Bond issue defeat may force closing of city zoo

By LARRY SUTHERLAND

The rejection of a $3.25 million bond issue to pay for a new municipal zoo Saturday may force the closing of the 21-year-old Cole Park Zoo.

Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr., Midland Parks and Recreation Director Robert Thomson and zoo director Robert Cooper today all strongly indicated the zoo may be phased out. Roy Kimsey, president of the Midland Zoological Society, which worked to pass the bond issue, is pessimistic that the zoo will continue.

Thomson foresees the "possible immediate closure and sale of the animals" by the city council.

Angelo said continuing to operate the zoo is "not a viable operation" and he said the council might decide to begin phasing operations out at the next council meeting, April 12. Thomson said he thought most Midlanders see a need for a zoo, but were persuaded to vote down the bond issue largely because of what it would

A citizens' group called the Committee to Enlighten Midland Taxpayers, headed by Midlanders Rusty Gifford and William G. Ross, spearheaded an effort to defeat all four bond issues and ran advertisements linking increases in reassessments of property to the cost of paying for the bonds.

All four city council candidates also opposition to passage of the zoo bond

The zoo bond issue suffered the greatest defeat of the issues, being voted down by 6,007 to 840, but none of the others did well.

Angelo objected to the advertisements, because he said advertisements run by the citizens' group distorted the role of assessments property taxes.

Nevertheless, "The bonds were defeated so soundly, they probably would have even if this false issue hadn't been raised," Angelo said.

The city council appropriated about $50,000 last summer for operations of the zoo during this fiscal year, which was far less than what was requested. Angelo said that if the council decides to phase out the zoo there will likely be just enough money to con-tinue operations until the phase out is completed.

Thomson said he is uncertain what direction the department will take now to improve areas that the other bond issues would have paid for.

The $1.2 million bond issue for recreation center would have allowed an area more than four times the size of the present recreation facility at 300 Baldwin St. to be used for a variety of recreation purposes and also house an area for senior citizens.

"Something has to be done to improve this building," Thomson said. The department may try to renovate some other larger building, but it will not include a senior citizens center.

He said the department also hopes to find some means of improving the existing pro shop and concession facility at Hogan Park Golf Course and bring about other improvements

Thomson is also hopeful that plans for a new park north of Wadley Avenue can proceed and some lighted softball fields can be built.

The defeat of the charter amendment calling for a special election if a councilman leaves office with more than nine months remaining in his term or two or more councilmen leave office was a big disappointment to

The mayor took part of the blame for its loss and said both he and the council "didn't do a very good job of explaining the other three charter amendments." He was referring to the proposed amendments to delete council authority to hear property tax assessment appeals, limit council and mayor to three consecutive terms and his desired amendment to see a special election called to fill some

Brown believes new arms accord possible

By FREDS. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) - Defense Secretary Harold Brown believes a limited new U.S. agreement with the Soviet Union to curb strategic nuclear weapons can be put together by October, when the present five-year SALT pact expires.

But associates familiar with the thinking of the defense secretary say Brown believes it may take longer to negotiate a full Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty resolving the more difficult issues separating the two

They said he did not indicate what specific elements might win approvalof both the U.S. and Soviet governments within the next six months. The defense secretary's views were Cyrus Vance said Sunday he cannot. rule out U.S. miscalculations as a reason for Soviet rejection of the strategic arms limitation proposals he presented in Moscow last week.

No one can say that one never makes any miscalculations," Vance told reporters after giving President Carter his first formal, face-to-face assessment of the Moscow talks.

Vance spoke in reply to a question about whether the United States miscalculated in the talks. He did not specify any miscalculations, and added: "I think we proceeded in a fair and appropriate way."

But Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko has indicated one possible miscalculation was proposing sharp cuts in nuclear weapons, which the made known as Secretary of State Soviets took to be a change in U.S.

commitments made by Carter's predecessors.

One cannot talk about stability when a new leadership arrives and crosses out all that has been achieved before," Gromyko told a Moscow news conference Thursday.

Carter, who joined Vance at Sun-day's session with reporters at the White House, said he is determined "if it's humanly possible ... to have drastic reductions in dependence on nuclear weapons."

The President said he will pursue them "without cessation and with a great deal of determination and, I believe, also with success."

Carter administration officials hope a Soviet counter-proposal will emerge at a meeting next month between Vance and Gromyko.

Mobutu government severs Cuban relations filed under conditions of censorship.

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) - President Mobutu Sese Seko's government today broke relations with Cuba because of its alleged backing of the Angola-based rebel invasion of Shaba

The government radio said documents proving Cuban involvement in the invasion were found on an unnamed Cuban diplomat. The radio gave no details of the documents but said all Cuban diplomats have been ordered to leave the country "in accordance with international usage."

The Zaire government has repeatedly claimed that the rebels were being helped by military advisers, troops, arms and equipment from Cuba, the Soviet Union and

The rebels crossed the Angolan border into Shaba March 8 and have seized about one-third of the province. Most of them are former militiamen who fought in support of Moise Tshombe's secessionist drive in Katanga in the 1960s and were driven back into Angola.

Diplomatic sources also reported that Mobutu has removed popular Gen. Bumba Moasso as chief of the Zaire army's general staff in a shakeup following the invasion.

Bumba told a news conference last week his troops had found Russians, Cubans and Portuguese among dead enemy soldiers.

In view of Bumba's widespread popularity among Zaire troops, Mobutu has avoided any public announcement of his downgrading, the informants said.

Bumba was allowed to keep his title as the army's "captain-general," but was deprived of his previous authority as chief of the armed forces immediately under supreme commander Mobutu.

Appointed as new chief of staff was 31-year-old Gen. Babia Zingbi Malobia, a graduate of Belgium's national military academy and director-general of Zaire's Defense Ministry since early last year.

Babia and Bumba have long been known as personal rivals within

Editor's Note: This dispatch was Zaire's military power structure, although both are considered intensely loyal to President Mobutu. The informants said Bumba has been appointed commander of Zaire's military base at Kamina, the main supply against the Katangan rebels.

It was the second major military shuffle within a week. Last week, Mobutu fired the operational com-mander in Shaba, Col. Eluki Mongo Aundu, and named gendarmerie commander Gen. Boyenge Singa to replace him at the head of Zaire forces on the Shaba front. Reports from the copper mining forces have established a strong defensive position west of the town and seem determined to hold it. The nearest rebel positions reportedly have been stationary some 30 miles west of Kolwezi for the past week. An officially organized mass

AP correspondent expelled from Zaire

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) - Zaire authorities accused Associated Press correspondent Michael Goldsmith of hostile reporting and ordered him out of the country Monday.

Officials of the Ministry of National Orientation, the Zaire information ministry, told U.S. Ambassador Walter L. Cutler that Goldsmith, 55, was being expelled because of his reporting of events related to the invasion of Shaba province by exile guerrillas.

They referred particularly to a dispatch filed by the AP reporter Sunday indicating general apathy by Zaireans attending a rally called to express support for President Mobutu

Ambassador Cutler made personal representations to Foreign Minister Nguza Karl-Ibond in an effort to have the expulsion order rescinded, but Nguza refused

President Mobutu had personally ordered Goldsmith out of the country on four previous occasions, each time over alleged hostile reporting.

On the first occasion, in October 1960, a month after Mobutu took power in a military coup, Mobutu went personally to Goldsmith's hotel to confiscate his room key. On two other occasions, Mobutu relented and permitted Goldsmith to remain in the Cutler issued a statement expressing "profound concern and regret to the government of Zaire that it felt it had to make this decision.

The remains flown here Sunday were of passengers aboard a Pan Am jet rammed by a Dutch KLM plane on the runway of the airport at Santa Cruz de Tenerife. The collision killed more than 570 people.

The KLM passengers and crew, all of whom were killed, were flown to the Netherlands for identification. William Waltrip, Pan Am vice president in charge of operations, said he was confident all the victims would be identified, although many of the bodies are badly burned and mangled.

service was held Sunday when the bodies arrived at the base airfield on two Pan AM freighters. During the service, two draped and flower-laden coffins, representative of the hundreds still inside the planes, were placed in waiting hearses. With representatives of the airline looking on, a Catholic priest, a Protestant minister and a rabbi made short statements.

The wooden coffins containing the other bodies then were transported to the mortuary.

Waltrip said the airline was doing all it could to assure "respect and dignity" during the process.

He said although Pan Am had arranged to use a military facility and government manpower for the identification operation, the airline would pay all costs...

He added that it also was customary for airlines to handle funeral costs for crash victims, but said no estimate on the total outlay was yet available.

Steel price hikes expected

PITTSBURGH (AP) - The steel industry, caught between spiraling costs and disappointing profits, may be preparing to hike prices.

Hints that price boosts on some product lines may be coming were contained in a recent Bethlehem Steel statement that the company would lose money in the first quarter.

Lewis Foy, chairman of the nation's second largest steelmaker, said the key to a recovery was increased shipments and price increases.

Bethlehem's financial vice president, David Adams, said that to restore profit margins to more "appropriate levels," at least a 5 per cent across-the-board price increase would be needed. In response to a query, a spokesman for fifth-ranked Armco Steel Corp. said he agreed with Bethlehem's analysis.

"Steel prices have never really caught up with inflation," he said.

Other firms have been tightlipped about possible price rises, but few dispute unfavorable economic facts.

"There is still a lot of cost pressure. Energy was particularly costly this past winter and then there's the contract with the steelworkers coming up. Obviously they're not going to settle for less than they already have," said one industry

Lykes Corp. and Whelling-Pitt-sburgh Steel Corp. also have said they expect losses in the first three months of this year.

In a recent analysis, New York's Citibank reported that the 49 largest iron and steel companies made $340.5 million in the last quarter of 1976, a 20 per cent drop compared to the same period in 1975.

Some steet buyers apparently have begun bracing for higher prices. although none would speculate on how much the increases might be or what product lines they would cover.

"I think an increase is imminent, perhaps within the next four weeks." said a major Pittsburgh buyer "There are signs that it is coming. There's not as much discounting as there was."

Demand for steel has been sluggish, but the market now is showing signs of strength and spokesmen for several companies said business has been picking up steadily.

The American Iron and Steel Institute (AISI) also reported last week that raw steel production has increased steadily since mid-February, although it is still below the same period last year.

How much of the increased production reflects new demand or a catch-up because of the severe winter

The timing of any price hikes could hinge on the outcome of talks with the United Steelworkers, which must be wrapped up by April 20 to avoid sending unresolved issues to an ar-

Brazilian president shuts down congress

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) -"He just took off the mask, that's all," said one middle-class Brazilian after President Ernesto Geisel shut down congress and gave himself power to legislate by decree.

He and a group of dinner guests had just finished applauding Geisel's emotional broadcast explaining his action Friday night. The host explained that while the president has the extraconstitutional powers given him by Institutional Act No. 5, known as AI-5. democracy in Brazil is just a mask.

The group saw nothing contradictory in the president's accusing the opposition of acting as a "veritable dictatorship" to justify his own exercise of dictatorial power.

"I'm with the president," the host continued. "He did what he had to

This is not the attitude of all Brazilians. There has been mounting pressure for the military-backed government to restore full democracy.

Geisel, the 68-year-old general who became president three years ago, has rarely used AI-5 and has consistently promised a return to full democracy.

He has permitted far more political debate and press freedom than the three generals who preceded him in the presidency since the 1964 coup

Carter, Sadat meeting today

WASHINGTON (AP) - Jimmy Carter and Anwar Sadat, two deeply religious men of rural origin, will try to find out whether they have a common approach toward settling the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Today's White House session between the U.S. and Egyptian presidents follows a traditional arrival ceremony for Sadat, the first Arab leader to confer with President

Both already are on record as believing 1977 is a unique year for negotiations. Sadat told reporters in Paris on Sunday before flying here: "This is one of the most suitable moments in history for solving the very difficult and very complicated problem of the Middle East." The Egyptian president earlier said he expects to hit it off with Carter. "I believe we have many things in common," Sadat said, "as people who come from the village, who emerged from the people, and who have our strong belief in God and religious ethics. Sadat arrived at nearby Andrews

Air Force Base on Sunday night. He was greeted by a delegation headed by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance. Vance rode with Sadat to Blair House, the official government guest residence across Pensylvania Avenue from the White House. Over the weekend an apparent divergence surfaced between Sadat and Jordan's King Hussein on the timing for a Geneva peace conference. Hussein told reporters in Aman on Saturday night that the Arab states need more time to work out a united delegation, including Palestine Liberation Organization elements.

Sadat, on the other hand, has insisted on an immediate resumption of the peace conference, which Carter hopes can be undertaken before the end of this year.

Carter already has met with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, a visit that produced a series of disclosures by the President on his own outline for a settlement.

overthrew President Joao Goulart. But he said in his speech Friday

"I have said many times that we want a better democracy, that we want an integrated economic, social and political development. But we must move surely, slowly and with firm steps to seek institutions which correspond to our social life, to the character of our people, the physical characteristics of our territory, our traditions, and not institutions copied from the Magna Carta of any other country which is called democratic.'

It was another rebuff to the U.S. pressure for liberal reforms, particularly in the field of human rights. to which Brazil has been subjected since President Carter took office.

The military regime had already made clear its rejection of this U.S. pressure when it rejected $50 million in American military aid and canceled the 25-year-old military assistance agreement with the United States.

Geisel recessed Congress because the only authorized opposition party, the Brazilian Democratic Movement (MDB), defeated a government constitutional amendment to streamline the judicial system.

The Senate scheduled a morning session to resume debate of a highway financing bill that was interrupted last Wednesday by a mini-filibuster.

House members were in recess until 2 p.m.

Meanwhile, a small band of Mexican-American farm workers who walked all the way from the Rio Grande Valley to Austin to lobby for legislation that would give them collective bargaining rights tried to make points with the lawmakers.

The farm workers met with Gov. Dolph Briscoe in 10 a.m. session at the

A special afternoon hearing was called by a Senate subcommittee to hear the bill by Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, that would create an Agricultural Labor Relations board. The measure would give Texas farmworkers collective bargaining rights and let the threemember board settle all grievances between employers

The Senate began debating a so-called "compromise" highway financing bill last Wednesday by approval of a big majority of the senators but the atmosphere of agreement soon disappeared when an amendment was offered adding $100 million to the $428 million bill.

Sen. Kent Hance, D-Lubock, argued that even with the $100 million amendment, technically to furnish repair money for highways damaged by severe winter, the measure was $300 million cheaper than the bill passed by the House.

Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, argued that the extra $100 million was "wasted money" to salve demands by special interests. He promised to filibuster until the amendment was defeated or the Senate adjourne. After a little more than an hour, senators agreed to postpone the debate until Monday.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said he favored the "compromise," which would be $528 million with the amendment, and said Briscoe had promised to push its approval in the House.

Hobby admitted later the extra appropriation probably would end chances of a cut in sales taxes on By The Associated Press

Mayoral candidates in the weekend municipal elections held in several major Texas cities probably wished they had met with the same easy success Dallas Mayor Bob Folsom encountered.

Folsom received 28,441 votes while his nearest challenger could garner only 6,928 to give the Dallas investor his first full term as mayor.

Across the rest of the state, voters Saturday tossed out two other mayors and sent the rest into spring runoffs. The biggest surprise came in Fort Worth where Mayor Clif Overcash was beaten by Mayor Pro Tem Hugh Parmer. The campaign grew considerably more heated in the final days with both candidates spending several thousand dollars on publicity.

Parmer's final unofficial tally was listed as 20,730 to Overcash's 19,543. An estimated 40,000 voters went to the polls of the more than 300,000 registered county voters.

Collective bargaining for fire and police also failed 21,738 to 16,062. The election was also Fort Worth's first under the single member district plan. Three incumbents won reelection outright. However, two others will face runoff opponents later this month along with two more runoffs between challengers in new places. Dallas voters also overwhelmingly approved consolidation with the tiny Collin County town of Renner. The referendum was considered to be a slight thorn in Folsom's side since, as a developer, he owns land in the town. But the voters apparently disagreed with the analysts.

Only one incumbent will be locked in a runoff. Four won outright and two more were unopposed.

Like its neighbor. Fort Worth, only an estimated 40,000 Dallasites voted out of a total 350,000 registered voters. Austin voters will get another chance to determine their city leader. A runoff will determine whether Carole McClellan or Jack McCreary will hold the reins. Mayor Jeff Friedman elected not to run. Three council members were elected outright and two more will joing the mayoral candidates in the runoffs. A sixth seat with no incumbent must also be determined later.

Austin fared better than the Metroplex voter-wise. Officials unoffficially tallied 61,538 total votes out of 184,000 registered voters. The mayor's race in San Antonio will see further action as well. Incumbent Lila Cockrell, seeking reelection to a second term, will be in a runoff with businessman John Monfrey. Mrs. Cockrell received an estimated 39.1 per cent of the vote to Monfrey's 31.2 per cent.

Only four of the ten council races were decided Saturday. The other six will join Mrs. Cockrell and Monfrey in runoffs Jerry Hodge, 34, joined Hugh Parmer as the only other winning mayoral challenger.

Hodge soundly defeated Amarillo

Mayor John Drummond, 71, for the job by more than 5,000 votes. The final unofficial count showed Hodge with 13,130 to Drummond's The Panhandle races concluded with four seats still to be decided by runoff elections April 16. In Galveston, incumbent Councilman John Umbehagen opted for a try at the mayor's job and now finds himself in a runoff with banking executive Arthur Alpert. Mayor R.A. Apffel did not make the race.

Unofficial final tallies showed an extremely large voter turnout estimated at 10,548, or one third of the county's 30,030 registered voters.

Five of the six council seats will also be decided in runoffs. Coun-cilwoman Edna Fuller was the only incumbent to win outright.

The mayor's job was not on the line in Wichita Falls. And officials said a lack of interest was evident.

The total turnout was placed at about 5,347.

However, the voters saw to it that no runoff elections will be necessary. Incumbent Hardy McAllister won over Roy Parrish. Fred Basset and Reginald Blow both were victorious in their bids. No incumbents ran.

Christmas in April

It is a bit surprising that response to the initial call for volunteers and funds for Midland's "Christmas in April V" program is lagging somewhat from previous years, at this particular point.

But it is likely that the situation will be remedied by interested Midlanders well in advance of the April 30 happening date.

Individuals, church groups, civic and service organizations and other units of one kind or another, previously have supported this worthy cause in a most generous manner, and it is felt that this year will be no exception. Yet one cannot blame sponsors for becoming somewhat concerned as the April 30 date nears.

It is hoped that a much more favorable report may be issued following a Tuesday night planning session of members of the project's steering committee with volunteers and coordinators of volunteer groups. All groups planning on furnishing volunteer workers are asked to advise sponsors as to how many persons they can furnish. Sponsors then will have an idea as to the number of homes which can be repaired on the date of the big happening. It also must be determined promptly how much material of one kind or another will be needed in the repair program and the amount of money which will be needed to provide same. It is hoped that at least 30 homes can be repaired this year. Funds needed perhaps will be around the $10,000 figure.

The "Christmas in April" program is one of the finest of its kind performed anywhere. It represents residents of a community taking care of their own without government assistance of any kind. But beyond that, it symbolizes the fact that there are persons who care about their fellow citizens.

Homes of elderly, ill or handicapped persons which are in urgent need of repairs which the homeowners cannot otherwise provide, are selected by a special screening committee and recommended to the steering committee. The number of homes finally selected for attention on April 30, depends on the number of volunteers enrolled and the amount of money contributed. It is a great and richly rewarding program for all concerned.

HEMISPHERE REPORT:

Latins believe U.S. foreign policy errs

By WILLIAM GIANDONI Copley News Service

Latin America is feeling a bit surer of itself now that it is apparent that much of the rest of the world doubts the wisdom of U.S. foreign policy.

The Soviet Union, West Germany and Japan, to mention only three major non-Latin countries, all have made it clear that they, too, take exception to one or more of President Carter's initiatives.

Latin governments, or at least those that consider themselves anti-Marxist, hate to be caught on the same side of a question in dispute as the Soviet Union.

But that is the case in the controversy over Mr. Carter's insistence on pressing the human rights issue.

What embittered Chile, Brazil and Argentina even further was Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's discrimination in favor of those countries that the United States considers to be strategically important, such as South Korea and the Philippines, and against the Latin nations that the United States thinks are less strategic.

In the opinion of the prestigious Chilean daily, El Mercurio, "if any discrimination ought to be practiced, it should be against the Communist countries, as in them is to be found permanent, systematic and institutional violation of human rights."

'Under the Latin American military regimes there may be some isolated cases of violation of those rights, but no totalitarian doctrine that supports them exists...

"In the Communist regimes, on the other hand, the suppression of dissidents is of the very essence of the regime, as is also the presence of judges who condemn in conformity with the desires of the party and the instruction of teachers who hue strictly to the reigning totalitarian idea." Mercurio said.

As Mercurio pointed out, under the military governments in most of South America, debate on the subject of human rights is possible. "The lifelong regimentation and control of the individual that is to be noted in the Communist countries does not exist."

Any literate visitor to Santiago or Rio de Janeiro or Buenos Aires can determine that easily by leafing through newspapers.

Even periodicals highly critical of their military governments on most questions are rallying to the defense of what they consider national sovereignty.

A prime example is Opiniao, a Brazilian news weekly and one of the few papers in that country that is still subject to prior government censorship.

Yet, Opiniao proclaimed that the Brazilian government's rejection of $50 million in U.S. military aid. because of the United States' critical evaluation of the human rights situation there, "was a positive act in defense of national sovereignty.'

Opiniao declared that "it would be unjust not to recognize that President (Ernesto) Geisel has been efforting to obtain restoration in Brazil of full human rights."

Argentine newspapers, too, long have been campaigning in favor of observance of human rights in their country. They also have taken up the cry against those foreign investigators who visit the country and return to their homelands telling elaborate tales of the atrocities allegedly committed by the military government.

Such, in the opinion of Argentine newsmen, was the recent report submitted in the name of Amnesty International by Rep. Robert Drinan of the United States and Lord Avebury of Britain. The two estimated there are between 5,000 and 6,000 political prisoners in Argentina and that, in the last year, between 2,000 and 5,000 persons have disappeared without a trace.

Six Latin countries - Chile, Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay, Guatemala and El Salvador — have by now declined further U.S. military assistance in protest of criticism from Washington.

Mark Russell says

Andrei Sakharov was not the only angry dissident to receive a letter from President Carter. A carbon copy was sent to George Meany.

Sakharov replied to Carter -"Thanks for your letter and your support. Now, how about my fifty-dollar rebate?"

The difficulty over Russian human rights may have reached a breakthrough. The Russians say they will release all of the dissidents if we give them Larry Flynt.

The Russians have decided that a dozen classical poets are doing nothing for their collective prurient interest

Ham operators hog the airways

By JACK ANDERSON and LES

WASHINGTON — The Federal Communications Commission is quietly stifling the millions of voices that jam the Citizens Band radio frequencies. An estimated nine million licensees - truck drivers, teen-agers, housewives, even a former First Lady — now operate more than 20 million CB sets. The airwaves have become so crowded that the CB industry has appealed for more frequencies. These would have to be taken from the ham radio operators. who add up to no more than 300,000. Yet the commission has favored the few over the many

The 300,000 hams have 100 times more airspace than is available to the nine million CB enthusiasts. The hams also have a lock on the higher frequencies, which are free from interference.

According to one confidential report, the hams now control more frequencies than all the nation's police and fire departments combined, plus all commercial and educational FM broadcasters, plus all the TV stations on the vhf channels in Los Angeles and New York City.

The telecommunications policymakers at the White House have quietly notified the Federal Communications Commission on three occasions that there would be no objections to expanding the airwaves for the CB users.

Still, the commission has refused to take the hint. One reason may be that CB radio is regulated by officials who, according to a confidential report, "have traditionally been hams." The report, prepared for Rep. Elliott Levitas, D.-Ga., describes this arrangement as "the wolf guarding

The opposition to giving the CB industry a greater share of the airwaves has been generated largely by the American Radio Relay League, which the report describes as "a lobbying organization" representing ham operators.

The league has fired off a special "flash bulletin" to its members, urging them "to utilize every league resource" to prevent the incursion of CB buffs into their airspace.

Footnote: The Federal Communications Commission's chief engineer, Raymond Spence, is a lifetime member of the league. Yet he has made decisions detrimental to the CB industry. He denied that his membership is a conflict of interest.

President Carter's 'Eurocommunism' puzzle cited

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

INSIDE REPORT:

WASHINGTON - The Carter administration's uncertainty what to do about ever more powerful Communist parties in Western Europe resulted in a last-minute signals switch in the White House two weeks ago, blocking a presidential statement that would have been interpreted as breaking previous hard-line hostility to the Italian Communist party.

Eleventh-hour intervention by Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, blocked issuance of the State Department statement March 18 at the White House swearing in of Richard K. Gardner as ambassador to Italy. That saved embarrassment for Italy's ruling Christian Democrats. But there since has been irritation in Rome over what the government there feels is overly solicitous treatment of the Communist and Italian left by Ambassador Gardner.

Both the aborted presidential statement and the new ambassador's conduct reflect the strong reaction of Mr. Carter's non-career diplomatic appointments to the Ford-Kissinger hard line against misnamed "Eurocommunism" on grounds that it smacked of interference with Italian politics. But State Department professionals disbelieve claims of independence from Moscow by the Eurocommunists, who if they achieved power would destroy the NATO alliance and challenge U.S. influence in Western Europe. The recent events show the President has not yet made his choice. The new Carter appointees in the State Department, seeking to show that the new President has new ideas about the U.S. not interfering with "Eurocommunism," pushed for such a statement at the Gardner swearingin. "The new fellows over there are zealots on the old bugaboo of U.S. interference in foreign politics," one career official told us. "They can't forget Chile, and so they wanted the President on record.'

Evans

Old-line diplomats, including top hands in the bureau of European affairs, wanted a different presidential statement, spelling out this fundamental point: the Carter policy would not differ from President Ford's in basic opposition to "Eurocommunism" (even though it is far more liberal in handing out visas to European Communists), The resulting presidential draft was an amalgam for both points of view, combining these contrasting themes: First (satisfying the old timers). that the U.S. prefers democraticallyelected governments that govern democratically without foreign ideological alliances (meaning Moscow) and that the U.S. is concerned about the Italian Communist party upholding democratic values as promised. Second (satisfying the Carter newcomers), that the U.S. will never again intrude in Italy's internal political affairs (as in past CIA contributions to the Christian Democrats). Making the usual obeisance to Mr. Carter's human rights theme, the declaration promised continuing U.S. efforts to develop closer friendship with Italy.

When word of this leaked in Rome, Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti's embattled Christian Democratic government was distressed. The Italian government felt that any statement which does not put the U.S. squarely against the Italian Communist party would immediately be interpreted by Italian voters as a switch away from Henry Kissinger's hard line, raising Communist

At the last minute, Dr. Brzezinski ordered the statement held up. Agreeing with him was Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, at that time preoccupied by pre-Moscow preparations.

That relieved the Italian government - but only momentarily. It soon found further cause for concern when Gardner, a well-known liberal Democrat who has been professor of international law at Columbia, arrived in Rome.

Within hours of presenting his credentials to President Giovanni Leone, Gardner paid a call on Pietro Ingrao, a leading member of the Communist party presidium who is president of the chamber of deputies. Protocol required Gardner to call on Ingrao, but Christian Democratic politicians were upset that he did so with such speed. The government was also aggrieved by Gardner's interview over the socialist left's Italian television stations before he went on the government network

Nuances of presidential prose and ambassadorial conduct are exaggerated by the hand to-hand psychological warfare over rapidly advancing "Eurocommunism" in Italy's political trenches. Every syllable uttered and every action taken by the U.S. is now endowed with political significance, and what the U.S. has done so far — despite the withdrawal of the Carter policy statement - is extremely unsettling to anti-Communist parties of Italy.

The policy statement may yet be issued in a less conspicuous place than the Oval Office of the White House. Indeed, disagreement over whether or not to issue it is a measure of the new administration's uncertainty. Dr. Kissinger blasted 'Eurocommunism' as an unmitigated evil for the West; the Carter administration cannot decide whether to state its opposition in such over 27 secretaries and clerks; the Health, Education and Welfare Dept. has contributed another 20 employees to help process the mail. Spokesmen assured us that the sudden increase in the population of the White House is "temporary."

- White House sources tell us that National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski is winning the power struggle with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance. Brzezinski has easier access to President Carter's ear.

A slight vibration went through the table, it tipped up on one end and moved forward until it touched me just below the waistline. Then a threeway question-and-answer session took place - with the table tapping out the

A few days earlier, in the Office of the Parapsychology Institute of California, Kay Sterner held my watch in her hand and told me, correctly, how many brothers and sisters I have and that I had made quite a few trips to New York in the last 10 years or so. She also predicted that I soon would be traveling in the Another woman began our reading after asking God's help and inviting me to say a prayer with her. She received interesting impressions of previous lives I had spent in China, India and Palestine.

Gregg Sanderson also held my watch to pick up vibrations that helped him perceive, among other things, that I was going to love two men at the same time.

Each "reader" used what was described as a paranormal ability which, they said, we all possess but fail to develop.

They also share the belief that children are born with the ability but lose it as they are taught to believe only what they perceive with their Growing interest in psychic phenomena keeps the four so busy that two insist on remaining anonymous to avoid more requests for readings. One said that the number of college students calling to question or see her work has been increasing steadily during the last six or seven years. Sterner limits her private consultations to sustaining members of the California Parapsychology Foundation.

One of the oldest forms of clairvoyance is table tipping or typology.

Questions begin after the table has actually tipped, moved forward, touched the guest and moved back four or five inches.

One tap means "no," two, "doubtful," and three, "yes."

Other answers are spelled out by the table tapping through the alphabet.

I asked if I could speak to an aunt who died many years ago. When my aunt was called, the typologist asked her name, which had not been mentioned. The table spelled the correct name, Gertrude,

I felt perfectly relaxed, no eerie sensations, no fears.

The typologist does not believe she has an exclusive right to contact Jesus. She is convinced that we all are born with an ability to keep in touch with a higher entity.

"We are born with the ability but lose it because we are taught to accept only what we perceive with our conscious minds," she said. "We have to listen with our soul minds. The Bible tells us in hundreds of places to

Her mother, who was also strongly psychic, encouraged her to listen with her soul as far back as she can remember.

'Her way was to tell me that if I listened my guardian angel would tell me what to do," she said. "The more we listen, the more we are able to tune

The use of table tipping as a means of communication also is a carry-over from her mother. She explained that her "spiritual energy" makes the table respond.

Whatever the energy, scientists have had difficulty trying to pin it

'A group from the Psychic Research Foundation at the University of California at Los Angeles, came down to test me." the typologist said. "They attached wires from two machines to my hands and arms. Juvenile violent crime growing at rapid rate

By EMMA PULLEN
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTUN — The trailer park murder of a Phoenix, Ariz. man cut down by rifle fire seemed to be a routine homicide until detectives walked into a third grade classroom and arrested an 8-year-old boy for the crime.

Similarly, Miami, Fla., police picked up a 12-year-old slum youth for the stabbing death of his 9-year-old playmate, who apparently had called him a derogatory name. In Stockton, Calif., the 15-year-old son of a prominent orthodontist was arrested for shooting his father and two sisters to death.

authorities, but more and more a disturbing one. And the list seems endless:

In Philadelphia, a 16-year-old student, reprimanded the previous day, serves his photography teacher a cup of coffee laced with hydrocholoric acid. A fight between male students on the stairwell of a Chicago high school leaves two wounded by gunfire. A 15-year-old girl dies three days

In Washington, D.C., and its Maryland suburbs, 112 elderly people were mugged or robbed within the past year by a loosely knit gang of youths who trailed their victims from shopping centers to their homes before assaulting them.

Over the past five years, the number of violent crimes attributed to juveniles in the cities, suburbs and rural communities has jumped by leaps and bounds.

Police statistics indicate youths under 18 now commit nearly half of all serious crimes — murder, rape, armed robbery and arson — and the percentage still is increasing.

But criminologists point out that if the country does not come up with a way to rehabilitate such offenders, they will grow up to swell the adult criminal population. Social scientists, educators and parents differ as to the cause of this alarming increase, and they are hard pressed to come up with preventive measures.

measures.

Depending on their point of view psychologists blame the disintergration of the American family, poverty in a materialistic society, this country's violent past, child abuse, and the women's liberation movement, or a combination of these.

Penologists put the blame on lack of discipline in the home, the easy availability of guns and drugs and a lenient court system. Educators say concessions granted by the courts to the student rights movement have stripped them of authority to correct their pupils' behavior.

Some parents charge that the nation's social institutions and elected officials no longer provide the leadership that would make their children respect authority and society's rules. And almost everyone points to the steady diet of violence on television — that powerful little box which has become the principal socializing agent for most American youths.

Violent crime committed by persons under 18 jumped 154 per cent between 1960 and 1974, according to a report by a Senate judiciary subcommittee. During the period, crimes against property — burglary, larceny and auto theft — by the same age group increased 133 per cent.

Persons under 25 account for 59.7 per cent of all crimes of violence and 80.6 per cent of all property crimes, the Senate subcommittee report said.

Police statistics show that a violent juvenile offender still is likely to be a young male living in the slum area of a large city, but youths from suburban and rural communities are gradually catching up.

Tornadoes wreck homes

"All we have left is what we're wearing," said Steve Kulikowski, one of more than 130 persons who lost homes this weekend as tornadoes hit four Lower Michigan counties.

State and municipal officials estimated damage from the storms at more than $2.5 million.

Kulikowski, 26, like many others, lost home and possessions Saturday when a tornado roared through the Kalamazoo County farming com-munity of Augusta. Damage in Augusta alone was estimated at over $1 million.

"We'd just spent all our money on buying food," he said. "And now the refrigerator's gone.'

Officials say botulism outbreak may worsen

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The worst outbreak of botulism in U.S. history may get even worse, according to health officials.

The number of confirmed cases of the sometimes-fatal food poisoning among persons who ate at a Mexican ood restaurant rose Sunday from 26 to 30, and officials said they were concerned the number could go

Officials at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac, where 17 of the victims were being treated, said botulism poisoning victims usually show symptoms within a day or two after eating tainted food.

However, officials said, new cases may turn up within eight days after eonsumption of botulism toxin. In general, the earlier the symptoms show up, the worse the effects of the oisoning, the hospital said. Sympoms of the illness include nausea, vomiting, double vision, slurred speech and difficulty swallowing.

Of the 30 botulism cases confirmed by Sunday, Locey said, three patients remained in critical but stable condition. The others were listed in good

Dr. Robert Locey, director of the Oakland County Health Department, said at least one of the new victims ate at Trini and Carmen's restaurant last Thursday. Earlier reports had indicated all cases involved people

"This new development means that the number of victims may increase in the days ahead," Locey said. Health officials closed the restaurant Thursday night when they first suspected the botulism outbreak originated there. Locey said the Center for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta on Sunday confirmed that the source of the poisonings was a batch of home-canned green peppers used in hot sauce served at the restaurant. Health authorities confiscated 146 jars of the peppers, which were canned last fall by a former employe of the restaurant. Michigan health codes prohibit restaurants from serving homecanned foods.

CDC statistics indicate the Pontiac outbreak has surpassed the last worst reported botulism incident, which also occurred in Michigan when 29 persons were stricken in 1921 in Kalamazoo and Eaton counties. Lesser damage also occurred in Livingston and Oakland counties, authorities said.

The twisters were blamed for the death of one child and injuries to at least 44 other persons. A second death was blamed indirectly on the storm -Donald Merritt, 43, of Eaton Rapids, was electrocuted Sunday as he cleaned up debris.

Law enforcement officials Sunday issued passes to residents and attempted to keep out all but emergency workers because curious motorists hampered cleanup work in a few areas. Crews from Consumers Power Co. said they were unable to reach some downed power lines because traffic blocked roads.

Sheriff Art Kelsey said damage in Eaton County was expected to total more than $1.5 million.

About 100 dwellings were damaged with 13 houses and 9 mobile home destroyed, he said. The lone fatality in Saturday's tornados was Jason McKenzie, 5, of Flint, a passenger in a truck swept from Interstate 69 near Charlotte. The boy's father, Gary McKenzie Sr., and younger brother, Ryan, 3, remained hospitalized Sunday in serious condition. One twister touched down near Olivet and swept northeast toward Charlotte, cutting a path about a city block wide for five miles and lifting cars from highways and dumping them by the roadside.

When the tornado hit, Charles Schombs of Olivet was driving alongside U.S. 27.

"I felt like I was inside a pinball machine," said Schombs. "I couldn't tell whether I was driving a car or being pushed around.

Effort begun to clean oil-soaked birds

LONG BEACH, Wash. (AP) -Efforts were under way today clean up hundreds of oilsoaked birds which washed ashore on the Washington Coast near Willapa Bay over the

About 300 birds were being "cleaned up." about 80 were dead and an unknown number were still on the beach Sunday night, said Joe Welch, manager of the Willapa Bay National Wildlife Refuge.

"We're not pressing the panie button but they are still washing up," Welch said.

A Coast Guard helicopter search around the mouth of the Columbia River failed to locate the source of pollution, said Lt. (j.g.) Robert Stevens, a Coast Guard spokesman in Seattle. The Columbia separates Western Washington and Oregon.

"No source of pollution is evident or has been located," he said Sunday.

Welch said the birds were heavily. covered with oil. He said they were mostly common murre, which normally come on shore only to nest.

"When their plumage is covered with oil they can't fly or float," he said. As they wash up on the beach they develop hypothermia, exhaustion and can't feed, he said.

Welch said the Seattle Wild Bird Clinic would set up a field station to treat the birds.

Grandstand in Tulsa falls; 17 injured

TULSA (AP) - An inspection of Driller Park's 43year-old wooden stadium was to be made today after walkway in the grandstands collapsed Sunday and injured 17 persons during an exhibition game between the Texas Rangers and Houston Astros.

Three persons required hospital treatment. They were reported in fair to good condition today.

John Elsner, manager of the county fair grounds. said Sunday that engineers would use "every con-cept and every availability" in examining the ball park. He said he hoped to have results of the inspection by the end of the week.

Elsner said officials will consider rebuilding the stadium in place of a major overhaul. Officials had ordered "considerable maintenance work" last winter after they acquired the park from the Tulsa Oilers, who moved their American Association team to New Orleans after last season.

The victims fell about 30 feet when a 15-foot-wide section of the upper walkway collapsed minutes after sudden rainshower in the second inning.

Fans were moving from the reserve and box seat sections to the upper grandstand level behind the visitors' dugout on the stadium's south side.

Bill Rollings, president of the Class AA Tulsa Drillers baseball team, said the combined weight apparently caused a structural failure below the ooden walkway. "Six to 10 times the number of peole who would formally be in that area suddenly wound up in the same spot, and the board gave way," Rollings said.

Dr. Jack Myers of Okmulgee, who was beneath the grandstand, said he and another man rushed to administer first aid.

"I didn't find anybody whose life was endangered. just don't see how more didn't come through (the pening)." Myers said.

Rollings said he had no plans to move the Drillers, new Texas League franchise, out of the stadium "I've been wishing I'd fallen out of the bleachers nd landed right on my head rather than to have it happen to any of these people here," he said.

Mary Collins, 72, of Flushing, N.Y., and Robert

Plane crash kills 3 men

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) - Three Fort Worth nen starting home from a softball tournament here Bed Sunday in the fiery crash of a light airplane.

They were identified by police as Pat D. Forehand, 25, owner and pilot of the craft; Kerry Michael Cooper, 31, and Jesse D. McMahon, 30.

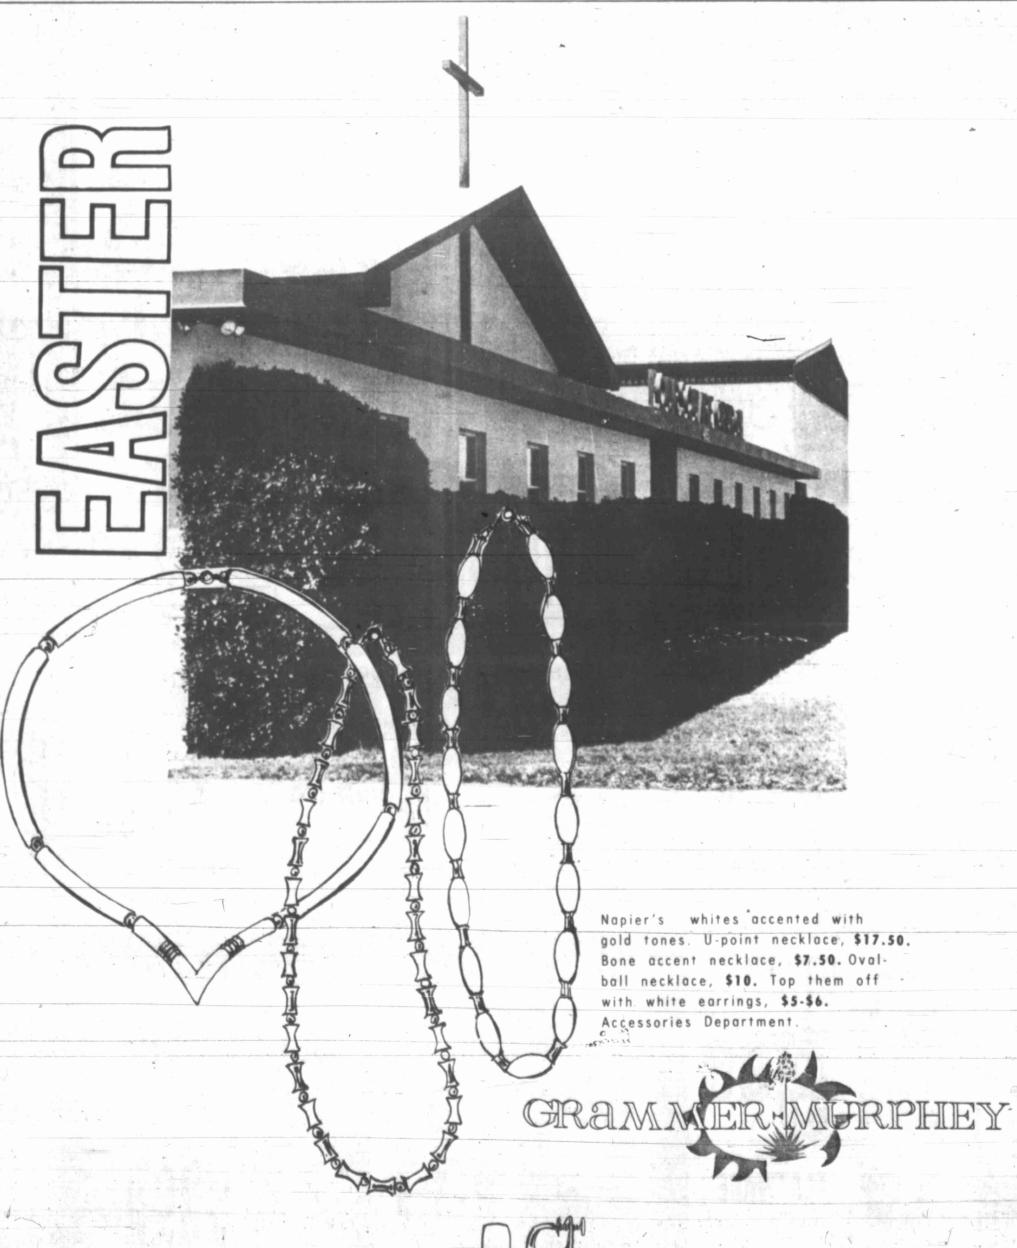

Fire destroyed all of the single-engine Piper Comanche except a wing tip after it cracked up in the sack yard of a Wichita Falls bome. The plane went down about one mile distant moments after takeoff from Kickapoo Airport, a private facility.

Walter Shawn, owner of the house where the plane rashed, was in the front yard with one of his hildren when it struck. His wife and two other hildren were in the house.

"I heard a motor like it was real close up," Shawn said. "Then I heard the noise. I'm just thankful we were in the front yard." Shawn's home was not damaged.

Two of the occupants were hurled from the plane by the impact, investigators said. One was found in he wreckage. Pat D. Forehand, 25, was the pilot and owner of the lane, police said. He was accompanied by Kerry Michael Cooper, 31, and Jesse D. McMahon, 30 The identifications were delayed because of amage to the bodies caused by a fire that destroyed all of the craft but a wingtip

To the delight of hundreds of egg producers across the nation, the White House is using real eggs at its Easter egg roll this year instead of last year's plastic imitations. In the early life of most of these shrubs several years may pass before much pruning is increases the risk of heart attak.'' The necessary other than correction of unequal

> To compensate for loss of roots, one-third to onehalf of the top should be removed immediately after planting. If the shrub is planted with a ball of dirt attached to its roots, less pruning is required.

The pink or blue hydrangea (Hydrangea macrophylla) forms flower buds in late summer and early fall. As soon as the blooms of this plant have faded, the flowering stems should be cut back to two or three joints (leaves) to encourage new growth for blooms next year. If you wait too long before pruning, you may remove the buds for next year's flowers.

Crape myrtle sometimes will bloom a second time in late summer if the flowers are removed soon after they start to fade.

Reader says Indians doing OK nationwide

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You and American Indians.

I have lived on an Indian reservation for the past 25 years, and find income from power sites, but they are weird. The NO injustice or cruelty, unless it is to the non-Indians who live in states where reservations are located.

All Indians are citizens. of the United States, and although they receive all privileges any other citizen enjoys, they do not contribute for any of these privileges!

In 1975, it cost the U.S. taxpayer $10,000 for each Indian family. At the present expanding rate, it will be $20,000 per family by 1980. Indians get FREE medical, hospital, from birth to death. They pay no state taxes on homes, cars, land, personal property or income. They may hunt and fish around the year-no bag limit, no license. They can receive FREE education from Head Start to Ph.D.'s. They are given preference on jobs; some ads read, "tribal members only need apply." They get wells drilled, sanitary facilities installed on ranches, farms and homes away from municipal facilities. All FREE. The list is endless.

Already in 1977, this reservation has received

$2,600,000 in grants from borhoods in town. There HUD for 2,500 members is not one house on our living here. This is over block worth less than SENSITIVE and SAD can $1,000 for each man, $75,000. Claire Kirk's True Story:

One of the most exciting times of my life was when I danced "Huckleberry Finn" in the Mississippi Suite Ballet. Now, 35 years later and over 35 pounds lighter, I feel good enough and look good enough to do it

I have always been active, but as I grew older, I slowed down and the pounds started "putting on." The more weight I gained, the worse I felt, the more I slowed down, and the more I ATE. When I couldn't bend over and touch the floor- I knew I had to do something. But I kept putting it off until my doctor said I had to lose or risk high blood pressure troubles. Then my daughter announced her marriage plans and I knew I wasn't going to be FAT for the wedding! That is when I went to Pat Walker's and tried their passive exercise treatments and they are heavenly. Their eating program is the most sensible and healthful and easy way to eat there is. My tired blood is circulating again and I have the energy to dance the bal-

Rules given on reading annual word

Newsday

NEW YORK - There are about 25 million Americans who own a piece of the corporate pie, as stockholders. Yet a lot of them don't quite know what's in that pie, despite corporate efforts (with government prodding) to tell all in their annual reports.

Over the next couple of months, all those shareholders will be getting fat envelopes in the mail. Odds are that the bulk of them probably won't even bother to get past the first couple of pages of the slick, expensively produced booklets inside those envelopes. But the numbers and words inside reflect the economic health of the companies, and the soundness of their investments.

Wading through the facts and figures crammed into the annual report, much less understanding them, may seem tougher than going through molasses in a cold snap. But a few pointers from the experts may help take the mystery out of the morass.

Edward J. Weinstein, a New York accountant, firmly believes that anyone with the most fundamental adding and subtracting skills can understand an annual report.

He offers some quick rules of thumb about how to approach an annual report.

-Look at the financial statements first. Most people tend to look at the numbers after they've read management's glowing prose in the front of the report, which colors their response (and dulls their senses) to the actual figures that follow. Don't fall into that trap. Read all those numbers up and down. Ask questions about anything that looks funny to you (a big gain or loss somewhere from last year, for instance, or a number tha looks far out of proportion to the others on a page). Keep them in the back of your head as you read on.

-Next, read the president's letter. Then read the management analysis. Test yourself whether the people who run this corporation have anticipated the questions you came up with when you read through the numbers and whether they've tried to answer them. If not, you may have spotted some sore spots.

-Read the footnotes. They usually appear after the financial revelations. They may spotlight an occasional tricky little point. One thing, for instance, is a note usually headed "Contingencies." Read that one carefully. Corporations are required (by the Securities and Exchange Commission) to let stockholders now about any possible loss on the horizon. like a lawsuit still in the courts that might end up costing the company a bundle. -Read the report of the corporation's independent auditors. This usually appears at the tail end of the financial statements. That short report should be a more or less pro forma wrap-up, stating that figures have been audited and verified according to approved accounting practices. Then the accounting firm signs its name. This little statement should be the same as last year's. Short, sweet and standard. If there's a difference of some sort — an added paragraph, perhaps - watch out. That's a danger sign that there's some discrepancy between how the accountant-auditors look at the figures and how South's play might work if the missing clubs were divided 3-3. If somebody had to have Q-x-x of clubs, that somebody was just as likely to be

East as West. South forgot that the clubs might break 4-2. There was no chance for five club tricks if either opponent had Q-x-x-x of clubs, but there was a chance if somebody had Q-x.

WOULDN'T HELP The doubleton queen wouldn't help if East had it; West would then have a stopper with his four clubs. But if West has the doubleton queen, South can make the contract. South should lead a heart to his hand at the second trick and return a low club to finesse with dummy's jack. This will bring in the contract if West has eigher Q-x-x or Q-x of clubs-a better chance than playing East for precisely Q-x-x of clubs.

School finance bill debate anticipated

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - There might or might not be the "bloodletting" that Rep. Tom Massey fears, but lots of people will be out gunning for his school finance bill if it hits the House floor this week.

Speaker Bill Clayton said the measure would be taken up Wednesday if representatives feel they have had time to check it out with the people back home.

Over the next two years, the bill would cut the local districts' share of the Foundation School Program by $357 million, prohibit tax increases next school year, mandate $73 million in tax cuts in 1978-79 and raise the state's costs by $694 million.

Overall, the state's share of the Foundation School Program costs would rise from 75 per cent to 85 per cent.

Local shares - called "Local Fund Assignment" or LFA — would be based on a formula that gives special consideration to rural and "bedroom community" districts without much industrial or commercial property in their tax bases.

Unlike school finance bills of previous sessions, this one contains no teacher pay raises, leaving that issue for a separate bill that still is in subcommittee.

The Senate will have its own bill. and its leaders are less inclined toward property tax relief than those of the House.

Clayton and Massey, chairman of the House Public Education Committee, presented the House bill to Gov. Dolph Briscoe on Wednesday, but he has issued no comment. "It sure doesn't give as much tax relief ($640 million) as the governor wanted," said John Poerner, head of the Governor's Office of Educational Resources (GOER).

Attempts to change the bill on the House floor will come from at least three directions:

-The Texas State Teachers Association, which will attempt, probably through Rep. DeWitt Hale, D-Corpus Christi, to tack a teacher pay raise to the bill. TSTA wants a 20 per cent raise, with beginning salaries jumping from $8,000 to $10,000 a year. at a cost of $865 million over the next two years.

"Our concern is very basic: How can you consider a school finance bill, when budgets are 80 to 85 per cent personnel costs, and not have that (teacher pay) factor considered at the same time," said Callie Smith, TSTA executive secretary

-Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, chairman of the House Study Group and emerging leader of House liberals. Bryant said he will offer a $2.4 billion substitute for the bill approved by Massey's committee.

Bryant said his substitute would provide full state financing of the foundation program, do more to equalize schools in poor districts with those in rich ones and raise teacher

Texas, he said, ranks 10th or 11th in per capita wealth but 32nd in the amount per child spent on education.

He acknowledged his bill would require new state taxes, and Briscoe has said he would allow no new or increased taxes while he is governor.

'We are elected to write whatever we think is needed, and if he wants to veto it, that's okay. . . This is complete property tax relief like they say we need. I am going to see if they are serious," Bryant said.

-Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale, former chairman of the public education committee and a potential congressional candidate from a largely rural district. Kubiak said he will of fer an amendment to provide full state funding of the foundation program. If that fails, he will try 95 per cent, then 90 per cent.

The big selling point for most of the school finance bills is "property tax relief," or shifting to the state part of the local burden of the foundation program. Local districts, however, would not be required to pass on to taxpayers the full amount of the shift. Some families will be helped by the prohibition against tax increases next year. and the 1978-79 tax cuts. But the reductions will average only $6 to $7 per Texan, and apartment owners, business and industry will get a sizeable share of the $73 million.

Florida solons learn Carter supports ERA

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter has sent each member of the Florida legislature a reminder that he and wife Rosalynn strongly support the Equal Rights Amendment.

Carter, who has focused on Florida as the next state most likely to ratify the amendment, with action due this month, sent out letters about three weeks ago saying that "Rosalynn and I feel strongly about this issue.

Mark A. Siegel, Carter's deputy assistant for policy planning, said one reason the President acted far in advance of the voting was to avoid complaints of last-minute "outside interference" - an issue that arose after the North Carolina senate narrowly defeated ERA ratification in that state on March 1.

"The real hope of a breakthrough is in Florida," Siegel said in an interview. He claimed a present one-vote edge for the ERA cause in the Florida senate and a seven-vote margin in the Ptorida house. In North Carolina and other states that voted on ERA earlier this year, eleventh-hour phone calls and telegrams to legislators by the President and his wife produced something of a backlash. Siegel contended the last-minute intervention by the Carters was prompted by advice from ERA supporters in the states involved. In the case of Florida, he said, Carter decided on his own timetable.

If Florida ratifies the ERA, it will be the 36th state to do so. To become effective, 38 states must approve ERA in the next two years.

Siegel, who coordinates House efforts on behalf of ERA, acknowledges that hope for the amendment taking effect this year has all but vanished. However, he expresses confidence about beating the March 1979 deadline for final ratifica-

Schlesinger, appearing on the Answers" (ABC), said the administration could seek a reduction in payroll taxes — possibly those for Social Security — in an effort to counterbalance the effects of increased fuel or vehicle costs.

'We are considering a whole range of alternatives . . . in order to offset the penalty on lower-income groups in particular, because of the major adjustments in price relationships that must come over a period of years" in attempting to solve the nation's energy problems, Schlesinger said.

Carter plans to present his energy

April 20. Schlesinger said one of the main points of that program will be "to challenge the American people with regard to the very high use of

A higher tax on large, fuel-wasteful cars is "certainly under consideration" by the administration, Schlesinger said. But he said the administration has made no final decision about a car tax, or about an increase in gasoline taxes.

"We will have to consider both of those kinds of techniques (Taxes) in order to see which is the most effective package," he said.

Asked about criticism from General Motors officials who say higher car taxes would hurt the automobile industry, Schlesinger replied.

Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker Jr., appearing on "Face the Nation" (CBS), said his party could support President Carter in imposing higher taxes on larger cars. But he said republicans would oppose any move to increase gasoling taxes.

"I support the idea of having fuel-efficient cars," said Baker. "Maybe a tax in that respect - on the horsepower and the milage of a car would be a matter that the administration and the Republicans could agree on," he said.

The Republicans plan to introduce an energy-comservation proposal of their own this month, Bakers said. Senate Republicans have scheduled a closed meeting for 9 a.m. Wednesday. to discuss the Republican energy package that has been drafted by the Republican Energy Group.

Baker said Sunday, "There'll be no gas tax in the Republican package (because such a tax) would penalize about two-thirds of the people in the country who have to use their cars because they don't have the option of public transportation.

Synthetic oil studied

COLLEGE STATION - Texas A&M University scientists are working to improve methods originally used on a large scale by the Germans during World War II for the production of synthetic, coal-based petroleum products.

The project, headed by Dr. Michael P. Rosynek of the Department of Chemistry, is being funded by the U. S. Energy Research and Development Administration and by the Center for Energy and Mineral Resources at the university.

"In a nutshell, the idea is to use iron or cobalt atoms imbedded in graphite as catalysts for the reaction of carbon monoxide with hydrogen, a process that is used to produce synthetic petroleum," explained Rosynek. Because the active metal atoms are located in confined spaces within the graphite layers, we think that it may be possible to obtain only certainsized hydrocarbon molecules as products.

"A hydrocarbon molecule of too large a size simply cannot be formed within the confined spaces near the catalytic metal atoms. This, in turn, would mean that we may be able to control to some extent the products of

Gasoline industry says shortage would result from change in act refineries to make as much gasoline

By THOMAS O'TOOLE

WASHINGTON - A key Senate subcommittee last week voted to amend the Clean Air Act in a way the nation's oil companies claim would trigger a shortage of gasoline by the summer of 1978.

White House energy adviser James Schlesinger said Sunday in Washington, D.C., that legislation against big, inefficient cars as part of an energy

The subcommittee on Environmental Pollution, chaired by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie (D-Maine). has warned oil companies preparing to use a gasoline additive named MMT not to do so and has warne doil companies already using it that they yould have six months to remove it from their gasoline.

The reason Muskie's committee has moved against MMT is the growing evidence that its use fouls the catalytic converters installed in cars built in the last four model years to reduce engine exhausts, making them useless after as little as 15,000 miles of driving. Normally, coverters are expected to last a mimimum of 50,000

"Preliminary testing indicates that MMT causes an increase in engine deposits and an increase in engine-out hydrocarbon emissions," General Motors Corp. told the Muskie committee. "Our tests also indicate MMT negatively influences durability and causes deterioration of four future emissions-control systems." Almost unknown outside the automotive industry, MMT is a managanese compound that has been put in gasoline in tiny traces, with tetraethyl lead for 20 years to boost octane ratings. It has what he called a 'synergistic" effect on lead in gasoline, meaning its presence makes the lead raise octane ratings more than the lead did itself.

When lead was ordered phased out of gasoline, a few oil companies substituted MMT for lead in unleaded gasoline. They found that it boosted octane ratings the same way lead did by stopping the reaction in the fuel that results in a portion of the fuel and air mixture going unburned during combustion

No fewer than 50 U.S. refineries now add about 10 million pounds of MMT a year to about 40 per cent of the unleaded gasoline sold in the United States today.

Most are small refiners who use the MMT so they don't have to spend large sums of money to refit their refineries, but at least five big refiners use it too, according to Eghyl Corp., which makes MMT. They are Exxon, Gulf, Standard Oil Co. of California, American Oil Co. and Atlantic Richfield.

Gulf has said it will have to run as much as 8 million barrels of additional oil a year through its flowing gas

Phillips Petroleum Co. No. 1-A Coates, 1/2-mile east offset to the Strawn pay opener in the Coates Field of Pecos County, 18 miles southeast of Bakersfield, flowed gas at the daily rate of 568,000 cubic feet, plus two barrels of oil and seven barrels of as it makes now using MMT to boost octanes for high-compression engines. Either that, Gulf says, or it will lose as much as 3 million barrels of low-octane gasoline every year, because it won't burn right in today's Gulf says it every refiner now using MMT were forced to abandon its use, it would result in a loss of 60 million barrels of gasoline in one year. That's 2.5 billion gallons of gasoline, enough to trigger a nationwide shortage for the unleaded fuel that now makes up more than 20 per cent of U.S. supply.

The subcommittee does not accept the oil industry's arguments about MMT, claiming the additive costs more fuel by fouling spark plugs and exhaust-control devices. But it made one concession to the oil industry: it provided that refiners now using would get 180 days to phase it out of gasoline instead of the 90 days originally written into the law.

The oil companies claim the charges that MMT fouls spark plugs and exhaust-control devices are greatly exaggerated. They claim new tests by the Environmental Protection AGency will prove that, a claim that EPA says it will be happy

Victorio Peak legends live on

By BILL STALL The Los Angeles Times

The official search for the legendary lost treasure of Victorio Peak in New Mexico is over and — just as the skeptics claimed would happen — no gold was found.

But the legend-lives on in spite of the U.S. Army's hope that the decades of stories and rumors now will fade into oblivion.

"Treasure tales die hard," David Daar, lawyer for one of the gold story figures, said.

Daar represents Mrs. Ova Nosa who claims she and her former husband, Milton (Doc) Noss, found a fabulous treasure of gold bars in the little peak on the White Sands Missile Range back in 1937.

Mrs. Noss, now 81, said through Daar that she will urge a further effort to reach the cavern where she

"We urge a further entry to the base be allowed by the secretary of defense in order to reach the chambers that are now known to exist," Daar, from Los Angeles, said in a statement.

'The expedition has proven that there are interconnecting caverns in the peak," Daar said, "just as described by Mrs. Noss. This had been denied by authorities up until

The time limit, originally expiring last Monday, was extended until Friday because of bad weather and heightened hopes that the excavation crew was on the verge of finding Doc

Noss' cavern. But Scott gave up at the end of the day Thursday when it became apparent that extensive mining would be needed to penetrate the blocked passage.

Scott said one thing accomplished was to debunk claims by several persons he represented that gold was buried at various locations near Victorio Peak, named for a 19th Century Apache warrior. But Scott was not able to prove that the tales of gold bars stacked like cordwood in Doc Noss' cavern were untrue. The existence of a large cavern was documented by "ground radar' equipment provided by Stanford Research Institute, Scott said. The Army maintained all along there was no gold while some goldseekers said that was merely a cover story to hide the Army's own secret theft of the gold.

At the conclusion of Scott's $85,000 expedition, the White Sands information officer, Maj. Kenbeth Abel, said. "White Sands Missile Range is now closed to further search. There are various stories about how the gold supposedly got to Victorio Peak. One is that it was mined in the late 1700s by Padre Felipe LaRue and stashed in the mountains.

offshoot legends including ones about mysterious gold smuggling operations, presumably efforts to stash the Victorio Peak gold away in Swiss banks or Asian hiding places.

Daar, Mrs. Noss' attorney, Said

Saturday that he had uncovered "of ficial court records" showing that White Sands area residents had been convicted of trying to smuggle gold into foreign ports. "The record shows that one such person had 44 bars sewn into a canvas vest weighing 85 pounds with a value of one-quarter million dollars," Daar

One man who claimed to have seen 'Doc Noss' gold' said the bars weighed more than 60 pounds. Another said they topped 80 pounds.

But for now, the missile range is quiet and lonely again and the only booty realized was the green folding type reaped by Las Cruces motel owners and tavern keepers from the flock of reporters and goldseekers who converged on the area for 13 days of excitement and anticipation.

Krukow wins doubters by blanking Giants

By TED BATTLES R-T Sports Editor

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. - Mike Krukow came to spring training competing for a starting job in the Chicago Cubs pitching rotation.

The six-foot-four, 195-pound righthander from Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo won over the last of the doubters by collaborating with Bruce Sutter to blank the San Francisco Giants, 3-0 Sunday, at Scottsdale Hooking up in a dual of former Texas League pitchers, Krukow drew the Giants' John "The Count" Montefusco, an old time foe as his opponent. Mike took a 2.74 ERA for the spring into the game, and when he gave way to Sutter after seven innings it had dwindled to 1.80.

It was the second time Krukow had gone seven innings this spring. No Cub has gone more and Rick Ruschel has done it only once.

Krukow got the first hit off Montefusco, a two out single in the third, and scored on Ivan DeJesus' first of two triples. DeJesus tripled in the sixth and scored on Joe Wallis' fly to

AFTER A 13-6 season for Midland in 1975, Krukow was 7-9 at Wichita last summer, but when the 25-year-old starts at Wrigley Field later this week, it won't be a new experience. Krukow pitched their last season. . .

'I went four innings there last September, and to tell the truth. I was so excited I can't remember anything

"But Ray Burris tells me you can't expect to be a high ball pitcher there. It's as simple as that. I've seen games there on TV and I've seen balls go flying out up there. But that's fine with me. I'm a low ball pitcher."

Mike adds "As far as I'm concerned. I don't think of a good game as 27 strikeouts. I think of a good game as 27 ground balls."

While Krukow was finishing off his spring work with a flourish, Wallis, another ex-Midland Cub finally ran aground of Giants pitching after a five-game hitting streak in which he was 9 for 18. Joe went 0-3, dropping his average to .351. Larry Bittner's seven game streak also went by the boards.

CUB BRIEFS: With Bill Buckner going on the disabled list, catcher Mike Gordon, ticketed for Wichita, got a reprieve and will remain with Chicago. Hitting .333, the rookie from Brockton, Mass., caught Sunday. . . Wallis is hitting .395 lefty and .308 right handed. . . After a Saturday night trimdown, which saw several players sent to Pompano Beach, the Midland Cubs roster is beginning to shape up for next Tuesday's opener against San Antonio in Midland. Hate mail hits Zimmer WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) - The hate mail already has started coming in for Manager Don Zimmer, ready to start his first full year as manager of the Boston Red Sox.

Zimmer said Sunday night he has received many letters, including four threatening his life, for the Red Sox' release of veteran third baseman Rico Petrocelli on March 25. He said the mail was sent from various New England points.

"At first I just tore up the letters so my wife wouldn't see them, but then I started turning them over to the front office," Zimmer said.

Although considered mainly crank letters, the FBI reportedly has been asked to investigate. Postal authorities and the FBI usually investigate any threatening letter sent interstate.

Kathy has Colgate smile

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) -Kathy Whitworth, who's spent 18 of her 38 years on the women's pro golf tour, is no longer the No. 1 playerand seems quite happy she's not.

After dominating the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour in the late 1960s and early '70s, Miss Whitworth decided not to take the game quite so seriously.

Even so, she won the women's richest tournament Sunday by firing a closing 71 for a 289 total and a onestroke victory over two others in the Dinah Shore Winners Circle.

The $36,000 first prize put Miss Whitworth in the 1977 LPGA money lead. But she said afterward that she didn't expect to stay there.

JoAnne Carner, who had a finalround 72 and a 290, and Sally Little, with a 70 for the same total, each won $21,500 for finishing second.

Carol Mann shot a 74 over the par-72, 6,370-yard Mission Hills layout to finish two strokes back of the winner. Defending champion Judy Rankin, Pat Bradley and Jane Blalock all wound up four strokes back with 293s. The Winners Circle victory was Laura Baugh.

Changes shake state tourney

There were quite a few leadership changes Sunday, as the fourth week of action in the Texas State Bowling Association Tournament, being held at Super Bowl in Midland and Busby's Lanes in Odessa, came to a close. There were no shakeups in the singles and team competition, but there were quite a few in doubles and the all events division.

Mike Lynch and Bob Lehr of Euless dropped from the top spot in Class A doubles, as Johnny Compos and Bruce Carter of Austin rolled an 1164 to take over sole possession of first. Lynch and Lehr are in second at 1162. In Class B doubles, Jack Griffin senior and junior of Big Spring rolled an 1181 and bounced Houston's duo of Mike McKain and Gene Grace of Houston (1180) out of first. Butch Zeller and Norman Tinkler of Brownwood took over the lead in Class C doubles with an 1177, followed by Jimmy Willson and Don Spies of NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) - A 17-year-old Texas schoolgirl, Ann Smith of Dallas, upset Dr. Renee Richards 6-3, 6-4 Sunday in the finals of a $20,000 women's tennis tournament

Richards, the controversial transexual, said Smith "has all the talent to become a world champion." Smith rushed the net repeatedly and placed volleys beyond the reach of her 6-foot-2 opponen

"I'm not surprised I won the tourna-ment or that I beat Renee," Smith said. "I just pray to the Lord to let me do my best and after that I just go out and play the match. My game is getting to be pretty good by now."

Since Miss Smith is an amateur, she was not able to collect the $3,000 dollar top prize for the tournament, the second in a series of Lionel Cup

Richards also announced she had taken the Barrbody chromosome test at Little Rock, and that the results would be announced Monday evening. She said she was submitting to the test to certify her entry in the French Open in May. The test is being required by several tennis federations for entry into women's tournaments. Richards calls the test "a capricious and incomplete criterion for sex determination," but said she has taken the test privately and "passed"

Jolly Cholly watches Cubs

Grimm is a familiar figure around Scottsdale Stadium every year, the sole survivor of the Chicago Cubs glory years.

He seems as much a part of the Scottsdale scenery as the hazy Superstition Mountains to the east. And maybe that's appropriate since Chicago pennants are legendary folklore like the Lost Dutchman Mine of the Superstitions, and just as elusive.

Jolly Cholly, as he was known back in the days when the Cubs were winning or contending, serves as a reminder of the past and maybe a hope for the future.

Grimm has been with the Cubs since 1925, which gives you an idea of how old he is. He still strums the banjo, as he did at the Charos gathering the other night when the current Cubs were feted by the local organization.

Once in a while he helps out with batting instruction, but mostly he's content to keep things running smoothly in the press room and around the ball park.

"We live in Scottsdale most of the year, but leave in the hot months, June, July and August. Last year we went to San Diego," he says.

SATURDAY, A new trailer was being delivered to Charley and the Mrs. at the stadium, from California and they were anxiously awaiting its GRIMM ALSO piloted the 1932 Cubs into the World Series against the New York Yankees, the year Babe Ruth called his home run.

There are many versions of what actually happened, but Grimm remembers it somewhat differently than the popular version.

"Guy Bush, one of our pitchers, was riding Ruth hard from the dugout, calling him pot-bellied, among other things. Gabby said Ruth pointed his bat toward Charley Root out on the mound and yelled over to Bush. 'You'll be out there on the mound tomorrow and I'll get you then.'

"On the next pitch, he hit it out of the park," Grimm went on. "The Babe was great for the game and I told my players later not to say anything, so we didn't dispute the called shot homer. It wasn't true, but it makes a great story.

Grimm had a hand in the Cubs' last four pennants, the last coming in 1945. He started 1938 as the Cubs manager. but the Bruins went on to win it under catcher Gabby Hartnett, who hit the gamous homer in the gloamin' that propelled Chicago past the Pittsburgh Pirates in the closing days of the season. The game would have been called by darkness if Hartnett hadn't connected in the last of the ninth, and it was so dark, there's still controversy over what kind of pitch old Tomato face hit.

The 1935 pennant was almost as exciting. Grimm was in the final stages of an illustrious playing career and it was in a way his retirement that turned it around. Phil Cavaretta, a 17-year-old just out of a Chicago high school, took over at first and sparked the Cubs on a 21-game winning streak that won it.

Chris Evert's 6-0, 6-1 victory over Billie Jean King in their first meeting since Ms. King's comeback may have looked like an easy triumph. But the 22year-old tennis queen says the match was a mental

"I really didn't know how to feel playing Billie Jean," Miss Evert said after her victory Sunday in the finals of a $110,000 international tennis tournament. "The name 'Billie Jean' and what she's done in tennis is very intimidating."

IN OTHER tournaments, Bjorn Borg of Sweden beat Guillermo Villas of Argentina 6-4, 1-6, 6-2, 6-0; Eddie Dibbs defeated Vitas Gerulaitis 7-6, 6-7, 6-4 and Brian Gottfried ousted Roscoe Tanner 3-6, 7-5, 6-3.

In the women's competition at Hilton Head Island S.C., Miss Evert claimed the $25,000 top prize with her usual patient baseline game, placing her shots deep in the corners and holding Ms. King far away

It was Miss Evert's 106th consecutive victory on clay and her first match against Ms. King since 1975 at Wimbledon when Ms. King beat her in a semifinal match. Ms. King has been out of singles tournament play since then and made her comeback recently after recuperating from knee surgery last October.

"I NEED matches like this," Miss Evert said afterward. "I need to play more opponents I'm afraid of and have respect for.'

Ms. King said she was pleased to have advanced to the finals but that she hasn't regained the mental toughness required to win big points.

"I just wish I could have given Chris a better match," she said. "If I were a young player, my goal would be to beat her on clay-her best surface. In the finals of the Nice, France, Grand Prix, Borg seemed befuddled by the warm weather and played sluggishly for two sets. But he seemed to find his pace and allowed Vilas only four points in the final BORG HAD lost an hour's sleep because of the time change and said he had miscalculated his wake-up time. The Swede, who broke service in the first game of the third set, won the set with a stop volley and a deep passing shot. The final set lasted 20 minutes as Borg broke service immediately and watched Vilas' errors pile up. In a World Championship Tennis tourney in London, Dibbs won Britain's biggestever prize-$30,000. He controlled the match most of the way but yielded occasionally to the 22-year-old Gerulatis' powerful cut-and-thrust style. In the semifinal singles of the $150,000 Pacific Southwest Tennis Championships, top-seeded Gottfried continued his hot streak by beating Tanner and was to face fourth-seeded Stan Smith in today's Smith eliminated 22-year-old Peter Fleming 4-6. The tournament's top doubles team of Bob Hewitt and Frew McMillan of South Africa rolled over Americans Fred McNair and Sherwood Stewart 6-1.

The remaining eight clubs are ranked by points, without regard to division standings. Under the NHL setup, the team with the fifth-most points, the New York Islanders, will play the playoff team with the fewest points: the Chicago Black Hawks.

The remaining first-round series pit the Los Angeles Kings against the Atlanta Flames and the Pittsburgh Penguins against the Toronto Maple Leafs.

third game, if needed, returns to the original site.

The only exception to that schedule would be the Islanders-Black Hawks series, whose dates have been clouded by prior commitments at both home arenas. The Black Hawks may not have a chance to host a home game because two National Basketball Association games and four concerts by the rock group Led Zeppelin have been scheduled into Chicago Stadium.

A Bugs Bunny program has been scheduled into the Islanders' Nassau Coliseum home at Uniondale, N.Y., thereby preventing Game Two from being played there Thursday night.

The outside possibility has been discussed of playing the second game at Chicago Friday afternoon, since the NBA Bulls do not play their playoff game until Friday night.

An NHL spokesman said early Sunday that the Montreal Forum and Boston Garden have been mentioned as neutral sites for the second contest, since both the Canadiens and Bruins have won byes into the quarter-finals.

All of the division winners sewed up their first-place berths long ago, with the exception of the Boston Bruins, who needed a 7-4 triumph over Toronto Sunday night to edge out Buffalo by two points in the Adams street course through downtown Long Beach was evident Sunday as he made a relentless, flawless pursuit of victory.

Andretti, who made a daring pass of Jody Scheckter three laps from the finish and held off Niki Lauda by .773 of a second to win, predicted a bright future for the sometimes beleaguered Long Beach race. "The drivers, the Europeans, enjoy coming here more than anything else," Andretti said. Sources said the Formula 1 Constructors Association is interested in entering a long-term agreement to insure the future of the event. Most major sponsors, who put up $350,000 worth of backing this year, indicated eagerness to renew. The event lost huge sums in 1976, the inaugural running, and was in danger of cancellation until Friday.

SHOWDOWN #2: UTILITY

whole that way too."

close, he wins."

(Wherein we examine such things as parking maneuverability and trunk space

Aha! Opel first in utility, a jump ahead of Rabbit.

Well, we're back. Battered but undaunted after Showdown #1, in which we finished third to VW and Toyota in Human Engineering.

This time we've attempted to determine which of our five test cars is handlest to use in three specific areas of functionality: trunk room, pulling power and parking ease. The results, as you'll see, were most gratifying.

Trunk Capacity.

The VW Rabbit wins this one hands down Because it doesn't have a trunk. The Rabbit is a hatchback-with all the attendant cargocarrying benefits.

Of the test cars that have trunks-and all the rest do-Subaru's is the most commodious, followed by Opel, Toyota, and Datsun in that order

TRUNK CAPACITY (cu. ft.) VW Rabbit 15.3 (Hatchback Subaru DL 10.6 Buick/Opel 9.9 (2-Dr. Coupe) Toyota Corolla Datsun B-210

Incidentally, in the interest of accuracy, our trunk capacity figures are based on manufacturers' estimates provided by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Pulling Power.

Engineers call this the gradability test, What it tests is torque, or a car's ability to pull weight. Mind now, gradability is a measurement of more than just straight-ahead acceleration. It's also an indication of how well one of these cars can pull, say, a cycle trailer with a couple

PULLING POWER Rank Rank Rank Rank 30 mph (3rd gear 55 mph (4th gear) FINISHING ORDER Showdown Points

Our test cars were the same used in the first Showdown event. That is to say, all were equipped with 4-speed manual transmissions, air conditioning, radial tires, and a selection of popular options

Not surprisingly, Opel, (with the largest engine), took top honors in this event. In second place, comes Toyota (which we equipped with its optional 1600cc engine followed by the fuel-injected 1600cc Rabbit Subaru (also 1600ccs) finished fourth, while Datsun, (with the smallest engine at 1350ccs),

Parking lot maneuverability.

Ease of parking is pretty much accepted as a forte of small cars like these. But some small cars are easier to park than others. As you'll see, Again using the facilities of the GM Desert Proving Grounds in Mesa, Arizona, we hired an independent engineering firm to oversee several tests of steering effort. We also had an unbiased editor from Car and Driver magazine scrutinize our test procedures and data. Here's what we did: First, we measured the amount of effort required to turn each car's steering wheel with the car standing still. Then we measured the same thing with the car moving at 10 mph. We scored the cars in both tests, then averaged the two scores together (5 for first, 4 for second, etc.), and came up with a total steering effort score.

As it turned out, Opel and VW require the least steering effort, with the remaining three cars bunched in a dead heat for second. (Talk about tight competition!)

But we felt there was another factor to be dealt with. Turning diameter. The space a car needs in which to maneuver. That can play as great a role when trying to squeeze into a small parking spot as steering wheel effort.

Using turning diameters published by four of the manufacturers, we ranked each car's ability to turn the tightest circle. (Since no such data was available for Subaru, we measured it ourselves.) The winner here was Opel, followed by Toyota, VW, Subaru and Datsun, in that order.

Then we combined the turning diameter results with the steering effort results. Altogether, we felt that was a pretty fair way to evaluate each car's ability to scoot in and out of tight parking

The chart below says it all. Opel turned out to be the easiest to park. Toyota placed second and VW third, with Subaru and Datsun

Naturally we're happy as clams at the out-come of all this. Because, as you can see, Opel is the winner of Showdown #2. Not only does that help salve the third-place finish we took in the first Showdown, it also moves us into a tie for first in overall standings, neck and neck with the Rabbit. Watch for Showdown Ad #3 in this newspaper next week. Follow the action, as this daring wheel-to-wheel spectacle continues to unfold. In the meantime, why not visit your Buick Opel dealer, and test-drive one heck of a competitive little car.
