School election still on, despite suit

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

Midland school officials plan to go ahead with the April 2 school board election unless ordered not to by a federal court, school superintendent

Dr. James H. Mailey said.

The U.S. Justice Department
Thursday filed a suit seeking to block the April 2 election and force a change in the method by which school board members are selected.

The suit requests formation of a three-judge federal panel as soon as possible and that the panel requires the school district to comply with an objection the department filed Aug. 6 under the Voting Rights Act, the Justice Department said Thursday.

Prior to filing the objection in August, Justice Department representatives talked to "quite a number of persons" in Midland who objected to the present system.

At the request of those individuals, the Justice Department refused to reveal their names to The Reporter-Telegram.

Rebecca White, research analyst, said in September many of the in-dividuals appeared to be acting as a

If the Justice Department suit is successful, the school district will have to revert to the pre-1973 system of electing board members at-large with a plurality vote instead of using numbered places with a majority vote requirement, John Wilson of the Justice Department public information office said.

School district attorney Charles Tighe said the suit "borders on irresponsbility by the Justice Department." Tighe said Justice Department attorneys had promised to notify the school district before any action was filed and they failed to do

He said he had not received official notification by Thursday afternoon.

The suit was filed in San Antonio. U.S. Attorney John Clark's office said Thursday the suit will be forwarded to the district clerks clerk's office in Midland

The suit will be handled by U.S. District Judge D. W. Suttle.
Carolyn Wright, Judge Suttle's docket clerk in San Antonio, said Friday it will be up to Judge Suttle to decide whether or not to recommend a three-judge panel as requested by the Justice Department.

If Judge Suttle decides the issues should be heard by a three-judge panel, he will write to John R. Brown, chief judge of the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, to recommend formation of the panel, Wright said.

If Judge Brown agrees, he will name another district judge and a judge from the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals to join Judge Suttle on the panel, she said.

Tighe said two federal court rulings have held that school districts are not covered under the Voting Rights Act. "I wonder how many times they have to be told they're wrong before they quit wasting taxpayers' money this

City, schools, MC deny tax hike plans

By JIM STEINBERG

Charges that a recent, citywide, assessment valuation of property in Midland has paved the way for hefty tax increases were leveled Thursday by a group calling itself the Committee for the Enlightenment of Midland Taxpayers. City officials promptly denied the allegations.

Linking the not yet released 1977 property appraisal - which ups assessed valuation of some properties

75 per cent or more - committee spokesman R. H. "Rusty" Gifford linked this increased tax base and the city's $7.25 million bond election together, implying there might be a plan to saddle taxpayers with a whopping tax increase.

"This type of tactic just preys on people's lack of confidence in government. The property assessment was a routine one, done every five years. Adjustments will be made in the tax rate so that the city gets no increased tax income from bond issues together is ridiculous. They are completely separate."

Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. said
Thursday after allegations made by the group - both expressed and implied - were brought to his attention by concerned citizens.

Pushing top city administrators hard for figures not scheduled to be ready for weeks, Angelo said estimates indicated the new assessed valuation of the City of Midland was $677,316,470 compared to $399,235,070 - nearly a 70 per cent increase.

To generate the same revenue for city coffers Angelo said the city tax rate would drop to an estimated 67.2 cents per $100 of assessed valuation from the present $1.14 per $100 of

"People are just hopping mad when they find out how much their assessment has gone up," Gifford, former Midland mayor and retired tax assessor, said.

Gifford said the tax base of his own house, for example, was $7,770 in 1976 but will be $14,970 after the 1977 evaluation.

Gifford said he and William G. Ross were co-chairman of the new organization and that the group had strong financial backing from people who wished to remain anonymous.

"The city says they aren't going to raise the tax rates but in effect they already have by increasing the assessments," Gifford said, adding, 'What about the school district and Midland College? Are they going to cut their tax rates? And where is the money for these bonds going to come from? If a tax increase were not in the works, why was the property valuation increased so much?"

Responding to the committee's implication that increased taxes were on the way from the schools, Midland College Trustee Reagan Legg said, "The Board at Midland College has not even considered a tax increase at this point and we don't anticipate

Tower downplays hope for NATO use of Webb

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., says "I wouldn't hold out false hopes" that the establish-ment of a NATO pilot train-ing base in the United States might save Webb Air Force Base.

The base, in Big Spring, Tex., is one of two which has been marked for closing by the Air Force during the past year. Big Spring and its Washington representatives have been looking for a way to keep it open.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., made public a letter this week which he wrote to Secretary of the Air Forcedesignate John Stetson. Bentsen urged Stetson to consider the possible NATO project before taking a position on Webb.

However, staff members for both Bentsen and Tower said Thursday that the current Air Force studies on the NATO base indicate that it could be accommodated without the need for an extra pilot training base. Bentsen aide Ed Knight said he was not impressed with the Air Force's

"We've gotten cynical about their studies. We've seen them too often commission a study to justify a decision they've already made. Next year they might come up with something entirely different," Knight

Tower said he was not ready to judge whether a successful case could be made for keeping an extra base open in case the NATO train-ing center is established in the United States.

"I wouldn't hold out false hopes that it would result in keeping open an additional base... although should they institute that program without keeping open a base that's earmarked for closure. I think it would completely wipe out any surge capability they have." Surge capability is the ability to quickly increase the number of pilots in

R. S. Brennand Jr., oil operator, dies

DALLAS - Robert Simpson "Bob" Brennand Jr., 75, prominent independent oil operator and long-time resident of Midland, died Thursday afternoon in a hospital here, following heart surgery performed about 10 days ago.

Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr., front, listens to city tax assessor

Virgil Jones Jr. explain a portion of the new assessment valuation

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday in the First United Methodist Church of Colorado City, with the Kiker Funeral Home of that city in charge of arrangements.
Brennand was born March 15, 1902, at Colorado City, the son of Mr.and Mrs. R.S. Brennand Sr., a pioneer family of the Colorado City area. He was reared at Colorado City, was graduated from public schools there and attended Texas A&M University.

He later joined Standard Oil Co. of Texas as a scout in the Colorado City area. He later became a landman and was transferred to the firm's offices at Midland where he represented Standard Oil for some time in that capacity. He resigned to become an independent oil operator and was eminently successful in this endeavor. He also acquired and operated a cattle ranch in Mitchell

Brennand, during his long Midland residency, was one of the original founders of the Midland Petroleum

Club, of which he later served as president. He was one of the original stockholders and a former director of American Founders Life Insurance Co. He was serving as a director of the City National Bank at Colorado City at the time of his death. He was an honorary steward in Colorado City's First United Methodist Church.

Brennand was well-known and had many friends throughout the Permian Basin Empire of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico.

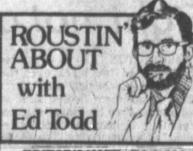

Survivors include a brother, Harold D. Brennand of New Orleans, La.; a sister, Mrs. J.T. Orr of Mansfield, and two nieces, Mrs. Dawson O. George III of Houston and Mrs. Robert L.G. Watson of San Antonio

Pallbearers at the funeral service will be Douglas Berry, Tom Morrison and Tom Sealy, all of Midland; Sam Majors of Odessa, and Henry C. Doss, W.R. Powell, Wayne Shawn and Loyd Smith, all of Colorado City.

Honorary pallbearers include A.A. "Jack" Bradford, John Casselman, Reese Cleveland, Paul L. Davis Sr. Walter R. Davis, Marion Flynt, Fred H. Fuhrman, Ray Rhodes, M.T. Stallter and Lloyd Ugland, all of Midland, and Dr. William Rhode, Waddell Strain and Charles C. Thompson, all of Colorado City.

Property insurance rates cut

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - The State Insurance Board today ordered a 2.8 per cent statewide average decrease in rates for property insurance, effective July 1.

The effect of the order signed by all three board members will be to reduce by $18.9 million the premiums paid by Texans.

The insurance companies had requested a 6.6 per cent increase, or $44.5 million.

The board, using the same statistics as the companies, applied a different formula for projecting losses and cut the amount of premium that it allows for payment of company expenses, including taxes and agents' commis-

Not all Texans would receive a reduction from the rates, because of differences in the likelihood of such things as hailstorms and hurricanes in different parts of the state.

For instance, a typical homeowners policy would cost 4.2 per cent more in Austin, Dallas, Fort Worth, El Paso, San Antonio and Waco. But it would cost 2.4 per cent less in Abilene, Amarillo, Lubbock, Midland, San Angelo and Wichita Falls. The same policy would cost 1.3 per cent more in Corpus Christi and Houston.

AUSTIN - The Senate Thursday confirmed Gov. Dolph Briscoe's appointment of Vann Culp of Midland as judge of the newly created 238th District

That court, along with 22 others across the state, was created by the recently passed Ominibus Courts bill.

Culp's appointment becomes effective April 1.

The Senate also confirmed Briscoe's nomination of Judge Perry D. Pickett of Midland as presiding judge of the 7th Administrative Judicial District.

Other appointments confirmed by senators include William B. Blakemore II of Midland, as a member of the Public Safety Commission, and John Ben Shep-perd of Odessa, as a member of the Texas Commission on the Arts and Humanities.

Candidates differ on promotions

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

Candidates for Midland school board disagreed Thursday about the use of social promotion in Midland schools.

School board candidates, as well as city council candidates answered questions at a candidates rally sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Midland and attended by 18 persons.

Kingdon R. Hughes, challenging Joe Dominey's bid for re-election to the board, called for an end to social promotion. He advocated use of proficiency examinations to insure academic standards are met. Dominey said retaining students for several grades soon results in having students much older than children who are at grade level in the same class. "I don't think parents want children who are much older in the class with their children," Dominey

He advocated using special remedial programs for those students who are not able to learn at the required pace. The two candidates also disagreed on the significance of a diploma. Hughes said the diploma should "set a student apart" as having met given academic standards. Dominey said the real evidence of what a student has achieved is in the school tran-

Dominey and Hughes, as well as James Ramsoure who is running for re-election unopposed, said they favored emphasis on basic education. Hughes said much more time needs to be devoted to reading in the early Dominey said he advocates "continuing to emphasize the basics," which includes such skills as listening and learning to analyze problems. Ramsoure said making decisions and learning to analyze problems are important elements of education.

teachers, Hughes said the school system "needs to be run much more like a business," with "performance guidelines and performance criteria' clearly established. Another element of accountability is to reward good teachers and administrators financially with a revamped merit pay system, Hughes Dominey said a written list of criteria has been designed for each grade and class and each principal conducts evaluation of his faculty.

Individualized testing of specific skills, one system which involves accountability is being tested in Midland schools, Dominey said, and will probably be used more.

Using business methods in schools has been tried for several years, Ramsoure said, and the programs 'have been a dismal failure. We can't program our children because of the varying degrees of ability they bring to school. Three of the four city council candidates discussed issues in that race at the candidates rally. Dennis Wallace, opposing Gordon Marcum for Place 2, was unable to attend the

All three candidates said they are opposed to a charter amendment which would call for having four council members run by geographic district and two council members, plus the mayor, to run at-large.

Thomas said Midland is a small enough city that "all councilmen are familiar with the town." He said the council has been "overwhelmingly responsive to the needs of the poor sections of town," spending a 'disproportionate amount" of money on meeting needs of those sections. Mrs. Howbert said she thinks having single member district sides of the city. He said he knows of no "single incident where the council has not been responsive" to needs of those areas. Thomas said he believes if minorities were interested in council representation, " at least they would make the effort" and seek a spot on the council. Thomas said he opposes issuing

$3.25 million in bonds to improve the zoo. Thomas said the zoo is "a luxury" which is not appropriate for a city the size of Midland. He said he would re-examine the proposal if it was a joint venture between Midland and Odessa.

Marcum said the city is going to have to decide if it wants to spend the amount of money to build the zoo and the $250,000 to $300,000 it will cost to maintain the zoo.

Marcum said one issue he wants the council to deal with is the parking problem downtown. He said he would encourage the planning and zoning of certain areas for parking" and the creation of multi-level parking garages.

Thomas said he has a "strong hope" that the problem can be solved through private enterprise.

The three candidates agreed that progress is being made in paving eastside streets.

request a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction. Therefore, he said, the court may not hear the case before April 2. If not, the election could go on as scheduled, he

Hunter declined to comment on whether the results of the election, if it is held, might be set aside if the Justice Department wins its suit. "There are so many variables involved," he said.

Tighe said the school district may seek an early hearing itself in an attempt to resolve the situation before the election.

The suit contends that the attorney general objected to the 1973 voting change on the basis that he was unable to conclude the changes did not have the affect of discriminating against black voters, the department said.

"The changes are legally unenforceable and the numbered position and majority vote requirements cannot be used for the April 2 election," the department said.

Presidential caller 'gets through' for job

WASHINGTON - Leslie Pfenninger got a job Thursday. All it took was a call to President Carter over a national radio hookup, 2 1-2 weeks of publicity and a Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms official who read news accounts of her plight.

'What I've learned from this is that you don't get discouraged, you just keep on trying," said the jubilant Pfenninger, who, since her graduation in May 1976 from Elizabethtown College, had been pounding the federal pavements looking for a job as a statistician. Brown elicits support for planes

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - U.S. Defense Secretary Harold Brown sought the support of Western European defense ministers today for the purchase of nearly $3 billion worth of Boeing patrol-command planes to give Western Europe speedier warning of Soviet Bloc troop movements and air attack.

Brown appeared optimistic on his arrival for the meeting of the defense ministers of the North Atlantic allies. But there were signs of opposition from West Germany, which with the United States would pay more than half the bill.

Some West German officials were balking because of Washington's reluctance to build a common U.S.-German battle tank around Bonn's new Leopard II tank.

The new American XM1 tank was to have used the Leopard's 120mm gun, while the Leopard would use the American tank's engine. But U.S. defense officials have let it be known they consider the Leopard inferior and want the Germans to adopt the Organization to pay about $100 million each for 27 Boeing 707s equipped with special radar that would look hundreds of miles into the Soviet bloc to detect troop concentrations and movement of planes. The big jets would also serve as airborne command posts for combat operations from aloft.

Under the latest proposals, the United States would pay 28 per cent of the cost, West Germany 26 per cent and the other allies the remainder. The Germans said they wanted to hold their share at 25 per cent or less.

The AWACS plan is the first to give ownership of weapons of war to NATO itself, rather than having them held by the alliance's individual countries. The proposed arrangement raises questions of legal liability. NATO officials explained that it is not clear, for example, who would be legally responsible if one of the planes crashed, killed civilians and damaged private property.

France and Greece did not send representatives to the meeting today because of their limited participation in NATO military activities, but U.S. officials said they hoped the two nations would participate in the AWACS program in some indirect fashio

Newspaper, magazine tax ban gains

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The House has tentatively approved a bill repealing the sales tax on magazine subscriptions and newspapers, but only after debate that touched on Playboy and "tacky" articles in Texas Monthly.

The measure is expected to win final passage Monday, sending it on to the Senate for further action.

Rep. Joe Wyatt, D-Victoria, the sponsor, said the measure would cost the state $6.6 million in revenue over the next two years but was worth the WASHINGTON (AP) - An opportunity for San Antonio to become the focal point for solar research in the United States has been lost when the federal government selected a site in Colorado.

The government had been considering San Antonio and 18 other sites until the decision was made Thursday to locate the Solar Energy Research Institute in Golden, Colo.

Southwest Research Institute of San Antonio was one of the 19 finalists seeking the contract to develop

But the winner was Midwest Research Institute of Kansas City, in conjunction with the state of Colorado. It offered a 300-acre site, along with the nearby University of Colorado, which has a strong program of solar energy research.

Lyle Donaldson of Southwest Research said "Our colleges in San Antonio don't have comparable

The contract will be worth $4 million to $6 million in the first year, the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration said. The new center will have an initial staff of about 75 professionals.

In future years, the center and its budget are expected to grow rapidly as it assumes responsibility for managing and coordinating solar energy research and perhaps develops research capabilities of its own, an ERDA spokesman said.

'It would have contributed to high-level technical employment in San Antonio," said Donaldson. He said the decision will not have a major impact on the future of Southwest Research Institute, "because we figured that within a few years, this (the new solar institute) would have grown and been operating independently."

The ERDA spokesman noted that the decision to create the research institute in Colorado does not mean that other areas of the country will be shut out of the solar energy development program.

The government is planning some regional diversification in the research to account for varying solar and weather conditions in different areas of the country, he said.

ROME (AP) — The European Common Market's 20th birthday party today was marred by a row because the smaller members haven't been invited to President Carter's first summit conference.

The Dutch were threatening to walk out of the meeting after opening ceremonies because the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, Denmark and Ireland will not be represented at Carter's meeting in London in May with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and the prime ministers of Britain, West Germany. Italy, Canada and Japan.

Belgium planned to submit a protest on behalf of the five smaller

Economic Community, demanding that they be represented at the meeting by the president of the EEC commission, Roy Jenkins.

Giscard d'Estaing, who originated the idea of getting the leaders of the major non-Communist industrial nations together to talk about economic problems, is opposed to participation of a Common Market representative because he, unlike the presidents and prime ministers, would not be empowered to join in decisions binding on the five governments he would represent.

In addition to the anniversary ceremony, the Common Market meeting today was expected to discuss the community's economic and monetary problems, its relations with the Carter administration and the Soviet Union, and the Belgrade meeting in June to assess compliance with the 1975 Helsinki accords on European security and human rights.

France, West Germany, Italy and the three Benelux nations signed the Treaty of Rome on March 25, 1957, to form an economic union that would do away with customs barriers between them, unify their tariffs on imports from outside the community, integrate their economies and promote an "ever closer union among the people of Europe."

Britain, Ireland and Denmark joined in 1973, and a unified Western Europe remains the goal. But no union is likely for years because of nationalisms that are still strong, rising dissatisfaction among the smaller membe s and the disparity of the members' economies.

Recent surveys, for example, indicated that only 33 per cent of the Danes and 45 per cent of the British favor continued membership in the

Briscoe claims House's highway legislation better

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The House-passed bill on highway construction is better than the one proposed by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, says Gov. Dolph

After signing more than a dozen bills Thursday, Briscoe told an im-promptu news conference Thursday, "It will put more money in early, at a time when it will buy more highway construction."

The House bill, now bottled up in a Senate committee, calls for approximately $600 million for immediate highway construction.

Briscoe said he had come to no final conclusion on Hobby's counterproposal, but he hopes a solution, or compromise, can be reached sometime next week.

Inflation will prevent the Hobby version from producing as much construction, even though it calls for more money over a 20 year period, Briscoe said.

Bill to change full-day kindergarten advances

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A bill designed to save the state $19 million a year by blocking the start of full-day public dergarten has advanced in the fouse after touching off unexpectedly Representatives gutted the bill with an amendment by a 74-59 vote shortly before both chambers of the Defore both chambers of the legislature adjourned for the weekend Thursday afternoon. A final vote is expected Monday.

Under existing law, the state will begin providing funds for full-day, full-year kindergarten in September.

Rep. Tom Massey, D-San Angelo, chairman of the House Public Education Committee, sponsored the hill to tion Committee, sponsored the bill to drop that commitment and leave the state support for only a half-time pro-

The amendment, by Rcp. Ronald Coleman, D-El Paso, had the effect of providing state aid for full-time programs in all districts that choose to have them. It had the effect of rendering the bill meaningless.

"No district has a surplus, but the state has $3 billion. If anybody has a right and a duty to assist with education, it is us," Coleman said.

Massey said a number of districts viewed the existing law as requiring full-time kindergarten but did not want to offer it.

Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, said there was "not one credible educa-tional study that doesn't say if we spend our money in the earliest years, we get more for our dollars."

Massey replied that he questioned "whether five-and six-year-olds have the stamina for a full day of school."

Also winning tentative approval was a bill repealing the sales tax on newspapers and on subscriptions to magazines. The House voted 81-54 to defeat an amendment by Rep. Charles Finnell, D-Holliday, that would have retained the sales tax on magazine subscriptions.

Senators passed and sent to Gov. Dolph Briscoe a bill that would put state money into medical residency programs through hospital contracts with the Texas College Coordinating Backers say many Texas medical graduates are forced to go out of state for their residencies - and often stay there - because there aren't enough residencies in Texas.

The House passed to Briscoe's desk a bill that was introduced after a gas curtailment forced closing of Wichita Falls Schools. It would allow the state education commissioner to waive up to 10 days of the requirement that schools operate 180 days a year.

Chief to discuss brutality case

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Police Chief B. G. Bond has scheduled a news conference today to discuss an internal police investigation of brutality allegations

Some police sources say the report contains a recommendation that rookie policeman Alan D. Nichols, who reported he witnessed other officers beat a handcuffed prisoner, be dismissed.

Bond would not comment Thursday on that portion of the report.

Nichols, 26, accused officers of kicking and beating Demas Benoit Jr. 21, March 11 following a high speed

Benoit's parents and the Rev. Jack McGinnis also have said they saw Benoit beaten

Other officers at the scene said they saw no brutality by police. They said officers had to subdue Benoit because he was fighting, kicking and biting.

Police sources say the report will recommend that Nichols be dismissed because he allegedly abandoned his post during the alleged beating.

Nichols said Thursday he is ready to accept the verdict of his superior officers even if it means dismissal from the force Earlier, Nichols had said he wanted to stay on the police force and en-courage other officers to report any incidents of brutality. "If I am fired, I am going back to school and get another degree in something else," Nichols said. "I told the truth. If they fire me, they fire me.

"If the people of Houston can live with that, that's fine with me. I stood up for what I believed and if it happened again, I'd do the same thing. Just because they run me off is not going to make me sorry.

McGinnis, Benoit's priest and pastor of the Our Lady of St. John's Roman Catholic Church, is in his 12th day of a fast designed to force city officials to act on the alleged brutality

At a Thursday news conference, McGinnis said the police are "accountable only to themselves" and called for the establishment of a civilian review board to investigate brutality allegations. McGinnis said Houston is "kind of a western town, with a 'stomp 'em' mentality that seemps into" some police officers. He said he had had requested that Bond and Mayor Fred Hofheinz meet with him in the presence of reporters to discuss his allegations. "I certainly expect the courtesy of a reply," he said.

He also said he had given a deposition to the FBI and expects the Justice Department to follow up on Nichols has been assigned to a desk job while awaiting the outcome of the investigation.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Stomach swellers

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have heard about some tablets that are supposed to help you reduce by simply swelling up in your stomach. Do they really work? And what is in them? I'm about 20 pounds overweight and nothing else ever helps, so I wondered if these might.-Evelyn K.

Dear Evelyn: There are several studies showing that the tablets you mention can help you change your eating habits—they fill up your stomach and reduce hunger pangs. Theoretically, you may thus eat less. One ingredient in this tablet is CMC (short for carboxymethylcellulose), a gum put in ice cream and baked goods to give them bulk during processing. Another ingredient is alginic acid, a gelatinous substance extracted from brown algae. It, too, is widely used in processed foods. There is sodium bicarbonate, also. You chew a couple of tablets about half an hour before meals and at bedtime and wash them down with sips of water. The mixture foams up in your stomach and gives you a feeling of fullness.

In the tests, there were occasional unpleasant side effects, like nausea or constipation, but nothing serious. However, you should consult your doctor before taking these tablets-or any other medicineand about what the best overall diet plan for you would be. One thing to remember is that these tablets contain a fair amount of sodium and may not be good for someone who is on a salt-restricted diet.

Also, to lose weight successfully, and to keep it off, you need to re-educate your eating habits. I question that pill substitutes do this in a meaningful, nutritionally sound way.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What exactly is a vitamin? We are all taking them and talking about them, but when you come right down to it, I haven't the faintest idea where the word comes from or what a vitamin is or

Dear Michele: The word was coined in 1912 by a Polish chemist called Casimir Funk who was working at the Lister Institute in London. He thought certain amines (nitrogen-containing substances) were necessary to life (the Latin word for which is vita). So he made up the term "vitamine." We know nowadays that many vitamins are not amines, but the name has stuck—although somewhere along the way, it lost the final "e."

Vitamins can be defined as compounds that the body normally cannot make itself but that, in minute amounts, are essential for growth and maintenance-and that are found in foods.

It may seem strange to you, but there is no official definition of "vitamin." However, the Food and Drug Administration has been able to enforce certain rules about the use of the term-on the basis of what most scientists mean by it.

Job Matching Fair

The big Job Matching Fair to be held here Saturday very well could be the most important meeting being held anywhere in West Texas this weekend.

It is a unique event — the first of its kind held anywhere in this part of the country and beyond.

It's primary purpose is to match unemployed persons registering for the fair with jobs available in the Midland-Odessa

It is reported that more than 1,000 job openings in scores of classifications will be available for filling.

And what a tremendous success and most worthwhile endeavor it will be if as many as half of those positions can be filled im-

The fair will be held in the old Boone Publishing Co. building on U.S. 80 West, near the entrance to Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Sponsored by the governor's Texas First program, prospective employes will meet employers

Fidel Castro demands U.S. capitulation

By WILLIAM GIANDONI Copley News Service

Cuba's Commander in Chief Fidel Castro is going to make it hard for President Jimmy Carter to normalize relations

Castro insists on his long-standing demand that the U.S. trade embargo on Cuba be lifted. After that comes everything else.

The United States seems to think that it can be the other way around. The United States expects to negotiate with the Castro dictatorship and reach agreement on a number of other points before removing the embargo.

Virtually on the eve of his departure for an unhearalded trip to Libya for conferences with North African leaders, Castro made his views known to his latest prominent U.S. visitor, Benjamin C. Bradlee of the Washington Post. Before that he said much the same to others.

Castro indicated that Cuba will not be pressured into any hasty action on the matter of relations with the United States.

To judge by what Bradlee wrote, Castro regards such issues as the conflicting U.S. and Cuban claims to 200-mile maritime limits and the soon-to-expire hijacking pact as something less than pressing issues. Castro appears to hold the upper relations with the United States. Castro has said all along that he is ready to talk when the United States meets his preconditions.

President Carter originally seemed hand in the matter of normalization of

to be insisting that Cuba withdraw its troops from Africa, restore human rights and change Cuban foreign policy before relations could be reestablished. But Secretary of State Cyrus Vance has since clarified that misunderstanding.

"He did not intend those to be taken as preconditions to talks," Vance said of the President's remarks. "Those were important subjects that would have to be discussed in any meeting which we might have with the Cubans."

The Carter administration seems anxious to make contact with the Cuban dictatorship to work out arrangements for the use of fishing grounds that fall within the 200-mile limits that both nations claim and to work on extension or renegotiation of the hijacking agreement before its expiration in April.

The impression that Washington gives suggests that the United States fears a renewal of aerial piracy once the agreement between the two countries runs out.

Yet that ignores Castro's pledge last October, when he denounced the piracy pact, that Cuba would live up to its terms, even in absence of a formal arrangement.

As for fishing rights off the coast of the United States and in the Gulf of Mexico, Cuban fishermen generally have observed U.S. rules and regulations just as U.S. fishermen have been most careful not to poach on Cuban territorial waters. Clearly, the Cuban Communists seem to think they are in a position to take advantage of the United States' anxiety to do something to improve relations, just as they did when the hijacking agreement was negotiated

Then the United States was alarmed by the spread of air terrorism in the world. In 1972, 63 aircraft were hijacked and 269 passengers, crew and hijackers or saboteurs were killed or wounded. Seven of the hijackings took U.S. planes to Cuba.

Cubans were able to play on U.S. fears and broaden the scope of the piracy agreement so that it covered boats as well as airplanes.

That, in effect, obligated the United States to take action even against those Cubans who were willing to risk their lives to flee the Communist dictatorship in small boats. The hijacking pact closed one of the last escape routes for freedom-seeking

Hughes-Watergate connection

Whose overreaction?

Outraged lawmakers in Washington have been quick to call the action of the federal Food and Drug Administration in banning the use of saccharin in foods and beverages an "overreaction."

And members of Congress most certainly have not been by themselves in sounding-off on the

Yet Congress itself passed the law in 1958 which states specifically that the FDA must bar from the market any food additive found to cause cancer in humans or animals.

And experiments in Canada have indicated that some rats, fed huge doses of saccharin, did, indeed, develop cancer.

There is a valid question, however, as to the relevancy of the tests, which involve comparative dosages far in excess of those consumed in foodstuffs by humans. Further, many "safe" foods, if fed in enormous amounts to rats produce cancerous tumors.

With an estimated 10 million diabetics, another 40 million on diets and, in the words of one FDA critic, "another 40 million who should be on a diet," the risks from a ban on the artificial sweetener may outweigh those of its continued use.

A review of the decision and the law itself certainly is in order.

Legislation was introduced in Congress Wednesday to lift the proposed ban on sacchrin at least until an evaluation of the problem is made under more flexible guidelines. The measure should gain prompt approval.

The Food, Drug and Cosmetic

Act and the food additive amendments enacted almost two decades ago should be made flexible enough to accommodate the factor of probability.

WASHINGTON - The biggest Watergate mystery of them all has never been cleared up. What was Howard Hughes' strange role in the The late billionaire was the only major Watergate figure who eluded the special prosecutors to the end. Yet some Watergate investigators believe he was the cause of the Watergate

His man in Washington, Robert Bennett, kept turning up mysteriously throughout the Watergate plot. White House informer John Dean commented that Bennett "became as mysterious in his inconspicuous presence as Howard Hughes was in his conspicuous absence.

We have searched Hughes' private papers, now in federal custody, for clues. The papers show that the phantom billionaire followed the Watergate investigation avidly. For example, he demanded an immediate report from his attorney, Chester Davis, on White House counsel Fred Buzhardt's secret testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee.

Davis responded in a May 8, 1974, memo: "I am informed that Buzhardt (a) effectively asserted the attorneyclient privilege, and (b) did not testify to anything relating to (you). The transcripts of those hearings are secret, and it may be some time before I can get more detailed information."

In other memos, Davis confided that he was on good terms with "Sen. Sam" as he called Senate Watergate Chairman Sam Ervin, D.-N.C., and that he was "cooperating" with at-torneys for Bebe Rebozo, the sidekick of then-President Richard Nixon.

Hughes sympathized completely with Nixon during the Watergate investigation, and the men around him tended, in the way of subordinates, to reflect his views.

Another Hughes aide, Richard Hannah, characterized Nixon's critics as "the hypocrites, the holierthan-thou elements, the very-very righteous." He reported to Hughes on June 2, 1974, for example, that 'Nixon's enemies will not relax their efforts to hang him, but ... the public is supersaturated with the partisan clawing and kicks to the groin.

There is a hint in the documents that the recluse considered emerging from his turtleshell but was persuaded by his attorney to pull his neck back inside because of the Watergate publicity. For instance, Hughes sent this message to Chester Davis on April 10, 1974:

'He (Hughes) wants to know immediately what prompted you to tell him to please continue his so-called reclusive way of life and not to cause any publicity. He said he has to make some decisions in Nevada ... and he can't, or doesn't dare, arrive at any conclusion after what you told him yesterday.'

Watergate but other legal problems as his reasons for "recommending that we do not invite additional unnecessary publicity." Later, he reported on his efforts to identify "the persons behind this determined effort to embarrass you in order to compel

In response, Davis cited not only

you to appear.' Unhappily, the Hughes papers merely heighten the mystery of Hughes' involvement in the Watergate scandal. The documents discuss these fascinating developments - The papers acknowledge that a Hughes aide, Richard Danner, delivered two separate $50,000 cash bundles to Key Biscayne, Fla., and San Clemente, Calif., for Nixon's use after the 1968 election. The money was turned over to Rebozo, who returned it seven years later. In the meantime, Hughes' Washington operator, Bob Bennett, delivered another $150,000 to the Nixon reelection campaign.

- When we broke the story of the $100,000 cash gift to Nixon, it reportedly caused panic inside the White House. Nixon aides suspected that we got our information either from then-Democratic National Chairman Larry O'Brien or from Las Vegas publisher Hank Greenspun. Both had access to Hughes documents.

- Liddy began planning the Watergate break-in according to subsequent testimony, with the understanding that he had approval to tap O'Brien's phone and break into Greenspun's safe. At this time, his coplumber, E. Howard Hunt, worked for Bennett yet was also on the White House payroll. Bennett put Hunt together with Ralph Winte, a Hughes security man. Hunt later confessed that they discussed burglarizing Greenspun's safe. According to Hunt, he was supposed to provide the burglars with a getaway plane. It is uncertain whether the safe-cracking was ever attempted. But White House aide John Ehrlichman later reported to Nixon that Liddy and Hunt, "Flew out, broke his safe, got something out." Greenspun said someone tore off the cover plate of his safe but failed to open it.

- White House aide Charles Colson has also said that he has "good reason to believe that Bob Bennett was somehow involved in the decision to go after O'Brien." Chester Davis later reported to Hughes that the Senate Watergate Committee was trying to link the O'Brien and Greenspun episodes.

Yet the special prosecutors never got a chance to question the elusive

INSIDE REPORT:

Another Angola? Conditions point in that direction

Novak

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - Even after early warning signals from both Westernallied Zaire and pro-Western elements in Marxist Angola, the U.S. was helpless to interfere with the invasion of Zaire's copper-rich Katanga province by battle-hardened veterans - now Cuba-trained - of the old Moise Tshombe Katangan constabulary.

That helplessness shows that the impact of the Vietnam war, followed the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) investigations, traumatize Congress today as they did during the 1975 Angolan civil war. Congress remains transfixed with fear that U.S. aid will lead to military intervention, and is still unwilling to use the undercover CIA option. So, there is no effective response to the invasion of

Accordingly, U.S. and Western European experts here have already conceded this result in the two-bit war over a king's ransom in copper: the fall from power of Zaire President Mobutu Sese Seko, whose hapless "army" cannot begin to turn back the Soviet-armed, Soviet-supplied Katangan troops

This may well be only the first of several agonizing results. If Mobutu does lose the presidency under the shock of losing the richest part of his huge country, the momentum of that loss would expose much more of Zaire to ravage by the Katangan forces. Backed by Angola's own Cubadirected army and supplied by huge

Soviet military resources, the old Tshombe constabulary may now be accompanied by Cuban and Angolan

President Carter has been strongly urged by European allies to solemnly appeal to Moscow to halt the invasion. U.S. officials are uncertain, as we write this, how deeply Moscow was involved in the decision to invade Zaire. Nevertheless, there is strong presumption that a word from Moscow could stop the invading force dead in its tracks, by merely threatening to withhold supplies.

But diplomats here have little hope that the Soviets will lift a finger in response to such a request from Mr. Carter any more than they did in reply to Henry Kissinger's plea to stay out of Angola in 1975. Indeed, cooperation by the Kremlin is made all the less likely by repeated Soviet embarrassments from Mr. Carter's human rights campaign. Nor does the mood in Congress incline Moscow to defer to U.S. wishes. The skeptical, even frightened, attitude on Capitol Hill over foreign risk-taking was dramatically evident last week when Secretary of State Cyrus Vance testified before the House International Relations Committee on fattened aid for Zaire. In response to Vance's request for $32.5 million in military aid for Zaire, liberal Democratic Rep. Don Bonker of Washington informed him that Zaire's army was corrupt "from top to bottom" and that Mobutu did not have the confidence of his people. Bonker later told us that was the rescription that led the U.S. inte Vietnam. But Bonker's was the formulation that led Congress into shrugging off any responsibility for Vance's aid request has not yet been authorized, but it is now too late for it to have any impact on the military situation in Katanga (now called Shaba province). Moreover, even if Bonker overstates the weakness of Mobutu's army, the fact that it is not an effective fighting force is well known here. It may indeed be too late for rehabilitation.

With Havana and Moscow watching to see how well the old Katangan constabulary performs in Shaba province, success is expected to gain their support for more extensive operations. "The game is to destabilize Mobutu," one diplomat told us, "and after he is destabilized, the avenue is wide open for many hefarious purposes."

A glance at the map of southern Africa shows why. The fall of Shaba province to the Communist-backed Katangans would surround Zambia, the only other Western-leaning black state in southern Africa, with black states which all lean heavily toward Moscow and away from Washington: Angola, Tanzania and Mozambique. So, in any civil war in Zaire between a U.S.-backed force (under Mobutu or some successor) and a Soviet-backed force, the U.S. force would be circumstances. In fact, however, there almost surely will be no U.S.-backed force there because the still-traumatized Congress would not permit it. Vance's aid request for Zaire will be cut by Congress: in addition, the "human rights" bloc will challenge it on the basis of alleged repression by operating under most unfavorable

So, Zaire, or at the least its vital copper-rich heartland, seems doomed to go the way of Angola in the familiar pattern of a Secretary of State crying for help and Congress turning away.

President Federal Express seeks right sets talk to expand package service to city guidelines

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Carter said Thursday that Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance will leave for Moscow today "with high hopes" for progress in negotiations between the United States and the Soviet Union and with a new American proposal for "substantial reductions" in the number of nuclear weapons.

Prefacing his remarks with a reiteration of his faith in the value of discussing such matters openly, the President set forth in broad terms the major policy objectives that Vance and his team will take to Moscow.

He also suggested that he is close to the point at which he would support normalization of relations between the U.S. and Vietnam and said he is convinced that Soviet officials do not want the controversy over human rights to impede progress in nuclear

Carter began his fourth press con-ference as President by laying out the main issues to be discussed at the Moscow talks. He did not cite the actual arms reduction that the Vance mission will seek but said "the central focal point (of the talks) will be arms limitations and actual reductions for

In addition to nuclear arms reductions, the President said, the Vance mission to Moscow will seek agreements to:

-Limit arms sales by the United States and the Soviet Union to other nations. The United States, he said, has been "working with our allies to cut down this traffic and we hope to get the Soviet Union to agree with us on constraint."

-Control the testing of nuclear devices, including nonmilitary devices, with the U.S. objective being 'to eliminate these tests altogether if the Soviets will agree."

Federal Express president Frederick W. Smith said the request for expanded service, which will be limited to small packages, "will affect virtually every business community in the nation.

He said present cities served will be able to more than double market areas for medical supplies, electronic and production parts and similar items. Smith said firms in the new cities will be able to send or receive packages "virtually anywhere in the country overnight instead of the two or three days now required" by other

Smith said the length of time for CAB to evaluate the request and passage of a bill in Congress to lessen CAB administrative requirements will determine how soon the expanded air service can begin.

Women Marines train for combat

By ANN BLACKMAN

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) - Lt. Gayle Hanley lay flat on her stomach in a cold, muddy trench, firing bursts at an advancing enemy from the M16 ri-fle propped in front of her.

The bullets were blanks, but the training was real for the former kindergarten teacher and 21 other female officers. On Thursday they became the first women in the history of the Corps to undergo combat train-

"I wanted to do something dif-ferent," the 28-year-old Rural Retreat, Va., woman said during a lull in the two-day simulated war. "I like this pretty well, but eventually I'll go back to kindergarten. You can be a lady there."

Since Jan. 8, the newly commissioned female Marine officers have been trained alongside male officers in patrolling, amphibious operations, the use of terrain, weapons and underfire tactics. All are second lieutenants in a 21-week training period at Quantico Marine Base.

"It's very difficult to tell the men from the women," said Lt. Col. Pieter Hogaboom, a tactics group chief. "Once you put gear on them and helmets and give them rifles, they're all little green people. They're all Marines."

The women are not expected to see real combat. "They're not prepared for the front line, but for support roles," explained Lt. Col. Barbara

Lt. Col. Edward M. Mockler, an operations officer, said the women were undergoing combat training "to expose them and familiarize them with their environment so they will do their own job better."

Jannie Loftis, 22, of Ceres, Calif. said at first she didn't care for combat training. "But the culture shock is wearing off, and some of it is becoming fun," she said. "I really have a good time shooting my rifle today, and I hated my rifle when I first got

The women's training is a little less rigorous, Mockler said. Instead of doing pullups, they hang by their arms. The women's obstacle course is less difficult. While the men run 3 miles, the women only run 11/2 miles. However, several times a week both run up to 6 miles.

Dolyak said the women's performance is about equal with the men's. Women rank sixth and seventh in the company of 266 officers. Some women are in the middle and some at

New Indian leader veteran public servant

The Los Angeles Times

NEW DELHI - India's new prime minister, Morarji Desai, is a religious man who normally prays every day. but when he was organizing the Janata Party last January he was too

"I have no time even to say my prayers," Desai told a reporter at the time. "But if you do public service, that also is a prayer.

Desai has been in public service for most of his 81 years. He worked for 12 years for the British, who finally pulled out of India in 1947, and he wrote in his two-volume autobiography:

"I had ill-served my country by serving a foreign government. In order to atone for this, I should spend the rest of my life in the service of the country and the people. I resolved I would not do anything to serve my own interests in this world.'

He became a disciple of Mahatma Gandhi, who led India to independence, and to this day he follows Gandhi's principles. He spins his own cotton. All his clothing, which is finely tailored, is made from his cloth.

Desai's life is spartan even by Indian standards. He eats only two meals a day, and he eats little besides fruit, nuts and cow's milk. He does not drink coffee or tea, and he does not drink alcohol. He is a prohibitionist. Many Indians complain that Desai prude, but he is serious about his habits and beliefs. And he practices what he preaches. When he was the chief minister of

Bombay, he imposed prohibition, which India's constitution encourages. Now, many hard-drinking

Indians are afraid Desai will extend prohibition to the entire country.

Desai is perhaps the most austere man in Indian public life — and he is proud of it. Some of his austerities he has practiced sexual abstinence for almost 50 years - have led others to think him eccentric.

Despite his age, his face is remarkably unlined. He is tall and walks almost like an athlete.

As a fighter for independence, Desai spent five separate terms in British jails. He served 19 months as a political prisoner under Indira Gandhi's emergency rule.

He spent most of his political career in the Congress Party. He tried for the prime ministership in 1966 but lost to Mrs. Gandhi in a party election. He challenged her the following year but retreated and became deputy prime minister and finance minister.

In 1971 he was forced out along with other conservatives when Mrs. Gandhi split the party. Desai stayed on in Parliament, where he represented his home state of Gujarat for 20 years.

Along with Jayaprakash Narayan, a venerable force in India, Desai figured in the events that led to the declaration of emergency. In 1975 he fasted until Mrs. Gandhi agreed to conduct state elections. She lost, and added momentum to a movement to force her resignation.

In response, Mrs. Gandhi ordered a state of emergency, then relaxed it last January in order to hold national elections. That was the signal for Desai, just out of jail, to organize the Janata Party that sent Mrs. Gandhi down to defeat last week.

No gold at Victorio, man says

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — A legend of gold hidden in New Mexico's Victorio Peak has been nothing but a con game from the start, a Fort Worth man declared Thursday.

And, he added in a copyrighted interview with the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, reputed discoverer "Doc" Noss 28 years after his death still has people combing the hills for a treasure that never was there. The newspaper reported these details: Bob Chenoweth, 83, said he provided Noss the dynamite and knowledge of how to use it when Noss set off a charge in 1937 that sealed the cavern where the cache supposedly was hidden. Dozens of people are investing heavily in money, time and efforts to find the fabled cache, obviously believing the gold is there.

From the site at Victorio Peak, the disposition.

leader of a treasure-hunting Expeditions Unlimited of Pompano Beach, Fla., said Thursday he expects to know when his search ends Monday whether any of the stories of gold are true.

"In the areas we have been directed to, I will be able to credit or refute (the legends)," said Norman Scott of Fort Worth.

Chenoweth said he could have saved six claimants to the gold a lot of time. He says Noss was lying about

The federal grand jury investigation into alleged irregularities in the grain operations of a missing North Texas grain dealer will continue at a later time, according to Asst. U.S. Atty. Jim Rolfe.

The grand jury, meeting in Abilene, spent two days listening to testimony from nine persons in connection with the operations of Robert M. Johnson, of Iowa Park.

No indictments or reports were returned at the end of the session, Rolfe said.

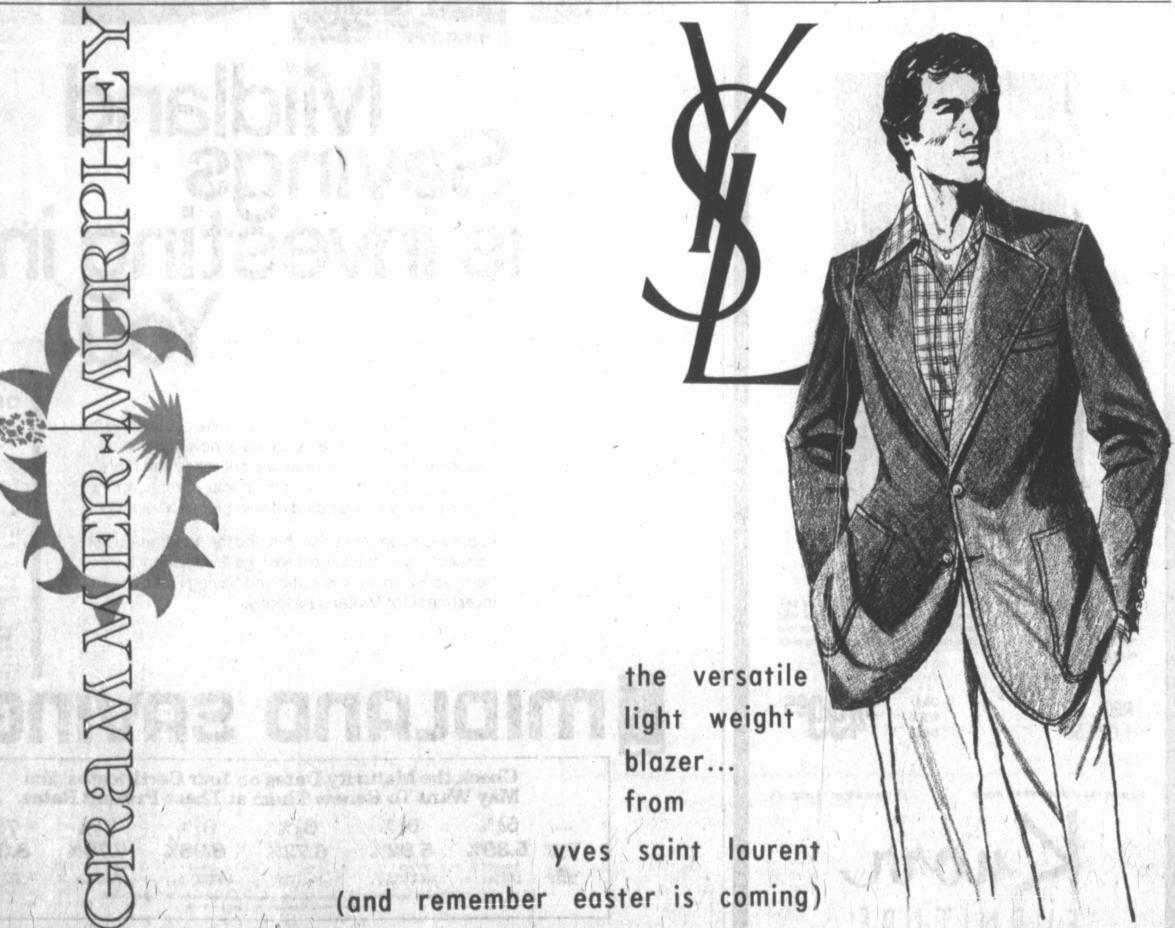

"We don't know exactly when the grand jury will reconvene, but it will meet whenever enough other cases are ready to be brought before it so that it becomes necessary," Rolfe said.

Preachers indicted

GILMER, Tex. (AP) — Two East Texas Baptist preachers were in the Upshur County jail today following their in-dictments in two separate criminal cases.

The Rev. Raymond Duhon of Pine Acres was indicted Thursday on two counts of raping a child while the Rev. Craig Lacy, former pastor of Big Sandy's First Baptist church, was indicted on stolen property charges.

Duhon, who has never held a full time pastorate and last held a part time church post two years ago, was arrested March 16 by Upshur County deputies in connection authorities said involved two different children.

Good health affects work

NEW YORK (AP) - About one third of a person's life is spent working, so it pays to maintain on-thejob mental health, says Dorothy M. Saller, executive director of the American Association of Occupational Health Nurses.

The group's 9,000 members, all registered nurses, daily counsel employes and see firsthand the effect of personal problems on job performance. Self-examination on the following points might be the key to increasing your own happiness at work, Miss Saller notes.

-If something at the office or factory bothers you, do you ever express your feelings - in a nice way, of course - to your boss? It might be a good idea to do so.

-Have you had a physical checkup during the past year, especially on your blood pressure? It could be the root of what's bothering you.

-Do your on-the-job work habits create stress for you and your coworkers? Every company has behavior and procedural norms that require a certain amount of conformity.

-Do you have the right qualifications and skills for your job? You may be in the wrong field - or "over your head" in your present job. -What about your personal habits? Are you smoking or drinking too much. Are you overeating? -Are you a workaholic, with no time to relax? Is your job your only

DEAR ABBY

Girl feels like second fiddle when friend cancels movie date

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a mature 17-year-old girl. Last week I had plans to go to a movie with another girl, my best friend. She called at the last minute to say that a guy she knew had come into town unexpectedly and asked her to go out with him, so our date was off. (She said she knew I'd 'understand.'')

I felt very hurt and let down. My mother said I was wrong to feel that way because it was only natural for a girl to prefer to go out with a guy than with another girl, if a guy suddenly came into the picture. Do you agree? Abby, I don't think I would have

DEAR SECOND: I don't think it makes any difference whether the friend who suddenly breezed into town was a guy or another girl. Breaking a date at the last minute as your "best friend" did was un-

Abby. I really don't need that product, and we certainly can't afford it at this time. (I don't work and have no money of my own.)

Is there any way I can get out of it now?—FEELING SICK

DEAR SICK: Call (or write) to the company and explain that you signed the contract before you had time to think it over carefully. Tell them that you neither need nor want the product, and you cannot afford it.

Some companies will release hasty signers from their contracts. Others will not. (A note to other wives who are financially dependent on their husbands. Discuss all purchases with your husbands first, and don't sign anything in haste.)

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of the business executive (or professional person) who has pictures of the spouse and family prominently displayed on his desk. No one else is interested, and if he (or she) has forgotten what his family looks like, he should take a better look at them when he gets home.

I never know what to say when I am "introduced" to a gallery of pictures. I keep fighting the urge to say, "Who cares?"—NAMELESS IN CHICAGO

DEAR NAMELESS: It doesn't take very long to say, "How lovely'." And there's an outside chance that some people DO care.

The reasons for the gallery display are varied. Some are there because the executive himself (or herself) likes to look at them. Others are there because the spouse has put them there. Some want to crow a little. And some are there for "protection." (I am told that some people need a subtle reminder that the doctor, dentist or lawyer is a family person.)

With almost filial attention, it investigates crimes against old people. The police make numerous house calls, contact victims' relatives. freeze bank accounts, even take victims to and from court.

In the Queens community of Far Rockaway, senior citizens form street lobby patrols to report suspicious persons. About one-third of the population of 60,000 consists of senior citizens.

'We don't care if they play pinochle or mahjong. Their mere presence is going to deter people," says Detective Gary Messina. "We feel we are using an important resource, senior citizens, to benefit the whole community.

Another facet of the problem - the offender - is being attacked by senior citizens in the Bronx who keep tabs on the justice system. Parkchester residents monitor court proceedings involving elderly victims. Faithfully. they file into the court room and take "We're here to bear witness, to

Seniors said they would never have seen a dance theater in Manhattan if youngsters had not escorted them on he subway

But some old people, and some police, remain suspicious of escort programs in general, fearing the good Samaritan is just setting up the senior or checking out an apartment for a later rip-off

But Michael Mirakian, coordinator of senior affairs at Taft, says the escort service which began in November is highly successful, "We've found a tremendous bond between old and young," he says. "It gives us hope we can reduce crime, make old people feel safe and restore our sense of community.

Despite all the precautions, patrols, escorts and security measures, old people get mugged. And some are learning to fight back with their fists. Actual self-defense for old folks is controversial, and many police advise against it. But Lyddon Griffith, a young Housing Authority cop here, gives safety lectures that include fighting as a last resort.

Griffith started his course four years ago when his grandfather, 82 and half blind, was mugged for the Agent to second time and asked for help.

"I interviewed a lot of muggers and designed the course for an 82-year-old man," Griffith says. "At first, everyone thought I was crazy, but I've taught about 5,000 seniors and have 10 documented cases where training saved lives."

He teaches mostly standard precautions, emphasizing, "Don't fight for your property. Your life savings might be in your pocketbook, but certainly not your life.

"Then there are the 20 per cent who get your property but want more. We have to deal with them, too."

So Griffith teaches a variety of techniques, including his famous "pinch" that can make an attacker let go. He maintians, "A 70-year-old man can learn how to break the grip of an attacker.

Leopold Wallach is just such a 70year-old - fit and crewcut, strutting in his track shoes and black turtleneck. He is a judo expert and physical education teacher and has overcome two would-be muggers young enough to be his grandchildren.

The Cubs' contract with the city for spring training facilities expires April 5 and club officials say they want an answer about new facilities by then.

As far as Bob Risch is concerned, the American Golf Tour (AGT) is a

"It may not help me get my player's card (Tournament Players Division) back, but it provides the opportunity for competitive golf and the money isn't bad either." the 29year-old from Diamond Bar, Calif., said after winning the $25,000 AGT meet at Hogan Park Thursday.

It was the third win for the former All-America golfer from the University of Southern California and brought his season's winnings to $14,300 for the 10 events thus far on the

IN HIS two years on the tour Risch totaled just a shade over $6,000 in earnings, so it's little wonder he is pleased with the AGT payoffs.

Risch carded his second straight 68 Thursday, playing in balmy 80-degree weather, to finish with a 202, three strokes ahead of Paul Wise, Lawndale, Calif., who turned in a 66 on the final round of the 54-hole tournament.

However, it was a 66 on the first day that gave Risch a lead he never relinquished and it came while most of the rest of the field was struggling with blustery 25 mph winds.

"The wind doesn't seem to bother me," said Risch, who hails from 30 miles south of Los Angeles. "I won in windy weather last week in El Paso and again here. Maybe I should have

BILL BRASK, Vista, Calif., carded a final round 64, not only the best 18hole score for the day, but for the tournament. However, combined with a pair of 71s, it brought him no better than a third place 206. San Angelo's

Jim Mundell, consistency personified, posted his third straight 69 for a 207, good for fourth place.

Final round 68's left Sale Omohundo and Tom Tatum tied at 208. Among those tied at 209 was Midland Country Club's George Clark, who turned in a sizzling 65 Thursday.

Risch, who also went to El Camino College, said he was brought up on a muddy course, "And it probably helped me in the last two tournaments.

He said, "I really liked this course. Some of the guys were complaining and said they were going to shoot the eyes out of the course. I hit the ball low and just played every hole without taking anything for granted and it paid off."

ON HIS final round 68, Risch said he didn't putt too well. "I ran in two long putts for pars, but otherwise..."

His strong point on the final day? "I didn't quit," he grinned.

Although he plans to return to school, probably in the fall, and attempt to win back his TPD card, the 6-Public Links chapionship and California State Amateur in 1970, is looking forward to returning to Midland next year...if he isn't on the tour.

"The AGT is great for the town and I hope to come back next year. The people running the AGT are super. They put up a lot of their own money to get this thing going and it should get better with more experience," Risch said.

The tour moves to San Antonio's Pecan Valley next week, then to Austin Lakeway before closing out its Texas segment with stops at Lubbock

RANCHO SANTA FE, Calif. (AP) - Jan Stephenson, plagued by the flu and complaining of being a "slow starter, reeled off four consecutive birdies en route to a 68 and took the lead after the first round of the Ladies Professional Golf Association Kathryn Crosby golf tournament.

Miss Stephenson had visited a doctor after Wednesday's ProAm, and he gave her medication for her flu symptoms. Then Dr. Charles Weber came out Whispering Palms Country Club to see how she was playing Thursday.

He asked how I was doing and I said I was one under par. So he said 'Okay,' and left," said the 25-year-old Australian who now lives in Palm Springs, Calif.

'I was so sick, I felt like I wanted to pull out of the Crosby Tournament. And I'm always complaining about how I usually have to tee off so late in the day.

Instead, Miss Stephenson began play shortly after 8 a.m. in Thursday's opening round, then had the afternoon to sit back and watch the second largest field in LPGA history-a total of 109 players-take shots at her. Only Kathy Cornelius came close.

Miss Cornelius, who had a stretch of four birdies in five holes, said she is not playing at 44 just for the money. If I didn't think in the back of my mind I might win, I wouldn't be out here." Judy Rankin, the LPGA's leading money winner and winneer of two of the year's first three tourneys, had a 73, five strokes off the lead.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Ah, the allure of Hollywood. Broadway Joe Namath apparently has chosen to take a mammoth salary cut and possibly play backup to a second-year pro on the Los Angeles Rams-and be close to the movies.

Jimmy Walsh, Namath's agent, said Thursday the man who quarterbacked the New York Jets for 12 years has given permission to be traded to the Rams.

Eager would perhaps be a better word. Namath has been trying to go West for the past three years. After thinking about Namath's $450,000 annual salary, the Jets now appear ready to unload him. According to National Football League rules, if the Jets pick up the option year of Namath's contract, it would cost them $495,000 for the gimpy-kneed veteran. NFL regulations provide a 10 per cent pay hike to players who play out their Namath, who led the Jets to victory in Super Bowl III against Baltimore eight years ago, likely would be an understudy to Pat Haden, the Rhodes scholar from Southern California.

Irwin snatches early lead in Heritage Golf Classic

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) - Last year Hale Irwin won two tournaments, lost another in a playoff, was second two other times, went past $1 million in career earnings and col-

BUT, HE said after a six-under-par 65 had staked him to a share of the first-round lead Thursday in the $225,000 Sea Pines Heritage Golf Classic, it's all coming back.
"Naturally, I'd love to win this tournament," said Irwin, who has taken this prestigious, invitational event two times, "but I don't feel my game is exactly where I want it. But it is coming around.

"I am just coming into that momentum, that habit of scoring, that ability to manage my game, that I had early in the year last year.'

IRWIN, WHO could have won last week's important Tournament Players Championship but for bogeys on all four par-five holes in the last round, shared the top spot with Australian Graham Marsh, a veteran globe-trotter who came to the United States this year after a tip from Irwin helped him gain the distance he need-

"I'd always had the ball moving left to right," said the 33- year-old Marsh, winner of some 20 career titles in Australia, Europe and the Far East, but an American tour rookie.

"Hale helped me with my game last year. He showed me something on my setup and got me to moving the ball from right to left, which, of course, gives me much better distance. It got my game to the stage where I thought I could play in America."

AND THE 33-year-old who won more than $185,000 in non-American events last year, has played quite well, indeed, in his brief United States career. In his last five starts he has been fifth three times, sixth and 12th, winning more than $35,000 in that

He had to shake off the potential disaster of a double bogey five on the fourth hole, score nine birdies, play his back nine in 30 with birdies on the last two holes to catch Irwin.

"Nothing spectacular," he understated, "just steady—putting good without being brilliant."

BEN CRENSHAW was one stroke back at 66, five under par on the difficult, 6,655-yard Harbour Town Golf Links that yielded unusually low scores. He was followed by Tom Watson and Ray Floyd at 67.

Jack Nicklaus and a delighted Jerry Pate, the U.S. Open champ who has been out of action for more than a month with an injured right hand, were in a group at 68 with Charles Coody, Lyn Lott, Danny Edwards and Leonard Thompson.

Lubbock Monterey tops Lee by 10-5

LUBBOCK - Monterey used a big five-run outburst in the bottom of the second inning Thursday to down the Robert E. Lee Rebels, 10-5, in a nondistrict baseball game at Lowery Todd Clements had a perfect day at the plate for the Rebels who finally started hitting the ball. Clements went four-for-four and has now gone seven-for-seven in the last two games to raise his batting average to .535.

Lee pounded out 11 hits and this encourages Coach Ernie Johnson. "We did pull a couple of clown acts on defense that ruined us. That and a double play with the bases loaded in the fifth inning that kept us from coming back, "said Johnson.

The Tall City outfit took a 1-0 lead in the first inning off starter Gary Holub. Clements doubled and scored on another two-bagger by Mike Craig Van Horn cut the lead to 6-3 in the third inning, but the Plainsmen added a single run in the fourth inning and three more in the sixth.

Jeff Mathews led off the fifth inning for Lee with a triple and Clements knocked him in with his fourth hit of the game to make it 7-4. Mike Richard also had a base hit ad and scored on a single by Pat Moore, but the double play with the bases jammed, ended the uprising suddenly.

With the loss, Lee is now 10-6 on the year and faces the San Angelo Central Bobcats at the Lee diamond at 2 p.m. Saturday while Midland High (3-10). takes on the hard-hitting Big Spring Steers on the road in another 2 p.m. contest.

What made Jackie run?

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

Right now, somewhere on the campus of Oklahoma State University up there in Stillwater, there are a whole lot of people walking around in a befuddled daze. 'Was it something I said?" asks

"I hope it wasn't my breath," adds another. "I used listerine two hours

And still another fellow, who looks very much like OSU Athletic Director Guy Strong, is heard saying: "Damn.

I knew I should have showered first." It's been two days now since Jack Hartman announced he was turning down the job as head basketball coach at his alma mater, only one day after he had all but moved lock stock and barrel to Stillwater. But it might just as well be months or years as far as the OSU people are concerned, because they're never likely to understand "what made Jackie turn and A neutral observer could come up with an acceptable answer in seconds. He looked at the dire straights the State basketball program was in only one winning season in the last twelve years, a 6-21 mark and last place finish in the Big-Eight this past season, a half empty 8,000-seat Gallagher Hall at most OSU home games, and no immediate hope for improvement in the future - and decided it wasn't worth leaving his job at Kansas State, where things are considerably more optimistic.

What he's done for the Wildcat program is worth noting. Since coming to the Manhattan campus in 1970, his teams have had only one losing season, that being an 11-15 mark in his first year. The 52-year-old KSU mentor has won 135 and lost just 62 over those seven years, and the Wildcats have been to post-season tournaments six of the past seven .

MORE IMPORTANT though, may be the future. Hartman was contemplating leaving a 22-8 team that will return three of its top stars, and may land a real jewel in Brooklyn high school All-American, Albert King, who is giving KSU a great deal

But Hartman knew all that even before he indicated he would be interested in the Oklahoma State University position.

"Deep down in everybody is the desire to go back to their school," he said Monday at a news conference. when he announced the move. Tuesday, he still had every intention of taking the job, as he met with the press and members of the OSU team in Stillwater and said: "I'm really looking forward to working on the same floor where Henry Iba worked." But something happened between Tuesday night and Wednesday morning. If you're a Kansas State fan, you probably tend to believe that a divine inspiration came to Hartman in his sleep. And if you're an OSU fan. . . well, I don't know what you're thinking. But I'm sure it's censored. "I got on that plane to fly to Oklahoma State and for the first time I felt really alone and able to make some pertinent evaluations about what I was doing," he said. "In the back of my mind was that the feeling wasn't right. The flight back then confirmed all the thoughts I had on the flight down." "I realize the decision I made on Monday was both inconveniencing and embarrassing," he added, "and I'm thinking mainly of myself when I say embarrassing."

NO ONE has been more affected by Hartman's change of heart than Mark Reiner. Reiner is the assistant coach Hartman brought in from Brooklyn Carnostie Prep in New York City last fall, along with high school All-Americans, Curtis Redding and Tyrone Ladson, both from Carnostie.

Hartman invited Reiner and his other assistant, Jerry Holmes, to follow him to Oklahoma State. Holmes accepted, but Reiner declined and was the odds-on favorite to replace Hartman as the KSU head man. But that all ended Wednesday afternoon, when Hartman exploded the bomb.

With Hartman's return came the question of Reiner staying on, or maybe moving on to a head coaching position somewhere else, which can happen to assistants on 22-8 teams. A crowd of more than 500 people gathered outside of Reiner's Manahattan, Kan. home late Wednesday night, and begged him to remain on with Hartman, but he hadn't made up his mind as of Thursday night. You can bet Hartman hopes he will stay, because Reiner appears to be the key to recruiting Albert King. Reiner, and freshman Redding are both friends of Kings'.

Still, I can't help wondering what Reiner could have done with his own major college basketball program. With his link to the coaches and high school players of the 'Big Apple', the sky would have been the limit. He would have had an "in" that would make even South Carolina's Frank McGuire cringe with jeolosy. And an open door to the city's playground talent is the pathway to success.

The way things stand right now, Kansas State could very well challenge for the NCAA title next season, if they land Fort Hamilton High's King. He's that good. And a source up East indicates the lad is getting closer and closer to signing a etter of intent with KSU.

SJ, Edison win crowns

San Jacinto and Edison each captured two titles Wednesday in the annual junior high and freshman City Championship Track Meet at Memorial

San Jacinto won the eighth and seventh grade titles. San Jacinto edged Alamo by one point in the seventh grade division after posting 831/2 points. San Jacinto won the eighth grade title with 891/2 points while Alamo was second with 61.

Edison captured both the ninth grade boys and girls crowns. The boys won by a 971/2 to 851/2 margin over Austin while the Edison girls ripped Austin by a Three city records fell during the meet with two going to the seventh grade and the other in the ninth grade. All of the girls times were records since this was the first year of competition.

Alamo's Steve Bizzell set a seventh grade pole vault record with a jump of 8.6 feet and San Jacinto's Al Ochoa set a new 230-yard hurdle standard with his 30.6. Edison's Jeff Robnett set a new ninth grade mark in the 100 with a 10.1.

Alamo's Joe Carrasco missed the city record in the seventh grade shot put, but his 41-11/2 toss broke Alamo's shot put school record for the second week

Rosie beats Wade in 3

NEW YORK (AP) - The record after a season of women's tennis tournaments points to a fairy tale ending to the story of Chris Evert and the Seven Dwarfs-the dwarfs led by Martina Navratilova, the Czech defector, and Sue Barker, the fastrising English star.

But Rosie Casals, a veteran among the women and an unseeded player in the women's championship at Madison Square Garden, never was one for predictable endings and she led the pack Thursday night in saying that Sunday's final won't necessarily result in an Evert-Navratilova match.

"I don't think I would be playing tennis if I didn't believe I could win, if I couldn't beat Chris Evert," said the 28-year-old Ms. Casals after her 4-6, 6-4, 6-4 victory over fourth-seeded Virginia Wade of England in the most vigorously contested match in the opener of round robin competition.

Opening night also provided lop-sided victories for all three top players. Miss Evert, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., beat Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia 6-0, 6-3, Miss Navratilova defeated Kristien Shaw of New York 6-3, 6-1, and Miss Barker trounced Betty Stove of The Netherlands 6-0, 6-1.

The cliff-hanger in the first series was Ms. Casals' scrambling game of crisp volleys and penetrating overheads against Mrs. Wade—a match that lasted one hour, 42 minutes.

Miss Evert, who lost to Miss Navratilova last week, also insisted there was suspense ahead.

"I'm not taking anything for granted," she said after the easy victory over tiny Miss Jausovec. "I've lost to Martina and I've lost to Rosie. Anything could happen."

Miss Evert said her loss to Miss Navratilova in the Philadelphia indoor last week did her a lot of good. 'Martina brought me right back to this earth by beating me," she said.

Miss Evert lost the championship last year to Evonne Goolagong, who is out of competition this year to have a

UNLV success

hurts bookies

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - With the University of Nevada-Las Vegas heading for the semifinals of the NCAA national basketball championships, one would think the bookmakers in Nevada would be doing a land office business. Wanna bet?

The fact is, business isn't as brisk as in past years, and oddly enough it's because UNLV is playing State law prohibts Nevada bookmakers from making odds and taking bets on Nevada teams and sporting events held within the state.

But most of the bookmakers here are avid boosters of the fourth-ranked Runnin' Rebels, who will face the fifth-ranked North Carolina Tar Heels in Saturday's semifinals in Atlanta.

UNLV is the highest scoring team in college basketball this season, and has compiled a 28-2 record. North Carolina is 27-4.

Just to show that the books here don't do business with their hearts, North Carolina is the "unofficial" favorite in game. The point spread ranges from 21/2-3 points, depending on how each book sees the physical condition of Tar Heel AllAmerican Phil Ford, who is nursing an injured

Seventh-ranked Marquette, 23-7, is a 21/2-point favorite to defeat 17thranked North Carolina-Charlotte, 26-3, in Saturday's other semifinal game.

Union Plaza Race and Sports Book director John Quinn admits that this Saturday's game will be costing his book a big wad, and said it's too bad that the bookmakers can't take bets because there is a lot of local interest.

William Balelo, who owns the Hollywood Race and Sports Book, said the game would have been a good one to book because it will be on national television

Despite the fact that he can't book the bets, Balelo said the television exposure of the Rebels will be good for Las Vegas, and in the end, good for

Ray Lenzi, manager of the Stardust Sports Book, said he doesn't like not being able to book the game.

Not only will the local books suffer, but the state will lose the tax money that would have been charged on the game betting, and there's not much doubt there would have been a lot of it, Lenzi said.

Cubbies realistic about chances; shooting for a third place finish

By JOHN PINKERMAN pley News Service

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. - The Cubs are doing spring training chores in sky-blue uniforms, but blue isn't the color of their mood. They're a happy lot, for the most part, and they seem to enjoy their Cactus League workouts and exhibition games.

But, they're also a bit on the realistic side. With the addition of the Giants' Bobby Murcer (in a trade for league hitting champion Bill Madlock), they see fans pouring into Wrigley Field to see the man who was at first boomed as a successor to Mickey Mantle crash homers into the friendly seats in right field.

THEY ARE confident in other areas, too, but they still are not talking pennant or even a fight for the pennant or division championship. They know they have to contend with Philadelphia and Pittsburgh again but they figure they can finish third, ahead of the Mets, Cards and Expos. Third, however, will be a climb of one rung from 26 games off the pace in 1976's fourth place.

Some in the Cubs management hope for a second-place finish, but only if the National League splits into three divisions rather than the present two. Such a split might put New York, Atlanta, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh in the East; the Cubs, Reds, St. Louis and Montreal in the Midwest, with San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego and Houston in the West.

SO, THE Cubs are not thinking in inflated terms, but they do like their pitching outlook and several other aspects of the squad that is enjoying outdoor spring weather in Scottsdale and in the beautiful other parks (eight of them in all) in Arizona and Southern California.

Ray Burris, 15-13 in '76, shapes up as the No. 1 pitcher, with Rick

Reuschel, Steve Renko, and Mike Krukow as other members of the starting five. At this point Bruce Sutter, who came up from Wichita early in '76, would be the king of the bulipen, but Franks might convert him to a starting pitcher if one of the others falter. His fork ball is one of the best and his 6-3 and 2.71 earned run average of last year show he knows

BILL BUCKNER, although injured on a bad hop grounder here, is also counted on as a solid man at first and Ontiveros could make it at third. He has looked good in the spring.

Most of all, Manager Franks is being counted on to give the Cubs what one club official called "a much needed kick in the butt." Franks is noncommittal on what kind of discipline and "butt kicking" he will engage in, but he is determined to try any and all combinations to improve a fourth-place finish and also determined to give Chicago fans better

"It's the pitching that has hurt this club," he said, as he watched Coach Barney Schultz work with 19 pitchers on the outfield grass. "The hitting has been OK and the defense has been good. We need more consistent pitching and I think we'll get it.

"THEN THE long ball hitting of Murcer, Buckner and some of the others will win some close games for us. But, we'll try everything.'

Whatever he does, loyal Chicago fans will crowd Wrigley Field. The Chicago "snowbirds" outnumber all visitors in the Southwest and their mood is reflected in the enthusiasm of Miss Cindy Cross, here from Decatur to watch training.
"I'll love the Cubs 'til the end," she said. "I know they'll do better this year than last." Thus, optimism reigns on and off

Yanks biggest foe in '77 could be Yanks

By DON MERRY The Los Angeles Times

. VERO BEACH - They are rich, proud, eccentric and egotistical men. Their names are household words and their exploits both on the field and at the bank have been told and retold.

They are Catfish Hunter ($3.5 million), Reggie Jackson ($3 million), Thurman Munson ($2.5 million) and Don Gullett ($2 million). They are supposed to rekindle thoughts of past New York Yankee teams, teams of overpowering talent and remarkable

The Yankees, with four millionaires, a solid supporting cast, a fire-brand manager in Billy Martin and an owner who is certainly not averse to getting involved and creating headlines himself — George Steinbrenner - are the overwhelming choice to repeat as champions of the American League.

But in their continuing struggle for attention and admiration, the Yanks are expected to make as much noise off the field as on.

All spring, conversation concerning the Yankees has been rife with reports of internal unhappiness. Jealousy is said to be rampant, bickering constant.

Excessive? Perhaps. Exaggerated? Probably. But there is also an element of truth to stories of Yankee unrest.

In the first inning of a recent game against the Dodgers before a standing-room-only crowd at Holman Goddard girls Stadium — the Yankees also have great allure and fan appeal - Mickey Rivers hit a routine ground ball to shortstop. He did not run all out to first base and Martin was incensed.

MARTIN DISPATCHED coach Yogi Berra to remove Rivers from the game and Rivers was a forlorn figure as he trudged slowly back to the clubhouse in full view of the spec-

Rivers, whose three-year contract calls for $350,000, represents the Yankee middle class. He is not outspoken or controversial. He is swift afoot but sometimes slow to speak and his display of indifference recently stems from the fact that he is unhappy in New York.

Steinbrenner was critical of his play in the World Series against Cincinnati last year and Martin fine dhim on the first day of spring training for being 75 minutes late for a workout. Rivers has been instructed to bunt more and to be more selective at the plate - he walked only 12 times in 612 appearances last year - but he says he has grown weary of the reprimands and does not like the pressure being

"I can't cope with it anymore, I got-ta go someplace else," Rivers said. "I'd rather be in California. I like the Angels. I'm ready to leave because I'm fed up. I'm tired of being told what to do and I'm not the only one making mistakes.'

Rivers says there is a great deal of talk about money in the Yankee clubhouse and that Jackson and Munson sometimes lord their financial status over other players even though

Stydahar dies at age 65

BECKLEY, W.Va. (AP) - Joe Stydahar, a West Virginia coal miner who became a nationally known football star, died Wednesday, stricken while on a business trip. He

Stydahar, known as "Jumbo Joe," was a star West Virginia University football player in the mid-1930s, and went on to star for the Chicago Bears during the 1936-42 National Football League seasons and again in 1945-46. He was an All-Pro tackle during the

The one-time coal miner, who often joked that he practiced for football by swinging a load of dynamite, joined the Los Angeles Rams as an assistant coach in 1946 and became head coach in 1950. That year the Rams lost the NFL championship game to Cleveland 30-28 on Lou Groza's lastminute field goal. But the following year. Stydahar's Rams beat the Browns 24-17 for the title.

it is done in a jesting, light-hearted

"The other two (Hunter and Gullett) are regular guys," Rivers said but because of the monetary friction, "this team can't win."

A TEAMMATE of Rivers, a former Angel, is Jim Wynn, a former dodger. Wynn is happy with his current employers but even he said the clubhouse situation is strained.

"So far the team has taken things in stride but it could explode at any mo-ment," Wynn said. "It's heading in hat direction.

"There is a lot of talk about money ... you know, the 'I make more than you' routine. Sometimes that's the only topic. It's done in a joking manner and it's the big money guys who do the talking. Reggie is the man doing most of it but you have to understand Reggie is Reggie and overlook it. "Reggie demands attention ... he demands a lot of things.' Even if the repeated discussions about salaries are supposed to be humorous, the message seeps "What about guys like Sparky Lyle and Roy White?" Rivers asked.

"They've contributed over the years and they should be getting a couple of dollars, too."

Munson, the Yankee captain and American League MVP a year ago, did not find his situation humorous in January when he criticized Steinbrenner for reneging on a gentleman's agreement that stipulated Munson would be the highest-paid Yankee player behind Hunter. Munson made his remark after learning about Jackson's lucrative deal, which included deferred payments, an interest-free loan and retirement benefits.

Munson and Jackson have reportedburied the hatchet and manager Martin downplays the talk about "The press has everybody squabbling with each other but I haven't seen it," he said. "On the first day of practice it was ridiculous. Munson and Jackson didn't talk to each other for about 20 minutes and everybody said they were feuding. I just suggested they hug each other and put an end to all that crap.'

JACKSON IS hounded everywhere he goes. Sometimes he erupts in anger at the press, sometimes he smiles and speaks politely. It depends on his mood. "There is nobody who needs affection more than Reggie," teammate Ken Holtzman once said. "A lot of what he does is to get attention.'

Even before he signed his huge Yankee contract, Jackson commented on the absurdities of today's salary structure in sports. "I'll soon be an overpaid athlete," he announced, "and I'll probably get a million more than I should. But I didn't make the rules, I'm just taking advantage of them."

Controversy notwithstanding, the Yankees are back in prominence. You can be sure because loyal and dedicated members of the I Hate the Yankees Club, dormant since the dynastic years of the late 50s and early 60s, are beginning to stir and shout. 'I'm sick and tired of hearing Yankees, Yankees, Yankees," said Boston manager Don Zimmer recently. "This is the first time that a team has won the World Series before the end of January."
It was just like old times.

Of course, Zimmer didn't have to add that the Yankees might win the World Series in the middle of October,

NEW YORK - The time has come for Cedric Maxwell. Not springtime, but startime. Something in the way he moves attracts attention like few other players. The man is a sight to

He is, in his own fashion, to basketball what Mark Fidrych was to baseball a year ago. A performer dancing to his own music, slightly out of step with others but beguiling nonetheless. The full force of popularity has yet to embrace him, but it will now that he has the exposure. Maxwell, the 6-8 center they call Cornbread, and his teammates from the University of North Carolina at Charlotte are going to the Final Four, and that means showtime.

It is as improbable a rise to stardom as that of Fidrych, who was rescued from a gas station by a live arm and a hyperactive personality. Maxwell plays the game of basketball well, but what sets him apart is the way he plays it. Like The Bird, The Bread has his style. And it is genuine, unaffected

"I'm a happy person," he said after leading UNCC to a shocking 75-68 upset of top-ranked Michigan last weekend in the NCAA Mideast Regional championship game at Lexington, Ky. "I'm a very emotional person. I try to let my basketball express my feelings."

AND THOSE feelings are contagious. You sense immediately that he enjoys what he is doing, and the pleasure of his moment becomes yours. He can communicate without saying a word. It is an intangible but

Of course, sports creates stars every day for its own profit. But Maxwell is not a creation of a publicity department, of an orhcestrated media campaign, of a television camera. UNCC does not have a large mailing list. Charlotte is not a center of the communications industry. In four years at college, he had made one appearance on regional televison before his team arrived in Lexington. He is a man who makes a lasting first impression, as he did in the National Invitation Tournament in Madison Square Garden a year ago.

"We went into the NIT completely unknown," coach Lee Rose said. "We came from behind to beat San Francisco in overtime and suddenly the people were behind us. Before the second game, I look up and six guys were running around in Cornbread Tshirts. That's the kind of effect he has on people

And now that more people - in per son, through the press and by television - are exposed to him, the effect should be intensified. "He turns people on," said Lew Massey, a teammate for three years, "because he don't look like he can play. But, damn, he's a ballplayer, a competitor.'

It's true he does not look like he can play. His high-school coach back in Kinston, N.C., thought not and cut him from the team in Maxwell's junior year. "He said I was slow and awkward," Maxwell recalled, "and I was." But he worked hard to improve his game ("I practiced everyday 'til it was so cold outside the ball wouldn't bounce"), grew three inches and started as a senior.

STILL, ONLY two colleges offered scholarship aid. East Carolina said half, and UNCC offered a free ride. And he has developed over the course of four seasons into an outstanding center and helped to raise the school's program with him. Maxwell still is awkward in appearance, all arms and legs like Phil Jackson and apparently on his way to the floor with every step. But he is effective. At times, especially on the boards, he is devastating.

"I think," Maxwell said, "people see me as an underdog. I do a few unique things on the court. People probably think some of them are gimmicks, but they really aren't."

One of these eccentricites is the bounce, the shot and the follow-through from the foul line, all done with an imaginary ball before the real thing comes along. "Why does Arnold Palmer take a practice swing?" he says in answer to the obvious question. In other words, why not? Fidrych talks to the ball. Maxwell

What distinguishes Maxwell most on a court reserved for 10 players is his talent for dribbling. He can and does dribble behind the back, between the legs and wherever his feet take him, an extraordinary feat for someone his size. It is not a showboat maneuver.

THE 49ers use that ability as a tactical weapon. With sniping guards Rickey Green, Steve Grote and Tom Staton pressing to steal Saturday's game for Michigan, Maxwell brought the ball upcourt with little difficulty.

"He keeps the ball out from his body," said Staton who fouled out try-ing to reach for Maxwell's plum. "He gives you a nice, little spin move. And those arms are so long you can't get to Those arms, Maxwell said, are size 38 1-2. "It's impossible for me to get shirts and coats in a store," he said "I wear a lot of T-shirts. But I really don't like to bring the ball up. People probably think I do because sometimes I smile when I'm handling it. I smile because it looks so simple for a guy 6-4 to reach in and take it

Maxwell has a lot to smile about in these days of discovery. He likes music ("I played the violin for a while"), he is the best chess player on the team ("I'm not a Bobby Fischer but I can get into it; it helps my concentration") and he likes people, especially people who like to talk "about something besides basket-ball." ball."

And people like him, particularly the people who know him best. "Max-well's always clowning," said Melvin Watkins, the team captain and one of the last two 49ers in the dressing room Saturday. "He's not uptight, and we're not uptight. He's fun to be around."

Fight promoters may exploit fame of 'Rocky'

By JOE GERGEN Newsday

NEW YORK - Ladies and gentlemen, in this corner, the one facing Muhammad Ali's, there appears to be some confusion. Not only are two-boxers seated on the same stool, they also claim a common nationality (Italian) and a similar background (obscurity). Ali's greatest challenge may be to tell them apart.

Two promoters have recenty identified Ali's next opponent. They are not the same person, although they are as alike as they are unlikely. According to Paul Corvino, Ali will defend the heavyweight championship against Lorenzo (Rocky) Zanon in Seoul, South Korea. According to Don King, Ali will defend his title against Alfio Righetti, perhaps in Havana, Cuba. Each fight tentatively has been scheduled for May.

A coincidence? Hardly. Surely, this is a case of life imitating art, and not very well at that. Corvino even had the nerve to project Zanon as the "Italian Stallion." The lack of originality in such an image is offset by the excess of nerve.

'Hey," Rocky Balboa said, "I thought of that myself about eight years ago. Not bad, hun? Well, it don't matter, you know?"

ZANON AND Righetti are being dragged through the papers right now because of Balboa. Rocky is the tough, club fighter from Philadelphia who went the distance with Apollo Creed, the Ali talkalike who claimed the title during Ali's most recent "retirement." That match generated so much excitement and interest that promoters all over the world are looking for unranked Italian heavyweights to hype the gate. In staging the Balboa-Creed bout, Sylvester Stallone may have revolutionized professional boxing.

Still, it seems unfair that Balboa's reputation is being exploited by others. Off his latest fight, Balboa probably would provide stiffer opposition for Ali than the two Italian discoveries. And he already has the maroon-and-gold robe with "Italian Stallion" sewn on the back.

Rocky could use the money Although it was reported he would received $150,000 for fighting Creed, he took home only a small percentage of that. The loanshark who gave him $500 for training expenses demanded $50,000 (even usury is feeling the bite of inflation), his manager pocketed another $50,000 and Shamrock Meats billed him $25,000 for damage inflicted on sides of beef during impromptu punching sessions in the company's meat locker. Balboa still has the same apartment in South Philadephia to maintain and, now that he has married Adrienne, he has another mouth to feed, in addition to the turtles, Cuff and Link "Hey," he said, "it's not easy, you know? Every time I go in the tavern, I gotta buy a round. So many people wanna talk to me I had to get this telephone. And I can't get no fights. They say I'm too good now. They're afraid of me. How would it look if I went back to breakin' thumbs, you

AN ALI-BALBOA fight would be a natural. They are the two most famous boxers in the heavyweight ranks, even if Rocky has yet to defeat a ranked opponent. They both have starred in movies, although Ali's effort, entitled "The Greatest," has yet to be released

Oh, yes, Balboa continues to dream of becoming heavyweight champion. Although Adrienne has refurnished the apartment, the living room still is dominated by the photographic blowup of Rocky Marciano. "They say I got his heart," Balboa said.

There is reason to think Ali might be ducking Rocky. Balboa hurt the resourceful Creed, cracking a rib or two, and Ali is not looking to absorb a beating, not with such a pretty face and not with a fortune already amassed. And then there is the age-old problem faced by Balboa and all southpaws. No one wants to fight a

"It's the timing, you know?" Balboa said. "You make them look bad and no one wants to look bad. You know how we got the name southpaw? There was this lefthander fighting in Philadelphia a long time ago and the way he was standing his left hand was facing Jersey. You know, South Jersey, South Camden. So, south paw.

"Lots of people ask me why I keep fighting. What else can I do? It's all I know. And if I could just go the distance with the champion, then everybody would respect me. I'd be somebody, you know?'

BUT IT doesn't look like Rocky will get that chance. Instead, it's likely to be Lorenzo Zanon or Alfio Righetti, obviously imposters. Zanon reportedly will be trained by Rocky Graziano, the former middleweight champion. Graziano also said he would serve as Zanon's interpreter, which would create a third-person approach to communications. You know?

Of course, Jean-Pierre Coopman, the self-styled Lion of Flanders, was offered a title match against Ali a year ago despite his inability to speak English and his inability to fight. So whichever man Ali decides to box, it will not be without precedent. Balboa expects nothing.

Tired Kenon carries Spurs to 118-112 win

By The Associated Press

Larry Kenon did not do much in support of the theory that an athlete plays better when he is rested.

It was the fourth quarter of the San Antonio Spurs' game against the Houston Rockets Thursday night, and Kenon was tired. "I was just trying to stay active and get some second effort," he said. That second effort turned into 14 final-period points and carried the Spurs to a 118-112 victory over the Rockets. San Antonio led 95-94 with 6:11 remaining when Kenon struck for six consecutive points, putting the Spurs ahead 101-94 with 4:40 left.

You could see both teams were tired-I knew I was," said Kenon, "But I just got my good rhythm."
The rhythm helped Kenon finish with 23 points and 17 rebounds, as the Spurs became the first team to outrebound the Rockets in the last 17 games. San Antonio, with Billy Paultz and Mark Olberding combining for 17 more rebounds, ended up with a 55-48 edge.

The Spurs' Billy Paultz contributed

28 points and George Gervin added 25 while Calvin Murphy and Dwight Jones led Houston with 28 and 25 points, respectively.

In the other National Basketball Association games Thursday night, the New Orleans Jazz topped the Cleveland Cavaliers 92-87 and the Buffalo Braves trimmed the Phoenix

Jazz 92, Cavaliers 87 Pete Maravich scored 36 points and sparked the fourth quarter surge that carried New Orleans past Cleveland. "Pete always plays well in a close game," said Jazz Coach Elgin Baylor.

That's when he's at his best.' The Cavaliers, who got 26 points from Austin Carr, never were at their best, according to Coach Bill Fitch. 'We had a breakdown from the opening jump ball on," said Fitch.

Braves 107, Suns 102 Randy Smith scored 29 points, pacing Buffalo to its victory over Phoenix as the Braves snapped a four-game losing streak. Paul Westphal led the Suns with 24 points.

Walls crumbling; inter-league play close to reality

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - The walls of the National League's conservatism may be starting to crumble and in-dications are that inter-league major league baseball is close to a reality.

While neither the NL nor the American League decided firmly upon inter-league play, their meetings here Thursday leaned solidly towards "a 13-13 concept" that could result in some games between the leagues next season

"The National League is much more inclined to go with 13-13 and inter-league play which is a tremendous step for baseball," said John Fetzer, owner of the Detroit Tigers and one of three AL members on the major leagues' six-man executive council.

"The National League had resisted it for so long. This is the first crack in the Kremlin wall, so to speak," Fetzer said. "I think that's the big story out of all of this." he added

A study committee, to include representatives from both leagues, was set up to probe the 13-13 concept. The idea calls for each league to have 13 teams instead of the current 14 in the AL and 12 in the NL

Presumably an AL franchise would move to Washingron, D.C. as a member of the NL. The odd number of teams would necessitate inter-league play, otherwise a team in each league would be without an opponent.

While the idea drew favorable reaction, the three-division concept was quashed by the American League and tabled by the National, whose president Charles Feeney said passage "is possible, but highly improbable" at the NL meeting in

Other items from the league and joint sessions include: -No indication of reported efforts by club owners to buy the Oakland franchise from Charles Finley and move it to Washington.

—A presentation by Sterling Tucker, chairman of the Washington City Council, aimed at persuading owners to put a team in the nation's capital.

 The lack of a proposal limiting the power of Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.
 No discussions concerning the sending of a team to Cuba as part of a good-will tour. Asked what he felt was ac-complished, Kuhn said, "The three divisional concept was put to one side.

It's negative, but still resolved.
"I said to both leagues I thought if we were going to do something like that we'd do it together," he said.
On 13-13 Kuhn said: "Either league today could have said they were not interested. That did not happen. Fetzer said he wouldn't want the AL to have three-division play if the NL

didn't have it. "The National League was not hep on the idea. There's a lot of op-position. There's so many darn problems created by it. I think, by and large, if we could have 13-13 we'd be pleased," he said. Lee MarPhail, AL President said,

"Eight or m e clubs were not in favor of three-divis onal play," in a vote of the 13 teams. Finley boycotted the meeting and didn't send an Oakland representative. Whatever is determined regarding possible inter-league play, it had to be discussed right away because "We've agreed to give the players' association a schedule by June 15," MacPhail said.

"We talked concepts primarily.
There were no formal plans."
Kuhn said "It's feasible that a schedule based on 13-13 can be ready by June 15." Feeney, meanwhile, said: "If the National League had its preference it would not have inter-league play. But there's much more open-mindedness than in the past. The league thinks 13-13 is a good idea but feels there's not enough information on who would do

The whole idea centers on a team moving to Washington. MacPhail said if Finley doesn't want to sell the A's franchise no one could force him to

Renee loses in quarters

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Today was upposed to be the big day when Billie Jean King, sixtime Wimbledon champion, faced Dr. Renee Richards, the 42-year-old transsexual who started playing tennis as a woman

The two could have met in today's semifinals of the McFarlin Cup women's tennis tournament. A national network had planned to tape the match for airing over the

But Marcie Louie, 23, of San Francisco spoiled things Thursday by knocking off Dr. Richards 5-7, 7-6, 6-2 in a quarterfinal match.

Mrs. King, the top seed defeated seventh-seeded Kate Latham 6-4, 6-2.

So it was the shy Miss Louie who faced King today instead of the first match between the controversial Dr. Richards and a well-known woman "Billie used to beat me a lot a few years ago when I was just a kid," Louie said. "In 1974, the last time we played, she just killed me."

Joining King and Miss Louie in the semifinals were San Antonian Mary

Dick Allen brings new life to A's dead, decimated camp

By ROSS NEWHAN The Los Angeles Times

MESA, Ariz. - He gets up at approximately 6:30 every morning and walks the three miles from his hotel to the Oakland A's training base, a habit that allows him to "clean out" his

Even before the rest of the A's arrive, Dick Allen has done his hitting and running. He then, perhaps, will coach or umpire in a B game, laughing, clapping his hands, trying to bring life to a "dead and decimated

In the spring of his 35th year, seemingly unwanted by everyone except the noted iconoclast, Charles Finley, Allen is preparing at his own tempo for what he said will be his last

In an interview Allen, whose soft voice was at times inaudible, said he has spent too much time away from his family and he is anxious to settle down and watch the changing of the seasons at his farm near Allentown,

ALLEN IS an athlete who has marched to his own music, seldom been without controversy. The incidents have been many.

Allen talked in detail about some and in generalities about others. He made several points that seemed open to argument. Yet to dismiss his views and interpretations would be to dismiss a man who, over the course of his bizarre odyssey, has been one of the game's offensive giants.
A seven-time All-Star, Allen ha averaged .293 for 14 major league seasons, slugged 346 homers and driven in 1,088 runs. Many will say he could have done much more, that he hurt his teams as much as he helped. Others have had their say. Here are some of the views of Allen, a nomad, an individual in what is thought of as a team game: -He would not have bounced around as he has if he had been white, a view he offered despite being hesitant to make an issue of race. -His illusions of "one for all and all for one" were shattered by racial imbalances encountered early in his career, and this accounts for his tendency to be a loner, a man who observes his own timetables. -At no time was it a club's decision to sell or trade him. His mother did not raise him to be sold or traded "like market meat." It has always been his own decision to move on, and he has kept moving in an effort to prevent the club from making that deci-

THE A's were not a last resort. He had three or four other opportunities. He signed with Finley because Finley had been interested at other times in his career and, "He is a winner who put his club together with his own hands, a club that won more pennants in 10 years than most owners will win in a lifetime. Now he needs help and I'm going to try and give it to him. though I don't expect to knock down fences like I did when I was younger. Maybe the most important thing I can do is help with the kids."

-He could not have weathered the years save for his belief in Christ, a source of strength he had not discussed publicly until his arrival here. "It's what I remember most from my childhood. I've tried to lead a Christian life. I've done some things that weren't Christian-like but I've tried. How could I have gone through all of this alone, without Him? The namecalling. Having things thrown at me. The lies in the papers. I couldn't have done it by myself.

"Last year in Philadelphia the owner got on TV and said 75 per cent of Allen's problems 'he brings on himself.' What problems? I don't have any problems and I won't have as long as I believe in the Lord. Greater is He what's in me..."
Allen said "God's will" has controlled much of his destiny. The rest has been controlled by Allen. "I didn't want ever to be traded,"

he said. "Nobody owns me, you or anyone else. What they buy is my services and what we should be allowed to do is send a bill at the end of the season. What I'm saying is that they (the club) don't own my mind, my body, my soul. 'Do this, do that.' What difference does all that make if you're providing the services they've paid left a city I've heard it said that they couldn't live with Allen anymore, that they had to get rid of me. That's not true. It was my decision to leave. I let them know I wanted out in Philadelphia, St. Louis and Los Angeles. I could feel it coming down on me. It was going to be Allen's fault again that they didn't win. 'Allen doesn't do this and he doesn't do that.' Loyalty. It's great when you're winning. Lose and there has to be a scapegoat. I've had it put on me too

"People now say, 'Why can't he do what everyone else does?' Hell, don't tell me about two sets of rules. They were established for me, not by me. I hate to bring it up but suppose my skin was seven shades lighter. Do you think I'd have bounced around the way I have? Do you think there would have been all this talk about two sets of rules? Listen, I'm happy being what I am. I wouldn't want to be seven shades lighter. I'm just telling you where all this started, that yes, fine, you could be part of the team

Spring training: a beginning for some, an end for others

By THOMAS BOSWELL The Washington Post

TAMPA - For many, spring training holds out the promise of a pure, fleeting sweetness.

"All winter something inside you just keeps beating for the game," Cincinnait's Dan Driessen said. "You get down here to Florida and it's like bein' in love again."

For those like Driessen - established players in midcareer - these are baseball's weeks of almost delicious laziness. There is sweat, but not too much. The muscles may ache, but the mind is at peace. The sinews grow tighter; the nerves go slack.
In the stands of Al Lopez Field here

the pensioners bask in the long, slow days of their second childhood. Outside the little park, children wait to chase foul balls. Occassionally, grownups in the top row of the stands feel prankish and stand up in unison to watch the flight of an imaginary foul pop. The children run to the blessed spot. Nothing comes down. It is an old trick. Everybody

Everybody laughs here - except the veterans and the rookies. "The oldtimers and the kids, we're the ones who are expendable," said Red pitcher Woody Fryman, soon to be 37. "It's fun for everyone else."

FOR THOSE coming up and those holding on, this is a time to worry, a time to look inside to see what is there, or how much of it is left.

"You tell yourself you've got three or four years left, good years," said Fryman, 105-119 in 11 seasons, "but you know you're only trying to fool yourself. Who knows? When you're my age, any year can be the last

The rookie's fear is that he will never even have a chance for his first

'I spent six years in the minors, and I wasn't a world beater," said Jole Youngblood, the Red's bump-tious utility man. "I had doubts about making the majors. "For a person in my catetory, spring training is the one time to show what you can do. Last spring Youngblood hit .476 in the Grapefruit League and hustled his way on board as the 25th man on the best ship in baseball. He batted just 57 times in 1976 and has a career total of one run batted in. But he caddied defensively at six different positions. And he smiled. Youngblood learned to smile a lot. This year is different and more difficult. Youngblood has watched the major league merry-go-round. Now he would like to ride. "But," he says, "there is no posi-tion, no future for me here now. As soon as everybody signed I knew

Under the skin, the rookie and the veteran — the Youngblood and the Fryman - are the closest of blood brothers. They face that common fear - no position, no future.

"I've never seen a confident rookie," Driessen says with a chuckle. "The scardest rookie I ever saw was this kid five years ago who faced Bob Gibson in his first at bat. 'He wanted to get out of there so fast that he swung at the first pitch, about two inches off the ground, and dribbled to shortstop. He was so excited and happy that he beat it out. The rookie was me.

CONFIDENCE GROWS with the years, then it starts to seep away. It is the most precious commodity here. And there is none available in the trainer's pill closet. Pete Rose has gray hairs now. He will be 36 next month "I don't look at my body to see if it's getting old. I keep looking at the basehit column to see which guy in the Hall of Fame I'm passin'," Mr. 2,762 Hits said with a grin.

"None of us can do a damn thing about when we were born Everybody's always putting the screws to you mentally about getting old. If you think it, you become it. The key for me is enthusiasm. I never had speed or power. I can't lose them. But I have to continue to care about play-

"Thank God I'm with a winner. I might be burned out now if my teams had lost 100 games a year.

"I've started 490 games, and I'm not cutting back. Other guys have, and it might be a mistake," said Rose, meaning those of his generation like Lou Brock and Carl Yastrzemski.

The conventional nightmare of spring training, the thing that gives these otherwise pristine days their poignance, is the fear of a career suddenly going sour. The outright release, the ticket to Indianapolis, the sudden injury are all daily occurences

Then Reds farmhands were shipped out Tuesday; 10 more still have to go.

THOUGH YOUNGBLOOD is only 25, he has already learned the bigleague brand of fatalism. "I'm getting a chance to start today," said Youngblood before Wednesday's game against the Los Angeles

'It's only the second time this spring. You try not to press too hard, but you do want to make an impression. It's a long career, and you never know who you might have a chance to play for. The story changes so many times.

Austin no child on tennis court

Copley News Service
LOS ANGELES — There's not much question that Tracy Austin, 14, from nearby Rolling Hills is a child — not a "grown-up" — and looks very much like an ordinary kid down the block, with pigtails, teeth braces and (If you ask her for an interview, she cautiously answers, "I have to ask my mom. Can you call me later after I talk to her?")

But she's very much an adult on the tennis court.

Austin, considered the best genuine prospect in women's tennis in the United States since Chris Evert, is always confident and rarely shaken

"Yes, I aim the ball pretty well," she said, talking about her serve. "Everybody aims at a certain place. but it just takes practice to get it

Admittedly, her serve is weak, even compared with girls in her own age group. It's not powerful, but it is well placed. Typically during a match, she'll start off with a fast hard serve, but then fault, and on the second attempt, she gently tosses it, serves it lightly, and makes sure it gets into

"I practice three hours a day during the school year and four hours a day in the summer." She works out with her brother, Jeff. No. she can't beat her brothers (also Doug and John). They're just too good.'

It's not much of a surprise to anyone that Tracy gravitated toward tennis while other young ladies were playing with dolls, because her family (including father George, mother Jeanne and sister Pam, as well as her brothers) has won some 400 tournaments, including nine national championships.

Austin is not very nervous before most matches, she says, and always sleeps well. "But everyone does expect to win all the time.

Chaps take medal play

Coach Richard Harvey will have his Chap players in Amarillo next Thursday and Friday for a two-day tourney that also counts as two Western Junior College Athletic Conference matches. On March 31, play will commence at Amarillo Country Club and will count as the Amarillo conference stop. The next day, April 1, the teams will take on the Tascosa Country Club course, and that will count as the Midland College conference tourney. The tournament slated for Midland, October 28, was snowed out. Simultaneously, the teams will be competing in the 19th annual Great Plains Invitational Tournament.

Playing for Midland will be Wally Brodzik, Jim Higgins, Tim O'Conner, Doug Adams, and Tommy Harper.

Brewers face big problem

SUN CIT, Ariz. (AP) — If Milwaukee Brewers' rookie Dan Thomas ever attains baseball stardom to the point where Hollywood choses to film his life story, an appropriate title might be "Never on

Nor Friday night, either. Thomas, considered a top prospect, refuses to play baseball between sundown Fridays and sundown Saturdays because his religion considers that period the Sabbath, a holy day.

Because 40 of the Brewers' 162 games this season are scheduled on Friday nights and Saturday afternoons, General Manager Jim Baumer asked an official of Thomas' sect, the Worldwide Church of God, to dispense the 25-year-old outfielder on grounds baseball is a seasonal oc-

"Well, he's just going to have to change his profession," Baumer said the church official had told him.

Thomas and Baumer were interviewed at the Brewers' spring training quarters here by Mike Gonring of the Milwaukee Journal.

The Brewers' dilemma is that they consider Thomas much more than an ordinary prospect. The Brewers' No. 1 choice in the June, 1972, free agent draft, his progress was slow until he won the Eastern League triple crown last year, hitting .325 with 29 home runs and 83 runs batted in. He hit .276 in 105 times at bat in a September stint with Milwaukee.

He currently is batting .450 with 10 RBI in exhibition competition and is seen as certain to stay with the parent club-if it is willing to give him Friday nights and Saturdays off.

"What do you do when a guy is wearing out the ball like he is?" Baumer asked. "I don't know.

NCAA tournament: and then there were four The Washington Post Following is an analysis of the four teams competing for the NCAA basketball championship, starting Satur-

MARQUETTE (22-7) Before this crazy basketball season began, either

Michigan or Marquette was favored in most quarters to win the national title. Now everyone seems to be wondering how on earth the Warriors got this far.

day in Atlanta:

Answer: By playing the last three weeks of the season like Al McGuire wanted from the start. That means a slow-paced, patient offense, with Butch Lee and Bo Ellis taking most of the shots, and an aggressive, relentless defense, where all the Warriors participate.

Much has been made about this being McGuire's final ournament and the effect it will have on his team. But the Warriors characteristically have been an emotional bunch, and his last hurrah shouldn't have that much effect. More important, probably, will be the play of reserve Bernard Toone.

Starters' scoring, rebounding averages: guards Butch Lee, senior, 6-1, 180 (19.9, 3.8), and Jim Boylan, junior, 6-2, 175 (6.8, 2.7); center Jerome Whitehead, junior, 6-10, 215 (10.2, 7.8); forwards Bo Eilis, senior, 6-9, 195 (16, 8.4) and Bill Neary, senior, 6-5, 185 (1.8, 2.9).

Top reserves: Gary Rosenberger, junior, 6-0, 155 (7.5, 1.4); Bernard Toone, sophomore, 6-9, 210 (4.3, 2.3); Jim Dudley, sophomore, 6-6, 190 (1.5, 1.7). Offense: pattern cutting game (71 points a game, 47 per cent shooting). Defense: man-to-man, some zone (59 points a game, opponents shoot 43 per cent).

Key points to watch: McGuire lets Lee go one-on-one more than any of his previous players, but sometimes Lee's individual efforts distracts from team play. Marquette does not like to run, and if the Warriors fall behind against UNCC, they might have problems catching up.

CHARLOTTE (28-3)

Ask any respected college coach about zone defenses. and he'll tell you that you can't win a national championship using one. John Wooden hated zones so much he refused to teach them, a principle followed by Indiana's

Bobby Knight today.

Yet UNCC's Bob Rose thinks he can take a national championship with his well-conceived zone. It helps that four of his starters have had three seasons to learn the zone's intricacies.

UNCC also belies another accepted basketball adage: relatively unknown schools must be a bunch of run-andgun renegades. The 49ers are an intelligent, well-coached team that has spent the last two seasons proving in yearend tournaments that the big-name schools aren't the only ones with talent.

Starters' scoring, rebounding: guards Chad Kinch, freshman, 6-4; 186 (15.2, 3.4), and Melvin Watkins, senior, 6-4, 205 (10.8, 3.8); center Cedric Maxwell, senior. 6-8, 202 (22.1, 12.0); forwards Kevin King, sophomore, 5-7, 200 (11.6, 5-1); and Lew Massey, junior, 6-4, 202 (19.8, Top Reserves: Jeff Gruber, junior, 6-0, 155 (5.8, 0.9), Phill Scott, freshman, 6-6, 170 (3.2, 2.8), Mike Hester, freshman 6-7, 190 (3.2, 2.1). Offense: zone (72 points a game, opponents shoot 44 per nents shoot from the outside. Marquette prefers to work the ball inside to Bo Ellis. If the 49ers can make Marquette fire up from the perimeter, and then gets its running game going, they will have a fine chance of advancing to the final.

Key points to watch: UNCC's zone is designed to make

NORTH CAROLINA (27-4)

Carolina should have lost to Virginia in the ACC final and didn't; likewise the Tar Heels could have easily stumbled in either game of the East Regional at College Park. Somehow, a combination of coaching savvy, good shooting and teamwork has kept them from being eliminated.

They'll need every one of those elements to contend with the run-and-gun Las Vegas outfit. But the Tar Heels are running on momentum now, gained through the confidence of knowing they can win without Tom LaGarde.

Starters' scoring, rebounding averages: guards Phil Ford, junior, 6-2, 171 (19.3, 1.8), and John Kuester, senior, 6-3, 174 (9.9, 2.2); center Rich Yonakor, freshman, 6-9, 205 (3.3, 2.2); forwards Walter Davis, senior, 6-6, 190 (15.3, 5.7), and Mike O'Koren, freshman, 6-7, 198 (13.3, Top reserves: Tom Zaliagiris, junior, 6-5, 190 (3.9, 1.7); Jeff Wolf, freshman, 6-10, 205 (1.8, 1.4); Dudley Bradley, sophomore, 6-5, 190 (1.1, 1.2), Bruce Buckley, senior, 6-9, 210 (2.9, 2.4), Steve Krafcisin, freshman, 6-9, 219 (3.0,

Offense: passing game, controlled fast break (84 points a game, shoots 53 per cent shooting).
Defense: multiple with man-to-man emphasis (72) points a game, opponents shoot 47 per cent). Key points to watch: Carolina must get off to a fast start, much as it did against Kentucky, so Smith can go to his four-corner offense early in the second half. If he can't use the four-corner, it will be hard for the Tar Heels to keep up physically with the eight-deep Vegas team...

NEVADA LAS VEGAS (28-2)
San Francisco coach Bob Gaillard says Las Vegas is the only good basketball team in the country "that can make up or lose a 25-point lead in a half. They are that in-

But that is the penalty you pay for shooting quickly and hardly worrying about high-percentage shots. However, critics overlook the fact that Jerry Tarkanian has his team in magnificent condition, so it is able to keep coming at opponents for 40 minutes. Against most teams, such pressure usually causes breakdowns.

Starters: Guards Robert Smith, senior, 5-11, 185 (13.0, 2.6), and Glen Gondrezick, junior, 6-9, 204 (7.7, 9.3); forwards Eddie Owens, senior, 6-7, 210 (21.7, 5.6), and Sam Smith, senior, 6-4, 201 (14.8, 3.0).

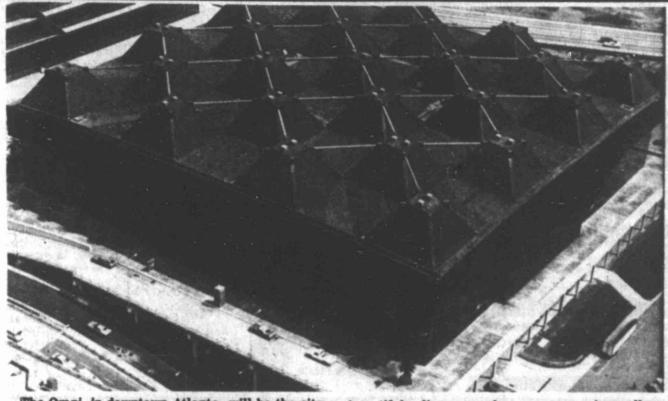

Top reserves: Lewis Brown, senior, 6-11, 235 (10.7, 8.5), Reggie Theus, sophomore, 6-7, 200 (14.4, 4.5), Tony Smith, sophomore, 6-1, 166 (9.1, 1.4).

Offense: run-and-gun (107.9 points a game, 49 per cent Defense: man-to-man, full-court press (87 points a game, opponents shoot 47 per cent).

Key points to watch: Las Vegas can score in incredible spurts one half, then turn cold the next. The Rebels prefer to run at an ultrafast tempo; if made to set up their offense, they often lapse into one-on-one play that usually results in bad shots. Key most times to getting their offense rolling is how well they play defense.

The Omni, in downtown Atlanta, will be the site of the NCAA semifinals and finals this weekend, as North Carolina, Marquette, Nevada-Las Vegas and UNCC battle to determine a champion. This beautiful edice was where every major college basketball team in the country had hoped to be

Boston decimated by injuries

By The Associated Press

Call Boston the black and blue Red

The only thing for which the baseball team can be thankful is that Thursday, March 24 is behind them. The fact that they were shelled 8-1 by the Pittsburgh Pirates was the least of their problems.

They also happened to lose two veteran pitchers and an All-Star centerfielder through the most eccentric of mishaps.

Centerfielder Fred Lynn caught his spikes on second base while trying to get back to the bag after a fly ball to shallow left field. That capped a day in which pitcher Rick Wise bruised his left foot by hitting it with a foul tip in batting practice and pitcher Ferguson Jenkins suffered a pulled hamstring while trying to dock his boat after a morning fishing expedition. "Awful," said Boston Manager Don ROTTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) - Ilie Nastase of Romania, known for his antics on the court, defeated Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia 6-4, 6-4 in the third round of the $100,000 World Championship Tennis tournament, but not without causing excitement again.

Nastase started by walking onto the court with a 12-foot racquet with which he started playing. After the frolicking, he settled down to the type of power tennis for which he is known. He smashed and slammed his way past Kodes to the delight of the 7,000 fans. Kodes had no answer to the routine displayed by the feisty Romanian.

Nastase said afterward, "I had some troubles with the ball but I won and that is important. I have played many times in this Rotterdam arena and I find it a very difficult one to perform in, and I don't know the Jenkins, coming back from September surgery on a torn Achilles tendon, suffered his injury when his boat began to drift away from the dock at Winter Haven, Fla. while the pitcher tried to remove his fishing gear.

Lynn is expected to miss the next seven to 10 days while it was not immediately determined how much time Wise and Jenkins would miss.

Meanwhile, the Cincinnati Reds bruised Los Angeles pitching for 15 hits, including four home runs, in downing the Dodgers 11-9. Mike Lum hit two of the homers, including the shot that broke a 9-9 tie. Ray Knight and Joel Youngblood also connected for Cincinnati.

Milwaukee's Cecil Cooper drove in five runs, including three with a home run off newly-acquired A's pitcher Doc Medich, pacing the Brewers' 10-8 triumph over Oakland. Medich, in his first appearance since being acquired from Pittsburgh last week, gave up six runs in four innings.

Jim Mason had three hits, scored twice and drove in the winning run during a 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox. Toronto's expansion mates in the American League, the Seattle Mariners, evened their record at 7-7 by outscoring the Cleveland Indians 16-13 with help from two-run homers by Ruppert Jones and Dan Meyer.

Southern Cal all but sews up 4th straight NCAA swim title swam that fast earlier, I said to CLEVELAND (APz - The University of Southern California was just as awesome as advertised, but Tim Shaw of Long Beach State and Scott Spann of Auburn stole the spotlight Thursday as the 54th NCAA Division I Swimming and Diving Championships began at Cleveland State University.

Coach Peter Daland's Southern Cal swimmers virtually clinched their fourth consecutive NCAA title with just five of the meet's 18 events completed, opening a 117-59 lead over second-place Alabama.

However, Shaw, a sophomore and the defending champion in the 500yard freestyle, outstroked Southern Cal star John Naber over the last 25 yards in setting American and NCAA records of 4 minutes, 17.39 seconds. Naber was timed in 4:19.07, just .02 slower than the previous record, also held by Shaw. Spann, a soft-spoken freshman from Greenville, S.C., also set American and NCAA records, churning to a 1:48.26 clocking in the 200-yard individual medley. That eclipsed the mark of 1:48.63 set in qualifying by Bruce Furniss of Southern Cal.

Spann, his shaven head gleaming in the bright lights, fought off an early challenge from Furniss in the final, winning easily. "I thought Bruce would probably win after the time he posted this afternoon," Spann said. "After he

Police have received almost 4,000 tips since the discovery of the body of11-year-old Timothy King, the seventh victim in a string of unsolved chld slayings Oakland County north of

A special task force representing 50 police depart-ments is searching for Timothy's kidnaper-killer. The boy was last seen, six days before his body was found Wednesday, talking with a man standing next to a blue Gremlin automobile.

The man was described as white, between 25 and 35 years old, with brown hair, mutton chop sideburns, a fair complexion and a husky build.

"We're going forward in this investigation," said State Police Det. Sgt. Joseph Krease. "We've got people who are now looking at their brothers, sisters, relatives and friends. They're looking at blue Gremlins all over the place and giving us tons of license plate

One driver of a blue Gremlin said he had been stopped 23 times for puestioning. The man was sympathetic to police efforts, but said he wanted a pass showing that authorities had already

An autopsy showed Timothy had been smothered a few hours before his body was found. He had been sexually abused, a d marks showed that his hands and feet had been bound.

He apparently had been washed, dressed and fed his favorite meal — a chicken dinner - shortly before he was slain, police said.

Seven children have been azducted and murdered in Oakland County in the past 14 months, but police believe only four were victims of the same kidnaper-killer or killers.

5 Moon followers begin deprogamming after suit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Five oung followers of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon today begin "deprogramming" sessions their parents hope will change their lives.

"This is very scary," said John Hovard, 23, of Danville, Calif., after a court decision Thursday returned him and four others to the custody of their parents for 30 days. "This is like the mental institutions where they put dissidents in Russia."

Chaney was arrested early Saturday and charged with kidnaping for extortion the two women, Kendal Ashmore, 35, and Kathy Anne Brown, 22. The women's bodies were found Tuesday in a the small grave in Sequoyah County.

S. Lee Vavuris followed 12 days of testimony on Moon's Unification Church and methods employed by those seeking to draw young people away from the religious group. The parents who sought conservatorship of their children had argued that the church turned their children from creative young adults into unquestioning puppets.

Attorneys for the church members said the decision violated religious fredom and said they would appeal.

A few minutes after the decision. the parents led Hovard and Janice Kaplan, Toledo, Ohio; Jacqueline Katz, bwolcott, N.Y.; Barbara Underwood, Portland, Ore.; and Leslie Brown, Westfield, N.J., out of the courtroom.

Wayne Howard, an attorney for the parents, told reporters that "reality therapy" - procedures commonly called deprogramming - "will begin immediately."

Howard is affiliated with the Freedom of Thought Foundation of Tucson, Ariz., a rehab litation center for youths who had been affiliated with the Unification Church and other cult-type religions.

"This is a case about the very essence of life - mother, father and children," said Judge Vavuris in his decision. "There is nothing closer in our society than the family. A child is a child, even though the parent might be 90 and the child 60."

Psychiatrists testifying for the parents had argued in court that the youths were brainwashed; psychiatrists hired by the church said they weren't.

DENVER (AP) — Joseph Lima, 29, has not been able to speak for 16 days. His eyes are fixed in a stare; he can't control his eyelids. He is unable to eat or walk. He breathes through a surgical hole in his throat.

Lima was hospitalized March 7 with the paralyzing Guillaine-Barre syndrome. He received a swine flu vaccination Nov. 12, a month before evidence of its connection to Guillain-Barre halted the $135 million national vaccination program.

Lima's case was not reported to either the Colorado Health Department or the national Center for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta.

'The vigor of the surveillance effort dropped off after the end of January,' said the state Health Department's chief epidemiologist, Dr. Tom Vernon. At the CDC, spokesman Bob Alden said the CDC is no longer "aggressively seeking a continuing repor-

New consent forms for the partially revived swine flu program warn that there is a chance of contracting GuillainBarre within eight weeks of vaccination. Lima was affected 15 weeks later.

Tournament experts don't bid by book

Aiming at a final contract of three notrump, South bid hearts to discourage a heart opening lead. (I'm just reporting, not recommending.)

West became suspicious when South went to notrump after North had raised hearts. South got exactly what he deserved when West saw through the deceptive bid and led a heart anyway.

Declarer played dummy's ten of hearts, and East won with the king and returned the jack of spades. South put up the king of spades, and West (the late Sam Rossant) dropped the queen of spades without apparent of spades, South got to dummy with a club and returned a spade to finesse with the eight. This lost to the ten, and back came another low heart.

After a long, agonized huddle, South put up summy's queen of hearts. The defenders took three more hearts, defeating an unbeatable contract.
(Yes, South could have played it safer, but he didn't.)

There may be a moral in this little tale, but tournament experts will probably disregard it.

Inventor's latest? wiperless windshield

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) - In a nation that loves gadgets and gimmicks and pays royally for them even if they don't work - it seems someone would have beaten Joe Newman to his latest

It's a rain-proof windshield without

That's right. Hook the device atop your car or truck and escape the blurring splatter of a thunderstorm or the irritating squish-squish-squish of wipers batting away at a summer

At least Joe Newman, who once invented a knife with wings and plastic-coated barbells, says it works

"It is amazingly simple," said Newman, an athletic 40-year-old who has turned fiddling with gadgets into a livelihood. He unveiled his latest creation this week

"Inventing is the easiest part. I think everybody comes up with a great idea in their life. But sticking with it to see that it's produced is the hardest part," he said. In brief "The Newman Windshield Rain Preventer" is an adjustable panel that shoots out above the windshield, to a maximum three feet. and keeps rain away something like an odd rectangular umbrella.

Newman said his inspiration came one day 12 years ago when a young fellow, driving in a summer rain-storm, couldn't see where he was going and crashed into Newman's

"I told the police it was a shame he got a ticket. It wasn't his fault. It was the inefficiency of his windshield wipers," he said.

That set him to thinking. What could do a better job than windshield wipers? Over the next several years he junked a few wrong-headed ideas but would be inspired again "every time I was out driving and it started

He finally hit on the right gadget, he said, and hooked the device above his windshield by attaching poles to the luggage rack atop his car. He adjusted it by pulling ropes.

Pulling ropes, of course, would be too troublesome for drivers also steering the car, so he devised a small hydraulic pump that adjusts the panel with the twist of a wrist. Where the panel is set depends on how hard the rain is falling and how fast the car is

The invention is in the hands of his patent attorneys in Washington, he said, and he has been contacted by a it works real well." He said he is planning overtures to carmakers, conceding that corporation designers one day will come up with a more sophisticated and esthetically pleasing model.

In the meantime he's pleased. "The automobile has been improved on time and again for nearly a century," he said, "but the windshield wiper went all that time with hardly a change for the better."

Newman is a graduate of the University of Alabama but gave up a white collar job for fulltime inventing 17 years ago. He said inventing, design and theory come naturally to him and that he spends most of his time scribbling ideas on paper atop a table at home.

He has only a few more tools around the house than your ordinary homeowner, he said, but he has the full support of his wife, a big plus for a man who pays the bills, in part, by

of the refinery on grounds that it would contribute to the already polluted air of Hampton Roads, Va.

The debate over the Portsmouth refinery is a prime example of a ma-jor conflict between the demanding requirements of the Clean Air Act of 1970 and the professed federal goal of energy self-sufficiency.

For nearly a decade, since the awakening environmental consciousness of the late 1960s, the battle for cleaner air and water has been fought on two basic questions: -How clean should the government require the discharges of specific industries to be?

—How clean should the government require the environment itself to be? Answering the first question has been largely a technological and political battle. By the EPA's own estimates, the Portsmouth refinery would contribute fewer pollution-causing hydrocarbons to the air than the trees in the Dismal Swamp 12 production manager in New Orleans miles away. and Smith was Skelly's exploration But answering the second question on how clean the environment should and production district manager at be is proving to be a social and economic battle as well, for ultimately it becomes the battle over industrial growth itself. The refinery proposal by the Hamp-ton Roads Energy Co. would create a 175,000 barrel-a-day refinery on a 628acre site in Portsmouth, a dingy, in dustrial city of 106,000 people on the south shore of Hampton Roads.

City officials estimate the project will increase tax revenues by 40 to 50 per cent, provide 3,000 temporary construction jobs and 500 permanent

But not everyone is thrilled with the prospect of the refinery. Enviornmental groups have filed suit to block the project, raising the prospect of oil spills devastating the seed oyster beds in the lower James River. Biologists at the marine institute, confident that the refinery itself won't harm marine life, are troubled by the possibility that refinery-bound barges and tankers might spill their cargo and blacken the surrounding waters.

But refinery supports believe their only real problem lies in Washington. All but one of the environmental permits necessary for the refinery have been granted, including one from the Virginia State Air Pollution Control Board. It was issued on the basis of the refinery's projected compliance with the state's air quality through perforations at 5,231-5,239 standards - standards previously approved by EPA. But late April, Dr. Peter Finkels-tein of the EPA's Philadelphia regional office voiced a surprise, 11thhour objection to the refinery.

His forum was a hearing on the refinery's request for a riverdredging permit — a request routinely circulated by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to other federal environmental agencies for comment.

In a terse, 500-word statement, Finkelstein said the air quality issue was the one aspect of the refinery "of greatest concern to EPA." Noting that the air in Hampton Roads is already overloaded with smogbreeding photochemical oxidants. Finkelstein said it "is not reasonable to allow new sources into an area where standards are being violated by 200 to 300 per cent ... The Environmental Protection Agency finds the proposed refinery to be environmentally unacceptable.' The Finkelstein statement stunned the refinery supporters because of its implications. It said, essentially, that the best pollution control techniques are no longer necessarily enough for industry to provide, even when those techniques keep that indutry's emissions far cleaner than state and federal agencies require, as the Portsmouth refinery would do. It charted, in brief, the limits of industrial growth. The crunch had been coming. Environmentalists have been saying for years that the bottom line of the environmental movement is a halt in the nation's growth. Lawyers have been saying privately for at least three years that the Clean Air Act was a time bomb, containing all the legal machinery needed to block almost any new project, including shopping centers, housing developments and factories. 'This law that (Sen. Edmund S. Muskie passed is nuts!" fumed John K. Evans, president of the Hampton Roads Energy Co. "Every time they paint a destroyer down there (at the Norfolk Naval Shipyard in Portsmouth) they put more hydrocarbons into the air then we would in a year."

Officials of Hampton Roads Energy whose principal financial backer is the Atlanta-based Cox newspaper chain - make two major complaints. -They said some of the EPA's overall air quality standards are unattainable because they make no allowance for "background" pollutants from natural sources. —And they said the agency's "tradeoff policy." unveiled last December, puts the burden on new industries to clean up the environmental degradation produced by existing industries. "That's not only unfair," Evans

The clean air standards causing the most trouble for the refinery - and for other industries around the country - are those for hydrocarbons and their photochemical byproducts.

Dali art

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) "Salvador Dali's Art in Jewels," a collection of 37 jeweled objects designed by the artist between 1953 and 1969, is now on display at the Virginia Museum.

The collection includes many surrealistic objects that reflect the imagery and style of some of Dali's more famous paintings. There is a jeweled eye with a gold and enamel clock iris, a multidimensional crucifix and a diamond encrusted anemone among other works.

The jeweled objects were executed by the late Charles Vaillant and Samuel Rema of Liemany and Co., New York. The exhibit is on loan for at least three years from the Owen R. Cheatham Foundation of New York.
