State water projects back in good graces

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration will give a green light to eight Texas water projects that were previously on its endangered list, according to the office of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex.

A Bentsen aide said the administration informed the senator of its decision Tuesday evening. The announcement to the public was planned for today.

The administration action left only one project affecting Texas on the final list of those it would like canceled. That was the Red River waterway project between Shreveport, La., and Lake of the Pines near Daingerfield, Tex.

It restored to grace the following projects, which had been on various lists of projects the administration said it had found wanting water projects:

The Trinity River program between Houston and Fort Worth; the Carl L. Estes Dam on the Sabine River in northeast Texas; Millican Lake on the Navasota River near Bryan, Tex.; Cooper Lake, on the South Sulphur River in northeast Texas; Highland Bayou, and Vince and Little Vince Bayous near Houston; Choke Canyon reservoir on the Nueces River; and the Palmetto Bend reservoir near Corpus Christi.

The Red River waterway could still be built. After public hearings, the administration will make a final decision on whether it wants the project to go ahead. Congress could overrule that decision, however. The turnaround on the eight projects represented a victory for the state's congressional delegation, which generally had opposed their termination.

But even the House majority leader, Rep. Jim Wright, said he didn't know who in the administration was deciding which projects to approve and for what reasons.

Wright did play a role in the decision to continue with the Trinity project. Last week, he said, he called President Carter's congressional liaison, Frank Moore, and informed Moore that the news that the Trinity was not on the original "approved" list was being taken to mean that the project was doomed.

"I told him I was sure that in due course the Trinity would be approved and thought it would be useful to him to look into it," Wright said Tuesday.

Several days later, he got a call from Bert Lance, the director of the Office of Management and Budget, telling him that the Trinity project was back in the administration's good graces. Wright said the decision of the administration means "the President has no objections to any action by Congress to fund any and all com-ponents of the Trinity River program." But he said those components would not include channelization to make the river navigable to the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

They include water conservation and storage reservoirs, soil conservation and flood control, and a continuing study of the feasibility of various navigation alternatives.

He said he looked at the failure of the 1973 bond referendum on the project as the definitive expression of citizen sentiment until something newer takes its place.

said would kill the measure.

Senators, meanwhile, passed and sent to the House a bill giving legal recognition to the written wishes of terminally ill persons that their lives not be prolonged by artificial means.

A 77-65 House vote tabled an amendment by Rep. Joe Hubenak, D-Rosenberg, that would have prohibited condemnation of farm and ranch lands as right-of-way for coal ranch lands as right-of-way for coal slurry pipelines.

Hubenak said the lines could easily follow existing highway and railroad right-of-way.

Pipeline and power companies are pushing for passage of the bill, but railroads violently oppose it on the ground it would weaken them financially. Railroads are major bankers of each haulers of coal.

The bill grants to pipeline com-panies that pump 50-50 mixtures of water and crushed coal the same power to condemn land for rights-ofway that oil, gas and railroad companies have. Houston Natural Gas Co. has been the prime mover of the bill and hopes to build a line bringing water and coal from the Rocky Mountain West. "The bill does not build a line. It doesn't give them water. It just makes them even with the railroads," said Rep. Joe Hanna, D-Breckenridge, the House sponsor.

Hanna said the need for coal in the future would be so great that "the railroads are going to have all they can headle."

Carter may end 32 water plans

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is ready to announce a new 'semifinal" list of as many as 32 water projects in danger of can-cellation, according to members of Congress who received advance word

The list, expected to be released today by the White House, includes many carryovers from an earlier, controversial list of 19 projects that Carter deleted from his fiscal 1978 budget recommendations last month. But some water projects, including the large Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway in Alabama and Mississippi, are new - although a number of them appeared on unofficial lists that have been circulating on Capitol Hill in the past few weeks. Checks with congressional offices late Tuesday disclosed that the following new Corps of Engineer flood control, dam and lake projects are on the list, in addition to Tennessee-Tombigbee:

-Tyrone water project, Pennsylvania.

Hillsdale dam, Kansas. -LaFarge Lake and channel improvements, Wisconsin. -Fulton, Ill., flood control.

-Gallipolis lock and dam, Ohio. -Red River waterway, Tensas Basin, Bayou Bodcau, and a Mississippi Gulf outlet study, all in Louisiana.

-Red River waterway, Texas portions.

Southwest Airlines, city reach tentative pact

Assistant city manager Fred Poe, who has been negotiating the fee structure with Southwest Airlines, said tentative agreement has been reached to have both the city and the airline evenly split the estimated $15,000 remodeling cost to the Air Ter-minal Building.

The dispute now centers on whether the airline should have to guarantee a certain payment every year for landing fees, which is what the city wants.

The council decided to take no action and wait for Southwest to tender an offer.

Southwest Airlines is expected to begin operations at Midland Regional Air Terminal May 24, although no agreement has been reached yet between the City of Midland and the airline on how much Southwest will pay for

The question of landing fees and costs of remodeling the Air Terminal to accomodate Southwest was brought before the Midland City Council Tuesday.

Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. said the disagreements are not serious and amount to no more than routine haggling over costs.

Desai may lead India

By PAUL CHUTKOW

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - The defeated Congress party unanimously elected Y.B. Chavan to be its parliamentary leader today as political observers speculated that Morarji Desai, 81-year-old chairman of the victorious Janata party, would become India's next prime minister.

Chavan, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's 64-year-old foreign minister, was named by a caucus of the 154 Congress members elected last weekend to the new Parliament. He was one of the few ministers in Mrs. Gandhi's cabinet to survive the Congress debacle at the polls and was re-elected from his native Maharashtra state.

Having lost her ruling majority and her own seat in Parliament, Mrs. Gandhi resigned as prime minister Tuesday, but her government remained in office as a caretaker regime until a new cabinet is formed.

Sources close to her said she planned to remain largely inactive politically for the next few months. But a new Janata member of Parliament, Subramaniam Swamy, said in Bombay that he would make public information he has gathered about 46 alleged scandals involving her younger son, Sanjay. Sanjay, 30, took over the youth wing of the Congress party last year, and it was generally believed his mother was grooming him to be her suc-cessor. But he was defeated in his debut campaign for a seat in Parliament and announced Tuesday he was quitting "active politics" for "quiet, constructive work."

Swamy, who fled the country when Mrs. Gandhi declared emergency rule in June 1975, implied he might press for legal action against Sanjay.

Leaders of the Janata and its ally, Jagjivan, Ram's Congress for Democracy, were meeting in preparation for a Janata caucus Thursday to name the new prime minister. Despite agitation in favor of Ram, Desai as leader of the winning party and one of the last surviving leaders of the independence struggle against Britain appeared to have the

Campuses remain 'closed

The "closed campus" policy at Midland's two high school was reaffirmed by school trustees

Tuesday.

The closed campus policy requires students to remain on campus or in the youth center during the 40-minute lunch period.

The trustees agreed, however, to reevaluate their stand if a survey of parents of high school students shows that they favor removing the

A change in the lunch period policy was requested by SITCA (Students Involved Through Community Action), the high school committee of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, after that group conducted a survey of high school students in Midland.

Johnny Northington, Midland High School student who represented SITCA, called the restriction a "fundamental deprivation of in-dividual rights."

Both high school principals recommended the policy not be changed. Reasons given by the principals included the limited amount of time allowed students for lunch, the possibility of more accidents, a likely increase in afternoon tardies and absences and reduced participation in school and youth center lunch programs. Dr. Joe T. Smith, principal at Lee High School, said the Lee student council voted 36 to 25 in favor of continuing a closed campus policy.

Trustee Joe Dominey said both high schools are remote from eating areas and an influx of high school students might cause overcrowding in restuarants during the noon hour. Northington said he does not believe there would be a substantially larger number of students leaving the campus than now because "there is a large number of students leaving anyway," despite the rules.

He said the experience of students who leave campus for lunch now indicates there would be enough time to eat and get back to class within the allotted 40 minutes. SITCA wants to conduct a survey among a random sample of high school parents to see if they favor an open campus arrangement, Northington said. Trustee Ann Page said the board will listen to the parents if they request a change in policy. The board, in voting to reaffirm present policy, said it had no objection to the group's conducting the

The other two elements of the Carter package were a constitutional amendment to eliminate the Electoral College and allow direct election of presidents, and a plan to amend the Hatch Act to permit greater participation in partisan politics by federal employes.

Many lawmakers believe the end is near for the Electoral College. Debate on the Hatch Act revision is likely to follow the same party line with a few Democrat defections that occurred when similar proposals were before Congress last year. Strong opposition by then-President Gerald R. Ford blocked their enactment.

Zaire invaders hold tast

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) Katangan rebels appear to be firmly entrenched and fighting hard in southern Zaire despite government claims of success against them.

It was learned Tuesday that the invading exiles from neighboring Angola apparently have regained control of Kasaji, a town 130 miles west of Kolwezi, the copper mining center in southern Shaba province, the former Katanga.

Kasaji was first reported taken by the invaders on March 14 after heavy fighting in which President Mobutu Sese Seko's forces were estimated to have suffered about 200 casualties. The government claimed on Saturday that its troops had recaptured the town, which is nearly halfway between the Angolan border and the Kolwezi mines, the likely immediate target of the invasion.

Copper from Shaba is Zaire's biggest export, and about half of the U.S. supply of cobalt, a byproduct of the copper mines, comes from the

The Katangans also were reported still holding the towns of Dilolo, on the border west of Kasaji and Kolwezi; Sandoa and Kesenge, and Kapanga, 155 miles northeast of Dilolo and 45 miles from the border, despite government claims of "massive government claims of bombing raids" that were driving the invaders back into Angola.

Foreign observers doubted these claims, estimating that Zaire's air force at the most has only eight operational jets and that they carry only two rockets each.

The invasion force is estimated to consist of 2,000 Katangan troops who fled to Angola after losing a war for the independence of their province from the former Belgian Congo in the 1960s. Five thousand more Katangan troops are reported still in Angota. Zaire's 25,000-man army is handicapped by fuel shortages, poor communications and long supply lines. According to one report, the government owes its troops in some areas two months pay but has managed to pay those in Shaba.

Mobutu charges Cuban troops in Angola trained and may be leading the invaders. Cuban Presdent Fidel Castro denies this. Mobutu also charges that the Katangans are equipped with Soviet arms, which is quite likely, and the official Chinese news agency Hsinhua alleged today that the invasion "is a war of aggression masterminded and financed by Soviet imperialism."

The United States, which has a $35million military aid program for Zaire, has shipped Mobutu's government two planeloads of so-called nonlethal equipment since the in-

White House talks, Carter said the United States considered nuclear fuel reprocessing a "waste of resources" and a threat to nuclear weapons proliferation and wanted all nations, including the United States, to stop it, Sonoda said.

Reprocessing of spent fuel separates plutonium, a highly explosive material which can be used both as fuel for nuclear power plants and for nuclear bombs, from other nuclear wastes. Japan, which plans to carry out a trial run of its first reprocessing plant this summer, considers acquiring a supply of plutonium essential to guarantee its needs for fuel in uses of peaceful nuclear energy.

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON President Carter and Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda agreed Tuesday to open governmental negotiations to curb the flow of Japanese color television sets into the United States

The agreement was reached in the final session of a two-day meeting after Carter said he would be forced to take "some measure" to limit color TV imports, according to Chief Japanese Cabinet Secretary Sunao

According to Sonoda, however, Carter said he would welcome an alternate solution which would relieve him of the need to act within 60 days from Tuesday on a recommendation submitted by the International Trade Commission. The commission recommended that duties on imported color TV sets be raised from the present 5 per cent to 25 per cent.

Sonoda, briefing newsmen who accompanied Fukuda from Tokyo, quoted Carter as saying:

"If we could decide on the number of TV sets to be imported, I would be able to talk things over with our industry.

It also said that the job demands "the utmost in personal discretion ....the nature of some of the incumbent's duties requires personal participation with the ongoing special activities and programs, thereby necessitating the need for an extremely confidential relationship with the secretary."

"He does much more than cook for the secretary," a spokesman for the department insisted Tuesday. "He manages the secretary's mess, handles the accounting and supervises the

Barnes also plans meals for special groups, such as governors or members of Congress whom Califano invites over for working breakfasts or lunches, the spokesman said. In his first two weeks on the job, Barnes served meals to three VIP groups.

Califano and Hale Champion, HEW's undersecretarydesignate, normally dine together in the secretary's dining room, which adjoins Califano's office, a special meeting room and kitchen.

When they aren't entertaining outsiders, the two pay out of their own pockets for the ingredients Barnes uses to cook their meals, the spokesman said. For official functions, Barnes is authorized to use the secretary's discretionary funds to pay for the food.

It was not known whether any other Cabinet members have personal cooks. But Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Patricia R. Harris recently turned her private dining room into a conference room. She eats in HUD's cafeteria.

what was supposed to be a peaceful electoral solution to Miami's growing dispute over an ordinance that forbids discrimination against homosexuals

The car of a Cuban-born gay activist was firebombed Tuesday. Another activist committed suicide

last week after receiving phone threats in response to a radio show he

Others, on both sides of the issue, report numerous threats.

Dade County's 1.5 million residents are scheduled to decide in a June 7 referendum whether the ordinance will remain on the books. Now there are indications the referendum may not be held. County commissioners are being urged to vote to overturn the ordinance in their April 5 meeting.

Manuel Gomez, 38, a member of the Dade County Coalition for the Humanistic right of Gays, took part in a Monday news conference held by supporters of the ordinance. He later appeared on a Spanish-language "I know how anti-gay the Latin community is," Gomez said. "It seems I'm the first Cuban to talk openly about gayness. It (the firebombing) is a super-macho reaction. The community isn't talking about U.S.-Castro relations anymore. Now, they're just attacking homosexuals."

Gomez is mourning his friend, 28 year-old Ovidio Ramos, who killed himself last week after becoming depressed at response to the gay rights issue. "We were on radio together and we received several injurious telephone calls from people ignorant and bigoted," Gomez said. "He got very

WASHINGTON (AP) -If you are a struggling musician trying to pay for your leased clarinet. or if you can't get credit simply because of your color or religion or because you're over 65, you may find comfort in two new consumer laws. The Consumer Leasing Act, one of the two laws taking effect today, is designed to make leasing companies let customers know exactly the terms of their lease contracts before they sign on the dotted line.

The second new consumer protection law extends three-year-old prohibitions against credit discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status. The new amendment to the Equal Credit Opportunity Law bans credit discrimination for reasons of race, color, religion, national origin

Under the leasing act, whatever you lease, whether it's a clarinet of a new car, the government says the company you deal with must specify the number, amount and due dates of the payments and their

The amount you're paying in taxes and other fees, information about possible penalties resulting from nonpayment, and your leasepurchase rights and what both sides can do to terminate the contract must also be provided.

The law, modeled after the Truth-in-Lending Act, also places restrictions on advertising by leasing

The new law applies to all types of leased goods, as long as the contract is for at least four months and the value of the merchandise isn't over

Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., sponsor of the antidiscrimination measure, said, "The day is now over when persons over 65 years of age cannot get credit solely because of their age. From now on, if there is any discrimination, a person can bring suit for sub-stantial damages or the federal government can take action against the offender."

Under the new law, any loan office denying credit has to tell the applicant where to complain.

DALLAS (AP) — A man who flew bombers for the German Luft-waffe in World War II and spent time as an American prisoner of war in Italy died Tuesday when the propeller of an unmanned, runaway airplane struck him down at Love Field.

Bernhard Scharbius, 57, who told Dallas friends he once stood within two feet of Adolf Hitler, was trying to leap into the runaway airplane when one of the ship's whirling props hit him. "It looked like it got his hips pretty bad but the rest of him was covered by his jacket. I didn't look after that," said Walter Parce, owner of a flight service at Dallas Love

In response to a question by Mrs. Corley about why cups used in the past were not acceptable, Dr. James H. Mailey, superintendent of schools, said, "They leaked and the handles fell off."

Trustee Ed Runyan said, although performance preference should be made clear, the vendor should contact the school district to make sure products submitted are acceptable.

Heidelberg said testing will be done on the cups before bids are let next year and acceptable products will be described in the bid specifications.

In a report on bid processes, Heidelberg said approximately 65 per cent of the money spent through bidding went to Midland vendors. Some other products were not available in Midlamd.

In another matter, the trustees met in executive session to discuss acquisition of property to be used in expanding Midland High School.

Board president Joe Dominey said the trustees received a progress report on price negotiations "with property owners in the Midland High School vicinity."

No action was taken on property acquisition.

Also at Tuesday's meeting, the trustees approved a proposal by The First National Bank of Midland to sponsor two-day trips to Washington, D.C., for secondary school students. Students' absence from school for the trips, as well as time off for teachers to go as chaperones, will be approved by the school district. The school district will also distribute promotional material.

Cost of the two-day trip will be $229 per student. Harry Clark, senior vice president of the bank, said there will be eight scholarship spots per plane after the first one, with five planeloads tentatively scheduled. There will be four scholarship spots on the first plane.

Dr. Douglas Brown, assistant superintendent of schools for instruction, said he checked with other school districts who had participated in this kind of tour and received favorable reactions.

agrees to stay with lowest bidder

Trustee Don Sparks dissented in the vote to approve the trip. Among negative points, Sparks said, is the cost for the amount of time actually spent seeing Washington and the likelihood that there will be "a lot of pressure on many people from their children to go.

Trustee James Ramsoure said he supported the trips as a way for minority children who otherwise would not get an opportunity to go to Washington.

After an executive session, the board reappointed most of the teaching staff for next year. Mailey said a few contracts have been held up "pending some fairly specific actions" toward improvement before the end of this school year.

Twenty-four teachers who started after the first school year also were not included in Tuesday's list. Mailey said they will be considered for renewal later.

Trustees voted to change the date of the first April meeting from April 12 to April 5 so that the board can canvass results of the April 2 election.

In response to a question by a parent, Mailey said the scheduled report on use of values clarification techniques in the classroom will be on the April 5 agenda.

Trustee Ann Page invited parents to give the board material written in opposition to use of values clarification before that board meeting.

In other business Tuesday, the board approved the 1977-78 Head Start application. Under the proposal, the program will continue to serve 140 students. Total proposed funding is $219,313, which includes a 3.9 per cent cost-of-living increase in federal funds and an increase in in-kind local contributions.

The trustees discussed publishing a brochure to explain the role of volunteers in fulfilling the in-kind share obligation.

The 324 PTA volunteers give approximately 1,300 hours of service. The trustees also agreed to continue and expand a pilot strings program in the elementary school music curriculum. The program now is in four schools at the fourth grade level, Bill Cormack, who serves as fine arts coordinator, said.

Next year, the program will be offered in fourth and fifth grade at those four schools and in fourth grade at four other schools.

The trustees agreed to call a special meeting of the board as a committee of the whole for 9 a.m. Friday at the Midland Hilton to allow board members to attend a meeting of the trustees, the Midland City Council and the Midland County commissioners to discuss the Midland Community Action Agency.

In other action, the trustees awarded contracts for cafeteria cleaning supplies, printing of athletic tickets and a tractor.

Of the total $7,639 to be spent on cafeteria cleaning supplies, $4,518 in contracts was awarded to Watson of Lubbock. Sexton of Dallas received $2,837 in contracts and White Swan of Lubbock, $284 in contracts.

Food services director Vivian Busley said products for which contracts were awarded were those which had been found cheapest in use factor through tests.

Other vendors submitting bids were Bancroft of Midland, Crain of Dallas, Mayfield of San Angelo, Mid-Tex of Midland, Procter and Gamble of Lubbock, Sharp of Midland and Wholesale Food Supply of Abilene.

The contract for printing athletic tickets went to Weldon, Williams and Lick of Fort Smith, Ark., for $1,308. Globe Ticket of Dallas submitted a bid of $1,779.

The tractor will be purchased from Dozier Tractor and Implement Co. of Pecos for $5,360. Other bidders were Costin Implement of Colorado City at $5,781, Feldman Engine Service of Odessa at $5,467 and San Angelo Ford Tractor at $5,834.

In other action, the trustees: - Appointed Beverly Jean Ihinger. a kindergarten-first grade teacher at West Elementary School, as chairman of the Carver cultural program. Mrs. Ihinger was one of 10 applicants. Brown said.

- Reappointed Peat, Marwick. Mitchell and Co. as independent school auditors for the school district. - Accepted a gift of a portable publlic intercom system valued at $300 from the Bonham Elementary School PTA.

Bank's building gets tentative nod

Midland City Council Tuesday gave tentative approval to Western State Bank's request for an amendment to a planned district that will allow it to build a six-story office building adjacent to the bank at 1030 Andrews

The approval came after more than an hour's consideration of the request and in the face of opposition from nearly a half-dozen residents who live near the bank. G. E. Graham of 2907 Princeton Ave. led the opposition: Citing the opposition of 14 other neighbors, Graham said the existing planned district ordinance requirements for a paved alley and other provisions were being neglected. He told council members no change should be allowed until the original provisions of the planned district are satisfactorily met.

Graham and the other opponents said the height of the building would infringe on the privacy of many of the neighbors. They also charged that a lessening of the off-street parking requirements proposed by the amendment would increase traffic and parking in front of houses near

James Alsup, an attorney for the bank, and architect Jimmie Leath supported the amendment. They presented evidence showing the height of the six-story building would not infringe on the residents' privacy any more than a smaller building would if located differently. Alsup said the bank expects the lesser parking space requirement to be

The council agreed that by the next council meeting, when the amend-ment appears for final approval, Leath should have available more information on the line of sight from the six-story building and also exactly where on the bank property the building will be located. Angelo also will look into questions concerning restrictive covenants and requirements of the planned district raised by the residents concerning

Unless the planned district is amended the bank will be limited to a new office only 35 feet tall.

Midlanders give OK to MMH bill draft

A final draft of proposed legislation to allow the creation of a hospital district in Midland County was approved Tuesday afternoon and will be sent to the county's legislators this

Sen. W. E. "Pete" Snelson and Rep. Tom Craddick will receive this week the proposed permissive legislation allowing the county to hold an election to create a hospital district. They are expected to submit the proposed bill to the legislature by Tuesday, March 29, said M. A. "Mickie" Cappadonna, president of the Midland Memorial Hospital board of trustees.

The final draft of the bill was approved Tuesday by the five men who are named in the legislation as proposed board members, Cappadonna said. The men are Frank Cowden Jr., L. Decker Dawson, W. P. "Bill" Franklin, Edwin H. Magruder and Robert L. Pendleton.

The men met with the Dallas law firm of McCall, Parkhurst and Horton, which the Midland Memorial Hospital board of trustees retained to guide the Midland Memorial Foundation in making certain the contemplated legislation will permit the foundation to enter into a contract with a hospital district if one is created.

Representatives of Rauscher-Pierce Securities Corp., financial consultants, also were present at the Tuesday meeting. The firm was retained by the hospital board to advise the hospital on the creation of a hospital district and subsequent issuance of general obligation bonds.

Tonight's low is expected to be in the upper 40s, a pleasant increase from the cool spot of 36 for today. The high Thursday is expected to be in the mid-70s. Winds were expected to flow into the Permian Basin at 15 to 25 mph today, and expected to decrease to 10 to 15 mph tonight. The high Tuesday was 68 degrees. High thin clouds were reported by most communities near Midland early this morning. No ice was reported around the Lamesa courthouse this morning as there was Tuesday morning. And generally, temperatures ran warmer this morning at other points as well.

Those high clouds and not quite as nippy conditions were reported at Andrews, Stanton, Odessa, Big Lake, Rankin and Crane.

Warming spring weather graced other areas of Texas today and promised to stay around at least through this weekend, the Associated Press

Prime Minister James Callaghan has made a deal for the support of the Liberal party improved his Labor government's chances of surviving a no-confidence vote in the House of Commons tonight.

Senate rejects major ethics code challenge

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Senate, rejecting a major challenge to its proposed new ethics code, voted Tuesday to include an $8,625 annual ceiling on a senator's outside earnings from speeches and articles.

On a roll-call of 62 to 35, the Senate killed an Edmund S. Muskie (D-Maine) amendment to strip the $8,625 ceiling and leave in effect an existing $25,000 lid adopted two years ago.

The limit doesn't apply to dividend and interest income - just to "earned" income such as from speeches, articles and TV appearances.

"There is every indication the Senate is panicking and will vote for anything in the name of ethics," said Muskie, declaring he may have to sell one of his houses in order to raise money if he can't supplement his $57,000 annual salary from lecture tour earnings above the $8,625 lid.

He said Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis), who headed the Special Ethics Committee that wrote the proposed code, "is putting a cap on my income and he doesn't give a damn on what the consequences may be for me and Nelson angrily retorted, "The senator from Maine voted against the pay increase and then he comes here shedding hot tears flooding the ceiling from $25,000 to $8,625 was proposed by the Nelson unit after congressional pay was raised from $44,600 a year to $57,000 on March 1. The House already has adopted a similar ceiling for its members.

Supporters of the lower limit say it is unseemly and embarrassing to Congress for the public to see members running around collecting fat lecture fees when they have just had a substantial pay increase. In some past years, before there were any limits, senators have earned in the $40,000 to $50,000 range from speaking, and one, Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn) earned $83,451 in 1971.

Muskie argued that the new limit is unfair because it applies only to "earned" income such as honorariums from speeches, articles and TV appearances, but doesn't apply to "unearned" income from dividends, interest or rents collected by rich senators.

Muskie said this means senators with family wealth or business holdings can supplement their Senate salaries by tens of thousands of dollars merely by sitting home clipping coupons, while poorer senators who can earn extra money only from the lecture circuit are limited to

EPA orders recall of Cadillacs

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Environmental Protection Agency Tuesday ordered the General Motors Corp. to recall about 135,000 Cadillacs suspected of violating air-pollution standards because of defective carburetors.

The agency also said it is urging GM to recall voluntarily another 90,000 Cadillacs from the same 1975 model year, also for carbon monoxide emissions. The total number of cars involved amounts to 85 per cent of the Cadillacs produced that year.

It was the first auto recall ordered by the EPA's new administrator. Douglas M. Costle, who said he in-

White defends milk aid

FORT WORTH, Tex. AP) - Deputy Secretary of Agriculture John C. White strongly defended President Carter's decision to increase government price support for milk, which triggered consumer protests that the move would drive up retail costs of milk by as much as 6.2 cents per gallon. "The decision was made basically in an effort to stabilize and to protect income of dairymen and prices to consumers," White said here Tuesday. White made his statements during a press conference after an address to about 1,000 members of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association meeting in Tarrant County Convention Center. "An extensive survey showed that where the entire family worked seven days a week on a dairy their annual income was less than $7,000 per year," White said.

The dairy industry and the USDA said an increase in milk price is needed to cover inflation costs, recommending the new support be set at 80 per cent of parity.

THINKING" with ODOM PHILIPPIANS 4:8

The apostle Paul declared in plain language that there is "One God." (Ep. 4:6) Reader, do you believe that? I am persuaded that you do if you respect the Bible as the inspired word of God. The same apostle declared one Lord. Surely you believe there is but one Lord Jesus Christ, and if there appeared on the scene two that one would be an imposter. (Ep. 4:5) Through inspiration. Paul likewise affirmed that there is one Spirit. (Ep. 4:4) What we have concluded about there being just one God and one Christ can also be accepted relative to the Spirit. To Bible believing people this is relative to the Spirit. To Bible believing people this is easy to see, accept, and understand. But why is it so difficult to accept the rest of Ephesians four?

My friend, as painful as it may be for us to accept, the plain truth is that the various denominations which are in the world today do not constitute the ONE body of Ephesians 4. Christ is the head of the church "which is His body." (Ep. 1:22,23) Anything else is as much a counterfeit as other gods/or -ap posedly Christs. At least give some thought to the

Questions answered

"Where is the end, when the streets of our cities are not safe at night, and some of them are unsafe even in daylight hours?

"Where is the end when robbers strike nightly at convenience stores?

"Where is the end when innocent people are held hostage by nuts protesting this, that or the

These are pertinent questions, indeed, and they are asked by Paul Timmons in his "Surveyor" column appearing in the Amarillo Daily News.

The Amarillo editor, of course, is talking about a nationwide situation. Fortunately some of the crimes he refers to are not as prevalent in West Texas as in other sections of the country. West Texas, however, has its share of crime and vandalism. and West Texans are as concerned as anyone at the rising crime rate across the land. They certainly are interested in doing what they can to reduce the crime rate in West Texas and elsewhere in America.

They realize, of course, that this is a tremendous undertaking, being aware of the fact, as is Paul Timmons, that the police alone, however efficient they are, are unable to stop it.

Timmons, in his column, points out that perhaps the answer is found in history, and that this is

And, answering his own question, he said it was armed citizens who made it safe to travel the roads. It was armed citizens who made it safe for a shopkeeper to do business.

"The suggestion will sound drastic to many people." Timmons wrote. "Some will suggest that innocent people will be hurt, innocent people will be killed if citizens go armed. That is true. But innocent people are being hurt now.

"The slim possibility of arrest and conviction, and a short sentence, cut even shorter by parole. is not half so frightening to the would-be bandit as the possibility - or probability - that the intended victim might be armed."

Timmons might just have a solution to one of America's most pressing problems.

Yes, there are those who will say that the suggestion is too drastic and completely beyond reason - perhaps that someone's rights, possibly those of a wouldbe criminal, would be violated. But how about the rights of the victims? It's time we gave them some consideration.

United States-Korea Relations are tested

Relations between the United States and the Republic of Korea will be put to an excruciating test over the next

Chances are very good that the Washington-Seoul tie will survive the test and emerge stronger than ever. Some opinion from both ends of the political spectrum believes there will be a "throwing the baby out with the bath water effect;" that the probe into various allegations will irreparably damage Korea's security position in Asia and the U.S. position in that part of the world as well. Not likely.

Investigations into alleged irregularities will be conducted through two channels:

1. The Justice Department is looking into charges of Korean expenditure to buy influence among members of the U.S. Congress. Congressmen have a way of making public laundry sessions of their own dirty linen as quick and painless as

Insiders say, also, that Justice is having trouble coming up with hard evidence to support many of the charges. There is smoke but the firemen are having trouble finding

Many of the charges involve gifts, travel and entertainment that raise ethical but not criminal questions. My Justice will be thorough, but brief, and the expectations are that it will uncover little of substance.

2. Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., will have his International Relations subcommittee looking into allegations of military contract and business corruption, Korean Central Intelligence Agency excesses in this country and the extent to which our own CIA and State Department acted to prevent these things from hap-

After some misgivings at first about Fraser's approach, I now believe it is best to get the whole thing over with as speedily but as thoroughly as President Carter has supported the payment of funds to foreign leaders in some cases. It now appears that some of the payments to Korea through U.S. business channels may indeed have been of CIA origin (our CIA).

The lines of authority and legality on these matters are not completely

But following Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's statement that questions involving complexities of policy, morality, legality and national interest should be viewed on a caseby-case basis, it would seem that as much light as possible should be shed on the U.S.-Korea situation.

Without full and complete investigations in both of these areas, future congressional votes on Korean military aid, security considerations. trade and other issues would be clouded by suspicions and hints of

So let's get it out on the table, own up to our mistakes and they to theirs, and get on with other issues of foreign policy.

As a footnote to the Koreagate allegations, it has been learned that a considerable number of Korean-Americans have been damaged by the publicity over KCIA alleged misdeeds.

The damage, resulting from in-nuendo and guilt by association, has led several Korean-Americans to be fired without cause from their jobs.

There are several cases being pleaded before courts in Washington, D.C., and the areas of Virginia and Maryland adjacent to the nation's Another case is that of Jhoon Rhee.

Since the KCIA payoff allegation stories began appearing Washington press, Rhee's karate business has plummeted. Just before Christmas the firm's 25 instructors agreed to take pay cuts. They have been restored in some cases but the staff has been trimmed.

This damage to private citizens and businesses is the real casualty factor in such probes. The larger U.S.-Korean relation-

Teamsters' boss hooked twice

Distributed by L.A. Times Syndicate

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON - Frank Fitzsimmons is accustomed to the good life. In public, he is always manicured, soaped, pressed and pomaded. His $350 suits are of conservative color and cut. He flies in a private jet between his fashionable homes in the Washington suburbs and the California seashore.

He draws down $156,000 a year from the Teamsters Union, with two unlimited expense accounts to take with the crown princes of the underworld, the shadowy figures who live off protected crime. Yet he has equal access to the nation's most prominent politicians.

One time, after a social hour with notorious mobsters on the California coast, he hitched a ride back to Washington with then-President Richard Nixon in Air Force One. More recently, Fitzsim mons has been seen on the golf course with House

Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill. Unabashed, Fitzsimmons has always thumbed his nose at his detractors. His voice is squeaky, but the words were always tough. Once he

His appointment is expected to told his critics blunty to "go to heli."

Last year, nine bold dissidents gain prompt confirmation by the dared to protest his reelection as Teamsters president at the union's All best wishes are directed to Las Vegas convention. But Fitzsimnons' fortunes have now changed. Since the Democrats came to power, he has become the object of the special attentions of the Labor Department, Justice Department and Internal Revenue Service.

Squirming from the heat, the un-comfortable Teamsters boss has put out the word that he would like to resign. His desperate hope, according to our sources, is that the feds would leave him alone if he made a discreet

But sources with pipelines into the underworld tell us Fitzsimmons' friends in the mob won't let him off the hook. He has made too many Teamster loan commitments to their friends. They have suuggested, with quiet menace, that he shouldn't let go of the pursestrings until the commitments are met.

The last Teamsters leader who refused to listen to the suggestions of the crime czars was the late Jinmy Hoffa. On at least nine separate occasions, they asked him politely not to challenge Fitzsimmons for the Teamsters leadership. When he disregarded their advice, he suddenly and permanently disappeared. Earlier this month, Fitzsimmons attempted to wriggle out of his dilemma. He struck up a deal with the Labor Department and Internal Revenue Service to resign as a trustee of the pension fund. In return, they agreed to drop their inquiry into the appease the government without double-crossing the mob. With a nervous glance over his shoulder, he let it be known that he would hang on to the Teamsters presidency. He was also careful not to sign any papers giving up actual control of the Teamsters money. One source described the March 13 deal with the government as "an agreement by press release."

The object of all this manipulating is the union's Central States Pension fund, a $1.3 billion boodle, which has been available in the past to finance mob-controlled enterprises. Our sources contend that Fitzsimmons will be able to control the fund as long as he remains union president, the recent agreement notwithstanding.

But the feds also haven't given up anything. Under the agreement, they will continue to investigate shady Teamster loans. Labor Secretary Ray Marshall has taken personal command of his department's Teamsters investigation.

Sources familiar with Fitzsimmons' backstage maneuvers say he is angling to gain immunity from both the government and the mob. Federal officials told our associate Marc Smolonsky that they will never grant immunity to the embattled Teamsters boss. Underworld contacts say the crime lords also won't release him from his commitments to them.

Still, the harassed Fitzsimmons, according to our sources, hasn't given up hope. He has spoken to associates about resigning in the spring. He would like a fat retirement settlement. The union, meanwhile, has deposited a mysterious $698,000 of Teamster pension funds in a bank account. The union will decide what to do with the money sometime before December 31. Our sources suspect Fitzsimmons has set it aside as his future retirement fund if he can find a WASHINGTON WHIRL President Carter's pledge to fill only three out of every four vacant government positions, it turns out, won't apply to his own political ap-pointees. The President can appoint about 1,000 top executives at salaries ranging from $47,500 to $66,000 annually. An internal White House memo reveals that all these positions will be filled as fast as the Republicans vacate them, not just three out of four.

Kreps' testimony seen as proposing 'counter-boycott'

WASHINGTON - Following a visit to the White House by Jewish leaders appealing for help, a senior presidential aide removed from Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps' testimony on anti-boycott legislation language that businessmen feel is necessary to avert destruction of U.S.-Arab trade.

Three Jewish leaders met with Stuart Eizenstat, President Carter's domestic policy chief, at the White House on Saturday, March 12. That meeting buttressed his own view, Eizenstat told us, that Mrs. Kreps testimony to Congress March 14 and 15 supporting anti-boycott legislation should be general rather than specific. Over the weekend, specific discussion of exceptions to the antiboycott ban disappeared from the draft of her testimony.

That disappearance is viewed with utmost gravity by businessmen who thought they had worked out a compromise with Jewish leaders. They view Eizenstat's intervention ("suddenly a new actor on the stage," one businessman told us) as wiping out four weeks of arduous negotiation What's more, the businessmen feel the omissions from the Kreps testimony void face-to-face assurances made by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to Arab leaders during his recent Mideast swing.

Personal intervention by the President could yet produce moderate regulations enforcing the new anti-boycott legislation in a way that preserves U.S.-Arab trade and the essential help of Saudi Arabia in a Mideast settlement, But the Kreps testimony is viewed by sober businessmen as proposing a "counterboycott" - a U.S. trade boycott of the Arab world in response to its boycott of Israel, with dismai side-effects on the Middle East.

Actually, Mr. Carter has had little involvement with the boycott question since his campaign support for a law prohibiting American businessmen from participating in the boycott of Israel. Four days after his inauguration, businessmen and Jewish leaders began negotiating a compromise approach, first reported by us early this year.

These talks, under the auspices of the Anti-Defamation League (ADL) and the Business Roundtable, produced a joint statement of principles. But that left unanswered specific questions, including what has known as the classic truck-

If Company "X" exports a truck/to an Arab country, can it replace tires made by Company "Y" on the boycott list with tires made by non-boycotted Company "Z" without being subject to U.S. criminal prosecution under the new anti-boycott law? If the answer is no, relations with the Arab world ald become dubious. Businessmen assumed that the ADL-Roundtable sessions tacitly agreed on moderate enforcement, with the Carter administration's backing.

But a tough interpretation of the ADL-Roundtable agreement by Alfred Moses of the American Jewish Committee in congressional testimony March 8 set off a chain reaction. Irving S. Shapiro of the DuPont Co., chairman of the Roundtable, wrote the President March 10 taking issue with the Moses interpretation and citing the truck-tire

Indeed, the draft of testinecy by Secretery Kreps before the House Banking Committee Monday, March 14, echoed Shapiro's position. It even urged the truck-tire exception.

Her draft testimony discussed in detail the need for exceptions, asserting: "We believe that U.S. businesses should be permitted to make necessary accommodation to import and entry restrictions in particular transactions with the Arab world." It advocated exceptions from the legislation providing a degree of clarity for the business community, which is essential for the orderly conduct of trade. This type of exception recognizes that the United States cannot change the laws of other countries, even those which we view as undesirable."

On Saturday, March 12, Eizenstat was visited by Moses, Hyman Book-binder of the American Jewish Committee and Paul Burger of the American Jewish Congress. They took issue with Shapiro's letter and urged that the administration not go on record favoring such exceptions.

violate the anti-boycott legislation. He advised making the Kreps testimony general, not specific, and over the weekend the Secretary of Commerce's draft statement began losing paragraphs. Mention of the truck-tire question was red-pencilled, as was the entire discussion of exemptions quoted above. So, expecting detailed support of exceptions to anti-boycott legislation, businessmen instead received from the administration only an affirmation of the anti-boycott principle in highly ambiguous language. Whether this results in damaging loss of trade with the Arab world depends on whether Mr. Carter interprets that language with regulations that please the Jewish leaders, as they fully expect, or regulations saying what Juanita Kreps intended to say before the White House intervention.

jokes since they battled each other for the Democratic presidential nomination last year. More important than the jokes, some Californians have feared that an open feud could jeopardize state interests.

Former Calif. Gov. Edmund G. Brown's son Jerry not only beat Carter in four presidential primaries but he could not - or would not deliver the state of California to Carter in the general election. And if Jerry Brown can win re-election as California governor next year, he will remain in the wings as a potential rival to Carter in 1980 and beyond.

But now the Carter-Brown chill seems to have thawed a bit.

At Carter's invitation, Brown made an extraordinary overnight stay in the White House Monday night and chatted with the President for two hours about everything from human rights to natural gas.

Their meeting was "very relaxed, very cordial, not only friendly but very productive," Brown told The Los Angeles Times Tuesday.

Instead of leaving for California on a 9 a.m. flight as planned, Brown stayed in Washington for most of the day Tuesday, attending a closed Carter breakfast with congressional leaders, braving a rainstorm, and talking with White House policymakers about California issues.

Carter obviously went out of his way to welcome the California rival to his team - a move many of his advisers had been urging for some time.

The apparent success of their visit may help soothe those Brown aides concerned at published reports that Carter invited California Treasurer Jesse Unruh to Washington March 3 to make Unruh, a Brown rival, his main contact in California.

The fence-mending visit was set up with the help of Sen. Alan Cranston, the No. 2 man in the Senate, who was elected Democratic whip partly because of his skill at mediation. Cranston told The Times he had been disturbed by press reports last week that Gov. Brown had been excluded intentionally from a Carter state dinner with Mexican President Lopez Portillo.

'I was concerned that Jerry had been snubbed, so I telephoned the White House and told them what the California press was saying," Cranston said. "They came right back and said they had intended to invite Brown to dinner with the prime minister of Japan, because of the importance California attached to Pacific interests."

Brown's dinner Monday night with Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda at the White House produced some favorable results, Brown said.

He told The Times he will meet with Fukuda's aides in California next Wednesday to discuss "the location of (Japanese) automobile plants in California," the export of semiconductors and other electronic equipment, and Japanese business development in California

Even if some of his aides had worried about Brown's exclusion from the Lopez Portillo dinner March 14. Brown insisted Tuesday that he had not cared about it.

LOS ANGELES - Does it make sense to ban a popular food additive on the strength of what happens when a hundred rats and their offsprings eat the additive in huge doses?

The Calorie Control Council, Inc., of Atlanta thinks not. The trade organization, whose $50,000 annual budget comes from manufacturers of dietary food and drink, has spent thousands of dollars in the last few days for full-page newspaper ads across the country berating the Food and Drug Administration for its decision to ban saccharin, the only nonnutritive sweetener currently on the market. To judge by the torrent of protests the FDA has received, a sizable portion of the calorie-counting public agrees. Long accustomed to a cross fire of criticism from industry and consumer activists, the FDA has been besieged by citizen demands to liberate saccharin. And moves are afoot in Congress to amend the Food and Drug Act.

The FDA, for its part, says it was only doing what the law required. And the law - specifically the Delaney clause Congress inserted in the Food and Drug Act in 1958 says that "no (food) additive shall be deemed to be safe if it is found...after tests which are appropriate for the evaluation of the safety of food additives, to induce cancer in man or animal." The clause does not allow for a balancing of risk and benefit. Nor does it require the ban to be based on evidence of cancer in humans. Elusive as the logic of this law may seem to the general public, medical researchers say that the animal experiments upon which such regulatory decisions are based do have a sensible rationale - and that they do have a direct bearing on risk to humans.

It is true, researchers acknowledge, that the rats at the center of this furore consumed each day the saccharin equivalent of roughly 1,000 cans of low-calorie soft drink. But they consider it misleading - if not dishonest - to suggest, as the calorie council has, that this disparity makes the research irrelevant to humans.

People who drink only one can a day of a saccharin soft drink run a comparably lower risk of cancer. But in a population of 213 million people, the collective hazard could still add up to several thousand cases of bladder

Moreover, scientists note, rat experiments that led the FDA to ban saccharin are essentially the same as those underlying earlier government decisions to restrict or ban the use of persistent pesticides like DDT and other food additives, such as red dye No. 2, a petroleum derivative used until last year to color a vast range of products from lipstick to maraschino

Feeding tests with rats also led the FDA in 1969 to ban cyclamates, the only other commercial synthetic sweetener.

If anything, the saccharin ex-periments that the Canadian government completed last year and that led to the FDA action, where more sophisticated than most such feeding tests, according to Dr. Marvin Schneiderman, the National Cancer Institute's associate director for field studies and statistics.

And if the FDA's decision to ban the sweetener was wrongheaded, it was at least not precipitous. Two previous American studies, reported in 1971 and 1973, had already shown that large doses of saccharin - 5 per cent of the diet in the first study and 7.5 per the second - produced significant numbers of bladder tumors in rats.

On the basis of this research, conducted by the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation and by the FDA itself, the FDA restricted the use of saccharin in soft drinks and foods. But because of ambiguities in the studies, it declined to ban the sweetener. One problem, raised in objections by the Calorie Control Council, was that the saccharin used in the studies contained a contaminant (called orthotoluene sulfanomide, or OTS) that might actually have caused the tumors. The new Canadian study, however, appears to have laid that problem to

In an elaborate procedure, the government researchers used six different groups of 100 rats through two generations.

The first group, fed a diet containing 5 per cent pure saccharin, developed three bladder tumors in the first generation and 14 in the second.

Four other groups were fed various doses of OTS in their diet. None developed tumors. The sixth group was fed a normal diet without saccharin or OTS and developed two tumors.

Observing two generations of test animals in screening tests like this is becoming accepted procedure, said Dr. Jean Taylor of the FDA. The reasoning, she said, is that if humans are exposed to potentially carcinogenic (or cancer-causing) chemicals from conception, so should test animals.

To Schneiderman of the NCI, the higher incidence of cancer in the second generation of saccharin-fed rats is not surprising, but it is disturbing. He said it suggests not only that saccharin crosses the placental barrier in mammals - as many chemicals do - but also that the sweetener may predispose a human fetus to bladder cancer later

Medical scientists believe these and similar rat and mouse studies pertain to humans for two basic reasons.

The first, in Schneiderman's words, is a belief drawn from substantial experimental evidence that cancer is "universal" disease among mammals. In spite of vast outward differences between mice and men, the causes and the biological processes of malignancy are thought mammals. A chemical that causes cancer in one species is therefore thought likely to do so in others.

to be essentially the same among all

The second reason why scientists worry when rats contract cancer from food additives has to do with a well-established relationship between the dose of a carcinogen and its effect.

Whether the agent in question is the ultraviolet radiation in sunlight or Xrays or a chemical, experiments show that high doses result in relatively high risks of cancer. The lower the dose, the lower the risk. But scientists are nearly unanimous in the belief that no "threshold" exists below which the risk of a carcinogen disappears.

In screening chemicals to identify carcinogens, scientists put the "highdose, high-risk" rule to good use. They administer massive doses in order to minimize the number of animals needed to detect an effect if any is to be found.

'If we don't get a response at those levels, we figure the substance is probably pretty safe at levels humans encounter," NCI's Schneiderman

It appears that perhaps 90 per cent chemical carcinogens have a molecular structure that enables them to interact chemically with DNA, the genetic material in all living cells. There is also evidence, admittedly scanty, that a gradual accumulation of irreparable chemical or radiation damage to DNA ultimately results in aberrant or malignant growth.

But what exactly does a positive finding mean, as in the case of the Canadian saccharin study?

Qualitatively, researchers can say with some confidence that saccharin is also likely to cause cancer in humans. But can such high-dose feeding studies be used to estimate in numerical terms — the real risk to

The question is an important one if Congress is to abandon the Delaney amendment's requirement of absolute safety and shift instead to a balancing of risks and benefits.

Femininity dominates styles of de la Renta...

By LANA CUNNINGHAM

Soft and romantic. These are the two descriptions of fashions which most designers are trying to achieve with this spring and summer's clothes. Some are successful, some are not.

Ranking among those who have definitely achieved that look in their spring and summer line is Oscar de la Renta who showed his line during the annual benefit style show sponsored by the Junior League of Odessa, Inc., at The Mansion dinner theater.

"We are going through a period where clothes are much softer and more feminine," the award-winning designer told the audience. "The colors are softer and prettier to look at. With my fashions I try to make a woman look as best as possible."

The fashion show opened with the stage, filled with models in casual outfits around a large centerpiece of various colored flowers, slowly dropping down from the ceiling.

Keeping in step with the music the models displayed the fashions, with several leaving the stage, changing clothes and returning to keep a

The New York designer's fashions are soft, loose, flowing, giving a hint as to the woman's shape, and definitely romantic.

Several styles with their peasant tops and full gathered skirts with ruffles reflect his early life in the Dominican Republic and Spain.

His clothes are not restricted to a certain color line, but he uses everything from naturals, navy and pastels to clear bright colors such as hot pink, clear coral, bright green and

Along with the peasant styles, de la Renta's line includes many of the new blouson styles, both in dresses and blouses, and full pleated skirts which range from just a few pleats to a whirl of tiny pinch pleats. Several dresses and tops also skirts and lacy blouses, spell out the romantic look to the fullest extent. There is the classic black gathered skirt with a deep ruffle at the bottom, white blouse with a square lace yoke and long sleeves attached to lace cuffs, highlighted by a red sash which ties into a bow at the waistline.

Another ultra-feminine design is a long white skirt trimmed with black velvet and topped with a black velvet close-fitting blouse designed with a low scoop neckline and full elbowlength sleeves.

Pants outfits also are shown for the evening and these include the loose pants and the slim-legged ones. All are topped by a loose-fitting, flowing tunic top.

And, saving the best for last, two dresses, resembling those of a Spanish flamenco dancer, feature rows of ruffles from a close-fitting

Soft and romantic. Those two words keep repeating themselves in one's mind as the stage, filled with the models in the final evening designs, slowly lifts to the ceiling and the music fades away.

...a fashion designer whose first desire was to paint

By LANA CUNNINGHAM

If Oscar de la Renta had continued with his first life's ambition he today would be a painter, and no doubt a

But his father interrupted his studies, complaining that his son would never make any money as a painter, and Oscar de la Renta is now one of the top international fashion

During a press conference at The Mansion dinner theater de la Renta explained how he got into fashion designing and his ideas behind fashion, women and his spring and summer collection.

He was born in Santo Domingo in the Dominican Republic, the only boy among a family of seven "so I was very spoiled." He went to school in Spain to study painting and it was at this time that his father wanted his son to return home to help run the

But, de la Renta discovered he could draw fashion illustrations for newspapers and this gave him the step inside the door of fashion designing. He has been in New York since 1963 and since that time has become one of the world's top designers. Adding to his list of designer awards is his being named to the Coty Award Hall of Fame.

Despite his talent, de la Renta told the press that it was luck that led him to becoming famous. "I was at the right time at the right place," the tall slender man said.

Speaking with the easy going manner typical of a West Texan and not that of a New Yorker, de la Renta admitted that he does "have a certain talent for how fashion moves.'

He tries to design his clothes not just for the people in New York City, but for people across the country. "People across the country have different lifestyles, different needs."

He rarely designs an outfit for just one person, but he has done it oc-casionally for a close friend.

The designer is blunt with his answers, but with a touch of humor added. Relating one story of a woman "who was a size 24" who asked him to design a dress for her, de la Renta replied, "I told her I was not in the upholstery business," he said, cracking a smile.

He enjoys seeing a woman in a skirt. Although he prefers the length to be below the knee, he added the length also depends upon taste and how it looks on that woman.

His clothes follow this year's soft and feminine theme. In the past few years, he said, designs have "been strongly geared into sportswear."

He recently has turned to designing men's clothes because he wanted to get involved in that area.

Like many other well-known designers, he also is branching out into other areas, such as sheets and towels, sleepwear, coats, women's shoes and umbrellas.

His latest undertaking is a line of perfume that will make its debut around August, he said, although the scent has not been picked yet.

Unlike many designers, de la Renta maintains total control over what he puts his name on. "I am involved only in products I feel will make a contribution," he said. What carries his name must meet exactly with what he wants. "For example, I am not sure about the packaging for this perfume, and I decided to delay the decision on it," he explained.

Out of fear, they break the patterns that give meaning to their lives. Gone are the soft sociable afternoons on park benches; the park has become a war zone.

They forego visits to children and grandchildren. They won't see doctors. They stop going to religious services.

'Crime leads to an unbelievable deprivation and reduction in the quality of life of older people who already have problems of fixed income, poor health, loss of loved ones and of their own role in life," says George Sunderland, coordinator of the Crime Prevention Program of the American Association of Retired Persons.

'An older person's sense of self can be very fragile, and crime is an invasion of that self. People die a little," says Alice M. Brophy, commissioner for the aging in New York City.

About 22 million Americans are over 65. Many live in cities where crime is high.

There are no comprehensive national statistics on crimes against the elderly. Police say that nationwide, senior citizens are victimized less than the general public.

But in terms of purse snatch, robbery and assault, especially in cities, they are a disproportionately large victim group. The Midwest Research Institute found, for example, that persons over 60 living in certain neighborhoods of Kansas City, Mo., can be 10 times more vulnerable to crime than younger persons in safer neighborhoods.

Most elderly victims are women, most are alone, most are attacked during the day in or near their homes. Most are poor and live on fixed incomes. Younger victims can recoup losses through earnings; the elderly often cannot. Their savings often are the only thing keeping them independent of their children and out of nursing homes. They are also highly vulnerable to attack, less able to defend

While the 58-year-old Britisher says he is not sure why the Queen put a 'sir' in front of his name last year "She didn't say much at all, actually"), it probably has something to do with the fact that Read is chairman of EMI Ltd., the world's largest manufacturer of phonograph records.

Late 1950s hits like Gene Vincent's "Be Bop A Lula," Tommy Sands' "Teenage Crush" and the Kingston Trio's "Tom Dooley" sent millions of dollars across the Atlantic.

And now EMI is trying to do the same thing in films and television production. Within the last nine months, the British firm has established subsidiaries in Southern California to generate revenues from sight as well as sound.

EMI Films, Beverly Hills, will start hooting a new motion picture May 2. Entitled "Convoy," the $6.5 million adventure film will star Kris Kristofferson and Ernest Borgnine.

What makes Arnason's Arnason, a member of despite some thin spots, the Icelandic Parliament is Midland Community and one of his country's Theatre's really excellent leading spokesmen in cast. The play might have international councils, been less than effective without such a fine group, just as the group would have been less effective by any means, because without such a good there certainly is a place script. MCT's production for such a stage work in is the best of both worlds.

Jim Salners, always a credit to any production he works in, is absolutely first-rate as Kormak Torfason, the lighthouse keeper whose solitary world is invaded by, first, those best known British Army personnel, and then by the American Army, during early World War II.

Coila Morrow, who also has done excellent work in past MCT productions, provides a splendid characterization of a starchy British security officer, Catherine Stanton, who becomes far less officer and far more woman as she and Kormak share a brief romantic interlude.

Not unexpectedly Charles Dixon, rightly described as MCT's dean of actors by virtue of his dozens of stage roles at MCT over the years, gives a skilled and convincing performance as Major Stone, the rather dense commanding of ficer of the British security unit. He plays the part of the pompous old stuffed shirt for all it is worth, and seems to have fun doing it.

Jesse Grimes is excellent as the reluctant German "spy," a semi brain-washed Icelander sent back to his native country to do espionage for the Third Reich. Most of the time the poor guy is hiding in the cellar with the lighthouse keeper's cow so we haven't all that much opportunity to see him, but he is quite believable in his role on the occasions when he surfaces

If you haven't heard of the American Golf Tour (AGT) until recently, don't despair. A lot of other golf followers who pride themselves on keeping up, are in the same boat.

This is the first year for the tour and if AGT backers have their way, it's something that will become a continuing part of the American sports

The AGT is the brain child of Eddie Susalla, who is president of the organization and has a background that includes hitches as a pro at LaCosta, Pinehurst, Indian Wells and Tucson CC.

"HIS IDEA was to have a second tour," says Norm Popkin, Huntington Beach, Calif., a member of the AGT touring staff. "It's not a mini-tour. No other tour has 90 scheduled events." Popkin says the AGT isn't to be confused with the satellite tour of recent vintage, which was in reality a mini tour.

"Our schedule already is nine weeks old and we have events scheduled through December," says

The AGT is divided into eastern and western segments. "It gives golfers an opportunity to

BRIEFLY, THE way it works is that a player may pay a $250 annual membership fee which allows him to play in any AGT event, east or west. for $100 per tournament.

To encourage local participation, a provision has been made so that local players can play in three tournaments for $150 each.

This year's western AGT began with a five-week run in California. moved to Tucson, Albuquerque and last week began a six-meet Texas invasion at El Paso.

"We try to dovetail our tour with the TPD (Tournament Players Division) tour," points out Norm."In that way, TPD players who fail to make a tournament field in Monday's qualifying, have a place to play."

At Midland this week there will be at least four TPD players competing.

"IN MOBILE this week, there will be a good many touring pros," says Norm, "since the PGA event is an invitational tournament and there will be no Monday qualifying, where normally 200 to 225 players bid for

Although guaranteeing $25,000 in prize money for each tournament, the AGT is still feeling its way and depends primarily on membership and entrance fees for its prize money but "Eventually, it is hoped to make the AGT a money-making endeavor with corperations sponsoring tournaments and guaranteeing prize money," says Popkin.

STOPS IN Texas include San Antonio, Lakeway at Austin, Lubbock and Amarillo before the tour moves north into Kansas and Nebraska and then Idaho and Utah.

Bob Risch, Diamond Bar, Calif. became the first two-time winner on the AGT when he took the top spot at El Paso last week. His $11,000 in prize money so far may pale when compared to the earnings of Rik Massengale, Jack Nicklaus or Tom Watson, but for two months work, it's more than a living.

OHS soph stops Lee Rebs, 3-0

By BOB DILLON

Sophomore righthander Brian Cantrell set Bronchos Lee down on six hits Tuesday as the Odessa stunned the Rebels, 3-0, at Lee in a District 5-4A baseball opener.

Lee, picked to wind up second in the race behind Abilene's Eagles, just didn't come up wih with the timely base hit it needed with men on base. The Rebs left 10 runners stranded as Cantrell was tough when he had to be. While Lee was getting the league race off on the wrong foot, Abilene, too, fell to Big Spring, 12-3 and the Warbirds went into that game with an 11-0 season mark.

Lee looked like it might break loose for a big rally in the bottom of the first inning, but it was not to be.

Jeff Mathews singled, but was thrown out by OHS catcher Mike Webster. Then Todd Clements, who had three hits in three trips to the plate, singled, but was forced at second by Mike Richard. Cantrell then pitched out of the jam, leaving runners at first and third CRAIG VAN HORN, who also gave up six hits and pitched superbly, did not get the backing on defense or at the plate to win. The junior righthander walked one and struck out eight in losing.

The Rebs started the second with John Hopkins singling into left. Pinch-runner Richard Benson stole second, but Cantrell struck out Dwayne Vest and Craig Young and got Robby Roberson to sky out to center.

Odessa scored all the runs it needed in the fifth inning. Johnny Morrison legged out an infield hit, stole second and scored on Cal Adams' single. Don Connally then tripled up the power alley in right-center for a 2-0 lead and scored on a squeeze bunt by John

Clements started off the Lee fifth with a dcuble into left and raced to third when the ball got away from Pressly, but Richard popped out to the catcher, Van Horn did likewise to the pitcher and Brad Wright grounded out to second to end the threat.

CLEMENTS HIT another double after one out in the seventh and Mathews had walked, but both run-ners were left stranded when Richard grounded out to first and Van Horn

With the loss, Lee is 10-5 on the year and 0-1 in loop play while OHS is 9-5 and 1-0 and Cantrell is 4-0 on the year

Risch fires 66 to lead by two

While everybody else was com-plaining about the wind, Bob Risch did something about it.

The pro from Diamond Bar, Calif., the only two-time winner in nine previous American Golf Tour (AGT) tournaments, ignored blustery 25 mph wins at Hogan Park Golf Course to shoot a four-under par 66.

The 31-35 round gave Risch, who won last week at El Paso Horizon CC, the first of six Texas stops, a twostroke lead over Steve Willis of Carlsbad, N.M.

Willis shot nines of 34-34. Only four other golfers beat par in that continues today and concludes Thursday.

FOUR GOLFERS shared third place with 69s. They were San Angelo's Jim Mundell, Ken Ellsworth, Sun City, Calif., Paul Wise, Lawndale, Calif., and Gary Jacobson, Rio Verde, Ariz.

Only five other golfers in the 114player field fought the elements on even terms and emerged with par 70s. They were Guy Walkingstick, Fort Worth; Tom Sargent, San Diego, Deray Simon, Costa Mesa, Calif., Chuck Morgan, Palm Springs, Calif. and John Jodlowski.

Risch's round included birdies at two, four, eight and nine for his front nine 31. On the back side, his birds came on 10 and 17, but were offset by bogeys on 11 and 18.

For Willis it was a birdle on nin that got him under the wire with a front nine 34 while on the back nine his birdie on 17 was the difference. Earlier he had birdied 10, bogied 11, birdied 14 and bogied 15.

R-T Sports Writer ODESSA - Midland High baseball coach Larry Peel wasn't expecting any miracles of monumental proportion in his team's District 5-4A opener against Permian. He just wanted to make a respectable showing.

But things never quite work out the way we would like them to, and Peel found that out the hard way here Tuesday afternoon, as the Panthers took advantage of six Bulldog errors to score six unearned runs, and waltz away with a 10-0 victory over the Tall City nine. "We couldn't have even beaten ourselves out there today we played so poorly," admitted a distressed Peel, who was trying to decide what calibre gun to end it all with after the one-sided defeat. "It was a real fiasco."

In addition to the defensive disaster, three Midland pitchers were shelled for 10 hits, including a three run homer in the first inning by Mojo catcher Brian Harris. Permian righthander Kimmy Watters gave MHS hitters fits all afternoon, as he blanked them on just two hits, allowing a runner to reach as far as third just once.

KEVIN WIDNER, 1-2, who started on the mound for the Bulldogs and lasted 2 innings, was tagged with the

For good measure, Permian added one more run in the opening frame, that one also unearned.

FIGHTING OUT of a hole is extremely difficult, and the Pack found that out, as they struggled in vain to make up the four run deficit. But two innings later, they were stung for still another run on three base hits, and that was all for Widner and Midland.

Bud Brigham relieved the Bulldog starter, and survived until the fifth. when Permian plated three more runs, all earned, on four base hits. Kevin Minton finished up on the mound, holding the Panthers hitless over the final one and one-third.

Midland's only serious scoring threat came in the fifth, when put men on second and third with one out. Widner, who had stayed in the game at third, walked, and Larry Murphy singled. They moved up on an infield ground out, but Watters struck out the

McGarr decision may end snickering over Kuhn

By NANCY SCANNELL The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Nine months ago when Charlie Finley hauled Bowie Kuhn into court over the cancelled sale of three Oaklan A's players, the standard joke was that baseball would soon have more suits than Pierre Cardin.

There were also facetious suggestions that pictures of the lawyers involved ought to be placed on bubble-gum cards, since there would probably be more of them in baseball's employ than players.

Frank J. McGarr, a federal judge in Chicago, may have ended that snickering with his ruling Thursday that baseball commissioner Kuhn has anbridled power to act in the best interests of the game.

SUCH AUTHORITY, McGarr noted, had been conferred upon the commissioner by 'the club owners through the Major League Agreement, of which Finley was a signer.

McGarr's decision is not expected to have any significant impact on the other professional sports, where the powers of the commissioner or president are more narrowly defined.

Although different sections of baseball's constitution spell out what the commissioner "may" do, McGarr said, those sections do not limit what he can do in taking preventive or remedial action. If the owners had wanted to proscribe his options, they could have done so and still may, the judge observed.

During the course of the 15-day trial, 19 owners and 2 league presidents testified to Kuhn's allencompassing power - testimony the judge said was influential in his deciplayers' union, said the owners "will have to live with that testimony. It would not surprise me if some of them in the period ahead would have second thoughts about it."

"The case is not a Finley-Kuhn popularity contest - though many fans so view it," McGarr wrote in con-cluding that Kuhn had the authority to void Finley's attempted $3.5 million sales and had done so in good faith.

"This is good for the game, because it's so big and complex that you need some kind of authority to head off a lot of squabbling," Kuhn said afterward. "Maybe now we'll be able to get down to playing baseball."

Whether McGarr's decision will serve as a tranquilizer for the tumult baseball has endured in the last year may finally be determined on an appeal Finley said he would carry "up to the U.S. Supreme Court."

Kuhn's attorneys - Peter K. Bleakley, Irvin B. Nathan and Paul S. Reichler — said they are confident Kuhn will be sustained on appeal because of "the credibility of the witnesses and incontestable documents" supporting prior similar

FINLEY'S LAWYER, Neil Papiano, has been unavailable for com-

Regardless of how the Finley appeal fares, the restoration of peace to baseball - outside of possible future labor-management problems - may face still another challenge next

Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner is asking a federal judge to order Kuhn to lift his one-year suspension of Turner for tampering with a player's contract.

"Whether (Kuhn) was right or wrong is beyond the competence and jurisdiction of this court to decide"

McGarr said in the Finley decision. Turner's lawyers are expected to argue that Kuhn exceeded his authority, and that his decision is an appropriate subject for court review. On another front on this issue, McGarr has set a March 29 hearing at which the Boston Red Sox, once a codefendant with Kuhn, may seek damages from Finley for breaking the waiver rule and forcing the Red Sox into costly litigation. The Yankees, who were co-defendants until the judge dismissed them from the case together with Boston, have not indicated whether they will also seek legal costs. McGarr has not yet ruled whether Finley will be responsible for court costs for the defense. Just as murky right now is Finley's future in baseball.

UCLA, San Francisco, Kentucky and Michigan were the four tourney favorites just two weeks ago. Come Saturday, the closest any of them will come to the Omni will be via a television screen. They were all either beaten, assaulted, murdered or molested right out of their shorts by the likes of Idaho State and the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. And I think it's the greatest thing to happen to sports since little Dorothy laced on her first pair of

THE FOUR survivors going to Atlanta this weekend are all a sportswriter's dream. North Carolina, the powerful ACC dynamo featuring three Olympians, who have survived the first three rounds of the single elimination event on a crutch, a prayer, and a Ford.

Nevada-Las Vegas, a team of fast break artists who think slow-down basketball is keeping it under a hundred and who have spent most of the year under NCAA investigation.

Marquette, the Catholic school from Milwaukee whose players want to win it all for their soon-to-retire coach, Al McGuire.

And then there's Charlotte. Sweet, sweet Charlotte. That little 12-yearold Southern school that became so dear to our hearts a year ago, when they arose from the depths of obscurity to almost win the National Invitational Tournament

If deep down inside, you're not pulling for them to win it all this weekend, then there's no hope for you. You're probably the kind of person who ties two cats by their tails, hangs them over a clothesline, and watches them kill each other off.

Charlotte was founded in 1965. Contrary to popular opinion, it's not a extension of North Carolina University and it has 7,500 students. Their coach, Lee Hyden Rose, used to coach-are you ready for this-at Transylvania College in Kentucky. I that fact alone should be enough to make you love them. Transylvania. I wonder what their nickname is - the Bloodsuckers?

TO GET his team into the NIT last year, Rose spent a week in New York City presenting little packets of information on UNCC to all the member's of the tournament selection committee. He had to. Nobody knew what the hell a UNCC was. One guy thought it was a branch of the Peace

They went on the Charlotte campus last year, when the team just got into the Madison Square Garden tournament. You can imagine what's going on over there this week. School's probably been called off until the tournament's over. Every kid in the junior and senior classes is most likely on a bender. The city of Charlotte has probably been raped and pillaged.

Last year, when the team made it to the semifinals of the NIT, students "rolled" the entire campus with toilet paper. Who can even guess what's happening now? Instead of toilet paper, they're probably using Bounty.

The only team that might steal a fraction of the sentiment from Charlotte would be Marquette. The story of the retiring coach and his dedicated players trying to win that "last big one" for him reads like a Hollywood script. The only trouble is that Al McGuire, the gruff, motorcycling flimflam man of college basketball, isn't exactly the Pat O'Brien or Jimmy Stewart of his day. In fact, he's the man you could love to hate. And many have Still, when they televised clips from "Al McGuire Night" on NBC's Grandstand show more than a month ago, and tears rolled out of the coach's time-hardened eyes as the crowd of 15,000 gave him a standing ovation, you couldn't help but want to see this guy go out a winner. He had come so close for so many years, and this was his last chance. Always the bridesmaid, never the bride.

Well, no matter who is crowned the champion come Monday night, the real winners may be the little guys of this world. The recent success of a team like Charlotte has given them new ground to stand on. They know now that there is always hope, no matter what the odds. What was it one of them Roman guys once said? I think. therefore I am? Think big, little

LAS VEGAS (AP) - Nevada-Las IF UNLV and semifinalist Mar-Vegas Coach Jerry Tarkanian, one of quette meet in the NCAA finals, gest active coaches in college basketball today, has never been accused of being unemotional or of underestimating an opponent.

It's no different this week.

What is different is that after five disappointing losses in regional play over the past seven years, Tarkanian will finally take a team to the big time: the NCAA semifinals in Atlanta Saturday and a date with fifth-ranked North Carolina

The fourth-ranked Runnin' Rebels have been accused of putting the ball up from the locker room or the arena's mezzanine, but the team shoots nearly 50 per cent from the floor, and has six men averaging in double figures. Two of them are substitutes

Meanwhile Tarkanian, a stubby balding Armenian, prowls the sidelines, growls at his players and Tarkanian and Warriors Coach Al McGuire will be competing for the ranting and fidgeting title on the sidelines But Marquette will have to get past

North Carolina-Charlotte, and Nevada-Las Vegas will have to defeat the evertough Tar Heels of North Carolina to produce the colorful coach matchup next Monday night.

Preparing for the Western subregionals two weeks ago, Tarkanian said the Rebels, 28-2, would have to play their best game of the season against the University of San Francisco. The Dons sat atop the ratings most of the year.

The Rebels responded with a 121-95 triumph.

The answer was the same last week as Tarkanian prepared his team for what he thought would be UCLA. The Bruins got upset, and after a slow start, the Rebels blew away Idaho

Three of America's most imposing sports figures of the last decade—Jets' quarterback Joe Namath, heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali and tennis star Arthur Ashe—have reached the fork in their remarkable careers and must make a decision: carry on or leave the stage in dignity. All apparently have chosen the ego trip. More's the Namath, 33, with knees held together by safety pins and adhesive tape, is flirting with a last hurrah as a member of the Los Angeles Rams. If he goes West-and every indication is he will-then he will go with helmet in hand, at a reduced salary and in the role of a football "designated pitcher.

The 35-year-old Ali, his old fighting skills tarnished, his speed slowed but his mind and mouth keen as ever, has committed himself to take on some obscure Italian punching bag named Lorenzo "Rocky" Zanon in Korea next month.

He should make periodic appearances in the big ones-Wimbledon, the U.S. Open and even the Davis Cup-and turn his talents in another direction, perhaps as an aide to United Nations ambassador Andrew Young, his good friend.

There is something tragic about a great sports hero striving to keep alive fading glories. It is depressing to see a once mighty champion reduced to battered, humiliated victim because he failed to heed the red signal which said, "Stop."

This was particularly true in the case of Joe Louis, the revered Brown Bomber, one of the greatest fighting machines who ever lived. He was beaten by Ezzard Charles after emerging from retirement in 1950 and then crushed in eight brutal rounds by a young Rocky Marciano in 1951.

"I didn't want to fight," Louis was to say later. "I needed the money.'

Tarkanian again insists his squad will have to play its absolute best to beat Dean Smith's Tar Heels, who sport a 27-4 record and Olympic gold medalist Phil Ford.

COMPLIMENTARY? One would think Tarkanian was planning his strategy for the Atlanta Hawks of the National Basketball Association.

"They (the Tar Heels) do so many things so well," Tarkanian said. "I've never seen a college team that can do so many things well like they do."

THE REBELS have won their last 11 straight and have scored 100 or more points in 22 games this season. They lead the nation with a 107.9-point per game average. Tarkanian's style has changed from

But the Oakland A's rookie outfielder-first baseman feels he can hit at least half that during the 1977 baseball season.

"If I play, I know I can hit," Page said after driving in one one run with a triple and scoring the winning run as Oakland edged the San Diego Padres 3-2 in an exhibition game Tuesday.

Acquired from the Pittsburgh Pirates in a trade last week, Page has 11 hits in 18 at-bats this spring. Five of his hits have been for extra bases.

IN THE fifth inning, with the score tied 2-2, Page walked, moved to third on Jerry Tabb's single and scored on a groundout.

The 25-year-old Page has a good minor league record, but was marking time in the Pirates' organization. With the A's depleted of the stars that took them to three consecutive World Series titles, he is certain to be playing in the major leagues this

Robby's job on line, but Tribe hopes high

By JOHN PINKERMAN Copley News Service

TUCSON, Ariz. - The Cleveland Indians seem a carefree lot in their bright red uniforms and several new faces make them confident they will better their fourth-place finish of 1976 in the American League.

The word is out, too, that they had BETTER finish higher than fourth or there will be at least a temporary termination in the managing career of Frank Robinson, the major league's first black skipper.

THE PRESENCE of Johnny Grubb. outfielder obtained from the San Diego Padres, and Wayne Garland, 20-7 as a Baltimore pitcher last year, are two of the chief reasons the Indian management is confident - and also the reasons Robinson is hopeful that there will be less noise from fans and club officials who would prefer to see him replaced.

Grubb and ex-Padres catcher Fred Kendall and infielder Hector Torres came to the Indians in a winter trade, while Garland, one of only three American League 20-game winners last year, came as one of those expensive free agents - some say he will cost $2 million over a 10-year period. His 2.68 earned-run average helped get him his big money and at the age of 27, he would seem to have a guaranteed high income for the rest of his career.

It is Robinson around whom the most speculation centers.

HE HAS been ordered to stay strictly to managing, leaving pinchhitting and designated hitting to somebody else. Under his leadership, the Indians finished 16 games off the pace last year in the league's Eastern division, and management - particularly after trades and the big payout for Garland - won't sit still for such a low finish this year.

So, Robbie, a most valuable player in both the American and National leagues, has to join in the high hopes expressed by his players and rooters. He has to hope, for instance, that Boog Powell, once a Baltimore slugging first baseman, will do better than hit the .200 he hit with the Indians last year. He also has to hope that Bobby Bell, a fine third baseman, will match his 170 hit total of 1976. He has to hope that Garland comes through with another 20-game season.

HE HAS to hope that John Arnold, a left-hander with Williamsport and San Jose last year, comes through as I made an exception. a bright new star. Arnold, a native of Effingham, Ill., is seen as a much averaging only 4.3 points better pitcher than his 7-11 record of a game despite immense last year indicates.

and Jeff Torborg give him a good combination of relative youth and experienced baseball savvy. Thus, he would seem to have everything with which to move Cleveland up in the

One of his big pluses, he thinks, is in the person of Grubb, and Grubb like many baseball players who stay out in the Arizona sun too long agrees with him thoroughly. The ex-San Diego center fielder will be in left field in Cleveland, and he will bat third rather than lead off.

"THE THINKING is," Robinson said in explaining his plans for Grubb, 'you want your best average hitter third in the order. He's got two men in front of him who have a good chance of getting on, and he gets to the plate a lot more than the lower hitters. I think John is just right for the No. 3 spot."

Grubb likes the idea. "I thought I had a pretty good season last year (.284, with five homers and 27 RBIs) but I was out a lot with injuries. I hope to match my '73 record (.311 with 22 doubles and eight homers) and I think

The ex-Padre also insists he likes being with Cleveland, just as most ballplayers like their switch after a trade — at least for the first month. "I liked San Diego," he said, "but the chances are better here. I never thought they had confidence in me on the coast.

"I can see already they have more confidence in me here. And, I like the switch to the American League."

These are the words of spring, voiced in a wonderfully sunny en-vironment. The test will come in the humid August nights of not so beautiful Cleveland.

Those who want a quiet good guy like Frank Robinson to make good under pressure should hope that Grubb fulfills his own hopes, that Garland is worth the big money the Indians are paying him and that 265-pound Powell slims down and does the club some good. Even in the friendly sun here, putting all those hopes together is definitely a long shot.

Tips from expert may help in painting that room

AP Newsfeatures

When painting a room, the proper procedure is to do the ceiling first, then the walls and finally the win-

A common mistake is to do each window as you reach it while painting the walls. This isn't a good practice for several reasons. It means you must halt the painting of the walls at awkward places. It involves the use of a second brush while the first is still dripping with paint. And it calls for a longer period of work at a single time.

Better to paint the ceiling as the first step, tackling the walls next if you feel like it, putting them off until the next day if you wish. Then, whenever you feel in the mood, even the following week, you can paint the windows almost as though it was a separate project, which it almost is.

The job of painting windows is a lot easier when the proper brush is used. It should be one with angled bristles, called a sash brush, or something similar. The angled bristles make it easier to handle along narrow strips and in confined areas. The brush should be dipped in only about onethird its length, with the excess paint tapped off on the inside of the container. As the brush is pressed down very lightly so that the bristles spread out in fan-like fashion, the edges of the bristles should be permitted to touch the edge of the glass as you move

There are several ways to handle what almost always happens, no matter how careful you are, which is getting a little of the paint on the glass where it doesn't belong. One is simply to forget about the bit of paint on the glass, wait until it is completely dry then scrape it off with a single-edged razor or a tool that holds a blade. Another is to keep a rag handy and, as soon as there is a smear, wipe it off. You can use one of the metal or plastic shields that is slid along with the brush to protect the glass from the paint. Or you can substitute one of those throwaway pieces of cardboard that come inside men's new shirts or those that have been laundered professionally. If a shield or piece of cardboard is used, you will find that you have to keep wiping it off as you proceed with the painting.

Some persons use masking tape to protect the glass. If you use this lower the upper sash. Paint the inside method, you'll have to get the knack of putting on the tape exactly right. which involves butting it against the wood but not on it. If it isn't butted up against the wood, some of the paint will get on the glass. If any of the tape is on the wood, that portion will not get any paint on it.

Painting casement windows is no particular problem if you remember to do the muntins first. These are the wooden strips separating the glass. With a double-hung window, the first step is to raise the lower sash and edge of the upper meeting rail, then the top of that rail, then a couple of inches up the muntins. Next, lower the bottom sash and raise the upper sash, the opposite of what you previously did, only this time leave a fraction of an inch leeway so that each sash has a little clearance. Now paint all exposed surfaces, with the window sill, frame and surrounding trim being done last.

To prevent future sticking, be sure to move both window sashes up and down carefully within 8 to 10 hours after the windows have been painted.

Travel timetable ncludes exotic rail routes

LONDON (AP) - Butterworth to Bangkok, Bombay to Bangalore and even - remember Kipling? -Rangoon to Mandalay

These are railroad routes, and now - in the age of supersonic airliners, with trains half forgotten as a mode of transport — travel agent Thomas Cook has put hundreds of such routes in most countries of the world into a regular monthly timetable for the first time.

"It was a change to the metric system in the British postal regulations that enabled us to do it," ex-plained timetable editor John Price. "Overseas postal rates used to limit the timetable to 520 pages, which meant we could list only European trains. Now we can increase the weight of the timetable to half a kilo (1.1 pounds), for a maximum of 584 pages. So we realized a longstanding ambition to publish a rail timetable for the whole world," Price said.

But who wants it? A spokesman for Cook's, which has most of its turnover from selling other companies' travel tickets, said happily: "Thousands of people — especially the young, who don't want packag-

Cook said that growing numbers of American and European youngsters, with a single bag, an unlimited travel ticket and an international timetable, wander every summer over the thousands of miles of European railroads. Many get their sleep on the train, saving hotel bills, and relying on platform snack trolleys for food.

The headache in compiling the new timetable was to get prompt information on schedules.

Cook said: "South American railways issue wall posters, and timetable books are unknown there. Some railways only issue staff timetables, which come complete with instructions on where to refuel the engines and fill the water tanks of the coaches.'

Editor Price compiled the 2,080 separate timetables in his book with the help of Cook's 640 branches worldwide. He said that only once before has a publisher attempted to produce a world rail timetable.

"In 1948-49, Imprimerie Chaix of Paris did one. It failed because communications were unequal to the task of keeping information up-to-date. Today, telex makes updating and checking possible in a few hours," Price said.

The granddaddy of all longdistance train trips is Moscow-Nakhodka, the Trans-Siberian railway, eight days on the train and 5,776 miles. But if the prospect of all those birch woods puts you off, there are delectable timetable alternatives.

The most famous train of all, the Orient Express from Paris to Istanbul, has succumbed to changing lifestyles, but there are still great expresses and routes, like the luxury Paris-Lisbon Sud Express, South Africa's prestigious Blue Train from Cape Town to Pretoria, and the fiveday, 3,400-mile New York-Los Angeles run via New Orleans.

On the Overland from Melbourne to Adelaide, toasted raisin bread is served free with tea. The Buenos Aires-Concordia train is shunted on to a ferry at Zarate for a 52-mile voyage upriver to Ibicuy where it gets to dry land again, after luncheon has been served in the dining car on the ferry

The Alaska Railroad says travelers have a good chance to see moose, grizzly bear and mountain goats from the windows. And how many train buffs know that you can travel from Marrakech in Morocco, via Casbablanca, all the way by train across western North Africa to Tunis, Sousse and Sfax?

Earlier studies had determined the possibility of waste storage in the East Texas salt dome. ERDA said geological core drilling studies in the area would start in 1977. The dumps will be for use by commercial nuclear power plants in the state.

Zerby said the geological studies in West Texas would determine the underground stability of the area and the conditions of the salt beds several thousand feet underground that are considered ideal for nuclear storage.

Zerby said the salt beds have been found in an area stretching from North Central Texas west and north across Eastern New Mexico and the Oklahoma Panhandle and Kansas. Salt bed areas are also found in East Texas spreading into Louisiana and ERDA said it has been working closely with state governments in-volved in the studies.

In Austin, John Barry, a nuclear studies specialist with the governor's energy advisory council, said the decision to build the dump sites will not be made without local and state consultation. He said there are bills in Congress aimed at giving state legislatures veto power.

Midday prices were $1.83 to $3.15 a bale lower than the previous close. May $1.65. Jul 81.37 and Oct 78.80. NEW YORK(AP) - Cotton futures No

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) 'Southwest Starving Artists," a Dallas-based firm that drew criticism recently for its advertising practices in trying to sell paintings in Oklahoma, has agreed to change its ads, a spokesman for state Atty. Gen. Larry Derryberry said Tuesday.

Don McCombs Jr. assistant attorney general for consumer protection, said Derryberry had determined that "ads previously used were in violation of the Oklahoma Consumer Protection Act and a lawyer for the firm has assured us they will voluntarily comply with the provisions of that act."

McCombs said the firm "has no immediate plans to use the phrase 'starving artists' in their ad-vertisements."

Derryberry had instructed McCombs to investigate the firm's activities after several other states launched investigations of its advertising practices.

In announcing the inestigation earlier, Derryberry questioned the firm's advertisements because he said there were indications the artists were neither starving nor from the Southwest.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am writing this letter from my hospital bed. I was transferred from the intensive care unit after a bad automobile accident. I just heard you say on the Dinah Shore show that you don't know many people whose heads are not connected to their bodies. Exactly what did you mean by that?-Fred.

Dear Fred: I meant that because the mind-body interrelationship is so important in all types of illness. I don't think that a doctor should treat only an illness; he should treat the whole person. Since you were just moved from the intensive care unit, you might be interested in what Dr. William F. Kiely of the University of California School of Medicine recently reported in the AMA Journal. Dr. Kiely said that the intensive care units have been forced to cope with emotional problems in ways comparable to their customary attention to heart, lung and kidney functions. The emotional reactions and behavioral patterns of the seriously ill and injured have become a major consideration in treatment.

A trusting, confident and caring doctor-patient relationship minimizes the isolation and helplessness of the patient in a potentially hostile environment-the intensive care unit-says Dr. Kiely.

Staff of the units must not overdepend on monitoring equipment at the expense of regular, reassuring and supportive personal contact with the patient. All procedures must be explained to the patient in simple, clear terms. Self care, including grooming, eating, drinking and toileting, should be encouraged as early as possible. Oversedation with narcotics should be avoided.

If the patient is mentally disoriented, there may be adverse effects on heartbeat and blood pressure, Dr. Kiely points out. I am glad to hear you are well enough to watch TV dicates that joggers, bikers and swimmers may be adding extra years to their lives. The study, conducted between 1971 and 1974, showed that men in excellent physical condition had significantly lower heart disease risk factors than men in poor shape. Perhaps you could get over your dislike of exercise and try cycling, or you might enjoy handball, squash, tennis or basketball. Exercise needn't be distasteful and can often be an effective emotional, as well as physical, release. Get a good physical examination first, start early on the exercises and work up gradually. grants under the Economic Development Administration and Farmers Home Administration.

An additional $100 million would be provided in grants through the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service for soil conservation practices, he said.

He said the package would also increase the loan authorization for small businesses under the Small Business Administration by $50 million. "In addition, we are seeking additional funds for irrigation-related programs under the Department of the Interior," Andrus said.

"While we do not pretend that we can prevent every hardship or relieve every effect of the severe drought we are facing in many parts of the nation, we do feel that the total program presented by the President will substantially alleviate some of the worst conditions," Andrus said.

At the same time, Andrus urged the committee to reduce sharply the $200 million approved by the Senate last week in a separate program of emergency drought relief. As passed by the Senate 92 to 0 on March 15, the bill would authorize the appropriation of $200 million and the expenditure of an additional $200 million in funds previously appropriated.

Search for gold continues

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE. N.M. (AP) - The only treaure found so far by claimants to the legendary gold of Victorio Peak seems to be an archaeological find

And the El Paso FBI office Tuesday alerted the treasure hunters, who have six days left on a 10-day permit to search for the gold, that it received information of a possible plot to salt the search area with a fake gold bar, so it could be found.

FBI agents said two men, later described as members of the F. Lee Bailey-Pat Pattison claimant group. might try to plant the fake bar.

An excavation team went Tuesday morning to the Red Hands excavation site, a short distance from Victorio Peak. The site got its name from several red hand prints, actually Indian petroglyphs, on the side of the rock escarpment.

According to legend, the old Indian campsite covers a tunnel leading to interconnecting caverns underneath Victorio and Geronimo peaks, and to the treasure room.

Members of the excavation crew began digging in the area, and they uncovered a small hole believed to lead to the tunnel.

But Steve Kozan, a field archaeologist for the Museum of New Mexico, ordered the digging stopped when artifacts were uncovered. He said they might be as much as 2,000

Projections of harvest indicate future good news for consumers WASHINGTON (AP) - The In contrast, cheap feed means

Agriculture Department's first, heavily qualified projections of this year's harvests indicate continued buildups of feed grain and wheat stocks balanced by shrinking rice and cotton supplies.

If fulfilled, the predictions would mean good news for grocery-buyers because of cheaper feed for animals from which the food industry draws meat, eggs, poultry, milk and dairy products. That in turn could ease food

The department projected an increase in retail food prices this year of between 3 and 5 per cent, although some officials are worried privately that drought in the West and Midwest could push prices higher by year's lower returns to wheat, corn and feed grain producers. Too much production of meat and those other products in a cheap-feed period eventually would damage livestock farmers'

That, in turn, might mean the grocery-buyers' taxes would go for ther payments to farmers, with food production eventually curtailed to raise farm prices.

"The final outcome of 1977 crop production is many months away and uncertainties cloud the outlook, Agriculture Department's Outlook and Situation Board said Tuesday. Weather conditions will have a large impact on predictions, the board said.

The board projected a harvest of feed grains of about the same as last year with good weather, leading to a 20 per cent decline in exports and increased beef, pork and chicken production.

With bad weather, production could be off 20 per cent, it said, with livestock feeding dropping back to 1974-75 levels, a small drop in exports and only enough left in late summer 1978 to fill feed pipelines.

For wheat, with a 1.1-billionbushel surplus, the total acreage and production for this year witl be down whatever the weather, the board said. Good weather would continue the decline in exports and farmers' prices. and further increase the reserve.
