Two Soviet vessels under U.S. control

BOSTON - (AP) A Soviet trawler was brought to dock at Boston today while a second Soviet ship was under Coast Guard control, the first two Soviet ships taken for violations of the United States' 200-mile fishing zone.

The gray and white trawler Taras Shevchenko docked at the Boston Coast Guard base shortly after 9 a.m. as its crew stood at the rails listening to rock music on transistor radios, Coast Guard lawyers and representatives of the U.S. Attorney's office immediately boarded the ship.

The 275-foot ship, with a crew of 93, was seized late Saturday after the Coast Guard said it discovered the craft was carrying more than her allowed quota of river herring.

The Coast Guard announced today that a second Soviet ship, the Antanas Snechkus, had been ordered into Boston from 160 miles eastsoutheast of Nantucket. The action took place on Sunday, the Coast Guard said, and the vessel was being escorted to Boston.

"Isn't that beautiful," said U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds, who was at the dock to watch the Taras Schevchenko

"Look at those flags," he said in reference to the trawler sailing with the American flag flying from her foremast and the Soviet flag waving at her stern. This is routine: the flag of the host nation is flown on a forward mast.

The Coast Guard said the second vessel, a processing ship measuring 503 feet, was discovered carrying contraband fish. The Coast Guard did not name the species.

The Coast Guard said the cargo of the second vessel was seized, not the ship itself. But to seize the cargo, the vessel had to be taken into custody.

The crew of the Taras Shevchenko will remain on board, with the gangway guarded and small craft prevented from approaching it. The Antanas Snechkus, a transport refrigerator ship, acts as a support ship to fishing ships, a Coast Guard spokesman in New York said. He said it was the first time that the Coast Guard had taken control of a nonfishing Soviet ship. "We've never had one like this when we just seized the cargo. This is new ground for the Coast Guard," he said.

The Antanas Snechkus has a crew of 63 persons. It was built in 1974 and is home-ported in Klaipeda, Russia.

The Coast Guard has issued more than 60 citations and warnings to Soviet fishing vessels since the 200mile limit went into effect March 1.
"We've released several of them,"

President Carter said of the Soviet ships as he left Easter services in Georgia on Sunday. "But we just had to draw the line somewhere. We informed the Soviet Embassy this past week we couldn't continue to release them, that we had to enforce the law."

Authority over impounded ships passes to the U.S. Attorney in Boston after the ship reaches the docks and is searched by customs officials.

The Taras Shevchenko was between 60 and 100 miles inside the limit when it was boarded about noon Saturday by a party from the cutter Decisive, the Coast Guard said. The vessel was officially seized about 10 hours later for allegedly catching and keeping about 3,500 pounds more than its quota of river herring, which, under licensing provisions, may account for only 1 per cent of the total processed fish aboard, the Coast Guard said.

Lt. Cmdr. Thomas Nunes, chief of the Coast Guard's Maritime Law Enforcement branch, said there were four tons of the fish - or 1.2 per cent of the catch - aboard the vessel.

"We have a gross violation here, and we may find more as we go through the ship," Nunes said after

Anti-inflation program due

By RICHARD E. MEYER

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is putting finishing touches on his anti-inflation program after a weekend of fishing, tennis and Easter services in Calhoun, Ga., two whiskers bigger than his hometown of Plains, but just as relaxed.

Carter got back to work today with staff and Cabinet meetings and lunch with Vice President Walter Mondale.

Aides said Carter will reveal his anti-inflation program later this week, probably at a news conference. They said he will outline Latin American policy in a Washington speech to the Organization of

The President told a Bible class before the Easter services: "I am close to God and I do pray often and seek His guidance.'

Carter's anti-inflation program is expected to include what Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal describes as labor-management committees to keep track of wage and price trends.

The committees were suggested by AFL-CIO President George Meany who rejected Carter's proposal that labor and management give the government advance warning before increasing prices or demanding higher wages

Peres acquires party command

The Los Angeles Times

TEL AVIV - Shimon Peres Sunday took over command of Israel's battered Labor Party.

In a moment of triumph for him and disaster for his party, the 54-year-old defense minister took control with the confident air of a tough, ambitious man whose hour has finally come.

Peres spent 20 years working his way to the top of the party - and got there on a Sunday evening five weeks before an election crucial to the party, his country and hopes for peace in the Middle East.

The 800-member Central Committee of the party voted almost unanimously to name him the party's candidate for prime minister in the May 17 elections - replacing Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, who quit Thursday amid a scandal over an illegal U.S. bank account.

Peres met the press with a promise that there would be "no substantial changes in the policies of Israel," despite his reputation as being more hawkish than Rabin. A newsman asked him if the U.S. government would find him hard to

"Well," said Peres, "I believe that one should handle me with care." He tried to play down his hawkish reputation — an important and dovish minor party is still trying to decide whether to back Labor or bolt the fold — but he gave hints he will be a tough man to bargain with. He was lukewarm about the prospects of the proposed Geneva peace talks between Israel and its Arab neighbors. "My own view is that...I don't see

He strongly reiterated the Israeli stand against negotiation with the Palestinian Liberation Organization, which he characterized as "a coalition of armed groups without borders, without the rule of a majority, without a political program and with a dream of destroying Israel.

And he refused to drop his support for Israeli settlements in the occupied lands north, east and south of Jerusalem - which the United States opposes as a bar to any peace settlement with the Arabs.

"Every settlement will have to have the approval of the cabinet," he said. "...I personally would give priority to reenforcing Jerusalem from the four corners - north, south, Peres said in response to a question that he had had four or five hours of sleep since the Rabin resignation Thursday. But he showed no sign of fatigue as he faced some 40 newsmen in the Tel Aviv government information center. Peres was asked to estimate his chances in the May 17 election in the wake of the Rabin scandal. He said:

"The situation is so difficult that my chances are great." One of the smoothest Israeli politicians, Peres responded to a query as to whether he was a dove or a hawk with a reply which could justify either coloration:

"I think my political training is such that I've learned to formulate an opinion relevant to the situation and try to draw the necessary conclusions."

Warnke says U.S. to do what's needed for SALT

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The United States is prepared to do whatever is necessary to bring about an equitable nuclear-arms limitation agreement, even if it requires a summit meeting between President Carter and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, U.S. arms negotiator Paul Warnke said Sunday.

"I think that the interests of both countries so much lie in having effective control over strategic nuclear arms that we will, in fact, find some means of achieving that," Warnke said in an appearance on the television program "Face the Nation" (CBS).

Asked if those means of achieving an agreement could involve a face-toface. Carter-Brezhnev meeting, Warnke replied, "It could very well involve that."

Warnke said he could not speculate if such a meeting might occur before Oct. 3, when the current U.S.-Soviet arms limitation agreement expires.

'But I know that we are prepared to deal at whatever level is going to bring about the result we feel is essential for the United States and the human race," he said.

had not sent him the arms and ammunition he requested. "If you have decided to surrender piecemeal to the Soviet-Cuban grand design in Africa, I think you owe it to us and to your friends to have the frankness to admit it," Mobutu said in an interview with the American news magazine.

The United States says it has sent Mobutu medical supplies and noncombat military supplies. Belgium has sent small arms, and a Zaire government spokesman said the Chinese are sending 30 tons of emergency supplies.

Mobutu told a rally in Kinshasa that the invading Katangans had been helped "by complicities at the highest levels of the Zaire army." He said one army officer had been arrested.

The president said the invaders in tercepted his forces' communications. He said this enabled them to cross the border just as fuel rationing was imposed in Shaba and armored units were withdrawn from the area.

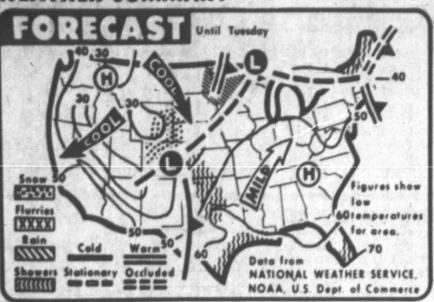

There have been no reports of fighting in the province for a week. The invaders' front lines are believed to have stabilized some 30 to 50 miles west of Kolwezi, the center of the copper mines. It is some 800 miles southeast of Kinshasa and 210 miles east of the Angolan border.

The invaders are reported to be veterans of Moise Tshombe's Katanga army of the early 1960s who fled to Angola after the failure of Tshombe's attempt to detach mineral-rich Shaba from the rest of the country.

But Mobutu told Newsweek only the officers and senior noncommissioned officers were Tshombe's veterans and the rest of the invaders were recruited in Shaba in the past two Mobutu claims the invaders are armed by the Soviet Union, supported by Angola's Marxist government and led by Cuban troops who helped the Angolan Marxists defeat two pro-Western rival factions last year. Angola, Cuba and the Soviet Union have denied helping the invaders

Pope Paul VI wished the world "a happy Easter" in 14 languages, anarchists interrupted Mass in Paris' Notre Dame Cathedral, the Carters held a sunrise service on a Georgia back porch, and millions watched the re-enactment of the Easter story on television.

"Life is beautiful if it is new," the Pope told an estimated 200,000 people thronging St. Peter's Square and overflowing into nearby streets. "We believe that the young people of today are particularly predisposed to understand and welcome this good wish, which is full of hope and energy

In Jerusalem, the crush of pilgrims was unusually heavy because Easter came on the same day this year for the Eastern and Western Christian

While Orthodox and Roman Catholics worshiped at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, many Protestants attended sunrise services at another traditional tomb site outside the walls of the Old City. Lutherans went to the Mount of Olives, where the New Testament says Christ ascended to heaven.

In Paris, two young French women ran up the aisle of Notre Dame shouting and trying to unfurl a banner supporting the West German BaaderMeinhof gang of anarchists during services that were being televised throughout Western Europe. Police seized them on the steps of the altar, and the service continued.

President Carter and his family held a sunrise service on his son Jack's back porch in Calhoun, Ga. Amy read from the Bible, Mrs. Carter led a prayer, and the family talked about the death and resurrection of Christ and what it meant to them, the President reported later. Then the Carters went to Sunday school and church at the First Baptist Church.

Bright sunlight brought thousands to promenade up and down New York's Fifth Avenue, closed to traffic for 19 blocks for the annual Easter Parade. Atlantic City's boardwalk also was crowded.

The biggest Easter audience was in the homes of America the concluding half of Franco Zeffirelli's 61/2-hour movie 'Jesus of Nazareth." Audience figures were not yet available, but based on ratings of the first half April 3, NBC predicted a total audience of 90 million.

The officially atheistic Soviet government announced that Easter services were held "in all the temples and prayer houses of this country's cities and villages." In Moscow, special buses took people to the cemeteries to clean family graves and leave Easter pastries and eggs. But in apparent competition with midnight church services, the government television service presented a late variety show featuring Liza Minnelli and other seldom-seen Western performers, and movie theaters had special late showings of popular French, Japanese and American films.

The rival factions of the Irish Republican Army held marches in both Dublin, capital of the Irish republic, and Belfast, the capital of Northern Ireland, to commemorate the 1916 Easter uprising.

FORT WORTH, Tex. - In November Fort Worth voters made their city the largest in north Texas to go for Jimmy Carter in the presidential election.

On April 2 they voted for him again. 'We'll give you a city government in which the powerful will no longer be able to prey upon the powerless," the winning candidate told an election-night TV audience.

The words were Jimmy Carter's, but the speaker was Hugh Q. Parmer, a 37-year-old marketing executive whose insurgent campaign for mayor had just produced a stunning upset.

While the people of Forth Worth may not have realized it, the new mayor won their votes largely by copying the symbols and themes Carter employed in his dramatic rise from obscurity to the White House.

Parmer's reliance on the Carter formula goes far beyond a single quote in an election-night speech. It includes a political philosophy centered on ethics reform and fiscal conservatism, plus an image of the candidate as a successful small businessman and man of the people.

After returning to his native Fort Worth in 1968 and suffering defeat in another state legislative race, Parmer borrowed $1,000 and started a direct-mail marketing company. Aspin said he had seen documents showing $1,461,403 in losses in the 15 months ending last Dec. 21. That accounts for 5 per cent of the base's supply budget, he said Sunday in a news release.

'In an operation as large as the Army there will always be some items missing and unaccounted for, Aspin said. "But $1.5 million worth of equipment that evaporates into thin air from a single base is completely unacceptable.

Officials at Ft. Hood had no immediate comment. Aspin said the Ft. Hood surveys indicate that 'substantial quantities of equipment and supplies are missing from Army stocks and asked the General Accounting Office to investigate.

Investigations at the base found no one responsible for 91 per cent of the losses, Aspin said. In most of the other 9 per cent of the cases, the person was listed as absent without leave, he said.

"This raises fundamental questions," Aspin said. 'The officers filing the reports are investigating their own friends and coworkers at a base. Are they just ignoring cases of mismanagement or outright theftin order to keep their friends out of trouble? Are they just shifting the burden onto the AWOL soldier who has already put himself beyond the social pale by deserting?"

Highway financing

Texas highway financing didn't fare too badly in the legislature last week. In fact, highway financing came away much better than it had appeared that it would two or three weeks ago.

Additional funds most certainly could and would have been used to excellent advantage in highway construction and maintenance, but it had appeared for a while that the State Highway and Public Transportation Department would not receive anywhere near adequate financing.

The House, in late February, had cleared in quick order a $674 million highway bill, which had Gov. Dolph Briscoe's approval. The Senate, however, was not at all impressed with the bill or its urgency. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby referred the measure to committee, where it languished for two weeks or more. It looked like a prolonged battle between the governor and the lieutenant governor.

Meanwhile, however, the lieutenant governor came up with his own highway financing bill. It was only a matter of days before the Senate had approved legislation which it sent to the House. The bill increased money for highway construction by $523 million, compared with the $674 million House bill.

House approval of Senate amendments to the bill came in a matter of hours, thus ending two months of debate and compromise on highway funding.

Gov. Briscoe appeared pleased with the action and said that he would sign the bill, which appears to be a generally satisfactory compromise.

The $528 million in new highway funding is above the $1.6 billion recommended for highway building in the proposed 1978-79 budget. In addition to appropriating less funds than the original House-approved measure, it does not dedicate specific taxes to highways.

The House bill, which was part of an $825 million plan proposed by the governor, would have earmarked for state highways most of the revenue from sales taxes on automobiles and on tires, auto parts and accessories.

The funds finally designated will not allow the highway department to achieve all of its goals in needed road construction and maintenance, but it will allow the work program to proceed on a somewhat modified scale. The need for increased funds was brought about largely by the demon inflation.

This is the first major bill to pass both houses this session, tapping the $3 billion surplus in the state treasury.

The highway funding bill seemingly is acceptable to most everyone involved, and this is good. Texans appreciate their excellent system of highways, and they spoke out forcefully for adequate funds to maintain it.

The Highway Department, however, will have to be even more prudent and selective than ever in carrying on its program during the next two years.

Law enforcement experts from the State, Treasury, Justice and Defense Depts. have been meeting recently to devise methods to thwart future takeovers. Three special antiterrorist units, the CIA's "Critical Collection Problems Committee, Justice's "Interdepartmental Committee on Internal Security," and the "Cabinet Committee to Combat Terrorism," are also trying to come up with solutions.

To replace these unconstitutional methods, some of the federal agencies are turning to sophisticated anticrime technology, but the results have been limited. The Customs Service, for instance, has set up a Terrorist Data Base containing 2,000 names and 5,000 passport numbers. Some suspects have as many as seven aliases.

The Fuerzas Armadas de Liberacion Nacional of Puerto Rico (FALN) reportedly was behind the bombing last month of a New York building that housed an FBI field office. The same group blew up New York's historic Fraunces Tavern in 1975, killing four people and injuring 53. Meanwhile, the revolutionary Puerto Rican Socialist Party may soon be taken over by Florencio Merced Rosa, a young hothead who, say intelligence sources, had ties with an FALN "bomb factory" discovered

Although some intelligence sources described the former Marine captain as a "big talker," he does have some cloak-and-dagger credentials. In 1972, federal narcotics agents arranged a phony Marine discharge for Jividen so he could act as an undercover operative in a big heroin deal between Morocco and the United States.

Although the operation fell through Jividen received a formal commendation signed by Justice official Richard Kobakoff, formerly a CIA agent. The episode apparently whetted Jividen's appetite for a life of intrigue.

He made an appointment to see Kobakoff in November, 1974, with his sights set on a more daring adventure: the kidnapping of Robert Vesco from Costa Rica. American officials repeatedly have failed in attempts to extradite the financial scofflaw from his palatial island villa.

Jividen tried to recruit Vesco's former pilot, Capt. A. L. Eisenhauer, by saying that an unnamed "sponsor" would provide aircraft and a clandestine plan. In later conversations with Eisenhauer, Jividen said that Kobakoff was supporting the scheme and that other government officials also wanted Vesco kidnapped and returned to the United States.

Eisenhauer acknowledged that he was contacted about the kidnap caper, but refused to participate, A spokesman for Kobakoff said the meeting proposed by Jividen never took place. Kobakoff vehemently denies that he knew about or sponsored any plan to kidnap Vesco. Jividen, reached in London, declined to comment.

New York City despair: Abe Beame or Bella Abzug

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

NEW YORK - In facing a future that menaces this city's very survival, New Yorkers may be reduced to picking between Abe Beame and Bella Abzug for mayor - between probable creeping stagnation or possible instant disaster.

Following New York's recent escape from technical bankruptcy, its long-range problems are worsening an exodus of business and the middle class, a cascading flood of illegal immigrants, far too few jobs, and far too little revenue to balance the budget at a moment when reality demands reduction of taxes. Saving New York might be impossible for even the wisest and most courageous politician; no one here credits Mayor Beame or Mrs. Abzug with being

Yet, these are the hard political facts: if the September Democratic primary were held today, Mrs. Abzug - not yet decided to run - would win. Beame would defeat anybody else in the primary and surely win the general election in November. If Bella did win the primary, a coalition might defeat her in November, but that would be high-risk politics in-

Thus, businessmen and politicians who once shuddered over four more years of Beame now call him the lesser evil, compared with Mrs. Abzug's intemperate personality and leftist ideology in city hall. The result is dull despair and apparent failure of the political system in finding a mayor to master the times, back in Midland.

Two years of preoccupation with bankruptcy has obscured a demographic pattern here that threatens a nightmare future. The trickle of middle-class whites, especially from Brooklyn, has turned into a hemorrhage. Their place is taken by impoverished citizens of Jamaica and other Caribbean countries who flow into the city on tourist visas with no intent of ever

While immensely attractive to these illegal aliens, the city is becoming purgatory for middleincome business executives seeking safe streets, good schools and moderate taxes. Along with high business taxes, that explains why few big corporations come here and many leave (Mobil Corp. plans moving to Falls Church, Va.). Even more damaging is the unnoticed, everyday flight of small businesses, such as warehousers crossing the river to New Jersey.

Since Jimmy Carter is no more apt to save New York with federal dollars than Gerald Ford was, the only answer is permanent, gradual reduction in government while taxes, both personal and business, are steadily lowered - the state formula pushed by Gov. Hugh Carey.

Even Mayor Beame is taking this line and has recently surrounded himself with capable managers led by Deputy Mayor John Zuccotti. But one insider who has worked overtime trying to sell Beame on good management confided to us: "I'm not sure Abe really understands or believes the things he's saying.'

Skeptics are sure he does not. "You don't suddenly change your whole way of life at age 71," one well-placed Democrat told us. Zuccotti and other good government types, frustrated by the lack of real change, are not expected to stay for a second Beame

But if Beame only gives lip service to the new reality, Mrs. Abzug thumbs her nose at it - calling for radical social welfare measures financed by government. Furthermore, nobody believes she really wants to be mayor but is just trying to stay alive politically until the 1980 Senate race.

How can it be that somebody who does not want the job and seems so clearly unsuited for it would win? Because Bella's raucous complaints superficially satisfy the public's bitterness toward city hall.

A more constructive resolution of that bitterness might have been engineered by the once robust reform movement, now apathetic (and partly aligned with Mrs. Abzug anyway). 'Fusion' between independents and Republicans, which elected Fiorello LaGuardia and John V. Lindsay, is pondered by Liberal party leaders. But their choice, state Sen. Roy

Goodman, is a very liberal Republican who scarcely fits the job description. Besides, Gov. Carey has laid down the law to the Liberal Party: he wants no "fusion" can-

What the Governor wants is Deputy Mayor Zuccotti. But since he won't run if Beame does, SOS appeals are streaming in to President Carter: even if he won't pour money into New York or give Mrs. Abzug a fat federal appointment, at least lift Beame off the city's back by making him an ambassador. The prospect: about

There are, however, several aspirants for mayor who seem to understand the illness and the need for harsh medication - Rep. Edward Koch, construction magnate Richard Ravitch, lawyer Edward Costikyan.

But they lack both organizational support and personal ability to excite voters or backers. That explains the quiet dispair here in the Hobson's choice of Abe or Bella

REDWOOD CREEK, Calif. There is little here to disturb this isolated grove of the world's tallest trees but the sighing of the wind and the pop and snarl of the loggers' chain saws just over the hill.

The wind has always been here, blowing in from the rugged Northern California coast 20 miles to the west and bringing with it the damp fog that nurtures the 350-foot-high redwood giants.

The chain saws are a more recent addition. Over protests from Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus, top state every national environmental group, three big timber companies have begun logging off stands of redwoods on "the worm," land they own here within a half-mile of the narrow southern border of the 58,000-acre Redwood National Park.

The 8-mile-long, half-mile wide national park is surrounded by private redwood land, which is being cut.

The decision to begin the logging has raised a storm of controversy from here to Washington. It involves one of the world's best-known environmental symbols and could provide a clue to how the Carter administration will handle the touchy jobs-vs.-environment problem that has dogged it from the start.

On one side are the logging opponents who claim the action by the Louisiana-Pacific Corp., the Arcata Redwood Co., and the Simpson Timber Co will remove redwoods on private land that cannot be replaced for at least another century and threaten the giants in the "tall trees grove" here within the federal park, some of which are 2,000 years old.

Rep. Phillip Burton (D-Calif.), a leader of the opponents, has proposed a congressional bill to purchase 74,000 acres of redwood land around "the worm." Interior Department officials let it be known that the Carter administration will propose a $350 million purchase of redwood land which would add nearly 47,700 acres to the national park here.

On the other side are the timber companies and many who lives in this region, whose economy is almost en-tirely dependent on logging and lumber processing. They contend no permanent damage will be done to the area's forest and that enough redwoods are already protected in the national park system. Without the logging they said thousands of jobs will disappear from an area that already has an unemployment rate of 15 per cent. "You've got to strike and economic balance," said Sam Sacco, mayor of Eureka, a coastal city of 24,000 which center and whose skyline is ed by the Interior Department before dominated by plumes of white smoke the Carter administration took over

Ex-minister's death blamed on Marxists

The Manchester Guardian

LONDON - The former prime minister of North Yemen who was shot dead, with his wife and a senior embassy official, outside a London hotel Sunday may have been assassinated by Marxists who feared his return to power.

This theory was being widely discussed in British government and diplomatic circles as the Scotland Yard anti-terrorist squad searched for the young man of Middle Eastern appearance who gunned down Qadi Abdullah Ahmed Al Hajri, his wife, Fatima, and number two at the North Yemen Arab Republic embassy, Abdullah Ali Al Hammami, in a Mercedes outside the Royal Lancaster Hotel.

Mohammed Abdullah Al-Eryani, North Yemen ambassador in London, said that he believed the killing was politically motivated.

One theory is that the killers or his backers may have known that Hajri had been carrying on negotiations in London with King Khaled of Saudi Arabia, who has been convalescing here. Hajri favored a strongly pro-Saudi policy before and during his term as prime minister three years ago, and is strongly opposed to left wing Arab plans for a union between North Yemen and the Marxist-controlled Republic of South Yemen. Another possibility that the police are unlikely to rule out is that the former premier, 65, was the victim of a revenge killing by a relative of somebody he had sentenced to death or imprisonment in a stormy political career.

Hajri, who was prime minister from December 1972 to January 1974, imprisoned thousands of people during his time in office and scores of people described all subversives were excuted, some of them publicly.

Hajri and his wife, Fatima, 40, left their sixth-floor hotel suite overlooking Hyde Park Sunday morning and were escorted by the hotel doorman to the maroon Mercedes with diplomatic plates, which was waiting with North Yemen senior embassy official Hammami in the driver's seat.

They got in, with Mrs. Hajri in the back and Hammami had just switched on the car's engine when a young man, described by witnesses as of Middle Eastern appearance, walked up and opened the back door of the car.

A witness said afterwards: "I saw somebody looking as though he was talking to the people in the car, then there were several shots and the man started to run." The shots were fired from an automatic pistol, which may have been fitted with a silencer. Two of them went through the windshield of the car from the inside.

The engine of the car was still running as Hajri and his wife slumped dead in their seats. Hammami died later on his way to a hospital. The doorman, who had escorted them to the car, began to chase the assassin, but the man disappeared among the holiday crowds around the Lancaster Gate entrance of Hyde Park.

In the 1960's, Hajri had come out as a strong supporter of the Royalist side in Yemen's civil war, favoring the traditionalist Emirs and sultans against the Socialist modernists. With the collapse of the Royalist side in 1969, Hajri fled to Saudi Arabia to go into exile

Young vet' wants papers

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) - In 1942 when most American kids were playing war games in their backyards, 12-year-old Calvin Graham was playing for real at Guadacanal in the South Pacific.

And if he had it to do all over Graham said, he would do it the same way except he would be sure he got a discharge the second time.

A U.S. Navy recruiter in Corpus Christi told him to sign his mother's name and say he was 17 when he enlisted, Graham said.

It was in a South Pacific airsea battle that Graham said two of his front teeth were knocked out. And it was complications from the mouth injury that caused the 47-year-old Graham to write anothr Navy veteran, President Carter, last week for help in getting an official discharge.

Graham said he cannot now receive treatment for his World War II injuries because he does not have a discharge. But he added he thinks President Carter will help solve his problem although "I know he's got the country to take care off." In 1942 he had three brothers in the Navy. Graham, then 5-feet-6, 156 pounds, traveled to Corpus Christi WAUSAU, Wisc. - Thomas A. Mack isn't easily ruffled by big corporate decisions. As vice president of Wausau's biggest insurance company, Mack has worked for years to promote the city's interests, and has been attuned to dozens of decisions by major corproations and by government.

But Mack is concerned these days over a corporate decision that has not yet been made: Will Sears, Roebuck and Co. build a new store in downtown Wausau or will it build elsewhere?

If Sears builds in the city, Mack says, it can stabilize the downtown area and prevent other businesses from moving out. "Having Sears downtown is critical to the economic well-being of this community," he says. David Major, vice president of the Wausau Chamber of Commerce, puts it more bluntly: "Sears holds the power of life and death over our downtown. If Sears goes, downtown goes.'

John D. Austin, a public relations spokesman at Sears' Midwest regional offices in Skokie, Ill., says Sears management "has only decided that a new, modern store is needed in the Wausau trading area. Several proposals are under consideration. No decision has been made.'

Do major national chains such as Sears, Montgomery Ward and J.C. Penney owe something to cities struggling to save their downtowns?

Should decisions to relocate be based primarily on what is in the best economic interest of the corporation, or should corporations take into account a city's effort to remain economically viable?

Does big business have a purely social role to play in shaping the destinites of America's cities? These questions concern Wausau and scores of other cities across the country where officials say they need big chain retailers to make their downtown shopping districts attractive.

City and community development officials in various cities do not try to argue that business should

In too many cases, these spokesmen say, suburban shopping malls have lured both big and small retailers away, to the long-term detriment of central cities. "Show me a shopping center and I'll show you a city that has lost business," comments Ivan Silverman, an assistant to Mayor Richard G. Hatcher of Gary, Ind.

On their side, spokesmen for business argue that they must follow population trends, which have taken millions of middle-income shoppers out of cities to the suburbs.

Donald A. Deutsch, national public relations director for Sears, explains that "Sears' major community function is to perform our economic role well - by continuing to give our customers the best possible service and products at the lowest price in the location of their choice.

'It's generally true throughout retailing," Deutsch "that inner-city stores, which are generally older, don't earn as much as newer stores, which are also less expensive to operate. "Almost every city of 20,000 and up in this state is making a strong effort to attract shoppers back downtown, but with only limited success," he says.

> Bechtel says that during the period of downtown decline, "there clearly should have been some consideration of the social and community consequences of business moving from downtown, but you can't put all the blame on business. There should also have been major initiatives from governments to keep business downtown.'

Downtown decline, which Bechtel emphasizes is nationwide, is not beyond repair, he believes. "But it will take a major financial effort to reverse. I think businessmen in Madison are ready to absorb a loss to save downtown.

That's about all the city dweller pays for, too. The municipal water bill averages $6 to $8 a month per household. And that's for treatment and delivery. A somewhat equal amount is charged for treating wastes that return to water resour-

"Over the past 10 years, the average increase in water bills has been 50 per cent," says George Craft of the American Water Works Association. "That may sound like a lot, but you forget that you pay 50 cents for 1,000 gallons of water, compared with more than 50 cents for just one gallon of

"It's probably the only bargain left in this country

But that may change. If there is no public cooperation on conservation, legislation may be the answer.

The National Water Commission, empowered by Congress to study the nation's water problems, issued several recommendations after completing a four-year study

-Meter all water lines like natural gas and create concern over leakage.

-Increase rates during high use times, such as summer, to cut down on lawn-sprinkling.

-Tax irrigation water so it would be used more efficiently or freed for other uses.

-End low-cost federal loans to develop community water systems, forcing more efficient water management on the local level.

-Tax water recreation equipment, and force the water transportation industry to, maintain inland waterways and pay for future navigational projects.

Course on death popular with students at college

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A class of young University of Texas students have been spending a lot of time in cemeteries lately — preparing to die.

They are part of a popular UT course entitled "Death and Dying," which teaches students about the reality of death and ways to deal constructively with it.

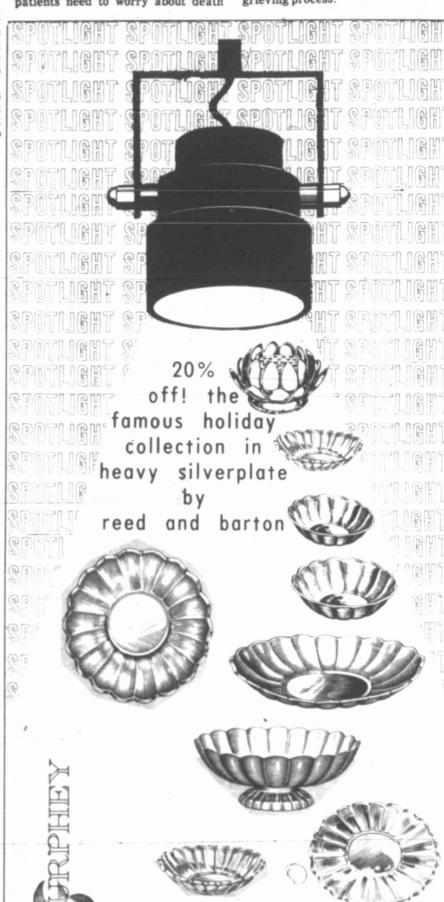

"People wonder what the heck death education could be and why we should be dealing with death education at this point in our lives,' said Asst. Prof. Larry Bugen, a psychologist who teaches the course.

"People think only terminal patients need to worry about death education, and isn't it too late for them also? Well, that's not the case,' Bugen said.

What's happening is instead of looking at things as just terminal, it's very comforting, I think, to look at life as what life we have left to live and how well we are going to go about living that period of time.

Students study the physicial and mental process of death before breaking up into small groups to discuss their own fears of death, stages of dying, ways of communicating with the dying and the bereaved, children; and death and the grieving process.

Model, university prof slated to speak here

A top professional model and university instructor will appear April 19 in Midland as guest speaker for two events.

Mrs. Elsa Rosborough of Houston will speak at 9:30 a.m. that day at St. Luke's United Methodist Church on "The Woman Within." She will speak again at 7 that night to the Lee High School senior dinner in the First Baptist Church. Her topic will be "I am Me, Uniquely."

Mrs. Rosborough, who has been titled the Southwest's leading model and lecturer, has been modeling professionally for 36 years, and has appeared in national advertisements on televiaion and in magazines such as Vogue, Harper'a Bazaar, McCall's and Ladies Home Journal.

The speaker will stress positivity in the mental and physical attitudes that develop and project a sense of wellbeing and inner and outer confidence, and a realistic non-superficial approach to acquiring identity and overcoming self-consciousness and feelings of inadequacy, according to Mrs. John Freeman, a longtime friend of Mrs. Rosborough. The visitor will be a guest in the Freeman home while in Midland.

Mrs. Rosborough, said Mrs. Freeman, will share workable philosophies toward a fuller more satisfying life and suggest patterns for attainment of goals.

The speaker has been a professor at the University of Houston for 29 years where, in the Home Economics Department, she teaches charm, personality development and fashion coordinating.

In 1947, Mrs. Rosborough was elected the first woman president of the UH student body and 24 years later, in October 1971, she was awarded the Outstanding Alumni Award, being the only woman in U of H's history to have received these two

She was given the "Great Texan" award in 1976 for her contributions in every field of endeavor and for her service to humanity.

The model was named in 1975 as First Lady of the Year by Beta Sigma Phi. In August 1976, the Fashion Group of Houston named Mrs. Rosborough a recipient of the Fashions in Living Award.

Mrs. Rosborough has modeled for designers such as Christian Dior. Nina Ricci, Bill Blass, Fabiani, Emilio Pucci, Marc Bohan, Oscar de la Renta and Halston. She also serves as fashion consultant for Saks Fifth Avenue in Houston.

Tickets for both events can be purchased at the door. Further information can be obtained by dialing

Chestnut puree used in desserts

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

DEAR CECILY: My husband is very fond of chestnuts and so I'd like to try them in a few dishes. I've noticed that my supermarket has some cans of them from France and I'm wondering whether to start with these. - INTERESTED.

DEAR INTERESTED: Those ready-to-use chestnuts are in my markets, too. They come in various forms. Some are unsweetened, some sweetened; it's important to use them accordingly Here's a rundown.

Whole cooked chestnuts in brine (marrons au naturel) may be used in stuffings for poultry and meat and in some salads and casseroles. They make a delicious partner for such creamed vegetables as brussels sprouts, onions and celery.

Then there's unsweetened chestnut puree (puree de marrons). This may be heated "as is" with butter or combined with other pureed vegetables or it may be used in a sauce or soup. It's also used in some

Now we come to the chestnut puree that is sweetened and flavored with vanilla (creme de marrons). It is lovely for a cake filling and in par-

Fourth, there are jars of chestnut pieces in syrup (marrons au sirop). During the Bicentennial Year I attended a luncheon to mark the 200 years of friendship between France and the United States. For dessert Coupe Jefferson was served - so named because Thomas Jefferson loved French food and introduced it at Monticello. If you would enjoy duplicating Coupe Jefferson, top meringue shells (homemade or bought) with vanilla ice cream and the chesnut pieces in syrup. To be very elegant, add 2 tablespoons of armagnac (the famous French brandy) to a 10-ounce jar of the marrons au sirop before using. Merveilleux! - C.B.

laugh when the world will let them have it.

Those who recall a long article by Mrs. Tennenbaum in Newsday in April of 1970, called "Diary of a Radical Housewife," might have a good notion of newspaper article; it was a piece of literature. In both its style and spirit it evoked the memory of Anne Frank, the Jewish girl who hid with her family in a garret in Amsterdam until they were found by the Nazis, and later died in a concentration camp

As a friend of Mrs. Tennenbaum's said, that article was probably the forerunner of her novel, "Rachel, the Rabbi's Wife." The novel will be published by William Morrow early next year.

It already has earned her a $100,000 advance - an unheard-of amount for a book by a first novelist. Later there will be the paperback sale, which these days can be worth more than the hardcover advance. Colleen McCulloch's "The Thorn Birds," for example, was recently sold for $1.9 million.

In the article Mrs. Tennenbaum described a peace vigil that she had kept in Huntington Village on Long Island in 1969, and how people on their way to church shouted obscenities at her and those with her. "Old and young, we stood our ground," she wrote. "The best thing to do is just to find a piece of sky or the branch of a tree to look at, and try to think to yourself that the pious churchgoing folk know not what they

And about a demonstration in New York City: "The water stood in the streets in filthy puddles and my sneakers grew black from the water ... There were lots and lots of cops and there was a group of neo-Nazis at 42nd Street who carried a flag with a symbol like lightning where the swastika is supposed to be, and they screamed about the Jews . Mrs. Tennenbaum is the wife of Rabbi Lloyd Tennenbaum of Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island. She would probably shrink at comparisons between her and Anne Frank. But she is just as profound in her fear of oppression, and the similarity extends even to the fact that her family fled Nazi Germany in

Now in her late 40s and the mother of three grown children, she has done something that she has always wanted to do: she has written a book. And the fact that it is almost an assured success even before it is published has now bowled her over The $100,000 is fine, she said in a recent interview.

but "if someone had said, 'Here's $500 and we'll give you another $500 when you get the book done,' that would have been okay.

Her novel draws on her experiences as a rabbi's wife on Long Island, she agreed. But she added that the character of Rachel Sunshine is not really she. It is also not strictly a Jewish book, she said, although she is prepared to have most people regard it as such; and it is as much about suburban life as it is about being a rabbi's wife.

In other words, it is a serious novel with humorous insights that should have wide appeal. And apparently it is of such quality that six publishers wanted to buy it, hence the unusual amount advanced by Morrow.

Robin wreaks havoc

EDMOND, Okla. (AP) A robin bent on using Christmas tree tinsel in her nest has sent Oklahoma Gas & Electric Company crews scouring a neighborhood for discarded tinsel.

"Anyone who has tried to get Christmas tree icicles out of a shag rug knows what that must have been like," said utility spokesman Dave Raybern.

Raybern said the trouble started last Friday when tinsel in the nest touched part of a substation switching system, triggering a circuit breaker that cut power to part of Edmond.

Workmen dismissed the incident as a freak occurrence.

But on Tuesday the same thing happened again, so OG&E crews began scouring the area, policing up the tinsel." Raybern said.

In addition, the crews stopped up all likely nooks and crannies the Leonard placed third in bird might get in - all spelling and Pat Bizzell planned to come back stop up that one.

> The robin beat them. though, and once again the power went out.

Raybern said all the nooks have been covered now and the area once again has been searched for Christmas tinsel.

They're waiting for the robin's next move

Pentagon says some tank ammunition defective

By ERNEST VOLKMAN Newsday

NEW YORK - The Army has encountered serious problems with some types of its 105-mm tank ammunition, Pentagon sources say. Shells are said to be looping, hooking and missing easy targets. Other ammunition is exploding just after leav-ing the gun. The cause of this aspect of the problem, it is believed, may lie in the gun tubes themselves.

Army experts, the sources say, are now working on an intensive program to correct the overall problem, although they are not sure how much of its ammunition stock is affected nor have they been able to pinpoint the cause of the dysfunction.

Moreover, several thousand rounds of U.S.-made 105-mm tank ammuntion has been shipped overseas, much of it to Israel, and it is unknown how many of those rounds are defective.

According to the sources, the problem first surfaced about two years ago when the Army began to receive reports that some 105-mm ammunition was displaying "erratic flight qualities." Simply put, that meant rounds were missing targets by wide margins, particularly those at pointblank range.

The Army investigation into the ammunition problem, sources say, was hampered by several obstacles. For one thing, modern tank shells are highly sophisticated, with many different components, any one of which could create difficulties. Second, not all the shells are defective. Third, the shells are manufactured by various arsenals, making it difficult to pin down a possible manufacturing error.

Gradually, sources say, the Army has narrowed down the problem to three types of tank shells - HEAT (high explosive antitank), HEP (high explosive plastic) and APDS (armor piercing discarding sabot, or hard core shells.) The types of shells, designed to perform specific mis-sions, are crucial to U.S. armor forces and their plans to fight Soviet armored forces.

Usually, the sources said, the shells are accurate up to a range of about 3,000 yards. However, they added, Army tests discovered that shells fired from ammunition lots selected at random hit only about half the targets at ranges of 1,000 yards. Modern tank gunners, equipped with laser rangefinders, consider 1,000-yard ranges as "shooting fish in a barrel," and had been obtaining near-100 per cent hits at that range.

During the 1973 Mideast war, Israeli tank gunners, using American HEAT rounds, hit Russian-made T-62 Syrian tanks at ranges of around 3,000 yards with devastating results.

However, after the war, the U.S. shipped large amounts of 105-mm ammunition to Israel to replace that country's depleted stocks. It is unknown how many of those rounds might be defective, but one Israeli military source said the Israelis have juries from the malfunction.

been told of the problem and are aiding the U.S. in its investigation.

Although Army investigators even't sure, sources say, the leading theory regarding the errant ammunition centers on the M-60 tank's standard 105-mm gun.

The tubes of those guns wear out and must be replaced after a certain number of rounds are fired, but the sophisticated HEAT, APDS and HEP rounds generate much more heat when fired than other types of shells, so the tubes may be wearing out faster than anticipated. That might account for one aspect of the ammunition problem — rounds exploding prematurely just after leaving the gun. There have been no reported in-

According to the sources, the Army hopes to solve the problem by the end of this year. Basically, the Army is checking every shell in its inventory, and at the same time is developing new procedures to replace tank gun APDS shells have a hard core (sabot), made of tungstencarbide, inside a steel jacket. The core separates from the shell on impact, and concentrates its energy on a small area, creating tremendous force against a heavily armored target. HEP rounds detonate a plastic explosive on impact. HEAT rounds have a copperlined cone that, when detonated, produces a jet of copper that can pierce any known armor.

Carter administration considers oil swap

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Carter administration regards exchanging surplus oil from the Alaska pipeline for oil purchased by Japan in the Middle East as a "serious option," says Federal Energy Administrator John F. O'Leary

The oil purchased by Japan would be shipped from the Middle East to ports on the U.S. gulf and east coasts, which are short of oil but which have no convenient way of getting the Alaska production.

O'Leary said in a recent interview that by early next year there could be a surplus of Alaskan oil of up to 600,000 barrels a day in excess of West

Dealing with surplus Alaskan oil is one of the prickly, if not explosive, political decisions facing Carter this year, Frank Zarb, who headed FEA under former President Ford, said last November the Ford administration would not allow oil companies to ship surplus Alaskan crude oil to Japan.

O'Leary said in the interview that shipping oil to Japan "would be the most felicitous of all worlds for the companies.

Standard Oil of California, which along with Texaco owns Calitex -Japan's largest petroleum marketing company - favors swapping oil to Japan.

If Carter recommends swapping oil with Japan, he could face stiff congressional opposition and the legacy of one of the bitterest congressional battles of the Nixon

Rep. Morris Udall (D-Ariz.). chairman of the House Interior Committee, said he has reservations about allowing a swap. "The clear intent of the Congress when it passed the trans-Alaskan pipeline legislation was for domestic distribution of Alaskan oil," Udall said. Rep. John Dingell (D-Mich.) says he is "absolutely opposed" to swapping Alaskan oil, and has scheduled commerce subcommittee hearings April 20 on the questions. Congress can override Carter, should he approve a swap with Japan, by passing a concurrent resolution within 60 days.

O'Leary said Carter will make a decision when he sets the price of Alaskan oil on April 15, or when he delivers his energy policy message April 20.

The other options, which O'Leary says are "still under consideration"

-Preventing production from exceeding West Coast demand. This option is opposed by the pipeline consortium members and the State of Alaska, both of which would lose potential income because of decreased flows through the $7.7

billion, 800-mile pipeline. -Shipping Alaskan oil to the Gulf Coast through the Panama Canal adding $2.25 to an estimated $4 to $5 per barrel pipeline tariff - or shipping oil by tanker to Long Beach, Calif. and transporting it in a proposed pipeline from Long Beach to Texas, where it could be piped to the Midwest.

-Shipping oil to Kitimat, on Canada's western coast, pumping it into a proposed pipeline to Edmonston, Alberta, then transferring the oil to existing pipelines carrying the oil to the northern-tier, midwestern states.

Because the Canadians have drastically cut exports of oil to the Mid-western states in recent years, concern has grown in the Midwest over possible crude shortages. This possibility, and the fact that there will be a surplus of 500,000 to 600,000 barrels a day of Alaskan oil on the West Coast, are at the heart of the pipeline debate which raged during

Environmentalists favored the Canadian route, arguing that it would cause less damage than the Alaskan line. Some Midwestern senators and representatives also argued in favor of a Canadian route as in their regional interest.

Nixon's interior secretary, Rogers C.B. Morton, justified his May 1972 decision granting a right-of-way for the transalaska pipeline, saying that there was a greater need for Alaskan oil on the West Coast than in the Midwest. Morton also cited national security and other economic factors justifying his decisions.

Environmentalists blocked Morton's decision in the courts, alleging that Interior had not analyzed the environmental impact of the Alaskan route adequately.

Coffee set for Tower

U.S. Sen. John Tower will make Midland one of his stops during an Easter holidays recess from Washington.

He will be here Tuesday to answer questions concerning national energy matters and other legislation pending before the Congress.

While in Midland. Tower will be the guest of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association. A coffee will be held for him at 10 a. m. in the Midland Hilton Ballroom.

The coffee is open to the public as well as to major and independent oil operators, Charles D. Fraser, president of PBPA, said. "No formal speech is planned," Fraser said Fraser will serve as master of ceremonies for the Midland event. Tower will meet with Odessa business leaders at 7 p. m. today in the Inn of the Golden West in Odessa.

Tower's tour of the West Texas area includes earlier appearances in Brownwood, San Angelo and Monahans today. He will conclude his holiday trip with a speech at noon Tuesday before the Sweetwater Lions

The key proposal is a five per cent tax on crude oil purchased by refineries for distillation into gasoline, lubricants and other Gov. Dolph Briscoe has yet to say committee chairman, is adamantly opposed to the tax, claiming it would halt refinery expansion in Texas and maybe run some existing refineries to other states.

In testimony prepared for today's hearing, Rep. Joe Allen, D-Baytown, took a similar stance. His hometown also is the home of a large Exxon refinery, which recently enlarged its capacity.

Allen said that more than 70 per cent of the crude to be handled by the Baytown refinery will be from the Middle East.

"It is just as easy for a tanker to go to Baton Rouge, La., as it is to go to Baytown, Tex. It would be naive to say that our Texas refineries will simply pack up and leave because they cannot and will not. But it is not the least bit unlikely, should HB1200 pass, that the Baytown expansion is the last we will ever see in Texas,' Allen said.

The Texas Chemical Council issued a statement late last week predicting that if the tax is added to the price of oil and gasoline, other states would retaliate with similar taxes on their

"Such a round of 'me-too' taxes would surely generate ill will among the states," the council said.

It also said such a tax would damage the state's image as a good place to locate a new industrial plant by generating fears that selectve taxation would spread to other firms.

Perry Gas to expand

ODESSA - Perry Gas Processors, Inc., announced it will expand its facilities at Odessa and is in the process of erecting a major gas treating facility in LaSalle County.

Charles R. Perry, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the corporation, said the Odessa expansion will include the addition of 20,000 square feet of manufacturing area and certain heavy equipment for steel fabrication.

In addition, Perry said, the company is constructiong a stree relieving oven for the Odessa plant.

The gas treating facility in LaSalle County will be utilized to treat sour Edwards formation gas for a major oil company in the area. The new facility, which will begin operation in May, will represent more than one million dollars in investment and will have a capacity in excess of 20.000,000 cubic feet of gas per day. The LaSalle plant will be the fifth erected by and operated by Perry Gas in the last two years in the South Texas area. Simultaneously with the construction of this plant, the company announced the opening of a district office in Pearsall and the transfer of district superintendent. Alexander has been with the company five years and previously was located at Jal, N. M., and Odessa. Perry Gas also has plants in Bee Dimmit and Jim Hogg counties, all under Alexander's jurisdiction.

David Alexander to that city as

Antagonists square off on energy issue

WASHINGTON - Although President Carter won't outline his national energy program for two more weeks, the antagonists already are squaring off as Congress moves toward major reforms in the way the nation looks for an develops new offshore oil fields.

Key congressmen and ad-ministration officials agree that this year, after three false starts in five years, Congress will enact a fundamental change in the management of oil and natural gas resources in the outer continental shelf. These reforms would include authority for federal exploration of new oil fields, greater consultation with states as new areas are developed, various methods of bidding in an effort to stimulate competition and increase revenues, separate leasing procedures for exploration and development of new fields, and a fund to compensate for oil spills.

The oil industry has successfully blocked similar laws in the past two congressional sessions. But in 1977, the oilmen have lost a major ally the White House. "It looks like the same fight," said one key Senate aide who has guided similar legislation

Stocks still making a wide climb

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced broadly today, extending the technical rally it began late last week.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 ndustrial stocks was up 3.27 at 922.15, after a 4.15 rise on Thursday before the threeday Easter weekend. Gainers outnumbered losers by more than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. The upturn began Thursday in the face of the government's report that the wholesale price index climbed at a

Analysts said the market's resistance to that adverse inflation news appeared to prompt some additional buying today.

Bally Manufacturing, the most active NYSE issue, rose % to 20, rebounding from a loss of more than 9 points last week. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks showed a .19 gain at 53.65. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .14 at 100.57. Volume on the Big Board came to .94 million shares over the first two hours against 7.47 million in the comparable period on Thursday.

Polaroid, which said it planned a new camera model using SX-70 film with a suggested list price of about $40, rose % to 32% in active trading.

Training course planned

How people can express themselves more effectively and confidently is one of the goals of an assertiveness training course to be offered May 3 through 24 by the Permian Basin

The class will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays in the center classroom in the basement of the Metro Building. Marion Kimberly will teach the course which will include benefits of assertiveness, distinguising assertive from aggressive or passive behavior. how to reduce anxiety about acting assertively and skills and techniques in acting assertively. Fee is $50.

Interested persons may register by contacting the center.

IRS rules simplify shopping for IRA

By BARBARA SHEA Newsday

There actually are not as many types of Individual Retirement Accounts as there are individuals; it just seems that way.

Most of the dozen banks, insurance companies and brokers recently surveyed at random offered plans that differed in a large way - in the amount of retirement cash that the same investment is likely to bring in.

However, shopping for your own pension plan has been simplified somewhat this year by new Internal Revenue Service disclosure regulations. One of the most important requires that you be given a projection of the growth of a typical account at specified intervals and assuming equal annual contributions.

For example, a bank might offer IRAs in renewable seven-year time certificates paying 7 3-4 per cent per year compounded daily. The bank must show projected growth at the end of each of the first five years of the account and then at ages 60, 6 5 and 70. You can ask that this be outlined for whatever sum you plan to deposit, so you can compare the yield from other investments.

Even at that, however, there are few guarantees regarding the projections. Bank interest rates may drop over the years. And if you invest in an approved IRA stock plan, there is even less security if you want to count on a certain retirement nest egg 20 or 30 years in the future.

The basic rules and regulations governing Individual Retirement Accounts are fairly simple. They were authorized in January 1975, as an alternative for persons not covered by an employer pension plan - or who choose not to participate in a company plan. (For self-employed eprsons, there are similar accounts, known as Keogh plans.) If that means you, the IRS allows you to put away. on a tax-deferred basis, up to an annual total of $1,500 or 15 per cent of your wages, whichever is less.

If both husband and wife work, they can each set that much aside every year. (As of January, the IRS allows a couple to put a total of $1,750 into separate retirement accounts if only one spouse works; however, there must be equal amounts in each spouse's name or the couple can only claim as a deduction a sum that is twice the smaller amount.)

You can switch from one IRA to another once every three years, as long as you reinvest everything that was in the first account within 60 days. Unless you become permanently disabled before retirement age, if you pull out the money and don't put it into another pension plan, you will have to pay a 10 per cent penalty on the amount withdrawn. You also will have to pay income tax on money in the year it is withdrawn. Taxes - or the lack of them - are what Individual Retirement Accounts are all about. IRAs are not taxable until you start drawing out the money, which can be done as early as age 59 1-2 and which you must start doing by age 70 1-2. You can withdraw it in a lump sum or in installments over a specified period. Assuming that when you retire you will be in a lower bracket, the taxes probably would be much lower than what you would pay on the same amount placed in a regular savings account or some other investment

Savings banks can currently offer interest as high as 7 3-4 per cent. But not all offer that amount. Some compound interest daily, which yields more than accounts that offer the same percentage compounded quarterly. Some banks, according to industry spokesmen, start accounts at passbook rates and then give a higher rate once the account has stayed the term of a designated savings certificate. Others offer a higher rate on IRAs than on nonretirement accounts.

The interest differential will be apparent when you compare the ultimate projected yield. However, what you don't have to see in black and white are some of the fine points that differ not only from a savings bank to commercial bank to investment firm, but from savings bank to savings bank and so on.

Some banks require an initial deposit of $25, $100 or $500, and then accept whatever allotments you can afford from year to year, no matter what kind of retirement account is opened; some require minimum yearly deposits as well. Some require the minimum only on term accounts; others waive all minimums that would otherwise be in force on special accounts

At this time, banks don't charge a fee for handling retirement accounts. but most have a clause in their IRA contracts that allows them to do so if more paperwork becomes required.

Some commercial banks, which see themselves at a competitive disadvantage because the law allows savings institutions to offer 1-4 per cent higher interest, are staying out of the IRA picture altogether. Others only accept already started IRAs of substantial amounts - money from a company pension plan, for example, that a person wants to re-invest when he or she takes a new job. In this case, the bank's trust department usually sets up an investment portfolio and charges a fee just as broker would.

Other than savings accounts and investment portfolios, which represent more than 75 per cent of the $2 billion in IRA money nationwide, there are two other ways in which to set aside your pension money. -If you are interested in getting a moderate, safe yield on your investment, but don't consider bank interest rates stable enough, you could invest in special IRA government bonds, which come in $50, $100 and $500 denominations. The current rate of interest (6 per cent, compounded seminannually) is less than can be obtained at most banks now, however, which might account for the fact that government bonds represent only about 1 per cent of total IRA participation, according to a Treasury Department official.

-If you are willing to settle for a smaller return, but want an ironclad guarantee of a small percentage of interest for the entire term, you can invest in several types of insurance. fees and administrative practices differ and, since the fees usually are stiffer in the early years of the policy, it won't pay to keep an annuity for only a half dozen years. For the additional cost, however, you are assured a monthly payment that you cannot outlive. There also are ways to increase monthly retirement income by agreeing, for example, that your estate will forfeit the undistributed balance if you die. You can, of course, wait to transfer an IRA from a high-yield savings account to an insurance annunity when you reach age 70 1-2, but before you count on doing that, find out what the eligibility requirements will be at that age as oppsed to when you are in your prime. If the mortality rate goes up, the cost of annuities could also.

According to former insurance agent Joe A. Mintz, who has become something of the Ralph Nader of IRAs, there is more value available now from the life insurance industry than there was two years ago when Individual Retirement Accounts emerged. He has outlined some of the facts to consider in comparing insurance company retirement plans in a booklet published by Consumer News. Inc., 813 National Press Building Washington, D.C. 20045. The booklet entitled "A Shopper's Guide to Individual Retirement Accounts," is available from that address for $1.25.

A full range of the latest cancer treatment is available to Midland cancer patients through the four major cancer centers in Texas, M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston, the Wadley Institutes of Molecular Medicine and the Charles A. Sammons Cancer Center, both in Dallas, and the Scott and White Memorial Hospital in Temple.

At the Wadley Institutes, a cancer and research hospital was established in 1969 "to bring together treatment and research," a hospital spokesman said.

Medical research teams work together within the Wadley cancer center to provide a wide range of treatments, including surgery, radiotherapy.

Last of series

chemotherapy, immunotherapy and other supportive measures, the spokesman said.

Among the treatment procedures which have come about through research at the cancer center are the

- Introduction of a treatment program involving a combination of drugs which the center doctors said have resulted in greatly improved remission rates for the type of leukemia most frequently seen in

- Introduction in clinical testing of a family of platinum compounds which "have shown activity against" cancers of the pancreas, testicles, uterus and squamous cells and against leukemia;

 Use of the linear accelator, a more efficient and precise means of delivering radiotherapy; - Application of the laser knife to minimize bleeding and cancer spreading in cancer surgery; - Continued research in the further application of

- Introduction of a white cell donation technique, "filtration leukropheresis," to provide large numbers of white cells to patients undergoing chemotherapy or other therapy which limit the patient's ability to produce his own infection-fighting white cells:

- Establishment of an immunotherapy department to test and research methods of improving patient defenses against cancer;

 Introduced a new blood culture method to provide earlier treatment of infection during cancer therapy;

- And used computers to assist in treatment procedures

In addition to the research programs, Wadley's cancer center includes a 110-bed hospital and clinic, a radiotherapy center, research laboratories and a blood center.

A total of 15 new patients from the Midland area were admitted in 1976 to the center and had 30 to 40 visits each, a spokesman said. A total of the number of patients from the area who are repeats from previous years was not available.

At the Scott and White Memorial Hospital in Temple "protocol therapy" is used for cancer patients A designated outline of treatment is devised for different disease categories, a spokesman said. Radio therapy is used alone or in conjunction with chemotherapy, the spokesman said. In chemotherapy at Scott and White many com-mercially available drugs are used. When patients are tested to see which combination of drugs works best, the drugs are supplied through the National Cancer Institute, which monitors reports on the drugs' toxicity, the spokesman said.

Surgery also is used for cancer treatment at Scott and White, he said. The hospital is a member of the Southwest Oncology Group, part of the M. D. Anderson statistical and computer network.

The Charles A. Sammons Cancer Center opened in January as part of the Baylor University Medical Center to provide a comprehensive diagnostic and treatment outpatient facility.

Like the Wadley Institutes, Sammons uses a team or "multidisciplinary" concept of cancer care, in which varied medical specialists pool their knowledge to plan the best possible course of treatment for each patient, a spokesman said.

The Sammons radiation department has an 18million-volt linear accelerator which emits a 10million-volt x-ray beam, as well as five electron energy beams, which allow selection of depth of penetration of the radiation beam.

The electron beam mode can allow a therapist to treat deep-seated abdominal or pelvic cancer or to treat skin cancer on the scalp without involving the brain, a Sammons spokesman said. Also available in the Sammons radiation department are a four-million-volt linear accelerator, a cobalt unit, a cesium unit and 250-kilovolt and 150kilovolt units, the spokesm an said. The Sammons center also uses surgery and chemotherapy in addition to radiotherapy in combating cancer. Although the center is an outpatient facility, it adjoins the first and third levels of Carr P. Collins

Hospital at Baylor by means of walkways. The Sammons center was designed to meet these objectives, a spokesman said:

- To organize, consolidate and coordinate the facilities, personnel and scientific resources at Baylor into a cancer complex;

- To participate in community and regional programs of cancer detection, education, research and patient care;

To foster training of professional personnel, including physicians, residents and students, who want to gain expertise in cancer diagnosis and treatment:

- To conduct clinical research by starting new investigative projects and programs; And to provide consultation and evaluation for patients who are referred to the center.

Wayward wampum invites queries

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Why are two North American Indian wampum belts hanging in France's MAUTOMOBILES
Chartres Cathedral? That kind of question will be STRUCKS AND TRACTORS asked here by tens of thousands of visitors at 24-WHEEL DR. VEHICLES 'Sacred Circles: 2000 Years of North American In- SMOTORCYCLES dian Art" at the Nelson Gallery of Art-Atkins & BOATS AND MOTORS Museum of Fine Arts this year.

The largest assembly of North American Indian WAUTO PARTS-ACCESSORIES are ever put on public view, the 850-object exhibition is drawn from 90 museums and private collections in six countries. Kansas City will be its only exhibition a HOUSEHOLD GOODS site in the Americas.

In 1678, the Huron Indians at Lorette, Quebec presented a 5-foot-long, shell-and-procupine quill belt #CAMERAS AND SUPPLIES A to French nuns who sent it to the Chartres Cathedral a good things to EAT as an Indian offering to the Wirgin Mary. In 1699, the AFROZEN FOOD LOCKERS Abenaki Indians in the St. Lawrence valley gave 50 OFFICE SUPPLIES
Jesuit missionaries a 4-foot-long purple shell belt 51 STORE, SHOP, CAFE EQUIP which also was carried to Chartres as a "votive" to MENT the Virgin.

son felt his throat tightening up.

This was not, however, the breathquickening, muscle deadening sesation that is commonly referred to as "choking."

This was simply the wave of emotion that swept Watson after winning the Masters golf tournament Sunday in a shoot-the-lights-out showdown with Jack Nicklaus.

WATSON FIRED a five-under-par 67 for a 276 total that held off Nicklaus and six other players who all moved within two shots of the lead at some time during the decisive round.

Nicklaus, starting three shots back. closed with a 66 - best round of the tournament - for 278. He appeared on the verge of muscling the title away from the others, but a bogey on No. 18 while Watson snaked in a 20- foot birdie putt on 17 settled that.

"I hadn't planned on somebody making a birdie," a dejected Nicklaus

"I felt like it was one of those days where no matter how much you did right, somebody else was doing better. The only thing was, he started

OTHERS WHO challenged but fell back were Rik Massengale, 70-280; Tom Kite, 67-280; Hale Irwin, 68-282; Ben Crenshaw, 76-285; Jim Colbert, 74-286, and Rod Funseth, 73-286.

It is significant that Watson's victory came in the world's most prestigious golf tournament and in a duel with a man considered the world's finest golfer.

Fairly or not, Watson had been labeled a choker. The label doesn't fit anymore. He proved himself under the most stifling pressure that professional golf has to offer.

First, he had to survive a bad drive and poor second shot on the first hole to sink a testing five-foot putt for par. Then he had to keep pace with his playing partner, Massengale, with a 32 on the front side that included four birdies. Finally, after he carded his only bogey on No. 14 and fell into a tie with Nicklaus, he had to go one-on-one with the five-time Masters winner down the stretch. He came out on top. "I FEEL euphoric, very up," the 27year-old told reporters afterward, the emotion still showing on his freckled

The question of his "choking" came up quickly, as it always has lately. He lost fourth-round leads in the last two tournaments he's played in this year, and he's given away two U.S. Opens and a couple of other events during his six years on the tour. Those disasters had overshadowed his victory in the 1975 British Open and his five U.S. titles.

This time, instead of launching into his usual reply about "having a swing you believe in," he simply smiled at the reporters and asked if anybody still thought an answer was required.

The normally placid young man with the Tom Sawyer grin did admit to losing his cool once on the course. Nicklaus, playing a hole ahead, rolled in a birdie putt on No. 13 and waved a thank-you to the cheering gallery. Watson, standing in the 12th fairway, interpreted it as a "come and get me"

HE EVEN called Nicklaus on it when Jack came up to congratulate him on the 18th green. When Nicklaus explained the wave, a contrite Watson quickly apologized.

Watson said the incident didn't bother him on the course, but having Nicklaus in front of him made him realize he "couldn't par in from 13 and win - I knew I had to make bir-

He did, on the 17th. He lofted a nineiron within 20 feet of the pin on the 400yard hole, then curled in a 20-foot downhill putt that broke sharply from right to left.

Nicklaus, meanwhile, was in the 18th fairway. He was almost finished with a near-flawless round, having collected seven birdies, and was in good shape for the final hole. The birdie by Watson shook him.

"I HEARD Tom make his birdie and it changed my strategy," he said.

'My mind wasn't ready for that. "I had a thin lie and was going to hit a six-iron, get it past the hole to give myself a reasonable putt for a birdie but avoid the bunker (in front).

"After his birdie, I tried to 'soft' in a six-iron but I hit it fat. It went in the bunker. I had to knock it out and made a good putt (12 feet), but it didn't go

It was the end of a gallant rally by Nicklaus, winner of 16 major tournaments. He finished second here for the third time, collecting $30,000.

Winning isn't a disaster, he observed cynically, "unless it's all you're shooting for and when you don't have anything else to do for the afternoon. Watson got $40,000, pushing his tour-leading prize money total for the year to $175,185.

The victory didn't come easily on a day when, once again, the sunny weather was perfect and the rolling 7,030-yard Augusta National golf course was susceptible to good

10 and 11 to fall out of the chase.

"That killed my run at it," said Massengale, who had started the day a stroke behind front running Watson and Crenshaw. "With those two bogeys, I didn't have a chance to choke at the end.

Crenshaw wasn't much of a factor after the first hole. He bogeyed the first two, then added a bogey on No. 11 and double-bogey on 12.

"I just didn't have anything going at all for me," he said. "I just hit crazy golf shots. This is a bitter disappointment for me.

Kite got nine under par at one point but bogeyed No. 16 and fell back.

My adrenalin was pumping a little too fast and I hooked it there," he said of the 190-yard par-three. He missed a six-foot putt for par.

IRWIN NOTCHED four birdies for a fine 68 but started off too far back, at two under. Colbert, starting at four under, improved that by one stroke early in the round but collected three straight bogies on the back nine

Midland Cubs arrive for Texas League opener

today at Terminal for their Texas League opener against San Antonio in Cubs Stadium Tuesday night.

Manager Jim Saul has his young club scheduled for a 6:30 p.m. workout at Cubs Stadium and Tuesday the team will meet the fans in a gathering at the Galleria in the First National Bank.

The Texas League, baseball's oldest minor league, has been in business, with an interruption for a war now and then, since 1888. And when the AA circuit opens league play Tuesday, there, iwll be a few changes from last year.

IN AN effort to keep fan interest high, the league will operate in halves in the East and West divisions. The first half will end June 25 after 65 games. The winners of each half will clash for the divisional title and the East and West champions will then tangle in a best of five playoff.

The Designated Hitter experiment, in effect since 1974, will be discarded when National League farm clubs play one another and since there are six NL teams, that will be most of the

In the East, it will be Tulsa, Shreveport (Pittsburgh Pirates), Jackson (New York Mets) and Arkansas (St. Louis Cardinals).

In addition to Saul, who replaces Denny Sommers, now with the New York Mets, new skippers will be Buzzy Keller at Arkansas, Dave Campbell at Amarillo, Bob Rogers at El Paso, Bob Wellman at Jackson and Don "Ducky" LeJohn at San Antonio.

Returning are Marty Martinez, Tulsa, and John Lipon, Shreveport. Four of last year's skippers earned promotions to the majors as coaches and Norm Sherry, manager at El Paso two years ago, is pilot of the California Angels.

Longhorn linksters fall to Masters' pressure

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) - Tom Kite made a gallant charge, one that fell short and left him talking about the 'awesome pressure' of the Masters golf tournament

Rik Massengale stayed in the chase until he bogeyed Nos. 10 and 11, which he said didn't give him "a chance to choke at the end.

And Ben Crenshaw, one of the game's most promising young players, simply collapsed, calling it

'a bitter disappointment.' The trio of former University of Texas golf stars all had their chances

Sunday in the 41st Masters. But they failed 67 and thought about his chances of victory when he drilled in a birdie putt on the 15th green. That all vanished? however, when he bogeyed the next Crenshaw had started the final round in a deadlock with eventual champion Tom Watson, but never got

Longest hockey game Kite, facing the toughest task, carved out a brilliant five-under-par leaves chicken cold

CINCINNATI (AP) — Indianapolis Racers Coach Jacques Demers was wolfishly attacking a 2 a.m. breakfast of box lunch chicken when a cry came from the back of the bus.

"Hey coach, how come the chicken's cold?" asked goaltender Paul Hoganson.

"You figure it out, Hogie," hollered back Demers.

The Racers, inspired by Hoganson's brilliant goaltending, had just defeated the Cincinnati Stingers 4-3 in the longest pro hockey game in 41 years, a triple overtimer that required 48 extra minutes.

'Hogie was just sensational," said Demers, whose Racers overcame the loss of four injured regulars.

The game-winner came on a shot Gene Peacosh called "too good to be true," ending the Easter morning marathon that took 5 hours, 111 shots, and some acrobatic saves.

"It was a picture hockey game," Demers said of the longest game in World Hockey Association history

Peacosh ended it after 48:40 of overtime by taking a perfect carom from Mark Lomenda's missed slapshot and lifting it past Cincinnati goalie Norm LaPointe

"I just tried not to fumble it at that point. I knew it was over if I didn't get nervous," said Peacosh, whose goal gave the injury riddled Racers a 1-0 lead in the WHA semifinal playoffs. The best-of seven series continues Tuesday night in Cincinnati.

"I didn't think it was ever going to end. You don't expect to see a carom like that." said Peacosh, a left winger who scored 22 regular-season goals. "To tell the truth, I thought the puck was over the blue line. Then I saw Mark shoot, so I turned back to the

The loss left the favored Stingers winless in 13 overtime games this season. The Racers lost only two of 17.

"The pressure was on them," said the Racers' Pat Stapleton. "We could afford a mistake and they couldn't. It was a matter of sitting and hoping for the break."

The gruelling contest was full of ironies.

-Eight members of the Racersplus Demers-were involved in the previous longest WHA game. That game, played April 10, 1974, lasted 17 minutes and 45 seconds of overtime before Ralph Backstrom scored, giving New England a 2-1 victory over the now-defunct Chicago Cougars.

-Hoganson, who rejected 56 shots, was obtained from Cincinnati in a trade last month. It was only his 13th appearance of the season. "We really checked them, just frustrated them,

-Losing goalie Norm LaPointe, a rookie, was tossed into the breach at the last minute, after Jacques Caron suffered a pregame injury. -No penalties were called during the last 45 minutes of overtime after 58 minutes of infractions was assessed in the first four periods.

American women seek recovery in swimming

CANTON, Ohio (AP) - American women, soundly beaten in the 1976 Olympics, may be on the road to recovery with some training secrets borrowed from their conquerors, East "The coaches in this country are doing a better job now. They changed their training methods. I'm optimistic for Moscow in 1980," said Jim "Doc" Counsilman, Indiana University's coaching legend, after the AAU indoor meet Saturday night. The East Germans won 11 of the 13 women's events at Montreal last year. The United States managed just one gold medal, but American women scorned the idea of lifting weights, one of the Europeans' secrets. Jennifer Hooker, one of the stars of the AAU meet, offered a clue when she said, "I lift weights about three

Indians flood Bosox

By The Associated Press

"Everything they swung at was a base hit," said Boston's Carl Yastrzemski after the Cleveland Indians erupted for a 13-run eighth

"I've been involved in some wild ones in this ballpark, but this was the wildest," Cleveland Manager Frank Robinson said Sunday.

Going into the eighth, the teams were tied 3-3. But Cleveland sent 17 batters to the plate in the inning en route to a 19-9 victory.

In other American League games Sunday, Kansas City blanked Detroit 5-0, Toronto nipped Chicago 3-1, Texas edged Baltimore 3-2, Milwaukee squeezed by New York 2-1, California clobbered Seattle 12-5, and Minnesota and Oakland split a doubleheader, the A's taking the opener 9-6 and Minnesota the nightcap 7-1.

'Sure it was a big inning, but one thing pleased me more than anything Robinson said. "After the Red Sox tied the score in the seventh, the guys could have dropped their heads. Instead they came fighting back. That shows courage and class.

danager looked at it philosophically.

"What can you do about it except laugh," he said. "There's nothing you can do about it. I just hope we don't play like that for another two or three years. Cleveland scored its 13 runs on 10 hits, three walks and an error, triggered by Rick Manning's triple. Then the Red Sox bounced back with six runs in their half of the eighth, setting a modern major league record of 19 runs by two clubs in an inning? The old mark was 17 scored by the Red Sox themselves against Detroit in

"I wasn't worried too much when they came back in their half," Robinson said. "I figured that as long as they kept hitting the ball we were going to get someone out sooner or

Rookie Jerry Garvin and reliever Pete Vuckovich combined to hold Chicago to just six hits while Dave McKay drove in two runs to spark Toronto's win over the White Sox.

The Blue Jays' second selection in their expansion draft, Garvin gave up five hits over eight innings in his major league debut. Steve Stone went the distance for Chicago, giving up five hits while walking three and striking out five.

Brewers 2, Yankees 1

Sixto Lezcano slammed two home runs to spoil Don Gullett's American League debut and lift Milwaukee past the New York Yankees. Lezcano tied the game in the fourth inning with a homer to left, then broke the tie in the ninth with a blast to right center.

The Yankees' lone run came in the second when Carlos May walked with two outs and scored on Willie Randolph's hit to right field which took a bad hop past Lezcano for a triple.

Rangers 3, Orioles 2

Texas scored two runs in the first inning, then relief pitcher Paul Lindblad squelched a seventh-inning Baltimore rally to preserve the Rangers victory and complete a three-game series sweep.

Bert Campaneris led off the game with a double and, after Bump Wills singled, scored on John Ellis' single. Wills came home on the front end of a double steal. Tom Grieve homered in the second for the Rangers' final run. Baltimore scored in the fifth on a double and single. Doug DeCinces opened the Orioles' seventh with a homer. Lindblad, who came in after Rick Dempsey followed with a single and Billy Smith walked, set down the Orioles the rest of the way

Angels 12, Mariners 5

Frank Tanana won his second game of the season as Joe Rudi drove in five runs with a grand slam home run and a double. Three other California players also hit homers in the Angels' victory over Seattle

Tanana, a hard-throwing lefthander, allowed only three hits in six innings as he picked up his second victory in five days over the American League expansion team.

Ron Jackson, Bob Jones and Don Baylor also homered for California, while Juan Bernhardt and Ruppert Jones hit four-baggers for the

A's 9-1, Twins 6-7

Minnesota and Oakland split a doubleheader with the A's taking the opener with the help of six unearned runs and Minnesota winning the nightcap behind right-hander Paul Thormodsgard, making his major league debut.

Rookie Wayne Gross slammed a two-run homer, his first in the big leagues, as Oakland received help when Twins shortstop Roy Smalley committed two errors. Doc Medich, who signed with Oakland after playing out his option last season, got the victory for the A's after working 72-3 innings. Jerry Terrell hit a two-run homer for Minnesota in the

In the second game, Thormodsgard gave up his only run in the first inning when Rodney Scott singled, stole second and came home on Dick Allen's single. A two-run homer by Craig Kusick was enough, but the Twins added three runs in the sixth and two more in the ninth, the latter on a homer by Larry Hisle.

player, fan sympathy

By The Associated Press

Richie Phillips, the attorney who called the walkout of National Basketball Association officials, knows there's a rough road ahead. After all, who likes a referee?

We are seeking sympathy from players and fans," said Phillips, "but we know full well that won't be easy No one likes the officials very much. You learn as a kid not to like the

They didn't receive much sympathy Sunday when Phillips ordered the 24 members of the National Association of Basketball Referees not to work the eight games scheduled on the final day of the National Basketball Association's regular season.

"Some of the guys who are out on strike, as far as I'm concerned, shouldn't come back," declared Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch. And Chicago Coach Dick Motta said, "The referees have to do what they feel is right, but we may find eight or nine young guys who are willing to go out and work and do a job

And the players feelings? 'I'll never back them, we're better off without them," said Boston's Jo Jo White after the referees voted 24-0 last week to strike the playoffs and also authorized a walkout in the waning days of the regular season. The New York Knicks' Earl Monroe added, "It would be a welcome relief without them.' Without support from the players and coaches, the referees' walkout will likely have little effect on the NBA playoffs which open Tuesday night. Phillips indicated the referees, who are seeking increased pay and fringe benefits including severance pay and an arbitration clause in case of firing, would set up picket lines outside the arenas for the playoffs.

The players, however, are not expected to honor those barriers. 'The players have a no-strike clause in their contract," said Larry Fleisher, counsel to the NBA Players Association. "Withholding services to honor picket lines amounts to the same thing (as a strike), I would

Why was the strike called on Sun-

Phillips knew that the NBA had backup teams of referees from the semi-pro Eastern League as well as local officials on stand-by all week as insurance against games having to be canceled because of a strike. There was no picketing, no attempt to disrupt the games.

Apparently, the motive-for Sunday, at least-was more psychological than physical. It was an attempt by Phillips and the referees to show the NBA that the union means

"The NBA has refused to negotiate or recognize the association as the collective bargaining agent for the referees," Phillips told the Associated Press. "We held out every hope that during the past week the NBA would negotiate in good faith. The NBA has continued to refuse to do so.

Ed Halicki continues mastery over Dodgers

By The Associated Press

Rookie San Francisco Manager Joe Altobelli wouldn't have had to wait so long for his first major league victory if he had remembered Ed Halicki's mysterious powers over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The 6-foot-7 Halicki beat Los Angeles for the fifth straight time Sunday, surrendering 11 hits but surviving for an 8-4 triumph over the Dodgers. That gave the Giants and Altobelli their first victory of the National League baseball campaign after two season-opening losses.

"I'm happy to get that first one off my back," said Altobelli, who replaced Bill Rigney at the conclusion of last season. "That first win feels awfully good."

He should have expected it, since the game was played at Los Angeles. where Halicki did not allow a run in three shutout appearances during the 1976 season.

"I can't really explain it," said the towering right-hander. "I just like pitching here. The mound is good, and so is the atmosphere.

"I like beating the Dodgers. I feel

In the other National League games Sunday, the Atlanta Braves blanked the Houston Astros 6-0; the San Diego Padres blasted the Cincinnati Reds 12-4; the Chicago Cubs downed the New York Mets 5-2; the St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-7, and the Montreal Expos topped the Philadelphia Phillies 9-8.

The Dodgers' Reggie Smith did most of the damage against Halicki, collecting two doubles and a single.

"It feels good to swing the bat that well, especially off a guy like pitch today. It kept us off balance all

But he couldn't explain the Giant pitcher's domination of the Dodgers. 'Some guys can't get anybody out, he said, "yet against certain clubs all they have to do is throw a resin bag up there and no one will hit it." Braves 6, Astros 0

Right-hander Dick Ruthven scattered seven hits and Rowland Office drove in two runs as Atlanta beat Houston in a game spiced by two benchclearing incidents.

The first came in the sixth inning, after Ruthven hit the Astros' Cliff Johnson with a pitch. Johnson headed towards first base but then charged to the mound and tackled the pitcher after an exchange of words. Players rushed from the dugouts, but order was restored quickly.

"I think it was bush," said Ruthven of Johnson's charge. "I'm going to be sore tomorrow because he ran into my left shoulder."

The benches emptied again after two brushback pitches by Houston's Gene Pentz. "I'm not going to let anyone run us out of the park," said Astros Manager Bill Virdon, who denied ordering Pentz to throw at Gary Matthews.

Montreal Canadiens prove hard to forget

By The Associated Press

Ignore the fact that the Montreal Canadiens have won 15 of their last 17 playoff games, that they're unbeaten in their last 34 games at home, that they scored 387 goals and gave up just 171 to lead the National Hockey League in both departments.

Forget that they got 60 goals from left wing Steve Shutt and 56 more from right wing Guy Lafleur, who won the scoring championship with 136 points over-all Forget that Montreal is the defending Stanley Cup champion and that they've won all eight playoff games they've played against St. Louis, and then you'll understand why Coach Scotty Bowman scoffs at people who think the Canadiens won't have any problems with the Blues.

"Everybody says we are going to win this series easily," said Bowman, doing what he could to find some excitement in a series which pits his powerhouse against a club which lost seven more games than it won and gave up 37 more goals than it scored. 'If our victory was an accomplished fact, there would be no playoffs." Now who's going to argue with that? "They are one of the more experienced clubs in the league." Bowman continues. "I expect them to come out and check us closely.'

They better do exactly that, or the Blues' playoff quarter-final series against Montreal won't last much longer than the four-game minimum.

St. Louis right wing Claude Larose didn't find anything new in Bowman's comments. "We know we're going to have to check them closely." said the former Canadien who scored 29 goals for the Blues this season. "We have to forecheck them consistently and bottle them up in their own zone. We cannot let them come at us.'

Even then, the Blues face an uphill battle, and they know it. The first two games of their series are on Montreal's ice, where the Canadiens lost exactly once this season, and St. Louis would have to register four victories against a team which lost only eight times in 80 games this year. The other three quarter-final series, all replays of last year's quarterfinals, open tonight with the Buffalo Sabres at Uniondale, N.Y. to play the Islanders, the Toronto Maple Leafs at Philadelphia to face the Flyers and the Los Angeles Kings at Boston against the Bruins.

The Islanders, who swept the Chicago Black Hawks in a bestofthree preliminary round, beat the Sabres in six games last year. Buffalo, which beat the Minnesota North Stars in the minimum two games, is out to keep that from happening

Toronto advanced to the quarterfinals Saturday night, getting three goals from right wing Lanny Mc-Donald to win the deciding game of their set with Pittsburgh. The Flyers, who beat the Maple Leafs in seven games last spring, gained a bye into the quarterfinals by winning the Patrick Division title.

Los Angeles got three goals from center Butch Goring in their third game against the Atlanta Flames, and will play Boston, which needed seven games to beat the Kings in last year's quarter-final.

Miller blocks Rangers

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Texas Rangers have been blocked from placing suspended infielder Lenny Randle on the disqualfied list, and officials of the American League club are steaming.

"They're treating us like the culprits," Manager Frank Lucchesi said Sunday. "Why should the ball club be penalized because of the actions of Lenny Randle?"

Randle was fined $10,000 by the Rangers and suspended 30 days after his attack on Lucchesi last month in Orlando, Fla., hospitalized the 48yearold manager with a triple fracture of the cheekbone and back in-

Eddie Robinson, vice president of the Rangers, said Texas had approval of Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to place Randle on the disqualified list, but the move was blocked by Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association.

With Randle on the disqualfied list, the Rangers could add another player who could be used in games, but they would remain one short with him merely suspended.

"His suspension hurts us in two ways," Lucchesi said. "It restricts us to a roster of 24 men, one less than is legal, until the suspension ends April 27. And the players' association is depriving another individual, now in the minors, of being in the big

Curtain falls on season

By The Associated Press

The National Basketball Association playoffs are here, finally, and not even a referees' strike is going to head them off.

It will be Chicago at Portland, Detroit at Golden State and San Antonio at Boston Tuesday night and Cleveland at Washington Wednesday night as the best-of-three first-round series begin.

Who will be refereeing is far less certain. The 24 members of the National Association of Basketball Referees went on strike on the final day of the regular season Sunday, leaving the officiating chores to nonunion members Richie Powers and Earl Strom, referees from the semipro Eastern Basketball League and other local officials.

"Under the circumstances, thought they were tremendous, Boston Celtics President Red Auerbach said of substitute officials Roger McCann and Paul Campbell, who worked Boston's 115-105 victory over Cleveland at Boston Garden. "They made some mistakes, but all in all they were no different from what we've had all year.'

Bulls 120, Braves 99

Chicago dominated its game at Buffalo, taking the lead in the opening minute and building it to 31 points with 81/2 minutes to play. Wilbur Holland and Artis Gilmore led a balanced Bulls attack with 16 points

Knicks 144, Pistons 126 The Knicks came up with their biggest output of the season and posted their 10th victory in the last 13 games as Bob McAdoo scored 28 and Lonnie Shelton and Walt Frazier had 27 each. It was the final game for Knicks Coach Red Holzman and forward Bill Bradley, who are retiring at the end of this season.

Bucks 133, Spurs 125

By losing its finale, San Antonio lost the homecourt advantage for its playoff series with Boston. Brian Winters led the Bucks, getting 19 of his 36 points in the fourth quarter. Dave Meyers had 31 points for Milwaukee.

Suns 128, Nets 104

In a matchup of division tailenders the Suns scored 36 points in the third period in breaking away from the Nets. Ron Lee led Phoenix with 21 points. The Suns' Tom Van Arsdale, who has announced his retirement, and twin brother Dick received a standing ovation when they were removed from the game together in the fourth quarter.

Jazz 139, Nuggets 125

Pete Maravich of the Jazz poured in 45 points, finishing the season with a 31.1 average, tops in the league. Teammate Nate Williams had 41 points, while David Thompson tallied 40 for Denver.

Krantzcke dies after taking doubles match

Karen Krantzcke, back on the tennis circuit after a one-year layoff, easily won a doubles final in a $20,000 tournament Sunday. Forty minutes later, she collapsed and died.

The cause of death was not immediately known.

Miss Krantzcke, 30, of Australia, teamed with countrywoman Kym Ruddell in defeating Rayni Fox of Miami Beach and Helen Gourlay of Australia 6-2, 6-1. then told tournament officials she wanted to go jogging before she getting out of the mood and would be back shortly.

She then collapsed about 200 yards away from the courts. Officials said the time lapse indicated she had finished jogging and was heading back to the club to change her tennis

A doctor who was driving by the courts saw Miss Krantzcke collapse and went to help. Another doctor who e match also went to was watching th her side. Witnesses said an ambulance arrived in 10 minutes, but Miss Krantzcke was pronounced dead

'Sometimes players go jogging to wind down if they're not tired," said Marsha Smelkinson, a spokeswoman for the tournament. "It's a beautiful day here, and it was a quick match for her-only about an hour." It was Miss Krantzcke's second pro tournament after sitting out a year with an arm injury. The winning doubles team earned $1,000, and Miss Krantzcke won another $1,400 for making the semifinals in the singles competition. Shortly before leaving for her run, she chatted briefly with reporters. "It's nice to play with Kym," Miss Krantzcke said. "She's fresh and she really likes to play the game. It relaxes me."

Miss Krantzcke often had teamed with Miss Gourlay in previous years. The two made the Wimbledon doubles

In singles, Miss Krantzcke lost to Mary Carillo, tournament Sunday by defeating Donna Ganz 7-5, 6-4. Miss Carillo received $3,000.

Colbert downs Mosely with split decision

was more aggressive than I thought and that caught me by surprise," unbeaten middleweight Mike Colbert said after taking a split decision over Rocky Mosely Jr. in a U.S. Boxing Championships semifinal.

Colbert of Portland, Ore., took the 2-1 decision over Mosley of Las Vegas, Nev., in a 10round battle that didn't catch fire until the last three rounds when Colbert realized it would be a close fight and started slugging harder and faster.

"He's pretty quick and a good puncher, but he didn't sting me at all," said Colbert, who defeated Mosley's father two years ago. "I wanted to finish strong and I thought I was solid from the sixth on.

It was only the second time in boxing history that a fighter had fought a father and son and defeated them both. Colbert, 27, defeated Mosley's father, Rocky Sr., 41, by a knockout in February 1975.

Sunday's defeat was the first for 20year-old Mosley against 15 wins. Colbert, ranked as the world's top middleweight contender by Ring Magazine, now has won 18. Colbert, 161 pounds, took control of the fight in the middle rounds and used his superior strength to blunt the 160-pound Mosely's jabs. There was never a threat of a knockdown.

Mosley opened a small cut on Colbert's left eye lid in the first round and had the edge in the second round, pursuing his opponent and landing several good jabs.

But Colbert cut Mosley over the right eye in the third round and his left eyebrow in the fifth, punching with his left to put Mosley off balance.

In the other 10 rounder, a featherweight contest, undefeated Richard Rozelle of Columbus, Ohio, won a unanimous decision over James Martinez of Dallas. It was Rozelle's 11th victory

Martinez' record dropped to 244-1. Rozelle, 123 pounds, scored consistently with his jab, cutting Martinez on the left eye in the fourth round. Martinez, 127, landed a number of good punches but couldn't slow down Rozelle's attack.

Heavyweight champ Muhammad Ali watched both matches at the Fontainebleau Hotel. He said he plans to remain in the Miami area for a week and train for his May 16 title bout against Afredo Evangelista of Madrid. The fight will be held in Landover, Md.

Young lifts Travelers LITTLE ROCK, Ark.

(AP) — First baseman John Young of the Arkansas Travelers hit a two-run homer in the first inning as the Texas League team scored an 11-3 exhibition baseball victory over the University of Arkansas

Five errors by the Razorbacks of the Southwest Conference helped the Travelers run up the score to 8-1 after three innings.

Leftfielder Dave Bialas led the Texas League team with 3 singles and centerfielder Arvis Harper was 3-for-4 for the Razorbacks, with two of his hits being doubles.

Travelers open their Texas League season Tuesday night at Little Rock against

Halicki (W,1-0)

Nordiques rally saves victory

By The Associated Press

Coach Marc Boileau had some sound advice for his Quebec Nordiques Saturday night: when you are about to be robbed-defend yourself.

"I wasn't at all happy with the way we played in the second period, Boileau said after the Nordiques had blown a 2-0 first-period lead in their World Hockey Association quarterfinal game against New England. "I told the guys the Whalers were stealing the game away from us and we had to become more aggressive." His message was obviousley heeded as the Nordiques came out and beat the Whalers, scoring three times in the third period for a 5-2 triumph. Fernand Lacombe broke the 2-2
