Economists encouraged by expansion

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's economy apparently expanded at a rate of about 4.5 per cent in the first three months of this year, nearly double the gain of the previous three-month period, government economists say.

The increase, calculated at an annual rate, is encouraging to the Carter administration. These same economists were predicting just a few

Big Spring crash kills persons

BIG SPRING - A two-vehicle collision 14 miles south of Big Spring on U.S. 87 late Tuesday afternoon left three persons dead and a 3-year-old child in critical condition.

Pronounced dead at the scene were Ephriam Garcia, 39, and his 33-yearold wife, Virginia, both of San Angelo. Garcia was director of the San Angelo community action center.

The couple's 3-year-old child, Paul, was listed in critical condition at Malone-Hogan Hospital here.

The driver of the second vehicle, Raul Montez Rodriguez, 61, died in Malone-Hogan Hospital about four hours after the accident. Rodriguez was a Sterling City resident.

The accident occurred about 4:55 p.m. when one vehicle swerved into the other, according to a Department of Public Safety spokesman.

weeks ago that first-quarter economic growth would be less than 4 per cent because of the hard winter.

Four per cent growth is considered the level necessary to keep unemployment from increasing. Gains above that level should reduce the nation's jobless rate, which was 7.3 per cent in March.

A strong economic rebound in March improved the economic outlook, several economists said Tuesday. They said it was fueled partly by advance spending by consumers of the $50 rebates they have expected from Washington.

They said that if Congress now fails to approve the rebates, consumers might slow their spending and reverse the gains of the first quarter.

The Commerce Department will release official figures on firstquarter economic growth, as reflected by the nation's gross national product, on April 20.

As recently as March 30, Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps said GNP growth would be less than 4 per cent, at an annual rate, in the first quarter.

But Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said Tuesday he thinks the economy is now growing at a rate of between 4.5 to 4.75 per cent, and economists said Mrs. Kreps is now being provided with new information from her advisers showing a rate of growth above

Council to phase out zoo

By LARRY SUTHERLAND

The phasing-out of Cole Park Zoo will begin shortly, the Midland City Council decided Tuesday.

The action reaffirms a decision by the council last June during budget deliberations on the zoo's budget that the 21-year-old zoo should be closed.

Passage of a $3.25-million bond issue in the April 2 city election would have enabled a new zoo to replace Cole Park, but the issue was defeated by a wide margin.

Robert Thomson, Midland Parks and Recreation Department director, formally recommended its closure a move that met no opposition from any of the parties that tried to promote passage of the bond issue. Zoo director Robert Cooper told the council there would be little trouble disposing of most of the animals, although he declined to estimate how much the animals will bring.

The animals will probably be sold to other zoos and animal dealers, but some may have to be given away. Robert Thomson, Midland Parks and Recreation Department director, said the city still should pursue some improvements in the parks system despite the recent rejection by city voters of $4 million in bonds to finance many improvements for parks and programs in his department

Thomson said plans should continue to develop a park with a $10,000 donation from the Kiwanis organization. He also said he sees a need to acquire land for possible future park development.

In addition, he cited a need for lighted softball fields, cart paths at Hogan Park Golf Course and relief of drainage problems at Cowden Park as areas of critical concern.

The director urged the council to consider an improved recreation building and senior citizens center facility and additional holes at the golf course as future projects in volving major capital expenditures.

Thomson said these were only tentative suggestions for improvements in facilities and programs in his department and will be studied more closely for a formal and Drug Administration, which has enraged diabetics and weightwatchers with its proposed ban on saccharin, wants to allow continued sale of the artificial sweetener as a nonprescription drug.

The FDA still plans to ban sac-charin as an additive in food and beverages, but The Associated Press learned Tuesday that the agency is preparing to recommend that it be available as an over-the-counter drug, like headache remedies and antacids.

With no other sugar-substitute now available, the FDA action would ensure that diabetics and dieters still would be able to obtain saccharin.

Anyone can buy nonprescription

Agency spokesmen confirmed Tuesday an announcement would be made this week on the artificial sweetener, which has caused cancer in laboratory animals. They refused to say what action the agency would

It was also learned FDA was coming down against use of saccharin as an additive in cosmetics, such as toothpaste and mouthwash.

The FDA proposed banning saccharin as a food and drink additive on March 9. The recommendations produced an uproar from diabetics and persons who watch their waistlines.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. said his agency was receiving up to 800 letters a day on the proposed ban, most opposed to the ban.

Medical experts testifying at congressional hearings doubted claims that humans can develop cancer from saccharin and expressed concern over the impact a ban would have on the millions of Americans on sugar-free diets. Despite criticism, FDA spokesman Jack Walden said the announcement would "carry out our commitment to begin a ban on saccharin in foods and beverages."

City OKs cost plan for airline

Midland City Council Tuesday agreed to an airport use agreement with Southwest Airlines that will have the airline pay the total cost of remodeling at Midland Air Terminal needed to accomodate the airline. The airline also will pay 22.5 cents per 1,000 pound landing weight, the same fee as required for Texas International and Continental. The firm also will agree to guarantee an average of 52.5 flights per week within 12 months, beginning

The city and airline had been at an impasse over the landing fee payments.

Although plans for Southwest's move to the Air Terminal are progressing, the council is facing a delay in approving the authorization of bids from contractors on renovations and expansion of the Air Terminal Building. Those plans involve Southwest as well as Texas International and Continental, the area's existing carriers. Col. Wilson Banks, city aviation director, said the authorization was supposed to go to the council for their approval at the first meeting in May, but it will now likely be the first meeting in June.

Banks said the airlines have taken longer than expected to make their wishes known on what the im-provements should be, and the arrival of Texas instruments has added to the

Sulfur UT system's petty cash

COMANCHE CREEK - Sulfur is sort of pulling up the rear in the money-making scheme of things.

Or, at least, so said Wallie Gravitt in welcoming his bus-riding audience "to the land of fire and brimstone."

The chartered bus carrying staff members of the University of Texas's lands office in Midland to the Texasgulf, Inc., sulfur-mining operation here was approaching brimstone land when geologist Gravitt made his blast-furnace

Sulfur "doesn't in anyway compare with the money" that's being generated for UT by way of the oil-and-gas route, Gravitt told the gang. UT has made a mint off royalties on its oil and gas fields in West Texas. Sulfur has not been as much as a windfall as those 6,600 pumping wells.

Brimstone generates petty cash for the UT System, but not so much dough for Texasgulf, the outfit that's doing the mining. It seems that the market demand for sulfur ain't so hot these days. So, Texasgulf is just stockpiling the multi-use mineral for the time when it will behave on the market somewhat like oil and gas are today. Meanwhile, UT collects on what

Drought loans put into effect

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department has put into effect a $100 million emergency loan program President Carter ordered to help drought-stricken farmers recover from their losses.

Secretary of Agriculture Bob
Bergland said Tuesday that qualified farmers and ranchers, including fish farmers, can apply for the loans through county offices of the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA).

A spokesman for the agency said that the loans will come from a special $100 million drought relief fund recently authorized by Carter. The loans will be available in all counties designated as drought emergency

The emergency drought loans can run up to seven years and carry an interest charge of 5 per cent a year. Applicants have to show that they cannot get loans to cover their drought losses from regular sources such as banks and other commercial lending institu-

Bergland also announced that federal crop insurance is being reopened in eight states and parts of a ninth where new applications on 1977 crop coverage were halted the past few months, some of the closures going back to last fall.

The reopening of insurance, including 1977 crops of corn and soywill affect all counties which earlier had been cut off in Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin. In addition, all but 12 counties in Kansas which had been closed now are reopened, he

Still mum, Liddy has term cut by Carter By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

WASHINGTON (AP) - G. Gordon Liddy, still silent about the Watergate burglary he planned, supervised and botched, can look forward to parole in three months rather than four years through the last-resort intervention of President Carter.

With a stroke of a pen, the President did what Gerald Ford wouldn't: he cut Liddy's sentence from 20 years to eight years and thereby made him eligible for parole anytime after July

Even when Liddy is free, a nation saturated with Watergate confessions is unlikely to hear the few missing details from the man who knows them best. His mother and his lawyer said they doubt he will tell his story.

Watergate and its aftermath.

Liddy drew a stiffer sentence than the rest for refusing to cooperate with prosecutors; he served an extra 18 months in jail for stone-walling the Watergate grand jury; he invited and got a congressional contempt citation for refusing even to take an oath.

Parole will not be automatic, even with the President's commutation. Liddy must file an application for "consideration of parole" and con-vince the board he merits release. Officials at the Allenwood, Pa., minimum security institution say he is a model prisoner.

In announcing the commutation Tuesday, White House spokesman Rex Granum said the President acted "in the interest of equity and fairness,

> The sentence of eight years matches the Watergate coverup terms imposed on H.R. Haldeman, John N. Mitchell and John D. Ehrlichman, who were top officials in Richard M. Nixon's administration.

"I'm grateful to the President for commuting my sentence and bringing it into line with the sentences received by Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Hunt," Liddy told his lawyer, Peter L. Maroulis.

Zaire war spilling over

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) - The war in southern Zaire has spilled over into neighboring Zambia, the Zambian government charged today. It said the Zaire air force bombed two villages and a mission hospital near the unmarked bushland border in the past three days.

There was no immediate comment from the Zaire government.

A government spokesman in Lusaka, the Zambian capital, said the bombings occurred Saturday and Monday in northwest Zambia.

Two Zairean jets bombed the village of Shingamfunji Manganago on Saturday, the spokesman said, but he said nothing about any casualties. On Monday afternoon, he continued, two Zairean jets dropped several bombs at the Kaleni Hill mission hospital, resulting in injuries to the hospital staff and damage to property. The spokesman also reported that several bombs were dropped Monday at a village known as Chief Nyakaseya's Area, but again there was no report of casualties or damage.

Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda sent a message to President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire informing him of the "the grave incidents. Kaunda also sent a fact-finding team to assess the damage and general situation in the bombed areas, the spokesman added.

It was the first report that the conflict in southern Zaire was affecting neighboring Zambia. Zairean planes were reported earlier to have bombed areas of Angola along Zaire's southwestern border from which the invasion of Shaba province was launched.

Meanwhile, Moroccan troops are digging in around the copper-mining center of Kolwezi and consolidating their supply lines as the lull in ground fighting continues.

The 1,500 Moroccans flown to Zaire over the weekend are familiarizing themselves with the region and getting their food and ammunition supplies organized, diplomatic sources in Kinshasa said Tuesday.

They reported canned tomatoes and beans for the Moroccan diet had high priority on the French airlift supplying the crack troops King Hassan II sent to bolster President Mobutu Sese Seko's demoralized army in AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The House Health and Welfare Committee has approved a bill exempting church-run, nonprofit child care facilities from state regulation and licensing procedures.

The approval, by a 7-4 vote, came just before midnight Tuesday after a lengthy, emotional hearing in which church officials warned that state regulation of church-run facilities violates the constitutional separation of church and state.

The measure by Rep. Kenneth Vaughn, D-Garland, would exempt such facilities from the 1975 Child Care Licensing Act, which provided for state regulation and licensing of child care facilities and Vaughn's bill was filed after a 1975 floor fight in which an amendment exempting the church facilities was voted down by House members.

The three women on the committee, Reps. Chris Miller, D-Fort Worth, Wilhamina Delco, D-Austin, and Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, and Rep. Buck Florence, D-Hughes Springs, dissented.
Ms. Miller and Ms. Glossbrenner charged that children in such facilities would be left unprotected if state control is removed.

"One of the rules of our country is that the churches do their work independent of any civil authority," said the Rev. Robert Ingram, rector of the St. Thomas Episcopal School in Houston. "We have lost that independence.'

with ODOM PHILIPPIANS 4:8

The Church of Christ is not a denomination: I am aware that such a statement sounds very austere in the minds of most people and certainly tends to "turn people off." Nevertheless that is the truth about it.

The average religious person thinks of the church as being made up of churches rather than individuals. They think that the universal church of Christ is composed of the various denominations and for this reason suggest that one has the right to "join the church of his choice." Such a concept of the Lord's church has influenced millions to turn away from Christ rather than to turn to Christ. from Christ rather than to turn to Christ.

In the days of the apostles (the first century) there was no such thing as various denominations. What informed person would deny that statement? Yet when we admit to that fact we renounce in the admittance denominationalism. As a matter of fact, denominationalism is an admission of "division" in religion for all teach and practice things which are contrary to the others around them. Can we all be right and teach differently?

Jesus prayed for His disciples that they might be one as He and God were one, "that the world might believe that thou has sent me." (Jno. 17:21) The apostle Paul declared that there is but "one faith and one body" just as he affirmed that there is "one God and Christ and Holy Spirit." (Eph. 4:1-6) The dissimilarity of the New Testament church, to our religious world is as conspicuous as a flock of blackbirds in a snowfield. And where the Christ wanted to conjoin His people, denominationalism seeks to divide His people. It represents everything that Jesus Christ did want His people to be.

The question arises: "How can we mortals circumvent such denominationalism in our present world?" The answer to that, gentle reader, is quite simple. "If any man speak let him speak as the oracles of God." (I Pet. 4:11)"... that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgement." (ICor. 1:10) Someone is ready to object on the basis that all people cannot agree. If such be your thinking, just remember that that is our fault and not the fault of God Almighty. His way is for those who profess to follow Him "speak the same thing." The question arises: "How can we mortals cir

Fire ant insecticide to go fast

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas landowners besieged by the pesky fire ant will quickly snap up a large supply of the soon-to-be banned in secticide mirex that the state plans to buy, an agriculture department official predicts.

David Ivie, director of the Texas Department of Agriculture's environmental science division, said Tuesday that Texas plans to purchase 445,000 pounds of the controversial insecticide in another at-tempt to battle the sometimes deadly ants.

"It sounds like a lot, but it probably won't last a week,' said Ivie. 'There's about 70 counties infested and some counties would take all 445,000 pounds if we'd let them have it."

Ivie said the En-vironmental Protection Agency has already banned aerial application form single-engine planes.

The Mississippi company that is the sole manufacturer of the insecticide some scientists believe'is cancerous has agreed to stop producing mirex by the end of 1977.

The paperwork flood

The campaign promise by candidate Jimmy Carter to get control of government red tape found the American public a sympathetic audience.

But the assault on paperwork endorsed by President Carter. while giving new life to efforts begun under the Ford administration, has sputtered in its early stages.

In January, Mr. Carter told a nationwide television audience that he would insist upon Cabinet members personally reading all written regulations before new paperwork demands were inflicted upon businessmen and consumers. In February, he quietly dropped the order after his appointees protested that they could not possibly review the mountains of rules produced by their departments.

The President himself had to call a halt to the flow of paperwork sent to his desk, conceding that he could not keep up with the

The frustrations of the task are exemplified by statistics reported by the Office of Management and Budget. In October 1975, when a Commission on Federal Paperwork created by Congress began its two-year mission to untangle the paperwork snarl, it took 130 million hours to fill out all federal forms. When the commission celebrated the end of its first year, the work time was 143 million hours.

The commission charges that it has had a rough time securing cooperation from the bureaucracy, but also concedes that it has developed some bureaucratic tendencies itself. The staff has been expanded to about 200 employes with an annual budget of $5 million.

With a guaranteed life only to next Oct. 3, the commission, which includes members of Congress as well as Washington officials and business people, remains far from its objectives. Some members believe that a number of its planned 22 reports must be sacrificed to complete others before the deadline.

It remains uncertain what agency will oversee implementation of recommendations that will be the commission's legacy.

But commissioners are understandably reluctant to seek further time and money for a body that was supposed to whittle away at the Washington underbrush.

There is room for optimism Some of the commission's recommendations already have been accepted by Congress and federal agencies. The commitment from the White House remains firm.

Success, however, demands that the housecleaning pledge be translated into action on the bureaucratic turf where the war on paper paperwork is fought.

Less crime, but

FBI showed a decline in the crime proportion of the population, and rate in 1972, there was a burst of that age group is the most crimehope that anticrime programs finally were paying off. The hope didn't last long. The curve turned upward again in 1973 and the crime problem is now as worrisome as ever.

So caution is in order in interpreting the decline in the crime rate evident in the statistics for 1976. FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley hopes the downturn is the fruit of a more "positive public attitude" toward controlling crime, but a University of Pennsylvania research team throws cold water on that idea.

According to a study completed last year, we should be expecting a leveling off in the crime rate from now through the 1980s but not because of any breakthrough in law enforcement or penology. Young people in the 14-21 age

When statistics gathered by the group are making up a smaller prone in our society. Hence there should be fewer crimes per capita.

What would cheer us up would be evidence that more young people are leaving home and school with respect for legal authority, that fewer were getting into trouble with drugs and alcohol, and that developments in the wage structure, apprenticeship programs and vocational training were making it easier for teen-agers and young adults to find jobs. Unfortunately, the statistics that might reflect some progress in dealing with those problems are not encouraging.

A dip in the crime rate that reflects only a change in the proportion of youthful crime in relation to the whole is no comfort

ART BUCHWALD To secede or not, that's the question

WASHINGTON - The decision of Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket to secede from the United States is no idle threat. It has been in the works for some time. As a matter of fact, a group of us discussed it one night two years ago at a cookout on William Styron's beach. Lots of lobster had been eaten and daiquiris consumed when the question of secession from the mainland came up

I think it was Lillian Hellman, or possibly John Hersey, who mentioned that something had to be done to stop the illegal immigration of people from Cape Cod who came over to the Vineyard in the daytime, left all their trash there and then took the ferry back at night.

Styron said that Bostonians had been investing in real estate on the Vineyard, and before we woke up to it the entire island would be infested with rich Harvard professors and claim adjusters from the John Hancock Life Insurance Co.

Jules Feiffer said that fishermen from Hyannisport were encroaching on Vineyard waters and stealing all the bluefish which swam under his pier. Jules was for instituting a 200mile fishing limit around the Vineyard or 20 feet from his pier, whichever was greater.

Bob Brustein, head of the Yale Drama School, felt that the sailing ships from the New York Regatta should not be permitted to come into Edgartown. "The crews are a bad influence on our children," he said. "They throw their money around, get into fights in bars and the stockbrokers steal our women.'

I pointed out that while the tourists brought money to the island they also insisted on taking our pictures, plying our daughters with nylons and Hershey bars and to play tennis.

More daiquiris were passed around and then the question of secession The first question was asked by

Phillip Roth: Could Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket go it alone? Rose Styron, Bill's wife, thought we

"What about fuel for the island?" James Reston, who owns the Vineyard Gazette, said, "That's no problem. There are oil spills from tankers off the coast at least twice a year. The oil that floats ashore is more than enough to take care of our

"What about food?" James Taylor asked.

"Simple," said Rose Styron, "If we're independent from the United States they would be obligated to supply us with everything we needed under the Food for Peace program."

"We would also be entitled to a Peace Corps," someone added. "They could cut our lawns." "Don't forget military aid," Brus-

tein added. "We can't get military aid unless we have a Communist threat.' One of the writers who was eating a lobster claw said, "I was once a Communist in the '40s.

"That solves THAT problem." Brustein said.

"Okay," John Hersey said, "it's obvious that once we become independent we'll get American aid which will keep us going. But we'll have to have a leader. We need someone who will stand up to the United States and tell them that even though we're accepting their aid we're not going to be pushed around. Whom can we get.

We passed around the daiguiris as we thought.

Then somyone jumped up, "I've got it. Let's make Katharine Graham the owner of the Washington Post prime minister. She has been called the most powerful woman in America. If she becomes the prime minister of Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket she could become the most powerful woman in the world."

"I'll drink to that," I said.

And so the seeds of independence were planted that night on William Styron's beach. In outcome the beach will be known as the Munich Beer Hall of the First Republic of Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket. The name will probably be changed to "Martha's Tucket" as soon as a Declaration of Independence is written by Phillip Roth, who has provisionally titled it, "Martha's Complaint."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

House investigating new leads

By JACK ANDERSON and LES "whether anyone aided Ray in his WHITTEN

WASHINGTON- Nine years ago, the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr. spiritual leader of the civil rights movement, was gunned down in Memphis. An escaped convict named James Earl Ray was nailed for the

Yet nagging suspicions persisted that he may have been hired by others. The public doubt finally forced a Justice Dept. task force to review the case. It has now concluded that Ray "was the assassin and that he acted alone.'

House investigators, however, have challenged the Justice Dept.'s findings. In a confidential, 16-page analysis, they have pointed out significant inconsistencies and omissions in the task force report.

They note that the task force had a 'multitude of leads' to pursue, yet interviewed only 30 people. "Thirty interviews could hardly scratch the surface," declares the analysis. "A detective investigating a common street crime may very likely conduct more interviews.

The House investigators don't pretend that they have solved the case. But they have set forth their clues in a fascinating secret report, stamped "Sensitive." Here are the highlights, in chronological order:

- While Ray was serving time in the Missouri state penitentiary, hetold cellmates that he would kill King "if the price was right." Ray also was quoted as saying he intended to seek out a "businessmen's association" which allegedly had offered $100,000 for King's murder.

- On April 23, 1967, Ray escaped from the prison by hiding in a large bread box, which was loaded on a bakery truck. The congressional investigators are trying to find out escape and whether this assistance was connected" to the King assassination.

The escapee had immediate access to false identities. He posed alternately as Eric Galt, Ramon George Sneyd, Paul Bridgman and John Willard. "These aliases correspond to the names of real men, all of whom lived close to one another in Suburban Toronto," report the investigators. 'In addition, three out of the four bear physical resemblances to Ray." Galt even had scars in the same location as did Ray, the forehead and right palm." The House sleuths want to know "whether Ray received any help in obtaining these aliases.'

- For the next year, Ray "traveled across the United States, lived in more than a dozen cities and traveled in four foreign countries ... A conservative estimate of his total expense would be at least $7,000. Ray himself estimates that he spent at least $9,500." Those who did business with him recall that "he often paid for items with new $20 bills." The House Assassinations Committee "intends to investigate the sources of Ray's funds in general and of those $20 bills in particular.'

- Ray opened a safety deposit box in a Birmingham bank in August, 1967, and closed it four months later. Bank records show the box was closed by someone living in Baton Rouge, La. Yet Ray was living in Los Angeles at the time. The committee, therefore, is investigating "who in Baton Rouge aided Ray by closing that safety deposit box.

- The committee has received unverified reports that Ray was in touch with the Beverly Hills office of Litton Industries in California. While he was posing as Eric Galt, he also listed as his previous employer a Pascagoula, Miss., shipbuilding company owned by Litton Industries. The investigators are checking whether there is any relationship between Ray and Litton Industries.' - The late William Saktor, a journalist, alleged that organized crime figures had accepted a $300,000 contract on King's life from a rightwing racist group. According to Sartor, Ray got in touch with these men in New Orleans. The committee is seeking "all evidentiary materials that might support or refute Mr. Sartor's report. - A witness has told investigators that he overheard a telephone conversation on the afternoon of the King assassination. "Frank Liberto, a person with alleged organized crime connections, said; 'Shoot the bastard. Do it this afternoon. Shoot him, even if you have to do it on the balcony, just

The committee has received "independent corroborations" of a possible Liberto link. A witness told of a Birmingham, Ala., gun shop owner who, before the assassination, pointed to a rifle and said: "This is the gun that is going to kill Martin Luther King." Later the witness saw the gun shop owner" in the company of Ray and Liberto." The secret report describes Liberto as "a target of the committee's investigation.

The Memphis police set up a surveillance post in a firehouse overlooking the motel where King spent his last fateful hours. Curiously, two black firemen. Norvell Wallace and Floyd Newsun, were withdrawn from the post. Then a black policeman, Edward Redditt, was called off the surveillance. The committee "has begun to investigate these incidents.

- Ray fled to Toronto after the assassination. He applied for Canadian birth certificates under the names of Paul Bridgman and Ramon George Sneyd. He finally obtained a birth certificate and passport in Sneyd's name.

INSIDE REPORT: Cuba's Fidel Castro dispatches 'advisers' to Laos

perts believe the number is much closer to "a handful.

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON -- Pursuing his audacious worldwide bid for supremacy in the so-called "nonaligned" world, Fidel Castro has dipped into Indochina by sending "advisers" - mostly medical but some military - to Laos to help its new Communist government consolidate power against anti-Communist guerrillas.

Publicly unreported until now, the presence of Cuban advisers in Laos has been suspected for several months by diplomatic and intelligence officials here. Now, however, it is established as fact that what one U.S. official estimates at 'several dozen up to a hundred or so' Cubans are in Laos, as their fellow Cubans are in Algeria, Somalia and

In addition to medical units that include doctors, Castro has also sent agricultural specialists, particularly in the dairy industry. More menacing is the possible advance guard of Cuban military advisers now reported in Laos. They intervene against insurgent Meo tribesmen who are fighting the Communist government.

Whether in Laos to help train Communist troops or to sop up experience in jungle warfare, these Cuban advisers are worrying neighboring Thailand. The pro-Western Thai government has privately warned the U.S. that "hundreds" of Cuban military advisers are in Laos. Discounting that, U.S. ex-

Castro's real goal, as we have reported, is the 1979 conference of non-aligned" nations scheduled for Havana. It is Castro's ambitious plan to make that conference his comingout party as undisputed leader of third-world revolutionaries, from Laos to Angola.

This revolutionary activism adds to growing puzzlement here over President Carter's tenacious quest for rapprochement between the U.S. and Cuba, its closest Communist neighbor. The question being asked more and more: why now?

CAUGHT IN THE ACT A handwritten letter under the handwritten notation "personal and confidential" and signed "Jimmy" last week arrived from the White House on the desks of Democratic Senators. But when three Senators each assuming he had been the sole recipient - compared notes at lunch, the "handwritten" note was quicklyfound to be a machine-written form

For a President who promised to run an "open" White House without taint of trickery, the March 25 letter raised senatorial eyebrows. "It's the most beautiful job of dissembling I have ever seen," one Senator told us.

"But why go to all that trouble?" The "handwritten" letter, covering two pages of high-quality White House notepaper embossed with the great seal, was apparently done on an offset press through an expensive photocopying technique. Most presidential form letters are copied from a typewritten original, with only transparent effort to conceal that they are indeed form letters. The latest "Jimmy" letter is thus unique. Although a futile effort because so many Senators received it. it is obviously intended to make each one look original, enhanced by the notation "personal and confidential." When we checked a White House official who should know, he told us that, of course, each letter had been individually handwritten by "Jimmy."

He is wrong. Only the name of the Senator and the President's signature ("Jimmy") were real. All the rest was trickery.

ENERGY ON SCHEDULE

After a marathon meeting behind closed doors at the White House, President Carter brushed aside counsels of delay from his chief economic advisers and ordered his energy message issued April 20 on schedule, no matter how fierce the criticism

That constituted a major victory for energy czar James Schlesinger, who thereby survived his first bureaucratic assault. During the meeting, which lasted from 3:30 p.m. until nearly 8 o'clock Wednesday with the President present throughout, Dr. Schlesinger argued against delay.

Top presidential aide Hamilton

Jordan had wanted this meeting to guarantee him full time to discuss with the President and Schlesinger the political impact, mostly adverse, of the energy plan. But most of the objections at the meeting came from the economic triumvirate: Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal budget director Bert Lance and chief economic adviser Charles Schultze.

Arguing that statistics revealing the national economic impact of Schlesinger's conservation proposals are not now available, the economic officials urged Mr. Carter to delay the message until this vital information is at hand. The delay, they added, should be at least one month.

But President Carter is determined. to the point of obsession, to fulfill his commitments. On Thursday he decreed that the message would come

Stiff fines may be alternative to ship seizures

By ED SCHUMACHER Special to The Washington Post

BOSTON - The two Soviet fishing ships, their cargoes seized, American flags flying over their rusty gray hulls, somehow looked sad, tied helplessly to the Coast Guard pier here Tuesday.

Only the press and official visitors are allowed close to the ships, but along the waterfront, in the local media and among the New England Congressional delegation, the gloating has been hard to conceal.

Since the Coast Guard two weeks ago was ordered by the White House to release a Soviet trawler allegedly carrying illegally caught fish, these quarters have been crying loudly for seizures to enforce the new 200-mile American fishing zone law. Even President Carter has said the Americans are "drawing the line."

Much of this reaction appears to have been overblown. Coast Guard records indicate the line already had been drawn, the enforcement has been tough, and, despite the cries for blood, most of the violations have

"I question whether a lot of these violations are significant enough to qualify for seizure," said William Gordon, northeast regional director of the National Marine Fisheries Service and a leader in the fight that created the 200-mile zone. "In part, there has been a lot of confusion switching from one regime to another, and in part, many of the violations have been minor.'

What is being overlooked, many officials say, is that the new law provides for administrative fines imposed by the Fisheries Service as an alternative to seizure, an act which is weighty under international law. The fines are for up to $25,000 per violation per day. In the first six weeks of the law, the Coast Guard has reported 40 such violations for which such fines have been recommended. The Fisheries Service is stili processing the recommendastions, about half of which involve Soviet ships.

During March alone, the Coast Guard also has issued 75 warning citations in boarding 155 ships, twice as. many boardings as a year ago though there were only half as many foreign boats fishing off American coasts.

Local Coast Guard commanders recommending seizures were overruled in at least three instances by the White House.

Officials say the confusion involves where to draw the line between imposing an administrative fine and seizure. In the three cases where ships were released, all of them involving Soviets, one had 130 pounds of illegally caught fish. Another had about 220 pounds and the third was a support ship that did not have a permit, fisheries officials said. "Nothing is definitive," said Lt. Cdr. Thomas Nunes, head of enforcement in the Atlantic. "I don't feel our recommendation for seizures are made lightly. We feel we have a job to do and we try to do it under the law."

Some officials in the State Department, however, feel the Coast Guard is too quick to recommend seizure. They say this is partially a leftover from the past several years when seizure was the only enforcement method available when foreigners were caught taking lobster, crab and like species which were the only ones covered under American jurisdiction before the 200-mile law.

The older jurisdiction led to 19 seizures last year, Coast Guard officials say. One was a Soviet vessel seized for having 30 pounds of lobster, or about 15 lobsters. The Soviets settled out of court for $400,000.

"Sure, we used to seize them with one crab," said vice Adm. Austin C. Wagner, commander of the Pacific

Seizure under the new law can lead to civil or criminal charges and penalties of $50,000 fines, six months in jail and confiscation of the ship.

move Moroccan troops and supplies to Zaire, declaring that it was essential that African friends of France not feel abandoned when their security is threatened

The airlift operation will be terminated by the end of this week, the French President said, adding that "it is absurd to draw any parallel with the involvement of the United States in Vietnam." There is no question of any French forces fighting in Zaire, he said, and the Africans are not asking for them. In a television press conference with four French journalists, Giscard d'Estaing described the French move to support the Moroccan assistance to Zaire as "a signal of security and a signal of solidarity to Europe's friends in Africa." He disclosed that the other eight Common Market countries had been informed in advance of the action which France was undertaking, but denied vigorously that the United States had been consulted in any way. Opponents are always demanding that France show its indepenendence in foreign policy, Giscard d'Estaing said. Now when it takes an independent action the opponents charge that it is acting under orders from Washington. He underscored his point by stating that when he and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance discussed African problems here in Paris 10 days ago, he did not mention the possibility of a French airlift of Moroccans to Zaire even though it was already being considered at that time.

Israel won't allow defeat of Christian allies in Lebanon

The Washington Post

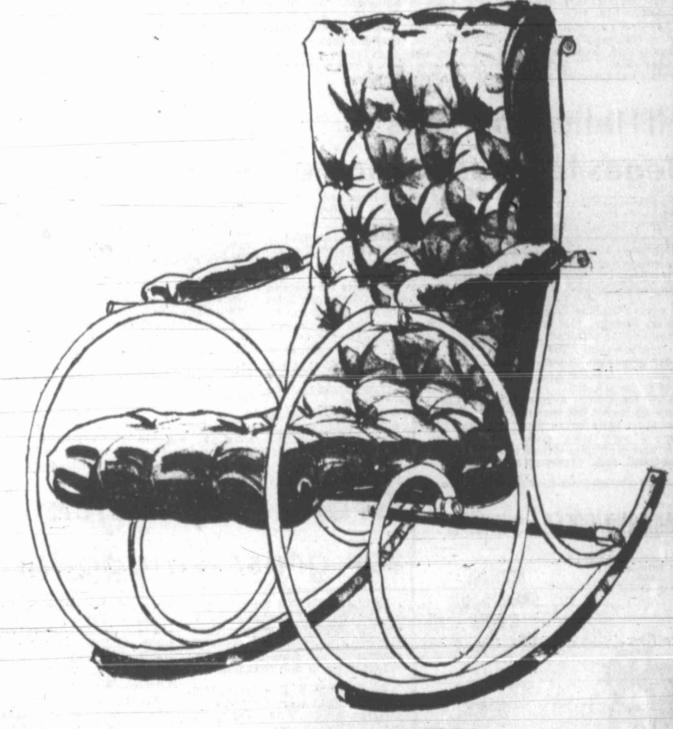

JERUSALEM - Foreign Minister Yigal Allon Tuesday issued a clear warning that Israel would not tolerate the military defeat of its Christian allies in southern Lebanon nor would it permit the destruction of its humanitarian services at open crossing points on the border with Lebanon.

In what is considered to be the clearest statement to date defining Israel's responsibility for its allies in southern Lebanon, Allon said on television that, as a neighboring country, Israel could not remain indifferent to the fate of friendly Lebanese villages close to its borders.

Allon said that, as Jews who have experienced massacres, Israelis could not permit the slaughter of Christian civilians within Israel's reach.

Allon's remarks, according to officials here, were a summation of his briefing to the Israeli Cabinet Tuesday in which he said these views had already been transmitted to all parties involved. The purpose of going public was to make sure that no one misunderstood Israel's position, sources said.

Espionage trial begins for Boyce

The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES - Four hours after his arrest, Christopher J. Boyce voluntarily admitted that he had photographed top secret documents in the possession of TRW, Inc. and arranged to have them sold to the Soviet Union for $70,000, an FBI agent testified Tuesday at the opening of Boyce's espionage trial.

Special Agent James E. White said that when Boyce was informed his alleged associate, Andrew Daulton Lee, had earlier been arrested in Mexico City, Boyce, 23, said "let's talk" and proceeded to waive his right against self incrimination and give a chronological account of the theft of White's recital of Boyce's oral statement, which defense attorneys unsuccessfully attempted to suppress prior to trial on grounds it was not freely given, outlined a plot and in-trigue to rival a James Bond thriller.

The 10-year FBI agent said Boyce told him that he quit his job as a security clerk at TRW in Redondo Beach in December 1976, in part at the direction of Russian agents, who suggested he go back to school and study Russian and Chinese affairs so he could get a job with the U.S. State Department.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Joel Levine, in his opening statement to the seven-man, five-woman jury, said that from early 1975 through 1976, Boyce and Lee, 25, delivered "thousands of documents" to the Russians through a science attache in the Soviet Union's embassy Boyce used the figure "thousands" of documents in his statement to the FBI. White testified. But under cross examination by defense attorney William Dougherty, White said Boyce had not indicated whether all those documents were classified.

When Lee was arrested Jan. 6 in front of the Soviet Embassy, several rolls of film were taken from him containing pictures of a top secret document known as the "Pyramider Project," prosecutors said.

Details of that classified project were revealed in Levine's opening statement when he told jurors the project was a study of a proposed covert satelite system that would be used to communicate with Central Intelligence Agency personnel in undercover capacities around the

Choice of Davis jury drags on

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) - The 119th prospective juror in the Cullen Davis capital murder trial was expected to undergo questioning by attorneys today following two days of closed hearings by State District Court Judge Tom Cave.

Judge Cave said the hearings were to consider what he called a 'serious' matter concerning the jury.
The judge told reporters, "There were no motions filed of any kind (Tuesday) which would include motions for a mistrial."

Rumors have surfaced in recent weeks that a mistrial would be necessary because of juror improprieties.

Grand jury indicts 19 for grass smuggling who formerly lived at Harlingen in DALLAS (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted a Mexican engineer and the operators of three aviation services in connection with a marijuana smuggling investigation spread across an eight-state area.

The indictment was returned last Thursday, but remained sealed until Tuesday. A total of 19 persons was named in the indictment

Investigators for the federal Drug Enforcement Administration said the two-year investigation revealed that Dallas was the hub of the $4.3 million operation, but that branches operated in New Mexico, Colorado, California, Arkansas, Georgia, Florida and New

Persons named in the indictment included Oscar S. Garcia de Anda, a civil engineer from Oaxaca, Mexico, who is accused of supplying 1,300 pounds of marijuana to the smugglers.

Robert Joseph Belmares of Dallas is accused of supervising the alleged million dollar smuggling operation. Belmares, 41, is the owner of three apartment complexes in the Oak Cliff section of Dallas.

Vet calls swamp office

OVERLAND, Mo. (AP) - Vietnamera veterans who received less than honorable discharges - including deserters - are swamping the government's Joint Liason Office here with more than 3,000 telephone calls a day seeking to have discharges upgraded to honorable status.

'At first we thought we would be able to handle about 5,000 a day," said Brig. Gen. Robert S. Young, com-mander of the Military Personnel Records Center here. "But it appears now that each telephone interview is taking longer than we expected and our limit is probably between 3,000

To handle the crush which began when the program was announced early this week, the center hired enough personnel to man 50 telephones for a 13-hour day. The workers, mostly young men and women, sit in small, cubicles in the basement of the two-block-long records center.

All 50 phones are constantly busy and callers, who can telephone tollfree, are kept on hold until a phone is

"It has really gone smoothly so far," said Maj. Donal E. Meynig, manager of the project. "We had just two weeks to get ready for it, but we can't complain about the way it's runthe major said. And while the official line is one of understanding and cooperation, there is an undertone of bitterness among some of the workers. "No, I don't like it," said one civilian worker. "I lost a son in Vietnam and I'm against this program. I just can't express my feelings around here," he said. After the initial call, applicants are advised by mail that they may submit additional data within 30 days for consideration. The program, initiated by President Carter to fulfill campaign pro-

Deserters who are still at large must turn themselves in to military authorities before they can become eligible for consideration.

Council delays action on MCAA

Midland City Council Tuesday decided to take no action now on whether to reappoint a city government representative to the board of the Midland Community Action Agency pending the results of a meeting between Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr., Councilman Carroll, Thomas and the agency's board.

Midland County commissioners have agreed to participate on the board, which will assure that the agency will at least be able to continue, Angelo said.

The city's participation, which ceased with the resignations of Mrs. Fran Henderson and Ed Harris from the board, would add to the likelihood of adequate funding for the agency, the mayor added.

"I think the council should try and get a complete reorganization before you continue participation in it,' Councilman Martin Neill said to his fellow councilmen.

Thomas said he would like to see city participation, but only if the agency will "start over with a new board" and have the present agency employes submit resignations, with a new board having the option of hiring the old employes or others who will do an adequate job of administering the agency's programs.

Alleged financial mismanagement by the old agency director and other problems have plagued the agency. The Midland School Board has decided to drop participation in the board because of these problems.

The council informally decided to continue participation if the bylaws or charter of the agency were amended to provide protection for appointees against financial liability by agency actions, a new board is constituted and the new board is given freedom to hire whoever it wants for the staff.

Thomas and Angelo are expected to report back to the council at the next meeting on the reaction by the agency's board to these requests. In other action, the council:

 Approved on first reading, City of Midland's request for a zone change from single-family and multi-family districts to office district for tract of land at southwest corner of intersection of Wadley Avenue and A Street, and also approved a change from single-family and two-family districts to multi-family district for a tract adjoining the tract zoned office district.

- Approved on first reading, Greg Pulliam's request for a zone change from multi-family district to planned district for a lot at Ohio Avenue and N Street. The lot, which will have an optician's office, must have a 6.5-foot solid fence on the north end to serve as a buffer between the residential area, the council decided.

-Approved on first Reading, Sam Thomas' request for a zone change from the most restrictive singlefamily district to a less restrictive single-family district for three out of four lots in a tract of land at Golf Course Road and Garfield Street. The other lot will retain its most restrictive single-family district zone.

 Approved on first reading. specific use permit for on-premise sale of alcoholic beverages at Daddy Don's Steak House, 2 Meta Drive.

Approved on first reading, David George's request for a zone change from single-family district to office district for lots 15 through 27 on Walton Street between Pecos Street and Loma Drive.

- Approved on first reading, Vernon Gilbert's request for zone change from single-family district to office district for lots 1 through 6 on Washington Avenue between C and D streets.

- Approved on first reading, The Reporter-Telegram's and the City of Midland's request for a zone change from the most restrictive commercial zone to the least restrictive commercial zone for several lots on the 200 to 700 blocks of North Weatherford and Fort Worth streets.

- Approved on first reading, Tom Craddick's and the City of Midland's request for a zone change from multifamily to office district for several blocks southeast of the intersection of Michigan Avenue and A Street.

- Approved on second reading amendments to building code and zoning ordinance to expand the use of mobile homes in some districts.

 Approved on second reading, Jimmie Leath's request for an amendment to the planned district for a lot adjacent to Western State Bank. 1030 Andrews Highway, that will allow the building of a six-story office building. The request resulted in several protests from neighbors at the first reading concerning infringement on privacy and possible parking problems.

City planner Richard Hennessy said the site plan remains the same as what the council reviewed from the previous meeting. He added that a council-requested diagram showing lines of sight have been prepared, and whatever requirements remain for paving and landscaping - another concern of the neighbors - will be reviewed for legal compliance prior to issuance of a building permit.

- Approved a one-year extension on restrictive covenant on Monterrey Spanish Kitchen that would have limited on-premise sale of alcoholic beverages to May 11.

- Heard planning department staff recommendations on how to allocate about $946,000 in Community Development block grant funds for fiscal year 1978. More than $300,000 is recommended for street paving and guttering, $220,000 for housing rehabilitation and lesser amounts for mostly housing-related projects. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which provides the money and intends for it to assist primarily low-and-moderate-income areas of the city, may try and tie the allocation of the money to city acceptance of rental-assistance housing, Angelo said. He said the council should fight such an effort by HUD. "Midland survived very well without Community Development funds in the past and could do so in the future," Angelo said. The council will make no final decision on now the money should be spent until the next council meeting, the council agreed, so that more citizen comments can be

- Approved $11,500 purchase of trash containers to service Texas Instruments at Air Terminal

- Postponed action on Reynolds Brothers Reproduction Co.'s request to have the city remove a refuse compactor from near their building at 315 N. Colorado St. The city considers it a convenient location, but the company said it has caused problems with employe parking.

- Postponed action on Midland County Commissioner Jack Leonard's request to have the city allow the county to make improvements to Taylor Avenue, Appaloosa Street and Henderson Boulevard, which fall within the city and aren't dedicated. Leonard manages a VFW Post that needs the improved roads to provide better access to the building, but the council declined to grant the county per-mission to do the work until a discussion is held with Leonard about having the streets dedicated.

Historians to honor Midlanders

Mrs. M.N. (Ada) Phillips and Berte R. Haigh, both longtime Midland residents, will receive Permian Pioneer awards presented by the Permian Historical Society at its spring meeting scheduled Friday at the Rodeway Inn here. Two longtime Odessa residents -

Mrs. Homer R. (Annie) Henderson and Mrs. R.T. (Mary Lee) Waddell also will receive Permian Pioneer awards. Mrs. Phillips and her late husband came to Midland in 1927 and since then she has spent a large part of her time researching the history of Midland and Midland County. She helped with cataloguing collections of artifacts for the Midland County Historical Museum during its early years. She also originated the museum's obituary file and has been responsible for placing a number of historical collections in the museum.

She is a charter and life member of the Midland County Historical Society and has served it as an officer since its organization in 1956 by Friends of the Library, of which she also is a charter member. She has prepared and delivered a number of papers on Midland County history and is the author of "The History of Glasscock County," "History of Medicine in Midland County" and "Pioneer Women of West Texas."

Mrs. Phillips, a longtime member and director of the Permian Historical Society, helped with the research for the 24 official Historical Markers in Midland County, as well as the 31 Civil War veterans' sulfur deposits melts this yellow element, which is routed to the earth's surface as a brownish, syrupy liquid. It is then pumped to a concrete bin, where the gunk cools and again becomes hardened and brittle.

Gravitt's companions on the bus seemed interested in his briefings on sulfur. They should have been. The land from whence the brimstone is drawn belongs to UT, which has leased 7,680 acres to the mining outfit. And the UT lands office more or less monitors the output. Once at the mining site, plant superintendent George Richardson took the group on a tour of the The UT gang walked atop the bin containing 100,000 long stockpiled tons of sulfur. The concrete walls of the two-acre bin stood somewhere between 15 and 20 feet tall. "Before we get through," Richardson said, "it'll be about 50 foot

The UT lands folks climbed aboard the bus, which then carried them over the slowly , sinking land that covers the mines.

Ten of the 14 wells at the site were pumping molten sulfur to the surface. Some of the guys along for the ride were joking about the bus sinking in the dust-laden soil.

And after all the gang members had piled out of the bus and took a gander at a gaping hole in the earth, one of their numbers thought perhaps the sinking soil wasn't altogether something to joke about.

"That bus weighs an awful lot." said secretary Rita Rusnak. "I don't see any point in tempting fate."

They boarded the bus, which rumbled and eased off the bleak land that covers the mines.

Later, members of the touring group looked over the $10 million plant that softens the hard water that is then heated to melt the sulfur and extract it 600 feet below the earth. (The water is softened to remove the mineral contents that otherwise would clog the pipes.) Before the tour ended, Richardson offered the visitors sulfur cores and sulfur paperweights marked with

"Tg" and "Texasgulf." The sight of sulfur in the raw clearly was more appealing than the peculiar smell of the brimstone 'No," secretary Joanna Webb said.

"I don't like the smell of the sulfur." But she definitely took a fancy, as did most, to the crystal-like quality of that brittle, yellow mineral in the

Congress' goof hurts taxpayers

By MIKE CAUSEY The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - President Carter needs to settle an urgent $300 million tax problem that has already hit more than a million Americans, many of them sick, disabled or retired on small pensions.

The people involved - thanks to a mistake by Congress - have been socked with unexpected 1976 tax bills ranging from $50 to $1,000 per person. The bills are due by midnight Friday.

The problem arose when Congress, late in 1976 voted to wipe out - for the entire year of 1976 - a heretofore legal, $100 per week sick or disability pay tax break. Almost as soon as the tax reform act was passed, Congress began to make noises as though it would clarify its mistake. But it left town last week with the clarifying legislation, called the Dole-Daniel bill, still hanging.

Although both the Senate and House approved the Dole-Daniel bill without a single dissenting vote, the Senate balked at giving the House version final approval on April 7 after

Finance Committee Chairman Russell Long (D-La.) said President Carter might veto it. (The changes involved language unrelated to the tax -clarification matter.)

Long says that the Treasury Department opposes the bill on grounds it would cost something over $300 million this year. Judging by the ill will that the retroactive tax bite has created - and the precedent it sets for everybody in future tax "reform" action - the Carter administration would be wise to forget the $300 million.

Since Congress made the original mistake, maybe it could come up with a new source of revenue for the 1976 year to cover things.

Because Congress left town without taking action on the corrective Dole-Daniel bill, those 1.5 million people involved must go ahead and pay their 1976 taxes on time, and pay the extra money they owe because Congress changed the rules. They will be able to have it refunded - if the law is changed - but they must pay out in the

Some people will probably be hit with interest penalties from the government because those who pay quarterly estimated tax bills underestimated their tax bite. because Congress made a mistake.

Very few people argue that Congress did wrong when it wiped out the $100 per week federal tax exclusion on sick and disability pay for most peo-

But nearly everybody agrees that Congress did the wrong thing, at the wrong time, by making the changes retroactive. As it is, people will have to pay extra money, and penalties in some cases, even if they do get some kind of refund later on.

Some people are talking about a

Congress' making retroactive changes in the law. It would be an interesting case. Also an expensive one.

An easier way would be for the President to back the Dole-Daniel bill and put IRS, Congress and taxpayers on notice that he wants it passed and will sign it. In a letter to the President (dated April 8) Dole and Daniel said:

"It is our sincere hope that you will everrule the objections of the IRS and affirm your own support of this needed legislation ... Your commitment would allow thousands of hardpressed taxpayers to use the filing deadline extension already available and to pay a lower estimated tax confident that the Congress and President will soon enact a change in this retroactive, unnecessary, and harshly unfair tax burden ..

BIG SPRING - Big McKenzie will leave that post to become superintendent of schools

Alvin school trustees Monday night voted unanimously to offer the job to McKenzie, who said last week he would accept the position if it were offered.

McKenzie said he will submit his resignation at the Big Spring school board meeting Thursday. He had been school superintendent in Big Spring since 1974 and will take the job in Alvin in June.

The Alvin school district has an enrollment of 7,800 with an expected annual increase of 500 students.

Moore Arthur Cotton Moore, is proposed razing the building, perhaps leaving its facade standing as now being considered by the Department of Transportation's policy sort of an instant Roman development office. The City of Baltimore hopes that DOT, through its new program called Value Capture, may put up the proposal.

The idea centers around a city block of Baltimore's downtown heartland, near Charles Center. Around the site now are four major department stores and the Lexington food market, an increasing magnet for the whole country. The block will be the central station for Baltimore's new subway system. Work on the station is expected to begin this fall.

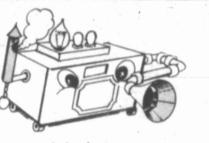

Moore's idea is this: Instead of building just a subway station, why not make it the hub of a great city center?

Value Capture, a longdiscussed but not yet organized DOT program, in this instance, would be the fares from the increased number of riders the project might be expected to bring, plus the profits from land leases. The money ear-ned go to the transit system.

Because of the steep grade, Moore was able to propose a subway mezzanine which would be entered on grade at Howard Street. The 40foot rise in the land, Moore explained, would permit hillside terracing for all sorts of amenities: boutiques (some of them in a multi-story glass cube), a swimming pool

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. - An institute here has become the center of a controversy between the orthodox medical establishment and a man practicing a revolutionary method for treating cardiovascular disease and related illnesses such as diabetes.

It is housed in an innocuous looking white stucco motel facing the Pacific Ocean, but the motel's residents are not ordinary guests. They are patients at Nathan Pritikin's Longevity Research Institute (LRI), people who have hypertension, angina (chest pains), atherosclerosis (clogged arteries), diabetes and all of their debilitating symptoms to various degrees: shortness of breath, inability to walk more than a few feet,

Through exercise and a highly restrictive diet, says Pritikin, who is not a physician but has five doctors on his staff, the patients are able to return to near-normal functions. When the program began in January 1976, Pritikin was also claiming a reversal of certain diseases and it is this claim more than improved functioning of the patients that has created the controversy.

In fact, the director of the National Institutes of Health Heart and Lung Institute, Dr. Robert Levy, agrees that the diet and exercise program would have beneficial results. But he said: "There is no evidence that in 30 days you can reverse atherosclerosis." Last fall Levy sent a team of investigators to Santa Barbara to study the institute's methods and results. He said, "We could find no evidence that they could substantiate their claims.

"You prove something by controlled scientific studies. We would hope we could do that some day. I consider it inappropriate to put those anecdotal claims in the press and the lay press at that, not the scientific

The most spectacular of what Levy calls anecdotal material concerns an 87-year-old woman, who according to a recent magazine article, "couldn't walk 100 feet without suffering crippling pains in her legs, and her circulation was so poor that she almost always wore gloves. Congestive heart failure, high blood pressure, angina, arthritis and heart disease seemed to have taken their

Miracle? "It's no miracle when you go on this diet and exercise." Pritikin said during a recent interview at his

The diet is 10 per cent fat, 10 per cent protein and 80 per cent complex carbohydrates (whole grains, fruits and vegetables) along with a slow but increasingly strenuous exercise program of walking. That was Eula Weaver's "miracle." And it has become a cure for several hundred patients over the last 15 months.

Candidates for the 26-day program, which costs $2,750 plus about $1,000 in medical tests, often bring their spouses to LRI and always bring their medications. The daily routine is quite simple. There are eight low-fat, low-protein, low-cholesterol meals that are totally free of sugar except for that which occurs naturally in fruits, and other simple carbohydrates. No salt is added and foods naturally high in salt are not permitted. Coffee, tea and all alcoholic beverages are forbidden.

Between the eight mini-meals the patients must walk. For those who cannot walk more than a few hundred feet without shortness of breath, the distances are small in the beginning. By the end of the month the patients are walking at least six miles a day. Jogging and tennis are not ruled out for the more physically fit.

The day is also taken up with various tests to check the blood levels for cholesterol, triglycerides, blood pressure, heart stress. There are lectures about the relationship between diet and degenerative diseases and how to carry on the program once the patient has gone home.

The regimen is based on the theory that the degenerative diseases of the Western world are the result of the rich diet high in fat, especially animal fat, refined foods filled with sugar, smoking, excessive drinking and a sedentary life. The theory is not at all revolutionary.

The current normal American diet is 42 per cent fat, 12 per cent protein and 46 per cent carbohydrate, of which only 22 per cent is complex carbohydrated; the other 24 per cent is sugar in various forms.

Physicians such as Levy believe that Americans' eating and living habits must be changed to prevent heart attacks but the changes they recommend are far more moderate. For one thing Levy does not believe that many would be willing to stick with Pritikin's highly restrictive diet. Levy said, "To follow the diet for an extended period would require great motivation and drastic restrictions in use of usual food products that most Americans currently enjoy. It is unlikely that many persons would be willing and able to continue such dietary restrictions very long after leaving the supervised environment rovided by Mr. Pritikin's staff." Pritikin claims "80 to 90 per cent conformity" by former patients.

One of the LRI advisory board members, British physician, Hugh Trowell, agrees that the diet may seem hard to take for an outsider. He and Dr. Denis Burkitt, a British authority on the relationship between dietary fiber and degenerative diseases, spent several days at LRI, mainly, according to Trowell, to themselves that LRI is legitimate. Burkitt, who is also an advisory board member, and Trowell "snooped around" because they decided "if there is some hanky panky, we'd go away." While they were there they had trouble adjusting to the diet. "You do run into the palatability question," Trowell said. "Denis had to go out and buy cookies." But he said, "I couldn't find anyone there who said he was hungry.

Pritikin's maintenance diet avoids cholesterol, sugars

By MARIAN BURROS The Washington Post

The so-called Pritikin diet does not differ substantially from diets of other cultures where meat, sugar and salt are scarce but there are plenty of grains, fruits and vegetables. It carries the recommendations of the Senate Nutrition Committee's "Dietary Goals for the United States" several steps further.

The diet at the Longevity Research Institute is more restrictive than the maintenance diet. A 600recipe cookbook, "The Live Longer Now Cookbook,' by Jon Leonard and Elaine Taylor outlines the maintenance diet. Its many don'ts will seem alien to most Americans. Along with the recipes for soups and salad, main dishes, breads and desserts, a chapter is devoted to making lowfat cheeses and other substitutes for foods not available on the commercial market. There are five commandments that form the basis of the diet:

Don't use fats or oils and avoid fatty meats fat. such as bacon and sausage.

Don't use sugar or any other simple carbohydrates such as molasses, corn syrup or honey. This includes the foods in which they are found: pies, cakes, pastries, sugared cereals, breads.

Soviets revive matchmaking following 50 year demise

By ROBERT C. TOTH The Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW — The Soviet government may be getting ready to revive an old Russian institution — the matchmaker.

The business of getting men and women together has been outlawed here for half a century, since the revolution, but recent articles in the press suggest that the government has decided it might be a good

- In the early 1920s a revolutionary feminist proclaimed that love - meaning sex - had been ennobled by socialism and made "as free as a glass of water." Vladimir Ilyich Lenin retorted that men "don't want to drink from the gutter, or from a glass with a dirty rim," but free love reigned until about 1936, when Pravda declared that a disorderly sex life was "bourgeois through and through."

— It was about this time, too, in the middle 1930s, that the authorities realized that a stable society needed the family as its basic unit, to care for children if nothing else. Parents were again made legally responsible for their children.

Feminine flyer breaks barrier in Navy

By FRANK SALDANA Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO, Calif. - Mary Louise Jorgensen used to dream of being a model or an interior decorator while growing up in Manhattan Beach,

It never occurred to the slim blonde that one day she would be the first woman tactical jet pilot assigned to Miramar Naval Air Station here.

In fact, Lt. (j.g.) Jorgensen joined the Navy in 1972 out of frustration. She felt her degree in business management from the University of Utah wasn't paying off.

"I wasn't getting anywhere in civilian life and office work wasn't for me," she says.

"Yes, I have noticed some hostility toward me. I guess I would feel the same way if a man entered a field which traditionally had been only all women."

She inquired about the Navy's officer program and soon was among the students in the Officers Candidate Still, the thought of flying didn't hit Jorgensen until she was assigned to Pensacola, Fla., for her first tour of duty.

She says she spent quite a bit of spare time pestering some of the officers to get her into flight training.

She also started taking flying lessons at a civilian airport. Jorgensen's persistence paid off. She was the 22nd woman accepted into flight training, the 12th to receive her wings and only the second to become jet qualified. "I look upon Adm. (Elmo) Zumwalt (former chief of naval operations) as my benefactor," she said. "He opened up the flight program to women in 1972."

Jorgensen, 26, said she had to undergo the same training as all naval aviators and she didn't feel she was getting preferential treatment.

About the only exception was in the flight locker area where pilots keep their gear. A separate dressing room was arranged for her and other women classmates.

But there were problems. "Yes, I have noticed some hostility toward me," she said. "I don't blame some of the men. I guess we represent a blow to their ego. "I guess I would feel the same way if a man entered a field which traditionally had been only all

But she adds that most of the pilots are helpful and have accepted her and that's what she wants most. She has logged more than 300 hours flight time and is scheduled to be promoted to lieutenant soon. Since the program began four years ago, women have been assigned to fly helicopters, prop-driven planes and jet transports.

Although she flies a combat plane, she cannot, under existing law, be assigned to combat. She reported recently to Composite Squadron 7, the "Redtails." Jorgensen is one of two women officers in the squadron. There are 24 Navy women in the squadron, performing tasks from working on the Skyhawk A4E jets to clerical work.

Audit raises panel query

WASHINGTON (AP) - A congressional audit says that 26 per cent of the 1,500 federal advisory committees in existence in 1975 held no meetings and 59 per cent issued no

The General Accounting Office, an investigating arm of Congress, said lack of meetings or reports is not conclusive evidence in evaluating a committee's usefulness

However, it said, the findings raise questions that should be examined. It also said, in noting that 36 per cent of the committees were over 10 years old, that "extremely old committees would be suspect.

The report said the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and other federal agencies have difficulty in identifying useless advisory committees because they have not developed objective criteria for evaluating them

The GAO said the government spent $60 million in 1976 on advisory committees. At the end of the year there were 1,159 of the committees, down from 1,267 at the end of 1975.

SEATTLE (AP) - Bill Griffin says he used to hang around with the janitor when his high school teachers kicked him out of class. Now he has written a custodian's textbook and teaches janitors at South Seattle Community College.

"Honestly, how I got into it was when I was in high school. They used to kick me out of class," said Griffin. "I was kind of slow. I just didn't adapt very well to the educational system.

Griffin, 27, has written a 350- page 'Comprehensive Custodial Training Manual," and teaches an eight-week class at the two-year school on how to be a janitor.

"The janitor always used to be thought of as the guy who swept the floor," Griffin said. "You know, just kind of hung around the basement with a dirty pail and a dirty mop over his shoulder.

"That's changed. There's so many surfaces that they have to take care of now and a lot of governmental regulations they've got to know, like in food processing.

Joggers' feet need care

By NIKKI FINKE

BOSTON (AP) — Dr. Rob Roy MacGregor jogs 15 miles a day, and like most runners, his feet give him trouble. But MacGregor doesn't just endure the pain - he studies it.

MacGregor, a podiatrist, heads a clinic just for runners and their problems at Nea England Deaconess Hospital here. "Think Feet," says the poster in his office.

In a typical day the clinic will treat the heels, soles, ankles and toes of high school track stars, lanky marathon runners and middle-aged joggers.

"Sooner or later every runner has pain," MacGregor said in an inerview. "That's where we come in to help them adjust to it and even remove it. MacGregor believes any problem that a runner has - stiff knees, buckling ankles or aching calves can be corrected by changing the position of his feet in motion. "Most doctors tell their patients to stop running if they complain of pain," MacGregor says. "We don't do

Among those making use of the clinic is Tom Derderian, 27, of Amherst, Mass., who has run the grueling Boston Marathon in each of the last 12 years. Derderian said he often experiences sharp pain around the second toe of his right foot.

"It isn't serious to my daily life, said Derderian, who manages a food cooperative, "but it's like someone whose guitar is out of tune. The average listener won't know it, but

Jeff Johnson, coach of the Seacoast Striders track club in Exeter, N.H., brings about 20 runners to the clinic every two weeks.

"Five years ago, there was no help for us, no one to focus on our special problems," Johnson said. "Now more and more people are running and those millimeter deformities that come out in everyone's feet after 10,000 strides need to be corrected." MacGregor and his team of foot

Traxler, 21, won't be making his debut at the rahrah tryouts May 7 at Texas Stadium. He gave it a go last year, but missed the cut. He suspects, but only suspects mind you, the reason has something to do with his figure.

Traxler received his forms and orientation letter recently stating, "Our judges will rate you on poise, personality, smile, voice, figure and dance ability."

That business about being judged on figure disturbed him but it was the mention of suggested attire that got his attention.

"What surprised me about last year's tryout was that nobody had to do any cheer-leads for the tryouts," he said. "It was all dancing. Disco dancing, you know. I wore cutoff jeans and a cotton sweatshirt under a blue sport shirt. This time, though, since they're urging everybody to wear short shorts and a halter top-well, I'm not saying I will wear those, but I'm not saying I won't. I'm going to think about it."

REEN'S

Mistress' lifestyle not always a bed of roses

By RHODA AMON Newsday

NEW YORK - Mostly, they are conventional young women, dreaming conventional dreams. They toil at ordinary jobs in offices, banks, school's, restaurants. And despite all today's talk of "meaningful relationships" outside of wedlock - they want to get married and have babies.

They can't for one reason: Their lovers are married to someone else. In the country of the Married, Suburbia, they live a back-street exile of clande stine meetings in deserted parks, coded telephone messages, lovem aking snatched at odd, inconvenient hours.

"The intrigue adds sexual excitement, but it's more than overshadowed by the pain of knowing he's going home to his wife," says Millicent, 27, a slim, gamin-faced blonde. Painfully aware that many other women are caught in the same emotional trap, she and nine others on Long Island have formed a selfhelp organization called "Mistresses Anonymous." Like those who join Alcoholics Anonymous, Overeaters Anonymous and Gamblers Anonymous, MA members try to help each other to kick the habit - to end the love affair, to let go the thin edge of hope that he really will leave his wife, as he has so often promised.

THE TERM MISTRESS rings oldfashioned - redolent of naughty lace garters and gas-lit red damaskdraped Victorian boudoirs - in a modern society preoccupied with medi a mirroring of the sexual revolution, open marriage, group sex and swinging. But such titillating goingson in volve only a miniscule portion of the population. Statistics show, however, that a good number of Americans - one out of five busiriessmen, according to a recent study of 6,000 executives - regularly indul ge in old-fashioned extra-marital sex. 'This squares with Millicent's own informal survey of office women: "Out of the five new people hired by my company, at least one is joining she says. Most of the women are involved in deep covert relationships: of several years' duration.

"M'A helps us keep our sanity. You have no one else to talk to," says Cynthia, 27, a tall outwardly-poised brunette. "You can't talk to your mother — she's also a wife," Millicent adds: "Your own mother sides with his vvife against her own daughter."

Like soldiers or airplane pilots, mist resses lead much less exciting lives than is generally supposed. Hours of sheer boredom stretch endlessly between the brief moments of exhilaration. They exchange bitter jokes about being on the 5-to-7 p.m. shift or the midnight-to-1:30 a.m. apres-bowling shift.

"Some nights you wait and he doe.sn't show up at all. He says his Millicent says. The suburban mistress rarely sees her lover on weekends, when he is occupied with

Time to get number

ODESSA - Students, housewives and other persons who plan to get a summer job should apply now for a Sociel Security number if they don't already have one, Erven L. Fisher Jr., Social Security district manager in Odessa said.

"Persons should apply for the number several weeks before it is ne eded for a job covered by Social Security," Fisher said. "Frequently an employer will require that a new eraploye have a number before be ginning work.'

his family. Holidays like Christmas hesitate to remind Lisa that her lover are the cruelest times to spend alone. What do you say when your mother asks you where your boyfriend is? Millicent asks.

Racked by love, frustrations and guilt feelings, some compensate with other addictions. Millicent was developing a drinking problem. Cheryl turned to food for solace. (MA helped her drop 25 pounds.) Lisa went on a wild credit-buying spree after her lover asked what he should get his wife for Christmas. Like AA members, the mistresses carry each other's telephone numbers so they can bolster each other in times of crisis. Low self-esteem, the mistresses say, is often at the root of a love addiction

Changing social mores have made it easier to get into the affair, but not more socially acceptable, according to Millicent. "Nothing has changed where I am" she says. "People still talk. You still have to park your cars in different places, blocks apart. It's amazing how you always run into people he knows. Its a degrading role

So why become a mistress? "We never planned it that way," Lisa replies, "but the intellect and the emotions don't always see eye-to-

THE MISTRESS will vehemently disavow any connotation of "homewrecker." The marriage, she says, was hollow to begin with, held together — he says — only by the children. "They use the children a lot. They tell you you wouldn't understand because you've never had a child," says Millicent, nervously lighting a cigarette. "You're the villain."

Whether the women come off as villains or victims, the birth of Mistresses Anonymous is seen as a hopeful sign by feminist Gloria Steinem. "It sounds like they're really trying to become more independent, to be less outmoded," Steinem

Karen DeCrow, president of the National Organization for Women, says, "I think it's the guys who have the problem. The guys should form an organization called 'Confused Anonymous.'

Meanwhile, as outsiders pontificate easily on "the problem," the loveaddicted mistresses meet every Monday night in each other's apartments. There is no set format. Whoever has had a bad time that week is given first chance to speak. This particular week the subject is Lisa, a pale young woman with long brown hair and warm brown eyes who looks younger than her 28 years. (Names have been changed to protect the women's anonymity.)

Lisa's lover has invited her to join him on the West Coast where he is performing for a month. "Part of me wants to go," she says. "The other part of me is saying no, I shouldn't."

"You're crazy," Cynthia says. "You're just getting up the strength to get rid of the relationship. You'll be investing additional emotion, and risking your job, too. You're playing with fire. It isn't worth it.'

A few days later Lisa called in sick on her job and picked up an airline ticket. She spent an idyllic week alone with her lover. Only a long-distance phone call from his wife jolted their fantasy. When she returned home, he called to tell her his wife was joining him for the following week.

There are no gloating I-told-youso's, but the other mistresses don't

Judges serving life sentences

WEST ORANGE, N.J. (AP) - Two Essex County Court judges have started serving life sentences

When Judge Marilyn Loftus of Verona and Judge F. Michael Caruso of Newark exchanged wedding vows this weekend, it marked the first time two members of New Jersey's judiciary had married each other.

Their cake was decorated with scales of justice. Desserts served to family, friends and members of court staffs were shaped like gavels.

The bride said Saturday she still will be known as Marilyn Loftus professionally, but she did not know what name she would use privately.

Her husband said that "for the time being she is Loftus-Caruso. We will worry about it later on.'

"Looking back, I realize that I could have diet, and I would appreciate it if the USDA-Department Nutrition Service) would accept the enclosed concern" letter.

didn't inform her of his wife's pending visit out of a desire to be honest and open with her. "He just wanted to make sure you didn't phone his hotel room when his wife was there," they

Cynthia, who worked in a drug rehabilitation program where she learned the latest therapy techniques, urges Lisa to show her anger: "Admit that you are furious."

Irene, older, wearier, is compasionate: "It's easy to be strong when it's someone else's feelings," she says. "At least she's getting love and affection. She's luckier than I am." Irene's story was the topic of a previous meeting. For years she had bestowed her sympathy and affection on a man whose wife was mentally ill. After the wife committed suicide, Irene discovered that the man had another mistress besides herself. It still hurts, she says, to realize that the object of her affection was actually manipulating three women.

CHIVALRY, ALAS, is dead, along with the proverbial "sugar daddy who provided his "little girl" with a luxurious apartment, champagne and caviar - the mistresses agree. If women's liberation has made a difference in the women's lives, its contribution has been to make them selfsupporting, financially if not emo-tionally independent. Having moved out of the homes of their middle-class parents, they live alone in small apartments, struggling to pay the rent out of their own, for the most part, meager salaries.

Millicent, who has a $7,000-a-year job, says her landlady recently raised her rent to $200 a month. "When I told her I couldn't afford it, she snapped, Well, you have a boyfriend who comes several nights a week and hides his car behind the garage; he must be taking care of you.' Everyone has that impression, his wife, his mother. It's just not the case. Most of us would rather die than ask him for financial help.'

She knows of at least one mistress who gives her married boyfriend money when he's in trouble. "We're not dealing with guys who make $100,000 a year," she says. "We get into a pattern of giving more than we get, whether it's emotionally or financially. It's frightening the way we settle for crumbs."

About half the mistresses in MA met their married lovers "in the singles scene," according to Cynthia. She vividly remembers her own first venture, alone, into a singles bar shortly after she came to Long Island to live and work. "I found out later that it was known as a cheaters' place," she says, "but that night I was desperately lonely." In any case, the young man she met there was likeable and attractive. "He admitted he was married, but he was so pleasant and I thought there would be no harm in meeting him for lunch or a drink now and then," she recalls. "I never in my wildest dreams thought I could get so involved with a married man. You think of yourself as a nice girl, that it couldn't happen to you."

SEX - CONTRARY to popular belief - is not the most important factor in the relationship, the mistresses insist. "You're drawn together not only sexually but because you're lonely," Cynthia says. "After you become close intellectually and emotionally, then you sexually open yourself

Despite their tenuous claim - or maybe because of it - married men tend to be possessive, jealous lovers, their mistresses say. Writers Susan Kedgley and Wendy James, two former mistresses who interviewed 40 mistresses and their lovers for their book "Mistresses: The Free Woman & The Unfree Man," conclude: "The double standard still prevails, with the lover often expecting total fidelity from his mistress while assuming his right to be as unfaithful as he likes."

Millicent, more earthy, puts it this way: "They just want you to stay in the closet where they can come and play whenever they have the time. Her lover, she says, tells her "it would kill him to think of me with anyone else." However, she says, he is now as faithful as she is.

"He's very righteous now, but there was a time when he was so unhappy he was constantly cheating. I still tease him that someday he would settle down, but I never dreamed it would be with me.

Convertible not gone with wind

The Los Angeles Times CLEARWATER, Fla.

Detroit dumped the convertible last year it looked as though another symbol of Americana might go the route of the cigar store Indian, the steam locomotive, the trolley car and the rumble seat.

Among the culprits in the convertible's demise were air conditioning, the advent of hardtops and vinyl tops, tough new federal auto safety regulations and the changing driving habits of Americans. Most U.S. auto companies stopped making convertibles more than a year ago. Cadillac was the last to offer one

Mark Doyne, a convertible buff who has owned about 150 of them himself, doesn't intend to let the "ragtop" become extinct. On the contrary, where the Big Three auto makers were losing money turning out convertibles. Doyne's six-year-old firm, Emess Coach Builders, is thriving here by a still-robust demand for the open-air vehicles.

The automakers in Detroit needed volume to prevent the convertible from being the money loser it became. The open top car needed its own assembly line and that no longer proved feasible. But Emess can command top dollar from those people who still want convertible

A few European car companies — Mercedes in Germany, Fiat in Italy, MG in Great Britain and others - still make convertibles. But these are nonhydraulic, manually operated Until the last Cadillac Eldorado convertible rolled off the assembly line last year, Emess had specialized in restoring antique autos and reconditioning cars for fleet leasing firms. Now it is exclusively in the manufacture of convertibles.

Emess is one of a growing number of coach builders and automobile customizers which are cashing in on a demand for exotic cars. Many also install convertible tops or sun roofs.

Business has been so brisk, Emess has moved into a new, 30,000-square foot factory. This has more than tripled its working space. At the end of last year, Emess could turn out about a dozen cars a month. But that figure is climbing and will reach about 80 by mid-year.

The fledgling company's revenues are rising correspondingly. In the past $20,000 to $30,000 worth of work was a lot for Emess in a month.

Revenues in the first quarter of this year are expected to total $250,000. For all 1977 they'll amount to $3 million, Doyne predicts.

How does the entrepreneur account for this growth? "When you cannot buy something," he said, "you want it all the more. And a lot of people still want con-He divides domestic convertible buyers into three groups: those who purchase them for status, those who honestly enjoy convertibles and those who buy them as an investment. As long as there are a limit number of an item, he says, the price will always be good. He figures that within a decade one of his customized Mustang IIs - which he has dubbed the Classic II - will be worth between $15,000 and $20,000.

"People bought the last Caddies that came off the assembly line and put them away," Doyne says. "Only about 14,000 were made last year. They sold for about $14,000 and they are now worth about $50,000. If you can no longer buy it, it becomes hellishly valuable.

The cars that Doyne's firm turns out aren't cheap, either. But that doesn't faze his customers, he says.

"There seems to be a tremendous amount of money around for luxury items," he says. Although for the right price, Emess will turn just about any car into a convertible, its success has forced it to work at an assembly line pace. As a result, it deals almost exclusively in Ford Mustangs. But it has also converted such cars as the Lincoln Continental Mark V the Chevrolet Monte Carlo, Buick Regal, Chrysler Cordoba and the Dodge Charger.

The conversion of a Mustang coupe into the Mustang Classic II costs

$4,250. "You've got to buy the car," says Doyne, "and then you've got to spend almost the cost of the car to have it converted.'

Should a customer want the Mark V converted into a rag top, Emess charges about $9,000 to change over the car which already retails for

Pagel, Randall pace Cubs to 10-7 win

BY TED BATTLES

A week ago Karl Pagel was on the Pompano Beach roster and appeared ticketed for the Class A League. Aaron Randall figured he might be destined for the same fate when Midland added firstbaseman Tony Pepper to the roster just before leaving Scottsdale, Ariz., Sunday.

Both, however, wound up in Midland and because they did, Midland won its Texas League opener over San Antonio, 10-7, in traditional first-game weather, chilly and blowing up to 35 mph.

Among Pagel's three hits, was a three-run homer in the fifth, which brought the Cubs from behind 5-0 and 6-2 into a 6-6 tie. RANDALL ONLY got one shot, but made the most of it, delivering a game-winning, two-out bases loaded single in the seventh to give Midland its first lead, 9-7. Old reliable, Bill Huisman, then added a little frosting with a double into the left field corner for another run.

Strangely enough, the winning fourrun rally started after Joe Hernandez singled and Tony Pepper grounded into a snappy double play.

Duane Gustavson kept things alive with a single and Pagel singled for his third hit of the night. That brought Dave Patterson out of the bullpen for George Kunkler and he walked Earle Chew and Steve Davis to force in the tying run.

Randall then pinch hit for Darrell Turner, who survived a rocky five-run third to get the win, and Aaron singled up the middle on a 2-2 pitch.

ART FISCHETTI, more noted for his base-stealing than his power hitting, and Dan Cardoza hit two run homers to highlight the Dodgers' five-

Hernandez' sacrifice fly behind a walk to Turner and Huisman's single got one back in the third and Pagel's double and singles by Chew, Davis and Turner made it 5-2 after four.

Mike Ruchde's lead off homer in the fifth made it 6-2. Not so oddly, the way the wind was blowing to left, all four of the game's homers were by lefthanded batters on balls that rode rode the wind over the left field fence.

In the fifth, Keith Drumright singled, stole second and Pepper walked to set up Gustavson's run scoring single and then Pagel, who set an rbi record at the University of Texas, boomed his homer.

ONCE MIDLAND got ahead, Andy Muhlstock, picked up in a trade with San Francisco last winter, nailed it

Phil Wrigley loved his Chicago Cubs, but hated new trend

Wrigley had not been 82 years old and in the December of a full and productive life, one might deduce that he died of a broken heart.

"Phil's soul was in baseball and there is no doubt about that, like many of us, he was greatly distressed by the trend the game was taking," said M. Donald Grant, chairman of the board of the New York Mets, commenting on the death of the chewing gum magnate who owned the Chicago Cubs.

"His passing would be a sad occurrence under the circumstances but specially unfortunate at this stage when there is so much confusion and dissension. Free agency and high salaries are causing a lot of unhap-

"The pendulum will swing back. Baseball is bound to change back to the kind of game Phil Wrigley fought for and envisioned. It is too bad he didn't get to stay around and see it.

Phil Wrigley was one of a vanishing breed, an unshakeable traditionalist who never saw the game as anything but an afternoon of sport played on green grass in bright sunshine before shirt-sleeved men, women and kids.

Although he presided over a vast chewing gum fortune in Chicago, he never quite got used to the intrusion of the 20th Century into the game he loved. Night baseball, bigtime television, the players' union, law suits, tampering with the reserve clause, agents and the resulting astronomical salary demands-these were realities he refused to face.

One of his final acts as a blow for the preservation of the status quo was that of unloading the National Leagues' twotime batting champion,

Amazing Rebel rally tops Bulldogs, 12-10

An amazing seven-run outburst in the top of the seventh inning Tuesday afternoon, gave the Robert E. Lee Rebels a 12-10 baseball victory over the Midland Bulldogs.

Trailing 10-5 in the seventh and having only three hits off two Midland pitchers, the Rebels scored six runs after two were out to take the District 5-4A win

Midland outhit the Rebels, 14-8 with Steve Cole and Kevin Pearce paving the way, but costly errors and some timely hitting by Lee in the seventh. was the difference.

Cole had a perfect day at the plate, going four-for-four and scored four runs. He had a solo home run in the first inning off starter Doug Schmidt. Pearce, meanwhile, slammed a pair of two-run homers and knocked in five runs for the Purple Pack which was dropping to a 4-15 season mark and winding up the first half of the 5-4A race with a 1-6 reading.

LEE, MEANWHILE, is now 14-8 on the year and finished with a 4-3 loop reading as the second half of the race opens Thursday when Lee travels to Odessa to take on Odessa High and Midland entertains Permian at 4 p.m.

Lee took a 1-0 lead off Robert Strack in the first inning without getting a hit. Todd Clements, who led the Reb attack with four RBI's, was hit by a pitch and scored after stealing second. He raced home on a throwing error by first basemen Kevin Widner.

Midland came right back to score three runs in the bottom of the first when Cole homered, Pearce struck out, but Ricky Goode singled and David Johnston lined out to Clements in left. Widner followed with a double and Jimmy Zarchery singled in another run for a 3-1 lead.

Once again, Lee scored four unearned runs on only one hit in the second. Three walks, an error and two-run single by Clements, made it 5-3 in favor of Lee.

THE BULLDOGS tallied two runs to tie the game in the second with Pearce driving in one run on a scarifice and Goode singling in the other run.

A two-run homer by Pearce and run-producing single by Widner, gave Midland an 8-5 lead in the fourth in-

Cole legged out his fourth hit of the game, an infield single, in the sixth and Pearce followed with a towering homer over the fence down the left field line, to make it 10-5.

Then came the rally when Lee finally began hitting the ball. Mike Richard led things off with a double. Craig Van Horn walked, but was forced at second by Brad Wright. Singles by Pat Moore, David Pitts and sophomore John White, made it 10-8. Doug Atnipp came in to relieve Larry Murphy on the mound and issued a walk to Jeff Mathews. Clements then singled in two runs to tie the game and Jorge Orta slammed three hits. including a double and a triple, and drove in two runs, leading Chicago to its victory over Boston in the White Sox' home opener. A crowd of 34,612 saw Orta double home a run in the first inning and single in a run to cap Chicago's four-run second. The loss was the third for the winless Red Sox.

Tigers 6: Blue Jays 1 Dave Roberts fired a four-hitter and rookie Steve Kemp belted a three-run homer, giving Detroit its first victory of the season. Kemp, who had only one hit in 15 previous major league atbats, homered over the right-center field fence with Ben Oglivie and Jason Thompson on base.

Toronto catcher Alan Ashby homered in the seventh for the Blue Jays' only run. Ashby came into the game after starter Rick Cerone suffered a broken right thumb in the first inning when struck by a foul tip.

A's 6, Angels 2 Home runs by Dick Allen and Wayne Gross in the first inning started Oakland to its victory over the California Angels. The A's, who have won four of their five games, scored five runs in the first and added their final tally in the eighth. The Angels' runs came on homers by Bobby Bonds and Tony Solaita.

"We're happy just to be playing in the big leagues," said Gross, a rookie third baseman, who also had a double and single. "There are some people who said we'd be lucky to win 60 games this season. I know they are wrong. We have hustle and enthusiasm, and a start like this will give us confidence."

Twins 3, Mariners 2 Run-scoring doubles by Craig Kusick and Lyman Bostock in the eighth inning provided Minnesota with its margin of victory over Seattle.

Bobby Randall walked off reliever Bill Laxton leading off the decisive eighth and scored on Kusick's double. Bostock's double scored Kusick.

Seattle starter Enrique Romo scattered six hits over seven innings but left with none out in the eighth when he complained of a pulled

This is where small economy cars really show their stuff. And as you can see by the numbers, the cars in our Showdown give a most impressive accounting of nemselves.

Based on EPA combined city and highway estimates (55% city/45% hwy). Datsun B-210 edges Subaru and Toyota Corolla for first. Next comes the car with a reputation for performance (Rabbit. with fuel injection). Alas, Opel, with the biggest engine (1800ccs), trails.

TERRY WILLIAMSON

Wilson's come a long way

There has been times the last two years that Midland High's Robert Wilson has not been able to see a mile for all of the mountains, but those same mountains seem to be leveling into a flat plain as the District 5-4A track meet nears Friday's run in

Wilson, of course, is 5-4A's miler supreme, and while the district meet looks like a coin flipping heap in most events, Wilson is the sure favorite. He stands virtually alone-like death and taxes. He owns the race that covers four laps around the oval, and only a broken leg or a disaster the magnitude of the Titanic can keep him out of the winner's circle.

WILSON IS the Cinderella of the West Texas track world. The blueblood Secretariat of the mile. The little Puff 'n Toot that faced the mountain saying, "I gotta make it,"

Wilson was not even good enough to make his junior high track team, and at one time seem destined to be stuck in a physical education class for the duration of his school years. He was the forgotten youth in the likeness of Oliver Twist or Horatio Alger.

It took Midland High track coach Ed Nixon to pull him out of the depths of the P. E. class. Nixon, however, once said that he wasn't even sure that Wilson could contribute, but he needed bodies to fill his roster. It turned out to be one of Nixon's best moves, and Wilson's golden slipper. STILL, THINGS didn't come easy.

The experiment wasn't an overnight success. Things like that rarely are. It took work, time and patience. Both Nixon and Wilson were up to the

First came the 10 to 12 miles a day of labor on the track, in the streets or in the alley ways-any place where dedication can give that ultimate payoff. Even after the times began to be respectable, Wilson was, and still is, plugging away at 10 to 12 miles a day, and sometimes more.

His first rewards came in cross country races, twice winning district championships. But the two-mile race may be his easiest event while the mile is a struggle for him. His hardest work has been in the mile, a race that not only tests endurance, but skill and strategy

Wilson was a good miler his junior year, and he ended up winning the district title. But his winning time of 4:33.8 was nothing to crow about in the face of the regional test which would come two weeks later in Lubbock.

WILSON RAN well in the regionals, and appeared to be in the running for a state berth until he was tripped accidently by El Paso miler Javier Antuna. No infraction was called by meet officials, and Antuna went on to

Renee Richards threatens legal action over chromosome test

PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y. (AP) - Dr. Renee Richards' long battle to compete as a woman in major tennis tournaments-once seemingly overhas taken another turn, and the 42year-old transsexual has threatened legal action.

Dr. Richards, entered in a $20,000 tennis tournament here where she is scheduled to compete in doubles with Billie Jean King today, was told Tuesday she would be required by the U.S. Open Committee to take another chromosome test before she could play in the Forest Hills classic.

Dr. Richards said she had taken the Barr Body chromosome test in Little Rock, Ark., two weeks ago, and it had shown her to possess more than the minimum amount of female chromosomes to qualify her for European championship play. She added that she already has been accepted to play in the French and Italian opens on the basis of the results, and that she now feared those acceptances to be in jeopardy.

"If it turns out that this requirement of the 1977 U.S. Open Committee does indeed jeopardize my acceptance for the European tournaments, I will instruct my attorney to institute a personal damage suit on the issue of personal discrimination against the U.S. Tennis Association," she said.

The USTA's Open Committee decided at a Monday meeting that all women players must take the Barr Body test at the Lenox Hill Hospital Institute of Sports Medicine in New York before competing at Forest

Wilson, however, had high hopes for 1977 and his senior year after coming off his second straight cross country championship last fall.

But in his first mile this year, Wilson was upset by Lee's Steve Hooper at Brownfield. There was a good excuse since Wilson had already run a mile and one-half before he tangled the mile and Hooper. Excuses, however, don't sit well with Wilson, and he was disappointed with his 4:40-plus that day. He still had to prove himself.

PROOF DIDN'T take long. The next week in Pecos, Wilson clipped off a career best of 4:25.3 to win the mile by 75 yards. That was good, but not good enough.

Wilson then was hit with illness the next week before the West Texas Relays in Odessa. Weak and drained from sickness, Wilson finished third to two El Paso runners despite recording a 4:25.1, his best mark to that date. Still, it meant that at least two runners were better than him in his region, and he would have to improve much more if he was going to make it to state this year.

That's when Wilson was heard to start talking about a goal of 4:15 or better. Knocking off 10 seconds of your best time in one year is like asking Moses to part the water again. It can be done, but it's not very likely.

NIXON SECRETLY was hoping that Wilson would improve at least five seconds to a 4:20, but one wonders if even that hope was wishful

Wilson doesn't wish, he performs. Two weeks ago in San Angelo, Wilson blazed to a 4:18.7, 6.4 seconds better than his all-time best. Not only did he win, but he defeated Antuna by 25 yards and set a new meet record.

Now Nixon doesn't know just how fast Wilson will be from here on out. He won't even guess. "I guess he'll go as fast as he wants to," Nixon said this week. "I've never seen a kid as dedicated as Robert. If you want to know how fast he can run, ask him, not me. The goal of 4:15 is now in sight between now and the regional meet or state meet if disaster doesn't strike. One thing is for sure, the district record of 4:24.6, held by Lee's Rodney

Smith, has never been shakier. Now is the time for mountains to tumble. If you hear a bugle blow an eerie sound Friday night, don't worry. Jericho fell once, and history has a way of repeating itself.

Willie Horton

Horton to Rangers for pitcher

TORONTO (AP) - After 12 seasons with the Detroit Tigers, slugger Willie Horton was able to remain philosophical Tuesday about his trade to the Texas Rangers. The trade ended a long-standing love affair between the outfielderturneddesignated hitter and Detroit's black community.

"It's just one of those things that's going to happen in baseball," the 33year-old Horton said of the deal which sent him to the Rangers in exchange for relief pitcher Steve Foucault.

Horton, as a player with at least 10 years in the majors and five with one club, had the right to reject any trade. However, he agreed to the move and said he was anxious to play.

"I had an idea something was up, said Horton, who had one hit in four at-bats opening day but had not played since.

Rusty Staub has assumed the designated hitter role held by Horton last season and rookie Steve Kemp has taken over in left field, the position Horton thought he would play this year following the release of veteran Alex Johnson

He said he did not feel any animosity toward the Tigers, who signed him out of a Detroit high school at age 17. He said he felt he had been treated well by the Tigers and understood they had to play the 22-yearold Kemp who, ironically, hit a threerun homer Tuesday, pacing Detroit to a 6-1 victory over the Toronto Blue

Solomon captures win over Scanlon in WTC

Harold Solomon thought only an act of God could save him in his match against Bill Scanlon.

Scanlon hit a topspin lob that appeared to be sailing far out of play when a strong gust of wind suddenly blew it back in for a winner in their first-round match their first-round match Tuesday at the $100,000 Spring World Championship Tennis tournament.

"I thought God was against me when I saw that," Solomon said after beating Scanlon 6-2, 6-3. Solomon, the defending champion but unseeded, dominated the match in the first set with his devastating ground game. Then in the seventh game of the second set, Scanlon escaped three match points to hold service. then broke Solomon in the eighth game. In the ninth game,

Scanlon's wind-aided lob shot gave him a 15-0 lead. Scanlon took a 40-15 lead in the game and fought off one more match point before Solomon finally ended it. In first-round play today, topseeded Jimmy Connors was to meet Adriano Panatta of Italy and second-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania was to face Billy Martin of Palos Verdes Estates, Calif. In another first-round singles match Tuesday, Australian Tony Roche defeated countryman John Alexander 6-4, 6-4.

PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y. (AP) - Thirdseeded Lindsey Beaven of Great Britain lost in the first round of a $20,000 women's tennis tournament to Hille Viragh of Denmark 6-2, 1-6, 6-3.

In other first-round play, Betty Newfield of New York defeated Marlie Buehler of Australia 4-6, 6-0, 7-5 and Jan Wilton of Australia beat Ingrid Bentzer of Sweden 3-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Miss Wilton replaced Karen Krantzcke, the Douglaston, N.Y. Australian who died defeated Kaye Hallan of suddenly in Tallahassee, Australia 6-3, 6-0; Dana Fla. Sunday. Miss Gilbert of Piedmont, Newfield played instead Calif., beat Linda of Helen Gourlay of Thomas of Jacksonville, Australia, who was a Fla. 2-6, 6-3, 6-2; Pat close friend of Miss Bostrom of Seattle topped Krantzcke and remained Aleida Spex of Miami 7-5, 6-3. in Florida.

Inexco Oil Co., operating from Houston, intends to drill No. 1 J. R. McLaughlin Communitized, a 9,700foot wildcat in Eddy County, 10 miles south of Artesia.

Drillsite is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 35-18s-26e, one location north of its No. 1-B Nix, a scheduled 9,700-foot prospector.

Texas Oil & Gas Corp. will drill No. 1 Rayroux Communitized, an undesignated Morrow test in Eddy, 34 mile north and slightly east of Morrow gas production in the La Huerta field.

It is slated for a bottom depth of 11,500 feet, and spots 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 19-21s-27e, four miles north of Carlsbad. Amoco Production Co. has scheduled four additional tests in the Old Indian Draw (Delaware) oil pool of Eddy, about three miles southeast of Carlsbad.

No. 22 Old Indian Draw Unit, 330 feet from south and 2,283 feet from east lines of section 7-22s-28e, has a projected depth of 5,000 feet.

The following tests are slated to 3,350 feet: No. 21 Old Indian Draw Unit, 330 feet from south and 3,383 feet from east lines of section 7-22s-28e. No. 24 Old Indian Draw Unit, 1,659

Spewing gas well tamed

POINT, La. (AP) - A wild natural gas well which spewed more than 65 million cubic feet of burning gas in five days is finally out.

Oil field firefighter Red Adair and his crew extinguished the blaze near this North Louisiana town Tuesday after two previous attempts failed. The well had exploded Thursday, sending flames as high as 100 feet and spewing about 15 million cubic feet of gas a day, officials said.

Adair was called from Houston to put out the fire, but even the noted firefighter had trouble with the stubborn blaze. After failing Sunday and Monday, Adair used an explosive charge Tuesday to blow out the fire. Chemically-treated drilling mud was then pumped into the well.

However, the mud seal only prevents gas leakage temporarily and a permanent cap will be put on in the next several days, Adair said.

Scurry area gains offset

F. W. Holbrook, Midland, has scheduled No. 1-A Martin as a 3/8-mile southeast offset to the current lone producer in the Gill (Pennsylvanian reef 6,900) field of Scurry County.

Location is 200 feet from north and 2.186 feet from west lines of section 139, block 97, H&TC survey, three miles northwest of Ira. It has a scheduled depth of 7,000 feet.

completes

Ellenburger oil production has been opened in the Block 54 (Ellenburger) gas field of Northwest Schleicher County with completion of Gulf Oil Corp. No. 1-UO State, for a 24-hour flowing potential of 150 barrels of 43.4gravity oil, no water.

Completion was effected through a 15-64-inch choke and perforations at ,799-7,820 feet. The pay section had been acidized with 2,000 gallons. Gasoil ratio measured 3,953-1. Drilled as an offset to the gas opener and lone well from that zone, it is bottomed at 7,850 feet, and 51/2-inch casing is set at that depth. Location is 660 feet from north and

Extension granted

AUSTIN - The Railroad Commission of Texas has granted operators in the Halley (Devonian) field of Winkler County an extra six months in which to bring their over or underproduction of gas into balance. Chairman Mack Wallace and Commissioners Jim C. Langdon and Jon Newton acted on the application of Bass Enterprises Production Co., Fort Worth, to extend the balancing period in the field. A hearing on the Bass application was held Feb. 2 by Mac L. Coker, director of technical hearings in the commission's Oil and Gas Division and Willis C. Steed, senior staff engineer. They recommended denial of the application.

The Bass request was opposed by Texas Pacific Oil Co., Gulf Oil Corp. and Atlantic Richfield Co. It was supported by Sun Oil Co. In their recomendation, the Oil and Gas Division examiners reported that Bass Enterprises had a cumulative underproduction of approximately 1.8 billion cubic feet of gas on Sept. 1, 1976, and that Bass leases had been underproduced by approximately 1.5 billion at the ending of the balancing period March 1.

By statute, an operator has six months in which to bring into balance his authorized production.

The RRC decision extends the balancing period for the Halley field to Sept. 1.

AGA official says gas reserve drop serious

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The decline of proved reserves of natural gas in the United States for the sixth straight year poses a serious energy problem, but it is not a problem without solution, an industry spokesman said.

Proved reserves as of Dec. 31, 1976, are estimated at 216 trillion cubic feet, compared to 228.2 trillion at the end of 1975, a decline of five per cent, according to an announcement made by John Towle, chairman of the American Gas Association's Committee on Natural Gas Reserves.

Towle, who also is vice president, Columbia LNG Corp., Wilmington, Del., explained that proved reserves as defined for the purposes of the AGA report are those reserves of natural gas known to exist which can be produced economically using conventional methods. However, he emphasized that proved reserves are only a part of the nation's total estimated natural gas resources.

As the reserves figures were an-

The gas discovery, H. G. Sledge No. 1 Roy Glass, finaled in December, 1975, for 1.314 million cubic feet of gas daily, with gas-liquid ratio of 148,232-1, through perforations at 7,900-9,050 MITCHELL TESTS

nounced, AGA President George H. Lawrence said:

"FEDERAL PRICE control of natural gas sold in the interstate market is the main reason for the reserves problem.

'The solution is the deregulation of new gas supplies - supplies urgently needed if in future years we are to avert the hardships and disruptions of this past winter," Lawrence continued, pointing out the decline in 1976 is the eighth time in the last nine years that proved reserves have

"THE MOST effective way to reverse the trend is through reasonable, long-range policies which will remove the blatant price discrimination that has held interstate gas prices at artificially low levels," Lawrence said. "Current federal policies fail to provide the economic incentive to search for and develop new gas supplies."

However, Lawrence emphasized, deregulation alone is not the complete answer to the gas supply problem. The continuing decline of proved reserves also points up the need for expeditious leasing and exploration of the Outer Continental Shelf, especially the offshore Atlantic areas, Lawrence said.

"THE CONTINUING gas shortage proves the need for a national energy policy that will encourage producers not only to find and develop new traditional gas sources, but also supplemental supplies from Alaska, from LNG imports, from coal gasification and other synthetic gas sources," he said.

Lawrence noted that the number of wells drilled is up, but said that because the price has been held so low, 90 per cent of the drilling activity is in low cost drilling areas where only 30 per cent of the potential undiscovered gas resources are thought

IN REFERENCE to questions and controversy over the differences of various proved gas reserves

estimates, Lawrence said: "AGA consistently has urged a standardization of definition for both government and industry, and has proposed and vigorously supports joint government-industry cooperation so that the government can develop annual gas reserves estimates," Lawrence said.

HE ADDED, "AGA and its committee on Natural Gas Reserves stand ready to assist the federal government in taking the necessary steps to establish an effective national oil and gas reserves estimating and reporting system.

Only the Prudhoe Bay, Alaska, gas discovery of 26 trillion cubic feet, first reported in 1970, kept the gas industry from recording its ninth consecutive reserves decline in 1976. Proved reserves, including Alaska, now are at their lowest level since 1954.

FOR THE lower 48 states, the 1976 total of 184.1 trillion cubic feet is the lowest reserve figure since 1949 when gas production was only 32 per cent of current levels. Total additions of 7.56 trillion cubic feet in 1976 were the second lowest annual additions to reserves since 1946.

For six years (1969-1974) natural gas production exceeded 20 trillion cubic feet per year, reaching a high of 22.7 trillion in 1972, or 16 per cent above the 1976 level of 19.5.

The AGA annual proved reserves report was inititated U to meet the requirements for evidence of longterm natural gas supplies sought by financial underwriters during a period of rapidly expanding pipeline systems in the 1940s and over the years has become a "barometer" of the proved reserves in the national energy resource base.

The American Gas Association does not represent gas producers.

However, the AGA committee on Natural Gas Reserves, which has made an annual report on proved reserves for 31 years, essentially compiles and disseminates data provided by natural gas producers:

Carter quitting 'numbers game' for time being

By GEORGE LARDNER JR. The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Remember those sprightly green-and-white campaign brochures that kept claiming Jimmy Carter had "eliminated" 278 of the 300 agencies in Georgia's "overgrown bureaucracy"

Or the promise he made again and again during last year's presidential campaigning to reduce what he said were some 1,900 federal "agencies" to

now that he's President Carter, the White House, it seems,

would appreciate it very much if we would stop counting.

"I don't think we should play the numbers game," Bert Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said last week at a briefing signaling the start of the Carter administration's reorganization of the federal government. "I don't think we should say we will cut the number to 200," Lance told a reporter who asked about the arithmetic

A proper appreciation of government reorganization, Carterstyle, also requires an understanding of how elastic a federal "agency" can be. It can be the presidency, the State Department, the Marine Mammal Commission or even the Interagency Committee on Antarctica.

All are counted individually as "executive branch agencies" in a fact book released by the Carter White House on the President's signing of the reorganization bill. Described by Carer aides as "the most comprehensive" accounting of government agencies ever made, the master chart shows a total of 2,103.

The chart, however, also shows that 1,185 are simply advisory committees and 129 are "interagency and interdepartmental committees." In addition, 332 "sub-agencies" of Cabinet-level departments are counted separately, after the 11 Cabinet-level departments within which the agencies can be found have themselves been totted up.

Carter did the same sort of thing in Georgia. "We included every tiny lit-tle thing," a former Carter aide says. Then, presto, reorganization transformed Georgia's 300 agencies into "22 major operating agencies," as Carter's final report on his governorship stated it.

But Carter, as governor, did not "eliminate" 278 agencies or anything near that. Critics such as retired state auditor Ernes Davis used to scoff that "all he did was change the (tables of) organization and the furniture." Supporters say Carter did much more than that when governor, but allow that he "consolidated" far more offices than he "eliminated."

Some boards and agencies were abolished. The Ty Cobb Baseball Commission was one. It hadn't functioned for five years anyway, recalls M.W.H. (Bill) Collins, former director of the University of Georgia's Institute of Government, who worked on state reorganization under Carter and other Georgia governors.

"They (the commissioners) were supposed to come up with a memorial for 'the world's greatest baseball player,' some sort of museum or something, but hell, there weren't enough people interested," Collins said.

Another Georgia staple that got the ax was the Superintendency of Naval Stores, an already moribund agency that still required "three man-weeks of work" and consultations with the Turpentine Growers of America to eliminate.

'Acid' showers bring dead fish

By ROBERT A. JONES

The Los Angeles Times ITHACA, N.Y. — It rained here last week. A warm spring rain, pouring over the hills, melting snowdrifts and signalling the end of a long, bitter winter in central New York.

That was good news for the folks who live hereabouts, but it was definitely bad news for the fish that live in New York's mountain lakes. For the rain that falls here is acid.

Drifting for hundreds, perhaps thousands of miles from industrial sites across America, acid-laden clouds condense here and soon flow into the lakes that dot this region of hills and low mountains. As acid goes, the rain is relatively mild - weaker, say, than lemon juice - but it is enough to be deadly to a host of creatures that live in and around New York's aquatic systems. So the brook trout are dying here, along with the white suckers, brown bullheads, salamanders, frogs, mayflies, microscopic zoo plankton and even some forms of plant life.

For about five years the phenomenon of acid rain has been studied here and in Scandinavia. It is now known to be caused in large part by pollutants spewed from factory smokestacks. The pollutants chlorides, nitric and sulphur oxides convert to acids in the atmosphere and eventually are washed from the skies by rain or snow. The concentration in rain of one of these, nitricacid, has increased fourfold in New York state over the past 10 years.

Though the phenomenon is now well known, its effect on wildlife in this country remained something of a mystery until the completion recently of a series of studies conducted here at Cornell University. The results of the studies have startled scientists and wildlife management officials: More than half the mountain lakes at altitudes over 2,000 feet in New York state are now highly acidic, and of those, 90 per cent are devoid of fish

"What we are seeing - the fish dying and so on - are only the most obvious symptoms," said Dr. F. Harvey Pough, one of the Cornell scientists studying acid rain. "I believe we will find that the total effects are widespread and very costly in terms of the natural environment. The problem is serious, very serious, and it looks to be getting worse before it gets better."

No one is sure how widespread wildlife mortaility from acid rain has become in the United States, but most scientists here believe that the discoveries in New York will be duplicated soon throughout the Northeast.

This section of the country has been hardest hit for several reasons. There is a higher concentration of industrial development here and the recent innovation of tall smokestacks has tended to disperse pollutants over large areas. In addition, the Northeast, on a continental scale, is downwind from almost everyone else.

'The prevailing winds can bring pollutants from hundreds of miles, maybe even further," said Dr. Carl L. Schofield, another Cornell scientist studying the problem. "Certainly the pollution in this region is coming from as far away as the Midwest."

Photography liberates gallery

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - What exactly is a

When it established the National Portrait Gallery in 1962, Congress responded to that question with the most traditional of answers. A portrait, said the lawmakers, is "a painted or sculpted likeness.

For years that dreary definition stunted the museum. When the gallery displayed its formal portraits, its marble busts and paintings of somber-suited gentlemen posed in throne-like chairs, it was not merely being staid. It was following the law.

The law was amended last October, and the gallery has since been liberated. It is still acquiring "portraits," but by establishing a new department of photographs, it has exploded the old meaning of that term. For photography leads to film, film clips lead to video and video suggests new electronic art forms that have not yet been invented. A door has been thrown open.

J.P. Morgan, Leadbelly and others that have just gone on display there are not in themselves radical. But they imply a revolution in the traditional relationship between museum curators and the portraits they collect.

Consider, for example, the issues raised by numbers, by the proliferation of portraits made with film. Mathew Brady's daguerreotype of Van Buren fills a gap in the museum. (It is the only portrait of the president in the gallery's collection). The picture is unique, since daguerreotypes, like marble busts, are one-of-a-kind objects. And because Brady made it, it also has importance as a work of art.

Such old artifacts are rare, but countless photos of the famous are available today

Imagine what will happen when Marvin Sadik, the director, and William Stapp, his curator of photographs, or their successors, begin selecting portraits of, say, President Richard Nixon. President Nixon must have stepped before one camera or another 100,000 times. His likeness has been captured on many thousands of hours of video tape and film. The same, of course, applies to Johnny Carson, Muhammad Ali and other figures of our time. How will curators of photographs begin selecting "portraits" of such men? Will the gallery collect casettes of "The Tonight Show," the "Thrilla in Manilla" and the "Checkers" speech? Or will its curators attempt to screen the countless photos of these men in the bulging archives of the government, the newspapers and magazines?

One thing is quite certain. No one can select, say, 10 photographs of Nixon, display them in the gallery, "There, that's what he looked like, that is who he was.'

The curator who does so is no longer just the curator. He has become the portraitist. Less curator than artist, he is as responsible as the photographers for the portraits on display.

Portraits can be beautiful, but accuracy is more important. Because portraitists should show us what their subjects looked like, the camera serves them well. And not just the still

When the gallery begins collecting video tape and film, sticky curatorial issues are certain to arise. If a portrait is no longer just a painting or a sculpture, what then are its boundaries? Are there any limitations?

Should the gallery acquire only portraits that are silent, or might some of them make noise? A clip of Groucho Marx talking fast and doing something utterly preposterous is arguably a better likeness than a painting of his face. Once sound is admitted, need the face be there at all? Should the gallery collect recordings of Ray Charles and Martin Luther King?

Should a portrait be unique? Most museums would say yes, and most paintings, busts and drawings are; but once the door is opened to portraits made by camera, uniqueness matters less, and eventually not at all. A record of the Beatles made with sound effects and multiple-track recordings is not a reproduction of songs performed in concert. It is an original. The same applies to video. Should the museum buy casettes that can be endlessly reproduced?

Should the gallery confine exhibits to its halls? Or should it transmit taped television portraits to a million private homes?

Things were simpler by far when the gallery was forced, by law, to confine its acquisitions to "painted or sculpted likenesses." The reasons for imposing that severe restriction were political, not esthetic. The paintingand-sculpture-only rule was written into law in 1962 at the request of L Quincy Mumford, then Librarian of Congress. The library, in those days, held something of a corner on the U.S. government's photography collec-tions. Mumford did not want the

trampling on his turf.

The law was on its face petty and anachronistic. It was also antidemocratic. The gallery, after all, was established to pay homage to 'men and women who have made significant contributions to the history, development and culture of the people of the United States." Under the restrictive clause, many people, though "significant," would have been excluded. Only those who had the time and money or, perhaps, the vanity, to sit for painters or sculptors would have been admitted to the museum. Within weeks of his appointment as gallery director, Sadik began lobbying the Congress for a change.

missing from the gallery because daguerreotypes were excluded. The same clause had banned Van Buren from the Hall of Presidents. Sadik pressed his point. With the aid of Rep. Lucien N. Nedzi (D-Mich.) he eventually prevailed.

Quietly last October, the National Portrait Gallery Act was amended as follows: "The term 'portraiture' includes portraits and reproductions thereof made by any means or process, whether invented or developed heretofore or hereafter."

The gallery's new photograph collection is the first fruit of that

So far Stapp, the new curator of photographs, has been able to combine in his small collection biography and art. That 1903 photograph of J.P. Morgan is the work of Edward Steichen, that portrait of James Agee is by Walker Evans, that rather hokey Leadbelly is by Berenice Abbott, and that informal shot of Franz Kline, the painter, is by an artist as important, the photographer Robert Frank.

These photographs and others of Frank Lloyd Wright, Daniel Webster, Isadora Duncan, Mark Twain and Henry James are now on display, but not all the photographs the gallery has acquired are by famous artists. It owns impressive portraits of Frederick Douglass, Woodrow Wilson, Teddy Roosevelt and Horace Greely that were taken by photographers whose names are still unknown.

Stapp says the gallery is spending more on photographs than any other Washington Museum. The Smithsonian Institution gives the gallery approximately $250,000 annually for new acquisitions.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Soy milk formula

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is it true that a soy milk formula is better for babies than one made with cow's milk? People say it even prevents diarrhea, colic and lots of other troubles babies have .- Ceil G.

Dear Ceil: Soy-based milk substitutes can be very helpful if a baby is allergie to cow's milk or has a lactose intolerance (inability to handle milk sugar, called lactose). But othewise, according to "The Medical Letter," there is no evidence that the soy preparations prevent colic or any of the other common problems of infancy.

Dear Dr. Solomon: The doctor says my husband should get more exercise because he is about 20 pounds overweight. Nothing fancy—just plain walk-ing would be good, he says. Can you suggest any way to help him get going on this regimen? He just has trouble making himself get out there and walk, and I don't know what to do .- H.J.

Dear H.J.: How about his trying a pedometer? Researchers at Stanford Medical College have found that pedometers are good motivating devices for people on weight control programs. You really feel you have accomplished something once you have totaled up four or five thousand paces.

To G.C., Montreal: Your "lazy colon" sounds the same as your sister's inactive colon, and your neighbor's atonic constipation, or colon stasis. They are different names for the same condition. Many older people's colons become what is called atonic they just don't move and push the feces out the way they worked when they were younger. That's why your stools are often putty-like or soft rather than scybalous. You say you have no urge to defecate and have no pain. I agree with your doctor that there is no harm in treating many elderly or invalid patients with moderately irritant oral laxatives such as milk of magnesia, 15 to 30 milliliters (between ½ to 1 ounce) in the morning or evening; or Cascara sagrada, 3 to 6 grams of the tablet; or 5 to 10 milliliters of the aromatic fluid extract; or sodium sulfate, 15 grams and a half of a glass of water. You should try to have the bowel movement at the same time every day, preferably 15 to 45 minutes after breakfast, since the ingestion of food on an empty stomach activates intestinal movement. If you have the desire before 15 minutes, though, that's perfectly all right. Again, I agree with your doctor that you should have regular, unhurried bowel movements, and you well may be aided by rectal installations of two to three ounces of warm (110 deg. F) olive oil or isotonic saline. Suppositories may be used instead.

Real money policy favored FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) - Cattle and

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - Milton Friedman has just expressed himself as being in favor of paying some of the government's creditors in real money, and right away you can hear the critics saying there's something unreal about it.

Hogs: 400. Barrows and gilts steady. US 1-2 200-220 lbs. 35.0035.50. US 1-3 200-250 lbs. 14.5035.00. US 2-3 200-270 lbs. 34.0034.50. Sows: steady. US 1-3 300-600 lbs. 30.00-1,00. Real money is that from which inflation has been wrung and, as you know, it isn't the money we use. Generally, when we lend somebody money they pay us back in current dollars, or dollars whose buying power is eroded by inflation. AMARILLO, Tex.—(AP) — Steer and helfer beef trade opened light. A few sales steady, but not enough sold to fully test trends. Most packers reported only fair interest and overall price situation still unsettled. Sales confirmed on 18 lower carcass beef, no primal cuts. No comparison cow beef.

Steer beef (3 loads). Choice 3, 600-800 lbs. 38.00, steady.
Good 3, 1 load, 600-800 lbs. 56.50.
Helfer beef (3 loads). choice 3, 500-700 lbs., 35, 75-56.25, steady.
Cow beef (10 loads). Utility breaking 3-4, 46.00. Utility boning 2-3, 51.00. Canner and cutter 1-2, 54.00.

It's a terrible disincentive to saving and lending. It has been called immoral and, in a sense, it's robbery. It contributes to the shortage of capital we need to expand our economic plant. Friedman, the Nobel laureate in economics, would correct that, for some small savers anyway, and so his proposal is bound to be examined like other Friedman proposals as something bizarre. The professor, whose statements from his base at the University of Chicago are generally considered conservative, would issue "purchasing power securities. The saver would receive back his principle, plus interest, plus an inflation adjustment. That adjustment is all important, because it would mean that the dollars with which you are repaid would have the same buying power as the dollars you lent to the government by purchasing its securities. As things now stand, a person who buys a U.S. Savings Bond for $18.75 receives 6 per cent interest and so, after five years, has $25 returned. But what has inflation done? Left the buying power of the money back there at $18.75 or less. Many purchasers of savings bonds have had that misfortune in recent years, and it says a lot about the bitterness that some small savers feel, especially when the government, the borrower, is responsible for much of that inflation. Friedman's plan would assure small savers that they would receive back their money in real rather than current dollars, plus interest.

There is precedent for so doing. International currencies float in value against each other, thanks to Friedman, whereas once they were held to unreal, fixed values. The cost of some home mortgages now float with the prevailing in-The purpose of these moves is to bring reality to bear on the situations involved. We do not live in a world of fixed prices and interest rates. We do have inflation. We do have erosion of purchasing power. To say that the dollar of today is worth the same as yesterday's dollar, or that it will be worth the same as tomorrow's, is to deny the existence of an inflation that we know, painfully, is all about us.

All Friedman would do is recognize this reality. But, so used are we to the unfair old ways that you can bet an inflated dollar that his proposal will be criticized, perhaps even as inflationary.

Odd time jogs mind

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - The time for the 56th annual Golden Empire Council, Boy Scouts of America recognition potluck dinner is set, by design, at 6:19 p.m. Why such an odd time?

Several years ago, explains Alan Hutchinson, Boy Scouts director of support services, the dinner was switched from a sitdown affair to potluck with all people involved bring food. For the first couple of years, the dinner time was set for 6:00 or 6:30 p.m. But the specific time seemed to have been forgotten and the Scouts office was getting many calls to 4/13/77 refresh lagging memories.

WASHINGTON (AP) -It's right there in the numbers. Unless the Republicans can get their act together quickly, the Democrats are going to have a free hand in drawing most of the political maps that will shape congressional elections for a decade.

That GOP problem is not so visible or dramatic as the loss of the White House or the eroding Republican base in Congress. But it is no less serious.

For the Republican party is increasingly vulnerable at the base of the political pyramid, the state legislatures, where the new boundaries of congressional districts Carter was a state will be drawn after the 1980 census.

The Democrats now control both houses of the legislatures in 36 of the 50 states. Republicans have full control in only five. candidates, you're not Eight are divided, and Nebraska's one-house legislature is elected on a non-partisan basis.

There are 7,562 seats in the 50 state legislatures, and Republicans hold just over 30 per cent of them. They hold majorities in only 19 of the nation's 99 state legislative bodies. committee.'

The challenge facing the Republicans is to reverse that trend and fashion a comeback in the that, the census will require realignment of congressional districts in states that gain or lose House seats as a result of population shifts.

That is sure to include some of the biggest states, and the party that can draw the boundaries for House elections can build in an advantage for build in an advantage for its candidates.

It's not as easy, or as blatant, as in the old days, when politicians could map districts that looked like pretzels to benefit their candidates. But skilled draftsmen still can devise boundaries for partisan advantage.

Carter presses for ERA

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Carter was pressing Florida legislators to vote for the Equal Rights Amendment as it came up for a PLACED, IT MUST RUN crucial state senate vote today.

Presidential assistant Midge Costanza said Tuesday that Carter and Vice President Walter F. Mondale were calling state senators to urge them to vote for the amendment. She said they recognized that a setback in Florida would seriously damage chances of ratifying the women's rights measure.

The ERA has been ratified by 35 states and must be approved by three more before March 1979 if it is to be attached to the Constitution. She said state officials often ask Carter for help and he is using the same privilege by telling them, "Please help me. We need you." Carter commuted his first prison sentence as president Tuesday by 12:00 a.m. Thursday for Sunday reducing the 20-year prison sentence of Watergate burglar G. Gordon Liddy to eight Liddy will be eligible for parole on July 9, almost four years ahead

WASHINGTON - Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 31 through April 6.

BAD DEBTS: Passed, 199 for and 198 against, the Debt Collection Practices Act of 1977 (HR 5294). If passed by the Senate and signed into law, it will become the first comprehensive federal law attempting to curb abuses by debt collectors.

The legislation covers the nation's estimated 5,000 independent collection agencies, but not credit grantors (such as department stores) which collect their own debts. Enforcement lies with the Federal Trade Commission and the bill provides for civil and criminal penalties.

It would outlaw abuses such as impersonating a lawyer, making threatening telephone calls and publishing "deadbeat lists." It limits third-person contacts and the extent to which a debtor can be contacted at work, among other provisions.

Rep. Frank Annunzio (D-III.), a supporter, said: "For far too long. unethical debt collectors have used harassment, abusive and deceptive tactics to collect money from consumers....State laws cannot and do not regualte interstate debt collection

Rep. Harold Sawyer (R-Mich.), an opponent, said that although collection abuses are a "problem" states are capable of curbing abuses. "I we have enough federal legislation and I think by the provisions of this act we expressly recognize that we have enough federal legislation," he said.

Reps. Jim Mattex (D-5), Jack Brooks (D-9), James Wright (D-12), John Young (D-14), Kika de la Garza (D-15), Barbara Jordan (D-18) and Henry Gonzalez (D-20) voted "yea."

Reps. Samuel Hall (D-1), Charles Wilson (D-2), James Collins (R-3), Ray Roterts

(D-10), W. R. Poage (D-11), Jack Hightower (D-13), Richard White (D-16), Omar Burleson (D-17), George Mahon (D-19), Robert Krueger (D-21), Bob Gammage (D-22) and Abraham Kazen (D-23) voted "nay."

Reps. Olin Teague (D-6), Bob Eckhardt (D-8) and Dale Milford (D-24) did not vote.

LOANS: Passed, 194 for and 156 against, a bill (HR 5262) authorizing $5.2 billion through fiscal 1981, to be used as the U.S. contribution to international loan agencies such as the World Bank, Asian Development Bank and African Development Bank.

Those institutions have the primary mission of making easy term loans to developing countries. Many nations in addition to the U.S. supply their capital. A companion to HR 5262 is pending in the Senate.

The most heated debate centered on the bill's requirement, that U.S. directors of the international lending institutions vote against loans to governments that torture dissidents and commit other violations of human rights. The Carter Administration had wanted softer language linking loans to human rights.

Rep. Jim Wright (D-Tex), a supporter of the bill, said: "At this particular moment in human history it is vitally important that the United States give a convincing example of its continuing support for the development of the world's underdeveloped national economy.

Rep. John Rousselot (R-Calif.), an opponent, questioned the worth of the projects financed by international loans, and criticized the bill's price tag. "This level of foreign economic assistance," he said, "will have to be reduced to some extent if a significant reduction in the budget of the federal government is (made)....to achieve the President's announced goal of a balanced budget ...

SENATE

THE ECONOMY: Rejected, 35 for and 48 against, an amendment to deny President Carter the money he seeks to beef up his Council on Wage and Price Stability. It was proposed to HR 4877, an appropriations bill for the current fiscal year that was later passed and sent to conference with the House.

Carter seeks a $241,000 budget increment for the hiring of 10 economists and 3 research assistants for the wage and price council, raising the entire staff to about 70 persons. The council now performs only a monitoring function but is the body that would impose wage and price controls if a President ordered them.

Sen. Lowell Weicker (R-Conn.), the sponsor, said that both the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the AFL-CIO agree with him that bolstering the council only increases the chances of wage and price controls being mandated. He said the Congress "should make it clear that economic monitoring is all right...but when it comes to wage and price controls the answer is a clear-cut 'no.

Sen. Lawton Chiles (D-Fla.), an opponent of the amendment, argued that the economists are needed only to help the President study trends and thus anticipate obstacles to economic recovery. "The request is not to indicate that wage and price controls are being considered," he said.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen (D) voted "yea" and Sen. John Tower (R) did not vote.

ATTENDANCE: Rejected, 22 for and 67 against, an amendment to the ethics code (S Res 110) requiring that Senate business could be transacted only when at least 25 of the 100 senators were present on the floor. The Constitution requires a quorum (51 senators) to be present to conduct business.

Sen. Curtis (R-Neb.), the sponsor, said his amendment would improve attendance because the quorum requirement frequently is not enforced. He asked: "Is it not true that at the present time business is transacted and bills are passed not only when there is not a quorum here but when there may be five members here?'

Responded Sen. Robert Byrd (D-W. Va.), the majority leader: "The senator is pre-eminently correct. But a quorum of the Senate is always assumed to be present, until the absence of a quorum is established. He added that the Curtis proposal "clearly contravenes the Constitution

ETHICS CODE Tabled, 63 for and 31 against, a "sunset amendment" under which the new Senate ethics code would be terminated in March, 1981. Based on the experience of the code between 1977-1981, the Senate would then decide in what form to extend it. After this vote the overall code was adopted.

Sen. Dick Clark (D-Iowa), a supporter of tabling, said that if the Senate agreed to the sunset amendment "we will be saying to the country, 'Yes, we are concerned about ethics, and we are passing a very tough code of ethics. But in a few years...when the heat dies down this code is going to quietly self-destruct.

Sen. Howard Baker (R-Tenn.), sponsor of the amendment, said the Constitution recommends the 'citizen-legislator' concept. The ethics code, in prohibiting senators form maintaining private professions, flies in the face of that, he said.

By adopting his amendment "we will not be 'sunsetting' ethics, which we could not do legislatively any more than we can legislatively create them. At the very least what we are doing is committing ourselves to a continued re-examination of our code of conduct and to issues collateral thereto.

My correspondent led the king of spades, and his partner singaled with the ten. West continued with the ace and a third spade, but East could not

South promptly led trumps and made his contract. "I was tempted to give my partner what he deserved." West reports. "Is murder really a crime?' Yes, murder is a crime, and this hand was murdered by both defenders. West could surely defeat the contract when he found out that East had started with only two West need not rely on his partner to overruff dummy on the third round of tricks if he can get the trumps out of SHOULD SWITCH At the second trick West should switch to a low trump. If declarer returns a spade, West takes the ace of spades and leads the ace of hearts to take the second trump out of dummy.

Then West defeats the contract with the jack of spades. Maybe that Central American country has room for two bridge players. DAILY QUESTION

ANSWER: Bid one spade. Avoid jumping to two spades with such a hand. You have neither a solid suit of your own, strong support for partner's suit, nor overwhelming strength in high cards. Save the jump for later.
