Schools' bid for federal funds denied

Midland's efforts to receive federal funds to help implement elementary school desegregation have received a serious setback, school board members were told Tuesday.

The school district applied for $570,030 under the Emergency School Aid Act, designed to help school districts implement desegregation Schools superintendent Dr. James H. Mailey said the district has been notified that a three-member panel of educators which reviewed the application for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare turned it down.

The district can resubmit a revised request, Mailey said, and parts of it

'Pot' flight crashes; trio jailed

By JIM STEINBERG

BIG LAKE - Three men remained in Reagan County Jail this morning in lieu of $250,000 bond each after authorities discovered that a crashed plane near here contained an estimated $600,000 of a substance believed to be marijuana.

Narcotics agents here are calling it the largest marijuana seizure ever in this part of Texas.

The trio were arrested when one of them approached a Big Lake car dealer and told him he wanted to buy a car "in a real hurry," Reagan County Sheriff James Proffit said.

The three were Kevin Kinnane, 28, and Steven Paul Wells, 27, both of Austin, and a man who told authorities only that he was Steven Baker, 28.

The airplane, a 1958 Lockheed Lodestar, crash-landed on the P.H. Coates ranch seven miles north of Big Lake. The twin-engine plane, bearing a New Hampshire registry, first hit the ground near Texas 137, bounced and skidded about one mile before it stopped after crashing into a stump.

A ranch hand of Coates' told authorities a low-flying plane was heard over the ranch about 11 p.m.

Investigators found 119 boxes of suspected marijuana weighing 28 to 42 pounds each in the fuselage of the plane and near a rear door outside the plane. The boxes were reportedly wrapped in plastic waterproof wrap-

Coates discovered the abandoned plane early Tuesday morning and notified authorities. Information about the crash was broadcast over a local radio station and the town of Big Lake was generally on the alert for outsiders, Proffitt said.

The panel said the district had requested an excessive amount ($228,276) for a communication system, Slagle said. The district will resubmit a request for about $20,000, which may be granted.

The panel completely rejected a request for funds for a home-school liaison program, saying that is a need of all school systems, Slagle said.

Also completely rejected was a request for funding for an aide to ride school buses. That provision was included in the communications section. The panel said the proposal was the result of "emotional reaction from the community," Slagle said.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico - The suave and handsome guy ought to be cast in a leading role in a Latin movie.

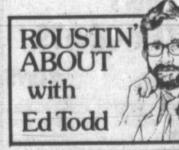

But, offhand, you wouldn't know whether to place him in the role of the good fellow or the villain; or of the Don Juan or the calculating manipulator.

But this much you know about him, if you can believe what he says: He dined with Pancho Villa's widow in Chihuahua City.

Which may mean nothing - or a lot. This silent man, who was looking out of place, was riding with a bunch of tired and congenial American tourists on the 575-mile Los Mochis-to-Chihuahua City run over the rails of the Chihuahua al Pacifico Railroad

Hospital district bill advances

AUSTIN — The Intergovernmental Affairs Committees of the Texas House and Senate have approved companion bills to create the Midland County Hospital District.

The House committee Tuesday approved the measure by Rep. Tom Craddick and sent it back to the full

The Senate committee approved Sen. W. E. "Pete" Snelson's companion bill Monday.

The identical bills would create the hospital district in the event the private corporation that owns it now cannot raise sufficient funds to keep Midland Memorial afloat, Craddick said. The hospital board says it needs $10 million

The bill, Craddick told the House committee, would call for an election in Midland County to put the district into effect. If approved by the voters, the district would then take over the hospital and its indebtedness and float some bonds to finance hospital operations, Craddick said.

The bill was sent back to the full House with recommendations that it be placed on the local and consent calendar for uncontested bills.

The Senate companion bill would have been substituted for the Craddick bill, but it was not posted in time to be legally heard. The Senate version of the bill will get out of com-mittee next week and be substituted on the floor of the House.

Pupil-teacher ratio ranked top priority

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

Emphasizing basic programs and maintaining a low pupil-teacher ratio are considered by most parents to be the school system's most important goals, according to a survey of Midlanders.

The survey, administered to citizens at neighborhood meetings, was part of the school district's goals process. Preliminary results were presented to school trustees Tuesday by Bryant Saxon, director of program development and research.

The approximately 350 persons who participated in the survey listed five items in each of two parts as top priority items.

Of 32 items relating to education programs and methods, emphasizing basic programs in reading, English and math received top priority rating most frequently, with 288 persons listing that item, Saxon said.

Maintaining a low teacher-pupil ratio was given number one rating most frequently in the support services section, with 169 responses, he

The second most frequently top rated goal in education programs and methods was insuring that discipline is even-handed and firm. Third place for pupils with unique learning needs, and developing self-respect and character was fourth.

Fifth among education programs and methods goals was establishing presented to the board later.

Board president Joe Dominey said the board needs to see only material which has evoked negative reaction. Trustee Ed Runyan said the board had asked for all of the material. Trustee Johnny Warren, however, said the board's only concern should be to measure results.

Jane Wisener, a pilot teacher at Edison Freshman School, said to have the board look at everything that is used in the classroom, either before or after, "creates an astronomical amount of work."

Mrs. Wisener said she believed "a certain amount of trust" had been placed in the pilot teachers. "We must depend on you to back us up. This wipes me out," she said of the proposal to have the board examine every tool used.

David LeMaster, representing the Midland County Educators Association and Texas State Teachers Association, called on the board to support the pilot teachers. They did not receive extra pay for the extra work they've done, he said, and are in danger of "getting sawed off on a

Trustee James Ramsoure said the board must have evidence to document statements that some teachers in the school system are using unauthorized materials before it can consider such "allegations."

One parent, Jo Pence, objected to a discussion about premarital sex in a nonpilot high school classroom. She said a high school student had told her about the discussion.

"We need evidence," Ramsoure

"Are you not taking my word?" Mrs. Pence said. "No, because you don't take ours," Ramsoure said. The board at its Feb. 8 meeting instructed that value clarification strategies be limited to the pilot teachers' classes.

During the report Tuesday, trustees were shown several exercises used in the programs.

They observed use of one called 'public interview' in a class at Houston Elementary School before the formal start of the meeting.

In that exercise, one member of the class is asked by the teacher a series of prepared questions on a topic such as friends. The class can then ask questions of the student. The student can elect not to answer any question but can have the questioner answer any question he does answer.

Questions asked during Tuesday's exercise included whether or not the student has a best friend, whether he keeps secrets from his best friends, what makes the student himself a good friend for others and the dif-

Trustee Ann Page said she objected to the "personal grilling" in that kind of exercise. She said she thinks the Wisconsin Drug Program is "excellent" but that the "personality delving parts" should be removed. That would not mean eliminating all values clarification strategies, however, she said. Some students could be subjected to ridicule for revealing cherished values in that kind of exercise, Mrs. Page said.

Mrs. Starks, who is a pilot teacher as well as coordinator, presented a decision making exercise she uses in low academic level classes. It could also be used in elementary classes, she said.

In the exercise, students examine alternatives a decision presents by using a "decision tree" handout. Consequences for each alternative

One exercise she has used to show the decision-making process, Mrs. Starks said, is the choice a hypothetical boy must make concerning whether to spend $20 he has been given for clothes or for a model car he wants. In the example, the boy needs clothes because his family does not have the money to purchase them at that time, but he wants a model car. The three choices are whether to buy the model he wants, the clothes he needs, or to buy a smaller model and cheaper quality clothes. Mrs. Pence asked whether a student who starts with values his parents have taught him might be influenced by students with other Mrs. Starks said that is a possiblility, but students are always subjected to peer pressure. Students are not encouraged to go against parental values, she said. She said students are limited in

One tool she has used is pretests at the beginning of the year. One of the tests, on how the student feels about himself, includes the following kinds of statements, to which students answer either yes or no:

"I am a happy person." "I can draw well.

"I often get into trouble." — "I have good ideas."

Mrs. Watson said the individual's answers are not revealed to anyone but her. The results help her give special attention to students who do not feel good about themselves, she said. The board took no action on the programs at Tuesday's meeting. Schools superintendent Dr. James H. Mailey said the evaluation of the programs will come before the board the last part of May.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - A state moratorium on gas service shutoffs ended at midnight April 1. Fifteen minutes later a gas worker arrived to take away Roy Dreyfus' meter.

He owed the company $173 for three months, but the bill came only hours before the Clintonian Fuel and Oil Co. paid its call.

"That bill wasn't even due until April 10," Dreyfus complained Tuesday. He said he received no notice of the cutoff by mail or telephone.

Clintonian, which has 1,830 customers, shut off 39 other households the same morning in the central Ohio community of Buckeye Lake, said General Manager Harold Edgington.

The expired order from the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio had prohibited gas companies from shutting off service for any reason. The PUCO refused to extend the moratorium, despite lingering effects of the most severe winter in history.

Chairman C. Luther Heckman said he thought shutoffs would be avoided because PUCO had ordered companies to advertise extended payment plans, which would allow customers to pay bills and not lose service.

Appalachia residents build sandbag levees

By The Associated Press

Residents of flood-battered Appalachia threw up sandbag levees today in a race with rampaging creeks and rivers that drove thousands from their homes.

At least 32 people were reported killed in the destructive wind and rain storm that spewed out of the Mississippi Gulf on Monday toward the Northeast and swelled waterways in the Southeast.

Alabama had the highest toll with 23 reported dead, mostly from tornados. The death of one woman, found floating in her home, was attributed to drowning. Kentucky reported five deaths, and West Virginia and Virginia each reported two.

Rain subsided in much of the Southeast but unseasonably cold temperatures turned rain into sleet or snow in the mountain valleys of Appalachia, where the flood damage was greatest. "We think the sandbags may have

Carter sets stamp limit

By BRIAN B. KING

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter says Congress can change his proposals for revamping the federal food-stamp program by no more than $100 million or he will veto the plan.

Opposition to Carter's plan is likely from urban Democrats who want higher benefits for recipients.

"We're very firm on the cost implications," said Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland. "If the final legislation increases our costs more than 2 per cent, we simply cannot countenance it.

Bergland explained the plan to the House Agriculture Committee on Tuesday and issued Carter's veto

asked if the President meant for Congress to have no say in the legislation.

"No," Bergland said. "Fine tuning is okay. But we're talking about bottom-line costs. About $100 million either way would be acceptable."

Carter's 30-page proposal for a two-year, $5.5-billion food stamp program to begin Oct. 1, would maintain present benefits for most recipients and end a rule requiring families to pay for the stamps.

About 600,000 households with incomes above the official poverty lines would be disqualified from the program under Carter's plan.

Recipients now are charged about 44 per cent of the face value of their monthly stamp allotment. A threeperson family, for example, can buy an allotment of $130 in food stamps for an average of $57.

Under the Carter plan, such a family would pay nothing but would get only $73 in stamps, which are redeemable like coupons in food

About 5.44 million families now participate in the program. Bergland said about 880,000 of the poorest households, which now can't afford the stamps, would probably join the program under Carter's plan.

Their benefits, in effect, would be paid for with benefits taken from those disqualified. About 1.58 million families with income near the poverty level, will have benefits cut by more than $5 a month.

Jury rules suicide

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) - A Palm Beach County coroner's jury has ruled that the death of George de Mohrenschildt was a suicide, but the panel refused to investigate what led to the death.

"That's irrelevant," State At-ty. David Bludworth said Tuesday after the jury released its finding on the death of de Mohrenschildt, who was a friend of Lee Harvey Oswald.

"We're here to determine whether he did commit suicide, or not. The other facts about why he took his own life are for someone else to look into."

De Mohrenschildt was found shot to death March 29.

Downed craft's tapes drowned out by hail

ATLANTA (AP) - A Southern Airways DC-9 flew through weather so severe that cockpit conversation was drowned out by a tattoo of hailstones just minutes before the jet crashed and killed 69 persons, federal investigators say.

The plane, carrying 81 passengers and a crew of four, plowed through the rural community of New Hope about 30 miles northwest of here on Monday, killing 60 on the plane and eight persons on the ground. A 61st passenger died Tuesday night.

A preliminary examination of the cockpit voice recorder showed the plane flew through hail for more than a minute, at points so heavy that the clatter prevented the recorder from picking up any conversation, Francis McAdams of the National Transportation Safety Board said

At one point, McAdams said, the voice of one crew member said the plane had a "busted windshield" at about 14,000 feet. Within one minute, both engines failed, McAdams said.

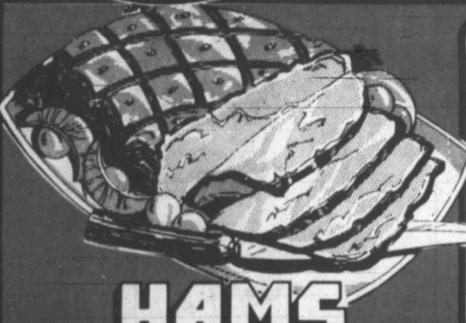

At another point, a voice said, "Shut it down. Shut it down," apparently a command to turn off an engine to lessen the chance of an explosion.

Senate OK

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - The Senate gave voice vote approval Tuesday to legislation by Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland, funding the Department of Health Resources to perform autopsies on infants and young children who die mysteriously.

Snelson told the Senate that the Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) is the leading single cause of death among infants over one week of age. Common diagnoses on death certificates of these youngsters is suffocation, aspiration and regurgitation, he said. Senate members presented Snelson with few questions about the bill, which would fund the health department with $500,000 per year for helping perform autopsies on children suspects of encountering SIDS. The bill (SD 821) now goes to the House, where a similar measure has already been referred to committee.

The FBI had investigated the SWP. small Trotskyite group, for 38 years without producing any evidence of wrong doing by the party or its members, Last September, former Attorney General Edward H. Levi ordered the bureau to halt the SWP

The documents disclose that in 1971 FBI headquarters enlisted several field offices in planning ways to stop the Student Mobilization Committee Against the War from holding a conference at Catholic University in Washington. In the documents, the committee is described as being dominated by the SWP.

The conference did take place as scheduled. But SWP officials said

Tuesday that Catholic University officials first tried to pressure the conference organizers to move the meeting elsewhere and, when that failed, insisted that they buy a million dollar insurance policy against

The documents do not say whether the FBI actually implemented any of these tactics, and an FBI spokesman said Tuesday he didn't know the answer to that question. Clarence C. Walton, president of Catholic University, said Tuesday night through a spokesman that there was no interference in the matter from the Church hierarchy and that he could recall no outside pressures to cancel

Patrick Cardinal O'Boyle, then Archbishop of the Washington Diocese, and Walton reportedly were "disturbed" by the renting of university facilities to the conference.

The papers then discussed ways in which pressures could be brought to bear on Cardinal O'Boyle and Walton to cancel the conference. As outlined in the documents, these included "an anonymous telephone call campaign to the offices of O'Boyle and Walton' by FBI agents pretending to be irate Catholics and anonymous letters to 'conservative pro-Catholic organizations" calling on them to

Contained in the documents is an exchange between the FBI's New York and San Antonio field offices about the wisdom of putting these tactics into effect.

The New York office pointed out that "various forms of radical philosophy" had won sympathy among many Catholic priests and nuns. The radically inclined clergy, New York warned, might learn of the FBI's involvement at CU and subject

San Antonio replied that "with respect to New York's patronizing comments," the FBI "should be aware that there is a great number of Catholics, both religious and laymen. who do not subscribe to this radical

If the FBI had taken "effective counterintelligence actions" when "so-called permissive attitudes" first became evident among youth and religious groups, "the bureau's investigation of New Left and other such matters would not have been as great is it is today," the San Antonio office said.

Those documents relating to the

Despite FBI assertions that the late director, J. Edgar Hoover, ordered all domestic counterintelligence programs stopped in April 1971, the documents show that the aim of the 1972 Houston incident was to harass and disrupt SWP activities.

Davis lawyers seek recording that may aid multimillionaire

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) - A tape-recorded interview with a woman who says she heard someone threaten the lives of two principals in the Cullen Davis murder case was to be discussed today at a closed hearing called by District Court Judge Tom

Word of the tape stole the spotlight at Davis' capital murder trial Tuesday from the selection of a seventh juror, Edwanna Dillingham of Fort Worth - the 112th panelist considered

Davis is charged with the Aug. 3, 1976, shootings at his $6 million mansion in Fort Worth that left two persons dead and Davis' estranged wife Priscilla critically wounded.

The multimillionaire industrialist is on trial for the slaying of his 12-yearold stepdaughter Andrea Wilborn, who already was dead when Stan Farr and Mrs. Davis returned from a dinner date to the mansion they shared. Farr also was killed and Mrs. Davis gravely wounded.

Davis himself had not lived at the mansion for two years prior to the shootings, since the couple separated in a divorce proceeding that still is

But a woman who spent several evenings in the mansion since Mrs. Davis acquired temporary custody of the home told district attorney's office investigators Tuesday she had heard a death threat before the Aug. 3 shootings. The threats allegedly were against Farr and Mrs. Davis.

The full statement given to investigators by Sandy Guthrie of Fort Worth, a probable defense witness, was not revealed Tuesday, including the identity of the person who issued the threat.

Similarly, the circumstances sur-rounding the alleged threat and how long before Aug. 3 it was made were kept out of open court during a debate between lawyers over who should have custody of the recording.

Those details were to be discussed today, when Cave scheduled a special hearing to determine if defense lawyers have a right to the information on the tape. The hearing was to be closed to the public

Man charged with murder

HOUSTON (AP) - Steven Allen Hatcher, 23, was in jail today charged with murder in the death of his wife whose body was found stuffed in a trash barrel that was floating in a lake.

Bond of $40,000 was set for Hatcher, a one-time car salesman, after the charges were filed Tuesday night in connection with the shotgun slaying of Glenda Ann Homicide detectives quoted Hatcher as saying he accidentally shot his wife Friday night in the couple's southwest Houston apartment and then took her body to Lake Sam Rayburn in East Texas "so she Mrs. Hatcher's body was found Monday in a 55 gallon drum in the lake. Police said the husband led officers to the site. Mrs. Hatcher had been shot in the head with a shotgun.

arrested Sunday in Angelina County and charged with felony criminal mischief in connection with the burning of a car found near the lake. He was taken to Houston for further questioning

Homicide Detective D. A. McAnulty quoted Hatcher as saying he was walking inside the couple's apartment with a loaded shotgun Friday night when his wife ran around a corner of the bedroom and startled him causing the gun to discharge.

Detective M. W. Lankford said Hatcher told him the couple often camped in the wooded areas of Lake Sam Rayburn where it "was so peaceful and pretty."

Jury selection in Woody trial moves slowly

FORT STOCKTON, Tex. (AP) - Jury selection in the capital murder trial of Allen Ladd Woody, 20, of Center Point moved into its second week today with wo jurors still to be called.

Lawyers fruitlessly questioned 20 potential jurors luesday, the seventh day of jury selection. During the first six days, 10 jurors had been ac-eepted.

"The judge called in 60 additional persons to be questioned beginning today," Dist. Atty. Joe Tuck of Kerrville said Tuesday night. "Of that number, only 33 showed up and we have 13 left to question.

Historic land sale

The Tall City of Midland Thursday will be the scene of the 66th public auction of University Lands oil and gas leases - the first such sale ever held outside the City of Austin.

And to say that Midland and Midlanders are thrilled at the opportunity of being hosts to this historic happening is putting it mildly. Midlanders recognize full well the significance of the occasion and their desire is to do everything possible to make it a tremendous success from every standpoint.

Geologist in Charge Jim Zimmerman and his associates in the University Lands headquarters offices here have gone all-out in arranging and staging the Midland sale. They also have done a marvelous job, working with a special coordinating committee. in arranging special events honoring distinguished visitors who will be here for the University Lands sale.

It is fitting, certainly, that University Lands, which are located in West Texas and which produce upwards of 30 million barrels of crude oil a year, should be held in this headquarters center of the petroleum industry in the Permian Basin Empire of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico. And thanks for making the sale here possible should go largely to Sen. W.E. "Pete," Snelson and Rep. Tom Craddick. both of Midland, who introduced the legislation achieving this aim in the previous session of the Texas Legislature.

It is a brand new experience for members of the Board for Lease of University Lands, for University Lands staff members. for participants in the sale and for others involved in it. Nothing will be left undone to make it one of the most successful, bestarranged and most efficiently staged ever. It most certainly is the wish of Tall City residents that other sales might be held here in the future.

A warm, most cordial, typically West Texas WELCOME is directed to all visitors who are in Midland for the sale, especially members of the Board for Lease and other state and University officials. The board members are Chairman Bob Armstrong, commissioner of the General Land Office; Vice Chairman Dan

C. Williams, a member of the board of regents of The University of Texas, and Dr. Sterling H. Fly Jr., also a member of the board of

Two former members of the board of regents and board for lease - Dr. Joe T. Nelson of Weatherford and Wales Madden Jr. of Amarillo - also are expected to attend.

It is reported that more than 200 representatives of major oil companies and independent oil and gas operators will be present to bid on leases in a number of West Texas counties.

Midland organizations are seeing to it that the visitors are being kept busy by attending special events being staged in their honor.

Members of the Board for Lease and other special guests will be honored this evening at a reception being given by The Midland Wildcat Committee at the Midland Country Club.

Following the close of the sale Thursday afternoon, a special event will be held for the visitors, sponsored by the Permian Basin Landmen's Association and the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Another reception for the visitors is scheduled at 8:10 a.m. Friday at the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and the museum's Boards of Trustees and Executors.

The visitors also will tour the museum, following which Vice Chairman Williams of the Board for Lease will dedicate the museum's recently completed antique rig exhibit, located just north of the museum building. Santa Rita medallions will be presented to the Board for Lease members by Charles Fraser, president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

Members of the Board for Lease and staff members of University Lands then will depart by chartered bus for a tour of parts of University Lands leases in the

It all adds up to a tremendous, exciting occasion for Midland, and it is hoped that it will be even more than that for all of the sale participants and other

Turncoats receive privileges

By JACK ANDERSON and LES

WASHINGTON - The turncoats of society are a despised breed. In the closed world of a prison, for example, they are the untouchables who volunteer to work against their cellmates.

They can be found, isolated and lonely, in the middle of Mississippi's sprawling Parchman prison camp. They live in the best available quarters, a ramshackle assortment o houses, some with their own private

They are a motley collection of inmates whose mission, under the guidance of officers, is to track down and capture any prisoner who tries to escape from Parchman.

They live with a pack of pedigreed bloodhounds who can follow the scent of a man for days across the fields, bayous and thick mud gumbo of the northern Mississippi delta. These privileged inmates, skilled at hot pursuit, are known appropriately as the "dog boys."

Our roving reporter, Hal Bernton, lived and worked briefly with the dog boys. They were the pariahs of the prison, enjoying little luxuries from the authorities in return for chasing down escaped prisoners.

The chase can be strenuous, a rugged race across the countryside sometimes for 15 or 20 miles at a stretch. Except for extra creature comforts, they receive no pay for their manhunts. A day is reduced from their sentence, however, for each day of work.

Yet the dog boys pay a price for their small privileges. A smoldering hatred has grown up between the inmates who run the dogs and the rest of the prison populace. Their lives could be in danger if they tripped over. some prison rule and wound up back in the inmate cages.

They are marked men. One actually has a price on his head. Other convicts have offered $750 for his murder. fellow dog boys. He dares not walk alone outside his unit

Late one night, our reporter was rousted out of bed and sent on a manhunt. A convicted murderer. locked up for life, had broken out. He had set his clothes on fire to divert the guards. Then he had raced across the darkened prison yard, scaled the barbed-wire chain fence and vanished into the thick fog which enshrouds the wet delta farmland.

But within 15 minutes, a hefty fellow named Hercules was in swift pursuit. He strained to hold back his running dog Buck as they sloshed through the thick mud. The mud clung to his feet, making it extremely difficult to run. Just ahead sprinted the escaping inmate, crashing through bramble patches and splashing across the bayous.

Another crew of dog boys, meanwhile, was trucked down the road. where they tried to cut off his escape route. Using high-powered flashlights, they sent stabs of light into the dense fog. Finally, the dogs picked up his trail on the other side of the highway.

COAL GOAL: President Carter has concluded that the nation must use more coal, its most abundant energy resource, to overcome the energy crisis. Yet he may find coal more difficult to extract from the bureaucracy than from the ground.

The Federal Energy Administration sympathizes with the captains of industry, who shudder at the cost of converting their plants to coal. It may be more than idle coincidence, therefore, that the agency's most celebrated obstructionist has been placed in charge of the coal

He is Jim Rubin, who distinguished himself last year by destroying documents sought by a House subcommittee. The energy administrators concluded he was the right man to handle the changeover to

During their three-year effort to reduce oil consumption, they haven't compelled a single private company to switch to coal. The reason for this, according to an internal memo, is that the agency has spent too much time analyzing instead of acting.

The agency is supposed to order certain oil-burning facilities to convert to coal. But the effort has become bogged down in technical legal analyses. The memo, written by staff expert Jerry Parker, contends: "Many of our time-consuming technical gyrations go beyond the sensitivities and tolerances of the data being manipulated." In other words, the bureaucrats have been spinning their besides Rockefeller - such names as Jimmy Carter, Walter Mondale, Cyrus Vance, Michael Blumenthal, Harold Brown, C. Fred Bergsten, Richard Cooper and Zbigniew Brzezinski.

Those solid members of the administration were all active in the Trilateral Commission from its inception. An added starter to the commission roster is Richard Holbrooke, assistant secretary of state for East Asia and the Pacific. Bergsten and Cooper were the original architects of the Trilateral Commission concept, Brzezinski recruited Mr. Carter as a trilateralist and was himself once the full-time executive director to the commission! The Trilateral Commission and the more broad trilateral concept are no giant conspiracy, but its pat approach to solving the world's economic problems bothers some economists and members of the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives. Because the trilateral notion is pegged to market economies, its precepts virtually ignore such nations as the People's Republic of China and Vietnam. There is not much "business" to be done with those countries anyway. But there are some other implications to be drawn.

Taiwan can rejoice gleefully at the Carter administration's emphasis on building a solid economic order based on international trade and business. Because the U.S. two-way trade with Taiwan is so lucrative, there will be no movement in the near future to switch diplomatic recognition from Peking to Taipei unless there are guarantees that Taiwan's economy will be unaffected by the switch. There are some strong rumors to be heard that David Rockefeller's last trip to Peking earlier this year included attempts to elicit a Chinese promise that Taiwan would be left alone to prosper economically and to trade within the trilateral concept. even if the United States switched its diplomatic ties to Peking

The China diplomatic question is basically a side issue in all of this.

The core of the developing world monetary and economic reorganization thrust is the question: how can the strong nations - i.e., the trilateralists - cope with the demands and needs of the so-called Third World, the developing nations, the members of the North-South dialogue, the so-called have-nots and, particularly, the Communist nations?

The main battleground of the trilateralists' view versus that of the so-called Third World may be in the context of the International Monetary Fund (IMF). Like the United Nations, the IMF often swings on the votes of many smaller nations and the wrong kind of IMF reorganization would seriously affect the trilateralists'

All of this financial jockeying about is much more ambiguous and more difficult to follow than a war or a coup d'etat or even an Asian election. But the unfolding drama is of vital importance to Asia's development future and to that of the entire world.

Budget Director Bert Lance scores win over labor

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - The root cause of organized labor's deepening displeasure with the Carter administration is the continuing dominance of budget director Bert Lance and his strategy of breaking the capital investment slump by reassuring business. Big labor was unprepared for Lance's victory in convincing President Carter to ask a minimum hourly wage increase of only 20 cents instead of the 74 cents pushed by the AFL-CIO. More of the same is on the way. Lance agrees with businessmen that the best way to stimulate investment is to lower corporate income tax rates - a proposal certain to send labor leaders climbing the walls of the AFL-CIO's Philip Murray Building across Lafayette Park from the White House.

What is happening is temporary precedence of economic factors over political factors. The President's political aides fully recognize his debt to the AFL-CIO for carrying vital industrial states last November and would prefer to back labor's program. But Lance, the conservative bankerpolitician from Georgia who is barely known to labor, quite sincerely believes that wholesale adoption of labor's proposals would spell economic disaster, and has so convinced Mr. Carter. Lance's strategy recognizes the intense hostility to union power that pervades American business, big and little. The expectation that both Mr. Carter and Congress will repay labor's political backing with blanket support of labor's legislative program is the core of business non-confidence. Hence, the surprising defeat of the situs picketing bill in the House was welcomed privately by some key Carter officials (though not the political aides) precisely because it showed that neither the President nor Congress is in George Meany's pocket. While the official view at the Philip Murray Building is that labor from the Carter administration - and particularly Bert Lance. Certainly, in conversations with Congressmen, Lance did not hide his own opposition to situs picketing. That may have contributed to votes against the bill from all 10 Georgia has only its own lassitude to blame for the situs picketing defeat, dissenters

there grumble about lack of support

Democratic House members. More noxious to organized labor and more cheering to business than Lance's non-support of situs picketing was his active opposition to labor's minimum wage proposal. Lance has advertised his belief that pushing up the minimum wage would not only boost unemployment among minority youths but would also contribute to Lance has been asked by businessmen how they can accept his and the President's pledges about championing a non-inflationary policy while the administration backs labor's minimum wage proposals. Candid in reply, Lance has conceded they have a point.

Nevertheless, AFL-CIO leaders were no more prepared for the ad-ministration rejecting their proposal than they were for the House rejecting situs picketing. Rep. John Dent of Pennsylvania, House sponsor of the AFL-CIO's minimum wage bill, informed big labor last week - after conferring with the President — that Mr. Carter was with them

In fact, inside the administration, only Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall was with them. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, chairman of the administration's policy group backed up Lance. The panel vote against the Dent bill was 5 to 1, with Marshall alone in dissent. Businessmen were pleasantly surprised, though not entirely pleased, with the administration's more modest proposal-a position fairly reflecting Lance's own feelings.

Far from displaying White House arrogance, the minimum wage position is one part of Lance's overall economic strategy that is sure to collide time and again with the AFL-CIO. In the belief that economic recovery can come only from the private sector, Lance's top priority is to establish business confidence in an administration whose economic philosophy appears still in flux. Accordingly, he is talking about reducing the corporate income tax rate in the tax reform package this Moreover, Lance believes today's principal inflationary engine is neither corporate price boosts nor union wage demands but escalating government deficit spending. This invites another confrontation with labor leaders habituated to high federal spending.

At a White House luncheon between presidential aides and AFL-CIO staffers last week, labor was expected to urge active support for a bill making it easier to organize unorganized workers, a measure mainly important in the South. But even if the White House agreed, that would not affect broad economic policy - as set by Lance - on a collision course with big labor.

Swanson boasts. no nonsense ideas for good health

By BARBARA RADER Newsday

NEW YORK - Gloria Swanson, 90 pounds of energy packed into 5 feet of firm chic, announced to a packed house at a Bloomingdale's store on Long Island the other day that she was about to have her 78th birthday. "I was born March 27, 1899. I have three children, seven grandchildren and two greatgrandchildren. You can call me granny now, and I even have a shawl."

But Gloria Swanson is not a stereotype granny. She's a tiny little fighter with a snappy delivery and no nonsense for people who, she says, insist on ruining their bodies. And she'll scrap with anyone who doesn't agree with her. She fights for good health. For good nutrition. For advocating a diet of small amounts of food, mostly whole grains, no arimal pro-tein (unless she knows where the animal lived and breathed before its demise). She is fighting against additives in food. And, with her writer-husband, William Dufty, fighting against sugar.

The couple was appearing at Bloomingdale's to talk about good nutrition and the badness of sugar and artificial sweetener substitutes, and to autograph copies of Dufty's paperback book, "Sugar

It was sugar that first brought the two - Swanson the silent screen star, and Dufty, an editorial writer for the New York Post — within fighting distance of each other about 10 years ago. Dufty recalls in the book how they were about to reach for a sugar cube at a press luncheon when the diminutive star hissed at him. "That stuff is poison. I won't have it in my house, let alone my body," Swanson said. It wasn't quite love at first fight, but that experience, Dufty said, started him thinking about his own health. which wasn't so great, he recalls.

"I was a sugar junkie; I was sick and eating all the wrong things. I was in pain and one night, I read a little book that said very simply that if you're sick, it's your own damn fault. Pain is the final warning. You know better than anyone else how you've been abusing your body, so stop it. Sugar is poison, it said, more lethal than opium and more dangerous than atomic fallout. I began next morning with firm resolve. I threw all the sugar out, everything that had sugar in it, cereals and canned fruit, soups and bread. I began eating nothing but whole grains and vegetables." That paragraph appears on Page 22 of "Sugar Blues." William Dufty recalled it the other day in his talk.

Said Swanson, "We know a lot about what's outside of us, but we know nothing about our bodies and how they work. I have spent years studying the different organs and how they function. I was ill and I became well through good nutrition. When I was full of toxins I became cleansed by drinking vegetable broths and their fields on a variety of hand much of the time, to where she has been ac- and in a very kind way Rosalynn Carter quickly having enemas, on doctor's orders. ### Babysitter wants to spend time with friends

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl who doesn't really like to babysit. Up until now, I only babysat when I had nothing else to do. Lately when I'm asked to babysit and have other plans my mother makes me break my plans in order to take the job. She says now that I am old enough to earn my own money, I should do so whenever I get the chance.

One time when I turned down a babysitting job because I wanted to do something else with my friends, she cut my allowance off completely. She said if I wanted pocket money, I could

Or do you think she's right?-NON-BABYSITTER

DEAR NON: If your "plans" constitute something important (like a special event, or a party that has been planned in advance) I think you should be allowed to turn down a babysitting job to pursue your plans. But to refuse to "sit" in order to goof around with your friends is, I think, immature.

DEAR ABBY: I don't have a problem at the moment, but I'd like to share something with you that might be of interest to your readers.

Some friends of mine were married recently and went to Tampa, Fla. for their honeymoon. (Let's call them Mike and Judy, which aren't their real names.)

to go home, they went into the lounge for a drink, and Mike had one too many. He then took a large candle which Judy had bought as a souvenir at Disney World and waved it to a woman security officer at the airport, saying "This could be a bomb!"

FBI and a few others and Mike was promptly hauled off to jail. His bond was set at $7,500.

Well, she immediately called the

To make a long story short, Mike's little "joke" cost him 10 per cent of the $7,500 for bail, two days in jail and two days of work missed, and to top it off he has to fly back to Tampa to stand trial and possibly face a jail sentence and a fine!

Maybe this little account will stop some other clown from making jokes about bombs in an airport.-NO LAUGHING MATTER

DEAR NO: There are warnings posted in every airport stating that okes about "bombs" are a federal Well, before they boarded the plane offense, punishable by law. But some people (like Mike) have to learn the hard way.

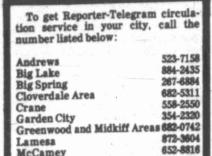

DEAR ABBY: I was walking down the street when I happened to come upon a pitiful sight. A little boy, who couldn't have been 2 years old, was harnessed on a leash like a dog.

Finally I rang the doorbell, and the mother came to the door. I told her that leashes were for dogs, not children, and she said, "Is that so? Do you want to watch him for a while?" Then she slammed the door in my face. I have told this story to several of my friends, and they all seem to think I had no business ringing the bell. What is your opinion?-LOVES CHILDREN

I would vote with your friends.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Lead poisoning damages brain

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have heard so much about lead poisoning and how it can cause brain damage in children. What should I watch out for in my family?—Lucille Y.

Dear Lucille: The main source of lead poisoning in children is leaded paint—the kind that used to be applied to cribs, furniture and the interior of houses. A lot of it is still around, expecially in older neighborhoods, and youngsters often have a habit of put-ting everything they can lay their hands on right into their mouths. They chip away at cracked spots and eat bits and pieces of leaded paint and

The dangerous age is 10 months to six years—and the first two years are the time when you have to be most watchfui. A great deal of the development of the brain and the nervous system occurs then, and it is during this period that lead poisoning is especially apt to cause irreversible brain damage. So make sure that any paint your baby can get at is leadfree—as all paints for interior use are supposed to be now.

Another distressing source of lead in the environment is car exhausts. In this country alone, cars dump close to 200,000 tons of the metal into the atmosphere every year. People who live or work on or near roads with heavy traffic have higher lead blood levels than other Americans.

There are other sources-Mexican pottery that has not been properly fired, lead toys, a nearby smelter. A recent article in Pediatrics magazine tells of a six-month-old baby who had high levels of lead in his blood because he breathed dust from a fireplace where newspapers were regulary burned instead of logs (there is lead in ink). When the practice was stopped, the lead level went down.

Symptoms of lead poisoning in-clude abdominal pain, nausea, weakness, unnatural paleness, anemia, confusion and decreased alertness. There are tests to check the amount of lead in a child and drugs that help get rid of it. But the most important thing is prevention-by cleaning up lead hazards through personal and community action.

To B.C. in Cleveland, Tenn.: The main cause of constipation is not cancer. It's from the failure of the defecation reflex. Please, see your doctor to put your mind at ease.

The Seattle Mariners, like most expansion teams, have been consigned to a last-place finish on merit. They don't need any help from their ballpark.

But when the Mariners open the American League baseball season tonight against the California Angels in Seattle's $60 million Kingdome, each fly ball may be an adventure.

Green to contend in Masters golf

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) - Hubert Green is changing his putting stance for the Masters.

"I think I'll use stance No. 45-00-XYZ ...but I'll probably change that two or three times before the gun goes off," Green said-as straight-faced as could be-before a practice round Tuesday over the 7,030 yards of rolling hills that make up the famed

Augusta National Golf Club course. The gun goes off Thursday morning in this, the first of the year's four major international tests. Green has to rank high among the list of contenders- despite his quick-quip

"I just hope I don't get caught in the backfire," he said.

Although he has won 11 American tour titles and a couple of important foreign events, Green has had his problems in the game's Big Fourthe Masters, U.S. and British opens and the PGA. A victory in one or more of those is his chief goal and, according to Green, the gateway to golfing greatness.

"A player can be considered great only if he wins in the great tournaments on great courses against the other great players. And he has to win more than once.

"In the great tournaments, the great players stand up to be counted. When it's come my time to stand up and be counted, I've sat down." Only his putting, however, is in question coming into this one.

"Actually," Green said, suddenly serious, "I'm playing pretty good right now, probably better than I was at this time last year."

At this time last year, Green held the hottest hand in the game, having reeled off a string of three consecutive victories.

But he hasn't won since then. "Mostly it's the putting," he said. "I've tried several different stances and I'll probably try several more.

I'm a little more conventional now than I once was." The stance, however, still resembles closely the curious crouch with the angled elbows he has used since turning pro in 1970. "Maybe the fans can't see the difference," he said.

He will not try most pros' favorite remedy to the putting misersies-a change in clubs. "No way I'll do that," said Green, who uses an ancient putter of unknown age, complete with a green-painted shaft. "I don't know how old it is, but it was manufactured by the Great Lakes Golf Company, and they went out of business in the 1930s."

Green, however, is very much in business and fully anticipates a run at the famed green jacket that goes to the winner of this annual spring rite.

Golden State races past Los Angeles, 132-103

By The Associated Press

Suddenly, the National Basketball Association playoff picture is becoming clear: Golden State is in. Seattle is out, Kansas City is in trouble and Chicago is on fire. The Golden State Warriors clinched a playoff berth Tuesday night by thumping Los Angeles 132-103 behind 40 points by Rick Barry, They out-scored the Lakers 24-2 over a nine-minute stretch of the first half to break it open.

Seattle saw its hopes crushed by the lowly New York Nets, who snapped a 12-game losing streak with an 88-86

Warriors 132, Lakers 103

Golden State took command by ripping off the first 10 points of the second quarter. Rookie center Robert Parish scored nine points and guard Charles Dudley had six assists in the decisive period, in which the Warriors outscored Los Angeles, 27-10.

Jamaal Wilkes added 24 points for the Warriors and Parish finished with 21, while Kareem Abdul-Jabbar topped the Lakers with 28.

Nets 88, Sonics 86 An errant pass by Seattle's Nick Weatherspoon with nine seconds left sealed Seattle's doom. The Sonics minutes, with New York's Bubbles Hawkins hitting two free throws to tie the score 86-86 prior to Bassett's winning basket.

Bulls 91, Braves 89 Chicago saw an 18-point lead all but evaporate and barely managed to hold on for its 18th victory in the last 21 games. Buffalo pulled within two points with 26 seconds left, but Chicago was able to run a full 24 seconds off the clock-and the Braves' Randy Smith missed a shot at the buzzer.

Wilbur Holland led the Bulls with 23 points, 15 of them in the third period as Chicago took its big lead.

Pacers 87, Kings 82 Kansas City trailed just 77-76 with 21/2 minutes to go, but Indiana broke the game open with six straight points on baskets by Wil Jones, Billy Knight and Don Buse. Buse also set up Knight's basket with a steal and an assist. John Williamson led Indiana with 26 points.

Blazers 110, Pistons 105 A free throw by Bill Walton and a breakaway layin by Larry Steele clinched the victory for Portland, which assured itself of the third-best record in the Western Conference.

The Sonics took the lead to stay with 16 straight points in the fourth quarter, then held off a late charge by the Pistons. Reserve Lloyd Neal led Portland with 18 points.

Bullets 119, Cavaliers 116, OT Washington couldn't hold onto a 15point lead in regulation, but Elvin Hayes scored six of his 32 points in overtime to put the Bullets on top. Bingo Smith led Cleveland with 35 points.

Knicks 121, Celtics 113

Bob McAdoo scored 31 points and three other Knicks hit 20 or more as they posted their fourth straight victory. New York squandered an early 15-point lead and did not put the Celtics away until the final 11/2 minutes, when the Knicks scored the game's final seven points.

pitch moved Murphy to second and Zachry to third, and with one out, Steve Cole drilled a ground-rule double to dead center to score two more runs, and put the Pack ahead 4-

KEVIN PEARCE joined in the barrage next with a single to put runners on the corner, and when Goode lashed still another run scoring base hit through the right side, Pressly got the hook.

Sullenger actually should have retired Midland without any more incidents. But this was a variety show remember, and it was time for some

After striking out David Johnston for the second out, he got Widner to pop up into shallow left. Odessa's left fielder and shortstop both converged on it, and in the near-collision that followed, the ball trickled off the outfielder's glove and two more Midland runs came dancing accross, to put them up, 7-1.

But as they say on TV, stay tuned for part two. And part two belonged completely to the Odessans. They added three unearned runs to their tab in the bottom half of the second, and went on a scoring tear in the third, when Murphy, and Minton both ran into control problems. The Bronchos managed only three hits that inning, but by the time Brigham finally retired the side, they had scored another six runs, and had the lead for good, 10-7.

Most of the scoring was over, but not excitement. That came in the fifth. With one on and one out, batter Steve Cole questioned a called strike by the home plate umpire. He was swiftly tossed out. In the bottom half of the inning, Odessa Coach Harlan Hinds questioned the ump's ancestry, or something to that effect, and he watched the rest of the game from behind the fence.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - Texas has held on to first place in the college baseball newspaper poll on the strength of a 40-1 record, including a 34-game winning streak.

The Longhorns were rated No. 1 by writers, broadcasters and college sports information directors in the NCAA Division 1 poll released Tuesday. They had 496 power index points, two ahead of second place Clemson.

In Division II, California at Riverside was the top team.

Rangers topple 'Horns

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas Rangers centerfielder Dave Moates went 4for-5 and drove in three runs and first baseman John Ellis had three hits, one a home run, as the Rangers defeated the University of Texas 9-4 Tuesday night in an exhibition baseball game.

The game ended spring training for the Rangers, who finished with a 13-13 record. Second year man Tommy Boggs, pitching in his home town, gave up five hits to the Longhorns and struck out eight in a five inning stint.

Longhorn starter Bob Heuck pitched two and a third innings of no hit ball, striking out two Rangers, when he injured his elbow in the third inning. Heuck may be lost for the season.

Catcher Bobby Kearney was 4-for-5 to lead hitters for the Longhorns, 40-1 in regular season play.

Market Advance plans can hold down funeral costs

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

Americans spend an estimated $4 billion a year on funerals and burial arrangments, and a growing number of people are asking whether the buyers are getting their money's worth.

"There are few, if any, purchases where the ultimate consumer is so disadvantaged or where his or her normal bargaining power is so diluted in a situation of such immediate need," said the Seattle regional office of the Federal Trade Commission after a study of funeral and burial costs.

On a nationwide basis, the FTC has proposed a series of regulations designed to give people more information about funerals and to protect consumers against unscrupulous operators.

Many funeral directors have said the regulations are unnecessary. They say only a few of the nation's 22,000 funeral directors are unscrupulous. "The FTC is trying to smear an entire industry for things that occur in a tiny fraction of cases," said Robert D. Williams, president of International Funeral Services, Inc., of Des Moines, Iowa.

A growing number of people, meanwhile, are sear-ching for less-expensive funerals — and finding them. The federal Consumer Information Center said that in just over six months it received 20,000 requests for "The Price of Death," published by the Seattle office of the FTC, despite the fact that the booklet costs $1.05 and is one of the most expensive items distributed by the center.

The National Funeral Directors Association. representing about 14,000 funeral directors, said the average funeral in 1974 cost $1,207. That does not include expenses for the cemetery, flowers or a grave marker which can add another $800 or so. About half the funeral homes conducted less than 100 funerals a year, the association said, and the average funeral director made $18,700.

Where does the money go? How can you cut costs? The Seattle office of the FTC says consumers making death arrangments are faced with three major purchases: the funeral, the burial space and the grave marker. "All of these purchases can be prearranged," the agency says, so that consumers are not faced with the task of shopping when they are emotionally upset.

The FTC office says that people who do make arrangements in advance should make sure to talk about plans with their families and leave written instructions for the next of kin. Make sure the instructions are readily available - not in a will or a safedeposit box whose contents may not be disclosed un-

Panel denies use of Mexican brick in city house

By LARRY SUTHERLAND

Midland Board of Appeals Tuesday rejected Walter K. Boyd's variance request to use untested Mexican brick for veneer surface on a house he is having constructed at 2014 W. Golf Course Road, and in doing so it broke a precedent of granting such variances.

At a previous board meeting the group decided it would not grant future variances, pending some guidance from the Midland City Council.

The city's building code excludes Mexican brick unless it can withstand 2,500 pounds per square inch. Board chairman Ernest Neill, who along with member Ray Sale voted to deny the variance, said prior variances had been granted because many builders had already purchased Mexican brick and it was felt a financial hardship would result if the builders were required to replace that brick with a type meeting code requirements. Now, however, there has been enough time for homeowners and builders to know that the board will not permit Mexican brick, Neill added. "At this time there is no way he can claim a hardship," he said of applicant's for the variance. Voting to grant the variance were Bill Allen and

Floyd Pace. Glenn Pine, president of the Midland Home Builders Association, said his organization will seek a meeting with the city council to try and resolve the controversy over Mexican brick. Neill also has sought action from the council in having a board created to examine future use of Mexican brick, but no board has been formed yet. After denying Boyd's variance request, Pine and B. B. Phillips asked to have their variance requests. for Mexican brick tabled until the full board meets in-May. The board agreed to postpone the cases.

In other action, the board: postponed, once again. action on Ronny Smith's request for a variance to occupy a workshop at 3401 W. Industrial Loop. The building is in violation of right-of-way requirements and lacks proper wiring. Smith's attorney, Scott Shelton, said Smith will pursue the matter through the Midland Planning and Zoning Commission and if their approval is given no variance will be needed by the board. Shelton said a plat of Smith's lot is being prepared, and if approved by the commission, will include an acceptable right-of-way. Smith also will erect a firewall and rewire the building to meet legal requirements. The board agreed to postpone forcing compliance with the building code for an indefinite period of time, but Smith still will have to keep the Midland Inspections Department informed of his progress with the planning and zoning commission.

— Denied James A. Peacock's request for a variance to occupy a structure at 201 W. Washington Ave. for storage in excess of 6,000 square feet without a sprinkler system. The variance was denied because, for the second meeting, no representative was present to discuss why the variance should be granted.

- Approved J. Durwood Owen's request for a variance to use a brick residence-type building at 1309 N. Big Spring St. for a bridal salon.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Tim Dill, a 29-year-old service station manger, was handed a $5 bill by a woman customer. After she left, he took a good look at it and discovered that it was blank on the back.

James Conlon, director of the Engraving and Printing Office of the Treasury Department, said, "The bills are printed on large sheets that are delivered one at a time through a press. Once in a while two sheets stick together and one turns up blank. Usually these sheets are detected."

NEW YORK (AP) - Brooke Hayward says she misses her "shroud of anonymity.

But now that her book, "Haywire," has been published to critical acclaim and chosen as the Bookof-the-Month Club's spring selection, anonymity is a luxury of the past for its 39- year-old author. 'I don't really like to have people know too much about me; I don't like to be in the public eye," said Ms. Hayward, who up to now has managed to maintain her privacy despite working as a high fashion model and actress and being the daughter of a couple very much in the limelight.

Her parents were stage and screen actress Margaret Sullavan and agent-producer Leland Hayward. In her book she reveals the story of her troubled family: her mother, married four times and dead at 51, possibly a suicide; her father, who died in 1971, married five times; her younger brother and sister in mental institutions and that sister, Bridget, an apparent suicide at 21.

'It would have been a senseless undertaking if I hadn't been candid," said Ms. Hayward, slim in a plaid vest and skirt and rust shirt, her glasses perched atop her abundant long, wavy hair

"I really started the book as a kind of private adventure into myself and had no thought of its being published," she said. "I wanted to see whether I could recall in any detail events surrounding my sister's death particularly, so I began with that, which was probably the most difficult.

What she expected to be a slender memoir became, instead, a full-fledged book which she worked on for nearly three years. Writer friends encouraged her and after she had completed 60 'agonizing' pages it was submitted to a publisher and she thought that would be the end of it.

But it was accepted and that obligated me to continue." she explained. "To find a counterpoint to my own memories I interviewed family and friends.

those she interviewed were Hen to whom her mother was once married, Jane and Peter Fonda, with whom she grew up, and her brother Bill, now 35 and a film producer in partnership with Peter Fonda. "One thing I broke my back doing was trying to look at every single person from every conceivable side, and it was extremely difficult," she said. Ms. Hayward recalls that she had a problem coming to grips with her parents' divorce after 10 years of marriage

"I started out thinking of my mother as a sainted martyr. I spent most of my life with her and I had a fierce loyalty to her because I thought she was very vulnerable. She suffered a lot when my sister and brother - at her own suggestion - went to live with father," she said

'By the time I finished the book I felt a deep sympathy not only for mother, but for father. I ended up thinking she was more neurotic than I had thought when she was alive, and father less neurotic than I had thought.

Ms. Hayward calls her mother "a very conflicted person," who had high expectations of herself and all the people around her.

Her acting ability certainly carried into her life and her charm and colorful personality carried into her acting." she said "With her dynamism and charisma she was the center of attention and when she entered a room the focus was immediately on her. She carried with her an extraordinary quality of energy and magnetism." Married and divorced twice, Ms. Hayward has tried to make sure her own children-didn't suffer the trauma from the breakups that she and her brother and sister did. She and her first husband have remained friendly over the years.

Ms. Hayward, who lives in Los Angeles, has two ons, 19 and 20, who are in college, and a 14-year-old daughter by her second husband, actor Dennis Hop-

As for the possibility of remarrying, she says, "I think I'm awfully independent and fairly mercurial. It is a rare man who could engage my attention for so get older I get more eccentric and more selfish. If I were younger and had more cartilege than bone it would be easier to adjust. I don't know if I could commit myself to a single human being now.'

Tapies' art exhibited

By C. G. McDANIEL

CHICAGO (AP) - The dour and mystical musings of artist Antoni Tapies are to be seen in an exhibition of his paintings at the Museum of Contemporary Art.

Tapies, born in 1923 in Barcelona, is considered to be the leading Spanish painter to emerge in the international art world since World War II.

Some 125 works are being shown in the retrospective exhibition here through May 1, "Antoni Tapies: Thirty-Three Years of His Work."

Tapies' work cannot easily be classified. At various periods it has included elements of surrealism, abstract expressionism and other schools of contemporary art. The influence of Klee and Miro is to be seen in some of the paintings.

The work goes beyond painting in the traditional sense, in that little of it is done on a canvas base and most of it incorporates more than paint pigment on the surface.

The surfaces incorporate sand, marble fragments, twine, cloth and plaster-like relief. The work is sometimes more construction than

Jackson predicts tax on gas-eating autos

WASHINGTON - Congress will pass some form of tax on sale of heavy, gasoline-devouring automobiles if President Carter, as expected, recommends such a measure as part of his energy package, Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) predicted Tuesday.

"I'm convinced we'll go after the gas guzzler," Jackson, chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, told reporters at a breakfast meeting. "Maybe we'll not do it in one fell swoop; they (U.S. automakers) will need time to adjust. But I think we'll find a compromise."

Carter's energy advisers have been considering a measure under which a graduated tax of up to $500 would be assessed on the sale of cars depending on how much they fell below a certain standard - perhaps 18 miles per gallon - for fuel efficiency.

Government rebates might also be given to purchasers of cars exceeding the standard. Hardest hit under such a system would be buyers of full-sized American cars, station wagons and such recreation vehicles as campers. The market for compacts would be ### six miles southwest of Post. News media given day-long tour of huge Odessa complex

Newspaper and television representatives were given a daylong tour of the free world's largest inland petrochemcial complex

The huge facility is the complex at the southeast edge of Odessa which is made up of plants operated by El Paso Products Co., General Tire & Rubber Co., Shell oil Co. and Rexene Polyolefins Co., a division of Dart Industries, Inc., Chemical Group.

The tour was sponsored by the Oil and Gas Committee of the Odessa Chamber of Commerce.

Jay Mahaffey, representing the committee, said the tour of the plants was setup "in an effort to in some little way to offset the bad publicity on the oil and gas industry put out by many news media in the East."

Mahaffey said that "even a survey in our local schools have shown that many of the young people believe that the oil industry is directly responsible country. Officials of each of the industries in the Odessa complex explained their operations, from standpoint of supplying energy and saving energy, during a briefing before the start of the tour.

Bill Bell, manager of the Shell Oil Co. refining operation, presented some facts on Shell Oil Co.'s 1976 operations to show that the company, although it did make a good profit in 1976, did not harvest obscene profits.

"In 1976 was a record year for Shell We think the level of profits are not obscene and are at a level necessary for business to survive and create iobs. "We made a profit of about 2.25 cents per gallon of petroleum products sold. The return on total invested capital was 14.6 per cent which we think is fair for a business with the risk that exists in the oil industry "Don't forget, you gan get 7.75 per cent for CD's at the local bank and have the federal government insure your money!

Shell's refinery, one of eight owned by the company, has a daily petroleum intake of 32,000 barrels. Produced are finished grades of gasoline, jet fuel, kerosene, diesel, residuals, naptha, propane, butane

Bell said about 840,000 gallons of gasoline are produced each day at the plant. "About one-third are marked in the El Paso area and two thirds in the Arizona area

Bell said about 100 Shell employes work at the Odessa refinery in addition to 40 contract people. The payroll is approximately $3.3 million annually. In addition the company added several millions of dollars to the Permian Basin economy through purchase of materials and services. Bell took a stab at the proposed tax on refineries by the State of Texas. "I feel that if such a tax is imposed, it will put Texas at a disadvantage from the standpoint of capacity increases for our refineries and any new refineries that might be planned.

Pat Munn, assistant vice president of El Paso Natural Gas Co. in charge of that concern's manufacturing operations at the complex, gave a brief history of the beginning of the complex when El Paso built the first plant

He revealed that the combined annual payroll of El Paso Products Co. and Odessa Natural Corp. in the area is $15,500,000, with 825 employes in Ector County, 600 of them at the complex.

"We paid taxes of $854,000 to the Ector County Independent School District and Odessa College, Ector County and the City of Odessa in 1976. "We also contributed $35,750

(company and employes) during the 1976 Odessa United Way campaign. El Paso produces ammonia. butadiene, olefins, adipic acid, styrene, sulfur and HMD at its various facilities in the complex. El Paso annually produces more than 400 metric tons of products. Bill Stee, plant manager for Dart, exhibited the many products that are made from the materials manufactured at the complex. Dart's Rexene plant in the complex employs 378 persons with an annual payroll of $4,770,000. The capacity of the Rexene plant is 400,000,000 pounds of polyethylene and 135,000,000 pounds of polypropylene annually.

'There probably isn't a home in West Texas that does not have at lease one product manufactured from the materials produced by the Rexene plant," Steen said.

Drilled to 13,400 feet, it has a 5-inch liner hung from 5,980-13,400 feet, and it is plugged back to 13,284 feet. Tops reported under kelly bushing elevation of 3,841 feet were Wolfcamp shale, 5,565. Tom Bradley, the first black mayor of Los Angeles, defeated 11 challengers to win reelection, and a white Atlanta city councilman captured the vacant congressional seat of U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young.

Atlanta City Council president Wyche Fowler Jr., who defeated former civil rights activist John Lewis, a black, for the 5th District seat, said he would be on an early plane to Washington "so I can be voting on the floor of Congress' today. In Madison, Wis.,

Mayor Paul Soglin, an antiwar radical of the 1960s, was re-elected by a 16,000-vote margin over a 25-year-old Republican alderman. St. Louis voters gave Democratic state Sen. James Conway a 65 per cent landslide in that mayoral election. Seattle attorney Marvin Durning. Democrat, and Republican state Sen. John Cunningham won their parties' nominations for the May 17 election to fill Washington's 7th Congressional District seat, vacated by Transportation Secretary Brock Adams.

Bradley, 59, whose parents were sharecroppers, said the City of Los Angeles had ignored the race issue he said was raised by his chief opponent, state Sen. Alan Robbins, who stressed his opposition to forced busing for school integration.

Bradley was well over the 50 per cent tally he needed to avoid a runoff. With 41.2 per cent of the vote counted, Bradley had 58.9 per cent. Rob-bins had 27.8 per cent.

Atlanta area blacks had campaigned hard to hold on to the 5th District seat. Young had been the first black elected to Congress from the Deep South since Reconstruction and had won a third term last November by a 67 per cent margin.

Fowler, 36, overcame an early tally of inner city votes. With all ballots counted, he had 53,023 or 62 per cent, to 32,452 votes or 37.9 per cent for Lewis.

Fowler ran unsuccessfully against Young in 1972.

It was the third victorious mayoral race for Soglin, the 31-year-old former "hippie alderman." He was supported by many businessmen who conceded he had become more pragmatic than in the days when he helped lead antiwar rallies on the University of Wisconsin campus. Alderman Nino Amato had 25,800 votes to Soglin's 41,700. Conway, 44, beat back challenges from Republican James Stemmler and the writein campaign of a fellow-Democrat, U.S. Rep. William Clay, to become mayor of St. Louis.

Conway served in the state House of Representatives from 1966 to 1973 and has been in the state Senate since
