Big Spring officials ready for future without air base

By ED TODD R-T Staff Writer

BIG SPRING - Big Spring Mayor Wade Choate, who for the past year has been an outspoken critic of the U.S. Air Force's proposal to close Webb Air Force Base here, has passively accepted the Air Force's latest decree: to kill off the base.

But he's not giving up on the economic plight that will suddenly strike this community when the undergraduate pilot training (UPT) base is shut down six months from

"We have done all that we can do," the mayor said Wednesday af-ternoon in a news conference in the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce building.

"(Now is the) time for us to make a turn around and to go in a different

That different direction, he explained, will be in trying to bring in new industries and businesses to more than make up for Webb's imminent demise.

"... The city, county and surrounding areas are behind our continued industrial growth and development in the community," he

"And there is no doubt in my mind that we will succeed in our efforts."

Webb's closing, justified in part by the decreased need for pilots in peacetime, will mean a direct payroll loss of $30 million annually and a $50 million reduction in regional economic output. Webb AFB, in short, accounts for an estimated 11 per cent of the Big Spring area's total economic output.

With Webb's closure will come soaring unemployment rate - from almost 3 per cent to 13 per cent, say economic analysts.

And Choate, like his comrades-inarms seated beside him at the news conference, appeared calm, undisturbed and not particularly surprised by Webb's decreed fate.

Pro-Webbers siding with the mayor were Chamber President Roger Brown and County Judge Bill Brown said he dared not project the economic impact of the base's closure. "We've never passed this way before, and we're going to fight as hard as we can ... to fight this economic depression," said Brown, (In truth, at least in one respect,

Big Spring has "passed this way before." That was in the closing of a bombardier school here shortly after World World II. But late in 1951, the airstrip that was the old bombardier base was reopened as a pilot training base.)

Brown expressed confidence that Big Spring soon will regain the economic loss it will suffer by the closing of Webb.

"I'm an eternal optimist," he said, "and I think that we will have a period of (economic) adjustment.'

Though the closure will drop Big Spring into temporary economic slump, "the final recovery is (will be) better than before," Brown said.

The economic base of this city of 30,000 is largely grounded in the petrochemical and oil and gas industries, in farming and ranching, and in the military base.

Webb's closing will more or less coincide with the shutdowns of Craig AFB at Selma, Ala., and of Kincheloe AFB in Michigan. Craig is one of seven Air Force undergraduate pilot training (UPT) bases. Kincheloe serves the Stragetic Air Command.

In justifying the closing of the bases, Secretary of the Air Force Thomas C. Reed said the "streamlining of our organization and reducing overhead . . . are necessary if we are to modernize our combat

The measure will "save at least $75 million per year," he said in a prepared statement from the nation's

"There is no alternative to such actions in light of the hard realities of defense budgeting," Reed said. He said the closure of Webb "is a

BIG SPRING - The Air Force, like it or not, is bailing out of Big Spring. And some folks, like cotton farmer Jack Walker, just don't give much of a hoot that Webb Air Force Base is closing up shop.

Others do care. And some may be deviously pleased about the prospect. But it doesn't much matter to

"To me," he said, "it doesn't make any difference. I'm a cotton farmer, and I don't think that will affect the price of cotton."

Fostering a differing viewpoint was Big Spring barber Jim Caldwell. We don't like it, but what can we do about it?" Caldwell said. "We think it's all politics - I do," he said of the closing of the pilot

He figured that Webb is a top-flight

"This is the best, the cheapest, base in the whole command. I think it's dirty politics, myself." Caldwell reckoned that the Air Force erred in not shutting down another base and leaving Webb in peace. Webb hould have been spared, he said, because of its efficiency as a jet pilot training base and because of the negative economic impact the shutdown will have on the community and area.

The closing of Webb "doesn't make sense," he said. "I'm bitterly against it. It's politics - that's what it is.'

Even some of those in the military possibly share Caldwell's viewpoint. "I just got through cutting the hair of a major here," he said, "and he's just as upset as we are."

Fellow barber Larry Knight, also, was a bit peeved over the imminent shutdown. "The damn taxes are going to go up a hell of a lot," he said. He even went as far as to say that the Air Force's studies on the environmental impact of the closing "were a farce." The Air Force conducted two impact studies.

"Then we picked it (the first one) to pieces, and they came out with another one. And it says the same thing,' Knight said.

BONN, West Germany (AP) U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said today that the Somiet Union had rejected a "very fair package" of American proposals to reduce nuclear weapons.

Vance, stopping over in Bonn on his way back to Washington from Moscow, said the American proposals on Page 7A had included provisions dealing with key Russian worries about the development of a new U.S. Cruise missile and critical U.S. worries about the Russian Backfire bomber

The U.S. proposals "sought to strike a fair balance while at the same time reducing the number of weapons which both sides would have also put a freeze upon the further development for the future," Vance told reporters after spending five hours in Bonn, where he met with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt. Vance refused to characterize as a threat President Carter's statement that he might be forced to consider speeding up U.S. weapons development if the Soviet Union failed to negotiate "in good faith" at another round of arms talks in May.

Vance was seen off in Bonn by West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher. He was to spend the night in London and visit Paris Friday to brief British and French officials on his fruitless five-day attempt in Moscow to break the deadlock over a new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty—SALT.

Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev on Wednesday rejected two alternative American proposals, but Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko agreed to meet again in

"In my judgment this has been a useful visit," Vance told reporters at the Moscow airport. "Our objective was not a simple one. Reaching agreement on arms control measures can't be accomplished overnight.

"In the meantime, I'm sure that both sides will study the matter which we discussed and will find that their objectives are similar.

More failure awaited Vance in Bonn, where West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt on Wednesday night rejected the Carter administration's urging that it modify its nuclear deal with Brazil and do more to stimulate the West German economy as an aid to international economic recovery.

Confessed killer gets 10 years probation

A Midland man pleaded guilty Wednesday to charges of voluntary manslaughter in the Dec. 31, 1974, shooting of a young Midland man.

The man, James Darrell Harris, received a sentence of 10 years probation and a fine of $2,000.

He originally was charged with murder in the death of Harold Lee King, 16, who was found by Midland police in a bedroom of the Harris home, 4210 Pasadena Drive, shot once through the head with a small caliber

Harris pleaded guilty to the lesser offense of voluntary manslaughter. District Court Judge Perry D. Pickett said he accepted the plea and sentence on the recommendation of District Attorney Vern Martin.

Martin said his office recommended the plea and sentence because the lawyers thought it was appropriate under the circumstances. The only eyewitness to the shooting was Harris' wife, Jami Sue Harris, who was prohibited by law from testifying against her husband. Any person found guilty of com-miting a felony, except for capital

Errant elk make great escape

By JIM STEINBERG

It may not have been "The Great Escape," but the chase scene was fantastic this morning when an 800pound bull elk and his 600-pound female companion (a cow elk) scampered to freedom briefly this morning from their enclosure at the Midland's Cole Park Zoo.

The pair was first reported to police about 7 a.m. when they were grazing cautiously on land north of the park entrance. A round-up with four police cars and three pickup trucks herded the fugitive wapiti back to an alfalfa field on a return route to the zoo.

There the elk, apparently deciding to have a little fun before going back home, doubled back on their fourwheeled pursuers. At times it was hard to tell who was rounding up whom as the elk danced from side to side and the vehicles clumsily squeaked and groaned through the heavily pitted field.

Finally the elk paused, allowing a zoo official time to shoot the big, antlerless bull with a tranquilizer

It had no effect and the chase

By 8:30 a.m. the elk had apparently had enough, and allowed the cars and trucks to escort them back to their enclosure.

Once inside, the former fugitives gulped down a few quarts of water and eagerly began eating while their keepers secured the gate.

The escape was caused when unknown persons pried open the lock on the elk enclosure gate, according to zoo officials. Whoever did that is lucky. The bull elk just dropped his antlers yesterday. They are very aggressive when they have those and might have attacked," Bob Cooper, zoo director,

Pilot kills servicemen, stewardess

ZAMBOANGA, The Philippines (AP) — The pilot of a chartered airliner carrying military men on leave went berserk during the flight today, stepped out of the cockpit and opened fire with an automatic rifle, killing seven passengers and a stewardess, authorities said.

Other crew members and passengers aboard the twin-engine DC3 overpowered Capt. Ernesto Abuloc, officials said, and copilot Rolando Suarez landed the plane in this southern Philippine city.

Lt. Alejandro Morados, local head of aviation security, said it was not known what caused the pilot to go on a rampage. His weapon was an M16 rifle that one of the passengers hd deposited with the cockpit crew before the takeoff, Morados said. The dead included seven soldiers and sailors and 26-yearold Margaret Lim, a stewardess whose father. Capt. Jacob Lim, owns the charter line, Swiftair of Zamboanga.

SNOW AND RAIN are predicted for Colorado, Nebraska and Wyoming, according to the National Weather Service. Rain is also expected for portions of the Gulf States and snow flurries are due in Maine. (AP Laserphoto)

The barber shop's shoe shiner, 73-year-old Charlie Boland, said the Air Force should have spent money on building a third runway at Webb, rather than sinking half a million dollars on studies to justify closing Webb and two additional bases.

League president, city's mayor spar over charter amendment

By JIM STEINBERG

"It's paternalism of the first order for a (city) council from the same section of town to think it can fully represent all of Midland," Betty Sheeler, president of the Midland League of Women Voters, said in favor of the proposed single-member district city charter amendment.

But taking the other side in what was at times a spirited debate Wednesday, Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. said, "There is no basis for changing to the ward system when the present system is providing good government for Midland.

Both spoke before the noon Wednesday meeting of the Downtown

Calling Midland "exactly the right size" for a single-member district concept as presented in the amendment proposal, Mrs. Sheeler said minority representation is not really representation for everyone west of Midkiff Drive and south of Illinois Avenue, something the present system does not do," Mrs. Sheeler

But Angelo called the proposed switch to ward representation one that would result in a "divisive process that would pit race against race, and neighborhood against neighborhood."

Countering, Mrs. Sheeler pointed out that two council members would still be elected at large and that they would be a "unifying force, adding community-wide perspective to the council and educating district representatives on the broader citywide needs.'

They, in turn, would return to their wards and relay these citywide problems to their constituency, she

"It's ridiculous to say that the only way to be represented on the council is to have someone your own race have a seat. Look at the heavy expenditures this council has approved for the south side of town," Angelo

"But there are many things that have been ignored by this council. Public transportation and a public defender are examples. If the city did switch over to the single-member district there would be a subtle shift in priority, to more clearly represent the textures of Midland," Mrs. Sheeler

One heated exchange centered around whether a shift to the singlemember district would provide minorities a better chance for a seat on the council.

Mrs. Sheeler said she felt minority group members could not hope to gain the broad popularity needed to land a seat under the present at-large voting system. Angelo disagreed, saying not enough energy has been expended by minority members to achieve a citywide base - a task he feels is not impossible.

Critical of the present council's purported lack of interest in all of Midland's neighborhoods, Mrs. Sheeler noted that during a recent hearing for future use of community development funds only one councilman showed up.

"It was the night of the chamber of commerce banquet," she said, explaining her viewpoint on where their interest lies.

Angelo then made a charge of his own, saying "it's not the city council that doesn't care. It's the people."

"At that particular meeting there were not more than half-a-dozen people who come week after week and say the same thing. We need to get more people involved in govern-

Mrs. Sheeler says Amarillo ad untrue

An ad opposing the single-member district city charter amendment contains false information, Betty Sheeler, president of the League of Women Voters of Midland, said

The Committee for Continued Unity placed an advertisement in Tuesday's Reporter-Telegram which said that Amarillo had a ward system and changed back to the at-large system because the system was "divisive."

Mrs. Sheeler said she checked with the city attorney and individuals with the Amarillo League of Women Voters who studied that city's system of electing its city officials. She was told, she said, the city had never used a single-member district or ward

Telegram Wednesday the basic form of government has not been changed since 1913 when the charter was passed

Amarillo has commissioners, rather than city councilmen. In 1955, the charter was amended to increase the number of commissioners from three to five but the method of electing those commissioners did not change, Cheatham said.

Mrs. Sheeler said she hopes voters will "make their judgments based on solid information. When political advertising includes material which is not founded in fact, then I hope that persons will notice the contradiction between what the advertisement says and what the city attorney in Amarillo

"Closure of Webb AFB will balance the applicable operational, resource and environmental considerations: provide a prudent expansion capability and achieve significant manpower and dollar economics.
"While the socio-economic impact on the Big Spring, Texas, community will be substantial, a variety of state and federal assistance and adjustment programs are available to help mitigate this impact," Reed said.

The facilities at Webb AFB may be turned over to either the City of Big Spring or to Howard County, Brown

"Among the possible uses of the property are industrial sites and buildings, school and educational activities, medical facilities and an air terminal operation," the chamber president said.

Perhaps it was no consolation at all to the pro-Webbers, but the secretary of the Air Force more or less explained why five of the seven UPT bases were saved from closure:

Mahon said he assumes the closing is final. "We had been told that the base would be closed months ago. We've done everything in our power to keep it open," he said.

Mahon said he would do everything he can for the people of Big Spring to help them recover from the economic blow of the closing.

Congressional sources said there were two possible ways to reverse the decision, but neither look very

The first would be to persuade the Air Force to change its mind and close two different bases, and Tower said he would use the Senate Armed Services Committee as a vehicle for demanding that the Air Force justify its decision.

The second route would be through the congressional appropriations process. The 1978 budget assumes the two bases will be closed. An addition to the budget for operation and maintenance of the base might persuade the Air Force to keep the base open. Mahon is chairman of the House defense appropriations subcommittee, but there has been little interest in adding the needed funds, a committee source said

WASHINGTON - The House Budget Committee, under strong pressure from the House leadership, reversed itself Wednesday and restored to the 1978 budget funds for water resource projects that President Carter wants to kill.

In a surprise vote Monday, the committee overrode the objections of majority leader Jim Wright (D-Tex.) and chairman Robert N. Giaimo (D-Conn.) and trimmed $280 million from its tentative 1978 budget to prevent Congress from restoring any dams or other water projects that the President opposes.

But two Democrats - Thomas L.

Ashley of Ohio and David R. Obey of Wisconsin - switched their votes, and Rep. Omar Burleson (D-Tex.), who did not vote Monday, voted to restore the funds Wednesday. So the narrow 13-to-11 defeat Wednesday.

The committee approved a move by Wright to return $265 million of the $280 million it cut Monday. Earlier this month, in probably the biggest political setback the fledging administration has faced, the Senate overwhelming rejected any of the $289 million in cutbacks opposed by

The House Budget Committee again rebuffed Wright's attempt to boost the level of defense spending closer to the $111.95 billion recommended by President Carter in his Feb. 22 budget proposals. The committee has decided to spend $2.3 billion less for defense than the President proposed in the federal spending year, which begins Oct. 1, 1977.

The committee also rejected a move by Rep. Otis Pike (D-N.Y.) that would have put it on record as opposing the recent 29 per cent congressional pay hike and putting Congressional salaries back to their 1976 level at the start of the next fiscal year. The committee instead adopted a substitute by Rep. Paul Simon (D-Ill.) which simply said it opposed any cost-of-living raises next October.

Wright said he has no objection to the President's reexamination of the 30 water projects, but he said that, by deleting the funds, the committee is prejudging the situation. The total cost of the 30 projects is $530 million in ifscal 1978 and could run as high as $7 billion before the projects are com-

Ashley, one of the two Democrats who switched his vote, told reporters later he found convincing Wright's arguments that deleting the funds prejudges the President's decision.

Assassinations panel given new lease on life by House's vote

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House assassinations committee, granted two years to do its work, will "lay to rest all the rumors and rumors of rumors" about the murders of John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr., its chairman promises.

A sharply divided House extended the committee's life through 1978 by a vote of 230 to 181 on Wednesday after its controversial chief counsel, Richard A. Sprague, resigned.

Chairman Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, said an unofficial count had indicated that if Sprague had not resigned, the committee might have been killed by some 20 votes. He and other panel members praised Sprague and said he had been unfairly maligned by the committee's former chairman, Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex.

Gonzalez guit the panel last month when its members and the House leadership refused to back his attempt to fire Sprague.

Stokes said he expects to obtain a $2.7 million budget this year. At one point, the panel had asked for $6.5

Stokes told the House the committee is pursuing new leads and talking to new witnesses.

That effort was defeated 226 to 185 on Stokes' argument that leaks of the witnesses' names could put some of their lives in danger.

Rep. B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., complained that at a closed briefing on the evidence, "the only thing I heard was that you have evidence that X overheard Y and Z say something." Stokes cut short a news conference his contention that a man who reportedly committed suicide in Florida on Tuesday would have been "a crucial witness." George de Mohrenschildt, 65, a

when he was asked repeatedly about

Russian-born geologist who was a friend of Lee Harvey Oswald, was found dead of a shotgun wound at his daughter's home in Manalapan, Fla., a few hours after a House assassinations committee investigator tried to see him.

A Dutch journalist, Willem Oltmans, who had interviewed de Mohrenschildt, told the panel last month that the geologist felt some responsibility for the Kennedy assassination, apparently because he had an indication of what Oswald might do and did not act to stop it.

No' on amendments

Four proposed amendments to Midland's city charter will be before the voters in Saturday's city election.

Amendment No.1 would provide for the city council to include a mayor and six councilmen, beginning in 1979, with the mayor and councilmen for Places 4 and 5 to be elected at large and the councilmen for Places 1, 2, 3 and 6 residing in and being elected only by voters residing in defined areas or wards.

The council presently is made up of a mayor and five councilmen, all elected at large.

The No. 2 amendment, as proposed, would limit mayors and councilmen to three consecutive terms in office, beginning with those elected on or after Saturday's election.

The existing charter places no limit on periods of service of mayors or councilmen.

The proposed No. 3 amendment would require vacancies on the council to be filled by special election when the unexpired term is nine months or longer or when two or more vacancies occur at the same time. It also would determine that a vacancy exists when a person elected or appointed fails to take the oath of office within 10 days.

Vacancies presently are filled by appointment by the council. Amendment No. 4 would repeal the present section of the charter authorizing an appeal of ad valorem tax valuations to the city

The Reporter-Telegram, seeing no particular benefits to be lerived from any of the proposed changes, recommends voter rejection of all four of the amendments as proposed.

In the first place, Midland has had and yet has excellent city councils composed of dedicated persons interested in community betterment and serving unselfishly, often at great personal sacrifice, in the best interests of the entire city and its residents. Politics has not entered the picture. The Tall City is recognized far and wide as having one of the best city governments anywhere.

It would be a shame to disrupt such an efficient procedure which has worked and is working so well and in the best interests of the community as a whole.

It should be pointed out also that the council must be doing a most satisfactory job for all concerned, or there would be more persons seeking places on the council in Saturday's election.

It appears that the greatest hazard resulting from singlemember districts, as proposed, would be the divisive factor involved. The districts could create division rather than cooperation throughout the city. There is no way to have every single group or element represented on the council. Single-member areas soon would be competing with each other for tax dollars, to the detriment of the overall community. Serious divisions and ill feelings among the residents of the various wards could result.

Partisan ward politics generally

good city government.

Odessa operates under a modified version of the singlemember district plan and it reportedly hasn't worked to the overall satisfaction in that neighboring city. It couldn't be expected to work any better here. Other West Texas cities have tried the single-district plan and most of them have switched back to the at-large method of electing city officials.

As to the proposed limiting of terms of office for mayors and councilmen, we believe that this matter should rest with the voters at the various times when the officials seek re-election. There is no reason why mayors and councilmen doing excellent jobs should not be permitted to at least seek re-election as long as they desire. The voters will determine how long they are to remain in

Neither do we have any complaint with the present method of filling vacancies on the council, or in the manner of appealing ad valorem tax valuations.

Again, the important thing is to express your views on the amendments and other matters in Saturday's election.

Secretary Califano's breakthrough cited

WASHINGTON - There has been much to-do about Secretary of HEW's Joseph Califano hiring a chef-cook for his private dining room. The problem is that the job description, written in bureaucratic terms, mentioned all the chef's duties except the fact that he would actually cook

I have a copy of the job description as outlined by HEW. Since I am always looking for the joker in any government document, it is my opinion that Mr. Califano was not just trying to hire a cook but was experimenting with language that he could use in describing the duties of a housewife. The Secretary of HEW has said that one of his priorities is family planning, and I think this particular memo was a trial balloon to see if it could be adapted to making the lot of the housewife sound more respectable.

If you substitute "husband" for "secretary" and add "wife" to "incumbent" you will see how aptly the memo fits.

INTRODUCTION: This position is established to provide a confidential assistant to the husband to assist him in providing a broad range of personal services for special activities. The Incumbent-Wife must have the full confidence of the husband to handle the determination regarding the special ac-

Sit-ins planned by handicapped

By JACK ANDERSON and LES

WASHINGTON - Thousands of handicapped Americans may risk being wheelchaired off to jail in a militant attempt to shut down government offices in 10 cities.

The disabled are furious over what they see as a retreat by President Jimmy Carter on his promises to help the nation's 28 million handicapped. They are secretly planning a sit-in at the offices of Health, Education and weitare Secretary Joseph Califano and his nine top regional assistants.

The handicapped, in what would be their most forceful protest in history, are also considering blocking traffic with wheelchairs and vans. They attracted national attention in 1973 when they ringed the Nixon White House with wheelchairs.

Sometime after April 4, unless Carter acts on their demands, blind mothers, palsied children and medalwearing paraplegics from Vietnam plan to swarm into the HEW offices. Already, placards are being designed. chants written and a network of recruiters set up for the handicapped in Washington, New York, Atlanta, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, San Francisco, Seattle and Denver.

The anger among handicapped people stems in part from Carter's dramatic campaign promise to make the disabled "active partners in our attempts to achieve ... full civil rights." Carter blasted the Ford administration for refusing to enforce equal rights laws for handicapped jobseekers. The disabled took Carter at his word and supported him by large majorities.

After Califano took over HEW, one of his first actions was to stall even further by appointing a task force to study the equal rights regulations. Handicapped people felt they had been betrayed once again.

Dr. Frank Bowe, director of the American Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities, vented the handicapped's frustration in a private letter to Carter.

"Vast numbers of us endorsed your candidacy and worked vigorously for your election " Bowe reminded the president. Bitterly describing Carer's delays on equal empl opportunities for the disabled, he said: "We are dismayed by this apparent breach of faith." If action is not taken by April 4, he warned, the handicapped will be forced to "implement nationwide political activities."

FLU FIASCO - The nation's swine flu fiasco may be discredited even further. The General Accounting Office is about to issue its findings on the severly mismanaged anti-flu program. In the meantime, we have learned the following:

- The government has approved the use of several flu vaccines in people despite lab tests that raised serious questions about their safety. In one test, one out of four guinea pigs died after receiving the same vaccine that caused widespread illness in humans.

- Tests on vaccines similar to swine flu made some people severly ill. Critics therefore warned that the swine flu shots might cause nervous disorders such as the Guillaine-Barre syndrome, which paralyzes the head

- As early as last June, researchers at New York's Mt. Sinai School of Medicine knew that the anticipated outbreak of swine flu probably would never occur. This was discovered by Rep. Henry Waxman, D.-Calif., who was told by federal scientists that the government has not adequately tested the long-range effect of flu shots.

- Waxman has now quietly pressured Rep. Paul Rogers, D.-Fla.. a health subcommittee chairman, into holding hearings on the flu foulup. Critics say Rogers had been reluctant because he was an early and vocal supporter of the program. - One of the four swine flu vaccine manufacturers, Parke-Davis, accidentally made six million doses of vaccine from the wrong virus. The mistake wasn't discovered until the vaccine had been injected into many unsuspecting people. - The program's price tag has skyrocketed because of unforeseen personnel and other costs. More than 188 lawsuits, totalling $17.3 million, already have been filed against the Researchers aren't even sure

"dead virus" vaccines really protect against the flu. A little-noticed study for the Center for Disease Control found that such vaccines "have little, if any, effectiveness."

A government spokesman insisted that flu vaccines have been given adequate long-range tests.

...Incumbent-Wife must have an extremely confidential relationship with the husband.

While Mr. Califano was talking about hiring a cook it seems to me that any wife would jump at the chance to be known as a "Confidential Assistant" to her husband. When asked her profession, no longer would she be embarrassed to put down on an application form: "Housewife."

At parties, when someone asked her what she did, she could proudly say, "I coordinate and insure the needs of special groups, including relatives. who visit our house. Perhaps the program will take electric golf carts off the fairways and put them on the freeways, where they belong.

Carter's energy proposal might very well bring about the control of every thermostat in the country by a master switch located in a bunker in Montana.

White House lends large, sympathetic ear to all

WASHINGTON — It could be that the Carter Administration bit off more than it can chew again by lending a sympathetic ear to the National Gay Task Force in a three-hour White House meeting. With heroic sweeping gestures for human rights, the Carterfolk seem to want to love and champion everybody in the whole wide world. The question here is not whether the gays have legitimate complaints bout discrimination. Rather, it's a matter of what happens once the White House allows a group with greivances to come in for a long neeting. Will this start a neverending troupe of pleaders to the White House wailing wall? It is Margaret "Midge" Constanza, ongtime activist, now an assistant to the President, who hosted the gay delegation, and thus established a White House precedent. Heretofore, all Presidents have turned away from requests by homosexual groups for an audience.

Whatever, Ms. Constanza clearly sympathizes with the plight of homosexuals and said after the meeting that she made a commitment to get them meetings with representatives of various government agen-cies with an eye to redress their

One participant in the meeting calld it "a happy milestone on the road to full equality for gay men and women." Another said she was surprised how the Carter Administration opened doors "for us." Now Midge Constanza is a warm and extraordinarily broad-minded woman. She alone stood for Mr. Carter in New York State when support for him there was as scarce as peanut bushes. She seems to be a natural for the White House public liaison office, a job once held by Charles Colson before he was born

Anyway, Ms. Constanza really believes in letting any group, pro-viding they are unarmed and don't wear hoods, into her White House premises so they can air their troubles. She has even provided putcall service by going to the White House gates and listening to the protestations of any petitioners.

Thus far, Ms. Constanza and her deputies have held meetings with groups representing a pro-amnesty viewpoint, native Americans, the anti-B-1 bomber crowd, various business associations (including the Chamber of Commerce), Boy Scouts, the Women's Strike for Peace, sympathizers with the Irish Republican Army, Arab-Americans, Jewish Americans, the handicapped and consumer advocacy.

She and her helpers have not yet seen either the pro or anti-abortion organizations, Anita Bryant (intrepid campaigner against homosexual organizations), the legalize-marijuana crowd, the Jewish Defense League, the Ku Klux Klan or the Transylvania Marching and Musical

"I would be happy to see any or all of them, but not at once," she explains. "I hope the meetings don't go to three hours, but the one we had with the gay rights group did. People have a right to be heard."

Ah, does the generous woman understand what she might be getting into? Is there coffee and tea enough in the White House to serve the legions of people in the republic who feel hurt and unhappy? Are there towels enough to wipe away all those tears?
Some politicians get calluses on their hands from too many handshaking reception lines. Could the likes of Midge Constanza develop raw palms from holding too many hands? Priests confined to stuffy confessionals have complained about all the misery and bad breath which come to their faces as the vale of human tears is shed.

Can Midge Constanza take it? Oh, yes, she can take it. And she always seems to find something uplifting to say on parting. After her long sessions with the homosexuals Saturday, this is what Midge Constanza said:

"It is unfortunate that such a large segment of citizens in this country have felt left out of the participation in government that touches their lives. Citizens in the United States have a right to meet with agencies. People have been slaves to government for a long time. Now they just want equal footing with it."

Crash probe centering on tapes

SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIFE, Canary Islands (AP) - The Spanish air controllers at the Santa Cruz airport followed proper procedure and gave instructions in correct English to the KLM and Pan American airliners that collided on the runway four days ago, one of the investigators seeking the cause of aviation's worst disaster reports.

The two controllers who were on duty Sunday were interviewed Wednesday by American and Dutch investigators.

Authorities said the cockpit recorders from both of the Boeing 747 jumbo jets were being flown to Washington for analysis in the presence of KLM and Pan Am personnel who could identify the voices.

William R. Haley, the chief U.S. investigator, said the recorders should show all conversation among the flight crews and between the planes and the tower in the crucial minutes before the collision that killed 577 persons. It was hoped that the tapes could answer two big questions about the crash - why the KLM pilot began his takeoff run without permission and whether the Pan Am jet should have still been on the runway when the Dutch plane crashed into it. The KLM pilot was Capt. Z.A Veldhuizen van Zanten, 51, one of the Van Reisen maintained that the Pan Am plane passed an exit called C-3 at which it had been ordered to turn off onto a parallel taxiway and was proceeding to the next exit, C-4. Americans say the Pan Am pilot was following instructions and the C-3 exit was at an angle impossible for a 747 to turn into.

The Pan Am jet, piloted by Capt. Victor Grubbs of Centerport, N.Y., was just short of C-4 when the KLM jet began its takeoff run. Grubbs tried to get his plane off the runway, but the Dutch jet smashed into it at a 45degree angle.

Grubbs, 56, who was flown to the United States Tuesday night with other survivors, said in an interview he heard the KLM pilot report he was taking off and shouted into microphone, "Tell them not to take off. We're still on the runway!" But some sources said his mike may have been set for communication within the plane since the copilot usually communicates with the tower.

"Looking back at the rubble, I first thought to myself, 'Look what I've done to those people," said Grubbs in a hospital interview with The Associated Press. "But in my heart I's knew that it wasn't my fault."

Visibility rules differ

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - When the Dutch jumbo jet roared down Tenerife Airport's foggy runway toward aviation's worst disaster Sunday, it was operating under visibility standards only half as strict as those that would have applied to a U.S. airliner, The Los Angeles Times learned Wednesday.

U.S. officials confirmed that aviation charts used by airline pilots show two separate sets of minimum visibility standards for planes taking off from the Canary Islands airport.

One standard, set by the Federal Aviation Agency for all U.S.certificated carriers using the airport, requires that visibility be at least 500 meters before three-or fourengine craft can take off. The other standard, set by the Spanish government and applying to non-U.S. carriers, requires only 250 meters

Thus, the lower minimum of 250 meters — or 820.5 feet — applied to the KLM Royal Dutch Airlines 747 same runway.

U.S. carriers such as Pan Am must obey the FAA's minimum requirements for takeoff visibility no matter where they operate in the world. Non-U.S. carriers must abide by FAA minimums when they take off from U.S. airports, but when operating outside the United States they are free to proceed under the sometimes lower minimums established by foreign governments for their airports. 'We're not concerned with what foreign carriers do outside the United States," one FAA official said, "We could really care less, as long as our guys aren't operating below our minimal.

Minimum visibility standards vary from airport to airport. For example, at the airport at Las Palmas, another of the Canary Islands to which both 747s were headed, the takeoff minimum applying to U.S. carriers is 400 meters, compared with the 250 meters set by Spanish authorities for other carriers taking off there.

The differing visibility standards underscore a lack of uniformity in rules governing international air safety. The International Civil Aviation Organization, a branch of the United Nations headquartered in Montreal, adopts broad guidelines for its member countries, but allows each country to determine such specific airport requirements as minimum takeoff visibility.

Hofheinz offers job to women's advocate

HOUSTON (AP) — Controver-sial Dr. Nikki Van Hightower lost her job as women's advocate and gained another all in the same meeting of the Houston City Council.

When City Council voted 6-3 Wednesday to abolished Mrs. Van Hightower's $18,400 per year job as women's advocate, Houston Mayor Fred Hofheinz immediately announced he would add Mrs. Van Hightower to his personal staff with the same salary and same duties.

Her title now is specialist in the Affirmative Action division of the mayor's office.

Wednesday's actions were the latest exchange between city council and the mayor over Mrs. Van Hightower, who has been criticized by some cirizens for the public stands she's taken on such issues as the Equal Rights council will continue trying to get rid of Mrs. Van Hightower by abolishing positions. "They would have to fire everyone in city government," Hofheinz said.

Council efforts to get rid of Mrs. Van Hightower started March 9 when it voted 6-1 to reduce her salary to $1 per year. Hofheinz, however, refused to submit such an ordinance and the council then decided to abolish the position.

Mrs. Van Hightower has been an outspoken supporter of the Equal Rights Amendement. After speaking to a rally in support of the amendment March 6, she denied charges that her participation meant city funds were spent in connection with the ral-

House to decide law, vote bills

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Texas House members returned to work today to take a final vote on the hotly contested measure giving counties ordinance making power.

Also on the work schedule was a final vote on the measure doing away with signatures on voting stubs.

The House skipped a debate session Wednesday to give members more to devote time to important committee sessions on school financing and state spending.

The Senate was in recess today until Monday with many of the members flying to Jasper to attend the funeral of the father of Sen. Don Adams, D-Jasper.

The Senate broke off a filibuster Wednesday by postponing until Mon-day a "compromise" highway funding bill that reportedly has enough money in it to please Gov. Dolph

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Wednesday after the Senate session that he favored the $528 million proposal, but he predicted it would end legislative hopes for a tax cut.

The highway funding bill had a price tag of $428 million attached. However, a $100 million higher "compromise" based on numerous meetings between Hobby and Briscoe was worked out afterward.

Hobby told reporters Briscoe had promised to seek House acceptance of the measure, which is $146 million less than the one the House pushed through Feb. 9.

"I understand the House will buy

The bill, Hobby said, "changes numbers, but numbers aren't sacred." He said Briscoe's original bill called for spending $878 million over the next two years.

Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, got to his feet when the $100 million amendment was offered. He said he thought when the $428 million bill came out of committee it was "struck in hot iron and imbedded in concrete," meaning there would be no floor amendments.

Supporters said the extra money was to repair highways that were damaged by the severe winter. Schwartz blamed overloaded trucks for the highway holes.

Several other senators joined Schwartz in the delaying tactic that lasted more than an hour before further debate was postponed until 11 a.m. Monday.

In an unusual afternoon debate session Wednesday, the Senate passed 25-0 and sent to the House a bill taking the tolls off the Dallas-Fort Worth Turnpike next Dec. 31.

"This is a historic bill," said Sen. Bill Meier, D-Euless, the sponsor. "For the first time we are taking tolls off and letting it become a free highway. People in the Dallas and Fort Worth areas have been paying these tolls since 1955.'

The final money payments, which have been secured by the tolls, will be made before Dec. 31.

Meier's bill retains the Texas Turnpike Authority to administer the Dallas North Tollway and any future turnpike projects.

After the turnpike is converted into a free highway, any money left from the tolls would be put into a fund to study possible future turnpike projects in Dallas and Houston. The leftover fund has been estimated at $700,000 to $1 million.

In other afternoon action, the Senate approved measures that -Allow cities and towns to issue bonds to redevelop blighted downtown

-Let counties license and regulate massage parlors, including the prescribing of "reasonable standards" for the clothing worn by employes. The measure returns to the House for approval of Senate changes.

-Authorize the legislature to increase the size of three-judge courts of civil appeals.

—Exempt from property taxes property dedicated to the "preservation of wildlife and conservation of wildlife

MOSCOW - The Soviet Union and the United States flatly rejected each other's proposals for a new accord on curbing strategic nuclear weapons Wednesday night, ending their Kremlin talks in gloom and plunging American-Soviet detente to a new low level of uncertainty

This poses the first grave global diplomatic test for the Carter Administration. It may have profound long-term consequences for the Soviet Union as well. Each nation has repeatedly cited nuclear arms control as the fundamental issue in the East-West relationship.

Talks have not been abandoned, however. Existing nuclear arms limitation agreements still remain in force. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko have agreed to meet in May. U.S.-Soviet working groups will be established to explore numerous other subjects ranging from halting all nuclear weapons tests to limiting military forces in the Indian Ocean

But these are actions to help cushion the consequences of the blunt failure recorded Wednesday night on the key subject of Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT).

Both nations Wednesday night, in their immediate public comment on the impasse, sought to minimize the repercussions. What is bound to be most significant, however, is how the two sides privately interpret the consequences on their total relationship.

In a press conference Wednesday night at Spaso House, the American embassy residence, in an atmosphere pervaded by shattered hopes, Secretary Vance nonetheless invoked a claim of "progress" to counter

"They were useful," Vance said of the three days of tense talks. "I think that U.S.-Soviet relations will continue to be good. I hope in the future we can strengthen those relations. Needless to say, I am disappointed that we have failed to make progress in what I consider to be the most essential of all these areas, namely, the area of strategic nuclear arms, but I think our relations will continue to be good ...

was vague. It said only that "the two sides agreed to continue their exchange of views" on SALT and other subjects.

But the scene at 5:35 p.m. (Moscow time) in the Kremlin supplied a wholly different message, even for those such as newsmen who only glimpsed it. Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev his manner grim, his face puffy and ashen, his movements and his speech šlurred - greeted Vance with barely a word. He refused to acknowledge reporters' questions, which he had always done in the past. Gromyko called out sharply, "This is not a press conference.

Brezhnev's appearance was so startling that it immediately revied speculation about the 70-year-old leader's physical condition. His health may be a factor behind the determined Soviet drive for swift confirmation of the long-delayed SALT goals set by Brezhnev and former President Ford at Vladivostok in 1974. The Soviets have adamantly opposed the Carter Administration's bid to supplement the Vladivostok accord with much more ambitious and lengthier negotiations for deeper cuts in arms levels.

It has been Brezhnev's great ambition to climax his career, Western analysts believe, with the signing of a SALT agreement at a summit meeting in Washington.

The dramatic failure to make headway with the United States on SALT could well damage Brezhnev's political standing with his Kremlin colleagues. He has championed the concept of superpower detente and has been identified personally with its successes and increasingly in the recent past, with its failures.

The collapse of the strategic arms negotiations climaxes a remarkable two-month period in which the new Carter Administration boldly confronted the Soviets with criticism of Kremlin treatment of dissidents only to be firmly told that Moscow regard such "interference" in its "internal affairs" as intolerable. The human rights clash greatly aggravated the climate of Washington-Moscow relations and made the Kremlin suspicious of Carter's politics in

While both sides still profess great interest in seeing relations develop, it seems likely that new approaches to east-west policy will be necessary if the present strained atmosphere is to be improved.

Soviet strategists have complained bitterly since President Carter on March 24 publicly crystallized his SALT objectives. They said the new administration was trying to change the game at the 11th hour with an inordinately complex new formula. Soviet sources have also said they suspect U.S. trickery to shift the nuclear balance in American favor. The recent temptest of claims in the United States about the danger of looming Soviet military superiority is the other side of the same coin.

Vance said Wednesday night that the U.S. proposals here are "equitable" and he said that should be apparent. Vance said he was unable at this time, however, to discuss the key figures involved and the specific terms of the U.S. offer. The subject is extremely complex, in

Carter to 'hang tough' on talks

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter says he'll "hang tough" when arms limitation negotiations with the Russians begin again in May and that he has no intention of dropping his human rights crusade.

The President's reaction to Wednesday's breakdown of Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty negotiations in Moscow was relaxed and he said he was not surprised.

But he expressed his determination to pursue a major reduction in nuclear weapons and declared: "I will not modify my human rights statements."

And, despite his expressed desire to end the arms race, he pointedly warned Moscow that he will consider intensifying development of U.S. weapons if he decides after negotiations in May that the Soviets are not acting "in god faith."

The next round of arms talks is set for Geneva in May with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko heading the two delegations.

Carter will be in Europe that month, attending an economic summit meeting with NATO leaders and conferring with Syrian President Hafez Assad about prospects for a negotiated Arab-Israeli settlement.

He said he has no intention "at this time" of meeting with Soviet officials

After learning of the breakdown in the Moscow talks, Carter told congressional leaders of his plans to 'hang tough' for a comprehensive accord that substantially reduces the two superpowers' arsenals.

And, in an impromptu news conference, he told reporters "there was no linkage" between his advocacy of human rights in the Soviet Union and

THE STRAIGHT LINE TO

Kremlin rejection of the SALT proposals taken to Moscow by Vance. 'But I can't certify there is no linkage in the Soviets' minds," Carter Regardless, he said he would not modify his statements on human rights, which "are compatible with the consciousness of this country.

The President said he intends to "remain very strong in my position" that the two superpowers this year negotiate not just a superficial agreement allowing them to continue the arms race but to freeze development of new missiles and reduce launchers and multiple warheads substantially.

By ROBERT G. KAISER The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The strategic arms negotiations which the Soviet Union broke off — at least temporarily - Wednesday began nine years ago in Glassboro, N.J. Since then the talks have produced unprecedented agreements but have done little to slow down the arms race.

The apparent idea of President Carter's novel proposal to cut substantially the Soviet American arsenals, which the Soviets rejected yesterday, was finally to do something to stop the arms race. It was a radical idea in the context of the SALT negotiations thus far.

Beginning in the first Nixon administration, the SALT talks have been used — at first only by the Russians, subsequently by both sides — as a means of establishing a sort of contractual nuclear parity between the superpowers

Because the two countries have different kinds of strategic weapons, radically different geographical situations and inconsistent strategic objectives, they have had a difficult time agreeing on a precise definition of parity. The Soviet side demonstrated again vesterday how serious this problem still is. While negotiations on this problem have dragged on, both sides have continued to improve their strategic weaponry. both quantitatively (primarily on the Soviet side) and qualitatively (on both sides). The arsenals of both are now vastly superior in terms of their capacity to inflict damage than they were when President Johnson first broached the idea of strategic arms talks to the Soviet Premier, Alexei N. Kosygin, at their Glassboro summit

The negotiations began after President Nixon's inauguration. The first round ended at the Moscow summit in May 1972, when the superpowers signed two SALT documents: a treaty radically limiting both sides' anti-ballistic missile (ABM) systems, and an "interim" limitation on offensive weapons.

That interim agreement allowed the Soviets a modest numerical advantage in missile launchers which, Nixon and his principal negotiator, Henry A. Kissinger, said, would be offset by American superiority in the area of multiple warheads that can be launched on a single missile and fired at independent targets. But the Soviets began to close that gap, and many Americans involved in the SALT process expressed fear that the interim agreement allowed the Soviets room to achieve an unacceptable advantage.

Discharged GI trying to form union in Army

By GEORGE C. WILSON The Washington Post

FT. BRAGG, N.C. - A former paratrooper who went handcuffed from federal prison directly into the Army is trying to unionize the 82d Airborne Division

He also is trying to get back into the Army under an American Civil Liberties suit which alleges that in kicking him out, the secretary of the Army and the 82d Airborne commander, both of whom happen to be black, broke Reconstruction-era laws designed to protect blacks from the Ku Klux Klan.

To make the situation even more bizarre here at Bragg, where the greeting between paratroops is "All the way," 82d Airborne officers admit that their actions have helped the very unionizing they oppose.

THE ARMY'S unintended assist for unionizing the military around here came from making 28-year-old Thomas L. Doran Jr. something of a celebrity by discharging him for reasons that sound like they came right out of the novel "Catch 22."

"He was in the Army but he really wasn't," said one 82d Airborne Division lawyer in explaining why Doran had to be discharged. "He was wearing the Army uniform but he wasn't really in the Army" because his enlistment was illegal.

"That doesn't wash," Doran countered in an interview, claiming the Army kicked him out because of his efforts to promote a union within the military. American Civil Liberty Union lawyers agreed and filed suit against the Army recently.

Among the laws the ACLU charges the Army broke is a federal statute enacted in 1861 and revised in 1871 by the Reconstruction Congress which forbids two or more persons to "conspire or go in disguise" to deny anyone "equal protection of the laws."

Division officers here said there was nothing illegal about Doran leaving federal prison in Petersburg, Va., in handcuffs in 1971 to be sworn into the Army. He had been imprisoned for refusing induction but agreed to join the Army after seven months in jail.

WHAT WAS ILLEGAL, according to 82d Airborne officers, was the Army accepting Doran for a second hitch after he had been honorably discharged from his first two-year tour. Through what officers acknowledged was "a bureaucratic screw-up," Doran's honorable discharge did not indicate that he was ineligible for re-enlistment.

The reason that Doran was declared ineligible, of ficers here said, was that he did not pass muster for re-enlistment when the government conducted a security check on him during his first tour of Army service. The material uncovered in the security check has not been disclosed by the Army.

An Army recruiter took a look at Doran's honorable discharge and happily signed him up for a three-year hitch on March 20, 1975. Doran rejoined the 82d Airborne here as an artillery surveyor and received ratings of "excellent" in conduct and performance from his Army superiors. He was promoted to a specialist five and slated for another promotion when he was suddenly discharged.

DORAN SAID IT was on this second tour of duty that he started exploring the idea of a union for low ranking soldiers. He concluded, he said, that only a union could deal effectively with "the hassle" in to-

"I'm not talking about taking a strike vote in the fox hole," Doran said. "I'm talking about getting a little self-respect for Joe Tent Peg and the women in the Army who are being hassled. They've got to be able to feel that 'I've got a little bit of power no matter how much the boss has got."

Doran and his small squad of allies contend that the grievance procedures and chain of command options are not adequate for people in the lower ranks. Doran said that he and others started discussing the benefits of unionization in living room gatherings around Bragg; at meetings with other servicemen in Washington last summer, and at the American Federation of Government Employes (AFL-CIO) convention in Las Vegas Last September.

The AFGE is currently polling its 280,000 members on whether they want to try to establish union locals within the military. The results will be tallied this

OFFICERS AT BRAGG said they sense no widespread desire among the troops for unions. But Doran said he and his allies promoting unionization have found a lot of support among people in the service, especially women, and among retired military servicemen who fear their retirement and other benefits are going to be reduced.

Asked how a union would have made his life as a paratrooper better at Bragg, Doran said a union's leverage would have deterred sergeants from ordering troops to pick up cigarette butts at 4 o'clock in the morning, from hassling women and kept officers from conducting do-nothing training exercises.

DORAN CLAIMED his artillery unit would go out in the woods for three days and fire rounds only four hours the whole time.

"What do you do the rest of the time out in the woods?" he was asked.

"Wait." "Wait for what?"

Doran and Lengel said the union would be like a legal aid society, not an organization that would question orders or interfere with combat operations.

Sen. Strom Thurmond (R-S.C.) is the leading advocate in Congress of passing a bill to outlaw unions within the military, asserting that the threat is real and growing. His bill to outlaw military unions has 37 senators as co-sponsors.

DEFENSE SECRETARY Harold Brown, appearing before the Senate Armed Services Committee, cautioned against overreacting to the threat of unionization and said the Pentagon currently has enough rules to deal with the possibility.

Maj. Charles Murray, judge advocate of the 82nd Airborne, said Maj. Terry Throckmorton, division spokesman, stressed in interviews here that in discharging Doran the division's leadership was not reacting to the paratrooper's unionizing efforts.

Instead, Murray and Throckmorton said, they were simply following Army rules that could not be waived in the face of the findings in the government's security check. "Serendipity." Murray said in searching for a word to describe the whole affair

New lease law now effective

By ALEXANDER AUERBACH The Los Angeles Times

Consumers who lease automobiles or other personal property should have a clearer idea of their obligations as a result of the Consumer Leasing Act.

The new law requires the full disclosure of lease terms before the contract is signed. It also limits the use of "balloon payments" at the end of the lease term. In addition, the law regulates the centent of advertisements promoting consumer leases. Both the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Trade Commission will supply, through their regional or Washington offices, model disclosure forms for use by industry in ensuring that their leases conform with the law.

According to the FTC, which will enforce the act, the disclosures include a description of the leased property; the total amount of payments the consumer must pay when the lease begins, including security deposits; the number, amount and due dates of periodic payments, and their total; and the total amount of taxes, fees and other charges.

The consumer also must be informed of any penalties or delinquency charges. The identity of those responsible for servicing or maintaining the leased property must be given.

If the consumer has the option to purchase the property at the end of the lease term, that must be disclosed, along with the price.

The conditions under which either party may terminate the lease, and how any penalties will be determined, must also be set forth

Many auto leases are so-called "open end" agreements, in which the consumer is liable for a lump-sum payment at the conclusion of the lease period if the car is worth less than had been expected, either because of excessive wear or because the used-car market is weak. This liability must be clearly explained.

In addition, the consumer now has the right to obtain a professional appraisal of the property at the end of an open-end lease, which is binding on both parties. If the consumer must pay an amount ex-ceeding three monthly payments, the lessor must take the consumer to court to collect, and may have to pay his attorney's fees unless the property shows unreasonable wear.

The act also limits penalty payments, and requires that advertising of lease offers must disclose that the transaction is a lease and must reveal the number and amount of payments and their total. Violations of the law can result in civil penalties of $100 to $1,000, and consumers may ask for attorney's fees.

African Old Guard aging

DAKAR, Senegal (AP) — The black political leaders who led their African peoples to independence — men such as Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya and Leopold Senghor of Senegal — are growing old. The question across black Africa is, what happens when they go?

Kenya, Senegal, Ivory Coast, Guinea, Tanzania and Zambia still are governed by so-called fathers of black independence. They have become pillars of tability in a fast-changing continent, but businessmen and others privately question their wisdom in staying in power.

"If Senghor would step down now, oversee a transfer of power and be there in the background to guide his successor, the future might be brighter, you know, more secure," one businessman here

"Hanging on is inviting an eventual coup or death in office which could lead to trouble," he added. "Stepping down now would also establish an important precedent for the future."

President Senghor, 70, is considered one of Africa's moderates. He has been the leader here since independence from France in 1960.

A French businessman who has lived in Senegal almost 25 years remarked: "Who can predict what will happen when President Senghor goes? We could have a military coup, a government led by Moslem nationalists or even a smooth constitutional transition. I wish I knew.'

Investors are perhaps even more jittery in Kenya where President Kenyatta, now in his mid 80s, has made no move to appoint a successor.

There are fears that after Kenyatta, tribal divisions in the relatively prosperous former British colony may erupt and bring an end to an era of stability and progress.

In Ivory Coast, where 71-year-old President Felix Houphoet-Boigny has turned his nation into a model of Third World development, investors also express

"My company was going to set up shop here in a big way but we've decided to be careful and wait and see how things develop," an American businessman in Abidjan, the capital, said.

Ever since Ghana was freed by Britain in 1957—becoming the first colony to win independence in black Africa—there rarely has been a peaceful transfer of power south of the Sahara. A wave of about 40 coups, countercoups and palace revolutions have swept away most of the men who led their colonies to full nationhood.

Some critics charge the old guard, by stubbornly retaining power, will usher in even further instability when its members pass from power. Unlike Africa's many military governments, most have constitutionally appointed successors.

But many observers believe the sudden void that would be created by a coup or death in office could provoke chaos as rivals jockey for power.

The potential for possible turmoil in these countries ruled by long established leaders could have important regional or international repercussions.

The role of Kenya, now firmly pro-Western, could be critical in balancing growing Soviet influence in East Africa in post-Kenyatta years.

"What will France do if a takeover by radicals is threatened in Ivory Coast or Senegal?" asks an African diplomat in Dakar. France has close economic and defense ties with both.

Possible French intervention, which most political observers now view as only a remote possibility, rajses the question whether the Soviet Union or Cuba would move in Guinea, where Marxist President Sekou Toure, 54, has ruled since 1958, should Toure be threatened or die. Toure, a revolutionary who is the longest reigning leader in black Africa, has turned Guinea into the closest thing resembling a Soviet satellite in West

And in volatile southern Africa, President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, 53, and Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, 55, both play pivotal roles in the region's changing fortunes.

The future direction of black Africa's confrontation with the lingering bastions of the white governments in Rhodesia, South-West Africa (Namibia) and South Africa depends heavily on their

Once-in-lifetime courses offered by Hampshire

By GEORGE ESPER

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) - One wintry afternoon, 30 students from Hampshire College did something they always wanted to do once, but perhaps not twice.

They set out into the rural Connecticut Valley to the Sunderland Cave. not far from this college town in western Massachusetts.

They hiked up steep snowbanks, explored the cave's ice sculpture, then slid down the snow faces.

Only seven years old, Hampshire College - enrollment 1,225, faculty 124, tuition $4,350 - opted for sports for fun instead of competition. It attempts to relate outdoor recreation to academics. A blend of body and mind.

One such blend is a course called 'Everything You Always Wanted to Do Once - but Perhaps Not Twice.' The class meets Friday afternoons outing. Activities include rock climbing, cross-country skiing, winter camping and canoeing

'The catch is to attract beginners who just want to try something once to see if they like it," says Carol Fisher, one of a half-dozen instructors in the program.

Miss Fisher is a 1975 graduate of the University of Montana, where she majored in environmental biology and botany. She also is the North American women's wildwater kayak champion.

For a January term course, she and dozen students ran 350 miles of the Suwannee and Peace Rivers and the Everglades of Georgia and Florida in kayaks. They camped in the swamps. By using a school van and packing their food, the month-long trip cost each student $148.

Another course, "Women In The Wilderness," included a month-long canyons. It was led by instructor Joy

"It is a self-discovery of some of the images that are fearful to women," says Miss Hardin. "The wilderness is assumed to be a man's territory. It is a chance for them to have no men to depend on."

The outdoors program extends to non-students working at the college and to high school students from broken homes.

Deborah Cole, 24, came from Syracuse, N.Y., to work as a secretary at Hampshire. Now she is a part-time secretary and part-time instructor in rock climbing.

"It was a sport I was good at im-mediately," she recalls. "It didn't require being part of a team. It was something personal. I ended up wanting to see how excited I could get other beginners."

Dave Roberts, 33, professor of set up the outdoors program in 1970 with 250 students, a $10,000 budget and an aim to "join the academic side to recreational outdoors." He teaches "The Literature of Great Expectations," in which students simulate experiences of expeditions recorded in literature, from Cortes in the 16th century to the pre-they kept the silk and the rum and the gunpowder for trading. We thought they were only traders when they first came. We didn't understand why our people kept disappearing.'

Kinte, the village bard and a distant relative of Alex Haley, who traced his ancestry here for the book "Roots," recounted the past as though it were only yesterday. Here in Gambia, which harbors ghosts from 350 years of slave trading, the past does not indeed seem very far removed.

Many of the 15 million African slaves taken to the Americas, including Haley's ancestor, Kunta Kinte, came from these small, timeless villages that dot the river's banks. According to Gambian historians, one out of every three died within two months of reaching a plantation. The survivors, for purposes of the U.S. census, were each counted as three-fifths of a person.

'Sometimes I sit down and try to think what my life, my family's life, would be like if I'd been born 200 years ago," said a Gambian civil servant, Abdulla Secka, as he toured the slave dungeons the other day on James Island, just across the river from Juffure.

"I really can't imagine it. Maybe somebody would be trying to sell me or my children. Or maybe I'd be trying to sell someone for some rum or beads. It's all too distant, too impossible, to imagine."

James Island - occupied at various times by Baltic Germans, French privateers, Welsh pirates and the 3ritish navy - rises from the middle of the river, no larger than a football f eld. A 326-year old stone bastion, now in disrepair and overgrown with b. obob trees, rambles across the is and, its rusting cannon pointed toward the calm and silent river.

From this fort, the occupants controlled the slave trade on the Gambia River. Although time and the relentless tides have claimed the governor's kitchen and the women slaves' house, the basement dungeons for runaway slaves and the walls of the officers quarters still stand, and the waters still gleam with discarded European beads that once were grew wide-eyed at viewing the dungeons — a part of Gambian history he had learned in school but never seen.

"If you were an officer I guess it would have been all right," he said. 'But I'd hate to be a slave here who'd tried to escape ... I think I would have tried to run away just the same.'

Freedom would have been tantalizingly close. In 1807, when Britain abolished slavery and started using James Island as a base for interdicting other countries' slave ships, a "freedom post" was established in Albreda, now a sleepy fishing village about 20 minutes' swimming time from the fort.

Any slave touching the British flag at the edge of Albreda could claim freedom. The flag is gone now, and the old British trading post nearby stands abandoned and decaying in the blistering sun. All that remains is the cement encasement from which the flag once flew. In it someone has scratched the words: "Flag of Freedom."

All this is a page of Gambian history that had been largely forgotten, even by the Gambians themselves, until the publication of "Roots." And now Gambia, a poor but enterprising country, is laying plans to reap a harvest of tourist dollars by inviting other Black Americans to find their ancestral heritage in villages like Juffure, Tendaba, Kerewan and Pakau.

Tape 'heard' fatal shot

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A tape recorder being used to transcribe a television program recorded the gunshot when a friend of Lee Harvey Oswald killed himself, authorities say.

"We have the gunshot on tape," said Lt. Richard Sheets of the Palm Beach Countz sheriff's office. Sheets said there were no sounds of anyone else in the background as George de Mohrenschildt died.

Sheets said that by comparing the tare with television station logs investigators determined that de Mohrenschildt, 65, shot himself at 15 seconds past 2:21 p.m. Tuesday.

The Palm Beach County medical examiner said jwednesday that an autopsy showed the fatal wound was "conducive to that of a self-inflicted gunshot."

Sheets said his office would review the autopsy before deciding whether to close the case. But he said "something hig would have to jump out of the woodwork" to change the theory that the death was suicide.

De Mohrenschildt, a Dallas geologist who also taught French at Bishop College, shot himself after an investigator for the House Assassinations Committee tried to interview him, officials said.

De Mohrenschildt had known Lee Harvey Oswald and his wife, Marina.

STEPHENVILLE — Clarence Scharbauer Jr. of Midland is one of two recipients of the 1976 Tarleton State University Agricultural Appreciation Award.

Scharbauer and Jay Pumphrey of Fort Worth received the awards for their contributions to the development of a horse production and management degree program leading to a bachelor of science in

Scharbauer became involved in planning the program in 1974. He worked with university officials and informed industry leaders about the new program. As president of the American Quarter Horse Association in 1975-76, he worked to familiarize members and leaders with the proposal.

In addition, he donated two Register of Merit Quarter Horse stallions. They are Got To Be, by Go Man Go out of Double Dibs, and Oddsmaker, by Double Bid out of Myrna Three. The first of their foals will come to the university's farm operation this spring. The two stallions ran in the racing circuit and both can be used for racing breeding and performance breeding.

The horse production and management program is the first of its kind in Texas and one of only a few in the nation.

The program has been approved by the Coordinating Board of the Texas College and University System. The first graduates will complete the program in late 1978 or in 1979.

Granted, for a while everything seems to be going for you. You're content and happy. And nothing can top that feeling. But when something does go wrong... and it will, again and again... how do you deal with it? How do you keep it from getting you down? How do you get, and how do you maintain, a little peace of mind?

OTS of people with the same problems are living proof that the answer is Jesus Christ. Not that they don't have problems anymore. But they know that problems aren't theirs alone any longer.

They're living proof that it isn't you against the world. There's someone else who's ready to solve your problems with you. They're living proof that you can cope with daily problems, live with them and learn from them... with His help. They're living proof that Jesus Christ is alive, and "you will have peace through union with Him," exactly as He said.

Prices unsure

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices fluctuated indecisively today as the market moved slightly

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down .17 to 921.04, after hitting a 14-month low in the previous session.

Losers held a 3-2 edge on gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed

Analysts blamed the recent decline on the problems that have plagued the market for some time: investor fears about inflation, higher interest rates and worries about govern-ment plans to tackle the energy problem. President Carter said he will unveil his energy conservation program April 20.

In one development today, Bert Lance, director of the U.S. Office of Budget and Management, said he favors eliminating the double taxation of corporate dividends. Westinghouse was the volume leader, up % to 18. Kerr-McGee, an oil, gas and uranium firm, dropped 21/2 to 641/2. There were reports that analysts viewed information in the annual report as an indication the company expects its second straight year of unimproved earnings.

common stocks gave up .03 to 53.58. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .20 to Volume on the Big Board reached 7.08 million shares index of more than 1,500

over the first two hours. United Technologies' half-billion dollar tender offer for BHABcock & Wilcox was reflected in the firms' stocks. United Technologies was down % to 34%.

The NYSE said the opening of Babcock & Wilcox stock was delayed because of an order imbalance. On Wednesday B&W closed up 5¼ at 40.

Midland Youth Center chatter

By NANCY HUDSON LORIA JONS and LIZ RUWWE

Hey, hey, hey, Listen to what we got to say! The Danny Davis Show was really great. Thanks to everybody who came and heard the Nashville Brass, if you didn't, you really missed a good show. Many, hours of work went into this project and the success of the show was a nice reward. The proceeds will go to help both Midland and Lee Youth Centers.

Springtime is here with spring sports in full swing With the close of the 76-77 basketball season, MHS roundballer, Braig Dunn was chosen for the All-District team for the second time. Craig was the Bulldog's leading scorer with more than 400 points. Brently Jackson received honorable mention for district play.

The baseball team is warming up for the season with play already under-way. The team members include Errol Winkler, Steve Cole, James Aden, Joe Mawles, Roger Copeland, Bruce Knowlton, David Jonston, James Zachery, Jeff Johnson and Robert young, while Kebin Widner, Bud Brigham, Robert Strack, Kebin Minton, Ricky Goode, Larry Murphy and Doug Atnipp anre battling for pitcher's mound. Good luck fellas, for a winning season!!

Speaking of a winning season, the MHS netters traveled to Abilene, where the team captured the "A" Division trophy. Kirk Farquar, a new team member from Lubbock, and Jeff Bramlet won the "A" Boys Division. Vicki Vasicek captured the "A" girls title making for a very good tourney.

This weekend the team will travel to Wichita Falls before playing district matches over the Easter holidays. Good luck—all the way to state!!

Coach Barton's girls track team has been racingits way to victory. Lezlye Sherman, Lanneta Brown, Wanda and Gloria Caldwell and Celestine

Washington made a strong showing at the West of the Pecos Relays. Keep up the good work. While the girls track team is hard at work, the boys will be competing in the San Angelo Relays Saturday. Beat the Bobcats! Better start getting your acts together for the Sr. Calent Show. Remember the theme is Thursday Night Live. Stay tuned to the announcements for auditioning times. The talent show will be next week so don't delay.

Attention Sr. Girls: The material is in—go by Carolyn Blakes' house and pick it up. Any spare time would be appreciated at Diana Warren's with the Head 'em up and move 'em out! Where? To Austin of course! This weekend is Round-Up in the capital city as carloads make their way to parties and days filled with fun. Have a great time and a safe trip! Amy-we love your new car! To Kevin Murphywe hope you feel beter and are at school soon. Have a Happy April Fool's Day!

Liz, Nancy and Lori Congratulations! Hal Coon won the state competition for his interpretation of Count Dracula. Remember Catoico? Good luck at Nationals—we're behind you all the way!

Unemployment taxes cost most employers dearly

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) - So often you hear a worker rationalize his acceptance of unemployment compensation. "I paid into the pot and now I'm only taking my fair share," he says. Employers often agree. But it isn't so.

In only two states, Alabama and New Jersey, do workers contribute. Almost the entire amount of payments, which rose to a rate of nearly $20 billion a year in the recession, comes from one source: em-

Oddly, many employers are unaware of the expense to them, even though it can be substantial. In all states the employer pays into the fund a percentage of the first $4,200 earned by each worker. The minimum is 3.4 per cent.

At that rate, a company with 2,000 workers would have a taxable payroll of $8.4 million and an obligation to the unemployment compensation fund of more than $285,000. Next year the $4,200 base likely will rise to $6,000.

Once a relatively minor cost for employers, unemployment taxes have gradually worked their way higher since the mid 1930s.

An unemployed worker now can collect a total maximum benfit of $5,265 in Illinois, $6,318 in Massachusetts and $6,786 in Connecticut — and under a law passed by Congress late last year the numbers might go even higher.

But, says Philip Kaplan, an authority, "If you ask a vice presdent-finance how much his company pays he would have to get hold of the controller or treasurer or the tax man." In most instances, he finds, the corporate executive thinks the amount involved is a nuisance

sum. Many have the vague feeling that the workers contribute, as indeed did Gov. Ronald Reagan during his race for the Republican presidential nomination. Because of this attitude, he says, some companies deal carelessly with the situation. Simple measures, he maintains, could reduce costs for some companies from $270,000 to as little as $90,000.

Kaplan's firm, Reed, Roberts Associates of Garden City, N.Y., claims to be the largest independent in the business of advising corporations and municipalities on unemployment compensation, with 7,000 clients around the country.

Recently he told clients, among them companies such as Gulf & Western, Borden, Citibank and Allied Chemical, to reduce employment claims by avoiding outright layoffs. If business is bad, he advised, you can cut down the number of weekly work days or schedule shifts for two weeks on and two weeks off.

"This will reduce payroll and maintain minimal unemployment tax liability. Yet, employes will be earning more than they would by collecting unemployment compensation," he explained.

Midlander injured in two-car mishap

A Midland man was in satisfactory condition at Midland Memorial Hospital this morning following a two-car collision early Wednesday night.

Preston Lee Jones 24, of 1106 E. New York Ave. was listed in satisfactory condition with multiple lacerations and a possible concussion following an accident in the 2500 block of North Lincoln Street. Lee was a passenger in a car driven by Clemons C. Lee, 28, of 1606 E. Magnolia Ave., when it collided

St. Louis raised from near-dead by $170-million redevelopments

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Downtown St. Louis - once considered near death - is coming dramatically back to life with the biggest building boom in the city's history, says James E. Brown, president of Downtown St. Louis, Inc.

He said more than $170-millionworth of new redevelopment projects have been completed, or started, since 1975. New construction, renovation and public improvements are expected to total at least $112 million in 1977, he reported, and could equal the total for the past two years.

Brown said that since 1960, more than $800 million has been invested in capital improvement projects in the heart of the city. "There's simply no doubt," he said,

"that St. Louis is alive, well and getting better.' The city's downtown construction splurge of the past two years has been highlighted by a new $35-million convention center to be opened this June; a $30-million, 35-story office tower - the first building in the massive $150-million Mercantile Center; the $28-million Boatmen's Bank Tower; the 18 story, $20-million Sheraton-St. Louis Hotel next to the convention center; a $16-million

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) - One day in September, 1975, while she was swimming in the Hampshire College pool, Cindy Moriarty lost con-sciousness. Minutes later her heart bombing destroyed much about his company's stopped.

A "first aid brigade" from the col-

Today Cindy, a student from Worcester, Mass., is fully recovered, back in school and an enthusiastic teacher of pulmonary resuscition, the very thing that saved her life.

San Francisco drives on hookers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After a brief boom in violent crimes, Freitas said at his inauguration: "If directed a mass arrest of hookers, business, it appears that prostitution is no longer a it's a non-violent, non-coercive activity with congrowth industry on the streets of San Francisco.

Bristling from criticism that their apathy has turned the town into "every whore's favorite city," officials have launched a campaign to halt a yearlong influx of aggressive hookers.

Mayor George Moscone, Police Chief Charles Gain, and Dist. Atty. Joseph Freitas, a liberal triad which came to power a year ago, had been in hot water with conservatives because of their proclaimed lack of interest in victimless crimes. They deny there's been a dramatic shift in policy, but there has been a sudden wave of arrests. Now they're in hot water with the liberals, including the man who runs the jails, Sheriff Richard Hongisto.

In a recent letter to Moscone, Hongisto said the women's section at the jail had reached maximum capacity. He blamed officials for "inflaming the public" and suggested that prostitutes be released with nothing more than citations. Margo St. James, whose COYOTE group (Cast Off of prostitution, also opposed the increased arrests.

Your Old Tired Ethics) advocates decriminalization

"It's an effort to get more statistics and more cases so they can clean up their act," she said. Before police renewed their sweep of the Tenderloin and Union Square areas, embittered vice squad officers claimed the number of prostitutes was up 1,000 per cent, a figure disputed by the district attorney. "Where there were two or three prostitutes working in one area, now you'll find 22 or 23," said Richard Adkins, a vice squad member.

The battle over prostitution had been brewing for a year, and it was the district attorney who fired the opening salvo.

Elected on a pledge to emphasize prosecution of grammer-murphey charge card... for an application

The debate over whether to prosecute intensified when tough cop Gerald Shaughnessy was removed early last year as head of the vice squad. He says prostitutes probably misinterpreted his Shaughnessy, who argued "there is no such thing as remarks about victimless crimes, taking it as a a victimless crime," had spent six years rounding up signal that if arrested they would not be prosecuted. hookers.

Business leaders and managers of posh Nob Hill and Union Square hotels began a steady wail that prostitutes were pouring into San Francisco. 'The Bird' won't fly again for another two months

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) - Maybe the Detroit Tigers should hire an ac-

But then, who would teach the imitation Fidrych how to pitch like "The

The antics helped, but the ability probably was the biggest factor that resulted in Fidrych's drawing an average of 33,649 fans at his 18 home starts last year.

BASED On that figure, the Tigers could lose anywhere from perhaps 130,000 to 200,000 fans the first two months of this season. That is how long Fidrych probably will be on the disabled list following his surgery today at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit to repair damaged cartilage in his left

The 22-year-old right-hander, American League Rookie of the Year in 1976, would miss about 13 starts if he is out eight weeks. In the meantime, the Tigers likely will keep an extra rookie pitcher-probably lefthander Bob Sykes-after making their final spring training cut today.

"Naturally you have to hope that somebody can pick up at least some of the slack," said General Manager Jim Campbell. He learned of Fidrych's imminent surgery by telephone from Detroit from team physician Clarence Livingood.

'What we'll have to do is take a pitcher we feel has the capabilities and give him the chance. Mark Fidrych got his chance last year in late May and made the most of it," Campbell said, discounting the likelihood of a deal to acquire a veteran pitcher.

Elliott a rags-to-riches story

By The Associated Press

If Randy Elliott goes hitless in his next 12 at-bats, he will be batting a mere .500. That is not too shabby an outlook for someone who sat out the 1976 season following a shoulder separation and was not sure he ever would get another chance to play major league baseball.

Elliott's spring training saga has got to rate as one of the great rags-toriches stories of all time.

A player knows he has it made whe he can get two hits and his battig average drops 15 points to .643, with is what happened to Elliott We nesday when the San Francisco Siants blanked the Oakland A's 5-0 A an exhibition game. Elliott knewne had it made when the Giants fre up his minor league contract flowing the game and promoted hip to the varsi-

ELLIOTT, A 25/ear-old outfielder, was a No. 1 drac choice of San Diego in 1971 and spot parts of the 1972 and 1974 seasop with the Padres. But they released him after his 1975 shoulder injury, and so did the California Angels.

He spent last summer jogging on the jeaches near his southern Californis home and wondering if he would get another chance. The Giants sent him to the Arizona winter instructional league, where he batted .311 and was on his way.

"I hadn't tried to hit a baseball in six months, but it all came back to me," Elliott said. "I knew if I didn't have a heck of a spring training I'd be back in Triple A ball. I figured this was my last time around to get a chance to make the big leagues.

"I guess the original plans, after I started off well here, were to use me as a pinch hitter, but I think they're changing those plans right now." Elliott has 27 hits in 42 spring at-bats. He also made a running shoestring catch to preserve Wednesday's shutout after the A's loaded the bases in the eighth inning. ANOTHER NONROSTER rookie also was in the spotlight. Detroit's Dave Rozema hurled eight innings as the Tigers nipped the New York Mets Rozema, a 20-year-old righthander who was invited to camp after a 12-4 record and 1.57 earned run average in the Class AA Southern League last season, became the first Detroit pitcher to go eight innings. In five appearances, his 25 innings, 1.80 ERA and 16 strikeouts are tops on the club. Rozema may be this year's Mark 'The Bird' Fidrych, who was scheduled to undergo knee surgery today and is expected to be out about two months. What about the pressure? "I can't see that there'd be any more than the ordinary pressure or a young pitcher," said Manager Ralph "I ain't thinking about it," Rozema said. "I just go out and do my job of pitching. I'm just throwing the ball. I thought it was going to be hard. It is hard if you throw bad pitches."

IN OTHER evelopments, third baseman Green Nettles agreed to return to the ew York Yankees after a two-day beence over a contract hassle the Cincinnati Reds said they hassle, the bow to holdout Pete Rose's would p boost his $400,000 demand by $25,00 a month if he is not signed by oping day, the Cleveland Indians and waivers on veteran first aseman Boog Powell and the Giants signed Willie McCovey, another aging first baseman, as a free agent.

Back on the field, Nolan Ryan hurled seven strong innings as the California Angels defeated the Seattle Mariners 5-3, Reggie Smith's two-run homer in the seventh inning enabled the Los Angeles Dodgers to beat the St. Louis Cardinals 7-6 and Dick Ruthven worked six sharp innings in the Atlanta Braves' 3-2 triumph over the Montreal Expos

JORGE ORTA'S two-run ninth-inning homer off Rich Gossage gave the Chicago White Sox a 7-5 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates, two-run homers by Gene Tenace and Doug Rader powered the San Diego Padres past the Milwaukee Brewers 8-5 and Chris Chambliss delivered four runs with a homer and sacrifice fly as the New York Yankees beat the Boston Red Sox 8-5.

John Wathan's ninth-inning single enabled the Kansas City Royals to nip the Philadelphia Phillies 5-4, Mark Belanger's two-run single helped the Baltimore Orioles down Cincinnati 6-4 despite two homers by the Reds' Johnny Bench and the Texas Rangers defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 5-2 behind the four-hit pitching of Carl Morton and Nelson Briles.

Rod Carew's two-run single with two out in the ninth inning overcame a pair of two-run homers by Houston's Cliff Johnson and gave Minnesota a 5-4 victory over the Astros.

OSU hires cage coach

(AP) — Oklahoma State University has hired Jim Killingsworth of Idaho State as the Cowboys' new head basketball

The Cowboys signed Killingsworth to a fouryear, $32,000 annual contract, Oklahoma State Athletic Director Floyd Gass announced Wednesday.

Killingsworth has been head coach at Idaho State for six years and compiled a 25-5 record last season, winning two games in the NCAA playoffs - including an upset of UCLA - before bowing to the University of Nevada at Las Vegas.

"We feel fortunate to get someone familiar with Oklahoma and the surroundng area," Gass

A 50-year-old native Oklahoman, Killingsworth began his coaching career in 1949 at Stidham, Okla. He spent 12 years coaching high school basketball in the state, building a record of

Before going to Idaho State, he spent seven years at Cerritos Junior College in Norwalk, Calif.

Killingsworth is a graduate of Northeastern tate at Tahlequah. Okla., and holds a masters degree from the University of Oklahoma.

He is married and the father of two children. A former Killingsworth assistant coach at Cerritos, Bob Forester. said Wednesday that OSU is getting a coach "from the Hank Iba school." Iba is the legendary Oklahoma State coach who retired several years

Forester, no head coach at Cerritos, said of Killingsworth: "I think his real strength as a coach is in doing the right thing, just his over-all game plan. I'd say he's one of the best coaches in

'Rocky' Randle confused by abundance of advice

By THOMAS BOSWELL

TAMPA, Fla. - "Right now, I'm lost," said a confused, disoriented but not yet apologetic Lenny Randle Tueday. "Everybody's telling me, 'Do this. Don't do that.' I don't know what to do."

It was beginning to dawn on the little Texas Ranger utility man, howver, that the one thing he should not have done was punch his 50-year-old manager, Frank Lucchesi, into a bloody, dazed heap behind the Ranger batting cage in Orlando Monday afternoon.

Lucchesi was operated on Tuesday in Orlando to elevate into proper position a broken facial bone below the right eye.

In addition to the fractured cheekbone, Lucchesi received a concussion, a lacerated lip and an undetermined back injury. Doctors expect him to leave the hospital in two or three days.

Lucchesi said he hasn't decided whether to file assault charges against Randle.

The angry Ranger management offered the suspended Randle a hearing Monday to tell his side of the story and said he could bring a lawyer with him. Randle said he

"I've got to go to Phoenix," said Randle Tuesday rushing to catch a plane. "I've gotten so much advice om so many people that I just want to get to Phoenix to k to my agent, Gary Walker, and my lawyer, Richard

PERHAPS MOST damaging to Randle are rorts that he had been talking to teammates, and even repress, for at least two days before the fight, asking what wou happen to a player who fought his manager. Pitcher Burt Blyleven confirmed that Randle who hit his manager. I told him he might never play

The hard feelings between Randle and Lucchesi were complicated, especially since it was spring training, when jobs and futures are on the line.

After a poor fielding, bad hitting (.228) 1976 season, Randle lost his regular second base job to Bump Wills, son of former Los Angeles Dodgers star Maury Wills.

As part of a Ranger reshuffling of its atrocious defensive infield - with Toby Harrah moving from short to third, free agent Campy Campaneris starting at short and the rookie Wills getting second base - Randle was on the bench.

Throughout the spring, the free-spirited popular Ran-dle referred to himself as, "The phantom Ranger. They just want to get rid of me ... If I wanted to be a reserve, 'd join the National Guard."

Randle, who has played five positions in six years with the Ranger organization, was race upset because he felt "unappreciated. I've always said 'Yes' to them. I've changed positions, batted everywhere in the order, changed my hitting style, played winter ball."

IRONICALLY, UNTIL the last week. Randle had the image of the perfect, smiling, unselfish team player. Randle, in what he admitted was an attempt to "force a move," packed his bags Thursday and said he was jumping camp. Teammates, as he expected, talked him out It was the wrong day for theatrics. "I just had to cut 10 players and send them to Plant City (Fla.) to make $9,000 a year," stormed the sensitive, emotional Lucchesi, known as a fatherly, sometimes too-gentle manager. "I'm sick of $80,000-year punks complaining about play me or trade me ... If Randle was leaving, I'm damn sorry they stopped him.' Randle, immediately nicknamed "punk" by teammates, was stunned. He asked for a meeting with Lucchesi, with the press present. His wife came to camp to talk about the problem.

When Texas traded for star left fielder Claudell Washington of Oakland Saturday, Randle knew that Texas had written him out of their plans permanently. " don't know what's going to happen," said Randle, who is in the second year of a two-year contract, to a Texas reporter. "I may have to start throwing punches."

AFTER THE fight, Randle seemed drained and resigned. "I've just run out of cheeks (to turn). I guess after all these years, he took my passiveness for granted ... I was just compulsive ... I guess it happens in life. There are little feuds, bits and pieces of anger. I never demonstrated it throughout my career, or my life for that matter," said

"There are many times in this business when a player goes crazy, even for a day or two," said Reds manager Sparky Anderson. "They lose their coconut. It's happened to me. One year they wouldn't play me in spring training and I flushed my uniform down the toilet. Next day I didn't have no uniform

"I'm saying this fellow Randle ... I'm not excusing him, but no one knows how complex his mind got at that time. He reads in the winter that his job is gone. To an athlete that's like seeing your life go down the drain.

Motta's rule comes true

behind Pete Maravich's 26 points. The game was tied seven times and the

By The Associated Press

Coach Dick Motta of the Washington Bullets has just one rule and 400 National Basketball Association victories to go along with "My only rule." Motta said after the Bullets' 110-103 triumph over the Atlanta Hawks Wednesday night, "is don't try to figure anything out. I mean the travel, the schedule, the officials, the players."

Motta's rule came true again. It was a game the Bullets did not figure to win

"We lost Phil Chenier early, Elvin Hayes goes scoreless in the first half and we still won," Motta marveled.

The Bullets won because Tom Henderson, acquired from Atlanta in a trade Jan. 20, scored 22 points, dealt out six assists and took up the slack after Chenier was ejected early in the second period. Leonard Robinson, the player Washington swapped for Henderson, had a game-high 31 points and 12 rebounds for Atlanta.

Washington also pulled within 11/2 games of first-place Houston in the Central Division when the Rockets lost to the Seattle SuperSonics 111-105. Elsewhere, the Philadelphia 76ers shaded the Detroit Pistons 115-112, the Boston Celtics cooled off Chicago 90-88 and the New Orleans Jazz defeated the Phoenix Suns 112-100 for their seventh consecutive triumph, a club record.

SuperSonics 111, Rockets 105

Bruce Seals and Nick Weatherspoon scored 25 points apiece as Seattle broke a three-game losing streak and kept alive its slim hopes of making the playoffs. However, any combination of four Seattle losses and Kansas City wins will eliminate the Sonics. Seals scored 21 points in the first quarter, including 11 in a row, giving the Sonics a 33-19 lead. Houston's Calvin Murphy led all scorers with 34 points but the Sonics held Rudy Tomjanovich, who averages 22.1 points pre game, to 10.

76ers 115, Pistons 112

George McGinnis' driving layup broke a tie with 45 seconds left after the Pistons' Kevin Porter tied the score 110-110 with 1:31 to go. Then came McGinnis' layup, a pair of free throws by Doug Collins and a free thow by Henry Bibby.

Julius Erving started a Philadelphia rally with Detroit leading 104-99 and 5:32 remaining. Erving scored six consecutive points for the 76ers, pulling them within 106-105. The 76ers, who clinched the Atlantic Division title Tuesday night, picked up four percentage points in their drive to finish ahead of Los Angeles for the NBA's best percentage. The Lakers, idle Wednesday night, have an .019 percentage lead over the 76ers. The team which finishes with the highest percentage earns the hone court edge in all playoff games.

Celtics 90, Bulls 88 Sidney Wicks made a key steal with 21 seconds remaining that stopped a furious Chicago comeback as the Bulls pulled within 87-86 with 49 seconds left. Dave Cowens sank a pair of free throws with six seconds remaining for an 89-86 edge which offset an ensuing dunk shot by the Bulls' Artis Gilmore. Boston's Curtis Rowe added a free throw with one second re-maining for the final margin of vic-

Lucchesi doesn't want Randle let off easy

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - Texas Rangers Manager Frank Lucchesi, punched and hospitalized by second baseman Lenny Randle, said Wednesday that Randle should not be let off easy. Asked about the possibility of a civil suit or criminal charges, Lucchesi said. "I don't want to make a definite comment on that right now because I've got some thinking to do. But I don't think any man should allowed to get away with something like this." Witnesses said Randle knocked the manager down with one punch Monday, then rained blows on him until teammate Bert Campaneris Randle was dissatisfied at having been bumped from the starting job by rookie Bump Wills. He and Lucchesi

had traded barbs in the press.

Rangers officials suspended Randle after the incident.

"This is one time I will not be taken advantage of," the 49-year-old Luc-chesi said. "When my 11-year-old daughter calls me on the telephone and is crying and my family back in Texas is all torn up and upset, then it's gone too far. He's not going to get away with it.'

Doctors say Lucchesi will he hospitalized at least until Saturday. He underwent surgery to repair a triple fracture of the cheekbone. "I'm fine as far as all that is concerned,' Lucchesi said. "The only thing bothering me now is my lower back. I don't know if he kicked me or what, but I can hardly breathe. They are checking for broken ribs or possible kidney damage."

him on one knee, looked into those sympathetic eyes of his, and Garvey too, fell in love with him.

"Mr. Garvey," the lad said to the athlete, "I love you. And when I grow up, I'm going to be just like you. Garvey didn't answer. He couldn't. He was too choked up. Tears crept out of the corners of the big 6-1, 200 pounder's eyes. Finally pulling himself together, he spoke. "I love you, too, Tommy," was all he said.

TOMMY NEVER did grow up. Two months after that touching scene on the 1976 Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon for Muscular Dystrophy, he died; finally losing his battle for life to the dreaded disease.

Even as he spoke to Garvey, Tommy knew his days were numbered. He knew he could never be like his hero. But it didn't stop him from hoping and praying for a miracle from the great Man upstairs.

I hadn't thought about that incident since I read of Tommy's death last November. But watching still more crippled youngsters on this past weekend's Easter Seals Telethon rekindled those memories, and once again, I was overcome by anger.

Why anger, you ask? Why would the sight of crippled children create feelings of fury within?

Look for a moment, beyond that scene and at another one. Look at an athlete who is not crippled, who does not have to wonder if tomorrow he will die. He is blessed with a special God-given talent that so many of us just dream of possessing. He can either run faster, jump higher, hit harder or shoot better than 95 per cent of the rest of the human race.

If he is really fortunate, this talent will enable him to become a very wealthy individual, and provide himself and his family with all of the material comforts this world has to offer. He is put in the enviable position of being a star. A nation of fans kneel at his feet, and run through brick walls and scores of security guards just to get his signature on a bubble gum wrapper or in an autograph book.

AN ATHLETE, especially a good one, whether he realizes it or not, is a very lucky person, and he should thank God every day of his life for the talent he is blessed with. How many people get the opportunity to make a living doing something they really love? As a writer, I know how rewarding that is. Because the day I consider sports writing as work and not a love, it will be time to move on to another profession.

Athletes today have become spoiled rotten. Maybe it is us sportswriters who have been responsible for that. I don't know. But I do know that there are a great many who are abusing their talent, and that's when I become irate. That's when I get sick to my stomach

When I see a baseball player fail to give 100 per cent and not run out a ground ball, or a basketball player just go through the motions on the court, or a football player refuse to play for his team until his multi-year no-cut contract is increased from five million to five million and one dollars so he'll be making more money than his teammate Joe Schmuck, I think back to little Tommy sitting there in that wheelchair.

Tommy couldn't run with a football or hit a baseball. He couldn't even walk. What we take for granted, he would consider a major miracle if he could ever accomplish it. Yet, despite all the hell Tommy went through, he didn't show a bit of frustration or pain. Not one bit. He would have had every right in the world to resent everyone who could just stand up on two legs, let alone athletes who could run 9.5 hundreds.

THE MUSCLES in his arms were so weak that Tommy couldn't even hold the bat that Steve Garvey uses to hit 450 foot home runs with. Yet, it didn't

"I'm going to be just like you," he told Garvey that day. "Just like you."
I wish a Dick Allen, Mickey Rivers or Muhammad Ali would think about little Tommy and others like him someday, when they're complaining about the "slave wages" they're receiving, or the "long hours" they're being forced to work. Then, maybe they would realize just how lucky they

Judy favored to repeat in Colgate

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) - A total of $305,000 was up for grabs in the Dinah Shore Winners Circle golf tournament beginning today, meaning that Judy Rankin should be at the top of her game.

Mrs. Rankin has become women golf's answer to Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus- when those male counterparts were playing their best golf. Last year, she had the most successful money season ever on the Ladies Professional Golf Association circuit, winning six tournaments and $150,000, becoming the first woman golfer to top $100,000 in one year.

When there is a big purse at stakeand this tournament at Mission Hills Country Club is billed as the richest sports event for women—the 32year-old Texas usually is at or near the top. She has the added edge of playing her home course.

Mrs. Rankin won at Mission Hills last year, collecting $32,000 and a new car. This year, the top prizes for the 72-hole event over the par 36-36-72 Mission Hills layout spanning 6,370 yards is $36,000 and another new

Mrs. Rankin, a 13-year veteran of the LPGA tour, said that adjusting to just such things, particularly in the pressure-packed putting game, was what put her at the top of her game.

"I figured out my putting after tying for fourth at the Triple Crown last January," she said. "I now grip the putter just like I do my other clubs, with a strong left hand position.

"With today's purses and with network TV cameras on me, I had gotten to the point where I was falling apart under the pressure. Since made the changes in my grip and stance, it's been a revelation.

Mrs. Rankin has begun 1977 the same way she played in 1976-by winning. She has won two of the four LPGA events played this year. Still, she faces a strong challenge for the lucrative top prize in this to be some team.

Miss Palmer, one of the most consistent players on the tour for the past decade, ran her 1977 earnings to $32,000 by winning the Kathryn Crosby tournament. Mrs. Rankin, who has won $30,000 this year, finished far back.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) -Norm Sherry, whose baseball fortunes have made a rapid and dramatic rise in the last eight months, says he's finally beginning to accept the fact that he's a major league manager—and of a team with talent.

"I don't have to pinch myself every morning now to see if I'm dreaming, Sherry said before his California Angeles took the field for an exhibition game. "I just pinch myself every now and then.

Sherry, then a coach with the Angels, replaced Dick Williams as the California manager last July. The move surprised most people, including Sherry.

Norm Sherry is about to start his first full season as manager of the California Angels - a team bolstered by the signing of some free agents with batting punch. Sherry, a former Angel coach, took over the team in mid-season last year and improved the Angel record. He is a journeyman catcher with several major league teams. (AP Laserphoto)

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) - Transsexual Dr. Renee Richards easily won her second-round match in a $20,000 women's tennis tournament here Wednesday night.

The 42-year-old Richards defeated Roylee Bailey of Sacramento, Calif., 6-3, 6-3. Also Wednesday night, high school senior Ann Smith of Dallas came from behind to defeat 20-yearold Carolyn Lane.

Smith, 17, fell behind the hard serving Lane, a Phoenix pro, 3-5, in the second set after losing the

Smith came back to win the second set 7-5, then took the third 6-3.

"Those kids really showed how tennis is supposed to be played," said fifth-seeded Linda Thomas, who defeated Glynis Coles of Great Britain 6-1, 6-4. "There wasn't one bit of hesitation or weakness out there," she said. "Every point was a winner it seemed."

Thomas will face Smith in the singles quarterfinals Friday, while Richards will play Nancy Ornscein of Washington, D.C., also a winner Wednesday.

Belinda Thompson of Great Britain, who upset Pat Bostrom Wednesday, will meet the winner of today's Mary HammCaroline Stoll contest.

Also today, second-seeded Jane Stratton of Salt Lake City will play 17-year-old Jeanne Duvall of Dallas and eighth-seeded Kym Ruddell of Australia meets Judy Connor of New Zealand.

Lee Rebels playing hooky from San Angelo Relays

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

For the first time this season, seven of eight District 5-4A track teams will be entered in the same meet, but the holdout of the Midland Lee Rebels will keep the San Angelo Relays from being a 5-4A district meet preview.

Lee is heading to the Bel Air Invitational in El Paso Friday and Saturday, the same two days of the San Angelo run, but it is hard to blame Lee coach Sam Volpe for avoiding the San Angelo run.

Last year at San Angelo, Lee lost high point individual Stanley O'Neal when he injured a leg, and was not able to perform in the district meet. Lee may want to forget the Concho

City altogether.
VOLPE SAYS, however, that the reason he opted for El Paso instead of San Angelo is the fact that all of the 5-4A teams will be there.

'We have run against most of the 5-4A schools this year, and we wanted a little different competition," Volpe said. "But I have to admit that what happened last year at San Angelo is reason enough not to go there. That really hurt us, but it sure wasn't San Angelo's fault."

The fact that Kileen, Temple and Bryan, three of the top AAAA teams in the state, will be at San Angelo also keeps the meet from being a 5-4A preview. El Paso Burges, Del Rio, Eagle Pass and Hereford will also be in the meet, and by the time the points are divided, it sure won't look like a 5-

COACH ED Nixon's Midland High Bulldogs will be in San Angelo, however, as the Rebs and 'Dogs go separate ways for the first time this

Jeff McGowan

The Bulldogs will face the toughest competition this year, but the test in some key areas may prove beneficial if the 'Dogs can survive in two or three key events.

"It's going to be an extremely tough field," Nixon said. "I don't know if we will even be able to take two or three kids back for the Saturday finals, but they will get to run against some of the state's best."

In fact, 31 participants in the San Angelo Relays own state rankings in the four divisions. There will be at least one ranked individual in each MIDLAND HIGH'S Robert Wilson, the defending 5-4A mile champion, will face a tough grind in the mile Saturday. Wilson posted a 4:25.1 last week in Del Rio for his best career time, but El Paso Burges has some tough milers and Nixon feels that a 4:20 might be necessary to win. That mark will have to be obtained by the regionals if Wilson wants a crack at the state run later this spring.

Pat Darden, who had a 4:37 last week, will also be tested in the strong field, and Chuck Stump, who did not run last week, will try to pick up where he left off two weeks ago in the 880. Stump had a career best 2:01 in the Tall City Relays.

But the biggest 5-4A test may come for Midland's Alvin Price in both the 100 and 220 dashes. Price will face San Angelo's Roy Young, Permian's Lyndon Kauk and Odessa's Darrell Shepard and Abilene's Anthony

ALL ARE capable of breaking 10.0 in the 100 and 23.0 in the 220. That may be the best series of races in the meet.

Midland High will also have eyes on Brian Booker and Frank Driskill in the shot put. Booker had his best toss ever last week with a 52-111/2 while Driskill managed a 51-8, his best ever. Lee's Jeff McGowan had a 52-9, his best, last week, and the Rebels will be watching him. The second place regional shot put berth appears to be a wide open race although San Angelo's Harold Ledet is conceded the top position.

Lee's David Skinner, a one-time miler, has found a home in the 880, and after a 1:58.8 last week may vie for the 880 5-4A title in two weeks. Skinner has not won a race this year. but he is coming on stronger each week after Volpe moved the senior to the 880 from the mile, the event he ran

LEE'S STEVE Hooper is also coming strong in the mile after his best time of 4:30 last week, and Jamie Berry continues to improve in the 440 with a 51.3 last week, his best. Arthur Pertile, a sophomore like Hooper. may be an 880 threat by district and is closing in on the 2:00 barrier. Pertile, however, suffered a muscle cramp Tuesday in practice and it is not known how it will affect his performance this week. Jerry Moore continues to improve in the long jump and had a 20-111/2 last week. Moore could be in the regional berth run by In San Angelo, Kileen will play the

AAAA role of defending champion while Odessa Ector holds that previledge in the AAA run. Floydada is back to defend the AA crown as is Mason in the A-B division. Reagan County, however, is a threat to Mason, and the Owls will see how strong they are against 9-A com-

Swendig, a Midland native, is scheduled to participate in the 100 and 200 yard basckstroke event, and will be part of the men's 4 x 100 medley relay team. Other members of the squad include James Brown, a freshman from Pasadena Sam Rayburn; Fernando Prado, a freshman from Sao Paulo, Brazil; and Chris Lysinger, a sophomore junior college All-American from Gregory Portland.

The relay team qualified as two members of the team lowered their times in a Dallas meet last weekend. Brown was the key swimmer as he was timed in 47.1 for the 100 freestyle, lowering his time from a previous best of 48.4. Prado lowered his time in the 100 butterfly from 53.45 to 53.22. Lysinger has a time of 59.85 in the 100 breastroke.

Montgomery also announced that five Chaparral swimmers had qualified for the Junior AAU nationals, which are going to be held in Dallas, April 14-16. That Junior AAU meet is limited to competitors 18 years of age and younger who meet minimum qualifying times.

Prado qualified in the 100 butterfly. Also qualifying for two individual events vas Mike Shrader, a freshman from Fort Worth Southwest, who will compete in the 100 and 200 backstroke

The 4 x 100 medley relay team also qualified. Members will be Mike Shrader: Tommy Hawkins, freshman from Odessa; Steve Jankowitz, freshman from Reston, Virginia; and David MacDowell, freshman from Salina, Kansas.

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) -Referees and judges at the Olympic Games will be the first to benefit from a revised distribution of the massive television revenue.

The International Olympic Committee announced Wednesday that of its share of the money—probably at least $25 million when the Games are staged in Moscow in 1980-a 10 per cent reserve fund will be set up and referees and judges will have their expenses paid from it.

"There were complaints at last year's Games in Montreal from people who officiated at the Games but had to pay their own way," an IOC spokesman said after a session of the Executive Board. "Now we will have a fund from which to pay their expenses.

The Executive Board was scheduled to meet Thursday with the General Assembly of National Olympic Committees (NOCs) and the formula for sharing the revenue from the Games was on the agenda.

There were reports of criticism from African countries, which want the money paid out differently. Until now the IOC has allocated one third to administration expenses, one third to the international sports federations and one third to the 135 recognized national Olympic committees.

NL East: Phils the favorite, but Bucs no pushover

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

Some fans think the Philadelphia Phillies won last year's National League East pennant because of Manager Danny Ozark. Others think they won it despite Whichever way you lean, you've got to admit they had a pretty impressive roster in 1976. That list has been sharply altered with the departure of two names. If the change is sufficiently drastic, the Pittsburgh Pirates may regain the divisional title.

It appears the latter half of the season will be made up of a trio of two-team races. The first will be between the two Pennsylvania clubs, the second between the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Mets for third place, the third between the Montreal Expos and Chicago Cubs trying to avoid the cellar.

The Phils' sluggers are still there, like Mike Schmidt (major league-leading 38 home runs) and Greg Luzinski .304 average, 21 homers). So are the spray hitters, like Garry Maddox (.330 average) and Jay Johnstone (.318). So are the big-winning pitchers, like Steve Carlton (20-7) and Jim Lonborg (18-10). So are the reliable relievers, like Gene Garber and Tug McGraw.

AND THERE are a few new faces, like Richie Hebner and Ted Sizemore. It's those two new names which raise the big questions.

They're replacing two big names. Hebner succeeds the controversial, yet productive

Dick Allen, who figures to occasionally menace American League pitchers for equally controversial Charles O. Finley and his Oakland A's. Allen was never a premier first baseman-but he may well have done the job better than Hebner will do it. The former Pittsburgh third baseman hasn't played first since his minor league days. And Hebner's bat will never be mistaken for Allen's.

Sizemore takes over for Dave Cash, who grumbled his way through the 1976 season because he felt the Phils weren't compensating him sufficiently for his contributions, then took the free-agent route north to Montreal. Sizemore's glove is adequate to fill the second base job. His bat leaves a lot to be desired when matched up with

The Pirates, now with Chuck Tanner as manager, have been winners of the NL East flag in five of the eight seasons divisional play has existed. They've never finished lower than third in that span and were second to the Phils last year.

Pittsburgh may suddenly have one of the best mound staffs in the division with a couple of major bullpen additions. Rich Gossage and Terry Forster had dreadful records with the Chicago White Sox last year-but are capable of bouncing back. And Grant Jackson provides another important arm, joining Kent Tekulve. The starters are already there— John Candelaria, Jim Rooker, Bruce Kison and Jerry Reuss.

TANNER'S ARRIVAL in Pittsburgh was the result of one of the more bizarre trades in baseball history, a player-for-manager deal. When Tanner left Oakland-where he still had a year to run on a contract-Finley wanted something in return. "If I'm gonna run a school for managers, I'm gonna get paid for it," he said. What he got from the Pirates was $100,000 and a topflight catcher, Manny Sanguillen.

That leaves Pittsburgh's No. 1 catching job with Duffy Dyer, never more than a reserve. With a glove, he's capable, but he's never shown much with a bat.

With Hebner gone, the Pirates are hoping to convert outfielder Bill Robinson or former Oakland second baseman Phil Garner into a third baseman, playing in an infield with agingbut-still-potent Willie Stargell and stillyoung Rennie Stennett and Frank Taveras. And with Richie Zisk gone in the Forster-Gossage deal, Al Oliver and Dave Parker figure to be joined in the outfield by Robinson (if he doesn't beat out Garner at third), and Omar Moreno or Miguel Dilone, both of whom are speed merchants and are rated future stars.

By FRED ROTHENBERG AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Jim Bowie, the legendary frontiersman, earned his reputation with a knife. His distant descendant, baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, has found a much different edge

He keeps his mouth shut.

During his long-standing war with Charlie Finley, the renegade owner of the Oakland A's, Kuhn stood above the battle. When Finley publicly questioned Kuhn's intelligence, calling him the "national idiot," the commissioner stayed mum.

"I didn't say anything for two reasons," Kuhn said Wednesday during a free-wheeling interview in his midtown Manhattan office. "For practical reasons, Mr. Finley and I were in litigation. It's not a smart thing to get involved in name-calling during litigation. And secondly, won't demean the office of the com-

"I've had potshots taken at me by experts, Finley," said Kuhn, who recently won the $3.5 lawsuit Finley filed against him. "I'm not immune to the criticism, but it doesn't hurt me. It bothers me.'

Kuhn says he is aware that much of baseball's recent publicity has dealt with the sport's problems, particularly Finley's challenge to the power of the commissioner's office. But he says this publicity hasn't hurt

"The only negative comment that could hurt baseball would be if some star said he didn't care about the game, that he was only in it for the money," Kuhn said.

That has not happened yet, although people are discovering that baseball players, just like everyone else, want to get paid whatever the market will bear.

Swim coach sceptical of scholarship ruling can't afford it. There's no pro con-

rules limiting scholarships for swimmers and track and field athletes are going to end the United States' domination of those events at the 1980 Moscow Olympics, Tennessee swimming Coach Ray Bussard said Wednesday

"Nobody gives a darn about swimming unless it's an Olympic year," Bussard said. "It's three years of nothing and then you're great. All these big Olympic gold medals that everybody has been patting them-selves on the back for, including the NCAA, are going to disappear." NCAA cutbacks in all sports programs have limited the number of swimming scholarships to 11 for any one college. Track and field scholarships are limited to 15.

Bussard said a college ca not field the best team possible when it is limited to 11 scholarships for 18 swimming and diving events and 15 scholarships for 20 different track and field events.

"It showed up in the women's events this past year at Montreal," he said. "Now it's going to show up for the U.S. men in the 1980 Games and it will be worse in 1984.

'There's no way we'll be able to compete with subsidized teams from East Germany and Russia. They have to dominate. Our university presidents and athletic directors must see the drastic mistake that has been made and try to correct it.' Bussard said colleges have been providing the bulk of U.S. swimmers in Olympic competition.

'If they have to work to pay their tuition to college, they can't train year-round," he said. "They just tract at the end of the rainbow for these people.'

Bussard's team finished third behind Southern California and Alabama in the NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships last weekend at Cleveland.

'The only reason our team was able to compete this year was that several boys sacrificed their scholarships so we could bring in some younger ones," Bussard said. "We wouldn't have won a single meet if we hadn't."

He predicted that Alabama, losing only one swimmer to graduation, would be the team to beat next year. both in the Southeastern Conference and the NCAA.

NEW YORK (AP) - Marlene Floyd won't win the Dinah Shore-Winner's Circle golf tournament this weekend but she'll have a lot to say about who

Miss Floyd, a 33-year-old former airline stewardess in her second year on the women's tour, will be among the commentators when ABC televises the final two rounds of the tournament Saturday and Sunday. "All they told me was I'll be doing

MISS FLOYD, a pretty blue-eyed blonde who was a stewardess for 10 years before joining the tour, made her TV debut last year. "We were playing in Raleigh and NBC was looking for a girl in the tournament to be a commentator. My tee-off time was early enough so that I could do it.

'They asked me to come on up and give it a try. I did a fairly good job I uess, but I was nervous because I didn't know what was going on. The cameras jump from hole to hole so much, it's hard to keep up with who's doing what on each hole. That's the hardest part. You have to keep on

Miss Floyd, whose brother Ray is the reigning Masters champion, sees her role as providing background on the players to keep a viewer interested. "That's what people are in-terested in," she says. "Judy Rankin has a son that she takes around on the tour with her. Joanne Carner and her husband travel around to tour-naments in a mobile home. I think the public likes to hear about things like

"I remember watching Olga Korbut in the Olympics and I was dying for someone to ask her about her diet. How does she keep so trim? What does she eat? But no one asked her.'

MISS FLOYD isn't playing this weekend because you have to finish to qualify. Her best finish has been 15th. She is single, lives in a condominium alongside the Mission Hills Country Club course, site of the tourney, and intends to concentrate on her golfig career over the next couple of years. Then, perhaps, she would ike to take up broadcasting full time.

"There is a place for women in sports broadcasting. The field is wide open," she says. "I think a woman has the advantage over some of the men now. I would really love to do a men's tournament and I think it will come about. Men will accept a woman commentator now. Once you have a chance to show what you can do, they will accept you.

"I see women on football shows, on the news, all over. Why not on a men's golf tournament?"

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The New York Yankees have agreed to discus third baseman Graig Nettles' contract demands and the American League's home run king was expected back in the team's training camp today.

Nettles' adviser, LaRue Harcourt, said in California Wednesday night that the Yankees had promised to discuss extending and rewording Nettles' contract within 48 hours.

In return, Nettles said he would end his unauthorized twoday absence. Nettles jumped the Yankees Tuesday during the team's week-long trip to Florida's west coast.

Nettles, who signed a three-year package last summer for an estimated $380,000, said he wants the contract extended and reworded, not renegotiated.

"I'm not trying to renegotiate," he said. "This is not a push for more money this year. I'm looking for two things-I'd like an extension on my contract and I'd like to have it reworded.

MC co-hosting golf tourney

Three junior colleges and three senior college women's teams comprise the field for the second annual Judy Rankin-Midland College Women's Intercollegiate Invitational Tournament, which opens Monday, April 4.

The two-day, 36-hole tourney begins at 9 a.m. on the Ranchland Hill Country Club course.

The event is named for Midland's Judy Rankin, the 1977 leading money winner on the Ladies' Professional Golf Association Tour. Mrs. Rankin attended the 1976 tournament, but will be involved in the Colgate-Dinah Shore Winners Circle tournament this year.

Competing in the tournament at RHCC will be Temple Junior College, Texas Christian University, Texas Tech, New Mexico University, San Jacinto Junior College, and Midland College.

BLM Rangers may heat up desert

The Washington Post

RANDSBURG, Calif. - Law and order is coming to the California

Long the refuge of hermits, outlaws, prospectors, dune-buggy enthusiasts, and people just trying to get away from it all, this vast expanse of arid, federally owned land between Los Angeles and the Arizona border is about to come under the control of the nation's newest police force: the Bureau of Land Management

With 16 rangers to patrol 12 million acres, there won't exactly be an officer behind every cactus. But the mere prospect of a fully trained, fully armed desert ranger force has brought cries of protest from those who regard this barren land as the last stronghold of true personal

"These public lands have been the last really free territory in the United States," says Keith O'Hara, a 47-yearold prospector. "These rangers will place us under the gun and make our desert a complete police state.''

Trying to head off the rangers, who will take to the bush in July, miners' organizations, off-road vehicle groups and desert rock collectors have initiated lawsuits, letter-writing campaigns, protests and public hearings.

Peter Silvain, the BLM special agent in charge of law enforcement, maintains that his agency has no intention of depriving free public access to the vast federal domain.

"A lot of these special interest roups are very emotional and get off half-cocked," Silvain said. "All we're trying to do is protect the resources. We have to save the legacy for tomorrow.

Until President Ford signed the Land Policy Management Act last October, the BLM had virtually no authority to enforce its regulations on, for example, desert mine safety. Rangers were few, unarmed and could do little more than politely ask lawbreakers to desist or call the county sheriff, often two hours' drive

"The old law wasn't very strong," Silvain said. "The regulations were strange and hardly enforceable. Now we have a law that's strong and to the

With the new ranger force - now i ... training here and at the federal law enforcement and BLM's training center in Glynco, Ga. - and BLM's new regulatory power, many old desert hands realize that the years of ignoring the federal government are over. Particluarly worried are the miners working the windswept hills here who see in the rangers and new BLM regulations a threat to their way

"Here we have a government bureau almost totally ignorant of mining," said O'Hara, leader of the militant Western Mining Council chapter here. "They are promulgating regulations that are unenforceable, unreasonable and impossible to small miners. Those guys are wiping us out."

Sky spy spots birds

The managers use the pictures to monitor habitat conditions and predict probable production of young birds.

State move afoot to buy scenic Big Bend Ranch

BIG BEND RANCH, Tex. (AP) -Locked in the rugged, craggy mountain ranges of West Texas is a variety of scenic wonders virtually unknown to most Texans.

And Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong wants $8 million to secure the area for the state.

'I hunted on the ranch several times over recent years, and was struck by its unique beauty," Armstrong said of the Big Bend Ranch in southeastern Presidio County.

"Nowhere in Texas is there such a variety of pure scenic beauty and geological, biological and archaelogical phenomena."

Armstrong recently had a lawmaker introduce in the Texas Legislature a bill to appropriate $8 million to buy the ranch, 300,000 acres of what he says is unmatched in its variety of natural beauties.

The ranch lies near Big Bend National Park and is largely owned by the Diamond A Ranches of Roswell, N.M., headed by oil company executive Robert O. Anderson. It is a starkly beautiful region of spring-fed creeks, sparkling running water, giant cottonwoods, towering waterfalls, willows and ash trees and 28 miles of a spectacular wild river

"Mr. Anderson told me two years ago that the ranch was for sale, and gave me—actually the state of Texas—first refusal to buy," Armstrong said.

"It was not a case of the General. Land Office going out looking for a ranch to buy but rather being in a position to take advantage of a oncein-a-lifetime opportunity for the people of Texas.'

City mountaineers now climb buildings, not rocks

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Who are those guys? Those guys who look like second-story men inching their way up the sides of lofty University of California buildings in the dead of

"Building climbing is very similar

A loosely knit group of about 15 climbers convenes about twice a week at nearby Indian Rock for a little warmup before trooping to the

Although the sport has attracted a daring few since the 1930s, never have so many tried to conquer the sheer walls here - comparable in some ways in difficulty to Himalayan peaks or Yosemite's El Capitan. Most often there is no more than a series of finger holds.

Campus police, needless to say, frown on the activity.

"Apparently no one is reporting the

climbers anymore, or none of our officers is seeing them," says campus Police Lt. Robert Ludden. "We had a rash of climbing a few years ago. All we could do was ask them to come down. We didn't have anyone brave enough to go up after them.

The climbers say they have grown more brazen in the past year, attempting some daylight maneuvers. "At night, you might just make a few climbs," relates Vandiver, a 25year-old former Yosemite climbing instructor. "If you're going to make a day of it, you might undertake the Greek Theater, a 50-foot climb, or Memorial Coliseum or Wurster Hall, which is more than 100 feet."

The only unconquered structure on campus has been the 307-foot Campanile bell tower. The climbers say they could scale it using metal spikes

called pitons. But they scrupulously avoid damaging the structures, other than to leave black marks from their cleated boots.

Handsaw still workshop 'must'

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

Your home workshop can be filled with a variety of electric saws for a variety of purposes, yet every so often you will find a need for an oldfashioned handsaw that requires no power other than your own.

The most commonly used saw of this type is the crosscut saw, so named because it is most effective when cutting across the grain of the wood, which is the kind of cutting involved in most woodworking operations. Most of the crosscut saws used by do-it-yourselfers are 24 to 26 inches in length and have 7 or 8 points to the inch. The points refer to the teeth of the blade, so if you purchase an 8-point saw, it means there are 8 teeth to the inch. Saws with a lesser number of teeth per inch cut faster but leave a rougher edge. Those with more teeth per inch, such as 10, cut slower and require a little more effort but make smoother cuts and thus are used for extra-fine work.

In crosscutting, the saw should be held at a 45-degree angle between the handle and the surface of the table or whatever is supporting the wood. From then on, it's a case of sawing in a rhythmic fashion, remembering that the saw cuts on both the forward and backward strokes and keeping an eye on the cutting line. If the saw moves from that line even the tiniest bit, twisting the handle just a little will bring it back on target. Don't make the mistake of straightedging a line where the cut is to be and then cutting precisely on the line, since you must allow for the width of the cut. For an accurate cut, saw just along the waste side of the line. In some types of work, where accuracy is not important, you may be inclined to cut exactly on the line, but it is not a good practice, since it may get you into a bad habit that will betray you at some future time when precision is vital.

If, like most persons, you do very little ripsawing — that is, sawing with the grain of the wood — the crosscut saw will do very nicely. But if you do a considerable amount of ripsawing, then by all means get a ripsaw. Its teeth are shaped differently, with less to the inch, and permit ripsawing with less effort than the crosscut saw. The ripsaw, by the way, cuts only on the forward stroke, so relax the pressure on the backward stroke.

When using small pieces of wood, straight and accurate cuts can best be made with a backsaw. It has a reinforced back edge to keep the blade firm. Actually a thin crosscut saw with fine teeth, it is especially handy when cutting things like mouldings. The backsaw can be used with a miter box and makes very smooth cuts.

A compass saw, sometimes called a keyhole saw, is used among other things for making inside cuts after a starting hole has been made with a drill. It has a narrow, tapered blade and a curved handle, and will make either straight or curved cuts.

Jenny. Dianne. Tammy. Interupted outh and unfulfilled freams. All three have plunged into the frustrations and responsibilities of parenthood before the turbulence and oy of adolescence have subsided.

They are part of a growing number of American youngsters under age 19 who are becoming pregnant and keeping their babies.

More than one million adolescent women become pregnant each year, according to the latest figures of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America. These pregnancies result in over 600,000 babies, or one-fifth of all births in this country. Two-thirds of these pregnancies are unintended and have resulted from misinformation and ignorance regarding birth control and sexuality.

About 27.4 per cent of pregnant teens have abortions. An additional 14.4 per cent miscarry and 58.2 per cent give birth. Close to 94 per cent of those who do deliver keep the infants to raise themselves.

"Becoming a parent, becoming responsible for another life is an immense change, and kids aren't ready for it," says Dr. E. James Lieberman, a psychiatrist with the American Public Health Association in Washington.

"One out of 15 young girls who says she wants to keep the baby probably has something going for her in life, he said. "A few may be exceptionally mature and might make better mothers than some older women. But many of them look forward to parenthood because they have nothing else to look forward to. Some think they might gain somebody to love them.

Jenny lives with her parents in a Maryland suburb. She, like most teen mothers and mothers-to-be, did not want her real name used. And, like other 12 and 13-year-olds who decide not to have abortions or give the baby up for adoption, her child will be assimilated into her family. Her parents will assume most of the childrearing responsibilities.

She no longer attends the public school her friends go to. When she sees these youngsters, she becomes very self-conscious of her pending motherhood

"It only feels funny when I'm outside with my friends. They stare at me," she said. "I want to be a mother. But I had to stop eating cookies and cake. I didn't like that. I know I'll be a good mother because I like to play with little children all the time."

Dianne lives in Baltimore with her mother, grandmother and two brothers. Since the age of 10, she has helped care for her youngest brother. Her mother and grandmother work. She's still home caring for her brother and now her own child.

"I think I'll bring up my child the way my mother brought us up," she says. "I'm just going to try to be a good mother by making a good home and giving a lot of love. All of us are spoiled. I don't want my daughter to be spoiled.

Tammy, who lives in a one bedroom apartment in Arvada, Colo., says she will not raise her son the way she was

"I've tried to show a lot more love than my folks gave me," she said. "I also try to spend more time with him. My parents felt that their jobs were

According to interviews with childcare experts, psychologists, teen mothers and social workers. adolescent pregnancies and parenting pose social, economic and medical problems for the young woman as well as for her community.

"Perhaps mentally the girls are capable of parenting. But realistically, not at all," said Lois White, principal of the Edgar Allan Poe school in Baltimore, a special city-run institution for young mothers and pregnant teens.

"Adolescence is an unrealistic age, and this has nothing to do with being a parent. These girls see themselves as being able to be very competent parents," she said, "After reality hits, they become abusive parents because they feel they've lost out of their teen years. They just don't believe they can't handle a young baby and go to school at the same time.

"Money is the real problem," adds Linda Siegel, executive director of the YWCA in Rock Island, Ill., which runs a program for single mothers. "They don't realize the expenses involved in raising a child."

Many teen mothers receive financial and emotional support from parents. Others are tossed from home and quickly disinherited. Few are given any type of aid from the baby's father, who usually shuns all responsibility, Mrs. Siegel said.

Life changes radically for the teen mother. Gone are lazy afternoons of window shopping, movies and bike rides. Gone are the Friday end Saturday night parties with blaring rock and good dancing. There's little time for fun and games when baby's waiting to be fed.

Some accept the change and welcome the responsibility of raising a child. Many succeed in being good parents. But most are unprepared for parenthood and continue to hover uncomfortably between childhood and adulthood. The result is questionable parenting and increased personal frustration.

A New York City study found that 91 per cent of the women who first had babies at ages 15 through 17 did not have any employment. Seventy-two per cent of those mothers received public assistance. The 1973 study also noted that 85 per cent did not finish high school. More than three-fourths of teen mothers 17 and under have no healthinsurance coverage, according to the national Planned Parenthood study. And young, unmarried mothers in 22 states are not eligible for public assistance until after they have given birth and keep the baby.

IN OBSERVANCE of Doctors' Day today, Mrs. Herbert Cavenaugh, president of the Women's Auxiliary to the Midland County Medical Society, presents a check to Dr. William M. Hibbitts, president of the society, for the society's scholarship fund. Each year, the society and auxiliary provide a scholarship for a Midland youth planning a career in one of the medical fields.

Vacation turns into hobby

By VIVIAN BROWN The Associated Press

Travel to archeological digs and other remote areas of Tunisia, Nepal, Burma, Morocco, India, Indonesia and other cultures on vacations with her husband turned a hobby of collecting artifacts and unusual antiquities into a jewelry business for Ruth Frank of Pittsburgh.

Her interest in ancient relics and crafted objects began when she "hit the market place' Afghanistan, where she was visiting her son.

Marco Polo motivates world traveler

Clarke Straughan, corporation development races and cultures was mentioned by the speaker as manager for Adobe Oil Co., recounted his seven-year around-the-world tour, primarily by "way of thumb", when Altrusa Club of Midland, Inc. held its annual International Relations dinner meeting at Ranchland Hill Country Club.

Straughan described the conditions of the countries and people who have been taken over by the Communist regime.

Take Straughan, Corporation development races and cultures was mentioned by the speaker as the cause of this, and Straughan praised the countries as a possible elimination of this distrust and misunderstanding.

Straughan commented that any war on Asian soil would probably never be won because "we simply degree one must live with the people long enough to Communist regime.

Noting that "The Travels of Marco Polo" was his motivating influence, Straughan said that his plan was a ten-year one, to live and work with the people, to study their culture, life-style and education and government programs. This became a reality when he graduated from college and borrowed enough money to get to Hawaii.

His experience, stateside, as a hotel manager eventually landed him a job as manager of the Royal Hawaiian where his interest in people and his con-cern for their comfort netted him many friends throughout the world. These friendships proved valuable when he would arrive, broke in most in-stances, in their country. He either became a house guest for a period of time or was aided in securing employment in that country.

Brief details of the culture of the people and incidents during his sojourn were divulged as Straughan made his way from Hawaii to the islands of the South Pacific, around the continent of Australia and across to Hong Kong. There, Straughan was able to go to work for a hotel just opening, which later became headquarters for a United States president and his party visiting the Recounting his "never done by an American before" experiences as he traveled through Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, the Phillipines and India, the speaker also told of the changes in these countries and the conditions under which the people now live, noting that the acts committed against them, as reported in newspaper accounts, were not at all exaggerated. He spoke of the destruction, not only of the peoples, but of the countryside and the cities that had born the brunt of war, especially Beruit.

Spin rate of Neptune, Uranus close to Earth's

WASHINGTON - The distant planets Uranus and Neptune spin in space at about the same rate the earth does, which means their days are about as long as earth days and they were probably formed out of the same debris the earth was.

"Their spin rate suggests they are solid ice-like bodies and not big balls of gas," said Dr. Michael J. S. Belton of Arizona's Kitt Peak National Observatory, whose 158-inch telescope was used to measure the spin rates. "This also suggests Uranus and Neptune are more like earth and Mars than Jupiter and Saturn, which is surprising since they're so much closer to Jupiter and Saturn.'

For more than 40 years, scientists have thought that Uranus and Neptune had similar spin rates to those of Jupiter and Saturn. Astronomers have long thought Uranus spun once on its axis every 10.8 hours and that Neptune took 15.8 hours to turn once

Saturn and Jupiter are the fastest

Saturn turns once every 10 hours and 38 minutes while Jupiter rotates once every 9 hours and 55 minutes.

Fresh measurements by Kitt Peak astronomers Belton and Sethanne Hayes show that Uranus turns once every 25 hours and Neptune once every 22 hours. Both planets have "days" that are about as long as a day on earth is.

"This finding is startling to me because we got so used to what we thought were hard facts, that the rotations of all the outer planets were the same," Dr. Belton said. "Now it seems that Uranus and Neptune are distinctly different from Jupiter and Saturn."

The Kitt Peak astronomers observed Uranus for two nights and Neptune for four nights last spring, using the world's second largest optical telescope and a new spectographic technique of measuring a planet's rotation.

Uranus is 1.8 billion miles from the sun and Neptune is 2.8 billion miles from the sun, which makes them the outermost planets except for Pluto.

Using a smaller telescope at Kitt Peak, a separate four-member scientific team said it observed what it believes are the first signs of weather patterns in the upper atmosphere of Neptune.

According to Kitt Peak's Dr. Richard Joyce, Neptune's reflection increased markedly from April 1975, to March 1976, the time that Joyce and three University of Hawaii scientists observed Neptune with the 84-inch telescope at Kitt Peak. The increased reflection suggests the presence of thin, transient clouds high in Neptune's atmosphere.

Astronomers have long assumed that Neptune underwent no atmospheric changes and therefore have used the distant planet as a standard measure for brightness in the entire solar system.

Most non-filers 'never caught'

By ROBERT RENO Newsday

NEW YORK - It is the time of year when American taxpayers struggle over their tax forms. fearing that if they don't get them in a mailbox by midnight April 15 some tax agent will come knock on their door and throw them in jail.

At the same time, there are many other Americans — probably millions, federal officials say — who throw their tax forms in the garbage and forget

The chances are better than 50-50 that they will never be caught. And if they are caught there is virtually no chance they will be prosecuted - although they must, of course, pay up.

One reason that so many people get away with not has intensified its efforts to catch them, doesn't have report of earnings, someone had filed a return on it. the manpower to go after all of them.

Non-filers tend to fall into two categories. One group includes legitimate wage or salary earners who for any number of reasons, often simple procrastination, never get around to filing.

A celebrated example is Anthony I. Conrad. former chairman of the board of RCA Corp., who earned $240,000 a year and filed no federal incometax return in the years 1971 to 1975. He claimed that he simply forgot to file. During those years, RCA withheld taxes totaling $684,618 from his paychecks. When he was finally caught, it turned out he owed the government only $19,674 in taxes, which he paid along with $1,429 in interest. He never faced charges. There was a different kind of penalty, however. The affair prompted his resignation from RCA.

Another group of non-filers are people who either don't want to pay any taxes or reveal the source of their incomes. This diverse group includes workers such as domestics, who have an agreement with their employer not to withhold taxes, as well as pimps and prostitutes.

They are hardly ever caught, but there are notable exceptions. Nine alleged New York City pimps were arrested in 1974 for failure to file returns. Eight were convicted and sentenced to jail terms up to five years - a year for each count. One was accused of failure to file on $447,000 in income over a five-year period. He was not convicted.

But the non-filers are never home free. The IRS claims that there is no statute of limitations on the law requiring people to file tax returns, and that a person can be arrested for not filing in any year back to 1913, when the income tax became law.

On the other hand, failure to file is a less serious crime than tax evasion or tax fraud. Those offenses are feronies and can get you up to five years in jail, a $10,000 fine or both — even if you file a return.

jail term of up to one year with a fine of up to $10,000. caught are never charged. They must simply pay up, 435 million documents on earnings paid in 1974. sometimes with a penalty.

"To begin with you have to prove in court that the failure to file was willful," says an IRS spokesman. "You'd be surprised how difficult it is to prove willfulness to the satisfaction of a judge. People say they were sick or they forgot about it or they thought their accountant took care of it. And for another thing, we simply do not have the manpower or resources to make all these cases."

But the IRS may soon be catching more non-filers. Employers, banks and brokers are required to report all earnings, royalties and dividends paid by them to individuals. In prior years, all this information went to the IRS but no one ever compared all the

In 1976, however, the IRS began using a computer But the overwhelming majority of non-filers who get to do this. It was able to check some 40 per cent of the

The computer found in this partial survey that 1,033,000 people had income but failed to file returns

Based on this partial survey - and the fact that the IRS gets no reports at all on the income of people engaged in illegitimate enterprises — the number of people not filing returns is estimated at several million a year by IRS agents.

Those 1,033,000 people who were caught by the computer were sent letters by the IRS simply inviting them to pay up or explain why they didn't file. Some have the legitimate excuse that they earned so filing is that the Internal Revenue Service, while it reports with tax returns to make sure that for every little they weren't required to file. # Arizona crash survivor credits life to explosion

FT. SAM HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Edward L. Hess, a food broker from Phoenix who survived history's worst airline disaster, said here Wednesday he was saved by a "tank that exploded and pushed away the flames" engulfing the front end of the plane.

Hess and his wife, Mary, and 12 other persons were admitted to the burn center at Brooke Army Medical Hospital after arriving earlier from the Canary Islands. They were among the survivors of the jumbo jet collision that killed 575 persons Sunday.

The 39-year-old Hess said his wife suffered extensive burns. He said the two were in the front end of the plane and "we did not get the full impact of the collision. The plane exploded behind us.

"We did not know what had happened. I thought there was a bomb inside the plane."

Hess said at a news conference that about 30 seconds after the collison, "fire broke out. Most of us couldn't get out because of the flames."

The next few minutes, he said, the front end of the plane was an inferno.

Common situs picketing, ethics hold spotlight in House, Senate

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 17-23. HOUSE

PICKETING—Defeated, 205 for and 217 against, the common situs picketing bill (HR 4250). It sought to allow a single building trades union to close down an entire construction site, even though its dispute was with only one subcontractor at the project. An uncontroversial section of the bill sought to improve collective bargaining procedures in the construction trades industry. Senate action on the bill this Congress is possible but Organized labor—particularly the building trades—had viewed enactment of the common situs picketing bill as a major legislative priority in the 95th Congress. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the Associated General Contractors of America and other employer groups were among the most active opponents.

Rep. Frank Thompson (D-N.J.), a supporter, said: "...all the bill really does is provide for union workers in the construction industry the same rights which have long been accorded to industrial unions and their members. That is why the bill is entitled 'equal treatment of craft and industrial workers.'"

Rep. Mickey Edwards (R-Okla.), an opponent, said the problem with common situs picketing was that it expanded a strike "beyond those union members who are affected to other people, including non-union members—the innocent carpenters, electricians, plumbers, roofers, tilers and others who may be put out of work by the effects of this legislation."

Reps. Charles Wilson (D-2), Jim Mattox (D-5), Bob Eckhardt (D-8), Jack Brooks (D-9), James Wright (D-12), Barbara Jordan (D-18), Henry Gonzalez (D-20) and Bob Gammage (D-22) voted "yea."

Reps. Samuel Hall (R-1), James Collins (R-3), Ray Roberts (D-4), Bill Archer (R-7), Jake Pickle (D-10), W. R. Poage (D-11), Jack Hightower (D-13), Kika de la Garza (D-15), Richard White (D-16), Omar Burleson (D-17), George Mahon (D-19), Robert Krueger (D-21) and Abraham Kazen (D-23) voted "nay."

Reps. Olin Teague (D-6), John

Young (D-14) and Dale Milford (D-24) did not vote.

PICKETING—Adopted, 212 for and od of the plane was an inferno. 209 against, an amendment which narrowed the employer category which could be struck in a common situs picketing action. The overall bill (HR 4250) later was defeated (see above vote).

This amendment was favored by business groups such as the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, and opposed by organized labor and other proponents of common situs picketing.

In effect, it said that picketing at a construction site could be carried out only against employers "engaged primarily in the construction industry." Thus insulated from the strike would be employers physically connected to the construction site but not involved in the project.

Rep. John Ashbrook (R-Ohio), the sponsor, said the amendment "permits an employer who is not primarily involved in the construction industry to remain protected from involvement in construction industry labor relations problems."

Rep. Frank Thompson (D-N.J.) an

Rep. Frank Thompson (D-N.J.), an opponent, pointed out that the amendment would exempt from a strike "persons picking up or making deliveries to the construction site," as well as many other categories of nearby non-construction workers. Therefore it would deny picketing construction workers "the right of appeal to employes present at the site in a dispute."

Hall, Collins, Roberts, Archer, Poage, Hightower, de la Garza, White, Burleson, Mahon, Krueger and Kazen voted "yea."
Wilson, Mattox, Eckhardt, Brooks.

Pickle, Wright, Jordan, Gonzalez and Gammage voted "nay."
Teague, Young and Milford did not

OUTSIDE INCOME—Rejected, 35 or and 62 against, an amendment for and 62 against, an amendment leaving in effect the current $25,000 annual limit on a senator's income from outside activities such as giving speeches and writing articles.

Defeat of the amendment left in the new Senate ethics code a lower limit of $8,625 (15 per cent of a senator's $57,500 annual salary) on such outside "earned" income. There is no ceiling on "unearned" income such as stock dividends. The code (S Res 110) was later adopted and put into effect. House concurrence was not required.

Supporters of the amendment argued that senators without great wealth were most in need of the $25,000 supplemental income potential

Sen. Edmund Muskie (D-Maine), the sponsor, said to one opposing colleague: "The senator...is putting a cap on my income and he has not given a damn...as to what the consequences on my personal financial life or that of my family may be."

Sen. Robert Byrd (D-W. Va.), an opponent, said that "the American people expect the Senate to enact a strong code of ethics" and that "a limit of 15 per cent on outside 'earned income' (is) a necessary ingredient in that code, especially when tied to the recent pay increase."

Sen. John Tower (R) voted "yea" and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen (D) voted "nay".

ETHICS—CODE Tabled, 72 for and 20 against, an amendment prohibiting senators from receiving speaking or writing fees from organizations which are registered as lobbyists or maintair plitical action committees.

Those voting to table the amendment opposed the ban on such forms of supplemental income. The amendment was proposed to (S Res 110), the new code of ethics later adopted by the Senate. Earlier the Senate had voted to limit speaking and writing honoraria to 15 per cent of a senator's salary, or $8,625. This amendment sought to go further and outlaw fees senators receive from special interest groups.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.), a supporter of the move to table, said: "We decided that the limitation of 15 per cent was an adequate control to avoid the question of conflict, if that is the problem, or the appearance of conflict."

Sen. John Durkin (D-N.H.), a sponsor of the amendment, said: "I do think all citizens in America have uneasy moments when they think that senators are accepting honoraria, speaking fees, fees for writing articles, or receiving funds for their personal use. That is how it is perceived back home."

Bentsen and Tower voted "yea."

FINANCIAL DISCLOSURE—Rejected, 30 for and 67 against, an amendment to the code of ethics (S Res 110) scuttling many of the code's provisions and requiring instead detailed financial disclosure by senators and their immediate families.

The amendment sought to require that itemized statements of net worth be published in a document readily available to the public, so that voters could make up their own mind on whether their senators were engaging in conflicts of interest.

It would have abolished most other regulatory parts of the code, such as the limitation on outside income and the ban on holding second jobs in law, medicine and othe r professions.

Sen. Lowell Weicker (R-Conn), the sponsor, said that his ''no-exceptions policy of financial disclosure will insure accountable ethics rather than a muddle of self-regulation...Lay it on the table and let the people decide. Their decisions on who should serve, rather than those of Common Cause, the U.S. Senate or the news media are still good enough for me."

Sen. Strom Thurmond (R-S.C.) said he opposes the amendment because it eliminates the ban on second jobs and the ceiling on outside income, and "provides for an unnecessary invasion of personal privacy by requiring income tax information of a personal and family nature."

Tower voted "yea" and Bentsen voted "nay."

His collection bugging others

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Dr. Frank Hasbrouck looks after one of Arizona State University's most unusual collections — a gallery of 35,000 beetles, butterflies, moths, mosquitoes — and other crawling, flying and wiggling members of the insect world.

Hasbrouck said the collection, valued at more than $100,000, functions like a lending library for those who study insects.

"We send out thousands of specimens in the mail to various researchers," he said.

Ordering specimens from university collections is standard procedure for researchers, Hasbrouck added. Otherwise he said a cicada specialist could spend 200 years trying to collect all the known species of cicadas.

Here's reason to use slow cooker

Are you one of the millions of Americans that received a slow cooker this past Christmas?

If you haven't yet tried this appliance, this newly developed recipe from test kitchens in Rochester, N.Y. is reason enough to get it out of the box. Slowly Deviled Beef relies on budget cuts of stew beef to turn out a surprisingly savory and tender maindish with just five minutes of preparation. The "devilish" flavor is so easily achieved with an envelope of seasoning mix for sloppy joes and a sprinkle of vinegar.

If you don't have a slow cooker, slowly Deviled Beef can be prepared in a covered casserole dish in a regular oven.

A wedge of lettuce or mixed green salad makes an ideal accompaniment. This new recipe for Chunky French Dressing should make it especially memorable.

For a well-rounded meal, also serve hot cooked noodles, a green or yellow vegetable, pudding, and a beverage.

SLOWLY DEVILED BEEF 2 pounds lean stew beef, cut in 1-

1 envelope (1 1/2 oz.) Seasoning Mix for Sloppy Joes

1 can (6-oz.) tomato paste 1 cup coarsely sliced celery 1 green pepper, cut into squares

1/2 cup water 2 tablespoons vinegar

Place all ingredients in electric slow cooker; stir to mix ingredients. Cover and cook about 10 hours on low, or 4 ½ to 5 hours on high. Do not peek or stir until near the end of cooking time. (Lifting the cooker lid will increase cooking time significantly.) Serve beef with hot cooked noodles or rice. Yield: 6 servings. CHUNKY FRENCH DRESSING

1/2 cup salad oil cup lemon juice 2 tablespoons prepared yellow

Mustard 2 tablespoons sugar 1/2 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon Paprika 2 tablespoons each chopped pimiento and dill pickle

1 hard-cooked egg, chopped Combine ingredients and stir until well mixed or, if preferred, place in glass jar with tight fitting lid and shake. Keep in refrigerator. Dressing is especially nice for lettuce wedges or salad of mixed greens. Makes 1 1/2

New meat for Easter

For Easter, The National Turkey Federation is present Turkey Ham, dressed up for spring with a peach fruit glaze.

Turkey ham is boneless dark turkey meat which has been cured, seasoned and hickory smoked, just like other hams. It looks like, tasts like and has the texture of other hams, but remember that is is actually turkey. This means that you get all the nutritive value of turkey. It is higher in protein and lower in satured fats than any other popular red meat or poultry, and is a rich source of riboflavin, niacin and calcium. Turkey ham provides about 14 grams of protein for a 100 calorie serving, while the comparable pork ham has about 5 grams of protein. What a difference and turkey ham is almost fat free-

Do you support or oppose the single member district proposal, and why?

I am opposed to single member district election of city councilmen. The question is how large and diverse must a group of citizens be in order to need representation on a section by section basis. Dallas and Houston may need some representation by areas, even though it has caused problems on their councils. Midland is fortunate to not be a large city and not have many of the problems of large cities. Each councilman in Midland is responsible to every citizen. The ward system certainly has the potential to have a divisive influence on the council

Some would say that minorities cannot be elected in an at-large system. The facts are that for a number of years minorities have been elected to the school board and Midland College Board, which both use the at-large system. The county, which uses the single member system, has not had minority representation. Having served on the city council for two years, I do not see any way that the single member district method of electing councilmen will improve the quality of our city government

What about the other charter amendments? Oppose or support and why? I strongly favor passage of the charter amendment to limit the terms of councilmen and mayors to six years or three terms. I believe that the best public officials are those statesmen who are willing to do their civic duty and serve in various capacities for a limited period of time. On the other hand, I believe that the worst public officials are long term politicians. These men tend to forget how the citizens think and begin to think like government staff people. Midland has been fortunate not to have this problem in the past and would likely not have the problem in the future. However, this amendment would guarantee the future rotation of councilmen.

Those men who are inclined to serve additional years as public officials will find many other organizations to serve." I am opposed to the city charter amendment which deletes the citizen's right of appeal from the board of equalization to the city council. This amendment removes the citizen's right of appeal to his elected representatives. If a citizen disagrees with the result of a valuation appeal to the board of equalization, he now has the right to appeal his case to the city council and then to the courts of law. Under the proposed amendment, the right of appeal to the city council would be eliminated and the only recourse from the board of equalization would be the courts of law. I am in favor of the charter amendment to allow for an election to fill a vacancy on the council. The present charter requires that the council fill vacancies by appointment. The amendment will require that when more than nine months of a councilman's term remain, an election must be held to fill his position if he resigns from the council. The amendment also requires that if two or more vacancies exist on the council that an election must be held to fill the positions regardless of the amount of time remaining on the term of the positions

The amendment will allow the council to fill a vacancy by appointment only when there are less than nine months remaining on the term of that position.

Do you support city-financed paving of unpaved streets on Midland's south and east sides? I believe in city-financed paving not only on the south and east sides of town, but in all parts of Midland when the streets cannot be paved by the property owners and there will be a significant benefit to the community to have the paving.

What do you see as the major issues facing Midland in the immediate and long-term future? At this time there are major issues facing Midland, but they are not city

Looking back over the past two years, the city and its citizens have provided the Air Terminal improvements, the downtown exhibition hall, and on April 2 will make a decision on park improvements and

If the park improvements and zoo should be rejected, then these issues would continue to require some attention and alternate solutions must be considered

Mrs. Doris Howbert

Howbert backs limiting terms

Name: Doris Howbert Addres: 2604 McClintic Street Personal data: 25-year resident of Midland, Married to Van Howbert, independent geologist. Three children: Joan (Mrs. Mark) Pace, who lives in Midland; Charles, a field engineer with Dresser Atlas, who is married and living in Sonora; and Jill, a senior at Texas A&M; one grandchild. Graduate of Christian College, Columbia. Mo., and a member of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity. Present chairman of the Planning and Zoning Commission and completing three-year term in May.

Active member and past president of the Women's Auxiliary, Inc., of Midland Memorial Hospital. Currently serving on the Board of the Texas Association of Hospital Auxiliaries. Two years as a director of the United Way of Midland as a member of the visitation and budget committees. Formerly associated with the Girl Scouts and the Arthritis Foundation.

Do you support or oppose the single member district proposal and why? Because I feel strongly that the members of the City Council should be responsive to, as well as responsible to, all the citizens of Midland, I am not in favor of single member districts. I think it would narrow the perspective of the members elected by districts to the detriment of the city as a whole. The past and present councils have been composed of people who have tried very hard to represent all of Midland through public hearings and citizen input in their decision making. Good government requires participation as well as representation.

What about the other city charter amendments? Oppose or support and why?

I am in favor of limiting councilmen and mayors to three consecutive terms because I feel it will increase interest in local government and encourage more people to take part.

I am in favor of filling vacances, by special election. I do not believe the council wants, or should have, the responsibility of selecting representatives - that should be the function

I approve of the amendment because the citizen retains his right of appeal to the Board of Equalization. At the same time, it will give uniformity to the process of appeal in line with the method already in use by the Midland Independent School District and Midland College.

Do you support city-financed paving of unpaved streets on Midland's south and east sides?

Yes, and I believe this is being done where assessment paving is not possi-

What do you see as the major issues facing Midland in the immediate and long-term future?

Midland is growing so rapidly that we must be concerned with the orderly growth and development of our city. It will be necessary to keep pace with this growth by being able to provide the necessary services to these new areas, and this will require continued fiscal responsibility in the expenditure of our tax dollars.

Housing is a problem at this point but I am encouraged by the construction that is taking place, especially the fact that more apartments are being built, providing housing for those who wish to rent.

Health care is something that affects each of us and is of prime importance. We need to recruit and to encourage more doctors to come to Midland and to complete the modernization of our hospital facility.

Gordon G. Marcum II

Marcum sees many problems

Name: Gordon G. Marcum II Address: 2607 Lockheed St. Personal Data:

Married to Margaret with three children, Michal, 12 years old; Matthew, 9 years old; and Jeffery, 6 years old. Attorney and Secretary Treasurer for Marcum Drilling Company. Moved to Midland in 1955. Graduate of Midand High School, have a BBA in Petroleum Land Management and Juris Doctor in Law, serve as Chairman of the Sports Committee of Midland Chamber of Commerce and serve on the Aviation Committee. I served as Director of the Midand County Legal Aid for two years. Member of the First Presbyterian Church, State Bar of Texas, Midland County Bar, and Junior Bar Association. Recently selected to serve on the Board of Directors of the International Assocaition of Drilling Contractors. Member of American Association of Petroleum Landmen (AAPL) and Permian Basin Chapter of AAPL. I am President-Elect of the Permian Civic Ballet Association.

Do you support or oppose the single member district proposal, and why? At the present time, I do not support the single member district proposal. There are two primary reasons for my opposition. First is Midland's size and secondly, the City Council's past and present response to the needs of all the citizens especially the East and South sides. Midland may someday grow large enough to need single district members, but right now, it would needlessly divide our city into special interest groups whose constant disagreements would cause disaster in our city government. After many discussions with members of our community from every part of our city. I have found that the City Council has in the past and is presently very responsive to the needs of every citizen in the community, especially to the East and South sides. With my background and experience, I feel I can and will represent the responsible interest in our community.

What about the other city charter amendments? Oppose or support, and

I support the adoption of the three other city charter amendments. The second proposed amendment concerns placing a limit on the number of terms a councilman and mayor may serve. I feel the adoption of the amendment is important to keep new ideas and fresh leadership solving the problems of the community. It would create an opportunity for more citizens to become involved in city grovernment. The third proposed amendment should be adopted to allow, under certain circumstances for a special election to fill a councilman's vacancy instead of placing the burden on the city council. I favor its adoption to allow the citizens to decide who represents them. The fourth amendment would allow taxpayer's to proceed straight to our District Court on tax matters. The tax matters involve legal interpretation and the City Council does not need to be involved.

Do you support city-financed paving of unpaved streets on Midland's south and east sides?

Yes and No. First, you have to understand that the city is not and can not be run as a charitable organization. It has to be operated as a business and has a responsibility to the taxpayers, who furnish the money. If we have a number of citizens, who can not afford the paying assestment and if our city government can afford it. I would support city financed paving of the East and

We have several immediate problems. With our rapid growth we need to look for possible solutions to our traffic, street and parking problems. Also, we need to find a solution to our sanitation land fill problem. We definitely have a trash problem in our downtown area, and since we have always had a clean city, we have to find a solution to that problem. We neen to find a solution to our low to medium cost housing problem. We have to find builders in the private sector that will provide this housing for our citizens.

On the long term, we are faced with the continuing problems of sewerage. traffic, street and grabage. The City Council has a constant obligation to the citizens to make sure every penny of the taxpayers's money is spent pro-

Wallace backs district plan

Name: Dennis A. Wallace Address: 810 Sinclair

Personal data: I was born in Midland in 1945 and attended Midland schools and graduated from Midland High in 1963. My parents have lived in Midland since 1928. I attended Memphis State University and graduated from the U.S. Naval Supply Academy in business administration. I married to the former Peggy VanMaanen of Dallas and have four children. I served in the U.S. Navy in Vietnam and received the Presidential Citiation from President Johnson and was honorably discharged in 1969.

Do you support or oppose the single member district proposal, and why? I feel the single member district proposal will definitely be one of the major issues this year. I have mixed emotions on this issue but somewhat favor its passage. I feel that all the people of Midland are entitled to equal representation. I believe that they have received this in the past and will continue to be represented on the same basis, but again I feel that if this is not changed the federal offices will once again file a complaint telling us what we are doing wrong in our school system as well as our city govern-

What about the other city charter amendments, oppose or support and

I feel that if the mayor or councilman are doing a good job and making sound judgments and wish to continue serving the community this seems perfectly logical if they wish to seek re-election.

I certainly feel that an election should be held so the people may elect whoever they desire to serve.

I certainly feel that the ad valorem tax could in some instances get out of hand. This definitely needs to be repealed.

Do you support city financed paving of unpaved streets on Midland's south and east side?

I feel some of the main areas of travel should be paved by the city if the residents show that they are unable to pay for the repairs or paving. I feel that the money is available in revenue sharing.

What do you see as the major issue facing Midland in the immediate and long term future?

I think in the future that housing in Midland could become a real problem, but the city seems to be well prepared for this and is trying to build houses in the price range for the working man. Keeping people moving into the city, having a good sound economic growth, and keeping unemployment at a low rate are of utmost importance.

Candidate files expense report

Place 2 Midland City Council candidate Dennis A. Wallace filed a financial disclosure statement Wednesday showing he has collected $200 in campaign contributions and has spent $206.36 for political advertisements. Fred Mills donated $100, Dr.

William Nibbitts contributed $50 and Melvin Wallace gave $50.
Wallace spent $46.20 for an advertisement on KCRS radio, $52 for an advertisement on KBAT radio and $90.16 for an advertisement with The Reporter-Telegram.

Take noodle casserole to covered-dish supper

By CECILY BROWNSTONE AP Food Editor

When you are asked to contribute to a covered-dish supper, consider taking along Pastitsio - a Greek combination of elbow macaroni, ground beef and two sauces. The following version of this casserole-style dish is one a friend of ours has made a number of times and each time her tasters applauded it. She adapted the recipe from "The Fine Arts Cookbook." published by the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston,

PASTITSIO FOR A COVERED-DISH SUPPER

1 pound elbow macaroni 2 tablespoons butter or margarine 1 cup finely chopped onion 2 pounds lean ground beef

1/4 teaspoon pepper ¼ teaspoon cinnamon 1/8 teaspoon cloves 8-ounce can tomato sauce

1 teaspoon salt

% cup dry red wine 1/2 cup fine dry bread crumbs 11/2 cups freshly rated Romano cheese

cloves, tomato sauce and wine; mix well. Cook gently, covered, for about 30 minutes. Thoroughly stir in the bread crumbs. In a double-duty 13 by 9 by 31/4 inch baking pan (it comes with a flat metal lid) arrange about half the macaroni and sprinkle with 1 cup of the cheese; add the meat sauce and then the remaining macaroni. Carefully pour the Sauce Toppdistribute it over the macaroni and to let it seep down at the edges of the pan. Sprinkle with the remaining cheese. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until puffy, browned and thoroughly heated in the center - about 1 hour. Let stand about 15 minutes; cut into squares and serve. Makes 8 generous servings.

Note: We have given directions for making the Pastitsio in a pan that comes with a flat lid so it can be easily carried to a covered-dish supper. Pastitsio is often served at room temperature.

SAUCE TOPPING

In a medium saucepan over low heat, melt 6 tablespoon butter; stir in 5 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and 1/8 teaspoon nutmeg; off heat, gradually whisk in 3 cups milk. Jared Edwards calls them "treasures." And when he takes his flashlight into the sub-basements and cellar vaults, the hidden niches and dusty attic corners of Connecticut's State Capitol, he finds these things and more.

For the last five years treasure hunting in the Capitol has been Edwards's obsession.

Edwards is architectural consultant to the Commission on Restoration and Preservation of the State Capitol. In that capacity, he has explored all the building's dark crannies in search of original decorative features.

' The point is to locate furniture and art pieces which adorned the building when it opened in 1879. Then, he explains, they can be preserved and used as models for reproductions.

Edwards reports with sadness that much has been lost through carelessness or vandalism.

One of his most exciting treasures was found gathering dust in a basement vault: the original, miniature plaster sculptors' models of the art work now on the Capitol's archways and porches.

"When I first saw them, they were perfect," Edwards recalls. "But since then they've been badly abused. I

By the dim light of his flashlight, he stumbled one day upon a chromiumplated, badly dented spittoon, the only one remaining of dozens once scattered about the building.

Many of Connecticut's tiles, decorated with fables or Biblical scenes, have disappeared through the years - "probably pried up with a penknife by a long-time employe who wanted a souvenir," he suspects.

And in a sub-basement of the state office building, he found a genuine treasure: the original architect's drawings for the Capitol.

"They were stored in huge green crates, the size of double bed box springs," he recalls. "They had been set on end and they must have been that way for some time, because someone had attached a pencil sharpener to one crate.

Phi Beta Kappa's primary concerns today are more subtle threats to the Republic, notably what it sees as the enemies of academic excellence.

"I see grade inflation as a symptom of weakening standards," notes Dr. Kenneth Green, executive secretary of the society.

'During the '60s, when student activism was at its height and faculties were inclined to be sympathetic generally to demands for relevant or so-called relevant studies, they were also sympathetic to young men who would be eligible for the draft and Vietnam if they didn't stay in college.

This led, he says, to wholesaling A's and B's and dropping difficult studies such as foreign languages and mathematics as prerequisites for degrees.

"I'm happy to see," says Dr. Green, "that the professors and administrators are asserting themselves once again, and saying in effect that we do know more about what should constitute an education than

Mass transit trend changing old ideas

By DAVID JOHNSTON Los Angeles Times

SAN FRANCISCO — Steve Miller, a state Public Utilities Commission engineer, and his wife, Saeko, a Petaluma home early each weekday morning for a ride to San Francisco.

In Okemos, Mich., attorney David VanderHaagen steps off his front porch, strolls past the car in his driveway and hops aboard a bus for a comfortable ride to his downtown Lansing office.

At about the same time in Bellevue Tenn., a wellheeled suburb of Nashville, stockbroker David B. Johnson does the same thing.

The Millers, VanderHaagen and Johnson are part also challenging widely held views about who rides buses have increasingly been the province of the old. the poor and students - those who could not afford souls raised in big cities and passionately committed to the idea of mass transit. Over the years, both service and riders have from riding buses. But today, growing legions of people who can af-someone else while they sit back in air conditioned comfort to read, chat or doze aboard the nation's rapidly growing fleet of modern buses.

Hardly anyone has paid attention to this trend That may be partly because it lacks the instant appeal of an exotic transit system - such as the San Francisco Bay Area's new ferry system and rail rapid transit. And it may be partly because total national bus ridership figures tend to obscure it.

Bus ridership on the big-volume big city systems, which get the most public attention, has declined over the years.

The total number of fare-paying passengers on the nation's bus transit systems has plummeted from 8.3 billion in 1945 to a low of 3.5 billion in 1972. But ridership since then has been increasing, up to just over 4 billion riders for 1975, the last year for which figures are available, according to the American Public Transit Assn.

Taiwan not doing badly without diplomatic ties

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) - In a world where the majority of countries recognize the Peking government as China, the rival Republic of China on Taiwan has not done badly in keeping up international trade and exchanges.

Those countries call it simply Taiwan. Canada, ignoring the wishes of the International Olympic Committee, even refused to let it compete in the 1976 Montreal Olympics under the name in which it holds its Olympic membership, "Republic of China."

In that case, the nationalist Chinese insisted on principles and withdrew, declaring that they would no more give up their name than the average individual person would give up his.

But in keeping international contacts open, they don't make much stir over the name issue.

In countries such as the United States, which has diplomatic relations with Taipei, the China External Trade Development Council promotes the nation's business.

"We don't want to cause trouble for our friends," said K.H. Wu, the council's secretary general.

"In countries with which we have no diplomatic relations, we have to be flexible, not diehard. When we want to make friends, we have to understand their problems," he added.

Wu said the council promotes trade both ways in line with the Chinese philosophy that "When we ask our friends to help, we have to help our friends first."

Taiwan's international financial standing is good, a U.S. embassy economist said, adding, "It has no difficulty getting funds even in the absence of diplomatic relations."

It also does substantial trade with such countries as Japan, West Germany, Australia and Britain, none of which recognize it diplomatically.

In general, said Wu, "countries want to expand trade so we still can expand trade relations with them."

'Security prisoners' live in curious limbo

THE WASHINGTON POST

ASHKELON, Israel - Locked away behind the gray concrete and barbedwire walls of the maximum security prison of Ashkelon are 400 Arab 'security prisoners'' - most of them condemned to spend the rest of their lives in a curious limbo.

These men are neither Israeli citizens nor common criminals. They are for the most part Palestinians, the majority of them from the occupied territories, who have been caught engaging in, or plotting, acts of violence against the state of Israel.

To the Israelis they are simply terrorists and murderers, their crimes considered worse than those of ordinary criminals. The prisoners consider themselves, according to the prison authorities, to be freedom fighters in a just war, and even behind bars they remain highly motivated and politicized.

To give them prisoner-of-war status is out of the question, as far as Israel is concerned, because this would recognize the legitimacy of the Palestinian organizations to which they belong. Yet privately, Israeli of-ficials speculate that if there is to be a peace treaty between Israel and the Arabs, some of the prisoners here might be released in an amnesty. The prsoners of Ashkelon, 30 miles south of TI Aviv, near the Gaza Strip. have become a focus of national attention in Israel. In the 1st three months they have engaged in intermittent hunger and work strikes to protest their living conditions. Sympathy strikes have been organized in other Israeli prisons, and their cause has been taken up by relatives demonstrating on the West Bank and by a small band of Israeli humanrights activists.

There are about 3,100 non-Israeli prisoners in Israeli jails, according to official sources, and about 80 per cent of them are security prisoners, not common criminals. In Ashkelon prison, no one is serving less than a 15-year sentence and 350 are condemned to life sentences.

They live cramped together, 10, 20, sometimes 30 to a cell, so closely packed that there is little room to step between them when they are sleeping. There are no chairs, tables, not even beds. They sleep on rubber mats less than a third of an inch thick. There are no dining halls. The prisoners are brought buckets of food, which they eat on the floor of their cells.

According to Felicia Langer, an Isralit lawyer representing one of the Ashkelon prisoners, the hunger strikers have no political demands other than to be treated the same as Israeli prisoners. Langer, a leading activist and a member of Israel's Communist party, is well known in Israel for her defense of human rights in the occupied territories. The authorities say the hunger strikes are nothing more than another attempt to harm the state of Israel. Police Minister Shlomo Hillel was quoted recently as saying that the security prisoners had committed murder and sabotage against Israel while they were free, and that that now, from behind bars, they were just throwing "propaganda bombs."

What does Carter see in old buddy Bert Lance?

By SALLY QUINN
The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — Bert Lance is Jimmy Carter's director of the Office of Management and Budget, a job Carter believes is one of the most important in government.

Everybody wonders what Jimmy Carter sees in Bert Lance, big country boy from Calhoun, Ga. Oh, sure, he married the boss's daughter, LaBelle, when they were both 19 and he became a teller in the bank. Then when LaBelle's father died 13 years later he became president of the bank and increased its assets considerably.

And certainly when he went to Atlanta and took over the Bank of Georgia and increased its assets in two years from $240 million to $415 million, that was impressive. But then there are a lot of successful bankers around. What's Bert Lance got that others haven't?

Bert Lance is shrewd, ambitious, devoted to his work, successful, pro-ductive and understands people. And he's smart. That's the most important Part of being smart is that Bert Lance doesn't particularly care if you know it. He's not too crazy about all those words. He'd rather have you think he was a good old country boy.

He sits in an easy chair in his Executive Office Building office, high-cellinged, elegantly furnished. He rubs his hands together. He's been in politics. He knows how to give an interview. His eyes dance as he says, "I sure appreciate you folks taking the SUCCESSFUL? "I happen to truly believe this: Success is a journey and not a destination. I don't see I'll ever arrive at the point where I'll say, 'Lance, old boy, you've arrived at success.' There's no question about it. Once you get to the point where you've arrived at a station called success you get complacent and lethargic. Those goals you set keep changing. But it's not a ruthless sort

Ambitious? "Well, I've always tried to set some kind of goal. I want to be better than anybody in the banking business and when I ran the Highway Department in Georgia I wanted it to be the best in the country. And of course," he said, looking very earnest, "I have a high sense of public service." He looks up for a moment. Then says, "I know you think this sounds like a naive statement but all of us have been given a lot. And so a lot is expected in return.

"That's part of the bounty we've been blessed with." Not to mention the financial regards involved. He smiles and shrugs in an offhand manner. "I like to live comfortably."

Smart? "I don't know how smart I am. I just try to be what I am. I hope I'm modest. I think that's a desirable Shrewd? That stops him. tions of that word. I like to think I'm good in dealing with the problems of people. In that sense I'm shrewd. In the best sense of the word. But in a multiple choice I wouldn't pick that word. What word would I pick? I knew I was getting myself in trouble." He throws his head back and laughs. Then more seriously, "I hope I'm open, frank and candid."

IT IS HARD not to deal in symbols with LaBelle Lance.

On her coffee table sits a crystal bowl of dying camellias brought from Georgia to remind her of home.

"They can't bear the cold," she says wistfully, rubbing her pale slender hands together in the 60degree house. She smiles, almost beseechingly, and fingers the gold heart that hangs from a chain around her neck.

"Hearts?" she says, looking down at it. "Why, hearts and butterflies and four leaf clovers I've always loved. I still get down on my knees and collect four leaf clovers. Do you? My house in Atlanta is called Butterfly Manna. The butterfly is for my special symbol, they symbolize fragility and happiness, and manna because it's a joyful gift from heaven ... I have a special deep faith, you know. I don't know whether a lot of people know it ... and I just knew my symbol would be butterflies from when I was a girl. But I guess you think that's so sen-timental."

Her soft southern voice has a lilt to it when she speaks, her sentences end on an up note as though she is hoping for approval, her long dark hair, pulled back and hanging in curls down her back, belies the tiny lines which are beginning to show in her face, around her eyes. There is a girlish, even childlike manner about her which makes you want to give her a present or candy, to tell her she's pretty and see her face light up. "I have butterflies all over my house in Georgia," she says. "I even have a butterfly oriental rug. Butterflies mean immortality in a Christian sense. Hearts are very special to me, too. Bert gives me a lot of things with hearts on them. Of course, I love hearts for love. But you can't have hearts without butterflies. You have to have joy and life everlasting."

Next to a silk chair in her traditional living room in Georgetown, sitting on the baby blue wall-to-wall carpeting, is a large hourglass which substitutes for an end table. "There's a little inconception on it," she says, brightening.

"It's about the sands of time and love. Time is precious to us. We've always felt that way."

LABELLE AND Bert Lance have known each other since the sixth grade when his father, a teacher, moved to Calhoun, Ga., and her father was president of the local bank. LaBelle even remembers the first present Bert gave her. "It was when I was in the eighth grade and he gave me an Evening in Paris set with cologne and lipstick and rouge. It was in a very fancy silver and blue box and it

And she says he even chooses a lot of her clothes for her now. "He looks in the paper and he chooses what he thinks are right for me. I might be old fashioned. He's much more fashion conscious."

"I'm proud," she says. "Sometimes we throw marriages away. I'm just grateful my husband still loves me and gives me presents.'

HAMILTON JORDAN said recently that if he had to pick one who in the Carter Administration would be the "social Henry Kissinger" it would be Bert Lance.

When you first meet Bert Lance, especially if it's at a party, you recognize immediately that here is the most gregarious, sociable person there. He's all over the place, gladhanding, patting people on the back, laughing, telling jokes, often on himself. He seems to be just an old easy-going fun-loving guy.

But just let someone of importance walk into the room and Lance will excuse himself, say he has to go mix and mingle and there he'll be in a flash. And like his wife, LaBelle, he bemoans the fact that they don't have the time to socialize the way they did in Atlanta.

"I like people," he says. "I enjoy going out, seeing people, finding out what's going on. But it's been really difficult to go out here. I've tried to restrict our social life to the things we have to do. Then you don't get carried away. Once you start accepting it gets to the point where you can't turn any of it off and then you just can't get anything done." But he does understand the value of socializing in Washington. "It's part of communication," he says.

Though he seems to find communication with others important, he admits to a feeling that when he gets home he simply needs to be quiet.

"I talk all day," he says. "So every once in a while it's nice to be quiet. To listen." He shifts in his seat, when you are living with somebody you try to be concerned with the quality of time rather than the quantity.

"I try to do that."

Livening up bathroom can

IT IS interesting that so many of the men in the Carter Administration who espouse women's rights choose to live with the traditional husband-wife roles, but Lance doesn't see any problems with that. "The opportunities ought to be there for the individual choice and decisions," he says. "It's not right for me to make those choices. Women need to be invovled. They have a lot to offer. I encourage founded by his great-grandfather.

"When you start building a bathroom the imagination of architects can be boundless. It shouldn't be restricted," he maintains.

The concept for Environment began with him, and a large team of engineers and marketing people helped complete the idea. In fact, four years ago, his son David, now 10, made a big contribution. He had suggested his father take a whiff of air inside the Environment. He did. "The effect of steam on the wood that was first used didn't enhance the atmosphere. And the ultra violet light created a noxious odor from decaying and burning foam," he said. Cypress is now used and other changes were truly happy when she has her children around and now in Washington she is without any of them.

She has four sons, from 25 to 15, all of whom are in Georgia. The 17-yearold chose to stay in school in Atlanta, the 15-year-old chose to stay in

She is very lonely. "I think that's the saddest part of my life now," she admits. "Hopefully, though, we'll get to go home on weekends. But you have to become at peace with yourself. I can be elated and I can be very sad." Interestingly, although Bert Lance is probably the man closest to Carter in Washington except for Hamilton Jordan, LaBelle Lance is not particularly close to Rosalynn. "I think we have similar families whether we're close or not. We respect each other and have love for each other." She says she would be delighted to help Rosalynn on any of her projects "if she asks me, but I doubt if she will. She didn't call on me in the state though she knew I'd do anything she asked. I believe in them that much.... but we're just not that close friends. I don't know that I have those kinds of friends, the coffee-dropping-by friends. I talk to my family. My mother and I are close. I'm really very private. I usully tell Bert when things bother me. He's a good one to sympathize or understand. He's good too at making me see the other side of

"I'm very quick to talk and express my feelings. For a long time I felt I must contain myself. But it just wasn't me." She looks down at her rings at bit shyly and smiles: 'Anyway, Bert seems to like me."

BERT LANCE is not flattered by being called a technician. Nor would he say he was an ideologue. "A lot of people don't deviate. I think I'm a pragmatic sort of fellow. There's more than one way to cross the street, more ways than one of getting there. I have a certain basic ideology, though. Getting people to do things. He's good at that, he says.

"It's sort of my experience and background," he says, "listening to people and ideas, seeing them succeed and fail .-. . People are what make the world go around. If you don't have the understanding of people and you've got all the attributes known to man then, well, then you couldn't have very many attributes." "I've got good capacity for names and faces. People's names are important to them. I learned to remember people's names when I worked in the note cage at the bank."

Lance says that he thinks banking was the right profession for him. He likes it, he says, because of the risks. "You measure the risks. But really the payoff comes in the ability to create jobs. But probably to you that sounds like naive of the highest order."

The 2nd Maine fighting battles in Deep South

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Being a Union cavalry officer in the Deep South is fun, says Robert Williams, despite its drawbacks.

Williams is commanding officer of D Company, 2nd Maine Cavalry, a horseless unit that fought make believe battles at Gettysburg, Atlanta and Knoxville, waged the Red River campaign, looted an antebellum plantation and molested its mistress—smiling at television cameras all the while.

The 2nd Maine is a group of otherwise unremarkable men who invested about $1,200 apiece in outfitting themselves as authentically as possible in Civil War garb, complete with muzzle-loading weapons, oldstyle mess kits, bedrolls, tents — even hand-carved dice and tintype pornographic pictures.

At the blast of a bugle, they and similar groups across the country charge off to re-enact the great battles of the Civil War.

Williams, 29, says there's more to his hobby than just playing soldier. "We're sort of living history. There's an awful lot of research involved. And it's good family activity. The wives get involved in making the uniforms and their own period costumes."

Williams said his unit travels to battle in groups, spending about $300 a year apiece for gas and provisions.

"We go in cars, vans, trailers, recreational vehicles. But once we get there, it's all authentic. We take the equipment out of the vehicles and move them off the field. In cold weather, you can use sleeping bags, just as long as they're covered by

Mutation to tame bad bees

BUENOS AIRES (AP)

— Killer bees, a nuisance to man and beast in South America, may someday turn gentle through mutation, according to Argentina's top bee expert, Moises Katzenelson.

The change could be brought about in 30 to 40 years because of cross-breeding techniques now being conducted between killer and calm strains, Katzenelson, a member of the government-run National Agricultural Technology Institute's entomology division said in an interview with The Associated Press.

Ironically, it was through a sort of mutation that the killer bee threat arose two decades ago when an American geneticist, Dr. Robert Kerr, introduced an African variety of bees into Brazil to cross-breed them with local strains, apparently to obtain more honey.

26 African queen bees escaped and intermingled freely with local strains, thereby creating the killer. Since then, these bees have spread through Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay, Paraguay, Peru and as far noth as Venezuela, leading to fears among American scientists that some day they may reach the United States.

Katzenelson says his only answer to the bee problem in this country is to transform the killers into peaceful bees by introducing the calm strain characteristics into the aggressives.

No champagne music accompanies rent hike

By MICHAEL SEILER The Los Angeles Times

ESCONDIDO, Calif. - Funny thing, but residents of Lawrence Welk's mobile home park here did not break out the champagne when they got their rent-increase notices recent-

In fact, they are downright unhappy over the increase — some as high as 42 per cent — scheduled to take effect April 1, according to some of the more activist members of the Lawrence Welk Country Club Village Assn.
There are 200 mobile homes at Welk's park. Most of them are occupied by older people on fixed in-comes, few of whom seem to be bubbling over with joy these days.

"The senior citizens have made

Lawrence Welk, all 40 million of us," said Joe Moss, 69, a retired interior decorator. "He owes everything he's got to the senior citizens who like his music and we expect more of him Bruce Hurtt, 67, a retired real estate salesman, is equally offended by the rent boost. "Welk on his show calls us his third family (after his real family and his musicians), but at this point we feel we're a bunch of or-

"We think he's gouging us," added Hurtt. "It's just plain darn unfair." Lawrence Welk a rent gouger?

You can, of course, get an argument Another resident of the village,

Walter E. Miller Jr., 68, a retired natural gas engineer, wrote The Los Angeles Times after learning a reporter and a photographer had visited the village and talked to residents active in the association.

Miller called those unhappy with the increase "rabid malcontents" and added they "feel Mr. Welk is a very wealthy man so he should be responsible for supporting them.'

"In my opinion, Lawrence Welk's

'Lulu' next from Met

money is tainted — 'taint yours and 'taint mine,' Miller's letter continued. "Because of the fabulous job he has done for decades in giving top quality, high moral standard entertainment, which our nation needs, I wish his wealth was twice what it

Welk's wealth seems quite sufficient, if his property here is any indication. Besides the mobile home park, there is a restaurant, a large motel and an 18-hole par-three golf course, all spread over rolling hills 10 miles north of Escondido in San Diego

Welk has a trailer on the very top of the hill, which he uses occasionally on weekends. Welk was away on tour recently, so defense of the rent increase was left to Ted Lennon, uncle of the Lennon Sisters and executive vice president of Welk's Teleklew productions. Inc.

Lennon confirmed that some increases will be as high as 42 per cent, bringing the rent up to between $137.50 and $210 per month.

But he added that other increases will be little as 5 per cent, because management has generally increased rental charges gradually as mobile homes in the park changed hands. There will be no further increases for at least a year, he said. Lennon cited "inflating costs" and the fact that "we've never made a reasonable return on investment" as reasons for the rent boost.

Lennon defended Welk. "He does regret the increase; he looks on the people who live there as another family of his," Lennon said.

Welk has always tried to "hold rents down to an absolute minimum,' he added.

Unhappy residents of Lawrence Welk Country Club Village are being a bit unrealistic, Lennon said. "Why expect more of him than from anyone else? It's an investment and he has the right to a reasonable return.

A lovable pig and a lovely spider are portrayed by Bobby Joe Cleveland and Sharon Garrison respectively in Casa Manana Playhouse's current attraction, "Charlotte's Web." The children's play will have a dozen performances during April at Fort Worth's famed theater-in-the-round.

'Charlotte's Web' slated at Fort Worth theater

FORT WORTH - A tender and imaginative play about a beautiful friendship between farmyard characters will have a series of presentations by the Casa Manana Playhouse, a performing company for young people at Fort Worth's famous Casa Manana theater.

The play, Charlotte's Web," offers magic, humor and delight for children and grownups alike, said Deborah Fuller, director. The play will have a series of special Saturday matinee performances for school children on April 2, 9 and 16, and there will be "Family Night" presentations at 7:30 p.m. Friday and April 15. Tickets for the family events are now on sale at Casa Manana, 3101 W. Lancaster Blvd., and seats may be reserved by telephoning the box office at 817-332-

The creator of "Charlotte's Web" is E. B. White who in 1970 received the Laura Ingalls Wilder Medal for his children's stories. Previously, in 1960, the National Institute of Arts and Letters awarded White its gold medal for his contributions to literature throughout his lifetime.

Heading the cast of Casa Manana Playhouse's production is Gina Kirkland as Fern, a little girl; Bobby Joe Cleveland as a runty pig, Wilbur, and Sharon Garrison as the philosophical spider who weaves miraculous webs. Other pivotal cast members include Lou Hancock, George Stephens, Alan Klem, Carol Wurz and Michael Goggins.

Allens: fulfillment, frustration

By JACK SLATER The Los Angeles Times

ENCINO, Calif. - For 20-odd years they have been one of television's leading couples: Steve Allen, the comedian, composer, musician and writer; Jayne Meadows, the sometimes actress and impudent queen of the game-show circuit. Today, he has realized his potential to the degree that he hears himself described as "a man for all media" and "one of the most creative men of our time," while she, a compelling actress of enormous power and versatility, feels she has realized her promise hardly at all.

On a recent Friday afternoon, the Allens, married for 23 years, were at home in Encino, where they live with their 19-year-old son, Bill, in a 20room ranch house nestled against the hills and filled with the accoutrements of success: Chinese Chippendale, velvet-covered couches, silk love seats, antique Chinese lamps, antique porcelain elephants, Oriental rugs, watercolors by Henry Miller, Toulouse-Lautrec originals, several libraries, five pianos and one

The pianos are there mostly for the benefit of the man of the house. "My primary gift is for the composition of music," Allen says. "Most people don't know that, even though they may have enjoyed a lot of my songs.

He is an unpretentious man, reserved, personable yet distant. Developing a paunch and going gray now with a receding hairline, at 56 he has been a part of the national consciousness for more than 25 years as comedian extraordinaire, intellectual and a man of deep political conviction.

As a comedian, he says, "I would rate myself less funny than Sid Caesar, less funny than Mel Brooks, less funny in the movies than Woody Allen. To the degree that I have any distinction at all as a comedian, it is in the spontaneous creation of humor in front of an audience."

As always, he has umpteen projects going simultaneously - comedy con-

Allen's biography hints at an unhappy childhood spent traveling from city to city with a mother who was a comedienne. "My mother," he says, "was not well cast for the role. Not every adult should become a parent. My mother had no particular gifts for motherhood. And even if she had, it would have been a difficult situation: Vaudeville was no place to raise children." (His father died when he was 2.) Later, because young Allen developed asthma, mother and son eventually settled in Arizona, but not before he had gone to nearly 18 stint in the Army, he worked three years as an announcer-writer-pianist for a radio station in Phoenix. He married, became a father and later came to Los Angeles to break into radio's big-time. Eventually, he created a talk show and it soon became his stepping-stone to national television in New York. By that time, it was 1950, and he was 28.

in several less-than memorable plays, among them, "Spring Again," "Another Love Story" and "Kiss Them for Me."

Producer Pandro S. Berman saw her in "Kiss Them for Me" and offered her a contract with Metro Goldwyn Mayer. Although her movie career was launched in 1946 with "Undercurrent," her second film assignment, as a murderess in "Lady in the Lake," revealed the full range of her abilities. Only 17 when she made "Lady," she created an extraordinary portrait of a woman on the edge of insanity, at once frightened, funny, devious, audacious and, in the denouement, capable of striking terror in an audience. It was a remarkable performance, one that still carries impact today.

After such auspicious beginnings, however, nothing much happened to Jayne Meadows, film actress. She married screenwriter Milton Krims but they divorced. Feeling increasingly inadequate as a person and a performer, she says, she hung around Hollywood for several more years, withdrawing deeper into a cocoon and turning down several good roles, even as she went broke.

Finally, in 1952, she went to New York to do publicity for another unremarkable film and wound up on the game show, I've Got a Secret. "The thing that made me a name on television," she recalls, "was not ac-

An articulate women, she understands the depth of her in-securities rather well, but her husband probably sketches her character better than anybody.
"She's an old-fashioned woman,"

Allen says, "old-fashioned in terms of her attitudes, her manner, her demeanor, her voice. She has a dignity that is rare these days. But she also has a lightness, an airiness, a girlishness and a certain degree of social innocence." ("A naivete," Jayne Meadows says of herself.)

By JOHN SAAR The Washington Post

TOKYO - Since 1974, 18-year-old Kobe high school student Makoto. Kominami's life has been simple and rigorous. He has spent all day at school, slept three hours a night and studied the rest of the time.

The doctor told Takashi Sudo, son of Niigata schoolteachers, that if he could only afford five hours sleep a night, the best hours were 10 p.m. to 3 a.m. So he rigged a tape recorder to the timer of a rice cooker, and his study day began at 3 a.m. with the up. Get up. Get up."

The three are among tens of thousands of Japanese students undergoing the rigors of this year's "juken jigoken" - examination hell a brutal academic struggle for university entrance.

As the climax to an incredibly competitive educational system, the February-March examinations produce a tragic annual crop of suicides and nervous collapse. The knowledge race that leads up to the exam is a national controversy, but no one knows how to stop or solve it.

Parents face an unenviable dilemma. Most do not like treadmill education, but neither do they want their children to lose out on life at the Kominami, a jolly, heavily muscled judo expert who does not want to go into his wealthy father's construction business, is taking no chances. Commuting between Tokyo, Kyoto and his home near Kobe, he has taken 30 exams at 10 universities in 16 days. His plan when he gets admitted to one is "to take a rest for four years," and then start working as a teacher of world history.

Carter administration considers cooperative

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration is considering the idea of a world-wide energy cooperative that would give all nations equal access to nuclear power for peaceful

Administration sources say the coop concept is designed to aid in the development of poor nations and could halt the spread of nuclear weapons by giving non-nuclear nations access to atomic power without forcing them to develop their own nuclear technology

Administration officials stress that the idea still is no more than "a concept." One expert said, "It is not yet a project or a plan because its details have yet to be worked out with greater precision.

The concept would involve a global system under which interested countries could share in the ownership, development and management of nuclear installations and processes involved in the nuclear fuel cycle.

The sources say the program could be a fallback compromise in case current strenuous U.S. efforts fail to stop West Germany and France from selling Brazil and Pakistan nuclear reactors. Along with the systems and technology for a nuclear power

Gulf projects yield crude

Gulf Oil Corp. was making production tests at wildcats in Eddy and Lea counties, N.M., and a Lea wildcat recovered shows on a drillstem test.

No. 1-EM Littlefield-Federal Communitized, Eddy wildcat, eight miles southeast of Loco Hills in the Shugart, North (Queen) field and seven miles northeast of Morrow gas production in the Hackberry field, flowed 28 barrels of oil and two barrels of water in 141/2 hours, plus gas at the daily rate of 3.1 million cubic feet.

The flow was through an unreported choke and Morrow perforations at 11.732-11.569 feet.

Operator was preparing to perforate opposite the Atoka zone and venture, five miles northwest of Monument in the Eunice-Monument area, pumped 10 barrels of oil and 17 barrels of water in 24 hours, with gas volume at 108,000 cubic feet per day, from an unidentified formation.

Recovery was through perforations at 7,224-7,432 feet, which had been acidized with 10,000 gallons. Testing continued, after reacidizing with 1,000

Slated to 8,400 feet, it was drilled to 8,574 feet, and plugged back to 7,494 feet, in 51/2-inch casing set at 8,520 feet, after testing unsuccessfully through deeper perforations.

Gulf No. 1 Gulf-McKay-Federal Lea exploratory test, ½ mile south of Morrow gas and ¾ mile north and slightly east of a dual Morrow gas and Bone Springs oil strike in the Lusk, North area, recovered 400 feet of mud-, salt water-, and gas-cut oil, gravity, 43.4 degrees, plus 700 feet of salt waterand gas-cut oil, and 1,400 feet of gas-cut salt water. The sample chamber contined 1,020 cubic centimeters of oil and 840 cubic centimeters of salt water.

An earlier test from 6,367-6,560 feet. recovered 200 feet of free 42.6-gravity oil, 400 feet of heavily oil- and gas-cut drilling fluid, 2,800 feet of heavily oiland gas-cut salt water and 1,500 feet of slightly oil- and gas-cut salt water.

The project was drilling ahead below 6,950 feet on a Morrow contract. Location is 660 feet from south and 1.980 feet from west lines of section 34-18s-32e, 16 miles southwest Buckeye.

Lobo Oil Corp. has announced a Strawn discovery in Kent County, 10 miles southwest of Clairemont.

It is No. 2-11 Spires, 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 11, block 4, H&GN survey.

The operator has suggested the well be designated as the opener of the Spires (Strawn C-3) field.

On 24-hour potential test, it pumped 60 barrels of oil and 800 barrels of water, from open hole at 6,867-6,920 feet after 6,500 gallons of acid. Gravity was 40.2 and gas-oil ratio was system, such sales can supply a weapons-making capacity.

Carter has spoken in the past about the idea of regionalizing certain aspects of the nuclear power industry on a worldwide basis. The original idea was that there might be one centralized enrichment operation serving West Europe, one serving the Middle East, one or more serving the Western Hemisphere and so on.

The same concept of regionalizing the disposal of radioactive waste, either by recycling to yield plutonium or by burial far from inhabited areas, has been discussed and still is considered a valid possibility. This would mutually deny member nations access to atomic arms material, but would not deny them the use of nuclear power.

But the new U.S. concept of internationalizing the peaceful uses of nuclear energy appears to go beyond anything suggested in the past.

It could, for instance, lead to international financing, ownership and management of research programs, reprocessing facilities or of new generations of reactors located inside the United States.

At the same time, sources said, it could give needier nations a stake in the benefits of nuclear energy development, which they cannot afford to undertake on their own.

Administration sources also say such a program could introduce a universal system of cooperation for the orderly development of the nuclear industry as a source of energy and general scientific and medical

Oil storage to offset future oil embargoes

Araboil embargo would have no effect on this country for five months under a plan to store 500 million barrels of crude deep under salt domes in Texas and Louisiana, a Federal Energy Administration official said today.

The FEA is negotiating now for the first storage site, Brine Mound, near Freeport, Thomas Noel, assistant FEA administrator, told a Capitol news conference.

Brine Mound will hold 60 million

"We lost 300 million barrels of oil during the 1973-74 boycott over a period of five months," Noel said. At that time, the United States imported 30 per cent of its oil. Today that figure is over 40 per cent.

Approximately 7.5 million barrels of oil are brought into this country each day, he said.

In the event of another boycott, the federally owned oil would be sold to private companies, he said. Originally, the Strategic Crude Oil Storage Program called for a reserve

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Acne therapy usually safe

away at college. The doctor's office there gave her an antibiotic drug called erythromycin for her acne, which has now more or less cleared up for the first time in several years. However, she has been taking the erythromycin for about four months, and I don't know that it is such a good idea to stay on antibiotics for so long a period. Isn't there a chance she could get too used to them that they would not help if she ever came down with a serious illness? Wouldn't a milder treatment be better and safer in the long run? - K.D.B. Dear K.D.B.: Low-dose antibiotic therapy is very widely used for stubborn cases of acne, and skin experts at the American Medical Association say this can be continued for months or even years, as long as the patient is under the regular supervision of a doctor-which I presume your daughter is.

Erythromycin is certainly an antibiotic that doctors consider safe and effective for treating acne. Sometimes antibiotic therapy has undesirable side effects - such as allergic reactions, diarrhea and vaginal yeast infections - but these are quite rare, and they almost always disappear after the therapy plied in a lotion or ointment instead of taken internally. Whether or not this would ve better treatment for your daughter would be for the college doctor or infirmary to decide. Acne can be a distressing experience for a young person, especial-stops. Erythromycin can also be ap-ly a girl, but a great deal of progress has been made in treating it. It certainly is wise of your daughter to seek medical advice about it. To H.J. in Hamilton, Ohio: You are quite right. Constipation can lead to a lot of gas, headaches, feeling very tired, weakness and even faintness. Many of these symptoms are related in part to sluggish intestinal movement and in part to the anxiety aroused by the constipation itself. I am glad to hear that the exercise program your doctor suggested helped you with your constipation. It's true that exercise, along with proper diet, does help many kinds of constipation.

For M.E. in Portland, Me.: It has been postulated that the human body may have lost its ability to manufacture vitamin C/millions of years ago. Ascorbic acid (vitamin C) is abundantly present in plant food. Yet, for the lack of it, countless people have died of scurvy. Citres fruit is a good source of vitamin C.

Big Spring officials ready for future without air base

By ED TODD R-T Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Big Spring Mayor Wade Choate, who for the past year has been an outspoken critic of the U.S. Air Force's proposal to close Webb Air Force Base here, has passively accepted the Air Force's latest decree: to kill off the base.

But he's not giving up on the economic plight that will suddenly strike this community when the undergraduate pilot training (UPT)

base is shut down six months from

"We have done all that we can do," the mayor said Wednesday afternoon in a news conference in the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce building.

"(Now is the) time for us to make a turn around and to go in a different

That different direction, he explained, will be in trying to bring in new industries and businesses to minent demise.

"... The city, county and surrounding areas are behind our continued industrial growth and development in the community," he

Webb's closing, justified in part by the decreased need for pilots in peacetime, will mean a direct payroll loss of $30 million annually and a $50 million reduction in regional economic output. Webb AFB, in short, accounts for an estimated 11 per cent of the Big Spring area's total economic output.

With Webb's closure will come soaring unemployment rate - from almost 3 per cent to 13 per cent, say economic analysts.

And Choate, like his comrades-inarms seated beside him at the news conference, appeared calm, undisturbed and not particularly surprised by Webb's decreed fate.

Pro-Webbers siding with the mayor were Chamber President Roger Brown and County Judge Bill

Brown said he dared not project the economic impact of the base's closure.

"We've never passed this way before, and we're going to fight as hard as we can . . . to fight this economic depression," said Brown, an attorney.

(In truth, at least in one respect, Big Spring has "passed this way before." That was in the closing of a bombardier school here shortly after World World II. But late in 1951, the airstrip that was the old bombardier base was reopened as a pilot training

Brown expressed confidence that Big Spring soon will regain the economic loss it will suffer by the closing of Webb.

"I'm a eternal optimist," he said, "and I think that we will have a period of (economic) adjustment.

Though the closure will drop Big Spring into temporary economic slump, "the final recovery is (will be) better than before," Brown said.

The economic base of this city of 30,000 is largely grounded in the petrochemical and oil and gas industries, in farming and ranching, and in the military base.

Webb's closing will more or less coincide with the shutdowns of Craig AFB at Selma, Ala., and of Kincheloe AFB in Michigan. Craig is one of seven Air Force undergraduate pilot training (UPT) bases. Kincheloe serves the Stragetic Air Command.

In justifying the closing of the bases, Secretary of the Air Force Thomas C. Reed said the "streamlining of our organization and reducing overhead . . . are necessary if we are to modernize our combat

The measure will "save at least $75 million per year," he said in a prepared statement from the nation's

'There is no alternative to such actions in light of the hard realities of defense budgeting," Reed said. He said the closure of Webb "is a

The time will come, and soon, when these T38 Talon jet trainers no longer will be flying over Webb AFB and the Big Spring area. The base is scheduled for a shutdown within six months. (Staff photo by Ed Todd)

Defense officials downplay quick arms buildup; B1 fate improves

By FREDS. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senior defense officials see no need for any drastic acceleration of U.S. weapons programs because of Russia's rejection of the Carter administration's nuclear arms limitation proposals.

However, the Kremlin's move could improve the controversial B1 bomber's chances of winning President Carter's approval for continued production. Defense Secretary Harold Brown, a member of Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty negotiating teams during the Nixon and Ford administrations. reportedly reacted with no surprise on learning of the negative Soviet response to the Carter administration's first formal arms control presentation.

Associates said Brown expects the Russians will come eventually to a new arms agreement with the United States on the basis of mutual benefit. Brown does not believe the human rights issue will stand in the way of such an ultimate accord, his associates said. Brown's reaction to Wednesday's setback in Moscow seemed much milder than Carter's. The President said the United States will be looking for evidence of "good faith" when Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A.

Gromyko meet in May. 'If we feel at the conclusion of next month's discussion that the Soviets are not acting in good faith with us, and that an agreement is unlikely, then I would be forced to consider a much more deep commitment to the development and deployment of additional weapons," Carter said.

But Brown and other top defense officials are known to believe there would be no need for any quick stepup in U.S. nuclear weapons programs to avoid a power imbalance, "Our programs are carefully constructed so we can adjust to developments," said one official. "We are in position to move ahead on weapons systems as Brown told Congress last month that "there is no reason for immediate or grave alarm about our ability to deter major military actions by the Soviet Union.

Some U.S. military chiefs have warned that the Russians could be in position to test the United States by 1981 or 1982, if growth in Soviet missiles and other military power continues unabated

Brown reportedly feels the United States has a cushion of several years in which to act, if necessary, to overcome any potentially dangerous imbalance.

Carter staff swells; deep cut unrealistic

By EDWARD WALSH The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Two months after taking office, President Carter is presiding over a White House staff that is larger than that of his predecessor and has all but abandoned his promise to make a deep cut in the size of the White House staff.

Richard Harden, special assistant to the President for budget and organization, told a breakfast meeting of reporters Wednesday that the Carter White House now has 490 full-time employes — just under the 510 full-time White House employes at the end of President Ford's

But on top of the 490, Harden candidly acknowledged, the new administration has hired about 175 temporary "detailees" from other government agencies, swelling the size of the Carter White House so that it is now 30 per cent larger than the Ford White House.

Harden blamed this largely on an extraordinary volume of mail, the inclusion of energy experts on the White House staff before creation of an Energy Department and the need to beef up the White House personnel office while the new administration is taking shape.

But even when these problems are solved and most or all of the temporary detailees return to their agencies, Harden conceded, the White House is now aiming at a 10 to 12 per cent cut in staff size. not the 30 per cent cut the President said he would impose.

Carter made efficiency in government a hallmark of his campaign and the White House staff a particular target of his jibes. He charged that the White House had become bloated under the Nixon administration and had remained so under Ford. He promised to make drastic reductions.

When Carter took office, he ordered a 30 per cent, acrossthe-board reduction in the size of the White House staff from what it had been under Ford.

Assassinations panel given new life lease

By JIM ADAMS

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House assassinations committee, granted two years to do its work, will "lay to rest all the rumors and rumors of rumors" about the murders of John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr., its chairman promises.

A sharply divided House extended the committee's life through 1978 by a vote of 230 to 181 on Wednesday after its controversial chief counsel,

Richard A. Sprague, resigned. Chairman Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, said an unofficial count had indicated that if Sprague had not resigned, the committee might have been killed by some 20 votes. He and other panel members praised Sprague and said he had been unfairly maligned by the committee's former chairman, Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex.

Gonzalez quit the panel last month when its members and the House leadership refused to back his attempt to fire Sprague.

Stokes told the House the committee is pursuing new leads and talking to new witnesses. But critics demanding proof tried to force the first secret House session since the 1880s to make the panel spell out its

That effort was defeated 226 to 185 on Stokes' argument that leaks of the witnesses' names could put some of their lives in danger.

Rep. B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., com-plained that at a closed briefing on the evidence, "the only thing I heard was that you have evidence that X overheard Y and Z say something.

Stokes cut short a news conference when he was asked repeatedly about his contention that a man who reportedly committed suicide in Florida on Tuesday would have been 'a crucial witness.

George de Mohrenschildt, 65, a Russian-born geologist who was a friend of Lee Harvey Oswald, was found dead of a shotgun wound at his daughter's home in Manalapan, Fla., a few hours after a House assassinations committee investigator tried to see him. A Dutch journalist, Willem Oltmans, who had interviewed de Mohrenschildt, told the panel last month that the geologist felt some responsibility for the Kennedy assassination, apparently because he had an indication of what Oswald might do and did not act to stop it.

Reaction to closure varies in Big Spring

BIG SPRING - The Air Force, like it or not, is bailing out of Big Spring. And some folks, like cotton farmer Jack Walker, just don't give much of a hoot that Webb Air Force Base is closing up shop. Others do care. And some may be deviously pleased about the prospect. But it doesn't much matter to

"To me," he said, "it doesn't make any difference. I'm a cotton farmer, and I don't think that will affect the price of cotton.

Fostering a differing viewpoint was Big Spring barber Jim Caldwell. We don't like it, but what can we do about it?" Caldwell said. 'We think it's all politics - I do," he said of the closing of the pilot training base. He figured that Webb is a top-flight

"This is the best, the cheapest, base in the whole command. I think it's dirty politics, myself." Caldwell reckoned that the Air Force erred in not shutting down another base and leaving Webb in Webb should have been spared, he said, because of its efficiency as a jet pilot training base and because of the negative economic impact the shutdown will have on the community and area. The closing of Webb "doesn't make sense," he said. "I'm bitterly against

it. It's politics-that's what it is.' Even some of those in the military possibly share Caldwell's viewpoint. "I just got through cutting the hair of a major here," he said, "and he's just as upset as we are."

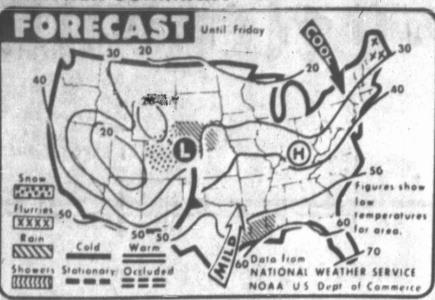

Fellow barber Larry Knight, also, was a bit peeved over the imminent shutdown. "The damn taxes are going to go up

a hell of a lot," he said. He even went as far as to say that the Air Force's studies on the environmental impact of the closing "were a farce." The Air Force conducted two impact studies.

"Then we picked it (the first one) to pieces, and they came out with another one. And it says the same thing,' Knight said.

The barber shop's shoeshiner, 73year-old Charlie Boland, said the Air Force should have spent money on building a third runway at Webb, rather than sinking half a million dollars on studies to justify the closing of Webb and two additional bases.

League president, city's mayor spar over charter amendment

By JIM STEINBERG

"It's paternalism of the first order for a (city) council from the same section of town to think it can fully represent all of Midland," Betty Sheeler, president of the Midland League of Women Voters, said in favor of the proposed single-member district city charter amendment.

But taking the other side in what was at times a spirited debate Wednesday, Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. said, "There is no basis for changing to the ward system when the present system is providing good government for Midland."

Both spoke before the noon
Wednesday meeting of the Downtown Lion's Club

Calling Midland "exactly the right size" for a single-member district concept as presented in the amendment proposal, Mrs. Sheeler said minority representation is not really

Midkiff Drive and south of Illinois Avenue, something the present system does not do," Mrs. Sheeler

But Angelo called the proposed switch to ward representation one that would result in a "divisive process that would pit race against race, and neighborhood against neighborhood.

Countering, Mrs. Sheeler pointed out that two council members would still be elected at large and that they would be a "unifying force, adding community-wide perspective to the council and educating district representatives on the broader citywide needs."

They, in turn, would return to their wards and relay these citywide problems to their constituency, she

"It's ridiculous to say that the only way to be represented on the council is to have someone your own race have a seat. Look at the heavy expenditures this council has approved for the south side of town," Angelo

"But there are many things that have been ignored by this council. Public transportation and a public defender are examples. If the city did switch over to the single-member district there would be a subtle shift in priority, to more clearly represent the textures of Midland," Mrs. Sheeler said.

One heated exchange centered around whether a shift to the singlemember district would provide minorities a better chance for a seat on the council.

Mrs. Sheeler said she felt minority group members could not hope to gain the broad popularity needed to land a seat under the present at-large voting system. Angelo disagreed, saying not enough energy has been expended by minority members to achieve a citywide base - a task he feels is not impossible.

Critical of the present council's purported lack of interest in all of Midland's neighborhoods, Mrs. Sheeler noted that during a recent hearing for future use of community development funds only one councilman showed up. "It was the night of the chamber of commerce banquet," she said, explaining her viewpoint on where their interest lies.

Angelo then made a charge of his own, saying "it's not the city council that doesn't care. It's the people."

"At that particular meeting there were not more than half-a-dozen people who come week after week and say the same thing. We need to get more people involved in govern-ment," he said.

Mrs. Sheeler says Amarillo ad untrue

An ad opposing the single-member district city charter amendment contains false information, Betty Sheeler, president of the League of Women Voters of Midland, said Wednesday.

The Committee for Continued Unity placed an advertisement in Tuesday's Reporter-Telegram which said that Amarillo had a ward system and changed back to the at-large system because the system was "divisive."

Mrs. Sheeler said she checked with the city attorney and individuals with the Amarillo League of Women Voters who studied that city's system of electing its city officials. She was told, she said, the city had never used a single-member district or ward system. Amarillo City Attorney Don

Amarillo has commissioners, rather than city councilmen. In 1955, the charter was amended to increase the number of commissioners from three to five but the method of electing those commissioners did not change, Cheatham said.

Mrs. Sheeler said she hopes voters will "make their judgments based on solid information. When political advertising includes material which is not founded in fact, then I hope that persons will notice the contradiction between what the advertisement says and what the city attorney in Amarillo morning. Many Texans elsewhere found the weather a trifle nippy as they awoke to start this last day of March, the Associated Press said

The mercury skidded a little below freezing again in the Panhandle, dipping to 28 degrees at Dalhart and 30 at Amarillo in early morning. Readings elsewhere ranged up to 72 at Brownsville on the south tip of the state. It was drizzly from the Upper Texas

Coast into Louisiana and clouds overhung much of South Texas. Fog cut visibility below one-half mile at some points in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Skies were partly cloudy to clear in other sections.

Mild east breezes fanned most areas but winds gusting close to 50 miles per hour whipped through Guadalupe Pass in the West Texas mountains.

Light rain or drizzle was expected to linger in coastal areas. Fair weather was promised across the rest of the state.

WASHINGTON - The House Budget Committee, under strong pressure from the House leadership, reversed itself Wednesday and restored to the 1978 budget funds for water resource projects that President Carter wants to kill.

In a surprise vote Monday, the committee overrode the objections of majority leader Jim Wright (D-Tex.) and chairman Robert N. Giaimo (D-Conn.) and trimmed $280 million from its tentative 1978 budget to prevent. Congress from restoring any dams or other water projects that the President opposes.

But two Democrats — Thomas L. Ashley of Ohio and David R. Obey of Wisconsin - switched their votes, and Rep. Omar Burleson (D-Tex.), who did not vote Monday, voted to restore the funds Wednesday. So the narrow 13-to-11 defeat Wednesday. The committee approved a move by $280 million it cut Monday. Earlier this month, in probably the biggest political setback the fledging ad-ministration has faced, the Senate overwhelming rejected any of the $289 million in cutbacks opposed by

The House Budget Committee again rebuffed Wright's attempt to boost the level of defense spending closer to the

in the federal spending year, which begins Oct. 1, 1977.

The committee also rejected a move by Rep. Otis Pike (D-N.Y.) that would have put it on record as op-posing the recent 29 per cent congressional pay hike and putting Congressional salaries back to their 1976 level at the start of the next fiscal year. The committee instead adopted a substitute by Rep. Paul Simon (Da substitute by Rep. Paul Sinon (D-III.) which simply said it opposed any cost-of-living raises next October.

Wright said he has no objection to the President's reexamination of the 30 water projects, but he said that, by deleting the funds, the committee is prejudging the situation. The total cost of the 30 projects is $530 million in ifscal 1978 and could run as high as $7 billion before the projects are comAshley, one of the two Democrats who switched his vote, told reporters later he found convincing Wright's arguments that deleting the funds prejudges the President's decision.

Ashley, who reportedly is the leading candidate to head a new House committee to deal with President Carter's energy program, acknowledged that White House of-ficials had been in touch with his Tuesday night and encouraged him to "hang tough."

Labor may challenge payments to lawyers from union fund

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Labor Department, broadening its crackdown on the Teamsters Union, is million in fees paid to fund officials. Sources familiar with the investigation say the department is challenging as excessive the fees paid to two Dayton attorneys who administered the Ohio Highway Drivers' Welfare Fund for 27,000

truckers since 1972. The sources said the department is seeking to bring the fund into "voluntary compliance" with the 1974 federal pension reform law. Among other things, the government is demanding the ouster of the fund's administrator, Robert C. Knee Jr.

His father, Robert C. Knee Sr., administered the fund in the hast. Labor Department records filed by the Ohio fund show the father was paid $482,763 in 1972 and $575,573 in 1973 to administer the plan. His son took over in 1974 and received $878,915 that year and $627,746 in 1975, the last year for which records are available.

The fund's response to the government's demands have not been satisfactory, the sources said, and the government will take the fund to court under the pension law, unless the fund's officials change their minds

The giant Teamsters Union has been the main target of the government'senforcement of the two-yearold law so far, primarily through an intense investigation of the $1.4 billion Chicago-based Central States Pension Fund.

Earlier this month, the government forced the ouster of Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons and three others as trustees of the Central States plan, which has been accused of mismanagement and ties to organized crime.

The Central States plan, covering

450,000 members in 33 states, is the largest of some 270 individual Teamsters pension, health and welfare plans.

The smaller Ohio welfare fund, with assets of $26 million, provides dental, surgical and other medical benefits to surgical and other medical benefits to its members. As administrators, the Knees have been responsible for overseeing its daily operations.

Independent pension experts say the fees paid the Knees are far in excess of those paid to administrators of similar pension and welfare plans.

In contrast, Daniel J. Shannon received $61,000 last year as administrator of the 450,000member

Central States pension plan, Knee Jr. declined comment during a telephone interview when asked about the fees and other aspects of the government's probe. The Labor Department opened its investigation last May in response to queries from The Associated Press concerning the administrative fees.

HAROLD WILLIAMS, 49, dean of the graduate school of management at UCLA, was nominated by the President Wednesday to head the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Israel finally to try 5 suspected terrorists

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Israeli government has cracked open the door on its counterterrorist operations abroad, then slammed it shut after a tantalizing glimpse.

"Now it can be told ...in part," said the headline in the Jerusalem Post Wednesday over the announcement that five suspected terrorists will be tried in Israel 15 months after they were captured while allegedly preparing to shoot down an Israeli airliner outside the country.

The authorities released only a few bits of information about the affair, but reporters learned that the attempt on the El Al plane was made at Nairobi, the capital of Kenya.

A government announcement said the five were members of the radical Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP). It said they had Soviet missiles - apparently small rockets fired from the shoulder - and were preparing to fire them at an El Al airliner loaded with more than 100

Officials said three of the suspects are Arabs and two are West Germans, but they would not give their iden-tities. Little more information will be revealed to the public from the trial, which is to be held in secret before a military court.

El Al stops at Nairobi on its Tel Aviv-Johannesburg route. Officials would not say how the five were caught in January 1976 and ended up in Israeli custody, but a report from Bonn, the West German capital, said Kenyan police arrested them, and they were secretly extradited to Israel.

Lawyer Leah Tsemel, who often defends radicals in court here, said the Germans were Thomas Reuter, 24, of Warendorf, and Birgisa Schultz, 23, of Enkenbach. These identificationswere confirmed by the West German embassy, which protested against Israel's holding them for 15 months without letting their govern-ment know about it.

No on amendments

Four proposed amendments to Midland's city charter will be before the voters in Saturday's ty election.

Amendment No.1 would provide for the city council to include a mayor and six councilmen, beginning in 1979, with the mayor and councilmen for Places 4 and 5 to be elected at large and the councilman for Places 1, 2, 3 and 6 residing in and being elected only by voters residing in defined areas or warm.

The council presently is made up of a mayor and five councilmen, all elected at large.

The No. 2 amendment, as proposed, would limit mayors and councilmen to three consecutive terms in office, beginning with those elected on or after Saturday's election.

The existing charter places no limit on periods of service of mayors or councilmen.

The proposed No. 3 amendment would require vacancies on the council to be filled by special election when the unexpired term is nine months or longer or when two or more vacancies occur at the same time. It also would determine that a vacancy exists when a person elected or ap-pointed falls to take the oath of office within 10 days.

Vacancies presently are filled by appointment by the council. Amendment No. 4 would repeal the present section of the charter authorizing an appeal of ad valorem tax valuations to the city no particular benefits to be derived from any of the proposed changes, recommends voter rejection of all four of the amendments as proposed.

In the first place, Midland has had and yet has excellent city councils composed of dedicated persons interested in community betterment and serving unselfishly, often at great personal sacrifice, in the best interests of the entire city and its residents. Politics has not entered the picture. The Tall City is recognized far and wide as having one of the best city governments anywhere.

It would be a shame to disrupt such an efficient procedure which has worked and is working so well and in the best interests of the community as a whole.

It should be pointed out also that the council must be doing a most satisfactory job for all concerned, or there would be more persons seeking places on the council in Saturday's election.

It appears that the greatest good city government. Odessa operates under a modified version of the singlemember district plan and it reportedly hasn't worked to the overall satisfaction in that neighboring city. It couldn't be expected to work any better here. Other West Texas cities have tried the single-district plan and most of them have switched back to the at-large method of electing city officials.

Partisan ward politics generally

are not considered conducive to

As to the proposed limiting of terms of office for mayors and councilmen, we believe that this matter should rest with the voters at the various times when the officials seek re-election. There is no reason why mayors and councilmen doing excellent jobs should not be permitted to at least seek re-election as long as they desire. The voters will determine how long they are to remain in Neither do we have any comfilling vacancies on the council, or in the manner of appealing ad valorem tax valuations.

Again, the important thing is to express your views on the amendments and other matters in Saturday's election.

Secretary Californo's breakthrough cited

WASHINGTON — There has been much to-do about Secretary of HEW's Joseph Califano hiring a chef-cook for his private dining room. The problem is that the job description, written in bureaucratic terms, mentioned all the chef's duties except the fact that he would actually cook

I have a copy of the job description as outlined by HEW. Since I am always looking for the joker in any government document, it is my opinion that Mr. Califano was not just trying to hire a cook but was experimenting with language that he could use in describing the duties of a housewife. The Secretary of HEW has said that one of his priorities is family planning, and I think this particular memo was a trial balloon to see if it could be adapted to making the lot of the housewife sound more respec-

1. Incumbent-Wife is responsible for anticipating and meeting the necessary logistic requirements to facilitate appropriate recognition and well-being of the family and visitors.

2. Incumbent-Wife is responsible for supervising and arranging for whatever provisions are required to accommodate small formal groups of outside visitors.

3. Incumbent-Wife is responsible for operating family Discretionary Fund and Special Services Fund, and she provides the husband with a fund proposal together with appropriate ustification.

4. She maintains records of supplies and all financial transactions. She receives and deposits monies in accordance with approved instruction.

5. She is responsible for managing, supervising and performing work involved in the food supply service of the family's private dining room. 6. Incumbent-Wife is required to operate a family vehicle. 7. She performs other duties of a confidential nature as assigned.

SUPERVISION RECEIVED: The Incumbent-Wife is under the general administrative supervision of the husband, but performs duties independently, recognizing the need for assistance from husband or children. Is depended upon to handle all duties in a timely and discreet manner.

OTHER: The nature of the assignment requires a continuing day-to-day association with the husband and children. She must be continually in their presence in carrying out their services. This fact demands the utmost in personal discretion on the part of the incumbent.

...Incumbent-Wife must have an extremely confidential relationship with the husband.

While Mr. Califano was talking about hiring a cook it seems to me that any wife would jump at the chance to be known as a "Confidential Assistant" to her husband. When asked her profession, no longer would she be embarrassed to put down on an application form: "Housewife."

At parties, when someone asked her what she did, she could proudly say, "I coordinate and insure the needs of special groups, including relatives, who visit our house. I anticipate and facilitate the well-being of our visitors. I am responsible for funds allotted to me for provisioning the kitchen, and I perform work involved in the food supply service of the dining room. I am also authorized to operate the family vehicle as part of the school car pool."

If someone has the temerity to ask. "How's your sex life?" she can always reply, "I also perform other duties of an extremely confidential nature which I unfortunately cannot discuss with you at this time.

Sit-ins planned by handicapped

By JACK ANDERSON and LES

WASHINGTON - Thousands of handicapped Americans may risk being wheelchaired off to jail in a militant attempt to shut down government offices in 10 cities. The disabled are furious over what they see as a retreat by President Jimmy Carter on his promises to help the nation's 28 million handicapped. They are secretly planning a sit-in at the offices of Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano and his nine top regional assistants.

The handicapped, in what would be their most forceful protest in history, are also considering blocking traffic with wheelchairs and vans. They attracted national attention in 1973 when they ringed the Nixon White House with wheelchairs.

Sometime after April 4, unless Carter acts on their demands, blind mothers, palsied children and medalwearing paraplegics from Vietnam plan to swarm into the HEW offices. Already, placards are being designed. chants written and a network of recruiters set up for the handicapped in Washington, New York, Atlanta, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, San Francisco, Seattle and Denver.

The anger among handicapped people stems in part from Carter's dramatic campaign promise to make the disabled "active partners in our attempts to achieve ... full civil rights." Carter blasted the Ford administration for refusing to enforce equal rights laws for handicapped jobseekers. The disabled took Carter at his word and supported him by large majorities.

of his first actions was to stall even further by appointing a task force to study the equal rights regulations. Handicapped people felt they had been betrayed once again.

Dr. Frank Bowe, director of the American Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities, vented the handicapped's frustration in a private letter to Carter. "Vast numbers of us endorsed your candidacy and worked vigorously for president. Bitterly describing Carter's delays on equal employment opportunities for the disabled, he said: "We are dismayed by this apparent breach of faith." If action is not taken by April 4, he warned, the plement nationwide political acflu fiasco may be discredited even further. The General Accounting Office is about to issue its findings on the severly mismanaged anti-flu program. In the meantime, we have

White House lends large, sympathetic ear to all

WASHINGTON - It could be that the Carter Administration bit off more than it can chew again by lending a sympathetic ear to the Na-tional Gay Task Force in a three-hour White House meeting. With heroic sweeping sestures for human rights, the Carteriolk seem te want to love and champion everybody in the whole

The question here is not whether the gays have legitimate complaints about discrimination. Rather, it's a about discrimination, Rather, it's a matter of what happens once the White House allows a group with greivances to come in for a long meeting. Will this start a never-meeting. Will this start a neverending troupe of pleaders to the White House wailing wall?

It is Margaret "Midge" Constanza, longtime activist, now an assistant to the President, who hosted the gay delegation, and thus established a White House precedent. Heretofore, all Presidents have turned away from requests by homosexual groups for an

Whatever, Ms. Constanza clearly sympathires with the plight of bomosexuals and said after the meeting that she made a commitment to get them meetings with represen-tatives of serious government agen-cies with an eye to redress their grelvames.

One participant in the meeting called it "a happy milestone on the road to full equality for gay men and women." Another said she was surprised how the Carter Administration opened doors "for us."

Now Midge Constanza is a warm and extraordinarily broad-minded woman. She alone stood for Mr. Carter in New York State when support for him there was as scarce as peanut bushes. She seems to be a natural for the White House public liaison office, a job once held by Charles Colson before he was born

Anyway, Ms. Constanza really believes in letting any group, pro-viding they are unarmed and don't wear hoods, into her White House premises so they can air their troubles. She has even provided putcall service by going to the White House gates and listening to the protestations of any petitioners. Thus far, Ms. Constanza and her deputies have held meetings with groups representing a pro-amnesty viewpoint, native Americans, the anti-B-1 bomber crowd, various business associations (including the Chamber of Commerce), Boy Scouts, the Women's Strike for Peace, sympathizers with the Irish Republican Army, Arab-Americans, Jewish Americans, the handicapped and consumer advocacy.

She and her helpers have not yet seen either the pro or anti-abortion organizations, Anita Bryant (intrepid campaigner against homosexual organizations), the legalize-marijuana crowd, the Jewish Defense League, the Ku Klux Klan or the Transylvania Marching and Musical

"I would be happy to see any or all of them, but not at once," she explains. "I hope the meetings don't go to three hours, but the one we had with the gay rights group did. People have a right to be heard."

Ah, does the generous woman understand what she might be getting into? Is there coffee and tea enough in the White House to serve the legions of people in the republic who feel hurt and unhappy? Are there towels enough to wipe away all those tears? Some politicians get calluses on their hands from too many handshaking reception lines. Could the likes of Midge Constanza develop raw palms from holding too many hands? Priests confined to stuffy confessionals have complained about all the misery and bad breath which come to their faces as the vale of human tears is shed.

Can Midge Constanza take it? Oh. yes, she can take it. And she always seems to find something uplifting to say on parting. After her long sessions with the homosexuals Saturday, this is what Midge Constanza said:

"It is unfortunate that such a large segment of citizens in this country have felt left out of the participation in government that touches their lives. Citizens in the United States have a right to meet with agencies. People have been slaves to government for a long time. Now they just want equal footing with it."

School honors resident

Clarence Scharbauer Jr. of Midland is one of two recipients of the 1976 Tarleton State University Agricultural Appreciation Award.

Scharbauer and Jay Pumphrey of Fort Worth received the awards for their contributions to the development of a horse production and management degree program leading to a bachelor of science in agriculture.

Scharbauer became involved in planning the program in 1974. He worked with university officials and informed industry leaders about the new program. As president of the American Quarter Horse Association in 1975-76, he worked to familiarize members and leaders with the proposal.

In addition, he donated two Register of Merit Quarter Horse stallions. They are Got To Be, by Go Man Go out of Double Dibs, and Oddsmaker, by Double Bid out of Myrna Three. The first of their foals will come to the university's farm operation this spring. The two stallions ran in the racing circuit and both can be used for racing breeding and performance breeding.

The horse production and management program is the first of its kind in Texas and one of only a few in the nation.

The program has been approved by the Coordinating Board of the Texas College and University System. The first graduates will complete the program in late 1978 or in 1979

THY ANYONE? THE CAR BREAKS DOWN. THE DISH-WASHER GOES ON THE BLINK. THE KIDS ARE SICK. THE BOSS IS ANGRY. THE BILLS ARE PILING UP. AND YOU JUST SPILLED COFFEE DOWN THE FRONT OF YOUR SHIRT.

Granted, for a while everything seems to be going for you. You're content and happy. And nothing can top that feeling. But when something does go wrong... and it will, again and again... how do you deal with it? How do you keep it from getting you down? How do you get, and how do you maintain, a little peace of mind?

TOTS of people with the same problems are living proof that the answer is Jesus Christ. Not that they don't have problems anymore. But they know that problems aren't theirs alone any longer.

They're living proof that it isn't you against the world. There's someone else who's ready to solve your problems with you. They're living proof that you can cope with daily problems, live with them and learn from them ... with His help. They're living proof that Jesus Christ is alive, and "you will have peace through union with Him," exactly as He said.

TF you would like to know more about people who are living proof, if you need more information, or have made a decision to accept Jesus Christ, there are people nearby ready to share that with you. Please let them know.

For a little peace of mind, and a lot more.

Midland Youth Center chatter

By NANCY HUDSON LORIA JONS and LIZ RUWWE

Hey, hey, hey, Listen to what we got to say! The > Danny Davis Show was really great. Thanks to everybody who came and heard the Nashville Brass, if you didn't, you really missed a good show. Many hours of work went into this project and the success of the show was a nice reward. The proceeds will go to help both Midland and Lee Youth Centers.

Springtime is here with spring sports in full swing. With the close of the 76-77 basketball season, MHS roundballer, Braig Dunn was chosen for the All-District team for the second time. Craig was the Bulldog's leading scorer with more than 400 points. Brently Jackson received honorable mention for district play.

The baseball team is warming up for the season with play already under-way. The team members include Errol Winkler, Steve Cole, James Aden, Joe Mawles, Roger Copeland, Bruce Knowlton, David Jonston, James Zachery, Jeff Johnson and Robert 'young, while Kebin Widner, Bud Brigham, Robert Strack, Kebin Minton, Ricky Goode, Larry Murphy and Doug Atnipp anre battling for pitcher's mound. Good luck fellas, for a winning season!!

Speaking of a winning season, the MHS netters traveled to Abilene, where the team captured the "A" Division trophy. Kirk Farquar, a new team member from Lubbock, and Jeff Bramlet won the "A" Boys Division. Vicki Vasicek captured the A" girls title making for a very good tourney.

This weekend the team will travel to Wichita Falls before playing district matches over the Easter holidays. Good luck—all the way to state!!

ecos Relays. Keep up the good work.
While the girls track team is hard at work, the boys will be competing in the San Angelo Relays Saturday. Beat the Bobcats!

Better start getting your acts together for the Sr. Talent Show. Remember the theme is Thursday Night Live. Stay tuned to the announcements for auditioning times. The talent show will be next week so don't delay.

Attention Sr. Girls: The material is in—go by Carolyn Blakes' house and pick it up. Any spare time would be appreciated at Diana Warren's with the Head 'em up and move 'em out! Where? To Austin of course! This weekend is Round-Up in the capital city as carloads make their way to parties and days filled with fun. Have a great time and a safe trip! -Amy-we love your new car! To Kevin Murphywe hope you feel beter and are at school soon. Have a Happy April Fool's Day

Liz, Nancy and Lori Congratulations! Hal Coon won the state competition for his interpretation of Count Dracula. Remember Catoico? Good luck at Nationals-we're behind you all the way!

Unemployment taxes cost most * employers dearly 🎙

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) - So often you hear a worker rationalize his acceptance of unemployment com-pensation. "I paid into the pot and now I'm only taking my fair share," he says. Employers often

In only two states, Alabama and New Jersey, do workers contribute. Almost the entire amount of payments, which rose to a rate of nearly $20 billion a year in the recession, comes from one source: em-Oddly, many employers are unaware of the expense to them, even though it can be substantial. In all states the employer pays into the fund a per-centage of the first $4,200 earned by each worker. The minimum is 3.4 per cent. At that rate, a company with 2,000 workers would have a taxable payroll of $8.4 million and an obligation to the unemployment compensation fund of more than $285,000. Next year the $4,200 base likely will rise to $6,000. Once a relatively minor cost for employers,

An unemployed worker now can collect a total maximum benfit of $5,265 in Illinois, $6,318 in Massachusetts and $6,786 in Connecticut — and under a law passed by Congress late last year the numbers might go even higher.

But, says Philip Kaplan, an authority, "If you ask a vice presdent-finance how much his company pays he would have to get hold of the controller or

sum. Many have the vague feeling that the workers contribute, as indeed did Gov. Ronald Reagan during his race for the Republican presidential nomination.

Because of this attitude, he says, some companies deal carelessly with the situation. Simple measures, he maintains, could reduce costs for some companies from $270,000 to as little as $90,000.

Kaplan's firm, Reed, Roberts Associates of Garden City, N.Y., claims to be the largest independent in the business of advising corporations and municipalities on unemployment compensation. with 7,000 clients around the country.

Recently he told clients, among them companies such as Gulf & Western, Borden, Citibank and Allied Chemical, to reduce employment claims by avoiding outright layoffs. If business is bad, he advised, you can cut down the number of weekly work days or schedule shifts for two weeks on and two weeks off. "This will reduce payroll and maintain minimal unemployment tax liability. Yet, employes will be earning more than they would by collecting unemployment compensation," he explained.

Challenge claims, he advises. In 37 states, employes fired for causes such as insubordination can collect benefits, but the payments are not chargeable to the former employer's account.

Massive maple found in Alaska

JEWELL, Ore. (AP) — Thanks to a former Oregon State Penitentiary inmate, Maynard Drawson, who has discovered 20 record trees, has found another possible record—a 104-foot-tall maple measuring 35 feet, 2 inches around the trunk. The crown spead of the tree is about 104 feet.

Athletes don't realize how lucky they are

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

Little Tommy sat there in his wheelchair. The bangs of his thick blond hair hung down over his forehead and draped across the top of his horn-rimmed glasses. Suddenly, a big, broad smile surfaced across his seven-year-old face, and you never would have guessed from the hope and happiness of his expression, that Tommy was a victim of muscular dystrophy.

You had only been exposed to the youngster on your television screen for little more than a few seconds, but it mattered little. It was love at first

Tommy was smiling because walking across the stage to meet him was his hero - his idol, Steve Garvey, the all-star first baseman of the Los Angeles Dodgers. When he finally reached the boy, he knelt down beside him on one knee, looked into those sympathetic eyes of his, and Garvey too, fell in love with him.

"Mr. Garvey," the lad said to the athlete, "I love you. And when I grow up, I'm going to be just like you.

Garvey didn't answer. He couldn't. He was too choked up. Tears crept out of the corners of the big 6-1, 200 pounder's eyes. Finally pulling himself together, he spoke. "I love you, too, Tommy," was all he said.

TOMMY NEVER did grow up. Two months after that touching scene on the 1976 Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon for Muscular Dystrophy, he died; finally losing his battle for life to the dreaded disease.

Even as he spoke to Garvey, Tommy knew his days were numbered. He knew he could never be like his hero. But it didn't stop him from hoping and praying for a miracle from the great Man upstairs.

I hadn't thought about that incident since I read of Tommy's death last November. But watching still more crippled youngsters on this past weekend's Easter Seals Telethon rekindled those memories, and once again, I was overcome by anger.

Why anger, you ask? Why would the sight of crippled children create feelings of fury within?

Look for a moment, beyond that scene and at another one. Look at an athlete who is not crippled, who does not have to wonder if tomorrow he will die. He is blessed with a special God-given talent that so many of us just dream of possessing. He can either run faster, jump higher, hit harder or shoot better than 95 per cent of the rest of the human race.

If he is really fortunate, this talent will enable him to become a very wealthy individual, and provide himself and his family with all of the material comforts this world has to offer. He is put in the enviable position of being a star. A nation of fans kneel at his feet, and run through brick walls and scores of security guards just to get his signature on a bubble gum wrapper or in an autograph book.

AN ATHLETE, especially a good one, whether he realizes it or not, is a very lucky person, and he should thank God every day of his life for the talent he is blessed with. How many people get the opportunity to make a living doing something they really love? As a writer, I know how rewarding that is. Because the day I consider sports writing as work and not a love, it will be time to move on to another profession.

Athletes today have become spoiled rotten. Maybe it is us sportswriters who have been responsible for that. I don't know. But I do know that there are a great many who are abusing their talent, and that's when I become irate. That's when I get sick to my

When I see a baseball player fail to give 100 per cent and not run out a ground ball, or a basketball player just go through the motions on the court, or a football player refuse to play for his team until his multi-year no-cut contract is increased from five million to five million and one dollars so he'll be making more money than his teammate Joe Schmuck, I think back to little Tommy sitting there in that wheelchair.

Tommy couldn't run with a football or hit a baseball. He couldn't even walk. What we take for granted, he would consider a major miracle if he could ever accomplish it. Yet, despite all the hell Tommy went through, he didn't show a bit of frustration or pain. Not one bit. He would have had every right in the world to resent everyone who could just stand up on two legs, let alone athletes who could run 9.5 hundreds.

THE MUSCLES in his arms were so weak that Tommy couldn't even hold the bat that Steve Garvey uses to hit 450 foot home runs with. Yet, it didn't

"I'm going to be just like you," he told Garvey that day. "Just like you." I wish a Dick Allen, Mickey Rivers or Muhammad Ali would think about little Tommy and others like him someday, when they're complaining about the "slave wages" they're receiving, or the "long hours" they're being forced to work. Then, maybe they would realize just how lucky they really are. Right Tommy?

Chicago will be keeping more farmhands this year, because of the Class A Geneva, N.Y., addition to the farm system.

"The big advantage Geneva will give us is a place to move young players. The jump from Bradenton (Rookie League) to Pompano is too much for some of these players, and is one reason we haven't competed in the Florida State League. # BLM Rangers may heat up desert

RANDSBURG, Calif. - Law and order is coming to the California

Long the refuge of hermits, outlaws, prospectors, dune-buggy enthusiasts, and people just trying to get away from it all, this vast expanse of arid, federally owned land between Los Angeles and the Arizona border is about to come under the control of the nation's newest police force: the Bureau of Land Management

Rangers. With 16 rangers to patrol 12 million acres, there won't exactly be an officer behind every cactus. But the mere prospect of a fully trained, fully armed desert ranger force has brought cries of protest from those who regard this barren land as the last stronghold of true personal

"These public lands have been the last really free territory in the United States," says Keith O'Hara, a 47-yearold prospector. "These rangers will place us under the gun and make our desert a complete police state."

Trying to head off the rangers, who will take to the bush in July, miners' organizations, off-road vehicle groups and desert rock collectors have initiated lawsuits, letter-writing campaigns, protests and publichearings.

Peter Silvain, the BLM special agent in charge of law enforcement, maintains that his agency has no intention of depriving free public access to the vast federal domain.

"A lot of these special interest groups are very emotional and get off half-cocked," Silvain said. "All we're trying to do is protect the resources. We have to save the legacy for tomorrow.'

Until President Ford signed the Land Policy Management Act last October, the BLM had virtually no authority to enforce its regulations on, for example, desert mine safety. Rangers were few, unarmed and could do little more than politely ask lawbreakers to desist or call the county sheriff, often two hours' drive

"The old law wasn't very strong, Silvain said. "The regulations were strange and hardly enforceable. Now we have a law that's strong and to the point.

With the new ranger force - now i... training here and at the federal law enforcement and BLM's training center in Glynco, Ga. - and BLM's new regulatory power, many old desert hands realize that the years of ignoring the federal government are over. Particluarly worried are the miners working the windswept hills here who see in the rangers and new BLM regulations a threat to their way

"Here we have a government bureau almost totally ignorant of mining," said O'Hara, leader of the militant Western Mining Council chapter here. "They are promulgating regulations that are unenforceable, unreasonable and impossible to small miners. Those

State move afoot to buy scenic Big Bend Ranch

BIG BEND RANCH, Tex. (AP) -Locked in the rugged, craggy mountain ranges of West Texas is a variety of scenic wonders virtually unknown to most Texans.

And Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong wants $8 million to secure the area for the state.

"I hunted on the ranch several times over recent years, and was struck by its unique beauty," Armstrong said of the Big Bend Ranch in southeastern Presidio County.

"Nowhere in Texas is there such a variety of pure scenic beauty and geological, biological and archaelogical phenomena.

Armstrong recently had a lawmaker introduce in the Texas Legislature a bill to appropriate $8 million to buy the ranch, 300,000 acres of what he says is unmatched in its variety of natural beauties.

National Park and is largely owned by the Diamond A Ranches of Roswell, N.M., headed by oil company executive Robert O. Anderson. It is a starkly beautiful region of spring-fed creeks, sparkling running water, giant cottonwoods, towering waterfalls, willows and ash trees and 28 miles of a spectacular wild river canyon.

"Mr. Anderson told me two years ago that the ranch was for sale, and gave me-actually the state of Texas-first refusal to buy," Armstrong said.

"It was not a case of the General. Land Office going out looking for a ranch to buy but rather being in a position to take advantage of a oncein-a-lifetime opportunity for the

The ranch, Armstrong said, will sell-"if not to the state, then somewhere else, and the opportunity for the state to obtain it will likely be gone forever."

The scenic beauties and spectacular vistas include a 28-mile stretch of the Rio Grande which cuts through some of the most spectacular canyons in the world.

Madrid Falls, on spring-fed Fresno Creek, is one of the state's highest and one of the only two known perennial waterfalls west of the Pecos.

The canyons of the major creeks on the ranch are carved from forbidding but starkly beautiful mountains and dove and quail.

Staff members and associated scientists have identified and catalogued 82 species of plants, 31 species of fish, nine amphibians, 40 reptiles, 43 mammals and 101 different species of birdlife.

It is a prime area for mule

The ranch offers a smorgasbord of geological, archaelogical and biological potential, Armstrong said: a natural laboratory of sorts for scientific study.

Opponents question the state buying more land for a park with the Big Bend National facility just next door, but Armstrong says the primary

Life in Belize

BARTON CREEK, Belize (AP) - Several dozen young couples from the United States are buying jungle land for as little as $20 an acre in this Central American country the size of Massachusetts and once known as British Honduras. They are clearing it with machetes and trying to fashion the humble beginnings of their own farms. Many didn't know what the deadly fer-de-lance snake looked like, how to slaughter a pig and when and how to plant crops.

Some, like Joseph Dunsmoor and his wife, have endured. "I came down here to be a raw food guy and ended up wandering around chewing on roots and almost dying of starvation the first six months," Dunsmoor

After two years, he has a machete, a file, a hut, a cow, a horse and a few acres of beans and peanuts.

What he wants, but never has the money to buy when he gets out of the bush, is a flashlight, "so I can see what kind of things are making all those noises in my house after I snuff out the lamp.'

Dunsmoor, whose wife was in the States to give birth to their second child, is the son of an Army man and lived all over the United States, including five years at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., before coming to this predominantly-black tropical area.

City mountaineers now climb buildings, not rocks

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Who are those guys? Those guys who look like second-story men inching their way up the sides of lofty University of California buildings in the dead of

"Building climbing is very similar

A loosely knit group of about 15 climbers convenes about twice a week at nearby Indian Rock for a little warmup before trooping to the daring few since the 1930s, never have so many tried to conquer the sheer walls here - comparable in some ways in difficulty to Himalayan peaks or Yosemite's El Capitan. Most often there is no more than a series of climbers anymore, or none of our officers is seeing them," says campus Police Lt. Robert Luitien. "We had a rash of climbing a few years ago. All we could do was ask them to come down. We didn't have anyone brave enough to go up after them."

Campus police, needless to say, frown on the activity.

The climbers say they have grown more brazen in the past year; attempting some the light maneuvers. "At night, you might just make a.

few climbs," relates Vandiver, a 25year-old former Yosemite climbing instructor. "If you're going to make a day of it, you might undertake the Greek Theater, a 50-foot climb, or Memorial Coliseum or Wurster Hall. which is more than 100 feet."

The only unconquered structure on campus has been the 307-foot Campanile bell tower. The climbers say they could scale it using metal spikes

called pitons. But they scrupulously avoid damaging the structures, other than to leave black marks from their cleated boots.

"These climbs were close by and tough," says Mike Harding, a 39-yearold former climber. "There also was a bit of grammar school adventure in playing hide and seek with the cops.'

Carter administration considers cooperative

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

SHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is considering the idea of a world-wide energy cooperative that would give all nations equal access to nuclear power for peaceful

Administration sources say the coop concept is designed to aid in the development of poor nations and could halt the spread of nuclear weapons by giving non-nuclear nations access to atomic power without forcing them to develop their own nuclear technology

Administration officials stress that the idea still is no more than "a concept." One expert said, "It is not yet a project or a plan because its details have yet to be worked out with greater precision.

The concept would involve a global system under which interested countries could share in the ownership, development and management of nuclear installations and processes involved in the nuclear fuel cycle.

The sources say the program could be a fallback compromise in case current strenuous U.S. efforts fail to stop West Germany and France from selling Brazil and Pakistan nuclear reactors. Along with the systems and technology for a nuclear power system, such sales can supply a weapons-making capacity.

Carter has spoken in the past about the idea of regionalizing certain aspects of the nuclear power industry on a worldwide basis. The original idea was that there might be one centralized enrichment operation serving West Europe, one serving the Middle East, one or more serving the Western Hemisphere and so on.

The same concept of regionalizing the disposal of radioactive waste, either by recycling to yield plutonium or by burial far from inhabited areas, has been discussed and still is considered a valid possibility. This would mutually deny member nations access to atomic arms material, but would not deny them the use of

But the new U.S. concept of internationalizing the peaceful uses of nuclear energy appears to go beyond anything suggested in the past.

It could, for instance, lead to international financing, ownership and management of research programs, reprocessing facilities or of new generations of reactors located inside the United States.

At the same time, sources said, it could give needier nations a stake in the benefits of nuclear energy development, which they cannot afford to undertake on their own.

Administration sources also say such a program could introduce a universal system of cooperation for the orderly development of the nuclear industry as a source of energy and general scientific and medical

LATEST IN MUFFLERS is this six-inch-long red-legged Mexican tarantula worn by Pat Hansen, 14, of Mount Vernon, Wash. The spider is owned by a friend of Pat's and dines on live crickets. Pat plays with the spider, calls him "Fran" and says it doesn't try to bite him any more. The spider is about half grown, he says. (AP

Dear Dr. Solomon: My daughter is away at college. The doctor's office there gave her an antibiotic drug called erythromycin for her acne, which has now more or less cleared up for the first time in several years. However, she has been taking the erythromycin for about four months, and I don't know that it is such a good idea to stay on antibiotics for so long a period. Isn't there a chance she could get too used to them that they would not help if she ever came down with a serious illness? Wouldn't a milder treatment be better and safer in the long run? - K.D.B. Dear K.D.B.: Low-dose antibiotic therapy is very widely used for stubborn cases of acne, and skin experts

at the American Medical Association say this can be continued for months or even years, as long as the patient is

doctor--which I presume your daughter is. Erythromycin is certainly an antibiotic that doctors consider safe and effective for treating acne. Sometimes antibiotic therapy has undesirable side effects - such as allergic reactions, diarrhea and vaginal yeast infections - but these are quite rare, and they almost always disappear after the therapy stops. Erythromycin can also be applied in a lotion or ointment instead of taken internally. Whether or not this would ve better treatment for your daughter would be for the college doctor or infirmary to decide Acne can be a distressing experience for a young person, especial-

has been made in treating it. It cer-tainly is wise of your daughter to seek medical advice about it. To H.J. in Hamilton, Ohio: You are quite right. Constipation can lead to a lot of gas, headaches, feeling very tired, weakness and even faintness Many of these symptoms are related in part to sluggish intestinal movement and in part to the anxiety aroused by the constipation itself. I am glad to hear that the exercise program your doctor suggested helped you with your constipation. It's true that exercise, along with proper diet, does help many kinds of constipation. For M.E. in Portland, Me. It has been postulated that the human body may have lost its ability to manufacture vitamin C millions of years ago. Ascorbic acid (vitamin C) is abundantly present in plant food. Yet, for the lack of it, countless people have died of scurvy. Citrus fruit is a good source of vitamin C.
