Mrs. Rogers' visions would excite UFO fan

$50 rebate draws mixed reviews in Midland

By JIM STEINBERG

"It's a wonderful idea." "It's a rip-off."

That's what a sampling of people interviewed in Midland think about President Jimmy Carter's $17.5billion plan to stimulate the economy with a $50 tax rebate for for everybody.

Though opinions varied on the idea behind the rebate, there was general agreement on one point - that $50 sure would go fast.

"It's a big rip-off. That $50 could end up costing everybody $500 by the time it's delivered. What's $50 to the average person today?" Faulkner, businessman, asked.

"It's a poor way to stimulate the Foundation starts push tor area cancer clinic

By JUDY JOHNSTON

BIG SPRING - A foundation has been started to establish a cancer therapy center in Big Spring.

The Malone and Hogan Foundation has been started to oversee plans for a center to be located on the 34-acre plot of land west of Big Spring where both the Malone-Hogan Hospital and the Malone and Hogan Clinic are located. Dr. P. W. Malone, who initiated the idea with his late partner, Dr. J. E.

Hogan, will discuss the proposed center at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Midland American Legion building, 206 S. Colorado St.

The Foundation will furnish the land for the center and will seek funds from throughout the West Texas area, Malone said.

In citing a need for the proposed cancer center, Malone said the need for cancer patients to travel to distant cancer therapy centers is frequently economy. It would be a lot better to create work programs rather than give something for nothing," Houston oilman Ed Garrett said.

"That $50 is just a drop in the bucket. I could spend it almost by accident. And I don't think the way I'd spend it would do anything to help the economy. If we were talking about $200 or $300 that would be different. But $50, - I'm retired and live on a fixed but ample income - well, I could just live without it," Lyle Day

"I really don't see any good points to it," W. K. Sullivan said of the proposed rebate.

That point of view was not shared by Mrs. Betty Hubbard, who with eight persons in her family, would like to see that new rebate go to a new

"From a strictly selfish point of view I think the rebate would be nice. I don't know how good it would be for the country, but it would be sure nice to help pay the bills or go on a little vacation," said Mrs. Rick Alder-man of Hobbs, N.M.

"I'd try to get some bills payed off. It might help me get caught up so I could go in debt again," Dennis Montgomery, 21, quipped.

"I'd put it to our baby," Terry Smith, 20, said, adding that he and his wife were expecting their first child

"That $50 will go right back into the economy and the increased spen would create more and more jobs Linda Moody, 22, of Lamesa, said in praise of the proposal.
"Every little bit helps," Mrs. Bobby Choat said. If the rebate receives the okay from Congress that money in the Choat family would be spent quickly on land payments, house payments, a new car and a new baby.

"It's a wonderful idea if the government can afford it," Mrs. Leona Stump said. "By the time they give out $50 to everybody ... well, that's quite a bit of money. I'm not sure it's the best thing for the country, but I live on Social Security and the money would come in real handy just to meet living expenses," Mrs. Stump Echoing Mrs. Stump in their approval of the rebate were Cathy Anderson who said the money would go to getting a new air conditional unit, and Bobby Teague, who wou like to see the money to pay for bills.

Expressing caution on the subje of the rebate was Bill Hedrick who admitted the extra money wou nice, but was reluctant to endor the idea behind it saying, "Econo is a guessing game.'

not have honored their promise to free

"A promise made at the point of a gun has no moral force whatsoever,' he said. "Khaalis was free, ... at liberty with family and friends, even before his hostages were home, even before the funeral of the assassinated reporter."

But there was disagreement from Police Chief Craig Merchant of Warrensville, Ohio, who negotiated release of two hostages from a gunman in a 45-hour siege earlier this week.

"If hostage-takers get the idea that they can't trust you to do what you say you'll do, then you're in trouble and that puts hostages' lives more in danger," he said.

Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell also has said he believes authorities should honor promises made to terrorists to gain release of hostages.

In other developments: -Six of the gunmen's victims remained hospitalized, two in serious condition. City Councilman Marion Barry, recovering from a chest wound inflicted in the takeover of city hall, was released.

-Funeral arrangements were set for 11 a.m. Monday for Williams. His employer, radio station WHUR-FM, announced it would set up a scholarship fund at Howard University in his

-Black Muslim leader Wallace D. Muhammad said in Chicago he feared for his life because Abdul Khaalis is free. Muhammad is among those Abdul Khaalis blames for the brutal slaying of his children four years ago.

Muhammad has denied responsibility for the slayings but said Friday he would not have stopped them if he had been given the chance, because Abdul Khaalis had threatened the late Muslim leader Elijah Muhammad, Wallace's father.

-FBI Director Clarence Kelley said in Philadelphia that the wide publicity given the Hanafi terrorism might prompt other groups to seize hostages. The film "Mohammad, Messenger Of God," was scheduled to resume public exhibitions Saturday. Screenings were halted in the middle of its American premiere Wednesday because the terrorists demanded its cancelation on grounds it is offensive to strict Moslems.

Church bells rang in celebration when the remaining hostages were freed. All were examined at a nearby hospital and sent home, some after treatment for minor injuries.

The fear that had gripped the city began to melt away. Bodyguards were withdrawn from most of the dozen congressmen who had requested protection by Capitol Police during the siege. Auto traffic, which had been snarled through three rush hours because of police blockades around the three hostage sites, flowed more smoothly.

President Carter praised Washington city officials for their "slow and careful approach" in defusing the deadly situation. The President also said he sent personal letters of thanks to the ambassadors of Iran, Egypt and Pakistan for talking the Hanafi leader into surrendering.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance called the three ambassadors 'humanitarians and diplomats in the highest sense" and offered "the oratitude of the United States." Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker said, "We owe them a debt of gratitude.

It was a combination of police patience, professional diplomacy and Islamic scholarship that eventually ended the 38 hours of terror. The terrorists had threatened to chop off the heads of their hostages and to die fighting for Allah if police attempted interference, but at the end they surrendered without a struggle.

Reaction to deal varied

By The Associated Press

A Chicago bartender said the deal to free the leader of the 12 Washington terrorists without bail "stinks." Pennsylvania police chief said he should have been "bounced in the slammer real quick" along with his followers.

But an Ohio police chief who just went through 45 hours of negotiations with a hostage-holder said, "In my opinion when you make a promise, you definitely should keep it."

These were some of the reactions of law enforcement authorities and citizens to the freeing of Khalifa Hamaas Abdul Khaalis on armed kidnaping charges after the Hanafi Moslems released 134 hostages held for 38 hours at three locations. A man was killed during one of the Police had promised to let Abdul

Khaalis return home as part of a negotiated settlement with the terrorists.

Police Chief Craig Merchant, of Warrensville Heights, Ohio, said for authorities to have reneged on their promise would have "set a precedent for the future.

"If hostage-takers got the idea that they can't trust you to do what you say you'll do, then you're in trouble and that puts hostages' lives more in danger," Merchant said.

He had directed operations after a gunman named Cory Moore took two hostages in the Cleveland suburb on Monday and held one for 45 hours. One of Moore's demands was to speak to President Carter, and Carter telephoned him after the hostage was released unharmed.

But most of those questioned disagreed strongly with the view taken by Merchant and Washington

Consume less'

Dr. John McKetta, an instructor in the chemical engineering department at The University of Texas at Austin, is recognized as one of the world's foremost authorities on energy matters.

He is well and favorably known throughout the oil and gas producing areas of the Southwest. and beyond. His advice on energy matters often are sought by individuals and groups concerning energy problems. He has spoken in Midland on numerous occasions and only recently accompanied Charles Fraser, president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, and others to Washington, D.C., for a conference with Dr. James Schlesinger, President Carter's top energy adviser, concerning the nation's energy ills. He reportedly did his usual excellent job in presenting the facts in the

Dr. McKetta has no hesitancy in stating the seriousness of the energy crisis, which he insists is Interviewed recently at Austin by Dana Ehrlich, staff writer for The Daily Texan, student newspaper at The University of Texas, Dr. McKetta described America's energy problems as "worse than bad and more than desperate."

He said further that under present policies, America cannot reach energy self-sufficiency. "Not by the year 1985, not by 2000, not by 2015, not by 2030 and not by 2045. No way."

"We're consuming more energy than we're producing and we have no policy to try to produce more and consume less," he continued. "The problem is the fantastic amount of energy America uses.

"Time is running out. No matter what we do, we are going to feel the adverse effect of the energy crisis on our living stan-

Dr. McKetta then told his interviewer that before the United States can obtain energy sufficiency, the nation will have to:

- "Find 10 more Prudhoe Bays or four more states of Texas and produce them to capacity. Then, ban all cars larger than 40 horse-

- "Force a 20 per cent efficiency improvement in building heating systems and force 15 per cent more energy efficiency in industry and 15 per cent more efficiency in electricity generation.

- "Totally develop all offshore oil and gas reserves off the East and West Coasts and increase coal production by a factor of three.

- "Convert all of California, Montana and Idaho to geothermal steam electric power (the equivalent of building 110 Hoover

- "Double the rate of hydroelectric generation and produce two million barrels per day of shale oil by year 2000.

- "Add one conventional atomic power plant every two weeks from now to year 2000.'

The professor then said, "Impossible."

He said further that President Carter's proposal to create one energy agency from all the energy agencies will not help

"It really doesn't make any difference who the agency is, if they are going to require countless numbers of regulations and shackle the industry," he said. "Reorganization isn't the answer. What difference does it make if all the agencies are in the same building? Well, you can at least say it saves cab fare."

As a means of reversing the energy problem, McKetta advocates closing the gap between supply and demand for energy. Among the ways to achieve this, he believes, is to let the free market work by decontrol of oil and gas, to triple the use of coal because of its abundance, to use coal to generate electricity and to declare a moratorium on catalytic converters except in cities with environmental problems.

He concluded by saying, "Our only hope is that the U.S. will put national interests above politics and adopt a comprehensive energy policy that will reduce our energy problem to manageable proportions."

And there we have the advice of and actual warning from a recognized authority in the field of

WASHINGTON JOURNAL:

The President enters political mine field

By JAMES CARY Copley News Service

WASHINGTON - It's about time for the real Jimmy Carter to emerge. His period of symbolic acts, stylesetting gestures and rhetorical flourishes is about over. A new period of tough decision-making lies just ahead.

Although it could come sooner, the first real test of just how fundamental the President is willing to get in seeking solutions to the nation's problems may well be contained in the new energy policy he has promised to deliver about April 20.

If it is to be effective it will require some very unpopular decisions. backed with some type of pressure, to conserve use of energy and develop new ways of developing more energy.

That the President realizes this is already quite clear. He has promised to unveil the new energy policy in an address before a joint session of Congress — a platform only for the most important announcements.

The White House has also let it be known that conservation will be one of the major elements in the plan.

So far the advance signals, that Mr. Carter is willing to act forcefully when he has to, are promising.

On Feb. 22 the President disclosed in his fiscal 1978 budget revisions that he was recommending elimination of 19 major water projects, and planned to take a close look at 300 more in hopes of finding others he felt were no longer economically justifiable.

In the same document he proposed a reduction in both the B-1 bomber and F-15 warplane programs, and endorsed a decision of the previous Ford administration not to seek funds for a new nuclear-powered, Nimitzclass aircraft carrier.

He has since expressed enough doubts about the B-1 to indicate he may favor total elimination of the plane later, and has indicated he wants a major revision of the military retirement system.

All of these are unpopular moves to one group or another on Capitol Hill, particularly the water projects to Western members of Congress. The economy of their states, now suffering from the worst drought of the century, is partly tied to the availability of water. Nevertheless, the word from the White House is that the President's zero-base budgeting approach - in which each project must be economically justified at the beginning of every budget period - makes these moves necessary.

The point here is that if the President is willing to buck Congress with unpopular decisions in these areas, he will be tough enough to take other future moves that will be equally unpopular.

Certainly if he is to deliver on his campaign promise to balance the federal budget by 1981 he will have to make many drastic and unpopular decisions that will place him in direct conflict with Congress and numerous pressure groups in the nation, each with its own economic ax to grind.

And right there is one of the emerging new realities of the still very new Carter administration. Even before it is fully settled in office all of the ingredients of future, major confrontations with Congress are in

The results could be explosive. Presidents simply do not walk into political mine fields like water projects and military retirement systems, without setting off some major detonations.

This in turn brings into question the recent popular concept that a major shift of power from the executive to the legislative branch took place in reforms growing out of the Vietnam-Watergate period.

A major premise was that such a shift of power was needed, that executive power must be reduced.

Yet if the President now is the one willing to advocate the painful steps needed to gain a better fiscal balance and Congress is not, then where gaming chairman Phil Hannafin to should the power lie and where does it resolve a stalemate over his gambling properties. The meeting was

If Mr. Carter does make the tough decisions and does make them stick. then the answer to both questions will be that the power to move the government to initiate change, does still, and should, reside in the presidency.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Howard Hughes' last days

By JACK ANDERSON and LES

WASHINGTON - From secret daily logs kept by attendants, we have been presenting the strange saga of Howard Robard Hughes.

The late billionaire spent his last years in a series of darkened penthouses, often groggy from drugs, watching a constant round of movies. He went months, sometimes years, without trimming his hair, beard or

The daily records contain repeated mysterious references to "20-1-1-1." 'the item." "BB's" and "4's." These appear to be code names for the drugs that his doctors reluctantly provided. Hughes started off New Year's Day, 1972, for example, with a dosage. A notation in the logs reports that "he took 6 of the 25 4's" shortly after he awakened at 11 a.m.

He remained awake, typically, for 25 hours.

We got wind of Hughes' condition in 1970 and published an eye-witness report. The story caused shock waves throughout his $2 billion empire. His aides responded with a frantic flurry of denials. Finally in 1972, he came out of seclusion twice within six months to visit briefly with outsiders. They contradicted our description of the billionaire as a wildly shaggy apparition.

We speculated that they may have been greeted by a double; we even established that Hughes had used doubles in the past to deceive process servers. But the logs reveal that the visitors met the real Hughes; the logs also show that it took four hours to groom him for the confrontations.

His trim, new Van Dyke beard was just beginning to get ragged again when an earthquake shook him out of his penthouse at Managua's Intercontinental Hotel. The log has him lounging in his reclining chair at 12:25 a.m., Dec. 23, 1972.

There is no record of the quake, which caused the hotel to heave violently. except for this terse "There was no log kept notation: from the time of the earthquake in Managua, Nicaragua, until the arrival in Miami.'

The next entry clocks his arrival at Ft. Lauderdale at 11:45 p.m. on Dec. 23. He remained holed up in his Lear jet for four hours, however, while his aides wrangled with Internal Revenue and Customs agents. They had anticipated his arrival and sought to serve him with a subpoena. But incredibly, the tax agents were called off by Washington after a few midnight phone calls to high places.

Only Customs agent Harold Sawyer was admitted on board the private plane. He found the billionaire behind a blanket, which had been draped across the seats and aisle. Sawyer shined his flashlight on Hughes, who had a "black hat pulled down over his head to his ears. His face was extremely thin, and he had a full beard which appeared to be gray and unkempt hair. It was 1:15 in the morning before Hughes was ready to greet his Nevada visitors. Three months later, he made his last bid to return to reality. He announced to his startled aides that, despite his fragile health, poor evesight and elapsed pilot's license, he would like to fly again. He didn't even own any street clothes. His aides purchased clothes to his specifications and arranged for him to fly an HS 748 private jet. On June 9, 1973, he watched a screening of "Strategic Air Command." Thus mentally conditioned, he had a long, 10-hour sleep.

The next morning, Mell Stewart came in at 8:10 and spent until noon grooming, dressing and readying the billionaire for the great event. He slipped out of the hotel shortly after 2 p.m. for a day of flying with an English jet pilot named Tony Black-

Not long afterward, Hughes broke his hip in a bathroom fall and retreated forever into his gloomy penthouse. He returned, it's true to the Bahamas and moved into the Xanadu Princess Hotel, which he purchased. For the next two years, he watched movies and let his hair grow, a voluntary prisoner of Xanadu, until he became too feeble to move.

Then on Feb. 12, 1976, his entourage unaccountably flew the helpless Hughes to Acapulco where he deteriorated steadily. He died, according to his doctors, on an emergency flight to Houston on April

INSIDE REPORT:

Tax reform package embodies two broad concepts

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - The preliminary Carter tax reform plans at the Treasury, looking suspiciously like William Simon leftovers, are aimed more at encouraging capital formation than redistributing income in favor of the poor.

Actually, the tax reform package intended to be unveiled Sept. 1 is in a very early stage, and even that is being kept strictly secret. But a top taxwriter in Congress - Rep. Al Ullman, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee - is telling business groups that the Carter package is apt to embody two broad concepts.

Concept No. 1: End "double taxation" of corporate income - first through the corporate income tax, then through personal income taxation of dividends paid out to stockholders. The method as described by Ullman would involve a tax credit to those stockholding individuals equal to part or all of the corporate tax already paid.

Concept No. 2: Reduce the top tax rate on individuals from 70 per cent to 50 per cent. In return, most special tax preferences and remaining tax shelters would be abolished. Here is, quite obviously, a variation of that very old but creditable tax scheme exchanging sharply lowered rates for closed loopholes — dusted off most closed lo recently by Simon, the departed Republican Secretary of the Treasury.

While no finished product, these ideas are far more than mere musings by Chairman Ullman. He is in close touch with the principal tax drafter in the Carter administration, Dr. Laurence Woodworth, Under Secretary of the Treasury for tax policy. What's more, Ullman is encouraging businessmen to run the two concepts through their computers to see how they come out.

Their reaction is scarcely elation that the millenium has arrived. The biggest reassurance to business would be unadorned reduction in corporate income tax rates - impossible politically for the Democratic administration and the Democratic Congress. The lesser but still extremely important bounty in what is being planned at the Treasury would provide that boost in business confidence which the Carter administration desperately seeks.

Moreover, early indications of where President Carter seems to be going are not at all reassuring to his early tax advisers such as Joseph Pechman of the Brookings Institution and Stanley Surrey of Harvard. Pechman and Surrey are on record in opposition to any form of ending corporate double taxation that would result in a net revenue loss, as the plan previewed by Ullman would. Liberals far less sophisticated than Pechman and Surrey are even more disturbed by early indications out of the Treasury. While they expected Mr. Carter's long-promised tax reform to soak the rich, they now fear the best they will get is simplification of the tax code.

In truth, Jimmy Carter was not entirely precise about tax reform during the campaign. Although his denunciation of the tax code as a 'disgrace to the human race' (repeated on his "Ask President Carter'' radio call-in) had McGovernesque overtones, he made liberals nervous by talking hard about ending corporate double taxation from the campaign's start.

A clear though largely unnoticed sign of Mr. Carter's direction in tax reform was posted during the crowded transition period when the President-elect named Woodworth. longtime tax adviser for Congress, as Under Secretary, instead of the more theoretical, more ideological Pech-

Since then, the need to give business some sweeteners in the tax reform has been intensified by two intertwined events: sagging business confidence in the new President and the action by the House stripping from his quickie tax stimulation bill what little there was to promote capital investment.

While businessmen given the Ullman preview like what they hear, they are reserving judgment in anticipation of liberal counterattacks for instance, balancing an end of double-taxation with new levies against business. Furthermore. closing additional tax shelters will reduce some categories of in-

Nevertheless, the Treasury's clear intent is to encourage investment. Thus, oil companies that would lose more than they gain by the end of tax preferences could be compensated by special energy-related tax write-offs, as Ullman describes these stillgerminating proposals.

"What I've heard so far," a liberal academic tax expert told us, "sounds a lot more like Bill Simon than Stan Surrey." That judgment is the best political news for corporate treasurers in many a day; and in the long run, it may also be good news for the President and the nation.

Scientists see future saccharin substitutes

LONDON (AP) - Weight watchers may take some hope from scientists who see lots of potential substitutes to put in your artificial sweetener bowl instead of saccharin, the sweetener now facing a ban.

But don't rush off to the supermarket yet. It'll be years before they get there.

Consider the fat-fighting potential of the Serendipity berry, 2,000 times sweeter than sugar. Or the Katemse fruit: one teaspoonful of its essence would sweeten 4,000 cups of coffee.

Both have been hanging around the West African jungles sweetening local people's foods for centuries. Now laboratory researchers and marketing men in Britain are checking their safety and their commerical future.

Other scientists have found ways of making sugar sweeter by tinkering with its molecular structure. The result: the forerunner of a sugar you could use by the grain instead of the spoonful and avoid saccharin's aftertaste.

Dr. Wilson Nicol, general manager for development at the research laboratories of Britain's giant Tate and Lyle Ltd. sugar company, said he personally agrees with a number of other British scientists that America "was a bit hasty" in banning saccharin before an alternative was available.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administation on Wednesday proposed a ban on the sweetener after Canadian researchers reported large amounts of it caused cancer in rats.

At many companies, Nicol said, "a wide range of sweeteners are being talked about, tested and prepared for market.

"There are quite a number in the pipeline at the moment, but it takes quite a long time to get to market not only because of the science but the safety testing," Nicol explained. "It takes five to 10 years usually before the work we do reaches the grocery shelves.'

Nicol said the Serendipity berry and the Katemse fruit, first brought to European attention by a British doctor in 1839, have survived "some toxicology and some safety testing we can't find anything wrong with them."

Still they are being held in abeyance for the moment, he said, explaining the holdup is commercial: "We're not quite sure it would be competitive enough to go ahead."

okays relief funds

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate passed and sent to the White House on Friday a bill appropriating an additional $200 million for disaster relief. The money is to be used in drought-stricken regions of the West and Great Plains and in eastern states plagued by severe winter snows.

Congress last year appropriated $100 million for disaster relief activities of the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, but this money is expected to be exhausted in a few weeks by the unanticipated level of presidential disaster area designations.

A presidential declaration of a major disaster makes individuals and local governments eligible for federal assistance for such things as temporary housing and emergency repair of public roads and other facilities.

The Senate acted by voice vote, with little debate. The House passed the bill on March

Senate Gandhi's son rapped

By MICHEL GARIN France-Presse

NEW DELHI - Sanjay Gandhi, 31, son of premier Mrs. Indira Gandhi, is the most criticized person in India today. Many of the nation's politicians are already preparing to blame him if the Congress Party loses the upcoming general elections.

Mrs. Gandhi has repeated many times that her son is not fundamentally interested in politics and that he has no ambition to ever become prime minister or president. These denials do not seem to stand up against his meteoric political rise.

Sanjay first appeared on the political scene in 1971 when he took part in the political campaign of several congressmen without being a candidate himself.

Now, for the first time, he is running for office himself. In the intervening years he has been particularly active in the Youth Congress executive committees to which he was elected in December 1975.

Since January last year he has been scouring the countryside, campaigning for his five-point program aimed at what he describes as "a cultural revolution": the abolition of dowrys, mass education, the planting of trees, family planning, the end of the caste system.

Hofstra, Holy Cross, Duquesne face giants

By The Associated Press

For Hofstra, Duquesne and Holy Fross to climb to the NCAA college asketball final, they will have to lavigate one tall beanstalk.

Among the oversized creatures who vill be playing this weekend in the pening round of the NCAA tourney. players on these three teams have to e considered the littlest giants. The idds of them winning this weekend, ind later in the tournament, are wfully long.

-On Saturday in the NCAA East Regional at Philadelphia, Hofstra raws Notre Dame, possibly the most egendary name in college sports and winner last week over San Franisco, then the No. 1-rated team.

"Everybody called and offered conlolences," joked Hofstra Coach Roger Gaeckler.

-On Saturday in the NCAA East Regional at Raleigh, N.C., Duquesne will meet VMI, an unranked team. But any team must look big to Dujuesne, which joins the elite 32- team ournament with a 15-14 record.

"I'M JUST pleased that we're tak-ng part at all," said Duquesne Coach John Cinicola.

-On Sunday in the Mideast Regional at Bloomington, Ind., Holy cross will face Michigan, the topated team in the country. The game will be on national television (NBC).

"When you play Michigan the two nost obvious things you're confronted with are: They're the No. 1 team in he country, and second, you must ace their quickness," said Holy Cross Toach George Blaney

In the other East Regional games aturday, North Carolina meets Purlue in Raleigh and Princeton plays Sentucky in Philadelphia.

In the West Regional Saturday, it will be: UCLA against Louisville on national television (NBC) and Long each State against Idaho State at ocatello, Idaho, with Utah playing t. John's, N.Y. and San Francisco acing Nevada-Las Vegas at Tucson,

IN SATURDAY'S Midwest legionals, the pairings are Cincinnati gainst Marquette and Southern Ilnois against Arizona at Omaha, leb., and Kansas State against Pro-Idence and Arkansas against Wake orest at Norman, Okla.

Notre Dame, 21-6 and 15th ranked, rolling, having won 13 of its last 14 ames, including the rout of San rancisco last Saturday. Earlier, the ighting Irish beat UCLA, which has on 10 of the last 13 NCAA tour-

Cinicola said he didn't know much about VMI, also unranked but owning a 25-3 record.

Favorites Vasicek, Ashford gain wins

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

Kerri Ashford and Vicki Vasicek continued on an apparent collision course Friday, as the two top seeds breezed into Saturday morning's semifinal round of the Girls 'A' Singles event in the Tail City In-terscholastic Tennis Classic. The intense March winds played havoc on almost all of the 370 competitors in the event, which was played at Midland, Lee, Midland College and Ulmer Park courts Friday, but the uncomfortable conditions hardly seemed to matter to the two young netwomen.

The top-seeded Ashford, a Lee High School senior who is participating in the tournament unattached. whalloped Diane Arredondo of El Paso Irvin, 6-1, 6-1 for an easy first round victory, and closed out the day by thrashing Wichita Falls Rider's Leslie Towry, 6-3, 6-1, in the quarterfinals. She will neet Midland High's Cary Garton in Saturday's 9:30 a.m. semifinal battle at the MHS

Vasicek the 15-year-old wonderlust with the poise of someone 20 years her senior, opened play Friday with a 6-2, 6-2 win over Connie Beaty of Amarillo. Later, she needed just 25 minutes to dispose of Caprock's Debbie Cole, 6-1, 6-0 in the quarters, and advance to the semifinals and a date with Robin Winstead of El Paso

THERE WERE two major upsets in Friday's quarterfinal action, and both involved Tall City performers.

Third-seeded Karen Broe of Lee saw her hopes for the Girls 'A' title go sliding by, when Irvin's Robin Winstead upset her with a steady volley game, 7-5, 6-1.

The other victim late Friday was the Midland High doubles team of Jeff Bramlett and Billy Hickey. The pair were seeded second in the Boys 'A' competition, but they were beaten in straight sets by the Bunch-Oppenheim duo from Irvin, 7-5, 6-3.

All of the tourney's top seeds advanced to today's semifinal round. El Paso's Oscar Ontiveros, the favorite in boys singles is still alive, as is the boys doubles team of Rivera-Holmes from Irvin.

Amarillo Caprock's doubles combo of Gerken and Berryhill joined Kerri Ashford as survivors in the two girls; 'A' events.

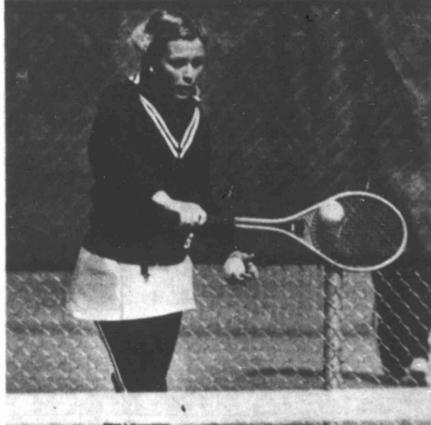

Ontiveros was extended to three sets in the quarterfinals by Midland's Kirk Farguhar, who is competing unattached, but the El Paso netman finally prevailed, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.

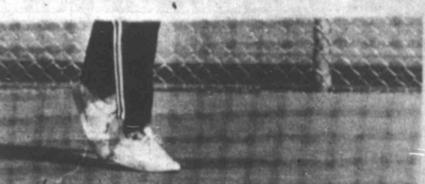

Coronado's Scott Kobren, seeded second behind Ontiveros, earned his semifinal berth with a win over Midland High's Tim Baird. Baird beat. James McClelland of Iryin in his first round battle, 6-2, 6-7, 6-3. Kobren will face Kevin Jackson of Andrews in the one semifinal matchup, while Ontiveros will oppose Kobren's teammate, Steve Peinado, a 6-2, 4-6, 6-4 winner over Irvin's Gabriel Silva in the quarters.

Midland's Cary Garton will be a definite underdog in her Saturday morning clash with Ashford, even though the blond teenager advanced with almost the same ease as her opponent. She blasted Monahans' Donna Holbrock, 6-0, 6-1, in the first round, and them defeated Coronado's Julie Brown, 6-4, 6-2, in the quarters.

MIDLAND WILL also have a double tandem in the girls doubles semis. The third-seeded Bulldog team of Amy Tompson and Dinah Boyd advanced as expected.

Midland Lee's Sharon Snyder.

Lee opens 8-stroke lead in golf

Midland Lee's Steve Wise cut through an eye-tearing sandstorm and hampering winds that blew at a steady 25 mph with gusts to 45 to shoot a medal 75 in the first round of the Midland Invitational High School Golf Tournament at Hogan Park Golf Course Friday.

Teammates Billy Sitton and Wendell Fallin chipped in with 78 and 81, respectively, as the Rebels took an eight-stroke lead in the five-man team competition.

Scores in the 70s were a real rarity in Friday's weather, but San Angelo's Joe Terrazas had a second low score of 77 to lead the Bobcats to a 328 and second place in the tournament that winds up with 18 holes today.

ODESSA PERMIAN shot a 330 paced by Kelly Moran's 80 while Midland High's Russ Brown shot a 79 as the Bulldogs finished fourth with a 331. Britt Lindsey shot a 78 as Abilene Cooper placed fifth, one stroke back in the 13-team field.

Midland Lee's No. 2 unit was at 335 in sixth while Big Spring posted a 337, paced by David Howell's 84. Midland Lee No. 3, 346, and Midland High No. 2. 348, followed with Abilene at 353 and Del Rio at 358.

Golfers tee off from 10 a.m. until noon today with those who teed off first Friday, bringing up the rear

MIAMI (AP) - Andy Bean, who champion Doug Ford Leonard Thompson and Australian

David Graham were two more strokes back at 138. Thompson shot a 70 and Graham, one of the world's leading players last year, closed up with a 67 after a 70. Veteran Miller Barber and England's Peter Oosterhuis were next at 139. Barber managed a 71 and Oosterhuis shot a 69.

Jack Nicklaus, the only man able to win against the youth movement that has dominated the tour this year, had a 70 and headed a large group at 142. Defending champion P thert Green was at 70—143.

Johnny Miller and Bi uce Lietzke, winner of two tournaments and a leading $123,350 in an early-season burst, each had a 73 and a 146 total, one stroke over the cutoff score for the final two rounds. It was the fourth time this year Miller had failed to qualify for the final two rounds. Lee Trevino, on the comeback from major surgery last year, also missed at 75-

NBA probes stench of possible cage fix

NEW YORK (AP) - Earl Monroe bets, thanks to Monroe's wrongway of the New York Knicks scored a basket at the final buzzer against the Portland Trail Blazers Thursday night that has prompted an investigation by the National Basketball Association.

The last-second shot didn't decide the outcome, since the Knicks won 108-104. However, they were ahead 108-102 until Monroe shot the ball...into the wrong basket. The shot brought forth a sound described as something between a roar and a loud moan from the Madison Square Garden crowd of 14,527. Those who wagered on the

Knicks as six-point favorites lost their shot. Had the Knicks won by six, all bets would have been canceled.

The NBA office issued the following statement Friday:

"Under instructions from Commissioner (Larry) O'Brien, the NBA began an inquiry into this matter at the opening of business this morning. The inquiry continues and it is premature to make any further comment at this time."

The Knicks led 108-100 after Por-tland's Johnny Davis hit a jump shot with seven seconds left. The ensuing inbounds pass by New York's Bill Bradley was stolen by Lionel Hollins, whose lay-up made it 108-102.

Andy Bean blasts out of trouble on way to nine 3's.

Duncanville, Moore flex muscles

By BOB DILLON

Duncanville and Moore, Okla. posted impressive wins during the first round of the 3rd annual Tourney of Champions at Cubs Stadium

Wind-blown contests were the order of the day as the five high schools teams tried to get in two games each. but Mother Nature wouldn't have it as the Lee-Moore game was called in the fifth inning with the Lions on top 11-2 when a light failure occured. The featured game of the evening was called off between the two powers of the tourney - Monterey and Duncanville when they were unable to play due to darkness with the power failure. Five games are on tap today with the Monterey-Duncanville game still in question since it will take all day to get in the other five contests in the round robin meet. Lee went into the tourney unbeaten in six games, but found the going a bit rough, losing to Duncanville, defending Class AAAA state champions, 12-2 and to the Moore Lions, 11-MIDLAND HIGH also dropped two games, losing to Moore, 5-2 and to Monterey in a controversial 5-4 tilt.

In the opening game of the tourney Friday morning, Midland and Moore hooked up in an exciting contest

The Lions took a 2-0 lead off starter Robert Strack in the first inning with catcher Tony Lee knocking in one run and the other scoring on three walks.

Bob Fannin slammed a triple with two men on base and then scored on a Midland scored an unearned run off throwing error after two were out, but winner Ernie Baxter in the third to he missed first base and MHS apcut the lead to 2-1, but the Lions pealed the play and Fannin was called out, but the umps ruled that the two scored again in the fourth on a single

That gave the Plainsmen a 3-0 lead in the first inning, but the Pack came back with a run in the second with on four walks. Then in the third, Midland went ahead, 4-3.

KEVIN WIDNER walked and the Bulldogs got base hits by Johnston and Ricky Goode along with an error by shortstop Phil Bruedigam.

Monterey scored single runs in the fifth and sixth innings to pull out the narrow win to brings its season mark Errors in both innings gave the

Plainsmen the two runs they needed to win. The Moore-Lee game started out quickly and in the best weather of the day - in the beginning that is. Lee failed to score in the top of the first, but the Oklahomans went in front 2-0 in the bottom of the inning on a two-run homer by pitcher Donnie Graham. Jim Burnell, Lion third singled and came home when Graham belted a pitch over the wall in right field some 350 feet from home for the 2-0 lead. The ball sailed over the Big 2 sign, without aid of the wind which had finally died down. Lee came back to tie the game, 2-2, in the third inning. Clements and Richard Josefy struck out, but Richard singled and stole second and David Gillett walked. Van Horn unloaded a triple to the fence in right center to tie the game, 2-2, but died there when Don Rasure struck out swinging

ROOF THE caved in on the Rebs as the Lions scored another run in the third. Burnell doubled and came home on a fly to left. The peg to the plate appeared to nail Burnell, but Brad Wright dropped the ball. Burnell did not slide and a new rule this year states that the runner must slide at home. The run was ruled good, but Burnell was thrown out of the game by plate umpire Bobby Dunn.

The Lions scored four runs in the fourth and four more in the fifth to ice the contest, 11-2.

A triple by first baseman Hobie Horn and single by Bell were the key hits. Lee Tony Lee's double was the key blow in the fifth for Moore. Today, Monterey and Lee get things started in the 10 a.m. game followed by the Midland-Duncanville tilt at 12:30 p.m. Moore and Monterey tangle at 3 p.m. Duncanville and and Monterey will play at 5:30 instead of Lee and Midland who may still play at 5:30, at either MHS or Lee since they both lost twice Friday. Duncanville and Moore wind up , the tourney at 8 p.m. in the featured game.

When Frank Tanana signed a fiverealm of possibility. year contract for $2 million, he became the highest paid Texas a few weeks earlier.

The lefthander from Detroit, by his own admission, is a better pitcher than Montefusco, who blazed, except against Midland, across the Texas League horizon in 1974.

Tanana, however, hasn't been considered in the same league with Montefusco as a pop off, the kind reporters love, although Frank gets the edge on play boy reputation.

NOW WE'RE not so sure. A revision may be in order. Frank scored pretty heavily in the verbal foot department during the contract signing ceremonies. "At the end of the 1977 season, when they talk about the top pitcher in the game, I want Frank Tanana's name to come to mind immediately," the 23year-old announced with presumably with blushing modesty. It's a goal any pitcher worth his salt should seek. Most don't announce, but then most don't have Tanana's ability.

With this kind of confidence, it would seem he may have sold his services cheaply. With the kind of season he obviously is expecting, Tanana could have played out his option this year and Gene Autry would have had to give him controlling interest in the ball club or royalty rights to Back in the Saddle to keep him.

BUT TANANA has an explanation. "I'd be foolish to leave now that Gene Autry and Harry Dalton went out and got all that power (Joe Rudi, Don Baylor and Bobby Grich)."

Tanana fully expects the Angels to be in the World Series this fall and after a 19-10 season with a 2.44 ERA in 1976. Tanana expects his own personal contribution to be 20 to 25 victories with 30 entirely within the

The Texas League seems to have a priority on producing cocky, self-confident pitchers in the mold of Montefusco, Tanana, Al Hrabosky, the Mad Hungarian reliefer of the St. Louis Cardinals... and, come to think of it, Dizzy Dean.

According to catcher Andy Ett's one of the ingre ebarren necessary for success. "The thing about him is his confidence. Some people think he is cocky. It's just his way of getting ready. The other thing is, he is a hard worker."

IT ALL goes to make Tanana, says Etchebarren, "The best left hander in the American League."

Etchebarren gets no quarrel from Frank. "What do you mean I have a chance to be the best pitcher in baseball? I already am. I can win 30 games this season, if everything goes right. And if I can keep the ball in the park," says Tanana, who has a tendency to surrender late-inning homers, "My ERA ought to be 1.00", a nice, round figure, the kind Frank

But how quickly they forget. We can remember back to an April night in 1973 when Tanana, a grizzled veteran of 18, celebrating the purchase of his first razor, took the mound against

Sure, he beat Midland four times that year, lucking out with two, three and four hitters, but on this particular night, the Cubs owned him.

MIDLAND BATTERS cuffed him around like it was batting practice and left him a dejected, crestfallen figure, probably because he was late for his post-game date.

We recall it well, that night that Midland took out its fury on Tanana, and it was pinch hitter Bob Bussie who delivered the winning hit off a pitcher who had relieved Tanana with two out. It was Midland's fourth hit of the night and gave the Cubs a 1-0 victory....in 11 innings.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - The Cincinnati Reds announced Friday they have invoked the option renewal clause on their last three baseball holdouts, Pete Rose, Dave Concepcion and Rawly Eastwick, leaving five members of the world champions unsigned as the free agent deadline

The action came after fruitless final day negotiations between Reds General Manager Dick Wagner and the three players.

THE CLUB did not disclose immediately whether the trio would face the maximum 20 per cent salary cut. The Reds renewed the contracts of pitchers Gary Nolan and Pat Darcy

U.S. bids for a spot in world volleyball sun

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

It's been a crutch for American defeat. An excuse we could ultimately fall back on after being humiliated by the likes of Russia, Czechoslvakia, Cuba or East Germany.

In the face of international embarrassment, we could always glare stoically across the net or ice or basketball court at some dude with the unlikely sounding name of Vladamir Ripmeov, and say in our most understandable Brooklynese: "Sure ya' won, ya' Commie bum. Hell, ya' shoulda. You guys eat, sleep and play together 24 hours a day. I don't spend that much time with my

Inside, there wasn't very much consolation in these empty words, but they provided an emergency facesaver; an excuse for omni-potent America's sacrilegious crime of losing. In Russia, the government repays defeat with relocation to Siberia. In the United States, we like to use alibis instead, when they're handy, which is usually all of the

Two years ago, the town of Pasadena, Tex., decided the time for words was over, and the time for action was at hand. The enthusiatic residents of this Houston suburb (pop. 100, 000) took it upon themselves to approach the United States Volleyball Association and request that Pasadena become the central headquarters of the U.S. women's national team.

THEY WANTED to provide a place where the athletes could train fulltime toward their ultimate goal; that little something at the end of the rainbow - an Olympic gold medal.

The proposal was met with instant enthusiasm. For more than a decade prior, people closely involved with the United States Olympic movement had expressed the absolute necessity of lengthy training programs like this one to keep the United States on a competitive par with the rest of the world. Even when we were winning all of the medals, they had the foresight to see what was going to happen when our reign at the top ran its course.

But to successfully carry through with it takes government funding, which was almost non-existent two years ago, or the complete support of an entire city like Pasadena.

The United States was especially anxious to get its sagging volleyball program back on its feet, since the sport was invented right here in America, and now, countries like Japan, Korea, Russia and Cuba were spoon-feeding doses of defeat to no end. They had taken our own weapons, and were clubbing us over the head with them mercilessly.

SO. THE "Pasadena Plan" was put into operation in late June 1975, in an attempt to combat the poundings we were taking. Arie Selinger was shipped in from Israel to coach the team, and the best women's volleyball players in the country matriculated to Pasadena to train and qualify a team for the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

But there was trouble right from the start. Shortly after the team began practicing, a professional volleyball league sprung up out of nowhere, and the franchises wasted no time in invading the amateur ranks in search of

"Many moved from the amateur program into the professional league," admitted Selinger, who was dismayed by the situation at the time. "But it hurt the men's Olympic program probably more than the women's. We lost maybe only two or three players because of it.'

Admittedly, this was true. But one of the defectors from Pasadena turned out to be Mary Jo Peppler, regarded as America's best then. She was their Kareem-Abdul-Jabbar, Kenny Stabler and Joe Morgan all wrapped up into one.

On top of that came the frustrations of trying to qualify. Selinger's team was beaten in the zone tournament by Cuba, and then, in the final attempt to crash the Montreal party, they finished second to East Germany in a European at-large event.

Only the winner was eligible for the Summer Games.

But Selinger and Pasadena are starting anew in preparation for the 1980 Olympics in Moscow, and the prospects for success are getting better every day

THE NATIONAL team has already been chosen, and 16 girls are currently training full-time - five hours a day, seven days a week - in Pasadena. They are also competing regularly against college teams, and other national units. Next Thursday.

they'll take on Canada at the Lee Higi. School gymnasium.

According to Selinger, who hopes to get his U.S. citizenship very soon, the people of Pasadena have been unbelievably great in their support of the program.

"The players live and work in the city," he explained, and many more go to school at nearby San Jacinto College and the University of Houston. The community donates apartments to these girls, the different restaurants donate food, and of course the schools in Pasadena provide the practice facilities for us.'

The city also pays Selinger's salary. It isn't all peaches and cream yet however, even with Pasadena's support, and Selinger feels the two main obstacles to U.S. Olympic success in volleyball still exist funding and competition. "And they go together," he added. "If you do not have the money, you can not compete. The situation is not very good yet. We operate on an extremely low budget."

AMERICA'S WOMEN'S Olympic volleyball expenditure from 1976 until 1980 totals $250,000, and that isn't a great deal compared to other coun-

"Peru," Selinger said, "operates on a two and a half million dollar budget for four years. I feel to properly prepare an Olympic team requires a minimum budget of at least $300,000." But Selinger doesn't want it to sound like he's complaining, and he is thankful for small miracles.

"It's much better than it used to be," he added in defense of the U.S. Olympic committee. Can the United States be a contender for an Olympic gold medal in Moscow? Selinger thinks so.

"We're strong now," he said op-timistically. "Probably among the top eight in the world. Right now, some of the national team is in Los Angeles practicing with the junior national team, and they have several strong players that will complement the people I have down in Pasadena very well. And when we put the two squads together, we're going to be extremely good.

But they've still got to qualify for the Olympics and Selinger knows from experience how difficult that can be. Eight teams will compete in Moscow, and the host (Russia), last Olympic champion, and the winner of the World Championship tournament all are automatic qualifiers.

THE NEXT four berths go to the winners of the four zone tournament (Asia, Europe, North America and South America), and that will be the United States' first opportunity, excluding the World Championships. But Cuba will be back to defend the North American zone title. The final Olympic spot will be filled by the 'Roots" - and particularly since Haley's mention of Mormon genealogical facilities last month on the Johnny Carson Show - Mormans in Salt Lake City are being flooded with appeals for help from ancestorseekers of all creeds at the rate of one out-of-state telephone call a minute, a church spokesman said

For most of those inquirers, checking out one's family tree is only a pastime, albeit an increasingly popular one. Genealogical research is groups concerned about TV morality reportedly the third most popular have made: presenting few facts to hobby in the country, ranking after coin and stamp collecting

> For members of the Mormon faith. known more properly as the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, it is an important tenet of their religion.

Mormons search out their ancestors Centre Roman Catholic Diocese has in order that the living may serve as started its own TV programs to offer proxies in carrying out certain rites of salvation for dead relatives who for The Rev. William Avers, the whatever reason, neglected such rites diocese's radio and TV director, said in their lifetimes the diocese is scheduling 45 hours of programs a week, including 15 hours The church teaches that family ties of family-time televisjon for the 65,000 do not end in death but continue in the afterlife if "sealed for time and all 'We may not be perceived as a eternity" in sacred temple rites.

Mormons hold that happiness, in both this world and the next, is a big family. They believe that attainment of the most preferred status in eternity is dependent on carrying out the obligation placed on them by their religion to perform the proxy ordinances of their ancestors.

The church requires that the identity of any dead person for whom proxy work is done be fully documented: hence the church's establishment of genealogy research facilities not only in the master library in Salt Lake City but in 231 branch libraries around the

Elkins, a hospital administrator for the Navy, who is assigned to the Navy's Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, explained that the facilities are open to non-Mormons as well as to church members. "In fact we encourage non-Mormons to use the library," he said. Local Mormon libraries are listed in the telephone directory under Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Elkins has traced his ancestry back 35 generations, to the year 970. He is quick to credit his father and grandmother for doing a large part of the work - and knows first-hand both the pitfalls and the rewards of ancestor-

"You can start with name gathering, and you get all the names that are identical or similar," he said, pointing out that in earlier times, in handwritten documents, consistency in spelling was a virtue pursued by few at a time when most of the population was illiterate.

"We've found 23 different ways to spell 'Elkins.' In one will, a man mentioned his name three times and spelled it a different way each time," he

The Nordic system of patronymics, in which fathers' first names became their sons' last names, offers a special kind of puzzle to genealogists. Elkins explained "With patronymics, a son born to Hans Jenson was named not 'Jenson,' but 'Hanson,' just as Jenson's father would be named not 'Jenson,' but 'Jens Anderson,'" Elkins explained High infant mortality rates occasioned another custom that makes trouble for genealogists. "It was the custom to give children Biblical names. If the first child died, then the next child might be given the same name. One of my ancestors had three sons named Moses and none of them lived. There were 11 children born to that family, but only four names were

One "weirdo" in his family tree, Elkins said, "had four sons and he gave all of them the same name as his - and they all grew to adulthood.

"Since we as Mormons believe w exist after this life," said Elkins with a grin, "there are several individuals I just can't wait to meet!"

Published genealogies, Elkins said, are not always the most reliable records. "The accuracy may depend on why the record is needed. If they feel they just have to have an ancestor who came over on the Mayflower, they may take some short-cuts," he said. Even some of the genealogies recorded in the Bible, he added "cut out the black sheep.

Elkins says the Washington area is the "best in the country" for genealogical research, largely because of government facilities here. A local church member, June Andrew Babbel, has put together a comprehensive 135-page "Guide to Genealogical Research In the Nation's Capital.'

It is complete down to floor plans of institutions for such research and even instructions for getting there by Metrobus. It's available from local Mormon genealogical libraries for $5.

According to Elkins, Mormons rely heavily on all kinds of government records for tracking down ancestors: tax, army, pension, census, register and transfer of property and wills even poorhouse and prison records. Parish church records of baptisms, marriages and funerals are also considered highly reliable.

'England," said Elkins of the land of his ancestors, "is especially noted for keeping records.'

The Mormon library in Salt Lake City not only keeps records of all the persons whose existence has been verified for proxy rites - "We have more than a billion names on record," an official in Salt Lake City said last week - but is recording other material as well. "The church has had a program of copying down all the headstones in cemeteries through the South and New England," Elkins said. "The Salt Lake City library has crews out microfilming records all over the world - not only in England and western Europe but in Japan, Indonesia ..

"Many records are the only copy in the world that's in existence. So many records were destroyed in World War II. The faster we get these records microfilmed the better," he said.

A full roll of microfilm, Elkins said may contain "as many as eight volumes." The Utah library has more than a million rolls and is producing new ones at the rate of 4,000 a month. It is the third largest user of microfilm in the country.

Mormons believe all mankind has a common ancestor, the Biblical Adam, and that in heaven, as Elkins explains, "Father Adam will be the head of the eternal family and his lovely wife will be by his side."

They haven't been able to push the genealogical charts back quite that far. But they're working on it.

Uganda bishop says Luwum was murdered

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - "His excellency, the president, wants to see the archbishop in private." That polite word from a military guard, summoning Archbishop Janani Luwum before Uganda's President Idi Amin, marked the archbishop's last contact with church colleagues before he was killed, one of them related here.

"I wouldn't be surprised if Amin himself shot the archbishop," said the fellow bishop who was present on that final occasion and who subsequently slipped out of the country under threat to his own life while military men hunted for him.

"Everybody in Uganda knows the archbishop was murdered," he said. 'There's no question about it. He was murdered on orders of the one who had him arrested." Just who pulled the trigger remains indefinite, "but we know he was shot on the president's orders." The fellow bishop, one of four

Anglican bishops who have fled Uganda in the last month with a fifth exiled, spoke only with assurance he would not be identified, pointing out this would endanger the lives of many others still in Uganda

He gave the first full, eyewitness details of events on the archbishop's last day at the capital in Kampala to which all of the country's top church leaders had been summoned on Feb. 16. The bishop recounts:

At 9 a.m., the church leaders, Anglican, Roman Catholic, Eastern Orthodox and others, along with government officials were assembled n an outdoor square, ringed with soldiers and security guards.

On display in the center were weapons alleged to have been smuggled into the country to overthrow the government. Three prisoners were forced to read documents outlining the purported plot. Officials made lengthy speeches denouncing "these subversives."

"What shall we do with these demanded Amin's vice

"Kill them!" shouted the soldiers 'Kill them now!"

The churchmen sat silently. A senior military officer made remarks insinuating they also were involved. They then were ordered into an adjoining conference center. It was 2 p.m. Just before Amin himself arrived to speak, the churchmen were ordered into a separate room. They could hear his voice and applause but not what he said.

Afterward, a military guard of the president entered and told them they could go home, but that "his ex-cellency, the president, wants to see the archbishop in private." Another bishop sought to accompany the archbishop, but was stopped at the door. "No, no, you're not wanted," the guard said. "Only the archbishop.

Others waited for him outside at his car for two hours. On seeing the archbishop being led by two military officials into the Nile Hotel, the waiting bishops went to inquire. They were told he still was busy with Amin, and were ordered to leave. It was just after 5 p.m.

Several bishops drove to the ar-chbishop's house and informed Mrs. Luwum. She drove to the conference center area to check, but was turned back by armed guards at the gate. Meanwhile, the bishops joined in a half hour of prayer for the ar-chbishop. A 6 p.m. A radio report announced that he and two cabinet ministers were under arrest.

"We had all sorts of ap-prehensions," the fellow bishop said. "It was a terrible night."

Next morning, papers carried the story that the archbishop and the ministers were killed in an accident. Churchmen went to the hospital to claim his body, but were never allowed to obtain it nor even see it.

"The archbishop was too straight for Amin's hierarchy," the bishop said. "He had had a session with Amin earlier that week at the statehouse and made representations asking defense of human rights and human life. He left no truth unsaid."

Water review raises furor on Hi

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - A dispute over President Carter's plans to kill at least 19 major water development projects has opened a new and serious breach between Congress and the White House. It could endanger other parts of the President's program unless repaired.

Friday, the conflict appeared to be intensifying. White House press secretary Jody Powell said the President intends to pursue his attempts to kill any projects he deems "an inefficient use of the taxpayers' money.' His statement came a day after the Senate voted 65 to 24 Thursday to oppose Carter's plan to review the 19

Powell made clear the President will use all lawful means to cut projects once he decides they are based on loose criteria and that he will seek public support for his position. Otherwise, Powell said, Carter's goal of a balanced budget would be impossible.

However, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd (D-W.Va.), described the Thursday vote as "a clear signal

The furious and unexpected Senate floor rebuke to the President was led by senators Bennett Johnston (D-La.), Edmund S. Muskie (D-Maine), and other Democrats. It arose in part because flood control, irrigation and municipal water projects are of vital economic benefit to some regions of the country and are dear to the hearts of every senator and congressman.

have been saying Congress wants prior consultation - a chance to have some input - on major policy decisions.

Democratic senators, at an angry caucus with Vice President Walter Mondale last Wednesday morning and then at a meeting with the President Thursday morning, charged the proposed kills had been sprung upon them without consultation and without even adequate advance notice of the decision. On Wednesday, after listening for a few moments, Mondale smilingly remarked, "Hell, this is not a meeting, this is an ambush," according to several senators who were present.

One said, "Johnston and Muskie and George McGovern (S.D.) and Gary Hart (Colo.) just got up and

One complaint was that most senators first got wind of the proposed kills only three days before they were announced - and then at the end of the week when many were out of John Stennis (D-Miss.), a respected and normally very restrained elder, told the caucus that he expects a "general nationwide storm of protest" when the public got more information about what was happening. McGovern said the proposal to kill the Oahe irrigation project in his state was "the most severe political and economic blow in South Dakota since I came to the Senate.

"Muskie was absolutely livid" about the killing of a project in his state, said one who was present. "Wendell Ford (Ky.) said, 'We ought to go after these people not with a needle but with an auger'.

Look at opponents before sacrificing

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When you're considering a sacrifice bid, take a second look at the opponents. If you pass, perhaps the hand will be badly played. It is seldom wise to sacrifice against a bad player.
