Gandhi loses seat, decides to resign

By MYRON L. BELKIND

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi decided today to resign following the loss of her seat in Parliament and reverses suffered by her Congress party in the Indian general election, her spokesman said.

Opposition leaders began talks aimed at forming a new government. The prime minister's spokesman said Mrs. Gandhi would formally submit her resignation Tuesday, ending 11 years as leader of the world's second most populous nation. China has the largest population.

The Congress party, which has ruled India since independence from Britain 30 years ago, trailed by a wide margin in the parliamentary returns and appeared unlikely to win enough seats to stay in power.

With results declared in races for 393 of the 542 seats in the lower house of Parliament, the new Janata (People's) party and its allies had 211 seats, only 61 short of a majority with 149 still to be decided.

The Congress party, which won two-thirds of the seats in the 1971 elections, had 134 seats. The pro-Moscow Communists won seven seats, and independents and other groups split the remainder.

Most of the seats still to be decided were from constituencies in northern India, a center of Janata strength.

In Washington, State Department officials said it was too early to judge the effect of the elections on U.S.-Indian relations. They added no valid assessment is possible until a new government is formed in New Delhi.

Hours after the announcement that she had lost her own seat, the 59-year-old prime minister ordered the end of the state of emergency, under which she imprisoned thousands of her opponents, and the restoration of all civil liberties.

Proclaimed in June 1975 to keep her in office after her conviction on a charge of campaign irregularities, the emergency sparked a voter revolt that contributed to her downfall, the defeat of her son Sanjay in his first bid for office, and the eclipse of the ruling dynasty her father, the late Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, established 30 years ago.

The chief contenders to succeed her are two former leaders of the Congress party who broke with her, Morarji Desai and Jagjivan Ram. Desai, now 81, was Mrs. Gandhi's deputy prime minister in 1969 when she split the party in a struggle for power with conservative leaders. He and other conservatives formed the Opposition Congress, and in January it merged with three other opposition parties to form the Janata.

Ram, the 68-year-old leader of India's Untouchable caste, was the agriculture minister in Mrs. Gandhi's last cabinet. He broke with her last month and formed the Congress for Democracy, which won seven seats in the early returns.

There was speculation that Mrs. Gandhi's defeat would produce more defectors from her Congress who would rally behind Desai or Ram. Although separate parties, the Janata and Ram's Congress campaigned together and pledged to work together in the new Parliament.

No major shift in foreign policy is expected since the Janata's manifesto pledged adherence to India's traditional policy of nonalignment "free from any attachment to any power bloc." The party also pledged to restore all civil liberties and repeal the legislation Mrs. Gandhi put through during the emergency restricting freedom of the press and the independence of the judiciary.

Mrs. Gandhi lost her seat in Uttar Pradesh by 55,000 votes to Socialist leader Raj Narain, whom she had defeated in 1971 by 110,000 votes. Her 30-year-old son Sanjay, running for office for the first time after taking over leadership of the youth wing of the Congress party, lost the district adjoining his mother's by 75,844 votes.

Budget office staff receives high salaries

By W. DALE NELSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Items from a billion dollar budget:

—In the 1955 edition of the Congressional Directory, the staff of the House Agriculture Committee takes up eight lines. In the 1976 edition, it takes up 39 lines.

—The Congressional Budget Office, created partly to help hold the line on governmental costs, has a staff of 208 persons. Eighty of them make more than $27,000 a year.

—Two offices in a House building are being converted to Ways and Means Committee hearing rooms. The estimated cost is $200,000.

These straws in the winds of congressional spending are part of what former President Gerald R. Ford was talking about in his farewell State of the Union message Jan. 12 when he said the number of congressional employees in the 1970s "has increased substantially, although the membership of the Congress remains at 535."

Ford noted the total budget for the legislative branch now exceeds $1 billion for the first time in history and said: "Congress now costs the taxpayers more than a million dollars per member."

But most members of Congress reject the title "billion dollar Congress," arguing that nearly three of every 10 dollars in that billion is spent for purposes other than running Congress.

Legislators who review the Congress' budget also say they vigorously try to keep down expenditures. Some members of Congress dispute this.

Deputy Comptroller Robert B. Keller, in a Feb. 25 letter to Sen. Walter D. Huddleston, D-Ky., said $765 million of the $1.05 billion legislative branch budget is for Congress' operation. Huddleston is chairman of the Senate subcommittee on legislative appropriations.

Other items include such things as $10 million for the Library of Congress to prepare brittle materials for microfilming; $10.3 million for General Accounting Office branches in Frankfurt, Bangkok, Panama City and Honolulu, which check on U.S. spending abroad, and $1.3 million for the U.S. Botanical Gardens.

However you slice it, it's part of the legislative branch budget. And it is immune from budget cutting by the president's Office of Management and Budget. The only review is by Congress itself.

Much of the spending is also exempt from the kind of auditing the General Accounting Office applies to the executive branch.

Comptroller General Elmer Staats cited "statutory prohibitions against questioning certain types of transactions by Congress" and in testimony before a House subcommittee said his office can audit congressional committees, but not accounts of individual members.

Staats said such audits don't go beyond official records to determine whether expenditures were made as reported.

Keller disputed Ford's implication that Congress' costs are growing faster than executive branch costs. He said the congressional hike in the current budget is $70 million, or 8 per cent, compared with a 9 per cent increase in President Carter's overall spending proposals.

Explorers find shaft

By SUE MAJOR HOLMES

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (AP)—Treasure hunters looking for a legendary cache of gold supposedly hidden inside Victorio Peak have found a shaft which they say leads to a cave in the mountain.

One of the explorers said someone has been in the shaft since he went down it 20 years ago and saw piles of gold ingots.

The opening, just large enough for one person to pass through, was found Sunday after hours of excavation.

The object of the search is a cave stacked full of gold bars and other objects of unknown total value which the late Milton "Doc" Noss claimed to have discovered in 1937.

Noss had said he and a helper accidentally dynamited the opening shut. However, others claim to have been in the vault since.

The origin of the supposed gold is unknown, but some have speculated it was left by Indians or Spanish explorers, or perhaps by thieves.

The peak is on the restricted White Sands Missile Range, long off limits to treasure seekers who have heard the legend.

But the military and the state have given a 10-day search permit to Expeditions Unlimited, Inc., a Florida firm experienced in undersea treasure hunts, which has been hired by some of those claiming the treasure.

Expeditions Unlimited president Norman Scott said the statements of the three men who entered Sunday suggested that it was a passageway

Golf fee increase tops agenda

By LARRY SUTHERLAND

Midland City Council Tuesday will consider passage of an ordinance increasing Hogan Park Golf Course green fees.

Council will need to pass the ordinance on an emergency basis, with only one reading, if the fees are to be increased for this year.

Council will also consider amending the operating agreement with Midland College to clarify summer use of tennis courts at the college by college students. The council tabled consideration of this at the last meeting because of concern by some councilmen that the college was not properly maintaining the courts.

Consideration will also be given to approving Midland College's student

Senate votes against data call charge

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Senate voted 21-10 today to prohibit phone companies from charging for directory assistance or "information" calls.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, the sponsor, said he had asked commissioner Alan Erwin of the Public Utility Commission if outlawing such charges would automatically trigger a new rate case for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., and Erwin had said it would not.

Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan, opposed the measure. He said, "We're telling the Public Utility Commission that they don't know what they're doing, that we know more about what you're doing than you do."

If that is true, Moore said, "I think we ought to do away with them." He suggested that Doggett join him in sponsoring a bill to abolish the commission.

Bell responded immediately to the Senate vote with a statement from vice president Doyle Rogers, who said:

"Texas telephone ratepayers should strongly protest the Senate's action... With this bill, the Senate hits the pocketbook of at least 95 per cent of Texas telephone users. Hopefully, the House of Representatives will put an end to this anti-consumer move."

Bell contends that wiping out the revenue from directory assistance calls would result in the need to raise regular monthly phone rates.

Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules, said the prohibition could cost Bell as much as $41 million every bill in the state, he said in debate last week, will go up a minimum of 50 cents a month.

Carter, Fukuda open two-day talk session

By GEORGE GEDDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter welcomed Japan's Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda to the White House today and called the close U.S.-Japanese friendship "one of the most encouraging developments" on the international scene over the past 30 years.

At a ceremony welcoming Fukuda for a two-day official visit, Carter described the Japanese prime minister as "one of the great leaders of one of the greatest nations on earth."

The two men then opened the first of their three meetings, which was expected to focus on the May economic summit meeting in London and on global security problems.

Speaking through an interpreter, Fukuda said the purpose of his visit is to "see what we can do to build a new and more effective Japanese-American partnership."

Fukuda is one of the few foreign heads of government with whom Carter had met before taking office. Carter had traveled to Tokyo two years ago and had met Fukuda, who was deputy prime minister at the time.

Fukuda, who arrived here Sunday night, has a meeting scheduled with congressional and labor leaders during his stay here as well as a speech before the National Press Club.

The President also:

—Called a meeting of his Cabinet and invited Vice President Walter Mondale and farmers from five states to lunch to mark American Agriculture Day.

The farmers are Jose Hinjose of Edcouch, Tex.; Homer Foster of Menville, Iowa; Tom Davis of Coulee City, Wash.; W. Robert Hawrigan of Fairfield, Vt., and James Frazier of Bucksport, S.C.

—Readied a comprehensive election law revision plan for presentation to Congress on Tuesday, featuring what one administration official called "universal voter registration."

One administration source said the proposal deals with the electoral

Mexican policemen arrested in extortion effort

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Three high-ranking Mexican police officers and 12 policemen have been arrested in connection with the extortion of $14,000 from a Kentucky man who said he used the money to buy his son's freedom from a Matamoros policeman.

Jesus Rodriguez, head of the four-man state police bureau in Matamoros, was in jail Sunday as Mexican authorities, angered by the treatment of an American tourist, swept through this border city across the Rio Grande from Brownsville, Tex.

Matamoros Police Chief Ignacio Escobar and Commandant Oscar Villareal were also arrested but released on bond Sunday, according to a state police spokesman.

The 15 men were arrested by state police late Saturday night and charged "with various crimes." All 15 were also suspended pending further investigation.

Perry Lee Greer, Jr., a 19-year-old Southwest Texas State University sophomore, identified Villareal as the man who arrested him for marijuana possession at a Matamoros roadblock at midnight Tuesday. Greer said he was held for 22 hours until his father paid Villareal $14,000.

Young Greer also said Villareal took him to "a very fancy house" where Greer paid a man $30 to make a collect call to his father in Lexington, Ky. The house, one of four young Greer visited Saturday night accompanied by his father and state police officers, was identified as the Rodriguez residence, police officials said.

The Mexican policemen face maximum sentences of 25 years in prison if convicted, said a spokesman for the Tamaulipas state attorney general's office.

During a brief ceremony punctuated by smiling faces and apologetic speeches, Mexican authorities officially returned Greer's $14,000 and the keys to his son's 1976 Buick Sunday morning at the Matamoros police station.

"You have a sincere apology from the people of Mexico," Tamaulipas State Atty. Gen. Raul Albertos Betancourt told the Greers. "But remember, these things occur on the other side of the border also."

"We have a different opinion of Mexico today due to the friendliness and cooperation exhibited by the authorities," said the elder Greer.

Greer, part owner of a coal mining company in Lexington, said his son and Villareal were sitting in a police car on the Mexican side of the gateway bridge when Greer turned over the $14,000. Young Greer was then released unharmed.

The money and keys to the car were recovered at 2 a.m. Saturday, said Asst. State Chief of Police Angel Alvaro Perez.

"Mexican secret police had followed Villareal to a Brownsville service station and convinced him to surrender the money and car," said Perez Saturday when the Greers—accompanied by U.S. Consul Francis Arenz—were taken to the Matamoros police station and told the cash and car would be returned.

Perez said the secret police had been following Villareal since Thursday after hearing the Greers' description of the extortionist.

Mexican officers said the car was found in a Matamoros garage with a bag of "marijuana stems which are worthless in the trunk." Young Greer said the stems were planted by Mexican police when he was stopped at the roadblock.

The Greers said they contacted Arenz in Matamoros. His phone call to the attorney general's office in Mexico City sparked the immediate investigation.

Within hours after Arenz's calls, the Tamaulipas state governor ordered Perez and Asst. Atty. Gen. Leopoldo J. Bello Lopez into Matamoros with orders to "investigate this matter fully and make whatever arrests necessary," said Lopez.

The younger Greer was targeted by the extortionists because "he was alone late at night driving a big car with Kentucky license plates," theorized Lopez. "They thought his father probably had money."

"The Mexican authorities have proven to me that they are sincere in trying to clean this up," said the elder Greer. "Mr. Arenz has worked around the clock on this."

'Trigger' price raised; controls not reinstated

By THOMAS O'TOOLE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Although it planned to do so, the Federal Energy Administration never put kerosene and home heating oil back under price controls this winter because it raised the "trigger" price the fuels would have to break through to bring controls back.

the FEA recomputed the trigger price for the two fuels because the agency had not factored in the price increase for crude oil announced in January by the oil exporting countries.

The new trigger price for heating oil was raised almost two cents a gallon, from 43.5 cents to 45.4 cents in the Northeast and from 40 cents to 41.5 cents in the North Central states of Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota.

At the time the trigger price was recomputed, the real prices for heating oil in the Northeast and the North Central states were fractions of a penny below the trigger price. FEA Administrator John F. O'Leary had said that, if the price for heating oil ever reached trigger price, he would reimpose price controls.

Before recomputing a higher trigger price, the FEA granted what it calls "entitlements" worth five cents a gallon to importers of heating oil east of the Rocky Mountains. The equivalent of a price discount, the entitlements eased somewhat the upward pressure on heating oil prices when it appeared as if they might still exceed the new trigger price.

Through week before last, imports of heating oil to replenish dwindling stocks climbed to 700,000 barrels a day along the East Coast. These were record imports for heating oil.

Currently, heating oil's average selling price in the Northeast is 44.1 cents a gallon and in the North Central states it is 40.7 cents a gallon. The Northeast price is 1.4 cents under the trigger price and the North Central price is 0.8 cents a gallon below trigger.

The average price is not the price homeowners are paying for heating oil, which the FEA says is as much as 50 cents a gallon in New England and 46 cents a gallon in the Midwest.

The average price used by the FEA is the weighted price paid by all consumers for heating oil. Large customers like electric power companies pay as little as 35 cents a gallon for the huge volumes they order, which brings the weighted price down.

Synthetic materials in planes called fire hazard

The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — From seat cushions to plastic wall coverings, many of the synthetic materials currently used inside passenger planes pose "unnecessary fire hazards," a committee of the National Academy of Sciences has concluded.

In a newly released report, the academy panel calls on the Federal Aviation Administration to strengthen its fire safety regulations and speed the adoption of less hazardous materials for furnishings and decoration.

Many of the materials now in use, the 163-page report contends, "are deficient from the fire safety point of view," in part because current federal regulations overlook the toxic smoke and gases materials give off when they smolder or burn.

The panel of 19 researchers and public policy analysts also singled out smoking by passengers as an important cause of in-flight fires and urged that it be prohibited at all times aboard commercial airliners.

Overall, the academy's report observes, the U.S. aircraft industry and the FAA have made substantial progress during the past 20 years in improving the fire safety of passenger planes. The United States, which dominates the world market for commercial airliners, was judged to have a "relatively reliable and safe aircraft system."

Even so, preventable fires do still occur that involve interior cabin carpeting, seat and wall coverings, carry-on luggage, trash, and even the plastic air-conditioning ducts in the ceilings of passenger aircraft.

Moreover, the report says, large-scale tests and actual fires have shown that smoke and toxic gases can fill the upper part of an aircraft's cabin and lead to an explosive flash fire "within 2 or 3 minutes after initiation."

Considering these problems, the academy report concludes that it is "extremely questionable" whether interior materials currently allowed in commercial aircraft "represent a minimum acceptable fire-safety level...based on today's knowledge."

The Senate needs him

Sen. Edward Zorinsky of Nebraska must be quite a person, one we would like to know. You might have read something about him recently.

A freshman member of the Senate, Zorinsky, after six weeks in what has been termed the most august deliberative body in the world, felt the impulse to quit.

Life is short, he told his wife, and there must be better things to do with your time than serving in the U.S. Senate.

It is great, however, that Senator Zorinsky didn't quit. The Senate needs him and others like him.

We don't know too much about his politics. He recently switched from the Republican to the Democratic party, but one is safe in saying that the Senate can only benefit by having him around.

Zorinsky not only sees through the posturing of his colleagues, but he is willing to talk about what he sees.

If we can interpret the essence of the senator's lament, it is that the Senate is the slave of obedience to tradition. And tradition, of course, can lend dignity to a governmental body. But the kind of tradition Senator Zorinsky has in mind lends no dignity to the Senate.

It is the intention of indulging in self-serving oratory, wasting time on outmoded procedures, worrying about superfluous details and issues of seniority and patronage. Senators are members of Washington's most exclusive "club," and they don't let anyone forget it.

Critics have said as much about the Senate before, but it is rare to hear this coming from a member of the club.

Perhaps the freshman senator isn't impressed by the Senate's sense of self-importance because he comes from Nebraska, which doesn't have an "upper house" in its legislature. Nebraskans have run their state successfully for more than 40 years with a one-house or unicameral legislature.

Our two-house Congress serves the purpose of assuring an equal voice for each state as a coun-terpoise to the House of Representatives, where more populous states have larger representation. It's a good idea, and no one seriously is proposing to rewrite the United States Constitution the way Nebraskans rewrote theirs to streamline their legislative body.

But who knows what could sprout in the garden of political reform. Considering the pay raises recently approved for members of Congress, and the proposal that taxpayers begin subsidizing their election campaigns, it most likely will occur to some Americans that a lot of money is tied up in perpetuating a mutual-admiration and debating society in Washington.

Just look what happened to Britain's House of Lords. As the upper house of Parliament, it once was the most powerful. Through centuries of political evolution it has become largely a perfunctory body, an arena for ceremonious speech-making and not much else, while the real power lies in the lower House of Commons.

Just like a number of the U.S. senators, British lords were very conscious of tradition. They stuck to it until the world passed them by.

Now this is not to say by any means that the U.S. Senate is anywhere near the point where the British lords were when the House of Commons took the lead. Neither can it be said that the Senate has reached the point where it fails to serve the purpose for which it was intended.

But it is to say that steeped in tradition as it is, the Senate is headed in the same general direction as the House of Lords and it could become nothing more than a debating society over an extended period of time.

Hopefully, Senator Zorinsky can and will line up support sufficient to alter the Senate's course in this particular regard.

Anyway, he still is on the job, insofar as we know, and he undoubtedly will continue to state his opinions for one and all to hear.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

CIA strives to plug its leaks

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN
WASHINGTON — There has been a quiet but powerful effort to shut the lid on CIA scandals.

Three days after Admiral Stansfield Turner was sworn in as the new CIA chief, he spoke to Attorney General Griffin Bell about plugging leaks. Turner would like to impose criminal sanctions against government officials who disclose CIA secrets.

On Capitol Hill, Senate Intelligence Chairman Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, told colleagues that he had no inclination to investigate past scandals. His committee had enough to do, he said, just keeping up with current intelligence operations.

The committee unanimously agreed at a secret meeting not to dwell on the CIA's past. "The committee feels it is not possible with the resources available to investigate all past wrongdoings," a spokesman said.

There is one curious exception to Inouye's disinterest in old CIA skeletons. He directed his staff to proceed cautiously with an investigation of the John F. Kennedy assassination. This was a promise, Inouye explained, that he had made to the Senate.

But competent sources claim

Inouye has fallen under the influence of the CIA, which has quietly encouraged him to shut off inquiries into past scandals but to go ahead with a discreet investigation of the Kennedy murder.

The CIA's strategy, according to these sources, is to stymie the House assassination probe. Too close scrutiny of the tragedy might embarrass the CIA, which withheld crucial facts from the Warren Commission. The CIA, therefore, would prefer to shift the investigation to the Senate back burner.

This is merely one manifestation of the CIA's grim, new determination to keep out of the headlines in the future. For the CIA is largely behind the drive to tighten security in Washington.

As a result of this backstage push, both houses of Congress are preparing to take a new look at the secrecy question. There is growing sentiment on Capitol Hill, led by Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., to give the federal government the power to jail news leakers. President Carter, meanwhile, is trying to limit the number of people who have access to secret documents.

There are legitimate secrets, of course, which the government should protect. But invariably, the classification power is used to protect

A CHANGING WORLD: Carter doesn't owe labor all that much

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Copley News Service

The headline was crystal clear: "Carter Vows to Sign Picketing Bill." The meaning and impact are just as clear: The American people are in for another holdup by big labor, even little labor.

One would hope the President might change his mind, but he probably won't.

The bill the headline was talking about is a re-hashed version of the one providing that striking members of one tiny union (or massive one) can picket a construction job where members of other unions are working harmoniously.

The few (or many, as the case might be) strikers thus could shut down a big construction job in areas where in reality they had no jurisdiction whatsoever.

Former President Ford at one time said he would sign such a bill. However, his better sense eventually told him he shouldn't, and he vetoed it when the bill got to his desk. This cost him the resignation of his labor secretary. It enraged the like of AFL-CIO President George Meany and all the other labor bosses, and it provided the campaign gimmick that massed union labor against him in the 1976 election.

This nearly 100 per cent union opposition was a significant factor in his defeat at the hands of Mr. Carter.

Unions turned out strong for the victor — and this has caused many canny political observers to say that the labor unions now are running the country; at least determining who will win most elections.

Mr. Carter, of course, knows all this. Already he is looking forward to the 1980 election, and he knows that based on a study of 1976 voting, union labor will be the strongest single element he might have to contend with.

The legislation the President has promised to sign, at the urging of labor union bosses and Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall, is written in a manner designed to get around a Supreme Court decision that calls such secondary picketing illegal. As incredible as it may seem, Mr. Carter is quoted by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., Senate majority whip, as calling the picketing bill "a very useful piece of legislation."

Oversimplified, the bill that labor union bosses have sought for 25 years without success up to now would allow strikers to picket and shut down an entire construction site in a dispute with only one small subcontractor.

This, of course, will be like putting a gun in the face of contractors — and in the face of ordinary Americans who must buy houses, apartments, build stores and other commercial structures. Construction costs will have to go up. So, if you think you are being robbed now by some union wood butchers who get outrageously high wages for something less than a day's work and other construction workers, just wait until the President signs what is called the "common situs" bill.

Marshall, in testifying before a House Labor subcommittee, said, "Unfortunately, common situs appears to have taken on a symbolic significance that far exceeds the actual impact which it is likely to have on the construction industry."

Building contractors disagree. Chaos is likely to be the result and an even greater "public be damned" attitude by labor union bosses.

One has to hope that President Carter will change his mind, just as ex-President Ford did. He is riding a wave of nationwide popularity and really has no need to kowtow to George Meany or any other union boss.

Periodic rumblings reflect deep-seated apprehension

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The reason prominent New York Democrats are hiding their anger over the sacking of Kenneth Axelson as Deputy Secretary of the Treasury is quickly found in President Carter's soaring popularity. No mere politician wants to run into that buzzsaw.

At the same time that the Carter administration decided it would rather switch than fight for Axelson's nomination, a reputable local pollster showed the President's approval in New York City at 87 per cent (compared with 40 per cent for Mayor Abe Beame). Eyeing that glorious evidence of Mr. Carter's honeymoon with the American people, New York politicians held their tongues about poor Axelson.

But resentment over what they consider shabby treatment is retained, to be boxed up until such time as the President's hold on the public may decline. In his handling of the Axelson incident, as in many other matters, Mr. Carter is stockpiling resentment which is likely to be unleashed against the President if and when his public support declines.

Anger over the treatment of Axelson is limited largely to New York. But other incidents are having similar impact.

Item: Western politicians, particularly governors, privately accuse the President of being oblivious to the calamitous drought. That resentment is fueled by their feeling that some presidential aides (if not Mr. Carter) are intent on ignoring a region swept by the Republicans last November.

concluded it was no inadvertence; he stopped placing calls to the White House about two weeks ago.

Item: The periodic rumblings of Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd reflect deep-seated apprehension among congressional Democrats that the President is going over their heads to the public. On Capitol Hill, public praise for the President's radio call-in triumph was matched by private distress.

But the most personalized example of suppressed hostility is Axelson, the J.C. Penney Co. senior vice president who earned the respect of the political community as Beame's deputy mayor for the past troubled year. To have dropped Axelson because of a grand jury investigation that had generated no evidence of wrongdoing breaks all the rules of the political game as played in New York.

Actually, the immediate decision to drop Axelson was made by the man who tapped him for the post: Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal. Blumenthal for weeks fought off associates who urged him to get rid of Axelson but finally agreed after reading the grand jury transcript. While showing no wrongdoing, that transcript made impossible an immediate clean bill of health for Axelson.

Blumenthal was not acting in isolation. He could not help but feel pressure from senior presidential aides — White House counsel Robert Lipshutz and, to a lesser extent, Jordan — described at the Treasury as "nasty" about what was going to be done with Axelson.

Although not described as nasty, Jimmy Carter himself was also making clear his intense interest. While there is no evidence of the President pushing Blumenthal to get rid of the problem, there is no evidence whatever of Mr. Carter trying to save Axelson.

New York politicians believe a presidential salvage operation was in

Or Henry Kissinger in "An Evening With Bismarck."

Whitmore is running out of feisty Americans to portray. I hear he's studying up on Bella Abzug.

Until I watched Whitmore, I never realized how much Teddy Roosevelt looked like Harry Truman with a moustache.

Back in January, 1971, we revealed that the CIA had recruited Mafia mobsters to knock off Cuba's Fidel Castro. We named the mobsters and their CIA contacts.

We reported in March, 1972, that the CIA had plotted to block leftist leader Salvador Allende from taking power after he was elected president of Chile.

We broke the story in November, 1972, that the CIA, together with the FBI and Secret Service, had been spying on prominent Americans. We quoted from a secret CIA report on singer Eartha Kitt as evidence that the CIA had a strange interest in her sex life.

In April, 1973, we uncovered the fact that the CIA had attempted to obstruct the FBI investigation of the Watergate scandal. We divulged the following month that White House staff chief H.R. Haldeman had asked the CIA to hamper the investigation.

We told in May, 1974, of the CIA payoffs to world leaders. We followed with a report that the CIA had also provided visiting leaders with women. Among the recipients of CIA favors, whom we identified, was Jordan's King Hussein.

In February, 1975, we told of love traps which the CIA operated in New York City and San Francisco to blackmail foreign diplomats. Through hidden one-way mirrors, CIA agents filmed the sexual adventures of the diplomats.

Not long afterward, we broke the story that the CIA had paid the Howard Hughes organization a fantastic $400 million to recover an obsolete Soviet submarine from the bottom of the Pacific.

We have also written that the CIA had been penetrated by the Soviet KGB; that some CIA station chiefs have taken emoluments from foreign nationals; that the CIA has abetted the operations of foreign secret agents in this country; that CIA operatives have trafficked in opium in Southeast Asia.

These revelations, in our opinion, have never violated security. True, we have embarrassed the CIA. We have caught the CIA playing the same dirty games as the Soviet KGB. The purpose presumably was to enhance U.S. influence around the globe, but the result has been precisely the opposite. It was a mistake, we believe, for the CIA to operate at the KGB level.

Debate on new Senate conduct code to continue

By WALTER PINCUS
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Debate on a new Senate code of conduct, which last week grew personal and occasionally bitter, will heat up again today. The focus will be on whether invested as well as earned outside income should be subjected to limitation.

In the draft code, drawn up by a special committee chaired by Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.), a limit of 15 per cent of a member's salary ($8,625 at the current $57,500 rate) was applied to outside earned income. Exceptions were made for money received from family businesses and farms and from partnerships where the member's own services were not material to the concern's gross income.

A similar proposal passed the House.

As Nelson put it Friday, "I feel there is nothing that can be done about the investment income of wealthy people." He added, "Unearned income is passive income and earned income is not."

The unearned income that would remain unlimited for a senator under the proposed new conduct code would include not only dividends and interest from stocks and bonds, but also gains and losses from trading stocks, real estate or oil and gas leases or any other form of business investment enterprise.

Although senators have not been required in the past to disclose publicly such holdings or their incomes in these areas, some do.

A Congressional quarterly survey of 1973 voluntary income reports showed:

—Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.)

had gross incomes of over $125,000 in 1972 and 1973 because of capital gains on sales of real estate. Ribicoff also was listed as holding shares in 13 Washington area real estate ventures.

—Sen. Lawton Chiles (D-Fla.) reported extensive real estate holdings and a 1973 income of $112,534. Of that amount $66,346 was from partnerships.

—Sen. Walter Huddleston (D-Ken.) reported 1973 holdings in shopping center and real estate rental partnership and $38,849 from a partnership owning a radio station.

—Sen. Jacob Javits (R-N.Y.) reported income of $124,000. His holdings include oil and gas leases and land development partnerships.

—Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.) showed holdings of $419,624 in various properties with 1973 income including $4,900 in rents and royalties; $1,290 in partnership income; $11,069 in other business income and a real estate loss of $7,188.

—Sen. Mike Gravel (D-Al.) reported his gross income for three years, 1971-1973, averaged $65,000 and that he and his wife had a $124,500 investment in Mike Gravel Real Estate Inc.

Sen Edmund Muskie (D-Me.) is leading the fight against any limitations on income, arguing public disclosure — which has not been required in the past — is all that is needed now.

Muskie argued Friday that earned income, and particularly honoraria were picked out for limitation because they "are the only form of income we have had to report... that having reported then we become the visible target."

By AUSTIN SCOTT
The Washington Post

RULEVILLE, Miss. — This small, Delta town of 1,902 had never seen a funeral quite like it.

People denounced only 15 years ago as "outside agitators" and "troublemakers" were here Sunday as honored guests. And the American ambassador to the United Nations, Andrew Young, was leading a hand-clapping, foot-stomping chorus of "This Little Light of Mine..."

They came to honor Fannie Lou Hamer, one of the guiding lights of the Southern civil rights movement, and the two funeral services Sunday turned out to be a measure of how Ruleville, and the rural South it is so much a part of, have changed.

Mrs. Hamer was born a sharecropper who picked cotton from the age of six. She was the granddaughter of a slave.

The fact that Young, one of President Carter's closest advisers, came back home to deliver the eulogy is a measure of how far the nation has come since Mrs. Hamer was fired from the plantation where she had worked 18 years for trying to register to vote in 1962.

Outside the small, white, one-story Williams Chapel, where Young and other dignitaries, white and black, were praising her life, there was an overflow crowd of several hundred. It included the old and stopped who said they thought the changes Mrs. Hamer helped bring in the lives of blacks had benefitted the young far more than the old.

Fannie Lou Hamer was laid to rest here on this first day of spring in ceremonies that gathered once again many of the veterans of those civil rights movement days when most of the dignitaries in the chapel would not have been welcomed by the town's mayor, Virginia Tolbert, white and the present mayor, gave a special tribute from "the Ruleville community."

Young, a close friend and co-worker of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., was very much at home back in one of the churches he spent so much time in during the 1960s.

In his eulogy, he recounted the early days in 1961, 1962 and 1963, when, he said, "everybody here was afraid to even come to a voter registration meeting."

In a 15-minute talk that had the standing room only audience in the 300-seat chapel shouting, "That's right!" and "Tell the story, Andy!" Young said the "seeds" of a human rights movement that led directly to the election of President Carter were "sown here in the sweat and blood of you and Mrs. Hamer."

He gestured toward former Mississippi newspaper editor Hodding Carter III, who was seated with several other Carter administration officials who had come down with Young.

Hodding Carter "... was treated worse than us because he worked with us," Young said, and he "is now an assistant secretary of state."

He made similar references to the Mississippi Movement background of others there: Mary King, former women's adviser to President Carter and now deputy director of the ACTION agency, and Patricia Derian, a deputy director of Carter's campaign, who is now the state department's coordinator for human rights. "None of us would be where we are now had we not been here then," he said.

Speaking in the rolling cadences so familiar to those who heard him preach at countless mass meetings in the 1960s, Young said "Governors and heads of state ... know of this humble woman from Ruleville, Miss."

"Ruleville, Miss. got known even before Plains," he said, drawing an appreciative chorus of "Yes" from the audience. "In fact, if it hadn't been for Ruleville, you might never even have heard of Plains," he said.

Then he talked of a trip Mrs. Hamer made with several other people to Iowa in the summer of 1964 to visit the late Sen. Burt Hickenlooper. That trip, Young said, helped break "the filibuster and passed the Civil Rights Act of 1964." "And we put together the coalition of good will which a year later, after Selma, passed the Voting Rights Act of 1965."

At the end of his eulogy, which described Mrs. Hamer as a "woman who literally helped turn this nation around," Young began clapping his hands and burst into "this little light of mine ..." a song that was a particular favorite of Mrs. Hamer's. The audience responded with an enthusiastic burst of joyous singing.

Earlier speakers, a litany of famous names from "The Movement" days, had emphasized that Mrs. Hamer, who died of cancer Monday at 59, was an inspiration whose life was to be celebrated, not mourned.

"She is us ... She represents the very best in us ..." said Stokely Carmichael, who once was an organizer in Mississippi.

Dorothy Height, head of the National Council of Negro Women, spoke of the community farms and community freezers and day care centers which Mrs. Hamer helped start to benefit poor people.

Other speakers at both services included Rep. Charles Diggs (D-Mich.); longtime friend and co-worker Aaron Henry; now Democratic Chairman of Mississippi; Georgia State Sen. Julian Bond; John Lewis and a host of others who worked with her.

"... Go on, Mrs. Hamer, go on to your reward ..." said Vernon Jordan, president of the National Urban League. "And when you get over there, tell Medgar, tell (Michael) Schwerner, (James) Chaney, and (Andrew) Goodman (the three civil rights workers killed near Philadelphia, Miss.) tell Whitney (Young, Jordan's late predecessor), tell Martin (Luther King Jr.) and Malcolm (X) that freedom is not yet won, but we're still on the case."

Reagan to give speech

FORT WORTH (AP) — An estimated 2,000 cattlemen were expected to be on hand today for the luncheon speech by former California Gov. Ronald Reagan at the centennial convention of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association.

Reagan is among three politicians slated to speak to the cattle raisers at Tarrant County Convention Center this week.

Others include Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who is scheduled to speak at 9 a.m. Tuesday, and John C. White, newly appointed deputy U.S. secretary of agriculture, who is scheduled to speak at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday.

French market slides with leftist victories

PARIS (AP) — The French stock market fell sharply today after the Socialist-Communist alliance won a popular vote majority and control of more than 70 per cent of the big cities in Sunday's local election runoff.

One broker blamed the slide, which averaged about four per cent, on "jittery Black Monday trading" and added, "you can't say where it will go."

Sunday's results spelled the biggest defeat ever for the conservative-centrist coalition the late President Charles de Gaulle forged after he established the Fifth republic 19 years ago.

It opened a year of hard political fighting in preparation for National Assembly elections, scheduled for March 1978.

Observers said the stock market seemed to react in particular to leftist plans to nationalize French industries if it takes power.

The French franc held firm in currency trading at just under five to the U.S. dollar, but a trader said the government was intervening heavily to protect the currency.

Leftist leaders said Sunday's voting showed the French people no longer feared the prospect of leftists in power.

"There's a strong wind blowing and the country has sensed it," said Socialist leader Francois Mitterand.

"I don't say victory in the future is a sure thing, but it's certainly a good sign for the future," said Communist party leader Georges Marchais. "They've been saying for years that the left in power means the Apocalypse, but the people don't believe that anymore. We talk about what we're going to do and nobody gets scared."

Premier Raymond Barre and the government ran a demoted campaign saying voting for the left equals collectivism. It doesn't work any more."

The left came out of the local voting on the past two Sundays controlling 156 of the 221 French cities with more than 30,000 population and 51 per cent of the total vote.

The moderates and conservatives who make up the National Assembly majority of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing got 47 per cent of the vote and kept 66 cities, including Toulouse, Strasbourg, Nancy, Metz and Bordeaux. Eighteen other cities went to parties and candidates who usually vote with the government.

The Socialists won control of 82 cities, the Communists 71 and other leftist groups not affiliated with them got three.

Rhodesian brandishes rocket use

Agence France-Presse

LUSAKA, Zambia — Rhodesian nationalist leader Joshua Nkomo Sunday warned Rhodesian whites against accepting any internal settlement with rival nationalist Bishop Abel Muzorewa and said the must be prepared to face Soviet rockets if they did.

Observers here said Nkomo's warning indicated he had reached some kind of military pact with the Soviet Union during his recent visit to Moscow.

Nkomo held a press conference here to mark Zimbabwe (Rhodesia) Day, which officially falls on March 17.

Nkomo, leader of the Zimbabwe Africa People's Union (ZAPU), is also joint leader of the Patriotic Front with Robert Mugabe.

Briscoe to name White successor

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe names a successor today to John C. White, who resigned as state agriculture commissioner to become deputy U.S. secretary of agriculture.

Briscoe said he would make the announcement at a 2 p.m. news conference.

White resigned last Thursday at the same time he was sworn into federal office. He had been state agriculture commissioner for 26 years and 75 days.

At least five persons have been mentioned as possible Briscoe choices for the job that will last until voters name a commissioner in the November, 1978, general election. The appointee must be approved by the Senate.

Prominent on the list of possibles was Bill Pieratt, 61, Giddings, who was White's deputy for 11 years. Pieratt, a former state legislator, has said he wants the job but has had no indication from Briscoe.

Rep. Pete Laney, 33, D-Hale Center, wealthy West Texas farmer, also wants the job, as does Rep. Joe Hubenak, 39, D-Rosenberg, an accountant and three times chairman of the House Agriculture and Livestock Committee.

Two of Briscoe's aides have been included in the speculation.

Mrs. Morris services held

LAMESA — Services were at 10 a.m. today in the First United Methodist Church for Mrs. Bessie Jewel Morris, 83, of Lamesa, who died Saturday in a Lamesa hospital after an illness.

Midlander's mother dies

WICHITA FALLS — Mrs. Dolly Wright, 72, died Saturday in a Wichita Falls hospital. She was the mother of Jesse W. Wright Jr. of Midland.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Hampton-Vaughan Funeral Home, with Dr. William Pinson, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Wichita Falls, officiating, assisted by the Rev. E. V. Johnson, associated pastor.

Burial will be in Crestview Memorial Park.

She was born July 1, 1904, in Warren, Ark., and had lived in Wichita Falls for 37 years. She was a member of the First Baptist Church of Wichita Falls.

Survivors include her husband, two daughters, one son, two sisters, one brother, seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Midlander's father dies

FORT WORTH — Services were at 2 p.m. today at Gause-Ware Funeral Home of Fort Worth for Henry F. Cunningham, 85, who died Saturday morning in Fort Worth.

He was the father of Kenneth H. Cunningham of Midland. Other survivors include one daughter and two sons.

Rev. Pryor services set

ODESSA — Services for the Rev. E. M. Pryor, 87, tentatively are scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Shiloh Baptist Church, with the Rev. L. V. Miles of Fort Stockton officiating. Burial will be in Odessa Cemetery, directed by Thomas Pryor Funeral Home of Midland.

Pryor's body was found Friday morning by a rancher about 18 miles northeast of Midland after he had been missing since Dec. 22, 1976, when he apparently wandered away from his Odessa home.

Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith was called to the scene about 1:30 p.m. Friday. Identification was made late Friday.

Justice of the Peace Robert Pine said he would withhold ruling on the cause of death pending an autopsy. He and sheriff's deputies said death apparently was because of natural causes.

He was born April 12, 1889, in Polk County, Ga., where he was reared. He moved in 1957 from Vernon to Odessa, where he had been pastor of the Shiloh Baptist Church for 14 years until he retired about one year ago. He was married to Alberta Scott in 1959 in Vernon.

Barry Scobee rites Tuesday

KERRVILLE — Barry Scobee, 91, known to many West Texans as the "Sage of Fort Davis," died Friday in a Kerrville hospital.

Services will be at 11 a.m. Tuesday at Hillcrest Cemetery at Fort Davis, directed by Geeslin Funeral Home of Alpine.

Scobee had written several books of history of the Davis Mountains and Big Bend area and had written more than 1,000 stories about the mountain and canyon country.

Scobee was born May 22, 1885, in Pollock, Mo.

Garland Trice dies in Lamesa

LAMESA — Garland L. "Doc" Trice, 67, of Lamesa, died Sunday morning in a Lamesa hospital after a long illness.

Services will be at 3 p.m. Tuesday at the First United Methodist Church of Lamesa, with the Rev. Alvis Cooley, pastor, officiating, assisted by the Rev. W. L. Strong, associate pastor.

Burial will be in Lamesa Memorial Park, directed by Branon Funeral Home.

Trice, an Erath County native, lived for 61 years in Dawson County, where he was a school teacher and later school administrator for more than 34 years.

He was a member of Lamesa Masonic Lodge No. 909 and the El Paso Scottish Rite. He was a U. S. Navy veteran of World War II.

He was married to the former Viola May Stovall June 30, 1946, in Lamesa. He was a member of several professional and civic organizations. He taught Sunday School and served on the official board of the First United Methodist Church.

Survivors include his widow; two sons, Derry Trice and Melvin Trice, both of Lamesa; a daughter, Mrs. Donald Pierini of Austin; and two sisters, Mrs. Loyce Fodor of Reim, Calif., and Mrs. Wanda Watts of Wasco, Calif.

Midlander's father dies

CRANE — Services will be at 3 p.m. today at Sheppard Funeral Home for Clyde Doolen, 69, who died at 7 p.m. Friday in a Crane hospital after an illness. He was the father of Mrs. Jo Beth Magood of Midland.

Burial will be in Crane Garden of Memories.

He was born Oct. 25, 1907, in Navarro County and had lived for 37 years in Crane, where he was a retired lease operator and a member of the Church of Christ. He was married to Annie Collier July 12, 1945, in Crane.

Survivors include his widow, two daughters, a son, two sisters, three brothers, eight grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Oatis Darr rites pending

Services are pending in Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home for Oatis M. Darr, 83, of 1804 W. Cuthbert Ave. in Midland.

Darr died early this morning in a Midland nursing home.

He was born Oct. 20, 1893, in Hill County and lived there his early life. Darr married Betty Newton in 1915, and she died in 1975. He established a cabinet shop in Midland in 1948 and retired in 1967.

Survivors include a son, Ferris Darr of Midland; a brother, Jack Darr of Cleburne; a sister, Mrs. Katie Applegate of Blum; five grandchildren, and 11 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Milstein services held

Services were held today in Cook-Walden Funeral Home in Austin for Mrs. Marjorie S. Milstein, 60, of 2605-A Haynes Ave. She was buried in Austin's Temple Beth Israel Cemetery.

Mrs. Milstein died Sunday in a Midland hospital.

She was born July 29, 1916 in Memphis, Tenn. and moved to Midland in 1951.

Survivors include a son, Jerry Milstein; a brother, A. B. Strauss of Midland, and one grandchild.

Albert Hunter rites pending

Services are pending at Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home for Albert E. Hunter, of 1200 W. Missouri Ave. He died this morning in a Midland hospital. Hunter was a pharmacist for Skaggs Albertsons.

Merchandise taken from car

About $1,500 in china, paintings, stereo equipment and other items were stolen sometime between 12:30 a.m. and 7:50 a.m. Sunday from a car at the parking lot of Scottish Inn, Interstate 20 and Holiday Hill Road in Midland.

William Pyne, a Dallas resident and guest at the motel, reported the theft of the items from his car to Midland police. Police said entry was gained by prying open the left front door.

MOTORCYCLIST INJURED

A 22-year-old Midland man suffered a fractured right wrist after a motorcycle he was riding lost control while making a turn in the 1100 block of South Main Street Sunday night.

Midland police said Ricky J. Hamilton, 1511 S. Colorado St., lost control of the motorcycle and overturned three times. He was charged with failure to control speed by the police.

Hamilton was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital, where he was admitted in satisfactory condition.

Hotel fire kills two

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Two persons died and at least nine others were injured when fire gutted an old downtown hotel, authorities said.

Ambulance drivers said they took five persons to hospitals with minor smoke inhalation, three suffering from cardiac arrests triggered by smoke inhalation and two with second and third degree burns.

One ambulance attendant was treated for smoke inhalation.

The fire erupted Sunday night on the second floor of the Silver Dollar Bar, Club and Motel, which housed mainly welfare recipients.

Studies say grass doesn't harm brain

CHICAGO (AP) — There is no evidence that heavy marijuana smoking changes the structure of the brain or central nervous system, two research groups conclude, despite earlier evidence that part of the brain wasted away under prolonged smoking.

The new studies, carried out independently, are reported in the March 21 issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association.

The earlier study was reported in 1971 in Lancet, a British medical journal, in which researchers testing 10 young men who were heavy users of marijuana found evidence of atrophy in the brain.

The British study, conducted by Dr. A.M.G. Campbell of Bristol Royal United Hospitals and his colleagues, was done with an X-ray technique involving injection of air or gas to outline portions of the brain.

The new studies involved a recently developed X-ray technique, called computerized transaxial tomography, in which no gas injection is needed to outline sections of the brain as the head is scanned.

One was conducted by Dr. Ben Co, of the Washington University school of medicine in St. Louis, and by Dr. Donald Goodwin, of the University of Kansas school of medicine in Kansas City, Kan., and their colleagues.

The second was carried out by a team of Harvard medical school researchers headed by Dr. John Kuehnie.

The first of the two studies involved 12 young men who had smoked five or more marijuana cigarettes a day at least five years.

The Harvard team studied 19 males from middle- to upperclass socioeconomic backgrounds who were heavy marijuana smokers. They were kept in a hospital research ward so their behavior could be closely watched.

DEAR ABBY

TV ads more offensive than in newspapers

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I see that you've launched a campaign to get rid of "offensive" TV commercials. You told your readers to write to the heads of the networks, and to boycott the products whose TV commercials offend. You insist that if enough people protest in this manner, offensive commercials will be driven off the air.

According to you, ads for Kotex, Tampons and douches, plus aids for hemorrhoids and diarrhea are "offensive."

Why pick on TV? Why not extend your crusade to cleaning up newspaper ads, too? Is it because newspapers publish "Dear Abby" and provide your bread and butter, and TV does not?

Just where do you draw the line, Abby?—CURIOUS IN CHICAGO

DEAR CURIOUS: I draw the line when while entertaining my rabbi, my father-in-law and my teen-age nephew, the TV is turned on and suddenly we are informed that a new disposable douche now comes premeasured and in two lovely fragrances!

Had I read this ad in a newspaper it would not have been offensive. But to hear it in the presence of the aforementioned company is an embarrassment that I certainly would have avoided—given a choice.

DEAR ABBY: Is there some gracious way I can encourage my daughter-in-law to invite us for dinner?

My son has been married for three and a half years and we have never been invited to their house for dinner. She has been to my home for all holidays, and drops in right at dinnertime several times a month. So obviously she is willing to eat with me—but just at my house.

My feelings have really been hurt when I hear that they have entertained their friends, my other son and his family and my daughter and her friend for dinner.

Should I say something to my son? I am really surprised at him because we've always been a very close family.

They both read your column, so maybe they will read this and get the idea. Please don't mention my name or town. Oh, her folks have never been invited, either. Thank you—HURT

DEAR HURT: There is no gracious way to invite yourself to anyone's home for dinner. No, I wouldn't mention it to my son if I were you. He knows. And I'd rather stay home than ask to be invited.

DEAR ABBY: I go to Hospital turns into museum

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Marcia Weisman is out to prove that a hospital can be a nice place to visit.

She is transforming the plain rooms and stark corridors of the mammoth westside Cedars-Sinai Medical Center into an art museum, with works ranging from Persian and Renaissance reproductions to contemporary paintings, sculpture and photography.

The year-old hospital has received some 2,000 donated art works so far, and each of the 800 patient rooms in the eight-story complex has its own painting, says Mrs. Weisman, chairman of the center's Advisory Council on the Arts.

And, she adds, the soon-to-be-opened suites on the top floor will be adorned with lithographs by Picasso and Miro, including some limited editions.

the barber shop once a week. I am bald on top, and all I ever need is a little trim around the ears and a bit of clipping on the back of my neck, so it takes my barber exactly six minutes to give me a haircut. I pay the standard price, of course.

Now the man who has a full head of hair and has saved up a month's growth takes about five times as much of the barber's time as I do, yet we both pay the same price for a haircut why? I think barbers should charge according to the amount of time they spend with each customer. I would appreciate your opinion, and the opinion of others.

—BALD, BOTHERED, BEWILDERED
DEAR BALD: Considering how much a haircut (even a little trim around the ears) does for a man's morale, it's a bargain at any price. Don't split hairs.

VIM gives assistance by calling

Mrs. Mary Lewallen, a volunteer caller for three years, regularly contacts five subscribers to the Telephone Reassurance Service.

Volunteers in Midland originated a Telephone Reassurance Service in 1974 to assist the elderly, handicapped and others who reside alone.

The VIM office reports this service has proven to be very successful. It consists of brief daily telephone calls by trained volunteers who check on the well-being of the subscribers who live alone. Most of the recipients of this service are recommended by friends, relatives, churches, and other organizations concerned with the well-being of the potential subscriber.

Persons personally interested in the service, or who know of someone who would benefit from it, or those interested in participating as volunteer callers may contact VIM, 682-1666, between 9 a.m. and noon Mondays through Fridays.

Pat Walker's showed Joanne Milner how to lose 53 pounds. We can help you, too.

When Joanne Milner came to Pat Walker's in December, 1975, she weighed 179 pounds. Her weight had been a long-term problem for her—even her career as an actress and opera singer had been affected. As she put it, "Who wanted to see a 236-pound Carmen?" Despite everything she had tried, she couldn't seem to lose enough weight, but she still wanted very much to have a figure she could be proud of. Then she began her Pat Walker's program. Her success story could easily be yours.

The Pat Walker's method

From the moment you enter a Pat Walker's salon, you'll know that you've found a place where you can lose weight in a dignified manner. Every salon is elegant and quiet...a serene setting so unlike the confusion you may have encountered at spas or gyms.

At Pat Walker's, you're treated as a special and valued patron. Our professional counselors will work with you from your very first visit, helping you achieve your goal.

You will be encouraged by our positive motivation.

No strenuous exercise

If you think you have to squeeze into a revealing leotard and groan through difficult exercises with a group of women, you'll be pleasantly surprised at Pat Walker's. There is no strenuous exercise.

No special clothing is required, so there's no need to disrobe. Your treatments are given in complete privacy. Safe, passive exercise on Pat Walker's exclusive exercise unit tones your tissues, improves your circulation, helps correct your posture.

You lose weight and inches where you should, regardless of bone structure or previous failure to lose.

Individualized programs

No two figure problems are identical. That's why every Pat Walker's program begins with a confidential figure analysis to determine how many treatments will be required. We will tell you exactly what it will cost you to reach your perfect figure.

A new life for Joanne Milner

Today Joanne Milner weighs 126 pounds. She's gone from size 16 to size 8—and she says she's ready for any role she's asked to play, especially romantic leads!

Twenty-five years of success

Since Pat Walker began developing her method of successful weight reduction twenty-five years ago in Los Angeles, hundreds of thousands of women have reached their weight goals at Pat Walker's salons. Today Pat Walker is internationally heralded as one of the foremost authorities on weight reduction methods.

You can easily join those thousands of satisfied women all over the world who have reached their perfect figures at Pat Walker's. Whether you have many pounds to lose or just a few, we can help you.

Call today for your complimentary treatment and figure analysis

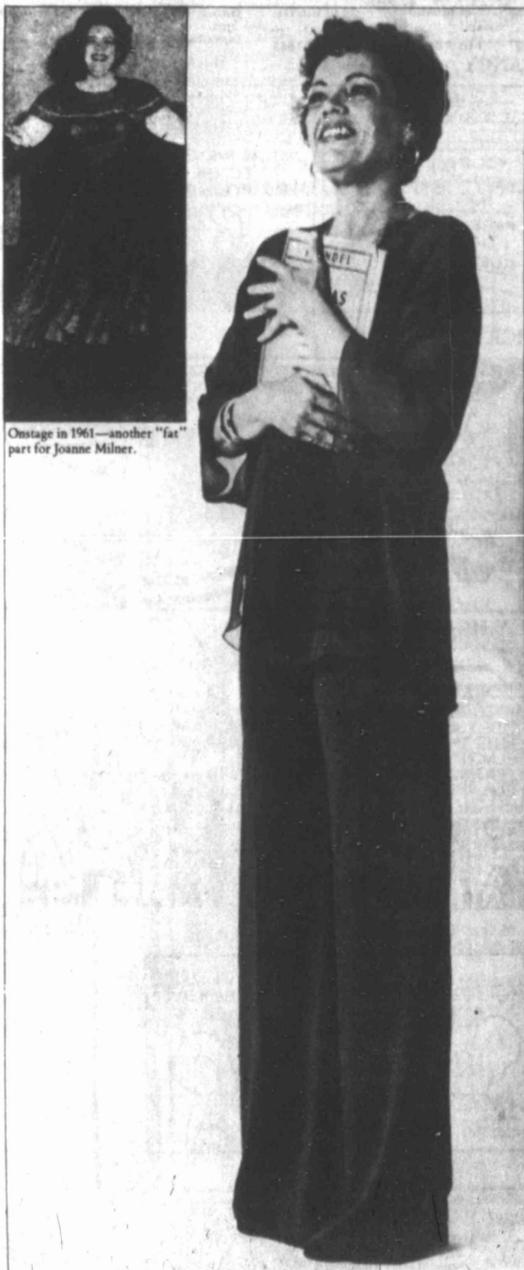

There is no charge and no obligation when you call Pat Walker's for a complimentary treatment and figure analysis. When you visit one of our salons we can tell you the total cost of your figure correction, based on an average of three dollars per treatment.

Why wait another day? Call the Pat Walker's salon listed below and make an appointment to come in.

All you have to lose is unwanted pounds and inches.

Guthrie remains unaccepted in his hometown

I'm not ashamed of the state I come from, Oklahoma, and Oklahoma's real soul is not ashamed to have me come from her sandy hills and sticky weeds. — Woody Guthrie

By RONE TEMPEST
Dallas Times Herald

OKEMAH, Okla. — If it were Will Rogers of Claremore, or Mickey Mantle of Commerce, or even Johnny Bench of the microscopic, central Oklahoma town of Binger, it might have been different. Those native sons of the Sooner state have all been triumphantly feted, honored and enshrined in their hometowns.

But the fate, and some here say the curse, of this hilltop town 75 miles east of Oklahoma City, is that the most famous person ever to claim it as his home was Woodrow Wilson Guthrie, said by some to be the greatest folksinger of this century.

Woody Guthrie was the national symbol of the Dust Bowl. He was the author of two novels, and at various other times an artist, bootlegger, bawdy poet, faith healer, sign painter, and composer of such songs as "This Land is Your Land," "So Long It's Been Good To Know Yuh," and "East Texas Red."

He wrote over 1,000 songs. He was the spiritual sire of Pete Seeger, Ramblin' Jack Elliot and Bob Dylan, and the natural father of Arlo Guthrie, the contemporary folk hero. Some of his songs are so similar to those of Dylan that it is almost embarrassing.

In the 40's and 50's, members of the

New York literary establishment adopted him as a folk hero, and dubbed him such things as "an authentic genius of our times" and "a national possession like Yellowstone and Yosemite and part of the best stuff this country has to show the world." In 1966, former Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall named a Bonnevile Dam electric sub-station after him and waxed:

"Yours was not a passing comment on the beauties of nature, but a living, breathing, singing force in our struggle to use our land and save it too."

Most recently he has been treated heroically in the movie based on his novel, "Bound for Glory."

Despite lavish praise from the lofty and a Hollywood beknighting, Woody Guthrie has never really been accepted by the people of his hometown. Since he was born here in 1912, grew up to go fishing with the boys down at Yorky Creek and left to ride the rails in 1929, he has been a controversial figure here, known to some as a Communist and a no-good freeloader, and scorned as a man who deserted his wife and kids in Pampa, Tex., in 1937.

But like a bad penny or a guilty conscience, his name continues to haunt the town that has been unwilling to claim him as its prodigal son.

His movie played to sparse audiences for five days at the Crystal theater and, for those who bothered to see it, rekindled emotions that have always colored his reception here. "I thought it was real good filming and acting and so forth," says Harry Scoufos, owner of the Sooner Drug Store and chairman of the county

Democratic party. "But I think that the attitude displayed was really what a lot of people here have always said about him — that he was quite a bum."

On the last day the film appeared, the town was hit by the worst dust storm residents say they have seen since the dust bowl days of the '30s. "We were having a dust storm when we went into the movie," says

ENTERTAINMENT

Scoufos. "The movie was about a dust storm, and we were having a dust storm when we came out."

The movie came and went with the dust storm, leaving the town with the same essential dilemma it has faced for four decades — what to do about Woody Guthrie. To this date, the only monument to Guthrie is a tombstone in the town graveyard and his name on one of the town's three water towers. Two of the towers, which loom on a hill over the nearby interstate highway, are labeled "HOT" and "COLD." The third tower, a modernistic structure looking like a huge yellow lightbulb, bears the inscription: "Home of Woody Guthrie."

The last tribute, placed there when the new water tower was built in 1972, was opposed by the Okemah City Council and the chamber of commerce and is more a political coup by a maverick, Democratic oilman who controlled the county waterboard, than it is a reflection of the town's feelings.

The old London House, the last home still standing in Okemah where Guthrie and his family once lived, is a shattered wreck, its walls marred by graffiti and the scribbles of would-be poets. A move to set aside part of the Okfuskee County library as a "Woody Guthrie Corner" failed in 1967. Today the library stocks only one of his books and a few clippings about his life. The Okemah High School library, meanwhile, carries neither his books nor any of his recordings.

An effort in 1971 by former Oklahoma U.S. Sen Fred Harris to celebrate Guthrie's July 14 birthday in Okemah as National Woody Guthrie Day, also failed, largely through the efforts of Allison A. Kelly, president of the Chamber of Commerce and head of Citizens State Bank in the town. Letters to the state's leading newspapers described Guthrie as a "Communist" unworthy of any memorialization as long as Americans were dying in Vietnam.

Kelly pointed out that Guthrie wrote a column for the Daily Worker, the national Communist newspaper, and that testimony of an undercover agent for the FBI, since convicted of perjury, before the House Committee on Internal Security, identified him as a Communist. In fact, despite the strident protestations of some of his followers, a few of whom go to great lengths to portray him as a simply misguided populist, Woody Guthrie probably was a Communist, or at least a devotee of Communist party ideas.

It is the yoke of communism which more than anything else has prevented his memorialization here. Though in the early 1900's Okemah and many other, poor, southeastern Oklahoma towns were havens for large numbers of socialists who helped socialist presidential candidate Eugene V. Debs get 16 per cent of the state vote in 1912 and a socialist candidate for governor, 21 per cent of the vote in 1914, today they are among the strongest anti-socialist and communist strongholds in the country.

Until recently, in fact, stories about Guthrie were indexed in the files of the Daily Oklahoman, the state's largest circulation newspaper, under the heading: "Guthrie, Woody — Oklahoma Communist."

When Guthrie's name was placed on the water tower in 1972 it was blamed by some citizens for a rash of ailments and declining morality, ranging from high prices to traffic tickets.

"It took a small, Communist-oriented town to spoil my perfect driving record," one citizen wrote a local newspaper, after getting a ticket. "I had just about made up my mind to quit Okemah after seeing the marking on the new water tower. When a town the size of Okemah chooses to honor a Communist, be he a 'hometown' red or a Moscow-born red, that town loses its luster, not only morally but spiritually."

Since the water tower, there have been no other memorials in the name of Woody Guthrie constructed in Okemah. However, the battered old home where the Guthrie family once lived, and which now overlooks a Creek Indian Nation federal low-cost housing project of the kind Woody Guthrie once espoused in his songs, has been bought by oilman Earl Walker, with the idea that he may someday renovate it for a museum.

And Oklahoma followers of Guthrie and students of his works harbor hopes that times are changing in Okemah and Woody Guthrie may someday be given the respect here that they feel he deserves.

Thompson of Ailey traces dancing back to boyhood

By LORRAINE HAACKE
Dallas Times Herald

DALLAS — Clive Thompson stands an inch over six feet tall in his bare feet, and he looks very much the image of a well-disciplined athlete or the dancer that he is.

Though the company technically has no star system, Thompson could be called one of the "senior" dancers with the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater. He frequently takes Ailey's place, giving lecture-demonstrations and conducting rehearsals, when the New York-based company is on the road and Ailey is not traveling with the group.

"I have been dancing since I was a little fellow in Jamaica, West Indies, where I was born," said Thompson, relaxing backstage at the Dallas Music Hall where the Ailey troupe performed recently.

"We danced at all kinds of family gatherings and birthday parties, so it is hard for me to pinpoint the moment that I knew I wanted to be a dancer."

Thompson has been with the 19-year-old Ailey company since 1965 and permanently since 1970. During the first five years he performed with the Ailey group, he was "on loan" from the Martha Graham Company.

"I took my first dance lessons in Jamaica when a teacher told me that some pretty girls I was interested in were in the class," Thompson says with a twinkle in his eye. "Then I was strongly influenced by a performance by the Katharine Dunham company and a film on the Graham company."

But all of the early interest in dance became secondary when Thompson graduated from school and took a job as an accountant in a bank. A vacation trip to New York then changed his life.

"I went to New York and was planning a week's stay there and was saving three weeks to tour the rest of the states. I arrived in New York on Aug. 13, 1960, and two days later I had signed up for a week of classes at the Graham studio. Next thing I knew I had paid for five weeks of classes and there went my trip."

Thompson's classes were not taught by the "grande dame" of modern dance herself, but at the end of the first week at the studio, he finally met the great lady.

"I didn't even recognize her when she walked towards me. I was on the floor doing warmups and she was standing over me. She asked me to take some additional advanced class and I told her my sad tale of having spent all my money. I ended up with a scholarship, had my visit visa changed to a student visa and in six months I made my debut with the Graham company!"

When Thompson first came in contact with the Ailey company in the early 1960s, it was still an all-black company. It is now multi-racial. But the color of the dancer's skin had little to do with why Thompson felt he belonged in the Ailey troupe.

"I liked what Alvin was doing and I still do. Basically I am a dramatic dancer, and I like all different styles of dancing — ballet, modern, jazz, even tap. The Ailey company is unique as we are dancing the works of such an array of choreographers, which means you really must be on your toes — what a bad pun! — and you have to have mastered all the techniques."

"I like working in the dramatic line that we do. I don't like doing just steps; each one should have a meaning. Every time I have a new part, I research it well. When I get on stage I leave Clive Thompson behind."

One might think that being a male and being black, Thompson has had problems as a dancer, but he brushes any reference to the thought aside with a firm statement.

"First of all, it is difficult to be a dancer anywhere in the United States, but I was brought up as a human being who can relate to all kinds of people, not just people of one color."

"It is difficult to be a man in the dance world if one has a family as I do," said Thompson, who has two sons, Christopher, 10, and Jason, 8. His wife Elizabeth is a dancer who has choreographed for both the Electric Company and Sesame Street. (Thompson and his sons appeared on a Sesame Street segment that Elizabeth choreographed.)

"We travel so much, but I often have the boys and sometimes Elizabeth, when she is not working, meet me when I am on tour. The boys have been all over the world and have been put on planes by themselves ever since they were little tots." What do his sons think of dad being a dancer?

"They have had no problems coping with it all. They consider it my job and my lifestyle just as other kids look upon their dads as doctors, lawyers and executives."

At the end of the current U.S. tour most of the members of the Ailey troupe will have a three-week rest before their spring season in New York. Not Thompson. He is going on to Africa to talk about and teach dance on a grant and then will head to Kansas City to stage Alvin Ailey's choreography for Leonard Bernstein's "Mass."

The winners are Debbie Allen of Houston, Tex., Ellen Foley from St. Louis, Mo., and Mimi Kennedy, Rochester, N.Y. They will perform onstage numbers as well as backstage vignettes about three women who are chosen to star in a network variety series.

The first of the four segments will appear March 30.

'Blue gold' buried deep in cold Siberia

By PETER OSNOS The Washington Post

YAKUTSK, Siberia — Buried deep in Siberia's frozen vastness is a vast trove of what the Russians call "blue gold," a quantity of natural gas that is yet to be fully measured but already assures the Soviet Union a place in the future as one of the world's biggest energy producers...

Over the past decade, important gas deposits have been surveyed for the first time in a number of regions around the country — the eastern Ukraine, Soviet Central Asia and the Orenburg region, among others. Probably the most substantial reserves, though, are located in the Tyumen Province of western Siberia and here in Yakutia, where detailed geological work is just beginning.

The Soviet Union's enormous wealth in gas and oil looms as a major coming factor on the international economic scene, particularly in view of the West's serious shortages and the difficulties in securing guaranteed supplies from Arab countries and Third World producers. Ironically, if the West is to tap Soviet energy reserves, it will have to supply the technology. Energy is a major hard-currency earner for Moscow and becomes more profitable every year.

Manager announced

HOUSTON — William B. Beall has been promoted to manager, land acquisitions, in Continental Oil Co.'s North American Exploration Department.

He will direct all land functions and government affairs. Formerly manager, headquarter in Houston.

A native of Oklahoma, Beall joined Conoco as landman in 1953 and later served as division exploration manager at Wichita, Kans., and assistant regional manager of exploration at Fort Worth.

He became manager of Latin American exploration operations, headquartered in Houston in 1969 and was named manager of government affairs last year.

Shallow test set

Elk Oil Co., Roswell, N.M., filed permit application for a 1,800-foot cable tool San Andres wildcat to be drilled in Chaves County, N.M.

It is No. 1 Lakes-State, which spots 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 36-11s-26e, 234 miles southwest of the Coyote (Queen) field.

Val Verde gains test

Exxon Corp. intends to drill No. 2-2 Minnie Lee Altizer as a 3/4-mile southeast steepout to the Venegaronne (10,000 Strawn) field of North Val Verde County, 18 miles northeast of Juno.

It spots 1,320 feet from north and 1,180 feet from east lines of section 25, block A, C&MRR survey, and is scheduled for a bottom depth of 10,800 feet.

DRY HOLES

BORDEN — Mitchell Energy Corp. No. 2-312 Miller, wildcat, 660 feet from north and east lines of section 22, block 97, H&TC survey, ten miles east of Gall, id 2,297 temp abandoned.

CONCHO — M. Brad Bennett, R. K. Hillis & NRM, wildcat, 6,200 feet from north and 467 feet from east lines of M. D. Beissner survey 4, A-26, seven miles north of Miller view, id 3,400 feet.

M. B. Bennett, R. K. Hillis & NRM, wildcat, No. 1-4 Estep, wildcat, 467 feet from north and east lines of M. D. Beissner survey 4, A-26, seven miles north of Miller view, id 2,800 feet.

DAWSON — Mitchell Energy Corp. No. 1-33 Roy Bearden, wildcat, 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 33, block 36, T-5-N, T&P survey, id 8,314 feet.

EDWARDS — Amoco Production Co. No. 1A, I. Morris, wildcat, 1,900 feet from south and west lines of section 22, block 4, H&TC survey, 9 southwest of Clairmont, id 7,940 feet.

IRION — Mitchell Energy Corp. No. 1-86 Lorenza Wilson, wildcat, 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 26, block 1, H&TC survey, ten miles southwest of Marton, id 2,822 feet.

Mitchell Energy Corp. No. 1 Exxon-Noelke, wildcat, 1,371 feet from north and 1,806 feet from west lines of Tom Green CSI survey, ten southwest of Mertzon, id 3,810 feet.

KENT — William K. Young, Fort Worth, No. 1 Spres, wildcat, 1,039 feet from north and 2,542 feet from west lines of section 22, block 4, H&TC survey, 9 southwest of Clairmont, id 7,940 feet.

MITCHELL — Frank W. Cole Engineering, Dallas, No. 1 J. H. Nail Trustee, 1,980 feet from north and 1,320 feet from west lines of section 25, block 12, H&TC survey, 12 southwest of Colorado City, id 7,175 feet.

SUTTON — Rutledge & Rutledge of Abilene, No. 1-C W. D. Vallant, in the Vallant (Strawn) field, 1,756 feet from south and 2,040 feet from east lines of section 14 block 5, T&W survey, 18 miles east of Sonora, id 9,380 feet.

Worlds Exploration Co. No. 4 Whitehead, wildcat, 1,320 feet from south and 4,058 feet from west lines of McMillen CSI survey, 14 miles west of Sonora, id 9,380 feet.

Until recently, however, the Soviets were net importers of natural gas, supplementing their own resources with purchases from Iran and Afghanistan. Soviet output is now soaring and is expected to be nearly 10 times as much in 1980 as it was in the early 1960s. Exports are to more than triple before the end of the decade, with West Germany, Italy, Austria and France buying significant amounts.

Moscow appears to have finally solved the problem of extracting and transporting gas from the rich Orenburg fields in the southern Urals on the edge of Siberia. A 2,000-mile pipeline under construction by the Kremlin and its Eastern European allies will effectively double Soviet supplies to those countries — a vital element in their economies and, equally important, a symbol of political interdependence.

The rest of Siberia represents the great remaining challenge. The far northern reaches of Tyumen, straddling the Arctic Circle, are thought to have as much as three-fourths of the country's potential gas reserves, a figure so colossal that about 85 per cent of increased production in the next few years is scheduled to come from those as yet little-cultivated fields.

The problem is that nature provided a formidable defense for its resources in the isolation and permafrost of the territory. To succeed in pumping out and delivering the gas — indeed, to find out just how much there really is — Moscow has been looking for help from technologically advanced Western countries, including the United States.

What the Soviets want and have thus far managed by and large to get is equipment such as wide-diameter steel pipes, compressors and drilling apparatus from Western companies, to be repaid over the long term, stretching even beyond the end of the century, in natural gas output. Some pipelines already exist, accounting for deliveries measured in billions of cubic feet to France and West Germany.

One of the biggest projects, code-named North Star, involves several large American companies — Tennessee, Brown and Root and Texas Eastern — that would build a pipeline from northern Tyumen to Murmansk. Although the port is above the Arctic Circle, it is usable all year 'round because it is at the tail end of the Gulf Stream.

Special tankers there would ferry the liquefied gas to the United States and possibly over Western buyers. The deal, if it ever comes off, would be worth about $8 billion.

Negotiations began in the first flush of Soviet-American detente, now nearly five years ago, but floundered in 1974 when Congress blocked the use of any U.S. government-backed loans for Soviet energy projects. Without that assured official financial backing, real headway seemed impossible, but the American companies are once again talking to the Russians, and business sources in Moscow say there is a good chance of getting startup funds from commercial banks in the United States and Europe.

A precedent for progress has been set here in Yakutia. Preliminary exploration in the remote Vilyuy basin has shown substantial fields, and American companies — Occidental Petroleum and El Paso Gas — joined by Japanese companies were prepared to go ahead with a major extraction and shipping plan when the congressional ban on government energy credits upset the deal.

Then last spring, with $50 million from a consortium of American banks and the Japanese Export-Import Bank, matched by $50 million in hard currency from the Soviets, a contract for essential further exploration was signed, the first step in fulfilling the ambitious early plan. That work is now getting under way.

Specialists at the Permafrost Institute in Yakutsk, which is the administrative center for this area, say that once the "quantitative and qualitative analyses" are completed, a pipeline stretching about 2,000 miles to the Vladivostok area of the Soviet Far East could be built in five years. The project also calls for a gas liquefaction plant at the port and a fleet of special tankers to transport the fuel.

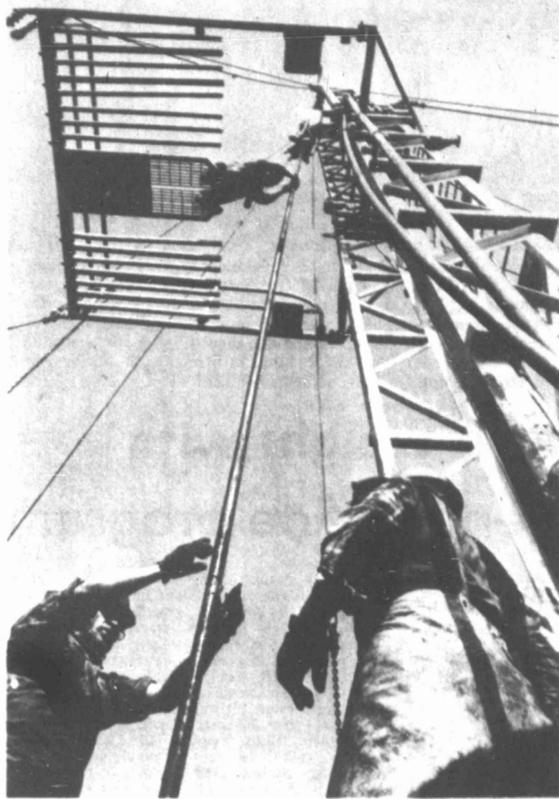

Irion oil well final

Union Oil Co. of California completed its No. 1-32 Farmer, an unidentified oil discovery in Irion County, 10 miles west of Mertzon and 1 1/4 miles north of the Flint Hill (Canyon) oil field.

The project had a 24-hour pumping potential of 10 barrels of 39-gravity oil and three barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio measuring 800-1, producing through perforations at 7,350-7,358 feet, which had been acidized with 900 gallons and fractured with 12,000 gallons and 11,000 pounds of sand.

Drilled to 8,500 feet, it has 5 1/2-inch casing set at 7,977 feet.

Location is 1,730 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 32, block 1, H&TC survey.

Continuing work on older wells in Exxon Co., U.S.A.'s Southeastern Division allowed the company to produce additional supplies of natural gas this winter for interstate pipeline systems.

Exxon measures put more gas in pipelines

NEW ORLEANS, La. — Through extraordinary measures taken this winter, Exxon Co., U.S.A.'s Southeastern Production Division was able to deliver an additional 22 million cubic feet of natural gas a day during February to interstate pipeline systems.

"These additional supplies, enough to meet the gas requirements of 50,000 homes, were made possible primarily by a temporary deferral of gas-injection projects, well tests, and selective natural-gas-processing-plant maintenance," according to A. C. Garner, division manager.

"We asked our reservoir engineers and geologists to study the problem, to look at every well and field to see how we could move things forward," Garner explained. "One of the first actions was to give all gas-related work programs priority, moving them to the top of the list for action."

"In addition, we looked at all gas injection projects, which are designed to increase ultimate oil recovery, to see if we could defer injection without risking ultimate loss of production," he said. "We reviewed each project on a one-by-one basis and, where possible, diverted the injection gas to sales."

"Exxon then looked at deferring routine well tests," Garner said. "These tests relate to such things as determining efficient producing rates — not safety. Sometimes such tests require a certain amount of shut-in production. This was avoided."

Another action step pursued was to delay scheduled preventive-maintenance projects which would have taken wells temporarily out of production.

"We looked at our maintenance program carefully to see if equipment could be kept on production somewhat longer without immediate problems developing," he said. "Instead of taking a gas compressor down for normal maintenance, for example, we kept it going. During the period of critical shortages, all normal, scheduled downtime was deferred."

"All maintenance operations around the offshore platforms that could cause a shutdown were delayed."

Exxon offshore operations manager Otto Harrison said the company went through its operations "piece by piece" in an effort to obtain maximum gas production.

Three explorers set in West Texas areas

Three wildcat sites have been staked in West Texas areas, and Crane and Mitchell fields gained confirmations.

Champlin Petroleum Co. will drill No. 1 Lewis-State, a 13,700-foot searcher for gas in Reeves, 10 miles northwest of Toyah.

It spots 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 15, block 59, PSL survey, 11 miles west of the Toyah, North (Wolfcamp) field and the Athens (Devonian) field.

WINKLER SEARCHER

Shell Oil Corp. has scheduled No. 100-C Sealy-Smith Foundation as a 10,200-foot wildcat, a three-mile east outpost to the Mississippiian pay oil in the Monahans field, and one-mile east and slightly south outpost to the two-well upper Pennsylvanian detrital gas area of the Monahans, Northeast field of Winkler County.

The test spots 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 26, block A, G&MMB&A survey, five miles north of Monahans.

The Mississippiian discovery, Shell No. 137 Sealy-Smith Foundation, finished in November 1976 for 29 barrels of 41.2-gravity oil, and gas-oil ratio of 8,371-8,736 feet.

MIDLAND SEARCHER

Beach & Snoddy, Midland, staked site for a 4,400-foot wildcat in Midland County, three miles east of Midland township.

It is No. 2 Dameron, 890 feet from south and 1,400 feet from east lines of section 39, block 38, T-1-S, T&P survey.

CRANE CONFIRMATION

Sabine Production Co. has recompleted No. 12 Renaud as a second detrital oil well and 3/4-mile southwest extension to that pay in the Abell field of Crane County.

It finished on the pump for 60 barrels of 40-gravity oil and 120 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 1,900-1. Completion was through perforations at 5,100-5,120 feet, after washing with 1,000 gallons of mud acid.

Wellsite is 5,100 feet from northeast and 423 feet U from northwest lines of section 19, block 1, H&TC survey, 18 miles southwest of Crane.

The discovery, Dalco Oil Co. No. 2 D. K. Glenn, finished in April 1975 for 168 barrels of 40.6-gravity oil, and gas-oil ratio of 5,202-5,212 feet.

MITCHELL CONFIRMER

Texas International Petroleum Corp. (TIPCO), Oklahoma City, No. 2 Edwin Parks, has been finished as a second well and location west extension in the Dixon (Strawn) field of Mitchell.

It finished to flow 103 barrels of 44-gravity oil and 28 barrels of water daily, with gas-oil ratio measuring 786-1, through a 16-64-inch choke and perforations at 6,172-6,176 feet. The pay section had been washed with 500 gallons of mud acid and fractured with 60,000 gallons and an unreported amount of sand.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 2, block 12, H&TC survey, five miles north of Silver.

TIPCO completed the reopener in February 1977, for 243 barrels of 40.2-gravity oil per day, along with 36 barrels of water, through perforations at 6,188-6,204 feet. It was No. 1 Edwin Parks.

Panamanian tanker splits in Atlantic

PORTSMOUTH, Va., (AP) — A 678-foot Panamanian tanker with a crew of 40 broke in two off the North Carolina coast following an apparent explosion, the Coast Guard reported here today.

A Coast Guard spokesman said reports from the scene have indicated there are 16 known survivors. The stricken vessel is the Claude Conway, built 20 years ago in Japan.

The Coast Guard said there are four merchant ships on the scene, about 140 miles off of Morehead, City, N. C.

It added that efforts are being made to remove 14 men from the stern section off the Claude Conway and two survivors from the bow.

The Coast Guard said the vessel apparently broke in two following an explosion sometime Sunday.

The stern section of the tanker was first spotted by the Moss Point about 5 a.m. and the bow section at daybreak.

Wildcats scheduled

Wildcat projects have been scheduled for Lynn and Hockley counties.

Hytech Energy Corp., Midland, No. 1 Post is slated as a 9,500-foot venture in Lynn, 16 miles east of O'Donnell and one location south of the depleted O'Donnell multipay area.

Drillsite is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 431, block 9, EL&RR survey.

The Hockley prospector is Union Oil Co. of California No. 1 Foster, a 7,500-foot test to be drilled five miles south of Whitharral.

Location is 1,388 feet from south and east lines of labor 13, league 730, State Capitol Lands survey, three miles west of the depleted Margaret Benson (Wolfcamp) pool.

G. G. Allen in new post

HOUSTON — Gilbert G. Allen has been appointed to the newly-created position of president of NL Baroid, a division of the Petroleum Services Group of NL Industries, Inc. He continues in his post as a vice president of NL Industries.

Allen joined the Baroid Division in 1948. He became manager of the Texas Gulf Coast marketing area in 1966, manager of the Louisiana Gulf Coast marketing area in 1970, and assistant general manager of the Division in 1973. He was named to the position of general manager of NL Baroid in 1974.

He was appointed a vice president of NL Industries in 1975.

DRILLING REPORT

CRANE — Norwood No. 1-A-30 Condensate, drilling 2,900 feet in dolomite.

CROCKETT — Campa No. 1 Harris, drilling 8,383 feet in lime.

CITGO No. 1-BQ University, id 8,862 feet, plugged back to 2,866 feet, testing, no gauge, through perforations at 2,650-2,656 feet.

DAWSON — Cox No. 1 Felts, drilling 1,960 feet.

EDWARDS — Union Texas No. 2-29 Fasken, pumping, no gauge, through perforations at 10,320-10,330 feet.

EDDY — CITGO No. 1-AD Government, drilling 2,530 feet.

C&K No. 1-4 Pennzoil-Federal, drilling 8,176 feet in lime, shale.

Belo No. 4-C Martin, id 3,406 feet, to be completed as water injection well.

Hondo No. 1-C Exxon-State, drilling 10,650 feet in shale.

EDWARDS — Champlin No. 1 E Dorado, drilling 1,150 feet in sand, shale and lime.

Champlin No. 1-50 Rocksprings, id 6,329 feet, plugged back to 5,374 feet, waiting on a completion unit after setting 4 1/2-inch casing at 5,419 feet.

Champlin No. 1 Allied-Whitworth, drilling 1,411 feet in sand, shale and lime.

GAINES — Fasken No. 1 Brown, id 5,800 feet, no other information available.

GLASSCOCK — Cox No. 1-B Reynolds, drilling 2,470 feet.

An oil slick was reported at the scene, but the Coast Guard said it had no information on its size.

Two Coast Cutters were en route to the scene.

There was no immediate information available on the expected destination of the Claude Conway.

The 42,000-ton tanker is owned by Cosmopolitan Shipping Co. OF Panama. Its agent is Cosmopolitan Shipping Co. Inc. of New York.

Herring in new post

FINDLAY, Ohio — Jack H. Herring has been named a senior vice president-Production, for Marathon Oil Co. He succeeds Robert E. McMillen who is retiring.

Herring has been vice president-Marketing, United States the last four years. He was elected vice president-Employee Relations in 1969.

Herring was named to Marathon's board of directors in 1974.

He formerly was manager of the Houston Division and served in a series of engineering and management assignments throughout Texas.

Three gas wells final

Three new producers have been completed in the Block A-34 (Yates) gas field of Andrews County, 13 miles north of Andrews, by Wood, McShane & Thams.

No. 1-1 Crews & Mast ARCO Unit had a calculated, absolute open flow of 847,900 cubic feet of dry gas daily, producing through perforations at 3,028-3,073 feet, following treatment with 1,000 gallons of acid and 30,000 gallons and 30,000 pounds of sand fracture.

Location is 1,320 feet from north and west lines of section 8, block A-34, PSL survey.

No. 2-A Crews & Mast had a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 772,900 cubic feet of gas per day.

Production was through perforations at 2,986-3,033 feet, after 1,000 gallons of acid and 30,000 gallons and 38,000 pounds of fracture.

It is 660 feet from south and 2,110 feet from west lines of the north half of section 9, block A-34, PSL survey.

No. 2 Fannie Mathews finished for a calculated, absolute open flow of 765,100 cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations at 3,000-3,047 feet. The section was acidized with 1,000 gallons and fractured with 30,000 gallons and 30,000 pounds of sand.

Location is 660 feet from south and 2,309 feet from west lines of section 9, block A-34, PSL survey.

KING — Ard No. 8 Masterson, drilling 3,200 feet in shale and lime.

LEA — Gifford, Mitchell & Wisenbaker No. 1 Horseback, drilling 16,384 feet in shale.

MEARLD — Bennett, Hillis & NRM No. 1 Maldin, drilling 355 feet in lime.

NOLAN — Hanson & Carl No. 1 Bell, id 5,900 feet, still installing pumping equipment.

PECOS — Texas Pacific No. 1-B Elstnor, drilling 14,220 feet in shale.

Puckett No. 1-28 Ida M., drilling 10,290 feet in lime and shale.

Enserech No. 1-14 Neal, drilling 4,090 feet in limestone.

Union Texas No. 1 Montgomery, drilling 12,619 feet in lime and shale.

C&K No. 1-A Jasper, drilling 2,826 feet in anhydrite.

Getty No. 1-14 Mendel, id 12,825 feet; flowed 14 barrels of condensate, 15 barrels of water and 60,000 cubic feet of gas per day on a 10-hour test, through a 16/64-inch choke, then fractured perforations at 11,771-12,629 feet.

Getty No. 1-22-18 University, drilling 11,454 feet.

WOOD — Cities Service No. 1-8-21-18 University, drilling 13,658 feet in lime, sand and shale.

Getty No. 1-14 Allison, drilling 11,015 feet in chert and lime.

TERRY — NRM No. 3 Cotten, drilling 5,343 feet in lime.

UPTON — John L. Cox No. 1 Woodfin, id 10,980 feet; waiting on cement; set 4 1/2-inch casing at id.

Union Texas No. 1 Amacker, drilling 17,100 feet in lime.

VAL VERDE — Hamilton No. 1 White, id 17,876 feet; preparing to plug and abandon.

WARD — Cities Service No. 1-8-21-18 University, drilling 13,658 feet in lime, sand and shale.

Getty No. 1-22-18 University, drilling 11,454 feet.

Sanders ends Cougs' hopes

NEW YORK (AP) — Ever hear of a basketball player who recruits himself? Greg Sanders did.

"I sent St. Bonaventure a brochure about my high school career," says Sanders, "just to make sure they knew I was alive."

St. Bonaventure got the message—and then got Sanders. It turned out to be a happy correspondence.

Sanders became one of the school's best forwards and led the Bonnies to a dramatic 91-91 victory Sunday over Houston in the final of the 40th National Invitation Tournament.

"This is just a dream come true," said Sanders in the euphoria of the winners' lockerroom at Madison Square Garden. "This is just wonderful."

Except for a self-appointed "scout" named Mel Roberts, it's possible that Sanders never would have found his way through a maze of college offers to the upstate New York school.

Roberts, who has no official allegiance to St. Bonaventure, helped bring the 6-foot-6 forward to the Bonnies simply because he thought it would be a good school for him. Roberts was a sort of godfather to Sanders when the youngster played at St. Anthony's Parochial School in Washington, D.C.

"Roberts knew Sanders needed personal attention," said St. Bonaventure freshman Coach Bob Sassone. "He had developed some bad habits practicing with professional players—like body-checking and pushing people around. That could have gotten him into trouble in college."

Sassone, apprised of Sanders' talents by Roberts, sent a letter to the youngster's high school coach. But apparently the coach just sat on it until the end of the season.

"I finally got an answer from Sanders after his senior year was over, and he apologized for writing so late," said Sassone.

When Sanders did write back, he enclosed his high school credentials in the letter. That got a quick response from the Bonnies, who eventually won a recruiting war for Sanders with Villanova, Georgetown, Canisius and Niagara.

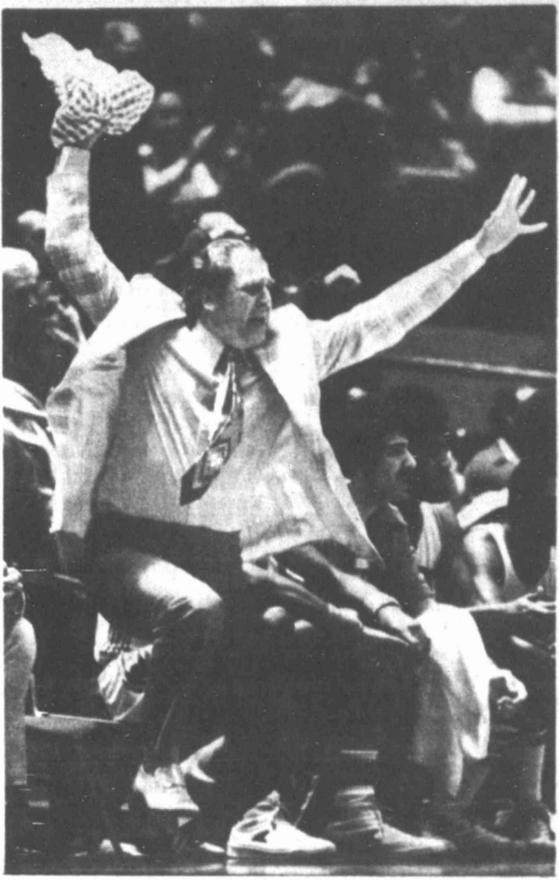

Sanders says that he had 150 offers for his services, but ultimately settled on St. Bonaventure "because I wanted to be a big fish in a small pond."

He has developed into the team's leading scorer—and Sunday was certainly the big shot on the court. Sanders scored 40 points, including the go-ahead shot with 40 seconds left.

When Sanders first let the ball fly, St. Bonaventure Coach Jim Satalin was not sure it was a high-percentage shot.

"I looked at it and it was one of those 'No, no, no—oh, yes!' shots," said Satalin. "Had it not gone in, that would have been a bad shot. But since he scored, we'll say it was a good one."

The way Sanders was shooting, every shot was a good one. The cool, efficient junior hit 14 of 23 field goal attempts, many of them difficult, twisting shots that had the Bonnie-oriented crowd of 12,451 roaring with pleasure.

Cinderella nears golden slipper

By The Associated Press

Top-rated Michigan and third-ranked Kentucky bit the dust Saturday, No. 2 UCLA bowed out two days earlier and San Francisco, which held the top spot for much of the season, has been long gone from the National Collegiate basketball championships. But the "Men from UNCC" are still alive.

The "Men from UNCC" isn't a TV spy story. It's more a Cinderella tale in which a school whose basketball history only dates back a dozen years knocks off the No. 1 team in the nation to make the championship round-of-four in Atlanta next weekend.

IF YOU'RE not aware of it by now, UNCC stands for the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, as differentiated from THE University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, which also advanced to the national semifinals and which hereafter shall be known simply as "North Carolina."

Joining them are Marquette and the University of Nevada at Las Vegas. Saturday afternoon's nationally televised semifinals sends fourth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas against No. 5 North Carolina, followed by the "Men from UNCC," rated 17th, against seventh-ranked Marquette.

The pairings came about last Saturday when North Carolina upset Kentucky 79-72 in the East Regional, the "Men from UNCC" shocked mighty Michigan 75-68 in the Midwest, Marquette trimmed Wake Forest 82-68 in the Midwest and Nevada-Las Vegas ran away from Idaho State 107-90 in the West Regional.

IF UNCC meets UNLV in the finals, it might be mistaken for a spelling bee. And North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt has suggested that the NCAA's name be changed to North Carolina Athletic Association. Imagine if Wake Forest had made it, too.

The No. 1 Man from UNCC isn't named Napoleon Solo or Ilya Kuryakin. Instead, he's a lanky 6-foot-8 center with the catchy handle of Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell, who sometimes thinks he's a guard. In fact, sometimes he is, especially when the other team is pressing all over the court and Maxwell dribbles the ball up in a flailing of arms and legs.

The "Men from UNCC" are also known as the 49ers and Maxwell led them past Michigan with a 25-point, 13-rebound show. Lew Massey added 19 and Kevin King helped hold Michigan center Phil Hubbard to just 14.

"We've never played guys like that before," marveled Michigan All-American Rickey Green, who led the Wolverines with 20 points. "Their arm reach was so long I couldn't believe it. No matter how high you'd get your shot, it seemed like they'd be waiting to tip it."

THE 49ERS, who burst upon the national scene a year ago with a second-place finish in the National Invitation Tournament, didn't wilt under pressure, even after they blew a 13-point halftime lead and fell behind by a point.

Maxwell likened UNCC to Texas Western's surprise 1966 national champs.

"It seemed like no one knew who they were and they won it all," he said.

THE WARRIORS keep postponing his farewell, but now McGuire's career is down to two games—Saturday's semifinal and either the championship or consolation contest Monday night.

McGuire would have been granted early retirement but for a career-high 18-point performance against Wake Forest by 6-9 substitute Bernard Toome to go with Bo Ellis' 20 and Butch Lee's 19. Toome, a sophomore, will be back on the bench when the ball goes up against UNCC. And he'll probably be off the bench in a hurry if the Warriors fall behind again.

"There's one thing you should understand about Bernard," McGuire said. "He's probably the purest shooter in the country."

However, McGuire picks his starters at the beginning of each season and stays with them, barring injury.

"He wouldn't start if he had scored 32," McGuire said. "That's the way I coach. I don't know if I'm right or wrong. I know I'm comfortable this way."

NORTH CAROLINA was comfortable most of the way against Kentucky's physical Wildcats despite the loss of foul-plagued, sore-elbowed All-American Phil Ford for the last 19 minutes. While he was in there, Ford scored only two points. But his backcourt mate, John Kuester, took over, running the Tar Heels' four-corner offense down the stretch and hitting four crucial free throws in the final 72 seconds after Kentucky had whacked a 15-point deficit to just one.

"That's the great thing about us," Ford said. "We're not a one-man show and there are no prima donnas. No team that depends on one person gets very far."

The injury plagued Tar Heels also played without center Tommy LaGarde, out for the season with a knee injury, while Walter Davis scored 21 points despite a broken index finger on his shooting hand. Ford, LaGarde and Davis all were members of the United States gold medal-winning Olympic basketball team.

Golf youth movement continues

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The youth movement continues.

His victory in the Tournament Players Championship came as a mild surprise to Mark Hayes. But the quiet, 27-year-old used the wind as his ally and extended for still another week the youthful revolution that has shaken the pro golf.

With the season 11 weeks old, only Jack Nicklaus has been able to win against the horde of youngsters who, week after week, have bettered the best efforts of golf's established stars.

This time the supporting cast included some of the game's greatest names—Nicklaus, Tom Watson, Hale Irwin and Ray Floyd. All fired and fell back in the howling winds that turned the alligator-infested Sawgrass course into an unbeatable monster.

No one in the field of the world's finest players was able to break par for four rounds over the reclaimed swamp and marshland that the touring pros were playing for the first time.

"I was just concentrating on making pars," Hayes said after his even-par 72 had given him a two-stroke victory at 289, one over par and the highest winning score in any tour event since Nicklaus won the 1972 U.S. Open at 290.

Hayes' credentials—two victories and more than $150,000 in earnings last year—are such that his triumph couldn't be classified as an upset. But even he didn't expect it.

"I really wasn't in it over the front nine," said the Oklahoma State product, who joined the tour in the fall of 1973. "But then all the leaders started to make bogey and kind of came back to me."

"I didn't expect it."

"I was playing with Tom Watson and he played the front nine awfully well. He doesn't have a reputation for backing off when he's in the lead. I think the wind kind of got him on the back nine. He hits the ball so high, I think the wind got some of them."

Whatever the reason, Watson had a two-shot lead at the turn, then struggled to a 41 on the back nine and fell out of it.

Mike McCullough, a non-winner who had led or shared the lead through the first three rounds, claimed second with a birdie on the last hole. He had a 75, a 291 total and the biggest check of his five-year career, $34,200. Hayes won $60,000 from the total purse of $300,000.

Irwin, with a closing 74, and Australian Bruce Devlin, 72, tied for third at 292. At 293 were defending champion Nicklaus, 74; veteran internationalist Graham Marsh, 71, and Watson, 77. Floyd, in the title chase most of the way, went to a 78-296.

Hayes keyed his victory around a string of 10 consecutive pars—a considerable feat under the conditions. He took command with a 10-foot birdie putt on the 14th.

"I wasn't forcing it," Hayes said. "Early this year I was trying to force a win. You just can't do that. I don't think anybody but Nicklaus can do that. I was trying to force it out on the West Coast and I played bad."

"The last few weeks I concentrated on just making big checks, trying to get high finishes and letting a win come, just letting it happen."

He paused and smiled.

"It happened."

There were numerous position changes Sunday at Midland's Super Bowl and Odessa Busby's Lanes in the 45th annual Texas State Bowling Association Tournament.

Only four leaders remained on top after the second of 13 weekend tournaments was finished.

Fort Worth Vending rolled a 2900 to take over the lead in the Class A Team Event after The Winners of Midland, had been in first place after the first week. The Winners are in second with a 2697.

Wayne Shirt Shop of San Antonio, took over first place in the Class B Team Event competition with a 2807. Last week, it was the Moore Team of Odessa on top, but the Odessans dropped to third place.

H&H Drilling of Andrews recorded a 2786 to take over top spot in the Class C Team Event. Last week's leader, Garza Finance of San Antonio, also fell to third place in its division.

Free & Easy of San Antonio was one of the four leaders that stayed in first place with a 2609 to lead the Class D Team Event.

IN DOUBLES competition, there were new leaders in all four divisions with Mike Lynch and Bob Leher of Eules taking over the Class A lead with 1162.

In Class B Doubles, Bob Scott and Chuck Walden of Austin took over top slot with 1151 while in the C Doubles play, Johnny Cole and Leroy Schulz of Andrews moved on top with an 1144.

Roy King and L. Moore of Abilene head the Class D Doubles with a score of 1077.

Lynn Hicks of Midland and Avery Faile of San Antonio, kept their leads in the Class B and Class D Singles with scores of 623 and 576, respectively.

Sam Johnson, Jr. of Tyler, has taken over the Class A Singles lead with a 639 while Odessa's David Calloway has rolled a 599, to lead in the Class C Singles competition.

Barnes may miss playoffs

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Pistons forward Marvin Barnes says he may skip the National Basketball Association playoffs and surrender to Rhode Island prison officials immediately after the regular season.

Barnes cited harassment and money differences with the Pistons as the major factors in his proposed decision.

Barnes' arrest last fall for carrying a concealed weapon at Detroit Metropolitan Airport violated his probation that had been imposed for hitting a Providence College teammate in 1974. As a result of the violation, Barnes was sentenced to a one-year prison term that is scheduled to begin May 16.

"As of today, I don't have any intention of playing in the playoffs," Barnes said Sunday. "Of his impending prison term, he said, 'You know, that's like waiting to die ... I might as well die now.'"

Oscar Feldman, Piston general manager and part-owner, said he would not have any comment on Barnes' remarks until he could talk with the player. But Feldman did say he believed playoff games were part of the season contract.

Barnes disagreed. "I'm not obligated to play the playoffs for them," he said.

Nolan signs contract

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — With veteran pitcher Gary Nolan finally in the fold, Reds general manager Dick Wagner says he is hopeful of "getting something moving the first of the week with Pete Rose and Rawly Eastwick."

Wagner said the Reds "acquiesced to Gary's request" for a one-year contract. Wagner said the Reds now prefer signing regulars to multiple year contracts.

"I did not want to get into a long term agreement," said Nolan, whose contract was renewed automatically after last season's new clerical deadline. You can continue negotiating cent cut from the 1976 as long as you want to," said Wagner.

Joe headed for Rams

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Times reports that New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath, who has asked to play in Southern California, will join the Los Angeles Rams shortly.

The newspaper, in Monday's editions, said Namath would either be traded this month or change teams next month as a free agent.

Club officials would not confirm the reported deal.

"He's 34 now," said an unidentified Rams coach, "and there are a lot of teams he couldn't help. I doubt if he could do much for an up-and-coming young .500 club with a bunch of inexperienced players."

"But the Rams are a different kind of club, very solid and conservative. They don't throw much and Joe is at his best when he can direct a good ground attack and throw a few timely passes. If you need a quarterback who can run or even move around, forget Namath," the coach said.

His Jets salary is $450,000 per year on a contract that expires at the end of March. The Jets would have to pay him $495,000 in the 1977 season under the new National Football League labor contract.

A Rams spokesman said Namath would have to accept $150,000 to $200,000, the newspaper said. The Times quoted Namath sources as saying he would work for such wages only in Los Angeles, where he could make up the difference in television and movie deals.

Hairless Card complains

By The Associated Press

Al Hrabosky, the Mad Hungarian of the St. Louis Cardinals' bullpen, does not like his mental outlook. He likes his facial outlook even less.

Unhappy over an edict by Vern Rapp, the Cards' new manager, that all facial hair had to go, Hrabosky has threatened to file a grievance with the Major League Baseball Players Association.

Hrabosky's famed Fu Manchu mustache was one of the casualties after Rapp announced his ban on facial foliage. And shorn of his security blanket, Hrabosky is contemplating an official grievance.

"There's every good chance of it real soon," he said Sunday as the Cardinals dropped an 8-2 exhibition game to the Cincinnati Reds. "My mental outlook is atrocious. There's more dissension on this club than I've ever seen."

"Pete Rose came up to me and said, 'I hear you guys aren't having any fun.' We're not allowed to. Our guys are afraid to make a move."

"I'm still trying to do my best—do my job, work hard and set an example for others," added Hrabosky, who has totaled 44 saves and a record of 29-10 in the past three seasons. "If I don't produce, he (Rapp) won't keep me around."

Third baseman Ken Reitz, back with St. Louis after one season with the San Francisco Giants, agreed with Hrabosky that Rapp has been "coming on too strong. There's too much business in the dugout, not enough laughter," he said. "You have to have fun and stay loose. If not, you can't play day in and day out. I went through this sort of thing last season when everything was too intense."

But catcher Ted Simmons noted that "the players chose to comply" with Rapp's ban on beards and mustaches.

The hairless Cards were held hitless over the first four innings by Cincinnati's Freddie Fryman while the Reds produced a pair of four-run innings, one of which included Joel Youngblood's two-run homer. The Reds, incidentally, are just as clean-shaven as the Cards. But the Reds can't complain too much about their manager after winning two consecutive World Series.

Hrabosky was not the only player making waves. Centerfielder Mickey Rivers of the New York Yankees, who failed to suit up for the first day of spring practice and was yanked last week when he neglected to run out a ground ball, got in more trouble during a 7-3 loss to the Philadelphia Phillies. He played a single into a triple by not chasing the ball during the seventh inning and nonchalantly dropped a fly ball later in the inning.

"That's human," Manager Billy Martin said of the errors, but his face was flushed when he talked about Rivers' apparent lack of hustle. "I haven't talked to him yet," Martin said, "but I will tomorrow. It's not going to be a problem after tomorrow. I know what to do. If it was the season I'd know what to do. It's only spring training. I'll handle it tomorrow."

"He's a good kid. I can talk to him, but I've got to have some answers. Maybe he has some problems. That's what I want to find out. Something's got to be bothering him because he's not a bad kid. He's easy to talk to."

"I haven't brought him in before because I didn't want to make a big deal out of it. But if he gets away with things like that...it's like a disease. It's got to be stopped before it spreads. It'll be stopped tomorrow."

Elsewhere on the exhibition trail,

Jerry Morales drove in six runs with two homers, a triple and a single as the Chicago Cubs outlasted the Seattle Mariners 16-15 in 10 innings.

In another slugfest, Bob Gorinski, the 1976 Pacific Coast League home run and RBI champ, collected four RBIs with a 450-foot homer and a triple, powering the Minnesota Twins over the Boston Red Sox 10-7.

Bobby Grich, sidelined with a sore back, made his debut with the California Angels. He played four flawless innings in the field and said his back felt fine, but the Angels lost to the Oakland A's 8-7 on newly acquired Mitchell Page's two-run single.

Merv Rettenmund's three-run homer led the San Diego Padres past the Cleveland Indians 9-7. Ben Oglivie hit a three-run homer and doubled home another run in the Detroit Tigers' 8-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox. Rick Rhoden and Burt Hooten hurled a five-hitter and Manny Mota homered, leading the Los Angeles Dodgers over the New York Mets 4-0, and Lee May's ninth-inning homer gave the Baltimore Orioles a 3-2 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Home cooking lifts Connors

By The Associated Press

Jimmy Connors credited good old home cooking with winning the $100,000 St. Louis Classic tennis tournament.

Connors, a native of nearby Belleville, Ill., scored a 7-6, 6-2 triumph over Australia's John Alexander in the final of the World Championship Tennis event Sunday.

"I liked it," he said of playing in St. Louis. "It's nice to stay home. You have the convenience. You can hit the refrigerator at any time."

The victory was worth $30,000 to Connors, who scored a 7-4 victory in the first-set tiebreaker.

"I think the majority of the time, he's the best in the world," Alexander said of his conqueror. "He probably does more things well than any other player."

But, Alexander added, "I don't think he's unbeatable."

Connors' triumph was one of many on an action-filled day of tennis. Elsewhere, Brian Gottfried took only 59 minutes in beating Bob Lutz 6-1, 6-2 and winning the $100,000 Grand Prix tourney at Washington, D.C.

Argentina eliminated Chile 4-1 in South American Zone Davis Cup competition; Chris Evert beat Martina Navratilova 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 in winning the $100,000 Philadelphia Women's Championships, and Britain's Mark Cox beat Sweden's Kjell Johanson and earned $10,000 in the final of the Swedish Grand Prix tourney.

The third-seeded Gottfried, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., played in a $25,000 Futures Tennis championship. Betsy Nagelson powered to a 6-3, 6-4 victory over Florenta Mihai of Romania and won $9,000.

Lyle decisions Bugner

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Boxing's heavyweight division took another turn Sunday when power-puncher Ron Lyle of Denver hammered out a 12-round split decision over British heavyweight champion Joe Bugner.

Bugner was the fourth-ranked contender going into the fight, coming off a one-round knockout of Richard Dunn last October, while Lyle was ranked seventh, losing a decision to Jimmy Young late last year.

Last Thursday, it was the boxer, Jimmy Young, who upset the brawler, George Foreman. But in Sunday's nationally-televised bout from Caesars Palace, it was the strong man, Lyle, who prevailed.

Bugner's trainer, Andy Smith, summed it up.

"I feel so sick. He (Bugner) boxed so badly," Smith said before catching a flight back to England.

Bugner, whose mother brought the family from Hungary to England during the Hungarian revolution, was quite talkative and confident in training for the fight. Local books had him a 2-1 choice.

The victory raised Lyle's record to 34-5-1, with 23 knockouts, while Bugner is now 52-8-1, with 33 kayos.

At one point Bugner called himself the "real White Hope."

It was all to promote his new image as an aggressor, but it was Lyle who played the role here—Bugner looking as if he had slipped into his old style of being a conservative, defensive boxer.

From the beginning, Lyle, 218, went after the bigger Bugner, 229½, never backing away.

Lyle said he tried to go for a knockout early but found Bugner a "very good defensive fighter."

So the strategy was changed. Lyle moved inside, using a vicious right to relentlessly pound Bugner's mid-section, then moving with left and right upper cuts to Bugner's face.

Bugner, 27, was able to score almost at will with his left jab, but they were flicking, almost slap-like, and did little or no damage. He scored seldomly with his right.

Bugner seemed content to lure Lyle, 35, into the ropes. And while he did pick off a good number of Lyle's powerful body shots with his arms, the blows sapped Bugner's strength, taking their toll as the fight went on.

The Bugner strategy was to come on in the later rounds, letting Lyle punch himself out in the early going, as he has done in several other fights.

But when it got late, Bugner was the one who appeared tired, and Lyle seemed to get a second wind when Bugner's nose began to bleed profusely in the 10th round.

About a dozen large, red welts grew on Bugner's left side, evidence of Lyle's intense campaign to slow the Englishman.

A disappointed Bugner shunned the press room after the fight but talked with reporters as he walked back to his room.

Bugner admitted he had underestimated Lyle's conditioning, and that Lyle had hurt him in the seventh and eighth rounds.

"My plan just fell apart. Nothing went right," Bugner said. "Unfortunately, he was fitter than I thought."

Tired and happy, Lyle was somewhat subdued and calm as he answered reporters' questions.

"I wasn't going to over exert myself, and just concentrate on one thing," said Lyle. "Mostly I was just trying to score and just stay ahead."

Lyle said he was never hurt in the fight, but he appeared confused at the end of the fifth round after Bugner got in a pair of rights. And again in the 10th round, his legs appeared to wobble from another Bugner right.

Lyle termed the victory a "very important" one careerwise. Although Foreman and Young were mentioned prominently, Lyle said he had no particular foe in mind. He will fight anyone ranked higher than himself, he said.

Then there was a little Lyle philosophy:

"I've paid my dues to boxing. Now I feel that I should reap some of the benefits of boxing," Lyle said. "The fight game looks good now."

In a semi-main event scheduled for 10 rounds, welterweight title contender Armando Muniz, 150½, Los Angeles, used a hard right lead and a vicious left hook to knockout Antonio Leyva, 151½, Mexicali, Mexico, in just 30 seconds.

Carter takes Covington title

Jeff Carter won the Kyle Covington City Racquetball Championship Sunday at the Midland YMCA with a 21-11, 21-8 victory over Lou Williams in the final.

Tommy Conner won the consolation prize with a 21-16, 21-17 win over Dan McLellan.

In Class B, Craig Reynolds took top honors with a 21-20, 21-17 victory over Tim Salman while Barbara White won consolation with an 18-21, 21-6, 15-13 win over Mike Champion.

In the Ladies Championship, Kathy Eudy won the crown with a 17-21, 21-6, 15-5 win over Patty Glenn, and Kathy Hanoch won consolation with a 21-19, 21-1 win over Gay Patterson.

Gottfried survives match

HOUSTON (AP) —

Trinity University's Larry Gottfried, the No. 1 ranked junior in the U.S., doesn't take anything for granted when he plays team mate Erick Iskersky in a tennis match.

The slow-starting Iskersky invariably has a comeback up his sleeve and he almost pulled off another Sunday before Gottfried held on for a 7-6, 6-2 victory in the finals of the 19th annual Rice Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament.

"I never felt comfortable when I got a 3-0 lead in the first set," said Gottfried, who broke Iskersky's first two serves. "I've seen him come back a million times in situations like that."

Trinity already had clinched its lith Rice team title before the all-Trinity singles final took place. Southern Methodist finished second.

There were 12 service breaks in the 20-game match but Gottfried said that had little effect on the outcome of the match.

"Neither of our serves are big weapons for us," Gottfried said. "They're mostly just to get the point started and kind of keep your opponent off balance."

Iskersky said he served better in the tournament than ever before, until the final. "The wind wasn't a factor. I just couldn't get my first serve in today," Iskersky said. "I should have been at the net more."

Gottfried took a 4-2 lead in the tie-breaker and won the set on the next point when Iskersky's forehead was long.

The two players traded service breaks in the first two games of the second set but Gottfried held charge with another service break in the sixth game. He broke Iskersky in the eighth and final game.

If practice makes perfect, you can't prove it by JoJo White of the Boston Celtics.

The stellar guard, the only Boston player allowed to miss practice Saturday so he could rest his sore ankle, scored a career-high 41 points Sunday—18-of-25 from the floor, 5-for-5 at the foul line, eight assists—to lead the Celtics to a 118-110 National Basketball League triumph over the Kansas City Kings.

"It was one of the days when things are all going well," White said. "I'm still sore, but my leg felt good and I felt like running and playing. I was getting good shots. It was just a matter of putting them in."

Coach Tom Heinsohn called the wasn't aware of White's high scoring. "He didn't take many shots," Heinsohn said. "He did it without disrupting what we were trying to do. He kept our offense going."

White and Sidney Wicks combined for 11 straight points at the start of the fourth quarter as the Celtics increased a two-point lead to 101-88.

Nuggets 133, Pistons 104
David Thompson's 29 points paced six Denver players in double figures.

The Nuggets never trailed, shooting 65 per cent enroute to a 40-22 first-period lead and moving ahead by as many as 32 in the third period. The victory extended their lead over Detroit to four games in the Midwest Division. Dan Issel contributed 26 points to the Denver attack while

M.L. Carr paced Detroit with 29. Bulls 135, Spurs 116

Elvin Hayes missed 16 minutes with foul trouble but scored 24 points to help Washington run up its largest total of the season, end a five-game losing streak and break of a second-place tie with San Antonio in the Central Division, three games behind Houston. Phil Chenier led Washington with 25 points. Tom Henderson scored 23 while collecting nine assists and Kevin Grevey had 21.

Cavaliers 115, Braves 108
Austin Carr and Dick Snyder led a second-half surge that helped Cleveland to its third triumph in as many days.

Buffalo's Adrian Dantley led all scorers with 37 points, 22 in the first half. The Cavaliers trailed as many as seven in each of the first two periods but charged from a 64-63 deficit to an 86-72 lead six minutes into the third period and built the margin to 92-73 late in the quarter. Carr scored 10 of his 22 points in the decisive third period while Snyder picked up 14 of his 18 in the second half.

Lakers 100, Jazz 95
Los Angeles overcame a 46-point performance by New Orleans' Pete Maravich and increased its percentage to .628 to Denver's .620 in the all-important race for the best percentage in the Western Conference. The team with the best percentage will receive a first-round bye in the playoffs.

George McGinnis scored 28 points to lead Philadelphia to its fourth consecutive victory and Julius Erving added 24 points. The 76ers are now tied with Houston for the best record in the Eastern Conference at 43-27. The Sixers broke the game open by outscoring the Nets 11-2 during a two-minute stretch of the second period, with Henry Bibby hitting four straight baskets as Philadelphia opened a 52-41 lead. Nets Coach Kevin Loughery picked up two technical fouls, giving him 38 for the season, and was ejected from the game by referee Mike Mathis in the fourth quarter.

Suns 126, Trail Blazers 106
Rookie Ron Lee scored 13 points as Phoenix outscored Portland 39-28 in the fourth period. The Suns had six men in double figures, led by Alvan Adams' 27 points.

SuperSonics 110, Bucks 107
Slick Watts' steal and lay-up with 30 seconds left enabled Seattle to snap a 10-game home winning streak and four victories over-all for the Bucks.

Milwaukee led 107-106 with 1:39 left after Brian Winters' three-point play. But they failed to score the next time they had the ball and missed three shots in the last 30 seconds. Seattle's Mike Green closed out the scoring with two free throws with one second left. Fred Brown led the Sonics with 23 points but left the game with an injured ankle with 11:42 remaining.

Richard Petty captures Atlanta 500 race win

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — There is a sign on the wall in Richard Petty's garage which says, "There are good years, and there are bad years...and then there was last year."

Petty had fewer victories last year in Grand National stock car racing than at any time in his career since 1961.

But now there is this year. Things have turned around completely for the six-time national champion.

"We've won two out of five so far this season, and I suppose with a little better luck, we could have had a chance to make it five out of five," Petty said after winning Sunday's Atlanta 500.

"There are only three or four cars that can win every time out—the ones that don't have trouble win, and the ones who do don't."

"We were never really in a position to do it last year."

But with some diligent work in the off-season, Petty's crew came up with some extra go-power.

"Yes, we have more horsepower, but most of them out there are pulling substantially more horsepower. By substantially, I mean 15-20 more than last year," Petty said, not revealing how much more power he is enjoying.

"My car won't run if it don't pull rpm's. We've always had a lot of rpm's. The trouble was keeping everything together while pulling 'em."

There are only three or four cars that can win every time out—the ones

SHOWDOWN #1: HUMAN ENGINEERING

Some Background.

Our first Showdown focuses on an area of traditional weakness in small, imported cars: creature comfort. In it, we attempt to determine which of our test cars, does the best job of catering to human needs by measuring two areas that can be evaluated objectively: namely, room and interior noise.

Here's what we did: Using sophisticated sound-measuring equipment, we tested the cars for interior quietness. And we ranked them accordingly. Then we measured them for interior room, using industry- and government-accepted measurements.

And we ranked them accordingly. From those two rankings, we determined the overall winner in Human Engineering.

At the same time, we wanted to go a bit further. Because human engineering really does take in more than just quietness and room. We wanted to take a good, close look at the features on these cars. To see what kind of comfort and convenience they had to offer. So we devised a checklist, then went over each car thoroughly to see who had what.

It should be pointed out that we did not rank the cars according to this checklist. We simply wanted to give you a chance to see for yourself, which of these cars had the most to offer.

By the way, both an independent engineering firm and an editor from Car and Driver magazine were on hand for the Human Engineering Showdown. To oversee the whole procedure and review the data. Even the checklist part. And to further the interest of fairness, all the test cars were equipped to be as much alike as possible: all had 4-speed transmissions, air conditioning, radial tires and a healthy complement of options.

So much, then, for the preliminaries.

The Interior Noise Test.

Like many of the other tests in the 5-Car Showdown, this one took place at the General Motors Desert Proving Ground in Mesa, Arizona. That may smack of bias, but such is not the case. We felt it was the best place, because we knew how meticulous the procedures had to be. And how sophisticated and accurate the instruments used for measurement would have to be.

Anyway, there were four parts to the interior noise test. The cars were measured at 30 mph in 3rd gear. At 30 mph in 4th gear. At 55 mph in 4th gear. And during acceleration from 20 to 40 mph in 3rd gear, with fixed throttle. In addition, the tests were conducted on two different road surfaces: smooth and coarse asphalt.

And the winner? In a way, everybody won, and nobody won. Because, based on our test data, all five cars finished so closely together in interior quiet, no clear-cut winners and losers could be established. So we decided to give all five cars first-place scores of five points each.

Talk about tight competition!

Interior Room.

As we indicated, this wasn't really a test, but rather a compilation of data furnished by each manufacturer, and available from the Environmental Protection Agency.

Using EPA procedures, we took each car's head, shoulder and leg room dimensions, and multiplied the three together. (This establishes what the EPA calls a "volume index" for the front and rear of each car.) Then we added the front and rear volumes together to create an estimate of total passenger interior roominess. Here's the way they stack up:

Table with columns: VOLUME ESTIMATE, Front Seat, Rear Seat, Total Passenger Volume, Showdown Rank, Points. Rows include VW Rabbit, Toyota Corolla, Buick/Opel, Subaru DL, Datsun B-210.

NOTE: Passenger Volume Estimate equals head + shoulder + leg room.

As the figures clearly show, the Rabbit emerges victorious. Followed closely by Toyota Corolla. With Buick Opel nipping closely at its heels in third. Bringing up the rear are Subaru and Datsun.

The Features Checklist.

You can see by the items we've included on the checklist exactly what it is we're after. We want to know what these cars have to offer in the way of human amenities. Things that make the lives of drivers and passengers a bit more pleasant.

Read it, and you can pretty much draw your own conclusions.

The Overall Winner.

As you can plainly see, VW wins the Human Engineering Showdown, largely because of its good showing in the roominess contest. Toyota finishes second, with Opel in third, just two points behind the winner. Which is not at all disappointing, because for most of you, Opel is something of an unknown. To prove it can compete with better established cars is very important to us. And it did manage to beat two of its better-known competitors.

Which only helps support what we've been saying for quite some time now. That Buick's Opel is a surprising little automobile. One you'll have to actually give it a drive to really appreciate.

And you can do that at your Buick Opel dealer's.

By the way, at the bottom of this ad, is a table with the results of this first Showdown. And while we aren't exactly winning at this point, there are more Showdowns to go.

So be on the lookout for Showdown #2 in this paper next week.

More thrills and chills to come!

Nitrogen fertilizer said threat to ozone shield

By BILL RICHARDS
The Washington Post

BOULDER, Colo. — Widely used nitrogen fertilizers present more of a threat to the earth's critical ozone shield than either of the more heavily publicized dangers from spray-can propellants or supersonic aircraft, scientists studying the problem say.

Unless some way is found to control the effect of nitrous oxide exhausts from the fertilizer, scientists predict that ozone depletion over the next century could cause as much as a 60 per cent increase in skin cancers.

Nitrous oxides, as well as fluorocarbons from spray-can propellants and nitric oxide from supersonic aircraft like the Anglo-French Concorde, all set to break down the ozone layer that girdles the earth at a height of more than 15 miles. Researchers here are worried, however, that the growing amount of nitrogen fertilizer is liable to break down ozone at a far greater rate than either of the other two dangers.

According to researchers, a small amount of nitrous oxide is released directly from the fields where fertilizer is used. Nitrous oxide turns into nitric oxide during a chemical reaction with ozone. Nitric oxide acts as a catalyst to speed up the breakdown of ozone in the atmosphere.

Depletion of the ozone layer allows the sun's ultraviolet rays to reach the earth's surface in increasing amounts. The rays are believed responsible for causing malignant and nonmalignant skin tumors.

According to a rule of thumb generally used by researchers, a 1 per cent decrease in the ozone shield is likely to cause a 2 per cent increase in the number of skin cancers, or about 20,000 new cases of skin cancer in the United States alone.

Dr. John Gille, head of the Upper Atmospheric Project at the National Center for Atmospheric Research here, said in an interview that the maximum projected ozone depletion could reach 30 per cent within a century if the current increase of nitrogen-fertilizer use continues.

Gille and other researchers emphasized, however, that there are a number of crucial unknowns in their projections.

For example, scientists don't know whether the depletion process would speed up or slow down after initial large-scale atmospheric changes of as little as 10 per cent ozone depletion take place. They also don't know how fast the depletion process works because of the complex procedure that releases nitrous oxide into the atmosphere from fertilizers.

Nor do researchers know precisely whether the combination of fluorocarbons from spray-can propellants and nitrogen from fertilizers will produce a slowdown or speedup in the ozone depletion process.

"We are playing with a very complex system that we understand very little of," said Michael McElroy, a Harvard researcher studying the problem. Nevertheless, he added, it will be difficult to avoid large-scale depletion unless some solution is found to the fertilizer problem. At present the use of nitrogen fertilizers is increasing at the rate of 6 per cent annually, with the sharpest increase in underdeveloped countries. But most researchers believe that growth level will slack off, in part because of the heavy use of petroleum required to make nitrogen fertilizer. Unless some solution is found, scientists are becoming concerned the alternative of decreasing fertilizer use could pose equally serious problems. "The thing that makes this more difficult," said Gille, "is that you can ban hairsprays and supersonic planes and not destroy civilization. But we need the fertilizer to feed the world's growing population. Cutting that back might make the solution as disastrous as the problem."
