inform them as to where mental health resources are available" in such problem areas as family, job and alcoholism, says Mrs. Quam. "This is for anybody with problems.

Workshops consist in part of role playing so that participants might learn how to react to a client who. for example, suddenly cries because of a heavy burden, she says.

TPW leader prefers other side

By PATSY GORDON

For years, Tricia Shelton, former public affairs director for KMID-TV, put people of the Permian Basin on edge with her "on the spot, off the cuff" interviewing.

When it became her time to answer questions for this column, according to Shelton, "Never again will I tell people there's nothing to it. It blows my mind. I'm used to being on the other side.

The "temporarily retired" communicator assumed presidency of District 2 of Texas Press Women, Inc., in January 1976. She has/been a member since 1975.

As district president, she will serve as a board member at the TPW state convention to be held March 25-27 in Wichita Falls. Since she is state contest director, she also will be in charge of awards presentation the night of March 26.

Working with state conventions is nothing new to Shelton because she planned TPW state programs for the convention held in Midland in 1975.

In regard to advantages of belonging to the group of professional communicators, Shelton said, "You have an association with others in your field, and through the contest the achievements of members are recognized.'

Other advantages she pointed out included a chance to "discuss the same problems shared in communications and to find out how other members worked out these problems.'

She joined TPW for the "professional enrichment I hope to get and to communicate with other women in the communications media.'

The hardest part about being state contest director, said Shelton, is "knowing who won and not being able to tell." And believe me, Shelton will not tell.

She pointed out, however, that the "contest is not the only important reason for being a member. Contacts / you make are also important. The contest is an ego trip, admittedly, but it is nice to know you can shine above others. This whole thing in media is competition...keeps you on your toes.

Shelton, who was a news reporter at KMID four years before being promoted to public affairs director, worked in the traffic department at WBAP in Fort Worth, now KXAS, before moving to Midland.

She earned a BFA degree in radio, TV and film from Texas Christian University in 1968. But she was deterred from television for a while because her husband, Scott, was in law school at the time and "I was determined I had to make a living and television at that time was no way to make a living. So I worked in the admissions office at The University of Texas-Austin," where Scott was a student.

Shelton "always wanted to work in television. I started out in drama, but switched to television.

Shelton left her job with KMID to 'spend time with my two children. I miss the involvement and public contact."

The communicator shares the views of most of the members of TPW that censorship is wrong and she mentioned the recent jailing of the publisher of Hustler Magazine. "I personally feel the magazine is obscene, but that has nothing to do with the publisher's right to publish it. No one is forced to read it if they don't want to Shelton urges all District 2 members to plan 'to attend the Wichita Falls session. "Through the convention, experts in various com-munication fields are brought in to speak and through this new ideas can be brought to the media. It's the only time all members in the state can get together and have a chance to vote on membership requirements or policies of the organization. And it's a time to get to know other others around the state in the communication field.

She is a member of the board of directors of the American Cancer Society, Midland chapter, and the Permian Basin Planned Parenthood, Inc., and is corresponding secretary for Lawyers' Wives, secretaryreporter for Chi Omega alumnae and assistant director to the Woman's Club for Junior Woman's Club.

Other officers of District 2 are Luanna Crow, first vice president; Sarah Crowe, second vice president; and Patsy Gordon, treasurer, all of Midland, and Beverly Boase of Monahans, secretary. The group meets six times yearly.

Any Midland or area women communicators interested in joining can contact Shelton at 683-6437.

Spring seal hunt generates controversy from animal lovers

By MICHAEL LAVOI Special to The Washington Post

OTTAWA - Margaret Trudeau, wife of the Canadian prime minister, showed up in Washington wear- dustries. On the way home, she told a for food. They consider seal flippers as something of reporter she likes wearing animal skins because they look nice and it's good for the country's fur industry.

'But I would never wear a baby seal," Mrs. Trudeau added, casting her lot with the animal lovers and conservationists in the emotional and highly-publicized annual feud over the slaughter of newborn Harp seals off Canada's east coast.

The six-week seal hunt is scheduled to begin Saturday amid sinister talk of blackmail and sabotage as opponents in North America and Europe try to shame the Canadian government, with bad publicity and big money, into calling the whole thing off.

But the government says it will not give in to the animal lovers and has even increased the quota for this year's hunt by one-third to 170,000 seal pelts.

The seal hunt is denounced every year in graphic, emotional terms by animal lovers who call it barbarous and wasteful. They tell grisly stories of baby seals being skinned alive while bleating mothers try to protect their young. The fishermen who kill the creatures and fisheries authorities say this is

Murderer serving term wants to donate organ while alive

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old man who is in Rutland, Vt., doing 30 years to life for second degree murder. I killed a 15-year-old girl. No reason. I just went off my rocker.

Now the problem: I read in your column that a lot of people need kidneys. I know that kidneys have been transplanted successfully, and I want you to put me in touch with someone who needs one so I can donate one of mine. I don't mean after I'm dead. I mean right now. I know a person can live with only one kidney so if I could give one of mine now maybe I could sleep better

I realize I can't bring back that poor little girl whose life I took, but I could give some other person life. It won't balance the scales, but it would give some meaning to my life, which is practically useless now

I'm not very religious, but God knows this is a sincere request. Can you help me get it granted, Abby ?- -- George H.

COLLEGE STATION-Credit customers have a system for settling billing disputes-but understanding how it works is a key to its success, says Mrs. Linda McCormack, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The second s

The procedure was created by the Fair Credit Billing Act of October 28, 1975-which applies only to "open end" credit plans extended by use of a credit card.

It involves most types of revolving credit, including department store charge accounts-and it also includes line-of-credit plans such as overdraft checking, the specialist explained.

The Act does not apply to installment loans or purchases (such as cars or homes) which must be paid according to a set schedule of installments, she added.

Under the Act, in case of errors or inquiries about a billing statement, a customer has to send a written notice of a billing error to the creditor. The written notice must reach the creditor whithin 60 days after the first billing statement containing the error was mailed to the customer's current address, Mrs. McCormack said.

A customer may withhold payment of the amount in dispute pending the investigation; however, amounts not in dispute must be paid as normally. required.

"Do not write on the bill, but on a separate sheet of paper. Include your name and account number, a description of the error and an explanation why you believe it is in information you think will help the error-along with the dollar amount creditor to identify you or the rerson

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. - Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Williams of Oklahoma City, formerly of Midland, Tex., announce the engagement of their daughter, Judy Ann, to Robert Alexander "Lex" Hoos, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Paul Hoos of Calgary, Alrta, Canada.

Miss Williams is a dietary student at Southern Alberta Institute of Technology in Calgary. Her fiance is employed by Woodwards Department Store in Calgary.

The wedding will be held June 18 in Grace Lutheran Church in Calgary. The couple plans to reside in Calgary.

Restroom labeling deceiving

By ERMA BOMBECK

AT WIT'S END

The American people can - and do - put up with a lot of inconsistencies. They live in hope that someday there will be a standard battery sold that will fit everything from a camera to an electric football game . . . a one-size-fits-all sweeper bag . . . or a regulation bulb that will plug into any string of Christmas tree lights. One of the things, however, that they are becoming quite militant about are the inconsistencies in labeling restrooms. This is clearly something that has gotten out of hand in this country with each business trying to outdo the other one in cleverness.

Believe me when I say the most pathetic sight I ever saw in my life was a farsighted woman with her nose pressed against a restroom door, following the outline of a little figure in a hooped skirt.

The restaurants were the first to get cute. In keeping with their decor, they decided to label their restroom door with the appropriate names for women and men. Thus you had Senors-Senoritas, Monsieurs ----Madames, Cowboys - Cowgirls, Chiefs - Squaws, and Tarzan and Jane.

Some of the more sophisticated business came up with fictional characters like Samson and Delilah, Romeo and Juliet, and Scarlet and Rhett. As I said to my husband one night, "You've been to the restroom. Give me a hint. What am I looking for?

"Mine was called 'General,"' he said

"Terrific ! I'll try for Motors." The cutesies we could have lived with, but in recent years they've added a new dimension — the animal kingdom. Finding your restroom is like a romp through Disneyland. I have literally lurked behind potted faked plants waiting to see who were the bucks and we were the does... the heifers and the steers, the stallions and the mares, the chicks or the chicklets, the pointers or the setters.

The other night, a woman rushed frantically back to her table and said. Here's your dime back and let's go.

"I thought you wanted to use the restroom," said her husband, puzzled

"And I thought you had to go to LA to see the Rams, but that's before I found out I was a Ewe and that Rams don't need change, and let's get out of here and I'll tell you about it on the way home.

NEW YORK (AP) - Women investing in the stock market tend to make the same mistakes over and over again, says Myrna Liebowitz, president of the Women Stockbrokers Association

"It's easy to make mistakes in the stock market and an intelligent investor will profit by the experiences of others," she adds. Miss Liebowitz, who is with Wall Street's Herzfeld and Stern, lists these common mistakes made by investors:

-Taking stock tips given to them by friends and acquaintances too seriously and buying their recomthorough inhendat without

-Putting too much money in the stock market, without an adequate cash reserve in the bank for emergencies.

-Not having a good rapport with the stockbroker on the investment plan or philosophy of the investor.

-Buying and selling, like a professional trader, too often. It's virtually impossible for an amateur who buys and sells every week or month to make anything but losses, says Miss Liebowitz.

-Allowing emotions to control selling. Many investors refuse to admit that they made a mistake buying a stock and hold on to it despite tremendous losses and no future to the stock.

-Buying stocks and putting them away, without re-evaluating them every year because of changes in personal situation, in the company or in the economy

-Trying to buy a stock to get rich overnight.

AUSTIN, Tex.(AP) - It might or might not violate his no-new-taxes policy, but a bill allowing cities to increase their hotel occupancy taxes should be on its way to Gov. Dolph Briscoe's desk today.

House members expected to take a final vote on the Senate-passed bill, which they advanced Wednesday, 82-56.

The bill allows city councils to raise hotel occupancy taxes from three to four per cent and designate a penny on the dollar to tourist and convention. advertising.

"This is a selfish private interest bill introduced by the Republican senator from Dallas (Ike Harris) for the benefit of the motel and hotel chains. . .Let's stand up and be men and say no new taxes on people when they travel in this state," Hollowell said.

"Anybody who believes in local option can believe in Senate Bill 333." said sponsoring Rep. Chris Semos, D-Dallas.

He denied the bill imposed no new taxes and said every dollar spent on tourist promotion returns $85 in tourist spending. The House also passed and sent to the Senate, 111-26, a bill limiting natural gas contracts that require purchasers to pay for specific quantities of gas, even when they cannot use it all.

The measure gives buyers three years to make up shortfalls in their gas purchases and limits the take-orpay provisions to 80 per cent of a producer's deliverable gas.

Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. has said in public testimony that there have been months when take-or-pay provisions added 10 cents per 1,000 cubic feet to its costs, which are passed on to consumers.

In other action, the House: -Passed to the Senate a bill imposing a $1 surcharge on traffic tickets and criminal convictions to finance the State Commission for Law Enforcement Training and Standards.

-Tentatively approved a bill giving the prison system authority to furlough inmates for medical treatment, funerals of close relatives and visits to the bedsides of critically ill family members.

Insurance men unhappy at state board figures

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - A 1.7 per coverage, for which the industry has cent increase in building insurance rates recommended by State Insurance Board staffers was described as a joke today by an industry spokesman.

Tom B. Lee, general manager of the Texas Insurance Advisory Association, made the statement after the staff laid out its proposals during a public hearing.

Insurance companies seek an average increase of 6.6 per cent for all lines of coverage combined.

For most Texans who own houses, the key category is homeowners Feathers make ticklish problem Circles: 2000 Years of North American Indian Art" discovered during efforts to transport the famous exhibition from London to Kansas City.

The eagle feathers adorning many objects in the exhibition posed a particularly delicate problem, said Ralph T. Coe, director of the Nelson Gallery of Art-Atkins Museum of Fine Arts, where the show will open April 16.

"There is a law forbidding the sale or trading of objects containing migratory bird feathers, including eagle feathers. Beyond the obvious usage of feathers in Indian headdresses and warbonnets, other parts of the eagle show up in other applications," Coe said.

"All I could think of was the prospect of a bunch of U.S. marshals coming in and impounding loans from the British Museum and other lenders."

A series of laws enacted since 1940 and aimed at conserving certain migratory birds, restrict or prohibit the sale or possession of feathers or any other body parts of birds.

While American Indians may possess and exchange - but not sell - objects bearing eagle feathers, non-Indians without special permits are liable for prosecution. Recent interpretations of the laws have made it virtually impossible for non-Indians legally to possess Indian feather artifacts of any age without a government permit. Other laws regulate the import and export of such items, and illegally imported objects containing body parts of certain endangered species may be impounded. Since 1971, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service - charged with enforcing these laws - has confiscated toy yaks, a crocodile foot, an armadillo guitar and a stuffed Andean condor, among other items.

In his international search for the "Sacred Circles" exhibition. Coe three years ago contacted the service about feathery objects expected to be transported in conjunction with showings in London and Kansas City. The service's law enforcement division located in Independence, Mo., pledged cooperation but requested certain conditions.

"An official assured me the last thing the government wanted to do was interfere with an important international exhibition," Coe said. "At the same time, he reminded me there were legal considerations to reckon with."

At first, the Fish and Wildlife Service wanted a complete list of everything in the exhibit containing an eagle feather or any other body part. Historically, Indians used many parts of the eagle, including feathers for decoration, talons for amulets - or charms - wingbones for whistles and the down for ceremonial sprinkling.

Coe explained that such an inventory would be likely to take years to compile. Many objects were found in corners and back rooms of museums and

Turkey 'stirs up' goodness, nutrition in Chinese recipe

Surprise! There are a lot more ways to fix turkey than by roasting it in the oven. Now you can buy turkey parts: drumsticks, wings or thighs to use in exciting new receipes.

PAGE 2D

This time turkey stirs up goodness in a Chinese recipe that combines cut-up turkey drumsticks, broccoli and rice. Everything is "stir-fried" or mixed (in a wok - the Chinese skillet, or your own large frying pan.) That way, each ingredient actually enhances the flavor of the others, creating a magnificent harmony of taste, texture, color and aroma.

As exotic as it looks, "Stir-Fried Turkey" is surprisingly easy to prepare. Everything but the orange-flavored rice is stir-fried right in the wok. Altogether, it takes less than an hour.

Besides convenience, there are many other advantages to this delicious Chinese dish:

"Stir-Fried Turkey" aids in economizing. Turkey, broccoli and rice are all relatively inexpensive. Turkey drumsticks are one of the most inexpensive parts of the most inexpensive meat you can buy!

This Chinese dish is full of nutrition. Turkey ranks higher in protein and lower in fat than any other popular red meat or poultry. Vegetables provide a rich supply of vitamins and minerals and now more than 70 per cent of the rice sold in the U.S. is enriched with essential nutrients.

Complete your Chinese meal with a few shakes of soy sauce for flavoring, a side dish of egg rolls and a pot of brewed tea, the favorite Chinese beverage. For desert, we suggest vanilla ice cream rolled in coconut, served with fortune cookies of course.

"Stir-Fried Turkey" Is a delicious, nutritious and economical meal all rolled, or rather "stirred" into one.

STIR-FRIED TURKEY

2 large turkey drumsticks, fresh or frozen (about 2 1/2 lbs.)

2 teaspoon cornstarch

- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 2 tablespoons dry white wine
- ¼ teaspoon MSG
- 1 cup vegetable or corn oil 4 cups chopped, fresh broccoli
- 1/2 cup turkey or chicken broth

1 tablespoon cornstarch mixed with 2 tablespoons water

If the drumsticks are frozen, completely defrost in your refrigerator for about 24 hours. Taking a sharp knife, remove the skin and cut the turkey meat away from the bone. Be sure to remove the small bones and tendons which run lenthwise on the leg. Cut the meat into bite-size pieces and put in a mixing bowl. This should take about 15 minutes and will give you about 2 cups of meat. Discard the bones and skin or use them for soup.

"Stir-Fried Turkey" is a nutritious economical meal all rolled, or stirred, into one.

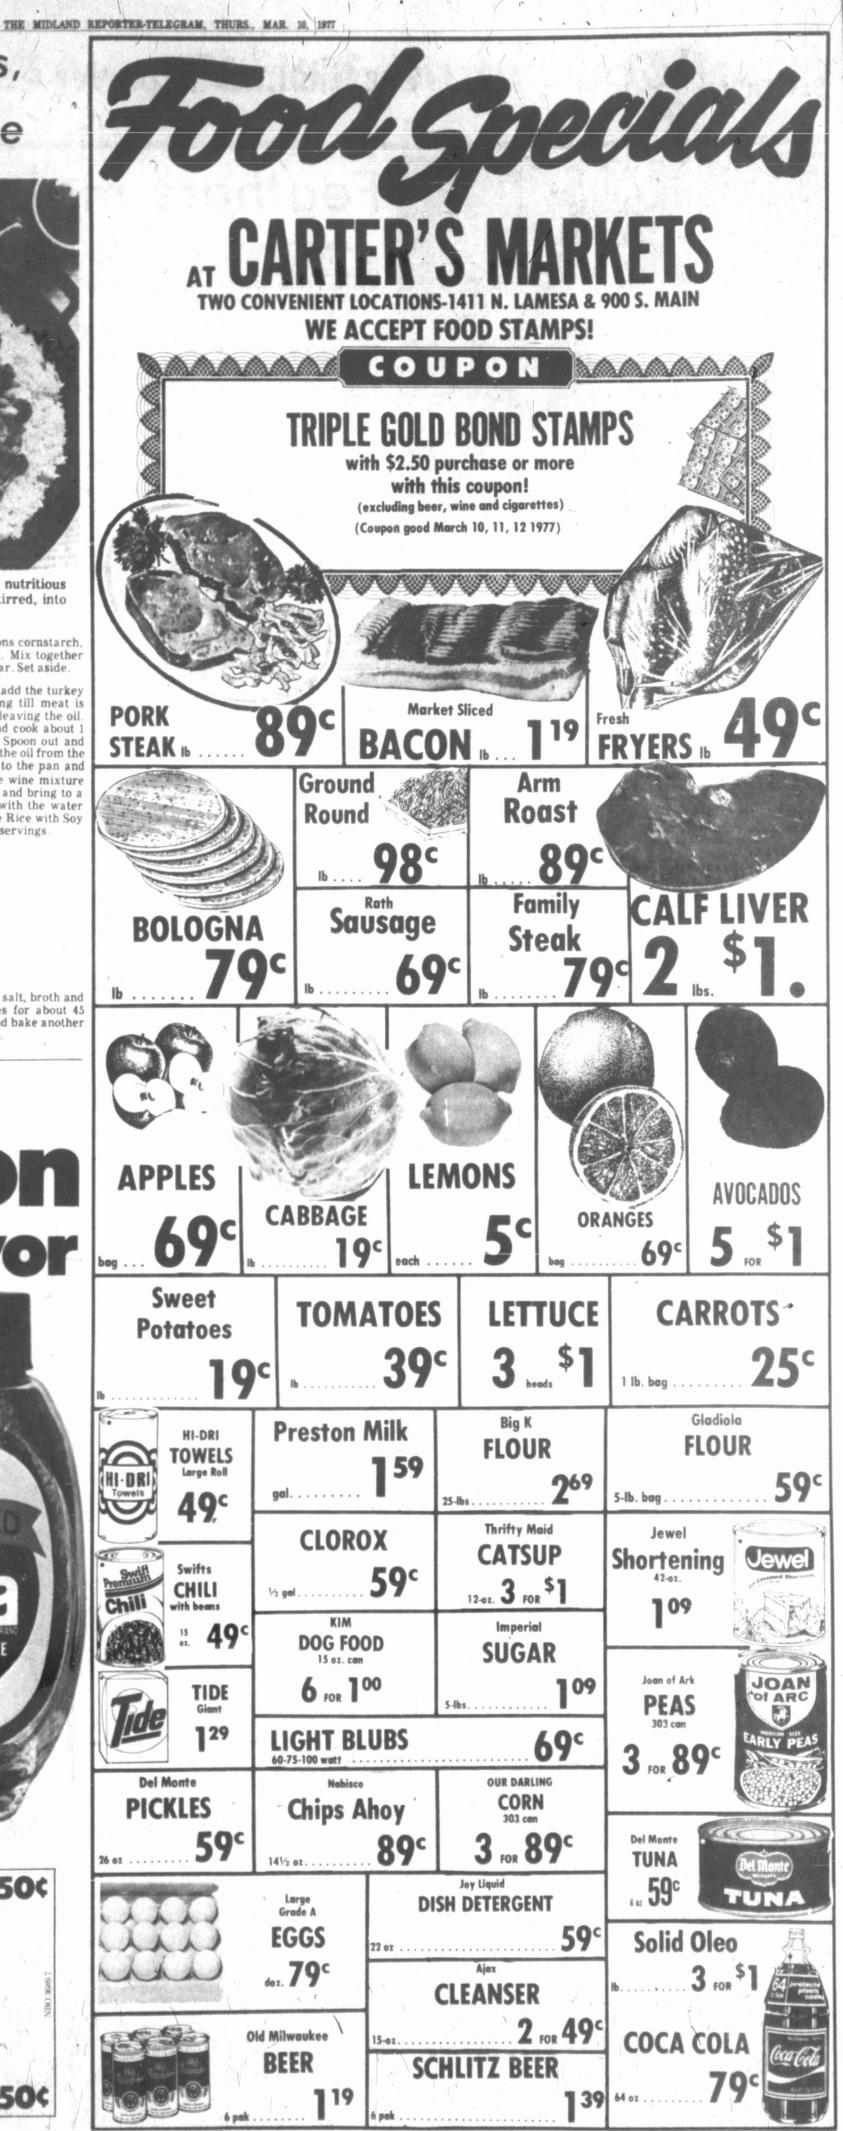

To the turkey meat, add 2 tablespoons cornstarch, salt and ½ teaspoon sugar. Set aside. Mix together the wine, MSG, and 1 ½ teaspoons sugar. Set aside.

In a wok or skillet heat the oil and add the turkey pieces. Cook about 2 minutes. stirring till meat is browned, then spoon out the turkey, leaving the oil. Add the broccoli pieces to the pan and cook about 1 minute, stirring till lightly browned. Spoon out and drain. Pour out all but 1 tablespoon of the oil from the pan. Return the broccoli and turkey to the pan and cook stirring about 1 minute. Add the wine mixture and cook for 1 minute. Add the broth and bring to a boil. Blend in the cornstarch mixed with the water and bring to a boil. Serve over Orange Rice with Soy Sauce, Egg Rolls and hot tea. Yield: 4 servings.

Fast food sleuth tracks down guarded formulas for cooking

By MARIE BIANCO Newsday

Gloria Pitzer is a fast-food Sherlock Holmes. Her family can eat all the Arthur Treacher's Fish and Chips or Kentucky Fried Chicken or Arby's Roast Beef Sandwiches they want, because Mrs. Pitzer claims she has tracked down their secret formulas and makes them at home from scratch at a fraction of the cost.

"I honestly never liked to cook, but I did like to eat out," Mrs. Pitzer said. "My family of 7 ate_like 20, so it wasn't financially practical to have restaurant outings, or even fast-food outings, too often. I thought if I could make some of these dishes at home and they tasted like the real thing. I would be saving money and we would all be happy.'

Mrs. Pitzer, of Pearl Beach, Mich., has attempted to decipher many carefully guarded recipe secrets and to duplicate such commercially made, all-time kid favorites as Oreo cookies, Wonder bread, Reese's peanut butter cups and Dairy Queen frozen custard, in a table-top operation

"If you want to duplicate a recipe," Mrs. Pitzer said, "start questioning yourself about the food - what color is it, what's the texture like, how is it flavored, and how is it prepared? Sometimes you have to try over and over before you get just the right taste.

With the precision of a laboratory chemist, Mrs. Pitzer develops her recipes right in her own kitchen. Starting with a recipe that sounds similar to the dish she wants to duplicate, she experiments and keeps a log of each attempt and how it turns out, along with comments from her family and friends.

Her most difficult challenge was copying Arthur Treacher's recipe for fish batter, and her biggest surprise was discovering it was a simple recipe using only two ingredients club soda and pancake mix.

"Don't be surprised to hearn that many restaurants rely on pre-packaged mixes to which they add their own special touch. They must do this so that the profits are not eaten up by the individual preparations and ingredients of a difficult dish," she added.

"We are also influenced by famous brand names that condition us with their promotion and advertising into accepting them as secret recipes. Oreo cookies, for example, is probably the best example of this. Separate the filling from the cookies until you have enough filling to mix it up in a bowl. This is the way to discover the basic ingredients. In a single cookie, it's hard to tell what it's made of, but in a bowl by itself you'll be quite surprised — just a couple of ingredients and practically no flavor-

In the late 1960s Family Circle

Magazine printed a recipe they called Kentucky Fried Chicken. The big stumper here was an ingredient call-ing for two teaspoons of fine herbs. What herbs? What proportion? After scouting the grocery aisles, she tried a salad dressing mix that is consistent from package to package. This, according to Mrs. Pitzer, turned out to be the secret ingredient

Mrs. Pitzer has published these and more than 200 other recipes in a softcover cookbook called "Secret Restaurant Recipes Duplicated by Gloria Pitzer."

The cookbook is a spinoff of a newsletter she started writing several years ago. Its name was changed from the Cookbook Newsletter to the Homemaker's Newsletter when some subscribers, who didn't especially like to cook, enjoyed reading it for its household hints and folksy humor.

The monthly newsletter was revamped, and now about half is devoted to recipes, with the rest given over to cartoons, anecdotes and practical advice.

The price for a subscription to National Homemaker's Newsletter is $6 for one year. Currently the number of subscribers is close to 5,000.

Recently Mrs. Pitzer hired her first full-time employee, her husband Paul, who left a job as an account executive for a local sign company after 20 years. Before this most of the stuffing and stamping was done by her son Bill, who is away now at college, and her son Mike, who is working as an ar-

Her daughters, Debbie, Laurie and Cheryl, help out after school. And the person who taught her to cook, her mother, occasionally lends a hand.

Here are some of Gloria Pitzer's recipes, adapted by the Newsday kitchen.

Arthur Treacher's fish and chips Gloria Pitzer's version

3 pounds fish fillets 1 cup buttermilk 1 lemon, sliced Flour for dredging 2 cups pancake mix 21-2 cups club soda 24 ounces vegetable oil for frying pound frozen cottage-sliced potatoes 1. Cut fillets in half to make triangle shape. Cover with buttermilk and sliced lemon and refrigerate for 2 hours. 2. Remove fillets from buttermilk and discard lemon slices. Dredge fish in flour and let dry for a few minutes.

3. Combine pancake mix and club soda to the consistency of buttermilk. 4. Heat oil in heavy skillet until hot.

Dip floured fillets in batter and let excess drip off. Fry four minutes on each side. Drain on toweling. To keep fish warm until ready to serve, arrange on cookie sheet in a single layer place in 250 degree oven until all fish is fried. 5. Thaw frozen potatoes for about five minutes. Fry until brown. Serves small pieces 2 packages (.6 ounce) Italian salad dressing mix 3 tablespoons flour 2 teaspoons salt 1-4 cup lemon juice 2 tablespoons butter, room temperature 11-2 cups pancake mix 1 teaspoon paprika 1-2 teaspoon sage 1-4 teaspoon pepper

1 cup milk 24 ounces vegetable oil for frying 1. Wipe chicken dry. Combine salad dressing mix, flour, lemon juice, salt and butter into a paste and coat chicken evenly. Stack pieces in a bowl; cover and refrigerate for several hours.

2. Combine pancake mix with spices. Dip chicken parts into milk and then into pancake mixture. Dust off excess.

3. Heat oil in large skillet and fry pieces until lightly browned, about four minutes on each side. Place chicken in shallow pan and spoon say remaining milk over pieces. Seal with foil. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Uncover, and bake 10 minutes at 400 degrees to crisp chicken. Baste with milk again. Serves six to eight.

1. Blend cookie ingrédients well and shape into a ball. Let stand 20 minutes.

2. Form dough into half-inch balls and place on greased cookie sheets. Flatten each with smooth bottom of a drinking glass greased once and dipped into the beverage mix powder each time.

3. Bake in a 400-degree oven for eight minutes. Remove cookies at once and immediately flatten with the back of a spatula. Let cool 20 minutes. Makes about 100 cookies.

4. For filling, place gelatin in a heatproof cup. Add cold water, stir well and put it in pan of hot water until mixture clears and gelatin is softened.

5. Beat vegetable shortening until fluffy. Add sugar gradually and beat for about 10 minutes. Mix in vanilla. Beat in cooled gelatin mixture. The gelatin keeps the filling in place inside the cookies.

6. Spread about one tablespoon filling between two cookies. Press gently together so that filling comes to edges of cookies. Chill until set. Makes 50 cookies.

Craving an Oreo? Bake yours at home

By MARIE BIANCO The Washington Post

Arthur Treacher's fish and chips. For years the people at Arthur Treacher's have claimed their fish batter was a secret recipe and could not be made at home. Mrs. Pitzer has come up with a version that is close to the original but not quite. It tastes good, is fairly easy to make and the batter can be used for such things as shrimp or vegetables. Although her version may not look exactly the same (the Arthur Treacher folks use frozen fish cut by machine into triangle shapes; homemakers have to rely on whatever is plentiful at the fish market), it is crisp on the outside and moist on the inside. I paid $1.69 a pound for Boston scrod, enough to feed three to four people. At Arthur Treacher's, $1.59 buys two small pieces of fish and a handful of chips. Kentucky fried chicken. Gloria Pitzer's version of chicken "like the Colonel's" is based on the original recipe Harland Sanders developed many years ago when he first began selling fried chicken. The syndicate that bought the Colonel's franchise sued him when he described the chicken they were selling as "tasting like fried dough balls." The recipe given in the book has a nice coating but requires several hours of marinating, so it can't be described as "fast food." I found that baking it without the aluminium-foll covering produced crisper results, if you like it that way. Buying a bucket of chicken can be finger-lickin' expensive, and there are chicken bargains this week at supermarkets. Oreo cookies. The cookies do not resemble the original (the embossed design is missing), but the cookies are crisp and have a good chocolate flavor. The filling is perfect, sweet but not too sweet. But the price of ingredients, which include a cake mix and more than a pound of confectiner's sugar, plus the time involved, makes them cost the same as packaged Oreos.

Sara-Lee style cheesecake. A good imitation of the creamcheese-with-sour-cream-topping cake that everyone is supposed to like. Mrs. Pitzer's instructions for the crust were not clear and, like many of the directions in the book, expect the cook to have had some experience in the kitchen.

Reese's peanut butter cups. The ingredients call for chocolate, peanut butter and paraffin. Adding the paraffin to the chocolate dough does make it pour smoothly, but it isn't necessary. You can leave it out. Milk chocolate can be substituted for the semi-sweet chocolate bits. Some commercial peanut butters may be too salty, so you have a food processor blender you can make your own.

Dairy Queen's frozen custard. A rich, creamy, smooth version of this popular soft ice cream is made with a custard base and lots of whipped cream. It's expensive to make and, in terms of calories, it's expensive to eat.

COLLEGE STATION - A costsaving plan for grocery shopping? Impossible you say?

ing at all," she said.

It can be done, says Mrs. Mary Sweeten, a foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

'For economy, plan meals around the less expensive foods from each of the four food groups-the milk group, meat group, vegetable-fruit group and cereal-bakery products group," she advises.

She suggested some general tips to find good buys and cut an expensive food budget to a cost-saving plan.

"Compare prices at the store. Unit pricing, now used by many stores, allows cost comparison of a food in containers of different sizes and of various brands and grades.

"In unit pricing, the cost of a single unit such as an ounce, pound or quart of a food is shown, usually on the shelf just below the food. From the items that will meet your needs, choose the one with the lowest price per unit.

"To find the best buys among types and cuts of meat or among raw, frozen or canned vegetables, compare the cost of an amount needed for a family meal or the cost of the serving.

Another hint for the homemakerwatch for specials in the newspaper ads and at the store. Stock up on good buys for the family's likes if storage is available. But don't overbuy-waste "leaks" the budget away fast, she said.

"Cut cost when shopping for meat group foods by selecting the cuts, grades and types of meat, poultry and fish that provide the most cooked lean for the money spent. These give best return in nutrients for the food dollar. Consumers can set a top price limit for dinner meat or set an average amount as a goal, allowing for some higher and some lower cost items," she suggested.

Study the nutrition labeling commercially-prepared main dishes before replacing them with homeprepared dishes, this specialist advised.

"Frequently, commercially-prepared main dishes require less meat than a home recipe for the same

"When reading labels, commercial foods labeled primarily meat with gravy, meatballs and sauce and pork and dressing, are required to be only one-half meat, for example. Meat pies must be at least one-fourth meat. Foods labeled spaghetti with meatballs and sauce and lasagne with meat sauce must be at least one-eighth meat. Usually these convenience foods are more expensive than home-prepared ones containing the same amount of meat. Even so, if time is a major concern, they may be best.'

Usually gound beef, liver, chicken, turkey, many types of fish, dry beans, split peas and peanut butter are good meat group food buys, Mrs. Sweeten said

When shopping for meat, look for USDA grades on beef you buy. USDA prime, choice and good are the grades most often found in retail markets. Compared to choice, similar cuts of good grade beef contain more lean and usually cost less per serving, but they are not quite as juicy and flavorful. Prime beef is generally considered to have the best flavor, but contains less lean and is more expensive than other grades, she explained.

When shopping for vegetable-fruit group foods, compare the cost of the amount needed to serve the family. Certain fruits and vegetables, such as apples and carrots, are almost always economical whether fresh, frozen or canned. Others, such as avocados and strawberries are economical only in season or when supplies are bountiful. Look for good quality produce but limit purchases even at bargain prices to amounts that can be used while they are still good.

Eggs McMuffin with grits? Sooner than you think

MARIAN BURROS Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Whether "grits is" or "grits are," they are here to stay - at least for the next four years. A drug-store chain here now has them on its breakfast menu, so does the White House and Washington supermarkets have stocked up for the grits blitz.

Grillades a la grits? Mais oui. Egg McMuffin with grits? Sooner than you

True grits are formally known as hominy grits, and hominy comes from the Indian word "rockahominy." They, or it, starts out as corn. The corn kernels are boiled in a weak lye solution, then hulled, washed and dried. That makes hominy.

Coarsely ground hominy is grits. Today they come in two styles: regular and quick-cook. Real grits lovers say the regular kind that takes about 30 minutes to cook tastes eminently better. But whatever, if you liked Cream of Wheat when you were small, you'll probably love grits now, quick or not.

CHEESE AND GRITS (8 to 10 servings)

2 cups regular grits 11-2 quarts water 1 teaspoon salt 1 clove garlic, crushed 1-4 pound butter or margarine 4 eggs, slightly beaten

1-2 cup milk

12 ounces sharp cheddar cheese, grated

Salt and pepper to taste 1-2 teaspoon hot pepper sauce 1-2 cup sharp cheddar cheese, grated

Bring water to boil: slowly add grits and salt. Cook over low heat for 25 to 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. During last five minutes add garlic Stir butter into hot grits until it melts. Then add eggs, milk, twelve ounces cheese, salt and pepper to taste and hot pepper sauce. Place in greased 3quart casserole and sprinkle with onehalf cup cheese.

If desired, dish can be refrigerated at this point. To bake, return to room temperature and bake at 325 degrees for 45 to 50 minutes.

Note: For a lighter dish, eggs can be separated, the yolks added with the milk and cheese, the white beaten separately until soft peaks form and then folded into the dish at the end.

FRIED GRITS BALLS (Makes about 42)

2 cups water 1-2 teaspoon salt 1-2 cup quick-cooking grits 1 small onion 1 tablespoon butter 1 cup grated gruyere cheese 1-4 teaspoon cayenne pepper 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg Freshly ground black pepper to taste

2 eggs 11-2 teaspoons oil 3-4 cup fine dry bread crumbs

Oil for deep frying Bring salted water to boil. Add grits and return to boil. Cook, stirring occasionally for 3 to 5 minutes, until liquid is absorbed. Chill grits. Saute onion in the butter. Mash grits with a fork and combine with onion, cheese, cayenne, nutmeg and pepper. Shape mixture into balls. Beat eggs and oil together. Dip balls in egg mixture and then roll in bread crumbs. Fry in deep hot fat (375 degrees) until golden brown, about 2 minutes. GRITS AND SAUSAGE

(8 servings) 4 cups water 1 teaspoon salt 1 cup quick-cooking grits 1-2 cup cornmeal Black pepper to taste 1 pound pork sausage (see note) 4 tablespoons butter or more

Bring the water with salt to boil: add the grits and cook three to four minutes, stirring occasionally. Add cornmeal and pepper and mix well. Meanwhile cook the sausage until it loses its pink color, stirring to break up as it cooks. Drain sausage throughly and mix with grits mixture. Place in nine-inch-by-five-inch loaf pan and refrigerate overnight.

To serve, cut loaf in three-quarterinch slices and brown on both sides in hot butter

Students from Midland's two high schools, freshman school and three junior high schools are winners in the annual Student Art Festival currently under way at the Museum of the Southwest.

The annual festival, sponsored by the museum, the Midland public schools, the City Council of the Parent-Teacher Association and the Junior League of Midland, Inc., showcases the creativity of students in the city's public and private schools.

Work by students in secondary schools is on view in the museum's Turner Memorial Gallery, 1705 W. Missouri St., through March 20. Work by students in elementary schools will go on display March 22, continuing on view through early April.

Sixteen art works were selected as winners in the secondary division of the annual festival, with names of winning students announced at a luncheon in the museum Tuesday noon. They were:

GENERAL NEWS CLASSIFIED

Little-known underground city thrives at Houston

By NICHOLAS C. CHRISS The Los Angeles Times

HOUSTON - There is a curious world in this sprawling city that few visitors ever see and that most residents do not know exists, although it thrives in the heart of downtown Houston.

This world knows no change of season, has little sense of direction, thrives without sunlight, is virtually free of crime and is dark, silent and empty during the nights and weekends.

It is underground Houston, a subterranean city consisting of about six miles of tunnels and visited daily by more than 12,000 persons from the

In this catacomb world you can buy everything from tailor-made shirts to poor boy sandwiches. You can get a crisp, cold martini, octopus in oil and garlic, plants that have never seen daylight or a silver-plated 18th century water pipe. You can visit a sidewalk cafe or a Christian Science reading room or park your car in a garage.

There is no litter. There are no benches for loiterers or lovers.

You descend in an elevator from the lobby of one of 16 buildings, most of them owned by banks or energy corporations, and find yourself in a lighted world of shops and pedestrians

The labyrinth of corridors begins bustling in the morning when people pour out of the underground garages and walk to elevators bound for their offices. Some pause for breakfast. The crowds show up again for coffee breaks, and at noon they descend for lunch, or a walk, or to shop or simply to travel from one downtown building to another in the quickest and most convenient way.

In the evening this strange world is jammed again as downtown office workers flee to the garages to go home, or stop for a drink to wait out freeway traffic or meet a friend. By 8 or 9 o'clock, it is a dim and silent world.

It is also a unique world, un-publicized and unadvertised, and one of the strangest things about it is that the multimillion-dollar tunnel system remains virtually unknown except to those who seek relief there in the winter from the cold and rain and in the summer from Houston's heat and humidity.

Many other cities have buildings with large underground shopping plazas and parking garages, but apparently only in Houston have so many buildings been connected to form one big system for getting around downtown. What is known as Underground Atlanta, for example, is an old, restored area, mainly frequented by tourists, that was developed when the street level was moved up one story to put traffic above railroad tracks.

There is a certain mystery about Houston's underground world, in its notable lack of directions for strangers, its tunnels that scoot off in different directions.

Some of the underground city areas, such as the one beneath the 50story Shell Building, thus represent the wealth and the might of the corporations above.

The best bar and the fastest bartender in Houston's subterranean world are beneath the Shell building. where the drinkers line up three deep at lunch for "101s" - double martinis.

Elsewhere underground, there is a large barber shop where one can fi nd oilmen relaxing after trips to t he Middle East, their pockets still load ed with foreign money, getting the sir boots shined, their mustach es trimmed, their heads barbere d, chattering about hardships of li fe among the Arabs.

Bloodbath at base of incident

HIN EUGENE MEYER (C) 1977, The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - For four years. since the mass murder of seven Hanafi Muslims, the Tudor-style home here purchased for the group by basketball star Kareem Abdul-Jabbar has been an armed camp.

Virtually around the clock, at least one sentry armed with what appeared from the street to be a rifle paced back and forth in front of half a dozen tall flagpoles. Neighbors waiting at the corner bus stop in front of the house have reported seeing machete practice sessions on the lawn in recent weeks.

Wednesday, Abdul /Azziz, the 35year old son-in-law of Hanafi patriarch Hamaas Abdul Khaalis, e merged from the fortress to tell r eporters that "Head's will be chopped off, a killing room will be set up at 18'nai B'rith, and herads will be thrown cout of windows," if chemands were not imet.

The language of violence and the brandishing and use of machetes and guns were not alw ays the ways of the small group of Hanafi Muslims under Khaalis led by Hamaas Abdul Khaallis himself held hostages at B'nai B'rith headquarters here.

"Islam is not murdering others senselessly," he wrote in a booklet in 1972. "Look an/i See."

Khaalis' philosophy once promoted peace; his rhetoric toward the Black Muslim faith in which he had once believe could be dagger sharp. The ultimate expression of this view was contained in a letter he sent to the 57 temples of the Nation of Islam in December 1972.

Khaalis' letter branded Black Muslim leader Elijah Muhammad "a lying deceiver," guilty of "fooling and deceiving people - robbing them of their money, and besides that doom-ing them to Hell."

Less than a month after the letter was sent, there was a bloodbath at the Hanafi house while Khaalis was away shopping for groceries. Seven members of the group - ranging in age from 9 days to 25 years - were murdered.

Months later, seven Philadelphia Black Muslims were indicted for the crime, one step in a series of bizarre and often frightening events.

The trial lasted 13 weeks, the longest in Washington history, and included security measures virtually unprecedented in this city. A District of Columbia Superior Court room was specially rebuilt to accommodate the trial. The defendants were whisked in and out of the building from unknown locations. The fears, then, of the prosecutors, federal marshals and presiding Judge Leonard Braman were of Black Muslims who might come to the aid of the Muslims on trial. All deference and sympathy were extended to the family of Hamaas Abdul Khaalis. At one point in the trial the Black Muslim defendants asked Braman to excuse himself from the case because of the judge's Jewish faith. The judge refused.

The request of Braman occurred when the judge refused to declare a mistrial after Khaalis shouted at the defendants in front of the jury, "You killed my babies! You killed my babies and shot my women!" As a result of that outburst, however. Khaalis was held in contempt of court and fined $750.

The trial did not go well for the government or the Hanafis. Of six defendants during the first trial, one was acquitted outright by Braman when the government's key witness, an unindicted coconspirator, refused to testify. The witness, James Price, who had testified before a federal grand jury, was later murdered in Philadelphia's Holmesburg prison, where he was housed with other black Muslims.

Problems pervading movie on Mohammad

By KENNETH TURAN The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - "Mohammad, Messenger of God," the film that became an issue in Wednesday's hostage-taking groups of Hanafi Muslims, has taken eight years to reach the screen precisely because producer-dirctor Moustapha Akkad wanted desperately to avoid any possibility of disturbances.

Reached Wednesday in New York the 44-year-old Syrian-born, Hollywood-trained director said: "I am willing to show this movie to any Moslem and if they don't like it, I am willing to burn it. If there is any offense, I promise I will burn it."

Akkad said he had never heard of the Hanafi sect and claimed to have already shown "Mohammad" to approximately 10,000 Moslems, including Herbert Muhammed and Muhammad Ali, and "nobody objected."

The three-hour film, which was quickly pulled from its opening-day. showings in nine theaters in the New York and Los Angeles areas afterreports of the incidents in Washington, had run into similar trouble at its world premier in London last July.

Akkad was persuaded to change the film's title to "The Message" just 72 hours before its opening because of telephone threats to the theater.

The problem both in London and in the United States is that an orthodox interpreteation of the Koran strictly prohibits any pictorial representation of Mohammad, or even of his shadow. Anthony Quinn, the film's star, plays Hamza, the Prophet's uncle.

And even though the Prophet is not shown on the screen, reports from London say that Moslems in the audience react strongly at even the suggestion of his portrayal.

Akkad, who studied film at both USC and UCLA and apprenticed with Sam Peckinpah on the classic western, "Ride the High Country," first got the idea for this film, which he hoped would contribute to the understanding of his religion, in 1969.

He got approval from several Moslem countries, but not from conservative Saudi Arabia, which was upset at what it felt was exploitation of the Prophet. When Akkad consulted with Moslem authorities in Pakistan, a rumor that Charlton Heston was to play the prophet caused a series of street riots.

A year and a half was spent in Cairo preparing the screenplay in consultation with Al Azhar University, Islam's most important center of learning, which Akkad called "a kind of Vatican for the Moslem world." The script, which deals with the founding years of Islam, was translated into Arabic and approved, page by page, by religious authorities.

Filming began in southern Morocco, where $700,000 was spent on a replica of early Mecca. However, pressure from conservative religious elements forced a 3,000-mile move to Libya, which was friendly to the film because its principal financing came from that country and Kuwait.

Even in Libya, Akkad ran into problems with the 8,000 Moslems he used for extras in the battle scenes. First, none of them wanted to play the losing pagans. Then, when historical accuracy called for the Moslems to retreat after one fight, none of them wanted to do that, either.

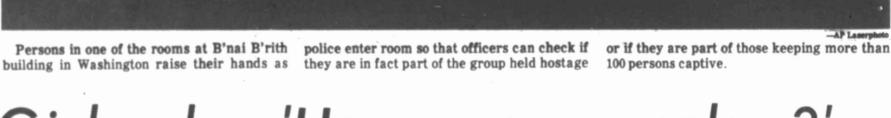

According to the film's publicists. nine previous films have been produced in Arabic dealing in some way with the life of the Prophet.

Instead, Kh s alis stressed themes of nonviolence and brotherhood. America should be a country, he wrote, "not loased on skin-power and gun-power.'

Americanas who are Christian, Jewish and Buddhist are, first of all, Americany, he wrote. "All men are brothers," wrote the Hanafi leader. Such pracific sentiments rang with Water flow, cost told

BIG SPRING --- Colorado River Municipal Water District reported it has delivered almost 286 billion gallons of water since the start of operations in 1952 to purchasers at a sale price of $68 million.

Deliveries came to 167 billion gallons to the member cities of Big Spring, Odessa and Snyder.

Midland, San Angelo and Stanton, which are customer cities, received 26.8 billion gallons.

The remaining gallons went to oil and industrial users, CRMWD said.

During the past 25 years Odessa paid an average of 23.98 cents per thousand gallons, Big Spring paid an average of 18.57 cents per thousand gallons and Snyder paid an average of 17.87 cents per thousand gallons. Midland, San Angelo and Stanton paid rates based on the charges to the three member cities, but CRMWD did not disclose exactly how much the average payment was.

During 1976 more than 19 billion gallons of water were delivered for a price of $6,315,140. The peak low for a day was 48 million gallons in July. The district said July is normally a heavy-demand month, but wet and cool weather lessened the demand.

educational opportunities and other assistance to persons 55 or older. Approval also was given to several grant applications to fund a variety of alcoholism treatment programs.

Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health-Mental Retardation is seeking $45,000 for detoxification facilities in Midland and $41,000 for the facilities in Odessa.

Big Spring State Hospital is seeking $38,198 for an alcoholism treatment training program, the City of Big Spring is seeking $50,000 for a detoxification center, and MH-MR is seeking $20,000 to assist minorities with alcoholism problems and $87,000 for community treatment of alcoholism in Midland and Odessa.

The Texas Commission on Alcoholism is the funding agency for the alcoholism treatment projects.

The board gave its approval to have the PBRPC file an application designating the Permian Basin Health System Agency as a complete health system agency.

The application is to HEW, and if approved, could lead to more than $300,000 being allocated to the Permian Basin for health programs. As part of the application, 20 long-range goals for health care projects will be ent to HEW

Faculty won't seek regents' aid

ODESSA - Faculty members at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin voted Wednesday, by a narrow margin, not to involve The University of Texas System regents in a dispute with Dr. V. R. Cardozier, UTPB president.

A Faculty Senate resolution was taken before the Faculty Assembly. The resolution criticized Cardozier's action on the university's governance plan, which outlines means of handling Faculty Senate action, and called for sending the problem to the board of regents.

The resolution claimed that Cardozier "has consistently failed to comply" with the document's provisions which "has severely impeded the faculty's discharge of its responsibilities for institutional governance." The resolution passed the Faculty Senate by a 7 to 6 vote. The faculty voted down the resolution by a 39 to 33 margin in a secret ballot during the special meeting of the assembly.

One faculty member at the meeting, which was closed to the public and press, said the faculty members opposing the resolution believed the university faculty is able to handle its problems internally without going to the system regents. He said it is "no coincidence" the issue was raised while the Legislature is considering the university's request for funding.

Oil and Gas Recovery Conference participants crowd the registration table in the Midland Hilton

More than 200 persons register for oil, gas recovery conference

More than 200 persons registered for the first session of the two-day 10th Biennial Permian Basin Oil and Gas Recovery Conference that got under way this morning in the Midland Hilton.

C. K. Osborn of Midland, with Core Laboratories, Inc., got the event going with opening remarks at 9 a.m. Osborn is general chairman of the conference.

The second session of technical papers will begin at 2 p. m. and will be on well stimulation.

Papers will include acid and fracturing treatment in the Morrow zone of Southeast New Mexico and in shallow gas sands and the Dean formation in West Texas.

Carter to seek funds for shale oil facility century

By THOMAS O'TOOLE The Washington Post

WASHINGTON --- The Carter administration will ask Congress to finance construction of an oil shale recovery plant in the Colorado Rockies as part of its plan to develop new energy sources, officials said Tuesday.

The administration has not chosen a site for its oil shale plant and has not decided how big the plant will be, but sources close to the White House said it will probably be on federal land in Colorado's Piceance Basin and could produce about 5,000 barrels of oil a day. Even a plant that small will take two years to build and cost an estimated $100 million, the sources said.

The oil shale effort is expected to be announced when President Carter sends his energy policy message to Congress April 20 but could come sooner if the White House decides to spotlight the oil shale recovery project. The purpose of the move into oil shale is to demonstrate that oil can be extracted economically from shale rock without disturbing the environment of the Rocky Mountains and without using huge quantities of scarce Western water in the process of extraction.

"This will be a research and development project," one administration source said. "Not a crash program to provide large amounts of domestic oil to turn of the Rockies has been discussed by the administrations of the last four Presidents and by most of the major oil companies for the last 30 years. To date, only a trickle of oil has been produced from the four oil shale basins nestled in the mountains of Utah, Wyoming and Colorado.

Three new techniques of extracting shale oil have been pioneered in the last two years, one by an oll company a second by a federal laboratory in California and the third by an engineering concern in Wyoming.

Potential under way

Phillips Petroleum Co. No. 1-B Coates, re-entered project in Pecos County, 18 miles southeast of Bakersfield, is taking potential test in the Strawn as a discovery.

A depleted Ellenburger well in the Coates gas field, No. 1-B Coates flowed 139 barrels of oil and three barrels of water through a ¼-inch choke during the first 12 hours of the potential.

The flow is from pay behind perforations from 10,289 to 10,419 feet. The section had been acidized with 5,000 gallons.

Hole is bottomed at 13,600 feet, with 5½-inch casing set at 13,600 feet.

Carter Foundation Production Co., Fort Worth, has completed No. 5-E E. C. Hill-Federal, as a Fusselman opener in the Imperial (Ellenburger) field of Lea County N.M.

It was finished for a daily pumping potential of 40 barrels of 39.5 gravity oil plus 10 barrels of water, with gas oil ratio measuring 350-1.

Sabine Production Co. (formerly Dalco Oil Co.), operating out of Dallas, has completed No. 1 North Eidson Fee, as a Morrow gas discovery in Lea County, N.M.

Potential was for a calculated, absolute open flow of 4.374 million cubic feet of gas per day, with con-densate gravity of 57 degrees. Gasliquid ratio was 26,400-1.

Production was through natural perforations at 13,130-13,190 feet. Hole is bottomed at 13,375 feet, with 51/2-inch casing set at total depth.

of Eddy County, N.M. gained its second oil producer and ¾-mile northwest extension to that pay, with the completion of Yates Petroleum Corp., Artesia, No. 1-GN Federal.

It finaled pumping 14 barrels of oil per day, plus 35 barrels of water. Gravity of the oil and gas-oil ration were not reported.

The potential test was taken through perforations at 3,530-3,544 feet, which had been acidized with 500 gallons.

On a total depth of 4,800 feet, 51/2inch casing was set at 3,949 feet. Plugged back depth is 3,740 feet.

Top of the Delaware sand was picked at 3,660 feet.

The discovery, nine miles northeast of Carlsbad, spots 660 feet from south and east lines of section 27-21s-27e.

Alaska line owners ask for oil tariff

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The owners of the Alaskan pipeline have asked the Federal Energy Administration to approve a pipeline tariff of $5 a barrel, a move that could raise the price of Alaskan oil to $17.40 a barrel on the West Coast.

The pipeline owners have also asked for an $8 a barrel fee for Alaskan oil that the West Coast does not need that would be tanked through the Panama Canal to the Gulf Coast. where it would be pipelined north to Midwest markets. A shipping fee of that size could raise the price of oil to $20.40 a barrel in the Midwest.

If accepted and approved by the FEA, these prices for Alaskan oil would be almost $4 a barrel highthan imported oil costs on the yest Coast and more than $7 a barrel dore than it costs in the Midwest.

The request for a $5-p -barrel pipeline tariff was outlined a notice issued Wednesday by the FEA on Alaskan oil pricing proedures. The notice was designed to raw attention to hearings on Alaska oil prices to be held by the FEA Mych 21, 22 and 23 in Washington, Sp Francisco and Anchorage.

Included in he hearing notice is a new estimatory FEA that as much as half the 1.2 million barrels of oil to be shipped fom Alaska every day will be survus to West Coast needs.

meaning it will have to be 'xported to Japan or shipped *rough the Panama Canal to the Caf Coast. The reasons given by FEA for the new surplus estime range from a slowdown in ecor mic activity to an unanticipated in rease in West Coast oil production the FEA said higher prices for citflay have provided the prices for opmay have provided the incentives or West Coast oil companies to crease output. The FA hearings will be held so that o companies can justify their pric requests, consumer groups can chdenge them and the FEA itself a decide what it believes will be the åirest prices for Alaskan oil.

Alaskan oil will begin to flow through the pipeline to the port city of Valdez in August or September. The first flow will be at a rate of 600,000 barrels a day, doubling to 1.2 million barrels a day by December.

If the FEA treats Alaskan oil as "new" domestic oil, the companies could receive a wellhead price (before it gets pumped into the pipeline) of $11.64 a barrel, the same price as new domestic mainland oil.

Adding a $5 pipeline tariff and a 76cent tanker charge to take the oil from Valdez means $17540 a barrel for oil delivered to Long Beach, Calif.

That would be $3.66 a barrel higher than the price currently charged for foreign oil coming into the same West Coast port.

raised against most methods of oil shale extraction which involve burning the rock in the open air to get at the oil and using enormous quantities of water to cement the spent shale that must then be disposed of in mountains of slag.

More than 70 per cent of the richest oil shale land in the Rockies lies on federal land with only a few of the tracts leased to private oil companies. Less than a year ago, the Interior Department suspended four of these leases in Colorado and Utah when si environmental organizations went court to stop work on the leases. the

Despite these setbacks the possibility of extracting oil fro, shale was one of the first energy moves contemplated by the ofter ad-ministration. The main ryson is that government and or company geologists estimate the is as much as 1.8 trillion barrey of oil locked in the shale of the Wern mountains.

Gas opener potentials

Bill H. McWilliams of Midland No. 1 R. H. Harris has been reclassified as a Strawn gas discovery in Coke County.

McWilliams reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 275,000 cubic feet of gas per day, with a gas-liquid ratio of 140,712-1. Gravity of the liquid is 44 degrees.

The production is through perforations from 5,817 to 5,822 feet.

The well originally was completed in 1974 for 100 barrels of 44-gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio of 1,918-1. The Strawn was topped at 5.812 feet on ground elevation of 1,936 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from southwest and 467 feet from northwest lines of V. Homann survey No. 522.

Let's say you sleep on your back. That's the "royal" position. It shows you feel you're the king or queen of the universe of the sleep world. And also the day world.

On your stomach, kind of spreadeagled over the bed? Then you're a person who wants complete control over your life. You're dominating the available bed space by your position.

Or if you scrunch up in the full fetal position, you're afraid to let yourself go fully, to experience life's joys and SOFFOWS.

That's the opinion of Dr. Samuel Dunkell, 57, a New York psychiatrist who has written a book called "Sleep Positions, the Night Language of the Body.

"In sleep we act out the dramas of our lives, using our bodies instead of our speech to express our joys and griefs, our loves and hates." Dunkell writes. "In the night world, each of us becomes the pantomimist of his own personal saga.'

When today's hand has played many years ago, Pierre Albarran

Dunkell began his research informally 12 years ago, and continued it through interviews with patients almost all of whom know how they sleep

"It was a hard thing for me to grasp that there was this separate universe." says Dunkell. "But the way a man sleeps is the way he lives.'

In his book, he cites changes in patients' sleep positions after a problem has been resolved. He tells of couples "talking" to each other by the way they sleep - saying things they can't while awake.

The most romantic sleep position for couples, he says, is the hug - two people face to face. Another romanticand more common sleep position is the spoon, when the couple nestles front to back like two spoons in a drawer.

Couples even shift sleep position in tandem as one tires of sleeping on one side, he says. As a marriage wears on, they may gradually move apart. That's normal, he finds.

West agonized, fearing that his partner had the singleton ace of trumps. Finally West put up the queen. But what next? East had been given no chance to signal.

A switch to diamonds would work if East had the ace and queen, but a club lead would work if East had the ace... Put to the quess, West led his singleton club.

This gave Albarran his chance. The great French expert won the club return, drew trumps and ran his clubs to discard dummy's diamonds. He could then ruff a diamond in dummy to make his contract.

Dr. J loses duel, 76ers win war

By The Associated Press

The red, white and blue ball and the three-point basket are things of the past, but the American Basketball Association lives on.

Julius Erving squared off against David Thompson Wednesday night in a matchup of two of the old ABA's brightest stars. Erving lost the battle 40-38, but he won the war.

Erving's Philadelphia 76ers trimmed Thompson's Denver Nuggets 129-125 in a double overtime thriller between two of the National Basketball Association's strongest clubs. And Erving said the victory

'They're definitely one of the best clubs in the league, but they've got to respect us because we've beaten them three out of four," said Erving, who sent the game into overtime by scoring on a bank shot, a dunk and two free throws in the final 70 seconds of regulation play, wiping out a sixpoint Denver lead

Philadelphia took the lead for good on a jumper by Doug Collins with 2:42 to go in the second overtime. A jumper by Thompson that would have tied the score with 15 seconds left bounced off the rim.

output of the season

Elsewhere in the NBA Wednesday night, the Seattle SuperSonics routed the Boston Celtics 114-86, the Milwaukee Bucks edged the Washington Bullets 109-107 and the Houston Rockets beat the Phoenix Suns 105-100.

Thompson now has scored 30 points or more in six of Denver's last seven games, but Coach Larry Brown said he would like to see more balance in the team's offense.

Virginia Tech rallied from a 40-37 intermission deficit against Georgetown, and along with the other winners, earned a berth in next week's NIT quarter-finals at Madison Square Garden, against the winner of tonight's Alabama-Memphis State game. Virginia Tech won the NIT title in 1973.

Houston's victory lifted the Cougars into the quarter-finals against Illinois State, which defeated Creighton 65-58 Tuesday night.

Oregon's Ernie Kent, one of four players assigned to defense Anthony Roberts, shouted "Unbelievable!" as he watched the Titans' star con-tinually" fire the ball through the basket.

Oregon took the lead after a 40-40 halftime tie as forward Greg Ballard scored 43 points, helping offset Roberts' one-man show.

In the Virginia Tech-Georgetown game, the Gobblers grabbed the lead on a layup by Marshall Ashford with 14:04 remaining. A drive by Ron Bell and two free throws by Phil Thieneman built the margin to 55-50.

Ashford hit 16 of his 24 points in the second half. Georgetown got a gamehigh 28 points from Derrick Johnson. The Hoyas twice closed the gap to two points in the final three minutes.

Noting his team had not played since Feb. 26, Gobblers' Coach Charlie Moir said, "Under the circumstances, we played well. We have executed our defense better, but you can't do much in two days.

"Our players were very excited about having the bid and they played on guts," added Moir.

Villanova, 21-9, trailed by as many as 11 points against the Monarchs but pulled even on a field goal by Whitey Rigsby with 4:53 to go. A 20-footer by Old Dominion's Jeff Fuhrmann with 1:05 left forced the game into overtime.

In the extra period, Larry Herron's two free throws with 3:45 remaining clinched the victory for the Wildcats.

"The chief reason for the victory was our poise," said Wildcats Coach Rollie Massimino. "We've been through six or seven games that went right down to the wire, so we are pretty familiar with that situation."

Coach Paul Webb said his Monarchs couldn't sustain their momentum. "After we got that 11point lead in the second half, a series of things happened-we started taking poor percentage shots.

BATTLE SCENE Reflections from the Bird's Region V meet

BY TED BATTLES

Why is it when your guy dunks one with the flourish of a creative artist after a daring breakaway it's a heartstirring piece of work, yet when the other guy's showboat does it, you feel cheated if he doesn't break his ar-

After the Region V junior college tournament at Abilene, Midland College Coach Delnor Poss, whose deportment was exemplary, was nagged by a guilty conscious and felt compelled to apologize. "Perhaps, I over reacted a few times, but I felt I had to protect our interests."

In reality, the Chaparrals' coach exhibited the most poised and controlled sideline profile of any coach in the tournament.

HE REACTED, but at no time came close to wandering off limits during a tournament in which coaches sometimes were carried away to a degree that they detracted from the play on the floor.

One reason, of course, is because Poss has been the guy out on the floor with the whistle who sometimes has known what it is like to feel the wrath of a crowd after an unpopular call and realizes a demonstrative coach on the sidelines can make the job of officiating that much more difficult... The three days and eight games at Abilene, and what transpired there. lead to a modest proposal or two for the improvement of the game.

In view of the coaches' frequent and violent disagreements with calls on the floor, it's obvious the men in striped shirts would do a far better job if they occupied the chair that is on rare occasions occupied by the coaches.

AS IN hockey, a linesman could be added to the officiating team. He would handle the floor mechanics, but would have no power to assess fouls.

The presence of the coach on the bench next to a working official would be untenable, so let's put the coach under glass, as it were, in a soundproof, maximum security booth somewhere removed from the actual playing floor. He would, of course, be provided with a closed circuit TV screen so he could keep up with the game. Providing bread and water would make it seem punitive, so how about hardtack and coconut milk?

The coach would be provided with a phone to the scorer's table for the purpose of substitutions and a red light. The latter would enable him to call his two timeouts during the game at which time he would be permitted to leave the isolation booth under escort to communicate with his team. The tape over the mouth would be removed, but the handcuffs and ankle shackles would have to remain.

WITH PLAY stoppages ranging in length from 25 to 30 seconds for one free throw and 35 to 40 seconds for a two-shot foul, players already have enough interruptions in play to catch their breath and more than two timeouts serves only to turn a fastpaced game into a drag.

It also would eliminate the wasteful seconds to play ...

Despite the sideshows, Western Texas College emerged as the winner and there isn't much quarrel with that. The Westermers are ranked No. 4 nationally and may just prove at Hutchinson that they belong higher... It all depends on how hot Lawrence Butler may be. The guy's knack for finding the basket from any angle and any spot is uncanny...and frustrating.

Perhaps even more noteworthy than the WTC's victory was the fact that Midland College reached the Region V finals. When you consider all the obstacles, it was a remarkable feat.

Reed sees potential

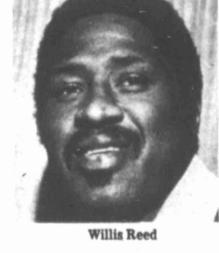

NEW YÓRK (AP) - Willis Reed says the New York Knicks have the potential to be a winning team. His job as coach will be to develop that potential-and he knows that won't be easy.

"Players have to be willing to work to attain a common goal, and that is winning," Reed said Wednesday at a Madison Square Garden news conference where it was announced that he had signed a three-year contract, starting with the 1977-78 season.

"Skillwise, the players today are better than when I was a player," said Reed, whose career was cut short in 1974 by chronic knee problems after serving as captain of the Knicks' National Basketball Association title teams in 1970 and 1973. "But I don't think they're as willing to sacrifice their individual skills, goals and glory for the good of the team.

"I'll talk about it with our players. I'll tell certain players what we think their basic attributes are and let them know what we want them to do. After that, it's a matter of getting them to do it.

Reed will work with the front office while Red Holzman coaches out the remainder of this season, the Knicks' third straight losing campaign despite the costly acquisition of players like Bob McAdoo and Spencer

Haywood. He'll study the team's personnel as well as players on other pro teams or in the college ranks who might be available.

"I want to come in with a fresh slate," said Reed. "The foundation for a good team is here, and hopefully we'll add to it over the summer. Then we're going to go to training camp and work on the things you have to do to win-the basics, like boxing out on rebounds and playing sound team defense.'

Reed, who has made no decision as to who his assistants will be altough ex-Knick Emmette Bryant is a strong candidate, indicated he would be like to add a quick guard to the Knicks' roster. But he emphasized that should not be taken as a criticism of Walt Frazier, something the local media has done much of.

"Frazier right now is better than 80 or 90 per cent of the guards in the league," the 34year-old Reed said. "A veteran guard is a smart guard, the most valuable kind of player. He may have lost a step, but he's gained experience. And his defense hasn't been that bad. The problem is that the Knicks have not been playing good team defense behind him.

Offensively, Reed plans to emphasize a running game.

"You can't come down the court and set up against teams every time and expect to win consistently," he said. "And when you get into a running game you can keep all your players involved. You've got to have balance. A guy like McAdoo can score 25 points a game without us running plays for him-he's that good."

LOS ANGELES - Two years ago it was pupil vs. coach, Denny Crum of Louisville against the man he played for and coached under, John Wooden of UCLA.

This time it's friend against friend. At least that's what Crum said this week as he prepared his Cardinals for their meeting with Gene Bartow and the Bruins in the opening round of the NCAA college basketball playoffs Saturday afternoon in Pocatello, Ida

"You never like to play against a school you're as close to as I am to UCLA," Crum said. "But it's different this time. I had so many feelings and so much respect for coach Wooden. With Gene Bartow, it's more of a 'just friends' relationship.

Crum and Bartow were rivals, too, while Bartow coached Memphis State when it was in the same conference as Louisville, the Missouri Valley.

said. "They were in the MVC two seasons and out of it one. The first year, 1971-72, they beat us twice in the regular season but we beat them in the playoffs on our way to the NCAA final round. The next year we split in the regular season and they got to the NCAA finals. In 1973-74, we beat them by 13 points the only time we met."

UCLA made it no contest in the 1972 semifinals, winning, 96-77, at the Sports Arena. But the Cardinals took the Bruins into overtime in 1974 before losing, 75-74, in one of the finest games in tournament history. It was the night, in San Diego, that Wooden announced his retirement. Crum's hands shook and he fought back tears after the game when he got word on his former coach.

"THERE'S NOT much you can say about a man who has done what he's done in his profession," Crum said at that time. "Basketball will miss him. We'll all miss him. And he might miss basketball even more. It's hard to think what you do when you give up your life.

There was speculation then that Crum would replace Wooden. He didn't but the rumors continue. They've been fairly strong lately, despite the fact Crum has a job coaches dream about at Louisville (including lucrative TV and radio deals and a 232-acre farm) and Bartow has won two straight Pacific 8 titles, 50 of 59 games and has taken UCLA to the NCAA tourney both seasons he's been in Westwood.

Asked whether the Crum-to-UCLA "WE PLAYED Memphis three rumors had any validity, Crum said: years when Gene was there," Crum "I don't remember being invited "I don't remember being invited. You don't go places you're not invited. It would be impolite.

'We haven't been a good team since Larry Williams fractured his foot in the Tulsa game in mid-February," Crum said. "He's our leading rebounder and our best defensive forward. If he isn't our most valuable player, he's close to it.'

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Jeri Spurrier says she ignored booing aimed at her husband, Tampa Bay quarterback Steve Spurrier, last year but did a double take when their 9-yearold daughter booed.

"People around us started booing and Lisa started booing, too," recalled the University of Florida sweetheart of the 1966 Heisman Trophy winner. "I said, 'Lisa, why are you booing?' She said, 'I don't know, because everybody else is.'

"I said, 'Do you know who they're booing?" 'No.' 'They're booing your ather!

SPURRIER GOT a lot of heat from fans and the media as the Bucs went 0-14 in their first National Football League season. But Jeri said Steve keeps feelings to himself and she has learned to live with criticism.

"I used to get upset. Things don't bother me that much now," she said. "The maddest I ever got was not because of Steve.

"Bruce Taylor played for the (San Francisco) 49ers. Bruce got hit in the end zone after he missed an interception and somebody said, 'I hope he's dead.' If you hear somebody say something like that, you can take everything else with a grain of salt.

Spurrier was the top draft pick of Gator town that it wasn't going to be the 49ers in 1967 but never reached easy for him. He said, 'Jeri, these peostardom. He was one of three quarterple are going to expect a lot from me backs used by the 49ers in 1975 and as a person. was traded to the Bucs before the 1976

SPURRIER WAS not able to generate much offense and, with a virtually nonexistent running attack, was easy prey for rushing linemen. He was intercepted 12 times as he completed 156 of 311 passes for 1,628 yards and seven touchdowns. He was 13th among 16 American Conference passers.

"I just think it's tough when you're losing. That was the hard part," Jeri said. "I think if they could have started out with a win, the whole year would have been a lot easier.

The 3rd annual Tournament of Champions is set for Cubs Stadium this weekend with five high school baseball teams ready for action.

Heading the list is Duncanville, Class AAAA state champions the past two years, joined by the Midland Lee Rebels, Midland Bulldogs, Moore, Okla. Lions and the Lubbock Monterey Plainsmen.

Duncanville and Lee sport the best records to date. The Panthers, under Coach Jay Miller, are 4-1-1 while the Duncanville has beaten Dallas Spruce twice, Arlington High and Corsicana while losing by a 1-0 count to Arlington. The Panthers and Arlington Heights battled to a 3-3 tie in nine innings Tuesday in a game called on account of darkness.

Moore's Lions, back after a year's absence, has beaten John Marshall of Oklahoma City twice and Western Heights, another Oklahoma City outfit. Losses have been to Midwest City, 2-1 and to Grant by the 8-7 tally.

ODESSA—Over 40 track teams will vie for four crowns here Friday and Saturday in the 32nd annual West Texas Relays at W. T. Barrett Stadium in what will be the toughest test to date for the Midland Lee Rebels and the Midland High Bulldogs.

San Angelo, the defending AAAA champion and five-time winner of the meet, heads the list in the upper division which will feature nine strong teams. El Paso Andress, El Paso Austin, Del Rio, Lubbock High, Odessa High and Permian provide the rest of the field for the Rebs and Dogs.

Action will get underway Friday at 12:15 p.m. with the start of field event finals and running preliminaries in all divisions will start at 12:45 p.m.

SATURDAY'S SLATE will begin at 12:30 p.m. with more field event finals and 1 p.m. will be the start of all running finals.

Defending champion Odessa Ector will test Lamesa, Andrews, Monahans, Levelland, Seminole, Sweetwater, Pecos, Brownfield and Lubbock Dunbar in the AAA division.

Stanton, who has won two of the last four titles in the AA competition. heads the list again against the likes of Tahoka, Phillips, Frenship, Denver City, Roscoe, Kermit, Slaton, Alpine, Morton, Idalou and Coahoma. Floydada, the defending champion, is not entered this year, so a new team will wear the crown when all is said and done.

Midland High will be among the girls' teams entered along with Andress, Burgess, Seminole, Andrews, Crane, Coahoma, Abilene Christian, Ector, Odessa High and Permian. This is the first year for a girls' division and all best times will be new records.

THE MILE run has been an exciting race this year for the local schools, and it doesn't appear to be much different this week. Midland High's Robert Wilson heads the list after he posted a 4:25.8 last week in Pecos for a 75-yard victory over teammate Pat Darden.

Wilson lost to upstart sophomore Steve Hooper of Lee two weeks ago. Hooper posted a 4:39.6 in Pecos for his best time, but was third as Darden clocked a 4:38.6. Darden has not been beaten by anyone other than the two runners above, and maybe this is the week that he turns the upset. It is the way things have been going as of late. Lee's Arthur Pertile, a new sophomore on the scene, won his first outing in the 880 dash last week with a sparkling 2:03.7, and it will be in-teresting to see if he can match that effort to establish himself as one of the best in the area. Lee's Charles Hamilton and David Skinner and Midland High's Jeff Adkins are also strong in the event.

THE 100 dash is another race that will hold a lot of local interest. Lyndon Kauk of Permian, who clocked a 9.5 last week, will be rematched with Odessa High's Darrell Shepard and Midland High's Alvin Price. Shepard had a 9.8 last week while Price had a 9.9. Price, however, owns a 9.8 this year and will attempt to overcome a bad start suffered last week.

Price is also expected to make a bold bid for the 220 title. He had a 22.1 in the prelims last week in Pecos, but finished second in the finals with a 22.5. His 22.1 is his best time of his career.

Lee will also expect help from Jerry Moore in the long jump. Moore has won his only outing of the year with a leap of 20-014, but missed the team bus last week.

LEE'S JAMIE Berry will be out to improve on his 52.4 in the 440, a time that was good enough for victory in Pecos, his first win of the year.

Hurdlers Wes Watley and Alan Funderburg will give Lee help as will Jeff McCowan and Doug Guthrie. Midland High's Frank Driskill, improving rapidly, will aid the 'Dogs in the shot put.

Midland's Robert Wilson

The Midland High girls will have four potential point makers. Gloria Caldwell won the 880 last week in Pecos with a 2:34.2 and is favored Saturday. Leslie Sherman won the high jump with a 4-9 last week while Celeste Washington had thirds in the 100 and 440. Wanda Caldwell had a third in the 220.

Duncanville and Moore both played games Wednesday with the Panthers downing Arlington High, 6-4. Moore, meanwhile, lost a tough 8-7 decision to U.S. Grant High of Oklahoma City.

Lee swept a doubleheader from Lubbock Coronado, 4-3 and 4-1 in Tuesday for its sixth straight win and Midland lost to Monterey, 11-8, in Lubbock.

TEN GAMES are on tap with five on Friday and five on Saturday with tickets $4 each for the 10 games. Fans wishing to take in one session can pay $2 for four games either on Friday or Saturday

Friday's schedule finds Midland and Moore opening the tourney at 10 a.m. followed by the Lee-Duncanville at 12:30 p.m. Monterey faces Midland in the 3 p.m. contest while at 5:30 p.m., it will feature the battle between Moore and Lee. Duncanville and Monterey close out the first day's action at 8 p.m.

On Saturday, Monterey squares off with Lee at 10 a.m. followed by Midland-Duncanville at 12:30 p.m. Moore tries Monterey at 3 p.m. and Lee challenges Midland at 5:30 p.m. At 8 p.m. it will be Duncanville vs. Moore. Keep on Boarding Thrills of Surfing Year-around fun

Moore Friday evening. Larry Peel, MHS mentor, will go with Robert Strack, Doug Atnipp, Kevin Widner and probably Kevin Minton in the tourney, not especially in that order.

Midland has beaten Monahans, 7-3 and Lubbock High, 7-1 while losing twice to Monterey by scores of 10-3 and 11-8 on once to Lubbock, 8-6.

Moore replaces Alamogordo, N.M. which was in the tourney last year and it was the Tigers that upended Monterey in the final game of the tourney for the only loss by the Plainsmen. Monterey took home the first place trophy last year and Moore went 4-0 in the 1975 meet.

The round-robin tourney will work the same as the first two years with the team with the best record winning first place.

Trophies will be awarded to the first three teams along with individual awards for the players named to the all-tourney team.

Members of the visiting teams will stay with players at Midland and Lee, to help cut down on expenses. The Tournament of Champions

The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES - This is the 20th year of the Dodgers in Los Angeles, where their owner, Walter F. O'Malley, has had more fun and made more money than most men.

Question - What has O'Malley enjoyed the most in the years since he left Brooklyn for California?

Answer - "Beating the Yankees four straight in the (1963) World Series," he says. "It's hard today for some people to remember the era when the Yankees dominated baseball - but I remember. We only won from them once in New York (1955). Winning again in California meant flying the championship flag East and West after beating the Yankees twice. It was my top thrill in baseball.

Q. - How many other thrills have you had? A. - "About one a day," O'Malley says. Q. - Can you list your top 10 in Los Angeles? A. - "I'll give it a try," he says. "The first two were the 1963 World Series and building our own stadium with our own money. Those were the big two. Next, nostalgically, I think of Maury Wills and all those bases he stole (104 in 1962); Sandy Koufax's phenomenal pitching achievements (three Cy Youngs, four no-hitters and an average of nine strikeouts a game); Don Drysdale's scoreless innings (a record 58 2-3 consecutively in 1968) and Wally Moon's challenges to the Chinese wall in the Coliseum era (1958-62). Those are the kinds of landmark things that come to mind." Q. — That's six landmarks in all. Do you want to go for 10?

A. - "Let's see. The Dodgers left the Coliseum better than we found it; We financed the new theater-type seats that replaced those old 16-inch planks. That's one thing. Another thing: I played a minor but essential role in one historical achievement: my daughter's children are fifthgeneration Californians. I'm rather

Oilers sound out fans on Rice Stadium move 🛽

HOUSTON (AP) - The National Football League Houston Oilers are asking a selected group of season ticket holders how they would feel if the Oilers shifted their home games from the Astrodome to Rice Stadium. Oiler senior vice president Ladd Herczeg confirmed Wednesday that the Oilers have mailed questionnaires to about 1,000 of the Oilers' 33,000 season ticket holders.

"This is a random sample (of both family and business accounts) done by computer," Herczeg said. It's being done only in the interest of the fans.

oud of that. I'm also proud of Walter Alston's achievements - his record - although I think he retired at the right time.

Q. - Why?

A. - "He's more relaxed now and I'm expecting him to play better golf this year at Vero Beach. He really wasn't much competition last year."

Q. - If I've added these up right, you have mentioned nine things that pleased you a great deal during your first 20 years in Los Angeles. What else makes your top 10?

A. - "I've enjoyed being around during the emergence of Ron Cey as a third baseman. Until recently I had thought Cookie Lavagetto and Billy Cox were as good as we've had at that position, but I have a higher opinion now of Cey's ability.

Q. - Speaking of comparative ability, who's on Walter O'Malley's all-time Dodger team - including players from both the Brooklyn and California days?

A. — "I've never given the subject much thought, but the team would have to be built around Gil Hodges (first base), Duke Snider (outfield). Roy Campanella (catcher), Jackie Robinson (second base) and Pee Wee Reese (short)."

Q. - You need two more outfielders.

A. -- "Dixie Walker, of course, and Carl Furillo."

Q. — Pitchers?

A. - "Koufax and Drysdale."

Q. - Third base?

A. - "Ron Cey."

1 Q. - How do you evaluate Steve

Garvey? A. - "Defensively, Garvey is an adequate first baseman. His personality is an asset. In public relations he's great. On the field he could be more aggressive, and (manager) Tommy Lasorda will try to accomplish that this year."

Oiler owner K.S. "Bud" Adams has asked Astrodome officials to consider ſ expanding the Astrodome, which has a 50,000 capacity. Astrodome officials say such an expansion is not feasible.

The Oilers played in the 72,000-seat Rice Stadium from 1965 through the 1967 season before moving to the Astrodome.

The Oilers' lease with the Astrodome extends through the 1977 season. The Oilers pay about 15 per cent of home gate receipts for use of the Astrodome and do not share in parking and concession revenues.

 Some people think you were a little late in replacing Alston with Lasorda

A. __ "There were those in our organization who definitely thought so. But look at Alston's record. He's a gentleman who has never embarrassed the club. And he's the only Dodger manager who ever won a World Series (1955-59-63-65). In fact, Alston could still be managing today. I know of at least eight clubs that would call him if he were available. But I think Alston made the right decision. He quit while he was ahead.'

Q. - It would be hard to find two more dissimilar types in baseball these days than Alston and Lasorda.

A. - "You can be sure we like Alston's type - keeping him 20-odd years. But you wouldn't want to succeed Alston with another Alston. That would be a mistake. Lasorda represents a change of pace, and he fits in. They both knew we'd been grooming him for this position. His approach is different, and it will work.'

LL registration scheduled Monday

Rresidents of Midland's seven Little Leagues announced the 1977 schedule at a meeting of the Midland Junior Baseball Association.

Pre-registration has been scheduled for Monday with players turning in their player application and consent forms. Tryouts are scheduled Wednesday through Friday with makeups March 21. Each player will preregister and tryout, if necessary, at the A diamond of his respective league.

April 18 and ends June 17. The City B league tournament is scheduled for June 20-24 and the A tournament will be held June 27-July 2.

Jerry Metz, vicecommissioner of Little Leagues, stated that all players will be assigned to a team. All players must tryout unless they were on an A team last year. All players, including A team players, must submit a registration form filled out before they will be allowed to tryout out or play on a team.

NFL players' union survives...and how!
