At a roundtable discussion with 19 ordinary citizens invited to give their views on energy policy, Schlesinger said, "For the immediate future we will not be using recycled plutonium."

One reason for the change, Schlesinger said, is to diminish "the possibility of the spread of nuclear weapons.

Plutonium is produced from spent nuclear fuel for use in breeder reactors, the type in which Japan and western European countries have heavily invested.

Critics of plutonium say the fuel can be used by terrorists to make crude nuclear weapons. Environmentalists say breeder reactor plants are likely Cancellation of the breeder reactor program would mean killing a $500 million plutonium plant now under construction at Barnwell, S.C., as well as a $2 billion fast breeder demonstration plant on which preliminary construction work has begun at Clinch River, Tenn.

Of the switch away from plutonium, Schlesinger said, "I think much of the concern ... about nuclear power plants will diminish."

The switch also would have international implications because many countries had counted on obtaining supplies of plutonium from the United States.

During the three-hour meeting, the 19 ordinary citizens got an unusual chance to get their opinions heard where they matter most.

Andrews doctor's deal with Ector falls through

ODESSA - Once again, there's no room at the inn for indigent maternity patients in Ector County.

Although Ector County had negotiated an agreement with Per-mian General Hospital in Andrews, a supplemental agreement with an Andrews physician fell through

The original contract with Andrews obstetrician Dr. Kanilal Patel had specified a retainer fee of $2,000 per month, Ector County Judge Joe

"We could do that well in Odessa," Connally said.

As a result, the contract with Permian General Hospital is ineffectual because it specified that Dr. Patel would admit patients, Connally

"We don't have a contract without Dr. Patel," he said.

Although some maternity cases may be sent to Permian General on an individual basis, Connally said, the major part of indigent deliveries will be handled through the emergency room at Odessa Medical Center.

"I am very discouraged. We've done everything we know how to do right now," Connally said.

The failure to negotiate the Andrews contracts is the latest of a series of events, starting with the refusal of Women's and Children's Hospital to continue to deliver babies for indigent patients after bills to the county were unpaid after 30 days. Odessa doctors then refused to handle indigent maternity cases at Odessa Medical Center because, by law, the county cannot pay doctors for in-digent care at the county-supported

MCAA future still in doubt

The status of the Midland Community Action Agency remains in limbo after representatives of the Midland city, county and school board met Friday with state and federal officials in a fact-finding session.

County Judge Barbara Culver and Mayor Earnest Angelo agreed that both the county and city would have to wait until an audit of the agency is complete, but that both bodies would take prompt action to resolve the status of the agency.

Russell Horn, the Austin auditor hired by the federal Community Services Agency is expected to be finished by next week reconstructing the agency's financial records and books so that they can be audited. Charlie Welch, chairman of the MCAA board of directors, said he was "confident the audit would be finished by April 31.

Although no decision was made Friday, the governmental representatives did gain information which they said would be helpful in deciding whether or not to continue support of the agency. The school board already has voted to withdraw support of MCAA April 1, with an option to reconsider the decision if sufficient evidence is given to warrant continued support.

The officials learned they would not necessarily have to continue an active participation in the agency for the city to continue to receive state and federal funding. however, endorsement by at least the county commissioners court would be necessary for the agency to receive state funding, a state representative said.

The group also learned:

- That many of the smaller grants to the agency would be withdrawn if the the agency lost its administrative funding from the federal Community Services Administration because many of the funding bodies have to "piggy-back" on other agencies because they have no funds available for administration;

That many of the grants received by the agency could be applied for by other similar agencies;

- That if the MCAA goes out of existence, another similar "limited purpose agency" could be formed in its place.

In addition, a number of members of the community served by the MCAA spoke in support of the agency's services. Several persons associated with various social service-type agencies and commissions also spoke in support of services being delivered by MCAA and called for some county-wide social service planning agency to coordinate efforts of the various agencies.

There have been advocates on both the city and county governments who favored withdrawal from the agency but generally it was feared that withdrawal of any of the three supporting governmental agencies would end funding by the various federal and state agencies.

Endorsement by local governmental bodies however, is not entirely

Court sets aside FCC rules on pay cable TV

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A federal appeals court here Friday set aside the Federal Communications Commission's rules restricting the type of shows that can be broadcast over pay cable television.

The rules, among other things, prohibit cable TV from showing feature films more than three but less than 10 years old and certain sports events such as World Series and football bowl games shown on regular television within the previous five years. The rules also limit the number of regular season sports events and all types of series shows that can be offered.

In overturning the two-year-old regulations, the three-judge U.S. Court of Appeals sharply criticized the FCC's reasoning behind the cable TV regulations, the agency's justification for policing the content of cable television, and the manner in which the specific cable TV rules were adopted.

The court found that the FCC had improperly heard private comments from parties involved in the pay cable television issue. It told the commission that its proceedings were so tainted with these secret comments that it should start anew in considering any pay television regulations.

It is unclear what immediate effect the ruling will have on the burgeoning cable television industry. The use of coaxial cables, instead of standard airwave broadcasting techniques, allows companies to provide to home television viewers, for a small monthly fee, a wide range of special events that are not available on commercial television channels.

Approximately 10 million persons already subscribe to more than 350 cable television systems across the U.S., according to FCC and cable television industry representatives.

Cable television industry representatives praised Friday's ruling, which appears to re-open the whole spectrum of the types of programs that can appear on their outlets. "We're elated with the decision. We think it's a true reflection with what we've said all along - the FCC should not be constraining the market place," said National Cable Television Association President Robert Schmidt.

An FCC spokesman declined comment on the lengthy opinion late Friday, saying the agency's attorneys were studying it.

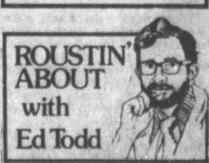

The stated purpose of the FCC rules was to prevent popular special events from being "siphoned" away from the regular television markets in competitive bidding situations between regular networks and pay cable television companies.

Southwest advances first flights

DALLAS - Southwest Airlines will begin service to Midland Regional Air Terminal May 20, four days earlier than previously announced.

A company spokesman made the announcement late Friday. The first day's operation would have only four round-trip flights to Dallas' Love Field, but more would be added later, the spokesman said. Earlier indications were that Southwest would begin service to Midland May 24. The airlines and the City of Midland are still negotiating terms of landing fees and space rental at Ter-

New York gunman frees hostages

NEW YORK (AP) — A gunman freed four hostages and surrendered peacefully Friday night after holding his prisoners for just over five hours in a demand for $500,000 to convert a Harlem building into a Moslem mosque.

As the drama unfolded, armed officers surrounding the room where the hostages were held backed off. Then the door opened, the gunman walked out and began talking to Bolz.

Abdush-Shahid, a member of a Moslem sect, and his wife and four children had been evicted from their Bronx apartment earlier in the day, and one of his demands was a decent place for his family to live.

Bolz said that shortly before he capitulated, Abdush-Shahid asked the hostages to join him in an Islamic prayer. Then he took the bullets from his .38 caliber revolver and turned the gun over to one of his captives, who in turn passed it to a policeman outside the door of the room.

The man broadcasted a hodgepodge of follow-up mandates via WINS, a local radio station.

One of them was that a semiofficial Cairo newspaper, Al Ahram, print the demands in full, a condition that was said to have been agreed to in communications with the Egyptian capital.

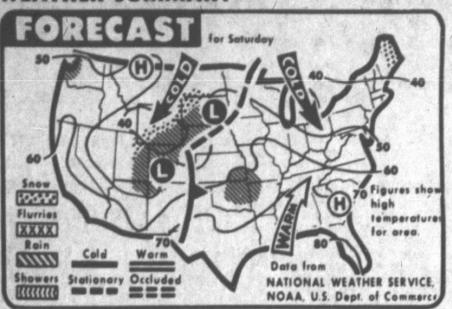

While the drama unfolded, the gunman and his hostages kept a conversation going via an open telephone line with Doug Edelson, a WINS newsman.

The man invaded a mortgageclosing conference in the city's Housing and Development Authority office about 5:45 p.m. Seized as hostages were three lawyers, John Pearson, Robert Robbin, and Larry McGaugaty; an HDA employe, Jake Gelfand, and a housing expert, Charles Laven.

necessary for continued federal funding but is necessary for state funding, according to representatives of federal and state agencies.

Jeff Wise, of the Regional office of the federal Community Services Administration, which gave the MCAA its initial $33,000 administrative grant, said MCAA was a limited purpose agency rather than a community action agency and that it could remain designated as a limited purpose agency and continue to function without local support.

However, John W. Cardwell of the Texas Department of Community Affairs in Austin, said that some local endorsement "is an absolute must" for continued funding by the state.

A resolution by the county commissioners' court would be sufficient endorsement, Cardwell said.

Should the agency go out of existence, both Wise and Cardwell agreed that it would be feasible to form another such agency.

The MCAA board of directors has all the powers of any other nonprofitmaking organization, Cardwell said, and has the autonomy to restructure itself as long as it maintained the three-thirds composition of board

By present guidelines, the MCAA board is composed of one-third members from the target poor area, one-third from among elected officials and then one-third to be chosen according to a decision by the other two-thirds.

August H. Pearson Jr., district engineer with the Texas Highway Department, said that his department had been designated by Gov. Dolph Briscoe to administer certain funds from the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA). UMTA furnishes 80 per cent of funds for various projects, of which non-federal sources provide 20 per cent. Funds from this source were used to obtain the bus which MCAA uses to transport elderly and handicapped persons, Pearson said.

The Highway Department could contract with an "anyone" for the same services, he said, adding that funds are available for additional

The Governor's Office for Migrant Affairs has cut off funding to the Midland Community Action Agency until the agency clears up its problems of management and fiscal accountability, Domingo Lopez, a representative of that office, said.

During fiscal year 1976, which ended September, 1976, GOMA funded $1,553 in a short term migrant outreach survey, which ended at the point of completion of the purpose of that contract. A $48,000 grant for manpower projects for migrant workers and seasonal farm workers was not renewed at the end of September 1976 until the agency's problems are cleared up, Lopez said. GOMA, through West Texas Opportunities has sub-contracted a migrant to teach automobile repair, upholstery and other skills. The school has 85 training slots available for migrant or seasonal farm workers, Lopez said, but these are placed through the West Texas Opportunities in Lamesa and Odessa.

The governor's accounting office audited GOMA funds to MCAA annually, Lopez said. Any public agency or private nonprofit-making organization can apply for GOMA funds, Lopez said. The final state officers to speak at the meeting Friday were representives of the Department of Public Welfare, Landry Doan of the regional transportation office and Molly Whittington of social services.

Doan said his agency gives the MCAA $650 per month for trandisabled and mothers and children who receive state welfare checks to reach Medicare and-or Medicaid MCAA makes about 240 such trips

A TALE OF UNSOLVED slayings is told in this map based on information received from the Detroit Free Press. The map shows where the bodies of six children were found in Detroit's suburban Oakland County in the past 14 months. Police believe the slayings of Timothy King.

Kristine Milhelich, Jill Robinson and Mark Stebbins may be related. Sheila Srock was found dead in a home where she was babysitting. The body of a seventh victim from Oakland County, Jane Louise Allan, 13, was found in Miamisburg, Ohio, near Dayton, on August 13, 1976.

LAHORE, Pakistan - bluehelmeted riot police and combat-ready soldiers of the Pakistani army patrolled the streets of Lahore Friday in the aftermath of Prime Minister Zulfiqar Ali Bhutto's lightning stroke to crush the growing opposition to his rule by arresting its leaders.

Desai names cabinet

The Los Angeles Times

NEW DELHI - India's new prime minister, Morarji Desai, announced the names of his cabinet ministers Friday, apparently resolving a leadership crisis.

The announcement did not identify the names with specific ministries, but high on the list was the name of Jagjivan Ram, the leader of India's 120 million untouchables, who had been Desai's rival for the post of prime minister.

Also on the list were the names of Charan Singh, leader of the peasant lobby; L.K. Advani, general secretary of the Hindu nationalist party, and George Fernandes, head of the Socialist Party. The others: Prakash Singh Badal, Hemvati Nandan Bahuguna, Sikandar Bakt, Shanti Bhushan, Dr. Prakash Chunder, Madhu Dandavate, Nanaji Deshmukh, Mohan Dharia, Purshottam Lal Kaushik, Raj Narain, H.M. Patel, Biju Patnaik, P. Ramachandran, Atal Behari Vajpayee and Ravindra Varma.

Desai's Janata Party and Ram's Congress for Democracy were the major elements of a non-Communist coalition that defeated Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and her longdominant Congress Party in last week's election.

There had been some question as to which of the two would succeed Mrs. Gandhi. Then, after Desai was sworn in Thursday, there had been a further question as to whether Ram would be named deputy prime minister.

Desai reportedly offered Ram the subordinate post but on condition that Ram merge his party with Desai's. Earlier, Ram had said he would support the government but that his party would remain a separate entity.

approximately 24 leaders of the Pakistan National Alliance party were arrested here and in other cities. With the exception of the Alliance's vice chairman, Nawab Zada Nasrullah Khan, virtually all the party's top leadership are either in ail or under house arrest.

In addition, the president of the Lahore High Court Bar Association, Aammer Raza Khan, along with 83 other presidents of provincial bar associations throughout the Punjab were also placed under detention.

The Punjab's chief minister, Sadiq Hussain Qureshi, announced Thursday night that orders have been given to shoot on sight anyone committing arson, looting, damaging private or public property or at-tempting to disrupt means of communication.

The opposition's refusal to accept Bhutto's landslide victory in the general election of March, on the grounds that the elections were rigged, has led to a campaign of civil disobedience and widespread violence and a rapid decline in Bhutto's public support.

Bhutto's move came a day before the newly elected assembly is to take its seats in the capital of Islamabad. The National Alliance party members had boycotted the assembly and called for a "har tal" — a complete general strike — to paralyze the country Saturday on what they are calling "a black day."

There were some protest demon-strations in Lahore Friday, but they were peaceful. There is, however, much apprehension about Saturday's general strike. As one government official said, "the Punjab still sleeps, but if the giant awakes Bhutto will have to go."

The Punjab, with its provincial capital at Lahore, accounts for almost 60 per cent of Pakistan's 74 million people. No protest movement and no government can hope to survive if the Punjab turns against it.

Islamabad, the national capital, is a new town of government offices and embassies. Karachi, the nation's largest city and the economic capital, is excitable and quick to riot but still a separate entity that can be isolated. But Lahore, with its nearly three million people, is the political heart of the Punjab, and Bhutto himself has called it the most sensitive city in the Policy is steady

President Carter greeted Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin with a ledge of support for a Middle East peace formula giving Israel "defensible borders." Ears pricked up immediately. There has been speculation ever since that the use of those words signals a change in American policy.

After hearing of Carter's comments on his thinking about the Middle East, at a news conference later, we're less inclined to see his choice of terms as signaling any change of official attitude either toward Israel or toward the Arabs.

Rather, we think Mr. Carter is simply trying to break the ice for peace talks which everyone hopes can be renewed at Geneva this

True enough, "defensible borders" is a term used heretofore mainly by Israelis to imply that they might not be willing to return all of the Arab territory they have occupied since 1967. The United States, up to now, has spoken of the issue in different terms - going along with the language of a United Nations resolution calling on Israel to withdraw to "secure and recognized boundaries."

With reporters on March 9, Mr. Carter dismissed the difference between defensible borders and secure boundaries as one of semantics. He tried to advance the discussion further, into terms less subject to semantical quibbling. He raised the possibility that an Israeli defense line might not coincide with a sovereign border, and that for a period of years the map of the Middle East night show gray areas which are under Arab sovereignty but subject to some kind of Arab-Israeli or independent military

Mr. Carter may have gone as far as it is wise for an American president to go in talking in public about the specifics of this kind of settlement. He may have embarrassed Mr. Rabin in going as far as he did. But his discourse will have served a purpose if it gets Arabs and Israelis to talking in real rather than abstract terms about what they are trying to achieve.

The Geneva conference will never be reconvened if either side remains frozen in all-or-nothing positions that semantic differences can encourage. Mr. Carter has suggested the kind of arrangements that are going to have to be explored if there is to be any relaxation of tension and confrontation in the Middle East and a commitment to peace.

Whether Mr. Carter has given a new "tilt" to U.S. policy might itself be a semantic debate. Mr. Rabin appears to have received some but not all of the aid commitments he was seeking in Washington. Observers at the recent Afro-Arab conference in Cairo, meanwhile, report that moderate voices in the Arab camp appear to be in the ascendancy, a promising development for the U.S. position as a mediator in the Middle East.

The United States in the Nixon-Ford years tried to stand by its commitment to Israel's survival while also recognizing the importance of our economic and strategic interests in the Arab world. We have aspired to an "even-handed" role in the Arab-Israeli dispute. So far Mr. Carter has done nothing that should change either the Arab or Israeli perception of our desire to see a just peace evolve in the Middle

Center of power

The power of the Teamsters Union is generated by its huge Central States Pension Fund, which historically has been administered by top union officials.

Reports of kickbacks, improper loans and ties to organized crime have tarnished the union's reputation, as well as stirring the wrath of 450,000 fund contributors in 33 states.

Now the Labor Department, under authority granted by the federal pension reform law of 1974, has forced the resignation of the last of the trustees associated with the questionable fund procedures, including that of union president Frank Fitzsimmons.

The union's pledge to hire independent, professional investment experts enhances the retirement future of participants in the pension fund and severs the unhealthy tie between labormanagement relations and the free-wheeling loan policies.

The tentative step to reform should not be allowed to halt the present probe to determine whether past operations warrant criminal charges.

declined from about 200,000 workers in the mid-1960s to about 150,000 now.

The commission agreed with the industry that imports are responsible for the latter's problems and has recommended that Mr. Carter slap on import restrictions to stem the tide and lower imports to about 35 per cent of domestic sales.

Mr. Carter has until April 9 to act on the recommendation. But he is being pressured from consumer groups who say the quotas would boost the American shoe bill by $500 million the first year.

Import-export observers also contend that foreign shoe-producing countries would be seriously hurt by quotas on footwear products. Paul Beispel, vice president of the American Importers Association, warns that the quota will not only leave many of America's poor barefoot, but will have a domino effect all through the tariff structures of the exporting countries.

So the shoe industry is seeking government quotas to protect jobs. Quotas also are at issue with the U.S. tuna industry. It is battling quotas the government has slapped on which fishermen say make it impossible for them to ply their trade. Specifically, the Commerce Department has told fishermen the Eastern spinner porpoise is depleted and none may be killed while fishing for tuna. Fishermen use porpoise to locate tuna, which habitually swim beneath the mammals. They set their nets around both schools, then attempt to release the nonmarketable and legislatively protected porpoise before landing the fish.

The penalty for killing any Eastern spinners, which often swim undetected with other more plentiful species, is a year in jail, a $25,000 fine and forfeiture of the entire cargo, worth up to $1 million.

Fishermen say they can't fish under those restrictions and have come home to seek government relief. Scores of them traveled to habit, was especially strong in Washington recently to lobby congressmen, visit the government agencies charged with regulating their industry and generally tell mitted," he said, "to identify and act Washington what the government is doing to them.

One former fisherman complained during the Washington visit that the tuna industry just can't seem to find a champion for its cause in Washington.

Not so with the shoe industry. Seven senators have met with key Carter economic advisers to urge acceptance of the shoe import restrictions. And a letter sponsored by Rep. James Burke, D-Mass., and signed by more than 120 House members, is going to the White House.

If Mr. Carter were to reject the shoe import recommendation, Congress could override the decision by passing a concurrent resolution. It would appear such a resolution would have little trouble passing.

INSIDE REPORT:

By ROWLAND EVANS nd ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - The latest indignity visited on widely respected Sen. Charles (Mac) Mathias of Maryland by his Republican illeagues came in a secret vote last week barring him from the Senate's Constitutional Rights Subcommittee - one more piece of evidence exng why the GOP's left wing is newly disappearing. A seemingly systematic campaign to keep Mathias out of the Senate ican power structure is not used on doubts about his ability to hink but about what he thinks. One ughtful colleague, who voted against Mathias on last week's exion despite sincere admiration for his talents, told us: "I think Mac is kind of a guy without a party, without

But Mathias is by no means less. He has been tendered a landing invitation to cross over into he Democratic party in time for his 1380 reelection. That would be the higgest conversion yet in a hesitant but monetheless unmistakable exodus of liberal Republicans from their

Among freshman Democratic es. Michigan's Donald Riegle ublican Congressman and braska's Edward Zorinsky was the hlican mayor of Omaha. In the ratic cloakroom, they joined Colorado's Floyd Haskell, a former Republican state legislator. Several young Democratic House members with Republican backgrounds may be oined by Ohio's Rep. Charles Whalen, a liberal Republican ready to cross the aisle if and when the state legislature passes a state law to let him run in the 1978 Democratic primary.

This might seem the ideological realignment of the American party system, so long the dream of conservatives, were it not for this sobering reality: it is a one-way flow. While liberals forsake the Grand Old Party, there is no reverse flow from the Democratic right. This is symbolized by the new alliance of Mississippi's Sen. James O. Eastland, the archetypal Dixiecrat, with run the gauntlet among fellow Republicans from the day the new Congress convened. Seeking to be designated the ranking Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee, Mathias was blocked by conservative Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina. In order to take over the top Republican spot on Judiciary himself, Thurmond gave up his cherished ranking position on the Armed Services Committee.

Shortly thereafter, Mathias was squeezed out by conservatives in a power contest on the Government Operations Committee. Dusting himself off a second time, Mathias tried to get on the Judiciary Committee's Constitutional Rights Subcommittee and, become by virtue of seniority, its ranking member. This time he had more seniority than any challenger.

But conservatives wanted to checkmate unceasing efforts of the subcommittee's chairman, liberal Democratic Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, to rewrite the U.S. Constitution. Thurmond proposed lameduck Sen. William Scott of Virginia, a non-compromising rightwinger. Although seniority made the difference for Thurmond against Mathias a month earlier, it did not help Mathias against Scott this time. The vote among committee Republicans went 4 to 2 against

Shortly after his first indignity this year, Mathias met in Baltimore with labor leaders who asked him to join the Democrats. He didn't say yes, but he didn't say no. As 1980 approaches, he will ponder a difficult Republican primary fight with Rep. Robert Bauman or Rep. Marjorie Holt, as contrasted with unopposed nomination, followed by nearly sure election, if he runs as a Democrat.

This inviting Democratic prospect for Mathias led conservative Republican operatives to go to Thurmond and Scott with a complaint: "It's stupid for us to act like this." They pointed out that losing Mathias might in itself further reduce meager Republican ratios on Senate committees and, worse yet, lead to more Senate crossovers. So they urged Thurmond and Scott: "Let Mac have something."

To no avail. Thurmond felt Mathias needed no special treatment (and later complained to us about "undue notoriety for something that doesn't amount to a row of pins"). Many other Republican Senators believe that even a defection by Mathias would amount to no more than a row of pins. Even the thoughtful Republican Senator cited above who admires Mathias but considers him 'a guy without a party'' is not sure whether his departure would be bad or good for the Republicans.

No action seen in beating case

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Police Chief B.G. "Pappy" Bond said Friday he will take no disciplinary action in the case of a rookie policeman who accused fellow officers of beating a handcuffed suspect following a highspeed auto chase.

Bond said the officer, Alan D. Nichols, would be counseled by his superior officers and returned to

"Nichols is a God-fearing, moral and well intentioned individual," Bond told a news conference. "We conclude that he became overly emotional and he perhaps acted inappropriately at this, his first major

Bond also said no disciplinary action would be taken against any of the officers Nichols said kicked and beat suspect Demas Benoit Jr., 21, following the chase on Houston's northeast side March 11.

The chief said an investigation revealed an officer may have used objectionable language to Benoit's parents at the scene of the incident. He said the officer could not be identified because of the confusion.

"It is my intention to issue a directive to the entire department reiterating my very firm position that officers are to address all members of the public in a proper and respectful manner," Bond said. "I do not intend to tolerate racial or ethnic slurs.",

Nichols said in his original report he was holding the legs of the suspect when handcuffs were applied and the suspect no longer was offering resistance, At this time, Nichols claimed, officers kicked and beat Benoit another 30 to 45 seconds.

Bond said Nichols apparently did not notice that Benoit was biting the hand of one of the officers.

While it is true that the actor (Benoit) had stopped struggling from the neck down, his bite-hold on the officer's hand presented a painful and dangerous threat to that officer's own

"Seeing this situaion, one of the other officers grabbed the actor's head and began shaking it vigorously in order to extricate the finger. Benoit's head was not beaten on the cement. Another officer sat on his shoulders to make it more difficult for the actor to apply pressure with his mouth. Benoit finally released the officer's hand." SECT

Bond concluded there was no evidence of brutality during the incident "except that two Houston police officers in the course of and scope of their duties were struck by the actor with a quart beer bottle." Bond also pointed out that Benoit was involved in a highspeed chase with state police in 1976 and also had a fight with Houston officers last year at a local bowling lane.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Sen. A.R. Schwartz said Friday that it is vital that the legislature appropriate $5 million to handle possible oil spills in Texas waters.

Schwartz, D-Galveston, and three other legislators submitted a special report to the legislature on marine commerce. The report was prepared by the Texas Coastal and Marine

The study found that Texas ports are the busiest of any state in the nation, moving 237 million tons in 1974. They contribute $6 billion each year to the Texas economy.

Schwartz noted that the 1975 Legislature enacted the Oil and Hazardous Substance Spill Prevention and Control Act, but plementation of that measure has been slow because no money was appropriated. It is vital that the $5 million authorized for the Coastal Protection Fund be appropriated."

Since January 1973, the report said, 82 incidents "have occurred which resulted in the spilling of over 750,000 barrels of oil in Texas coastal waters.

Diamond tradition now 500 years old

NEW YORK (AP) — This year marks the 500th anniversary of the diamond engagement ring.

It all started in 1477, the Jewelry Industry Council says, when the dashing young Archduke Maximilian of Austria wooed and won comely Mary of Burgundy and sealed the pact with a handsome diamond ring.

Heeding his advisor who wrote: "At the betrothal your Grace must have a ring set with a diamond and also a gold ring," Maximilian had an imposing-looking gold one fashioned and wed his beloved Mary within 24 hours of the betrothal ceremony.

The actual ring, with a large cutout "M" for Maximilian, highlighted with diamonds and a smaller stylized "M" for Mary, done in smaller diamonds, is still in existence. The ring is now in the Museum of Fine Arts in Vienna, the Jewelry Industry Council learned during research in connection with the anniversary celebration.

Although the tradition of the diamond as the betrothal stone began 500 years ago, evidence of the engagement tradition dates back as far as the caveman.

The pharaohs of Egypt are believed to have originated the ring, or circle, as a symbol of eternity. Their sketches indicate the circle as a heavenly

Until the 19th century, the diamond engagement ring was a luxury only royalty and the very wealthy could afford, says the Diamond Information Center. But today in the United States, it reports, 78 per cent of all first-time brides and nearly 50 per cent of all repeat brides receive a diamond engagement ring, and nearly half of all brides choose matched sets of engagement and wedding rings.

Since their discovery some 2,000 years ago diamonds have been a constant source of fascination, the information center researchers say. Named after the greek word "adamas," meaning unconquerable, diamonds are the hardest and most durable of all natural substances. By their very nature, they came to symbolize courage and invincibility. Some ancients believed that those who gazed into a diamond would gain inner strength. Others saw the diamond as a talisman to ward off evil.

While the oval and marquise shapes are gaining in popularity, the solitaire in the brilliant or round cut remains the most popular choice today.

However, this has not always been so. The engagement ring, like women's fashions, has followed various trends. In colonial days the preferred setting was a hoop with diamonds circling half way or all the way around the finger. This style was referred to as the keeper ring, as it was placed above the wedding band for safekeeping.

In Martha Washington's day, clusters of diamonds were fashioned into floral bouquets. Many of these bouquet rings had scalloped borders and were referred to as cookie rings.

During the Victorian period diamond engagement rings, like the architecture, were quite large and ornate. Bands of yellow gold were embellished with details of black

At the close of the 19th century, jewelry designs underwent extensive changes when platinum began to be used for setting gems. Because platinum is stronger than gold or silver it allows the diamonds to be set in claws raising the stones from the ring - enabling the stone to catch and reflect even more light rays.

The brilliant-cut solitaire began to gain popularity and became a classic ring in the 1890s. In the 1920s, however, the emerald-cut diamond in ornate mountings came into vogue.

Missouri town leading black walnut processor

STOCKTON, Mo. (AP) - This small town about 137 miles south of Kansas City has a distinction of sort. It processes more than 50 per cent of the nation's black walnut crop.

In a good year, some 25 million pounds of nuts from as many as 18 states are shipped to Stockton where R. Dwain Hammons and his employes hull, crack, shell, sort and package them for food brokers all over the na-

Black walnut plantations, Hammons said, grow black walnut trees more for their valuable wood than for nuts. Until the trees grow enough to cut down, however, they earn their keep by producing nuts.

Hammons learned the black walnut business from his father, the late Ralph Hammons, who founded the company in 1946. The company plant at Stockton can process up to 80,000 pounds of walnuts a day and about the same amount at a second plant in Gravette, Ark

Next to Missouri, the largest growers of black walnuts are Arkansas, Kentucky, Tennessee, Kansas and Oklahoma.

Coffee farms make comeback in Hawaii

By CHARLES HILLINGER The Los Angeles Times

NAPOOPOO, Hawaii Skyrocketing prices are giving America's only coffee growing area a new lease on life.

For the first time in years, coffee growers are beginning to return to the land. Abandoned coffee farms are being reclaimed and put back into

Twenty years ago coffee was a $10 million-a-year industry for growers along the Kona Coast of the "big island" of Hawaii. In 1957 more than 14 million pounds of coffee were harvested there.

But in the late 1950s and early 1960s resort hotels mushroomed all along the coast, making it a second Waikiki.

Coffee growers abandoned their farms in wholesale fashion. There was more money to be made working at the hotels and resorts, catering to

By 1968 growers were only getting $37 for 100 pounds of coffee. Production dropped to 3 million pounds that year.

This month growers are being paid $2.50 to $2.60 a pound for their green coffee beans - that's $250 to $260 for a 100-pound sack, seven times what they were getting nine years ago. Kona coffee is the world's most expensive and experts say it probably is the best coffee grown. It sells for $5 to $6 a pound in the stores.

'We could sell 10 times the total annual yield even at these high prices, there are that many people willing to pay a premium price for a superb cup of coffee," says Earl Cohen, 59, chairman of the board of Superior Tea and Coffee Co.

Superior, a Chicago-based firm with $100 million in annual coffee and food sales, has exclusive rights to the distribution of Kona coffee.

Last year 1.8 million pounds of Kona coffee were harvested on the lower slopes of 13,680-foot Mauna Loa and 13,796-foot Mauna Kea. Most coffee sold is made up of many blends, but Kona coffee is sold as it comes from the roaster.

Coffee trees from Brazil were first planted in the Hawaiian Islands in 1818 by a missionary named Samuel

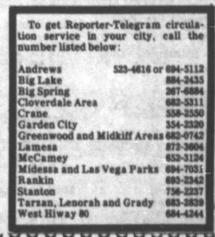

The trees thrived along the Kona Coast at elevations from 500 to 2,500 feet where conditions are ideal for growing coffee - porous volcanic soil, ample water, a mix of sunshine and cloud cover practically every

For more than a century before tourists came to the Kona Coast, coffee was the sole income here.

Until 1968 the school year in the 10 villages along a 70-mile stretch of Kona Coast ran from November through early August - so children of coffee growers could help their parents harvest the crop in the peak picking months of September and

Today there are 790 coffee growers on the Kona Coast — mostly Japanese and Filipino families — raising coffee trees on acre-and a-half to 5-acre

On the Kona Coast an acre averages 500 coffee trees producing 1,000 pounds of coffee a year. That means that at $2.50 a pound, a grower with four acres is grossing $10,000 for his

This busy reporter is hammering out an important news story. Perhaps he is reporting a bank robbery ... or the threat of war ... or a major disaster, like an earthquake or a famine. The reporter is working against time. He has to get this story in the next edition; and he has to have the facts.

Good reporting is an essential element of our democratic society. It is a highly specialized craft. Reporters and the rest of the newspaper staff must all blend into a dedicated, hard-working team. They must be an alert band of men and women on the job

Most newspaper stories come to a conclusion. They soon lose their "news" value, and become history.

But one of the greatest stories of all time is ever fresh . . . ever relevant. It is the story of God's great Gift to man . . . the story of a promise of life after death. Through the life of Jesus Christ, through the Holy Scriptures and through the Church, we can hear this story forever, knowing that the greatest story ever told is NEWS today.

Ordained in 1972, Dr. Garlington became pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Hartwood, Va., during which time he continued studies at Union Theological Seminary. He received his doctoral degree in 1976. He is married to the former Shirley Ann Richardson of Lovington, N. M., and the couple has a year-old son, Jeremy John.

Participating in the installation rites Sunday evening will be a commission consisting of the Rev. Gordon F. Garlington Jr., father of the new pastor; the Rev. Charles Hollingsworth and the Rev. Frank Seaman. Ruling elders from each of Midland's Presbyterian churches (Covenant, First, Trinity and Christ) also will serve on the installation commission. They are James A. Alexander, J. G. ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. - By any measurement, it was an unusual and intimate gathering which ended here Thursday.

Among the 30 people here were: Scientists from Pasadena, Calif.'s Jet Propulsion Laboratory, the Air Force Academy and nearby Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory. A scientist whose company proved the so-called Vinland map a fake; an eminent British New Testament scholartheologian; Catholic priests from New York and the Vatican, and four long-haired members of the communal Christ Brotherhood, who just happened to drop by and stayed for the whole meeting.

The topic, discussed in a closed conference at an inn (Ramada) here, was the state of research on the Shroud of Turin, a 14-foot 3-inch long linen cloth that bears the remarkably detailed image of a 6-foot, bearded and long haired man with numerous lacerations on his body.

Tradition, dating back to at least 1354, has it that the image is that of

began to inspire more curiosity in 1898 when photographs showed the image more clearly.

The brownish, stain-like shadings have been compared to the negative of a film or to rubbings such as are made from bas relief art works.

Though researchers say there have been many claims through the years about authentic burial shrouds for the crucified Jesus, all but the Turin linen have been easily regarded as spurious, in the category of many church "relics" that have little historical or scientific basis for the claims.

Examinations of the shroud in 1969 and 1973 by groups of scientists, primarily Italian, were reported last year to have produced no evidence to rule out a 1st century origin, nor any evidence to prove it either.

In anticipation of greater scientific access to the shroud at an exhibition in May 1978, the New York-based Holy Shroud Guild and two Air Force Academy scientists convened this conference. Recommendations were Enshrined in the northern Italian city of Turin since 1578, the shroud truth" for the shroud's authenticity, in the view of Anglican scholar John A.T. Robinson of Trinity College, Cambridge.

That is because of the report here of Walter C. McCrone of Chicago, the Vinland-debunking, microanalysis sleuth who also has done research on Los Angeles smog.

McCrone told the conference that carbon 14 dating processes have been refined to the point where the minimum size heeded for tests is three square centimeters, or about a half square inch.

Any proposals for carbon 14 testing earlier were ruled out by Turin authorities because it was thought that a minimum swath of one square foot was needed.

Two pieces large enough for the improved testing have already been cut from the shroud, though they, too, are in Turin.

'The consequences of a yes or no on this are tremendous," McCrone said in an interview.

Smiling, he said, "There is some consideration that I should shoot myself after I learn the result and pass it on to the Holy Shroud Guild so there will not be any leak before the 1978 conference.'

Opinions here differed on how receptive Turin officials - both church and civic authorities - would be to the new carbon dating proposal. But the Rev. Peter Rinaldi, S.D.B., vice president of the Holy Shroud Guild, said, "I do not think Turin authorities are against it, but they have to be convinced."

Conference officials here, principally physicist John Jackson of the Air Force Academy, were concerned about not saying anything publicly that would upset the Italians or, apparently, not giving the appearance that U.S. space scientists were trying to usurp the research roles.

Perhaps the most unusual research discussed here was computer enhancement of shroud photographs at Los Alamos, the Air Force Academy and JPL. The same technique was used to "clean up" photos of the Mars surface sent to JPL from the Viking spacecraft.

"We don't believe we made any significant finds," said JPL's Donald Lynn, who worked with Jean Lorre on the project.

The scientists' work was done on their own time and when computer time was not otherwise needed, Lynn emphasized. His interest, he added, was historical and archeological rather than religious.

Thermochemist Ray Rogers of Los Alamos, however, indicated that computer enhancement studies tend to rule out the possibility that the image was painted. No linear "strokes" were indicated and there is no change of color from dark to light tones, Rogers said.

No chemical or physical evidence of

Sunday Angelus Sunday

SAN ANGELO - Sunday has been designated as Angelus Sunday for parishes within the Roman Catholic Diocese of San Angelo, which includes parishes in Midland, Stanton, Odessa, Crane and elsewhere in the Permian

According to the Most Rev. Stephen A. Leven, bishop of the diocese, parishes will have sermons about the meaning of the Angelus, a prayer commemorating the mystery of the Annunciation. For centuries, the Angelus bells have rung at morning, noon and evening, signaling the hour of the Angelus. The Angelus bells are usually rung in three units of three strokes each, followed by nine strokes. The prayer is so called from its opening words, "Angelus Domini nuntiavit Maria," meaning "The Angel of the Lord is declared unto Mary" (Luke, 1). It continues with versicles and recitation of the Hail Mary and ends with a supplication for God's graces. Although many Protestant groups do not ordinarily observe the custom of reciting the Angelus, all Christians should be aware of its potential as a moment of a rebirth in their faith for it recognizes the beginning of Jesus Christ in human form, Bishop Leven points out.

Delta Queen journey into past

By Harvey Weber

Steaming coffee cups in hand, passengers on the sun deck peer into the morning mist.

To the rear, the steam calliope flails out an off-key "Waiting for the Robert E. Lee" that drowns in the reverberations from the Mississippi banks. The huge red sternwheel revolves slowly, nudging the boat ever closer to the pier.

Two deckhands guide the gangplank into place and the Delta Queen is docked at Natchez-Under-the-Hill, once considered the wickedest city in the nation.

On the cobblestoned levee, townspeople gawk, supply merchants wait, hawkers ready their wares. One almost anticipates a sudden puff of smoke and presto, chango, the trucks turn into horse-drawn carriages and blue jeans into crinolines and we are back a hundred years in time. But where are the cotton bales and the banjo players?

Instead of 1877 and Mark Twain walking ashore to take shank's mare to the nearest watering spot, it's 1977 and Gabriel Chengery, captain of the Delta Queen, takes his Volkswagen down the gangplank and buzzes off for business in town.

So what are we doing on a slow boat to Natchez in 1977? We're savoring a bit of America before the colors fade. The sternwheeler Delta Queen, the last vintage overnight passenger riverboat in existence, is so unique it has been declared a national historic site. Because of a wooden hull, it took a $2 million overhaul and five special acts of Congress to exempt the boat from the "Safety at Sea" law and keep her afloat and in business.

Built in Scotland in 1926 of oak, teak and rare woods, she may offer a familiar silhouette to some, for the Delta Queen originally plied overnight between Sacramento and San Francisco. Commissioned during World War II by the U.S. Navy to ferry troops and the wounded in San Francisco Bay, she was sold at auction in 1947, towed through the Panama Canal to Pittsburgh and refurbished for cruises on the inland waterways.

NEW YORK (AP) -The American Review, longest running paperback literary periodical in America, will publish its last issue in September.

The Review, begun by editor Theodore Solotaroff in 1963, has published Philip Roth's "Portnoy's Complaint," Kate Millett's "Sexual Politics" and E.L. Doctorow's "Ragtime." It has enjoyed the reputation of discovering and introducing many new authors to the American flow of trivia concerning passing vessels, sights, languidly up the Mississippi stretched out in a com-river data and folklore, enough to fill an en-fortable deck chair, watching the sun set into the cotcyclopedia volume. One moment you are close enough to see workmen adjusting valves in towering chemical complexes; moments later you are startling deer into the cottonwood swamps. Other stretches are enlivened by shuttling ferries, U.S. Corps of Engineer dredges deepening the channel, lighters transferring cargo from ship to shore. In between there are pleasure boats headed for the gulf, fishermen and hunters hugging the shoreline, and even two collegians rafting from North Dakota to New Orleans.

The schedule of the Delta Queen is seasonally adjusted. In the winter she works the lower Mississippi out of New Orleans. Summer finds her on the upper Mississippi or on the Ohio River working from her home port, Cincinnati, Ohio. Cruises range from two to 19 days on a point-to-point or round-trip basis.

WASH.—President Carter gave Congress official notice Friday that he is impounding funds for the $87 million Meramec Lake Park project in Missouri.

It was the first such action in the controversy over 30 water projects now under review for possible cancellation. The Meramec Lake Park impoundment applies to the $2.7 million that would have been spent between March 10 and April 15, the deadline for presidential decision on all projects.

Last month, Carter reduced 1978 funding requests for 16 projects pending completion of the review on April 15. Until Friday, it was understood that he would not attempt to halt spending of 1977 money on any of the projects.

Under the Impoundment Control Act, either house of Congress can now veto the President's proposed deferral of funds for the Meramec project.

Carter's notification message Friday followed by three days a previously unreported letter to Congress from Comptroller General Elmer Staats, which disclosed the Meramec fund impoundment. Staats also noted the President's failure "to tranmit a special message" to Congress about the impoundment as required by law.

In his message, Carter also disclosed that he had intended to impound an additional $5.1 million in 1977 at least until April 15 — from two other projects on his original "hit list" of 16 projects to be halted.

They were for the Yatesville Dam in Kentucky and the Atchfalaya River project in Louisiana. The funds for these projects were released four days later - after the Senate had approved by an overwhelming 65-to-24 vote an amendment which said Congress would defeat any Carter impoundment notices sent to the Capitol Hill. The author of the amendment was Sen. J. Bennett Johnston (D-La.), who learned of the impoundment of funds from his state's project while at the White House for a meeting with the President on March 10.

During the debate on the Johnston amendment, the two Missouri senators specifically asked that the Meramec project be excluded — and thus remain subject to impoundment. According to Corps of Engineer sources, the action of the Missouri senators was key in the administration's decision to impound the Meramec Contracts for dredging in the Atchafalaya River, Louisiana, project which concerned Johnston were awarded last week. They amounted to $5.5 million. Funds for one Bureau of Reclamation project were also briefly impounded, according to the Carter message. A $4.8 million contract that was part of the controversial Central Arizona Project was held up for five days, but released on March 15.

In moving on Meramec, Carter is fulfilling a specific promise made last March during the Missouri primary, when he vowed to oppose continued construction of the controversial project. The Corps review of Meramec, conducted as part of the overall Carter program, found "The project could jeopardize the continued existence of two endangered species of wildlife - the gray bat and the Higgins eye pearly mussle." The governor of Missouri is attempting to have a state referendum on the project, which was first authorized almost 40 years ago.

American's death straining ties in San Salvador

By KERNAN TURNER Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) - U.S. Ambassador Ignacio Lozano said Friday reports that an American citizen was killed while in the custody of Salvadoran authorities has strained U.S. relations with this Central American nation.

He identified the American as Ronald James Richardson, 34, a Pennsylvania-born black whose last known residence was in Hawaii.

Lt. Col. Roberto Santibanez, immigration director in the government of Col. Arturo Armando Molina, said Richardson "was deported out of the country of El Salvador." The immigration service said earlier Richardson had been expelled and went to Guatemala, but efforts to locate him have failed.

The ambassador said in an interview that the United States had not received an adequate explanation from the Salvadoran government of what had become of Richardson since he disappeared in late September while in the custody of El Salvador immigration authorities.

The embassy says it received confidential reports that Richardson may have been killed while in custody. Lozano emphasized that the U.S. government was not accusing anyone of murdering Richardson.

Lozano said a U.S. investigation indicated that Richardson was a drifter who had been in Guatemala and Belize before coming to El Salvador. He reportedly offered to fight as a mercenary for all three countries.

El Salvador is one of five Latin-American countries which have announced they are giving up U.S. military aid to protest congressional hearings on alleged human rights violations in the region.

U.S.-Cuba meet ends second day

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. and Cuban representatives met for a second day Friday on fishing and maritime boundaries and "progress was satisfactory," the State Department announced.

The talks, being held in New York City, are the first officially announced discussions between representatives of the two governments since diplomatic relations were broken in 1960 after Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro took power

"Each side is now studying proposals by the other and another meeting will be held sometime next week," the department said in a three-sentence statement. The talks had opened Thursday.

The United States extended its fishing boundaries to 200 miles from shore effective March 1 and the Cubans set similar boundaries, causing an overlapping jurisdiction of some 200,000 square

Congress approved the new boundary with the understanding that conflicts with fishing limits of neighboring countries would be negotiated.

Presumably, a maritime boundary will be drawn midway between the south Florida coast and nor-

Marquette, North Carolina favored basketball's showcase event narrows its field to the finalists today with nationally televised semifinal battles in the NCAA Championships.

A sellout crowd of 15,600 is expected in the Omni at 1:15 p.m. CDT when retiring Coach Al McGuire sends his seventhranked Marquette Warriors against No. 17 North Carolina Charlotte, the unhearalded out fit which drubbed No. 1 Michigan out of title contention a week ago.

THE NIGHTCAP of the doubleheader matches Atlantic Coast Conference champion North Carolina, ranked No. 5, against No. 4 Nevada-Las Vegas, an explosive club averaging a whopping 107.9 points per game.

The winners, who will have survived a 32-team field which began this annual spring madness two weeks ago, will decide the championship Monday night following a consolation game between today's Oddsmakers have established Marquette, 23-7, and North Carolina, 27-4, as 21/2-point favorites against teams with better records. UNCC is 28-3 and UNLV is 28-2, with victories in 25 of its last 26 games.

The two Carolina clubs currently carry the longest winning streaks among major college teams. North Carolina has won 14 straight, UNCC 13, Las Vegas 11 and Marquette 8.

McGuire, one of college basketball's most outspoken coaches, announced during the season he was retiring to devote fulltime to business at the end of this season, his 13th at Mar-

"I know this sounds phony, but it doesn't mean that much to me," McGuire says of the title. "T'd like it for the players. It would be nice, but it's not something I've dreamed about. I'm not that intense. I wish I

He certainly aggeans to be intense during a game. McGuire often leaps to his feet during a game and is frequently tagged with technical fauls

His counterpoint, Lee Rose of Charlotte, is just the opposite. Rose seldom leaves his seat during a game. During a 10- year coaching cureer—only two at UNCC—Rose has been stuck with only five technicals. He also takes these playoffs in

"We just play," he says. "It's not where you start. It's where we finish. No matter what happens, we finished a lot better than we expected.

The game will feature UNCC's patience against the helterskelter defense employed by the

The 49ers, a Cinderella club, are led by Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell, a 6-foot-8 center who is averaging 22.1 points and 12 rebounds a game, and Lew Massey, a 6-foot-4 forward averaging 19.8 points.

Marquette counters with Butch Lee, a second-team All-American guard, and 6-9 forward Bo Ellis, a third unit All-American. Lee averages 19.9

The Runnin' Rebels of Las Vegas are an unusual team, with six players averaging in double figures, ranging from Eddie Owens' 21.7 average to reserve center Lewis Brown's 10.7 mark.

COACH JERRY TARKA-NIAN'S team has a chance to smash the NCAA tournament average for five games, needing only 82 per game this weekend to do so. And, if the Rebs average 92 a game they would become the second team to average 100 a game in the tournament. UCLA once did it in four games.

North Carolina has the only All-American, guard Phil Ford, who has been hampered by a hyperextension of his right elbow. However, he is expected to play along with his All-ACC running mate, forward Walter Davis, who has a broken finger on his right hand.

Ford averaged 19.3 points and Davis 15.3 in leading the Tar Heels to the regular season and tournament championships in the ACC, a basketball hotbed that hopes to claim its third na-tional title in history.

THE TAR HEELS won this prestigious event in 1957, beating Wilt Chamberlain-led Kansas in triple overtime in the title game. North Carolina State gleaned the other crown for the league three years ago. North Carolina thrives on the four corners offense, a delay game employed by Coach Dean Smith when he is nursing a lead in the closing minutes.

Smith contends that too much attention is given the deliberate attack because "we also believe in the fast break." However, he adds, "No one does that any better than Navada-Las Vagas.

The compliments were not one-sided.

"I've never seen a team that did so many things and did them well," said Tarkanian. "They are just a very sound basketball

Stone is named MC cage coach

Jerry Stone, 35, assistant at Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls, will take over as Midland College basketball coach April 1, succeeding Delnor Poss.

The announcement Friday was made by MC President Dr. Al G. Langford and Athletic Director Poss.

A native of Arkansas City, Kansas, Stone played at McMurry College and has been head coach at Mexia, Amarillo Caprock and Richardson high schools before becoming head coach at Tarleton State for three years. He joined the Midwestern staff

Poss, who took over as basketball coach in January, will devote himself to the duties of his AD post and also coach the golf team.

"WE FEEL very fortunate to obtain the services of Jerry Stone.' Dr. Langford said. "He has an outstanding reputation as a coach with extensive experience. We feel he will be able to continue the tradition of excellence which has characterized our basketball program during its two years of existence.

Midwestern President Dr. John G. Barker said in releasing Stone from his contract, "We are extremely pleased for Jerry Stone. We are, of course, disappointed to lose him, but based on his experience here, we feel he has an extremely bright future."

An Arkansas City high school graduate in 1959, Stone received B.A. and B.S. degrees from McMurry in 1963 and his M.Ed. from Hardin-Simmons in 1965.

AT MC MURRY, Stone started as a sophomore, earned NAIA Region VIII honors as a junior and was named most inspirational player as a senior.

While working for his master's degree, Stone was an assistant for two years at McMurry. In 1965 he became head football coach and football assistant at Mexia High School and in two seasons his cagers compiled a 41-19 record' winning district in 1967 when Stone was named coach-of-the-

At Caprock in 1967, his team's 14-14 record again won him coach-of-theyear honors. Stone coached at Richardson from 1968 to 1973, compiling a 130-43 record and going 66-4 in district. Richardson won district titles in 1969-1971-1973 and Stone earned coach-of-the-year three times.

FOLLOWING A decision to deemphasize basketball at Tarleton State, Stone became assistant at Midwestern, which finished 24-10 and lost to Texas Southern in the best-ofthree series for the NAIA regional title. TSU went on the NAIA chamunder murky skies and in annoying wind gusts at Hogan Park Golf Course

The Rebels head into next Friday's third of five 18-hole rounds at Odessa with a 583 total. San Angelo also shot a 290 to maintain its position at 587.

Midland High, howing the day's most consistent golf, shot a 287, low for the day, to move out of a third place tie with Abilene Cooper with a 589, picking up three strokes on the leaders in the process.

Cooper, thanks to a six-under-par 65 by Mike Orren, the day's low round, shot a 289 to gain a stroke on San Angelo and Midland Lee.

ORREN'S ROUND had all the team leaders worried. He started off by eagling the first hole, then picked up birides on two, five, nine, 11, 12 and 13. He bogeyed eight and 18. Fortunately for the front runners, Orren's 65 and Britt Lindsey's 70 were about all the Cougars had going for them. Three 77s rounded out the Cooper scoring and kept them from challenging for the top.

Steve Wise of Midland Lee followed up his 64 at Big Spring with a one-over 72 and a two-round total of 136 to retain the medal lead.

Even with his 65, Orren remained six strokes off the pace after shooting an opening round 77, but even that wasn't good for No. 2. San Angelo's Marshall Browp added a 68 to his 72 in his four previous appearances, allowing 16 hits and seven walks in 11 innings. The Cubs were able to put only three men on base while the lefthander was working, two on singles and one on a walk.

Chicago lost another base runner when Jose Cardenal was tagged out for failing to touch first base after an apparent double

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) - Tom Watson strugged off the nagging memory of last week's collapse, put together a solid, fourunder-pur 67 and established a onestroke lead Prittay in the second round of the $225,000 Sea Pines Heritage Golf Classic

The freekie-fured, red-haired Watson put together a 36-hole total of 134, eight under par for two trips over the 6,655 yards of the Harbour Town Golf Links that winds its way along the marshy coasts of this resort island off the South Carolina coast.

"I just didn't play very well-starting hitting it sideways," Watson replied when asked about the 41 strokes he took over the last nine holes last week, a hinwup that cost him his third wictory of the season in the Tournament Players Cham-

Danny Edwards, a slightlybuilt 26year-old who joined the tour in 1974 and is seeking his first title, came on with a 67 and book second at 135. Edwards, who credits his younger brother Davill, an Okiahoma State student, with helping his game, escaped without a bogey and has had only one in two rounds. Australian Graham Marsh, who shared the first-round lead with Hale Irwin, was the last man off the tee and slipped to a 72 in the chilly, windy weather that plagued the afternoon players. He was third at 137. At 138 were Jerry McGee, Irwin and

Watson leading Heritage golf

Watson's solid effort included birdie putts of 15 to 18 feet on the seventh and eighth holes, short iron approaches that left him birdie putts of four feet on the 15th and one foot on the 16th and set up several other opportunities that got away.

He three-putted for par five on the second, missed birdie from six feet on the fifth and had at least four more putts in a range that could be made.

DEL RIO - The Robert E. Lee cindermen finished third here Friday night in the Queen City Relays, but it was powerful San Angelo who once again stole the thunder and the team title in this three division track meet.

The Bobcats, led by hurdler Neville Leverette and weight man Harold Ledet, piled up 139 points to easily outdistance Seguin for the Division I title. Seguin finished with 100 points. Midland High finished sixth in the nine-team competition, with 34 points.

Ozona, with 225 points, captured the Divisision II team trophy, with Sonora (172) second, and Brackett-ville (55) third. They were the only three teams entered in that class. Seguin received a little consolation for their second place Division I finish behind San Angelo, by edging out the Bobcats for the Division III team title. Seguin had 150 points, while SA was second with 148. The Midland JV's placed fifth with 24, and Lee eighth, with 10 points.

Texas takes 34th straight

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas capitalized on the first inning wildness of Rice pitchers Tim Holder and Ralph Cooley for five runs and the Longhorns went on to an 8-2 Southwest Conference baseball victory over the Rice.

The victory was Texas' 34th in a row this season, believed to be two more than the national collegiate baseball record. The Longhorns are 10-0 in SWC play. Holder walked the first four batters in the first inning and was relieved by Cooley, who walked two more. allowed a run-scoring single to Charles Proske and then threw a wild pitch. Rice countered with two secondinning runs off winning pitcher Kem Wright and Cooley held Texas to one more run until the eighth inning, when Texas tallied twice.

The Owls are now 11-17 for the season and 4-6 in SWC play.

King gains finals in tennis tourney

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) - Billie Jean King needed just 55 minutes to defeat Marcie Louie 6-2, 6-2 in the semifinals of the $20,000 McFarlin Cup women's tennis tournament Friday.

Top-seeded King, playing in her first singles tournament in seven months, will take on San Antonian Mary Hamm in today's finals. They have never played against each other in tournament play. Hamm, the sixth seed, won a tense three-set struggle against Lea Antonopolis of Glendora, Calif., 7-5, 2-6, 7-6 in Friday's other semifinal match. The Hamm-Antonopolis took nearly three hours. The 33-year-old King, a sixtime Wimbledon singles champ, looked like her old self as she used a variety of drop shots and volleys in drubbing her 23-year-old San Francisco foe. King broke serve against Louie in the fourth, sixth and eighth games to take the first set.

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) Texas Ranger manger Frank Lucchesi, the original Mr. Nice Guy, stepped out of character with a bang when he was told three of his players had restrained irate reserve second baseman Lenny Randle from walking out of camp Thursday.

"There is no way Frank Lucchesi is gonna kiss anybody's bleep to stay on this ball club! What's his beef? (Bump) Wills playing second base? Well, that's my prerogative as a manager.'

The storm had been brewing for some time. It started when Ranger officials announced even before spring training that rookie Bump Wills would be the team's second baseman this season.

Wills has almost twice as many more at-bats this spring season than Randle who is under a multi-year contract getting a reported $80,000 a year. Last year he batted .224. Randle stormed out of the clubhouse Thurday after he came in. looked at the lineup card and saw Wills' name instead of his. He packed his gear, said goodbye to a few teammates and then headed for the parking lot, but was stopped by pitchers Gaylord Perry and Bert Blyleven and first baseman Mike Hargrove. "I like Lenny. I understand his situation here, but I don't want to see him do anything that would harm his career," said Perry. "Everybody on this team likes Lenny too much for that." "It's pretty obvious now they don't intend to give me a chance to win the position," Randle said. "Well, I won't et them mess up my career." Lucchesi said the Rangers still intend to use Randle as a utility infielder where he could be an asset to the team, but have no intention of trading him to other teams.

"We don't have to get rid of Ran-dle," Lucchesi said. "His stock has gone down anyway the last couple Lucchesi added: "I am tired of these punks saying play me or trade me. They aren't going to pressure me into doing something I don't want to do. If they don't like it, they can get out of baseball. Let them go find a regular job making that kind of money.

After a while, Lucchesi did have some nice things to say about Randle. "Oh, I don't blame Lenny. Of course he wants to play

The Rangers finished the 12-event

meet with 91 points, well ahead of runnerup Coahoma, which had 68. Eldorado was third with 65, Forsan Forsan fifth, 60, and Ira sixth, 51. Greenwood's Cindy Kay Kimbrow was far and away the outstanding performer in the meet, as she accumulated 43 points, taking three individual firsts and one second, and establishing two new meet records. Ms. Kimbrow's teannate, Cindy Brewer, also set a Greenwood Relays record, winning the shot put with a toss of 33-31/2. Greenwood also won the mile relay event, with a time of 4:26.6. Ms. Kimbrow picked up her three firsts in the triple jump (35-514), long jump (17-7½), and 220-yard dash (25.7). The long junp and 220 marks were both records. The Ranger lass finished a tenth of a second behind Thixton of Forsan in the 100-yard dash, Thixton winning it with a 11.7. But Kinbrow came right back in the 220, and beat Thixton with her record timing. Greenwood will also host the 10-B

Just over 600 players from China, the United States and 60 other countries will notch some 130 hours of spinning and smashing before the champions emerge on April 5.

The dormitories of Birmingham University are overflowing with contestants from countries of all ideologies. There is a five-member Israeli team, surrounded by tight security, as well as eight Arab com-petitors designated the "Palestine-

Gaza Strip'' team.

Black Africans are boycotting the championships, just as they did the 1976 Montreal Olympic Games, because a New Zealand team is taking part. The blacks object to the New Zealanders' continued sporting links with apartheid South Africa.

Early arrivals complained about the playing surface at the Birmingham National Exhibition Center-it is concrete softened only partially by a painted layer of red latex felt.

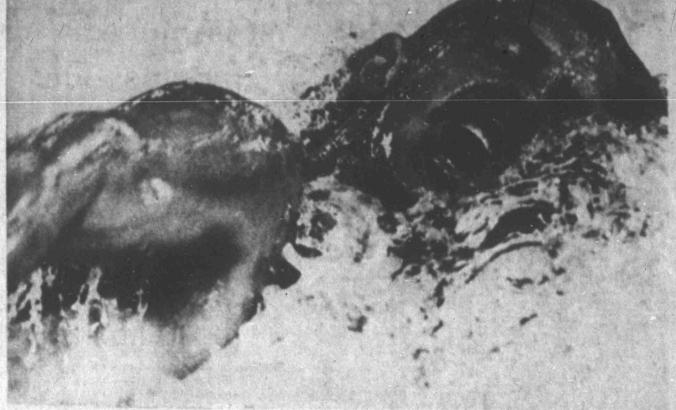

Men's world champion Istvan Jonyer of Hungary found it uncomfortable in a workout Friday, and Peter Simpson, captain of the England team, said "there are going to be a lot of sore muscles."

The 20-member Chinese team is favored to walk away with the men's team title and the individual honors. Table tennis is a national sport in China and contributed significantly to the easing of political tensions bet-ween the United States and Peking when a Chinese team toured the United States in 1971.

COCOA, Fla. (AP)—Ken Boswell's sacrifice fly in the eighth inning drove in the winning run as the Houston Astros defeated the Montreal Expos 5-3 Friday in an exhibition baseball game. Boswell's fly to centerfield scored Rob Andrews, who led off the eighth with a single. Andrews moved to second base on Mike Cosgrove's sacrifice bunt and reached third on Julio Gonzalez' single.

The Expos had tied the game in the top of the eighth when Tony Perez homered off Cosgrove. It was Perez' fourth spring home run.

Gonzalez, who is making a strong bid for Houston's starting second base job as a rookie, had four hits and now is 11 for 19 in his last five games for a .570 average.

Joe Ferguson drove in two other Houston runs. While Al Javier and Enos Cabell each added RBIs for the Astros. Andre Dawson drove in three Expos runs and Wayne Garrett had two hits.

Tribe posts win

YUMA, Ariz.(AP) — Fred Kendall's sacrifice fly snapped a 5-5 deadlock in the ninth inning Friday and led the Cleveland Indians to a 7-5 Cactus League exhibition baseball ctory over the San Diego Padres.

Trailing 5-2 in the eighth, the Padres rallied to tie the game on runscoring singles by Luis Melendez, Mike Ivie and Tucker Ashford. The Indians came back in the ninth on a single by Hector Torres, a double by Ron Pruitt, Kendall's sacrifice fly and Frank Duffy's run-scoring single.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Pinch-hitter Mike Vail singled home Bud Harrelson in the 13th inning to give the New York Mets a 2-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox Friday.

Harrelson opened the 13th with a walk issued by loser Jim Willoughby. After Lee Mazzilli flied out, Vail drove his winning hit over the head of left fielder Carl Yastrzemski.

Tom Seaver of the Mets pitched one-hit ball for five innings, striking out six. Ray Sadecki hurled three more shutout innings before Bob Myrick surrendered the tying run in the ninth on a pinch triple by Bernie Carbo and a single by Steve Billard.

The Mets got their first run in the second when Bruce Boisclair singled, went to third on Ted Cox' throwing error and scored on Ron Hodges sacrifice fly.

Following the game, the Mets an-nounced the acquisition of utility infielder Luis Alvarado from Detroit on a conditional basis.

Brewers prevail

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) - Cecil Cooper hit a 450-foot home run that drove in two runs, and Milwaukee rallied for five runs in the seventh inning to defeat Seattle 11-7 in a wind-blown exhibition baseball game Friday. Cooper's homer triggered the Brewer uprising, which came against ex-Milwaukee pitcher Pete Broberg. Don Money added a single and a triple to the attack, driving in three runs.

Ruppert Jones' two-run triple and Juan Bernhardt's solo homer—which was given a lift by the 40 mile an hour gusts that swirled throughout the game—had helped Seattle to a 7-3 advantage through six innings.

Phils down Yankees

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Garry Maddox and Jerry Martin hit home runs off Catfish Hunter Friday and the Philadelphia Phillies downed the New York Yankees 5-3 in exhibition baseball.

Maddox hit the first pitch of the game over the left field wall. Martin's homer in the fourth also scored Dave Johnson and Richie Hebner.

Reggie Jackson homered off Wayne Twitchell for the Yankees in a two-run fourth. They got their third run in the sixth on a sacrifice fly by Ron Blomberg. The Phils scored again in the seventh when Bobby Tolan singled and Fred Andrews doubled.

Namath may join LA Rams

FREEPORT, Grand Bahamas (AP) - New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath stands a good chance of playing for Los Angeles next season if his savaged knees can pass the club's physical, Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom said Friday.

"Of course we're in-terested in Namath if he can help us," said Rosenbloom, on vacation here, "But it's all important to know if he'll pass our physical and our doctor's physical."

Rosenbloom told the Nassau Tribune in an interview that no decision would be made until he returns to Los Angeles, probably next week.

Jimmy Walsh, Namath's agent, said Thursday in Los Angeles that Namath, who quarterbacked the Jets for 12 years, has been given permission to be traded to the Rams. Namath has said he would like to be near Hollywood and the movie industry.

Rosenbloom said talks about Namath had been going on for a long time and that "obviously Namath wants to join a good club where he gets good protection, can play effectively and go out in a

Fred Lynn is injured against Bucs

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) Fred Lynn, Boston's slugging out-fielder who tore up an ankle on the basepaths, was scratched Friday from the lineup for the Red Sox' American League opener April 7 against the Cleveland Indians.

After examination by an orthopedic specialist, Lynn's left lower leg was placed in a cast for "about two tweeks." He suffered a torn ligament on the outside of his ankle when his spikes caught Thursday in an exhibition game against Pittsburgh.

"I don't feel any pain and I'm not taking any medication, but I'm going to be in the cast for two weeks," said Lynn, the all-star center fielder, who won the AL Most Valuable Player and Rookie of the Year awards in 1975.

"Luckily, I'm in good shape and have a good spring training. As long as this was going to happen, this is the time to have it. I don't know how long it will take me to get back after the cast comes off. However, we don't have many games in April. If this had happened in the middle of the season, I'd miss a lot more games."

Despite the cast, Lynn said he would resume working out next week. "I intend to go to the park and hit and throw," he said. "That should help me until I can start running again."

Lynn hit .331 with 21 homers, 47 doubles, seven triples and 105 runs batted in in 1975. Last year, while negotiating a rich, multi-year con-tract, he hit .314 with 10 homers and 65

With Lynn healthy, the Red Sox' outfield is set, Carl Yastrzemski and Jim Rice sharing left and the designated hitter role and Dwight

Rick Miller, an outstanding fielder, usually is Lynn's understudy in center. However, Evans also has played center. Veteran Bernie Carbo is available to play either left or right.

Two other key members of the Red Sox, veteran righthanded pitchers Rick Wise and Ferguson Jenkins, joined Lynn in hobbling around. Wise suffered a bruised foot when hit by his batted ball during practice Thursday, while Jenkins suffered a slight hamstring pull while docking his boat

Connor scores an ace

BY REX WORRELL Hogan Park golf pro

Gene Connor has never seen a holein-one scored during his golfing career, and he missed an excellent opportunity this past week, when his son Tommy scored a one on number three hole at Hogan Park Golf Course.

Gene had looked away during Tommy's swing and missed seeing this perfect shot. Tommy's ace is our first hole-in-one recorded on number three this year.

The American Golf Tour has left the Permian Pasin and our players for the most part thoroughly enjoyed playing in the Pro-Am Tournament they conducted last Monday, and following the professionals' play during the 54-hole event.

The AGT looks to be a promising tournament format for aspiring young golfers. We wish them continued success and would look forward to seeing them back in the years

For the junior golfers, we now have applications available for the Northern Texas PGA Golf Academy to be held at North Texas State University. We have discussed it's format with Clayton Cole, and this year's Academy will have an outstanding program for interested juniors.

Tuition is $225.00 per session and anyone interested in attending should fill out their application as soon as possible. Sessions will be held June 12-18, June 19-25, June 25-July 2, and July

This Thursday, the ladies at Hogan Park will play Bingo, Bango, Bongo with the following pairings set:

18-hole division: Nell Kimball, Jane Wagner and Florence Mailey; Chata Mee, Connie Kerns, Merla Ketner and Golda Morgan; Muriel Inman, Dottie Turk and Shirley Edwards; Alvina Hill Linda Ballard and Cheryl Hill, Linda Ballard and

Yarborough knocks Bennett out of lead

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) - Cale Yarborough's last-minute run knocked Neil Bennett out of the lead Friday in the opening round of qualifying trials for today's Gwyn Staley 400 stock car race.

Yarborough drove his Chevrolet around the five-eighths of a mile asphalt track at 108.085 miles an hour after getting on the track one minute before the 4 p.m. deadline.

Second-year driver Bennett had ruled the roost with a 108.012 run in a Dogde before Yarborough showed up. Yarborough is the defending Winston Cup champion and winner of two races here last year. He is the favorite to win the pole position, which will be decided today when the fastest eight cars make additional runs and two-day averages will determine the first eight starting berths.

Bennett drove the same car Friday which Dave Marcis used in setting the track record of 108.585 a year ago.

Third-fastest Friday was Chevrolet driver Benny Parsons, a former

Richard Petty, winner of the past two series races and sixtime NASCAR Grand National champion, was fourth with a 107.599 time. Petty is a 13-time North Wilkesboro winner and shares the favorite's role with Yarborough. The final round of qualifying will be held from 1 to 1:30 p.m., EST, today when the entry list of 40 cars will be trimmed to 30 starters for the $73,465

Also on today's schedule for 3 p.m. is a 100-mile race for compact cars in the Baby Grand division.

Sunday's race will start at 2 p.m. Friday's top eight qualifiers, who are assured of starting berths, are Cale Yarborough, Timmonsville, S.C., Chevrolet, 108.085; Neil Bennett, Hueytown, Ala., Dodge, 108.012; Benny Parsons, Ellerbe, N.C., Chevrolet, 107.686; Richard Petty, Randleman, N.C., Dodge, 107.599; Darrell Waltrip, Franklin, Tenn., Chevrolet, 107.496; Buddy Baker, Charlotte, N.C., Ford, 107.368; Bobby Allison, Hueytown, Ala., Matador, 106.529, and Richard Childress, Winston-Salem, N.C., Chevrolet, 106.252.

VanWagner remembers final play

NEW YORK (AP) - Even now, Jim VanWagner finds it difficult to talk about the last play of the 1976 college football season, a play that cost him an unprecedented third consecutive national Division II rushing championship.

"It breaks my heart every time I think about it," VanWagner said Thursday night shortly before accepting an award from Football Roundup Magazine as an exemplary player in the College Division ranks.

It was one of those rare head-to-head showdowns. VanWagner was leading Ted McKnight going into the final game, but his Michigan Technological University team was trailing McKnight and Minnesota-Duluth 21-14 as the seconds ticked away. "He had an 80-yard run that almost ate up my lead," VanWagner recalled, "but I still had him by one yard per game. There was maybe 15 seconds left and we threw a long third-down pass which was intercepted with just enough time for one play." Naturally, the ball went to McKnight, who scampered for 28 yards. That gave him a season's average of 148.2 yards a game to 145.4 for Van-Even had VanWagner won out, chances are his fame wouldn't have spread much beyond the Michigan Tech campus in Houghton, way up north on Michigan's Upper Peninsula near Lake Superior where the scores sometimes have to be shipped down by dogsled. That's a fact of small college football life.

It's also a fact that VanWagner wound up his career with 4,788 yards. In NCAA history, only Pitt's Tony Dorsettn Ohio State's Archie Griffin and Jerry Linton of Panhandle State have rushed for more.

"Sometimes I look back and think it would have been nice to have been pampered like you are at a big college," he said. "I was never on a full ride—tuition During the labor strife, and books was the most I ever got-and I never Keating was traded from played on national TV. the Super Bowl champion
