Mahon says Carter doing better job than expected

President Jimmy Carter has done "thus far a better job than West Texans expected him to do," U.S. Rep. George Mahon said Friday night.

Mahon spoke at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention banquet in the ballroom of the Midland Hilton

He said in spite of the fact that there is much left to be done, there is an "increased degree of unity and respect and less contempt for government" since Carter took office.

Mahon said the nation "has awakened somewhat" to the nature and severity of the energy crises. The Carter energy policy, to be announced Wednesday, will not be "precisely what we want enacted into law," he

The congressman warned that the plan will be highly controversial and that action on the plan may be slow.

"It's not going to be possible to enact an energy policy in a few weeks," Mahon said. But, he said, "It is better to have delay than to have disaster." Enacting an energy policy during the past two or three years would have been a disaster, Mahon said.

He said he is disappointed with Carter energy adviser James Schlesinger, "and I told him so." Too much emphasis is being placed on conservation and not enough on incentives to encourage increased production and development of new sources of energy, Mahon said.

'Conservation won't do the job," he

Mahon warned it may take time for the nation to become aware of the "water crisis," but conservation and importation of water to water-short states will be essential. "In a few decades, the water crisis could dwarf the energy crisis," he said.

Farm legislation also is essential to West Texas, Mahon said. He said the President has recommended agricultural programs that are 'more conservative than the committees of the House and Senate have been willing to embrace."

But, Mahon said, a presidential proposal does not insure passage into law. "It is up to Congress to write the final ticket." he said.

The congressman said he hopes the Zoo dead at moment, but talk sure to go on

Talk about a crusade to "save the zoo" is passe now.

It's hardly even moot, though certainly there will be arguments, debates, discussions and even flareups over the zoo's demise.

That is, there will be low-key and hot-headed discussions over the downin-the-dumps zoo if enough people care enough and care with enough

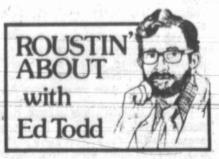

Otherwise, the 21-year-old zoo will just become another "has been" that only memories, pictures and the written word will keep alive.

And the 61 animals, from the temperamental Bengal tiger to the easing-along tortoises, will be in other zoos, in some pet-lovers' backyards, or else will be set free to rediscover (or to find for the first time) the wilderness. "All the animals will be up for bids by people who have the proper permits," said Debby McDonald, a Midland zoo-keeper, whose job is wearing thinner by the day.

The zoo got its official closing notice last Tuesday night, when the Midland City Council decided to kill off the menagerie. That decision came after Midland voters on April 2 flatly turned down a $3.25 million bond proposal to build a new (and direly needed) zoo here.

Zoo foreman Joe Haussecker wasn't particularly enthused over the closing of the zoo that has been his livelihood for the past eight years.

"What I didn't like about it." he said, "is that they didn't give the people a choice of a new zoo, upgrading this one or closing it.

"I don't think that they (the public) really knew that they (the city council) were going to close this one should the bond proposal fail to meet with the voters' approval.

Nevertheless, the City of Midland is placing the crawling, pacing, running, jumping, swinging and flying zoo creatures on the old auction block. And the animals that captured the momentary fancy of many a youngster (and some older folks, too) will be transformed into hard cash and figures in ledgers.

4 per cent inflation rate President's goal

By PAUL E. STEIGER The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — President Carter Friday set a goal of reducing the annual rate of increase in Americans' cost of living to between 4 per cent and 4.5 per cent by the end of 1979, down from the approximately 6 per cent pace of the last 12 months,

However, Charles L. Schultze, chairman of Carter's Council of Economic Advisers, told reporters he expects prices to continue accelerating in the next few months partly because of increases in the cost of soybeans and other key food products, and of used cars. He said he expects them to slow down a bit in the

In addition, Carter disclosed that he expected his energy program, to be unveiled next week, to add as much as one-half of a percentage point to the rate of inflation.

He branded as "completely erroneous" reports that the energy package would speed the inflation rate by two to three percentage

To meet his 1979 cost-of-living goal, which he called "a very difficult task," Carter proposed a three-part, multipoint anti-inflation package consisting mainly of policies that he or his aides had advanced before and that were in large part extensions or modifications of moves proposed or undertaken by Carter's Republican predecessor, President Gerald R.

According to an Administration source, one major new element that was to have been included in the package - a plan for Carter Administration officials to embark on industry-by-industry discussions over pending wage and price decisions was killed at the last minute this week, when leaders of business and labor objected.

To avoid business and labor protests, the Administration plan now s for Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal and other Carter aides to meet with a group of labor and business potentates, headed by AFL-CIO president George Meany and Reginald H. Jones, chairman of General Electric Co., to explore possible voluntary measures that unions and companies could take to avoid excessive wage or price hikes.

The rest of the package consists primarily of previous commitments to restrain government spending and deficits, avoid restrictions on imports where possible and to overhaul government regulations affecting industry, agriculture, the environment, health, and safety to weed out those that contribute unnecessarily to inflation.

Carter said he also would schedule monthly meetings with Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, "to make sure that there is some maximum degree of coordination in addressing inflationary pressures" between the Administration and the independent Federal Reserve System.

The announcement of the inflation program came at a politically difficult moment for Carter, one day after his decision to drop his proposed $50-per-person tax rebate and shortly before his outline of the energy plan next week.

The energy plan will call for a number of actions that will raise prices of gasoline, natural gas, oil, and other fuels, and Carter was not prepared to spell out precisely how he plans to cushion those price increases. He is expected to propose some combination of tax incentives, rebates and cash payments designed to diminish the price of some commodities even as the price of energy and related products is raised:

At the same time, elimination of the rebate, which Carter said the economy no longer needs, removes one source of additional cash consumers might have counted on to ease the strain of continuing inflation - including higher energy prices. In view of the last-minute scrapping of what was to be a key feature of the inflation program, the industry-byindustry consultations on prices and wages by Administration officials. some of Carter's advisers would have preferred to postpone the announcement. The decision was made to go ahead because Carter had promised the package by this week.

One adviser who worked on the package said of the program as presented: "I personally believe it's a. failure. Nevertheless, Carter endorsed it fully, telling a press conference that "it is comprehensive and it is as complete as we can possibly devise. Moreover, Schultze and Blumenthal, at a subsequent White House briefing, said they believed Carter's inflation target could be met, with no reduction in goals for curbing unemployment. By the end of 1979, Schultze said, the Administration hopes to get the jobless rate down to between 5 per cent and 5.5 per cent of the work force. Unemployment currently stands at about 7.3 per cent.

Schultze and Blumenthal refused to spell out how soon inflation would start moving toward the 4 per cent target, but Schultze said the target was an interim one, and that the objective was to reduce the pace of price increases further after 1979.

Carter and his advisers em-phasized, as they have in the past, that there would be no imposition of mandatory wage and price control — or guideposts or guidelines — for business and labor.

Administration was determined to reach some agreement with big business and organized labor on how they should cooperate to curb inflation. "There is a deadline of about two months," one official said. After that, he added, the Administration will start pushing for some such mechanism on its own, though the objective would still be to design voluntary measures. Carter strongly resisted the suggestion in a reporter's question that his basic economic policy was becoming more and more akin to President Ford's.

"I think there is a sharp distinc-tion," Carter said. He said the approach of Ford and former President Richard M. Nixon to control inflation 'was to deliberately dampen the economy and to accept in the process, again deliberately in my opinion, a very high permanent unemployment

CIA study reveals oil supply overestimated

By RICHARD E. MEYER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Friday that a disturbing new Central Intelligence Agency study shows the world has less oil and natural gas than geologists had

"Reserve estimates that had been used as a basis for decisions in the past were found to be quite excessive. Reserves are not as great as we thought they were," he said.

Both the CIA and the White House said details of the study would not be released immediately.

One government source said the findings in the study are likely to be a major portion of a nationally broadcast "fireside chat" Carter plans on energy problems at 8 p.m. EST Monday.

Carter also acknowledged that the comprehensive energy policy he will announce next week will be in-flationary. But he said: "I believe our policy will be less inflationary than an absence of a policy."

The President made his statements at a nationally televised news conference. He met afterward with seven labor leaders at an energy briefing in the Cabinet Room at the White House. Carter's chief energy adviser, James R. Schlesinger, gave them a preview of the energy program.

"We hope to increase the supply of enriched uranium," Carter told the labor leaders. He said this would be necessary because of his end to government support for the production of plutonium.

The President announced the end of production support for plutonium last week as part of his program to control the spread of nuclear weapons around the world. Plutonium, found in spent fuel from conventional uraniumburning power plants, can be used to make bombs.

Carter disclosed no details of the CIA study. A CIA spokesman, asked for the study, said, "We got caught with our shorts down. It's a classified

The spokesman said that the agency was trying to expunge por-tions that would harm national security if they were made public. He added that the study might then be declassified and released.

The most recent figures available from the Interior Department show estimates of world crude oil reserves as of Jan. 1, 1975, at 556.1 billion barrels. World natural gas reserves are estimated at 2,146.3 trillion cubic

The United States ranks fourth in crude oil reserves and third in natural gas reserves, with 34.2 billion barrels of oil and 237.1 trillion cubic feet of natural gas. The Middle East ranks first in crude oil reserves with 326 billion barrels, and the Sino-Soviet bloc first in gas with 737.7 trillion cubic feet "The energy policy proposal which will be made next week will be in-flationary in nature," Carter said. But he denied reports that it will contribute 2 or 3 per cent to the inflation rate. "We hope to be able within the energy policy that I present to hold down the impact on inflation to less than one-half per cent by emphasizing wherever possible voluntary con-servation," he said.

One of Carter's proposals is expected to call for higher federal taxes on gasoline for pleasure boating and flying. Another would raise the tax on fuel consumed by noncommercial aircraft from 7 cents to 11 cents a gallon. A draft of Carter's program also includes such steps as increasing federal gasoline taxes from the present 4 cents a gallon to as much as 54 cents a gallon over several years and placing a tax ranging from $412 to $2,500 on gas-guzzling cars. Carter will address the nation

Monday night on the need for energy conservation and speak on energy again after announcing his program

Following 'complications,' Stewart trial recessed

After what were described only as "complications" District Judge Perry Pickett recessed the trial mid-Friday afternoon allowing District Attorney Vern Martin until Monday morning to complete the prosecution's case in the murder case

Earlier in the day the jury heard
Jack Baker, a well driller who now lives in Alaska, testify that the night Bobby D. Sargent was fatally shot in the neck with a .38 caliber bullet, Stewart told him that he "and the boy were in the back and they were fussing over the telephone and somehow a gun came out and he was

Aug. 20 at the Red Fox Lounge after what police described as an argument.

Baker said he heard neither shouting nor anything that sounded like a gunshot associated with the breaking glass noise that came from the kitchen area.

It was after this noise, Baker said, that a barmaid came out of the kitchen saying somebody had been shot. A few moments later Stewart told Baker that "the boy (Sargent) was drunk ... a gun came out and he was shot," Baker told the court. Bobby Cline of Stanton said he saw two people go back into the kitchen area and heard what sounded like breaking glass five to ten minutes

Then, he said, the barmaid ran out of the bar "shocked, terrified and ran to a telephone. Cline said he saw Stewart after this incident and that he looked no different than he did earlier in the

"There were no cuts, no bruises, no torn clothes?" Assistant District Attorney Timothy Ann Slean asked

"No." Cline responded.

Paul W. Ferguson said he left the Red Fox about midnight Aug. 19 partially because he "anticipated there might be an argument' between Stewart and Sargent.

Plan to shift federal cases to magistrates

By JOHN M. GOSHKO The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Carter administration plans to ask Congress for legislation aimed at reducing the number of lawsuits piled up in U.S. District Courts by giving federal magistrates vastly expanded powers to decide civil and criminal cases. Although the Justice Department contends the plan to shift up to 16,000 cases a year from judges to magistrates will greatly improve the public's ability to get cases into court and have them decided quickly, the plan has triggered an emotional and growing controversy.

Opponents of the proposal charge it will relegate thousands of the poor and elderly to a system of "second-class justice" where they will be given inferior-quality hearings and their their rights of appeal made more difficult.

Adding an ironic note to the controversy are the questions it raises about the administration's populist image. When Griffin B. Bell became attorney general on Jan. 26, the longclosed main doors of the Justice Department building were unlocked to symbolize the administration's desire to give the average American greater access to the legal system.

Yet what is tentatively planned as the administration's first proposal to Congress for legislation in the legal field has triggered charges of class

As one department officials concedes, "We're being accused of trying to push the little guy out so the big fatcat litigants like the major corporations can have the courts to

Underlying the dispute is increasing concern among judges and lawyers about the growing backlog of unresolved cases in the federal courts. The number of new cases filed in U.S. District Courts - the trial evel of the federal court system has been running at the rate of 160,000

The latest figures compiled by the Administrative Office of the United States Courts show that from July through Septembe, 1976, 32,192 civil cases were filed in the District Courts. That brought the number of unresolved civil cases to 145,369, which meant a backlog of 365 pending cases for each of the 398 authorized District Court judgeships.

To deal with this problem, the Justice Department wants Congress to authorize greater use of the more than 400 magistrates who are already part of the federal court system.

The magistrates, many of whom serve only part-time, are lawyers appointed by the District Court judges to assist them with such chores as holding preliminary hearings for persons charged with a federal crime or conducting fact-finding hearings in cases before they come to trial.

CORCO to appeal FEA denial of relief

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) -Spokesmen for Commonwealth Oil Refining Co., Inc., (CORCO) said Friday they will appeal a Federal Energy Administration denial of relief sought by the oil company. The FEA granted partial relief, but denied the bulk of CORCO's petition. CORCO's application contended that it is suffering severe financial hardship and that its continued existence is threatened. The FEA agreed, but still denied most of the application.

The company claimed that OPEC price increases and U.S. price controls on domestic crude played havoc with an agreement the firm had with the U.S. Department of Interior. The agreement guaranteed cheap naphtha in exchange for CORCO's supplying its products to support satellite and downstream development in Puerto Rico.

Prospective relief through the entitlements program is estimated at $9.8 million over the next year, and retroactive relief to be received during the next six months by sale of additional entitlements was estimated at $7 million. CORCO pegged its relief applications to the fact that its refinery and petrochemical complex was built in reliance on federal programs. The company said the OPEC and U.S. actions dissipated the intent of the agreement and caused continuing money losses.

The FEA acknowledged the con-tractual nature of CORCO's problem, but said the federal government has no continuing obligation to assure the naphtha cost advantage.

More rain possible today

The Midland area, which is often plagued by dry spells but rarely blessed with an abundance of rainfall, may be in for another refreshing rainy day today.

Forecasters at the National Weather Service here predict a 50 per cent chance for showers and thunderstorms today. Probability of additional rainfall during the night will drop by 20 per cent.

Rain and occasional pellets of hail fell over Midland and environs Thursday. But Friday, the overhanging clouds were dry and virtually dropped no hint of precipitation. Official gauges at the weather service at Midland Air Terminal recorded almost an inch of rain this week. And that rainfall has upped the total this year though mid-April to 2.71 inches, which is above the norm. The average rainfall through April is 2.59 inches.

No rain, slight winds, and highflying clouds were reported Friday night over area towns, from Lamesa to Rankin and from Andrews to Stanton and Big Spring.

Thunderstorms, some accompanied by hail, lashed South Central and Southwest Texas Friday and swollen rivers and creeks brought flooding. Only far West Texas appeared to be dry as the rest of the state remained under cloudy skies and threat of storms. Flash flood watches and warnings, the latter an indication that flooding is imminent, were issued for several counties in South Central Texas, especially for those around San An-

The National Weather Service said flooding was expected of low-lying areas. It said heavy rains early in the day dropped more than three inches

Other counties warned of possible flooding included Bandera, Blanco, Burnett, Travis, Lampasas, Williamson and Gillespie.

A school bus was stranded early Friday between Cypress Creek and a small draw in Northeast Blanco County. Virtually all low water crossings were under water in an area from Fredericksburg to Johnson City and Georgetown in the Hill Country.
The Weather Service issued the following report on rivers in the thunderstorms area.

-Nueces River: Two to four inch rains on the headwaters were expected to cause overbank flooding from the hedwaters downstream to the Cotulla area in the next few days.

-Lower Frio River: Water moving downstream from the Concan area Friday and Saturday will crest at Derby on Sunday at the flood stage of six feet.

Air links to Britain in danger

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - There is a "realistic" possibility all commercial flights between the United States and Great Britain could stop this summer if the two nations fail to sign a new air treaty by June 22, Transportation Secretary Brock Adams said Friday. Adams did not elaborate, but said,

According to the statement, the noise generatged by a worldwide fleet of 30 to 40 Concordes using 12 major U.S. airports could increase the number of people disturbed by noise around those airports by 55 per cent

In releasing the statement, Adams emphasized that this assessment was included as a picture of the worst situation that could develop if the Concorde were to continue to fly into American airports. Under the National Environmental Policy Act. Adams said, it is customary to report 'best case and worst case projections." He said it is unlikely that so large a fleet of Concordes would ever

The impact statement, filed in accordance with a U.S. District Court order issued last year, is not "necessarily the one on which any noise rules" affecting the Concorde would be based, Adams said.

The supersonic aircraft will continue to fly into Dulles International airport here at least until September, when studies of the Concorde being conducted at the airport should be completed and analyzed.

Once that study is completed, Adams said, a final environmental impact statement will be written and public hearings held before any decision on the aircraft's future at American airports will be made.

Adams called the Concorde an issue of "major domestic importance" and said he would consult President Carter before making a final decision.

The zoo's goats, white-tail deer, rattlesnakes, tortoises, the cute barn owls, and the crippled-in-the-wing red-tail hawk may suddenly appear here and there.

Presumably, the at-home prairie dogs will be allowed to stay on and under the park grounds. Zoo director Bob Cooper reportedly has vowed to oversee the zoo's creatures until they are properly placed into foster homes and zoos. Meanwhile, there's an underground movement afoot to re-open and upgrade Cole Park Zoo, which is sort of pitted between the police firing range and the city's sanitary landfill east of town.

That movement, perhaps for naught, may appear in the convincing form of a petition. If so, that may be the beginning of a crusade "to get back the zoo.

And talk about a crusade may be worth something after all.

A small, but steadily growing number of states are moving to allow limited use of Laetrile, a controversial substance promoted by some as a cancer cure but banned from interstate commerce by the Food and Drug Administration.

Bills allowing the use of Laetrile are pending in about half a dozen states, according to an Associated Press spot check. Legislation approved in Alaska last year opened the way for that state's doctors to prescribe Laetrile, and a judge in Oklahoma City has given permission to some cancer patients to import the substance from Mexico.

Friday afternoon, the Indiana Senate approved a Housepassed bill legalizing the manufacture, sale and use of Laetrile in the state. The vote was 44 to 4. The measure now goes to Gov. Otis R. Bowen, who at one time said he would let the bill become law without his signature but later ex-pressed reservations about some

If the measure becomes law, Indiana would become the first state to allow the manufacture and sale as well as the use of Laetrile.
The FDA, under orders from the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, has scheduled a May 2 hearing in Kansas City on Laetrile, but the agency still argues that the product is useless.

Among the issues to be considered is whether Laetrile is or is not a drug and should be exempt from 1962 legislation requiring manufacturers to prove that drugs are safe and effective before they market them.

An FDA bulletin says Laetrile is the chemical amygdalin, which occurs naturally in the pits of peaches, apricots, bitter almonds and some other plant material. Amygdalin contains small amounts of the poisonous element cyanide. Its promotion as a cancer cure goes back more than 50 years, to 1920, when Ernest T. Krebs Sr., a California physician, tried apricot pits as a treatment.

Krebs' son, Ernest T. Krebs Jr., a biochemist, later claimed that Laetrile is vitamin B17 — a claim denied by the FDA which says that repeated tests by various foundations produced no evidence that the substance is effective against cancer.

The FDA reports that "the smuggling of Laetrile into the United States has become big business. On the black market, Laetrile sells for 600 to 700 per cent above the manufacturer's cost ... Customs officials recently have made more than 20 major seizures ...

The Alaska law allows doctors to prescribe and administer Laetrile, but sale of the substance is still prohibited and no court has granted permission for its importation.

In spite of the ban on sale and importation, an estimated 300 Alaskans are using Laetrile. No information was available on the success or failure of the treatments.

The Arizona Senate's Health and Welfare Committee has approved a House-passed bill to legalize the manufacture and sale of Laetrile in the state. A bill introduced in Illinois would allow physicians to administer the substance although patients would have to obtain it on their own. Legislation on Laetrile also is pending in Florida, Oregon, Massachusetts and Minnesota.

Legislators in Hawaii, West Virginia and North and South Dakota have considered measures on Laetrile, but defeated the bills or took

Let it rain!

There is nothing like a West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention to bring a good, needed rain - even to the point of breaking a prolonged drought

And there is nothing that WTCC had rather bring to a city or area than good, soaking, general rains.

The great, long-needed moisture which fell here and elsewhere over the region Wednesday night and Thursday met all the qualifications of a WTCC convention soaker.

The rains came with the early arrival of the first delegates, and continued off-and-on as the convention officially opened hours later. It was one of those continuing rainfalls of which West Texans are so fond.

Broad grins readily were visible on the faces of many of the convention delegates throughout the session as they discussed the much-appreciated moisture and the marvelous effects it will have on the region's farm and ranch

It is recalled that bountiful rains have greeted WTCC meetings at Stephenville, Brownwood, Fort Worth, Kerrville and perhaps elsewhere in the last several years.

The moisture during the convention at Amarillo a few years ago, incidentally, broke a devastating drought as far away as San Angelo, bringing relief for a serious water shortage there. Fortunately, most of the country in between also received good

PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE:

Dodging limousine edict popular sport

By BENJAMIN SHORE Copley News Service

WASHINGTON - The big. beautiful, two-tone green Dodge pulled out of the Commerce Department courtyard the other morning, slipped into the rush-hour traffic and headed toward the White House two olocks away.

The proper black cap perched on the driver's head told observers he was a chauffeur, while the telephone he was talking into most likely meant he was on official business with his empty car.

The chauffeured limousine is a time-honored symbol of rank and privilege in this rank-conscious city, but President Carter, who cares little for outward manifestations of power, wants to reduce its use for equally symbolic reasons.

He is finding little support among the Cabinet officers and their echelons of deputies who know their predecessors enjoyed all kinds of perquisites.

When the President suggested that the fleet of limousines be reduced drastically, there was widespread fear over the loss of visible rank and grumbling over the loss of con-

But someone quickly spotted the loophole: a literal definition of "limousine." It turns out there is only one brand of automobile in the government motor pool that legally can be called a limousine. This is the big, black Cadillac.

Benjamin

So there has been a slow but sure transfer of executive affection to big Mercurys, Chryslers and Dodges. The rules of status are adjusted and the convenience remains.

Just when the top bureaucrats thought the problem of perquisites was behind them, along came a new one: the executive suite chef. A tip to a newsman from someone inside the Department of Health, Education and Welfare led to the revelation that Secretary Joseph Califano has hired himself a cook and tried to hide it from public view by a 402-word Civil Service job description that never mentioned cooking of food.

It subsequently was reported that Califano and Mr. Carter had "a little chat" about the matter, and soon the 'chef" was relabeled a "steward" but stayed on the job.
We also learned that nearly every other Cabinet officer has someone to prepare midday meals for the executives and their usually steady stream of guests who have a working lunch. It's always been this way.

At first glance, the big cars and cooks-stewards-chefs seem terribly imperial at a time when the President is trying to knock down that image.

But most of these executives put in 12 to 15 hours a day, often six days a week. Most could drive themselves to work and carry a brown-bag lunch, but the demands of their jobs generally dictate the need for using commuting hours for reading and lunch hours for meetings.

The problem always has been and still is — the top-ranking bureaucrat who abuses these perquisites and earns a headline. Mr. Carter's approach is to eliminate the possibility by eliminating the perks.

And when he continues to chip away at the "imperial presidency," he makes it difficult for his subordinates to justify their various privileges of Mr. Carter's decision the other day to get rid of the presidential yacht is one of those acts that makes his top executives squirm as they continue to employ drivers and cooks.

Although selling the yacht will bring in only $200,000 to $400,000 and save $100,000 a year in maintenance costs, it is a symbol that has great impact with the taxpaying public.

For those of you who like your presidents to retain some imperial touches, does it help to know Mr. Carter likes the presidential box at the Kennedy Center?

Grim stories of torture cited

JACK ANDERSON and LES

WASHINGTON - President Carter's aggressive defense of human rights has been rejected by a number of Latin American regimes which still rely on imprisonment, torture and murder to perpetuate themselves in Five Latin American nations, outraged at the Carter administration's criticism of their repressive police states, have refused to accept further American military aid. But this face-saving attempt hasn't stifled the efforts of their people to achieve basic human

We have heard the grim stories of many victims who have been brutally mistreated by these military governments. But rarely have we heard a tale as detailed, credible and moving as that of Enrique Rodriguez Larreta.

He is a prominent journalist from one of Uruguay's oldest and most distinguished families. He flew to Buenos Aires last July to trace the disappearance of his 26-year-old son, also a journalist, who had emigrated to Argentina years ago. The anxious father spoke with several officials and wrote numerous letters. On the night of July 13, a group of armed men dressed in plain clothes bashed in the door of his daughter-in-law's apartment. They handcuffed both Larreta and his daughter-in-law, tied hoods over their heads and drove them in their night clothes to a room with about 30 other people.

Through his loosely woven hood, Larreta recognized his son and several other prominent people, including Margarita Michelini, the daughter of an Uruguayan senator who had been assassinated in Buenos Aires, and Leon Duarte, an Uruguayan labor organizer who had disappeared.

The guards began shoving prisoners upstairs for interrogation. "Because of the piercing screams that I could hear constantly," Larreta told our associate Joseph Spear, "I realized they were being brutally tortured

The next evening, it was Larreta's turn. "They stripped me completely naked. Tying my hands behind my back, they suspended me by the wrists ... They put a sort of loincloth on me, on which there were several exposed electrical wires. When that device is plugged in, the victim receives electric shocks at several points simultaneously. This machine,' as they call it, is plugged in amidst questions, threats, insults and blows to the most sensitive parts of the body."

Throughout the ordeal, Larreta's tormentors asked him questions about the political activities of his son and himself. Larreta reported that his guards "seemed to belong to the Argentine army," but Uruguayan army officers also participated in the torture sessions, he said. At one point, the guards suspended a water-filled tank from the ceiling, tied a prisoner named Carlos Santucho to a rope, and dangled him over the tank. He was "lowered repeatedly into the tank and pulled out again, amidst laughter and insults," Larreta recalls. "After awhile, they apparently noticed that Santucho's body showed no signs of life ... and took him away."

On July 26, Larreta was tied up and thrown into a truck with some other prisoners. They were hauled to a military airport in Buenos Aires, flown to a base near Montivideo, and deposited in a Uruguayan house of

INSIDE REPORT:

Carter solidly entrenched with Pentagon, others

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - Despite the shaky start that launched his first negotiation with the Soviet Union, President Carter is now solidly en-trenched with both congressional conservatives and the Pentagon, without any shaving of his liberal Democratic base.

In no little part, that was due to this hard-line decision by the President, backed by the Joint Chiefs of Staff at a White House luncheon just before the Moscow talks: preserve the muchfeared cruise missile as the chief American bargaining lever to pry nuclear arms reductions out of the Soviet Union. The cruise, a pilotless, subsonic aircraft that can carry a nuclear payload, is essentially a theater-wide weapon but has strategic capabilities.

With his own arms proposals deliberately given heavy advance publicity, providing them with a political dimension unknown in the Nixon-Ford-Kissinger days of secret diplomacy, Mr. Carter appears to have emerged from the Moscow debacle reinforced politically on all

Indeed, the failure of Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to resolve deep disagreement between Washington and Moscow over new nuclear arms limitations has united Democrats and

Novak Evans

Republicans, hawks and doves behind Jimmy Carter as no foreign policy success or failure since the Vietnam war fragmented American politics. For example, neither the Pentagon brass nor defense-oriented Congressmen are demanding an immediate increase in strategic arms spending — or in any other category military spending - despite the Moscow deadlock and despite Mr. Carter's cuts in the new MX longrange mobile missile and the B-1

"We don't need that right now, Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia, the Senate majority leader, told us. "But I informed President Carter that in any accelerated arms race with the Russians, the American people won't settle for second place." That message-to-Moscow mood dominated the cabinet room Wednesday afternoon when Mr. Carter, discussing Vance's failure, rediscovered the phenomenon of virtually total bipartisan support.
Support for the President's decision to hang tough despite the breakdown of the talks transcends U.S. politics. NATO allies in Europe, far from shrinking at the prospect of heightened U.S.-Soviet tensions, or even the resumption of some form of cold war, were privately pleased that the new administration was refusing to be cowed. "They're testing Car-ter," one European diplomat one European diplomat remarked, "and I don't think he is going to blink."

What this means is that at least for now Mr. Carter is free of the vicious policy and weapons disputes that hamstrung President Ford and Henry Kissinger in two years of effort to translate the November 1974 Vladivostok agreements into treaty form. It means - at least for now that Jimmy Carter negotiates with the Kremlin from a position of strength at home, a fact not to go unnoticed in the Kremlin which has used the bloody divisions of U.S. politics as a major asset in pursuing vorldwide Soviet policy.

The weaknesses in this first bargaining bout with the Kremlin were more tactical than strategic. In retrospect, presidential advisers believe they moved too frontally on certain aspects of the human rights crusade. As a result, they began sending deliberate signals to Moscow, three weeks before the arms talks, that mere words are not interference in internal Soviet affairs. That probably means for Soviet dissidents: no more letters signed by Jimmy Carter and no more White House invitations.

A second tactical error was even to suggest that the President's preferred arms-reduction plan - an indescribably complex and ramified proposal - could conceivably be digested, much less intelligently discussed, by Kremlin arms experts without weeks of study.

These errors may be chalked up to the inexperience of newcomers. They pale beside the political unity stitched together by the President's refusal to retreat on the cruise missile and his decision to go public with his arms-cut proposal - putting him far ahead of the Soviets in the propaganda battle.

If the Moscow deadlock is the forerunner of a new cold war, a doubtful prospect to most analysts here, Mr. Carter now has established a unified base from which to wage it If, as seems more likely, a SALT II agreement can indeed be achieved from the President's strong bargaining position, the credit will be

Fourteen prisoners agreed to the deal; the phony raid was staged, and the captives were paraded before the press. armed camp called Argentina, where the military junta, under Gen. Jorge Rafael Videla, must use force to keep its shaky hold on the reins of power. Top Argentine officials, therefore, are unhappy about Carter's human rights offensive. Argentina is a "nation under siege," the generals claim. There's no room, they insist, for normal court procedures. Their views have been reported to House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill by Rep. Fred Richmond, D.-N.Y., in a confidential account of his recent Argentine visit.

A recent wave of kidnappings, meanwhile, has forced wealthy Argentines to retreat behind elaborate security measures. Many citizens have not dared to venture out of doors for months. Even in the wellguarded U.S. embassy in Buenos Aires, American Ambassador Robert Hill won't go swimming or play tennis without a dozen Marines to protect

In Paraguay, hundreds of citizens have been imprisoned and cruelly tortured by police officials paranoid about any hint of opposition.

Proposals blasted

SNYDER, Tex. (AP) -Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe said Friday he is confident President Jimmy Carter will not heed energy adviser James Schlesinger's proposals regarding natural gas and oil.

The proposals, Briscoe said, would "have disastrous consequences for the economy and industry of Texas.'

Briscoe told a news conference that Schlesinger's proposals "invade intra-state gas markets...and fail to create incentives for petroleum exploration."

WEAR-

A number of resolutions to benefit West Texas industries were passed during the Friday afternoon business session of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention.

Resolutions passed on the recommendation of the agricultural and ranching committee included the following: that the West Texas Chamber of Commerce oppose the proposed Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) cotton dust standards; support the representation of WTCC on a board to be established by the beef research and information act and advocate the exemption of farm and ranch workers

The mineral resources committee, headed by Larry Byrd of Midland, recommended the following resolutions, which were approved by members present: opposition to an amendment to the outer Continental shelf act, which permits leasing of offshore lands, because the amendment would further delay the period of time from granting the lease to production; and affirmation of the WTCC position on deregulation of oil and Resolutions approved after recommendation by the national affairs committee include the following: opposition to any raising of the minimum wage and support of a proposed federal bill to give reasonable protection against "presently harsh" products liability laws such as exist in Texas. Chairman W. A. "Bill" Griffis of San Angelo facetiously proposed a resolution that the WTCC take the official position that OSHA be abolished.

Other persons making committee reports included Joe Collyns of cultural affairs, J. L. "Jimmie" Martin of the information committee, Larry Milnar of the local action committee, Les Cook of state affairs and Phil Neighbors of water development.

Dr. Sam J. Richards, assistant vice president of program development at Texas Tech Medical School, reported that the school was well on its way to fulfilling its mandate of using the West Texas community for a training program for medical students through a residency training program which already includes Amarillo, Lubbock and El Paso.

A similar program is scheduled to begin in the Permian Basin in the early 1980s, Richards said. The prospect for legislative support of the school's program is hopeful, he said.

Also during the Friday afternoon session outgoing WTCC president W. H. "Bill" Collyns transferred the presidency to E. Bruce Street of Graham.

Collyns said his year as WTCC president was "one of the most enjoyable years of my life."

End to over-regulation possible, speaker says

Government over-regulation and control has been brought about because of actions of business, members of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce were told Donald L. Bryant, executive vice president of The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, spoke to the chamber's convention luncheon at the Midland Hilton Friday.

Bryant said he is optimistic that the trend to over-regulation and other threats to the free enterprise system can be reversed.

"I feel confident and optimistic because I believe American business is starting to begin to recognize and understand that we ourselves have brought ourselves to our present predicament — and hence can likewise change that Predicament," Bryant said.

The public demands controls from its legislators when it believes it is necessary to curb abuse or dishonesty, he said. "Necessity is not only the other of invention, it's also the genesis of regulation," Bryant said.

But, the public "will rally to the side of business and re-elect elected office seekers seek to add to the costs of products and services, and who seek to limit choices by support of government regulations that are unnecessary" when business gives evidence it doesn't need to be heavily regulated, he said.

Bryant told the chamber members the public doesn't buy the idea that a "a faulty free enterprise system is still better than a faulty governmentcontrolled system."

He said business leaders have the opportunity and the ability "to spare our fellow Americans" the "destructive alternative" of a faulty government-controlled system by removing the reasons the public turned to the government for regulation.

Bryant commended the successful efforts of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in working to hold young people in the area and maintain a low unemployment rate and a good quality of life.

"I particularly applaud you people on the forthright manner that you have taken up the song of free enterprise," Bryant said.

He said leadership is essential in good economic development. "Leadership always makes a difference," he said.

Bryant used the city of Cairo, Ill., as an example of what lack of leadership can do. Cairo, he said, was once one of the busiest port cities in the country because it is at the convergence of the

Donald L. Bryant

Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

Although it was once larger than Chicago, it now has a population of under 6,000 people. "It has no industry, no life, no culture, no foreseeable future. Where was their Chamber of Commerce? Where were their business leaders?"

Bryant said leadership explains why West Texas is thriving and Cairo

Doug Sutterlin of Midland, vice president of district VI of the chamber, presided at the luncheon. W. H. "Bill" Collyns of Midland, president of the chamber, introduced Bryant.

Collyns accepted the Freedoms Foundation Award, the highest given by that foundation, on behalf of the chamber. Ralph McLaughlin of Big Spring, who made the presentation, said this is the second year in a row the West Texas chamber has received the award.

Frank Wallace, former mayor of Amarillo, presented Collyns and his wife with a painting by Jodie Boren.

New Davis bond motion expected

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Defense attorneys for Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis said Friday they will file a new motion Monday to have Davis released on bond have Davis released on bond.

Meanwhile, officials revealed that an anonymous phone call led to the declaration of a mistrial in Davis' capital murder trial Wednesday.

Davis, 43, is charged with the Aug. 3 slaying of his stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn, 12. The motion was expected Friday. However, defense attorney Richard Haynes said the delay was simply a matter of getting last miuute details ironed out.

The defense must present new evidence in the case in order to insure a new bond hearing will be scheduled. State District Court Judge Tom Cave denied Davis bond last fall after five days of testimony that saw two witnesses implicate Davis in a shooting spree at his $6 million mansion here.

The mood here Friday was subdued compared with that of last week when an anonymous male caller telephoned the district attorney's office.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Joe Shannon, who

Asst. Dist. Atty. Joe Shannon, who spoke with the caller, said he was told Mrs. Elizabeth Panke, the second juror selected, had made three unauthorized telephone calls and expressed an opinion to an outsider about what should be done with Davis.

That opinion brought to a sudden stop nearly eight weeks of bonegrinding work by attorneys for both sides. Jury selection must now start anew.

The selection process began Feb.

24. It ended after Judge Cave questioned Mrs. Panke, a secretary for the Carpenter's Union here, and union representative. J.P. Long. who representative, J.P. Long, who received at least one of the calls.

Shannon said the caller knew the exact dates the calls were made. He said the district attorney's office confirmed the dates through a check with the telephone company.

Dist. Atty. Tim Curry said Long quoted Mrs. Panke as saying, "Why don't they just hang the son of a bitch and get it over with."

Mrs. Panke denied making the statements.

The juror could face up to three days in jail and a $100 fine for violating her oath not to discuss the case, but Curry said he doubts Cave will hold her in contempt.

Friday, nobody appeared anxious to begin the wearisome selection process again. Curry and Shannon agree the added news coverage will make it more difficult to obtain a jury in Tarrant County.

The pressure from several weeks of questioning and vast publicity began to show Thursday when Curry lashed out at Haynes. Curry threatened to file a complaint with the State Bar grievance committee after Haynes implied the prosecution wanted the Shannon said "traditionally" a trial, delay beneiits the defense team.

In the realm of the spiritual, God has provided us with many resources. They inspire constructive living, dedicated service, devotion to high ideals.

But what we accomplish in our spiritual quest depends most of all on the skills we acquire through parental example and religious training. The churches of our community are helping us train a new generation to design a better tomorrow - using God's pattern.

By CHARLIE SHEDD

He is fourteen and he can catch fish with his hand. He stretches out on a rock, puts his arm in the water, and is very still. Suddenly with a quick flip he snaps a fish out of the water, and you better be ready to duck.

If you think this is a fish story, it is. But it is also true. Jeremy lives on a lake. His father sells outboard motors, fishing tackle, boats. Both Jeremy and his father are certified guides and if you were to ask him how he catches fish with his hands, this is what he would tell you:

"You go where you know the fish hide. Up close against the rocks. Then you let your hand down and when they get curious enough, they'll come around. They nibble at your hand. Then you can move one finger and begin to tickle them on the under side. They like that. Slowly you move your finger into their gills, snap your wrist, and you've got a fish."

By MARJORIE HYER The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The National Aeronautics and Space Administration records the undistinguishedlooking piece of basalt as "Piece 230 of Apollo 11 rock No. 10057."

But for the Washington Cathedral, the 3.5-billion-year-old, silver-dollarsized slice of moon rock is the crowning glory of a spectacular blue-toned stained glass window commemorating the exploration of space.

The rock, plucked from the Sea of Tranquility in 1969 by the first man to set foot on the moon, has been leaded into the window at the Episcopalian Church's national cathedral.

The rock rests at almost the center of the 19-foot gothic window, whose design was inspired by photos brought back by early space flights. In velvety shadings of blue, the window design suggests planets in a night sky flecked with stars. A tracery of red around the edges gives promise of the rising

The window, designed by Rodney Winfield, was installed in July, 1974, with a circle of black paper between the two layers of glass as a stand-in for the actual moon rock.

With scaffolding still in place for construction of the adjacent walls, cathedral officials feared their lunar artifact might prove too much of an attraction for vandals if it were set in place then.

So the rock in its plexiglass cradle was kept in the cathedral's vault until March 29, when Dieter Goldkuhle, whom cathedral works director Richard T. Feller described as "the best stained glass man in the country," pried out the blank and worked

ABILENE' - Abilene Christian University hosted a typical District 5-4A track meet here Friday night. The unexpected happened - which is usually expected in this yearly zany

The most important unexpected happening, however, came in the battle for the team championship as Abilene Cooper scored 155 points to upset San Angelo, which managed only 126. It was supposed to be the other way around according to the annual track purists.

There were other things that happened, like an offensive tackle from Odessa High, Roy Breiner, coming from nowhere to win the high jump with a leap of 6-5 feet. Cooper suffered its only real defeat here as Billy Stone, who went to state last year, didn't qualify, nor did San Angelo's Neville Leverett who gave way to OHS's Stan Chism for second. But there were a few things that happened according to the book, like Midland High's Robert Wilson winning the mile run in record setting time, and Cooper capturing the girls title by 38 points over second place Odessa Permian.

Wilson's 4:21.8 in the mile erased the old record of 4:24.6, which was set by Lee's Rodney Smith in 1972. Wilson led the entire race for his record, but it is only his third best

UNFORTUNATELY, IT was Midland's only victory of the night as the track seemed to be filled with Bobcats and Cougars. Lee's Jeff McGowan, a mild surprise in the shot put, tossed a 52-11 to win second a regional berth while Lee's David Skinner won a Region I berth in the 880 with a career best of 1:58.0. That's it folks. That will be the only Tall City entries in the regionals in two weeks in Lubbock.

The Midland High girls, however, did a little better while winning three individual regional berths. Celeste Washington won the 440 for the second year in a row with a 1:01.5 and Gloria Caldwell was second in the 880 with a 2:28.1 for the second year. The newcomer was Loryanne Coon, who placed second in the mile run with a

JULIE OCHSNER was Lee's only

girls qualifier as she placed second in the 100 with an 11.7.

Other than that it was heartbreak city for the rest of the Tall City entries. Lee finished sixth with 39-points while the Bulldogs were seventh with Midland High had three thirds in near misses and a disqualification in another race while Lee had three fourths, a fifth and a sixth. The Lee girls also had three thirds to take the fun out of a medal since only two advance to the regionals.

MIDLAND HIGH'S Brian Booker was third in the shot put with a 52-51/4 feet while Frank Driskill was fourth with a toss of 52-214, both losing out to McGowan and San Angelo's Harold Ledet, who set the only other meet record of the day with a 61-1.

Chuck Stump was third in the 880 with a best of 1:58.1, narrowly losing to Lee'e Skinner at the tape. Alvin Price was third in the a close 100 with a 9.9, the same time as winner Anthony Washington of Abilene High. Price was disqualified for running out of his lane in the 220 after he finished third. Jeff Adkins was fifth in the mile with a 4:34.2.

Lee's Jerry Moore was fourth in the long jump with a 21-1/2 and Jami Berry was fourth in the 440 with a 50.9. The big surprise for Lee came in the 440 relay with a fourth, besting out San Angelo at the wire to start the demise of the favored Bobcats.

RICKY PARSONS was a mild surprise in the mile with a sixth place. (Continued on 2-B)

San Antonio trips Midland Cubs, 8-5

San Antonio's Dodgers have had a hard time holding a lead against the Midland Cubs, but Friday night the Los Angeles farmhands made a 6-0 lead stand up for an 8-5 Texas League win at Cubs Stadium.

It was the Dodger organization's first win in six years in the Texas League, largely because they've been playing in the Eastern League at Waterbury since jumping from El Midland had won the first two games of the series by coming from behind and looked like they might do it again Friday when hot-hitting Karl Pagel unloaded a three-run double in the third and Duane Gustavson parked a two-run homer over the fence in left-center, to the right of the scoreboard, to whittle the Dodgers' lead to 7-5 after five innings.

However, lefthander Barry Biggerstaff relieved starter Steve Shirley with one out in the fifth and blanked the Cubs on two hits the rest of the way.

SO HEADING into tonight's 7:30 series finale, the Dodgers will be seeking a split with lefthander Mitch Bobinger on the mound and the Cubs will be endeavoring to sew up the series behind Jeff Alberts. San Antonio struck for three first-inning runs against Byron Wilkerson and then shortstop Marv Webb gave the Dodgers' all they needed to win with a three-run homer in the second. Webb later added a fourth rbi in the ninth after Art Fischetti had doubled. A leadoff single by Marty Garrison and a walk to Fischetti led Wilkerson into quick trouble. Webb sacrificed to advance the runners and then Wilkerson's pick off attempt at third

Atlanta nabs win

ATLANTA (AP) — Pitcher Dick Ruthven's two-out double in the sixth inning broke a 3-3 deadlock and lifted Atlanta to a 4-3 victory over the Houston Astros in the Braves' home opener Friday night.

The defeat snapped a three-game winning streak for Houston

Crocker hanging on with slim golf lead

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) - Four bogies on the back side destroyed Mary Lou Crocker's hopes Friday of another sub-par round and cut her lead to one stroke midway through the second annual Women's International Golf Tournament.

Her one-over-par 73, coupled with Thursday's six-under 66, gave the Louisville, Ky., pro a 36-hole total of 139, five under par.

Moving into second place after another two-under round was England's Michelle Walker, making a strong bid for her first pro victory in the United States.

Jan Stephenson, the Australian now living in Palm Springs, Calif., dropped from second to third with Friday's round of 73, which gave her a two-day total 141.

After playing the front side in one-under 35, Miss Crocker bogied the 14th, 15th and 16th holes. Then she birdied the 17th but finished with another bogey on the 18th.

The veteran pro striving for her second tournament win in 12 years on the tour said slow play and the heat took its toll on her game. She noted it took four hours and 40 minutes to complete her round Friday, compared with three hours and 16 minutes Thursday, when she was in the leadoff pairing with no one playing ahead.

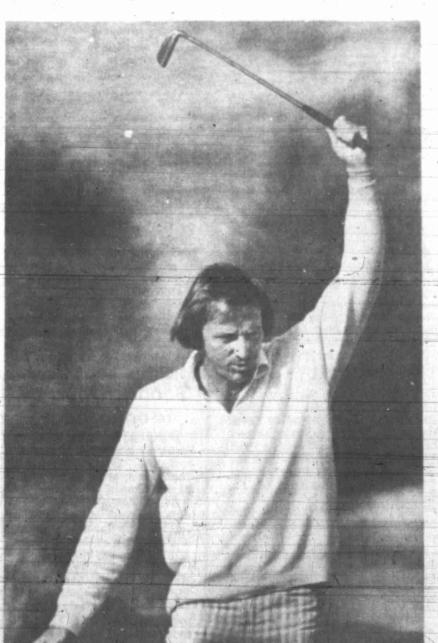

Despite a posted warning by of-ficials that undue delay would bring a two-stroke penalty, it countinued to take most of the three-somes almost five hours to complete a round.

Tied for fourth place with totals of 142 were Amy Alcott of Santa Monica, Calif., and Sandra Palmer of Fort Worth, Tex. Miss Alcott is 69-73 and Miss Palmer had 70-72.

Sally Little, the South African who won the first International last year, had an even-par 72 Friday and was tied for fourth at 143 with Silvia Bertolaccini of Houston, Tex., and Kathy McMullen of Holmes Beach,

Wynn establishes lead in Champions tourney

KMID-TV.

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) -Longshot Bob Wynn, who said he's "playing about as well as I can play," swept past the faltering leaders with a solid, five-under-par 67 and established a three-stroke lead over Jack Nicklaus in Friday's second round of the $225,000 Tournament of

The 37-year-old Wynn, one of a record 12 men making their first appearance in this winners-only event, put together a 36-hole total of 137, seven under par on the 6,855-yard La Costa Country Club course.

"I'M HITTING the ball better than I have at any time in the last seven years," said Wynn, who waited until he was almost 30 to join the pro tour and then scored his first official victory only last year in the B.C. up a quick, two-stroke lead-then blew himself out of it with a horrendous, quadruple-bogey seven on the seventh hole.

Floyd pumped his tee shot into the pond that guards the green on the par three hole, took a drop, hit the next one in the same pond, was short on his next, chipped up and one-putted for

He finished with a 76 and a 143 total. Lee Elder, only one shot back after the first round, took a 74 and was at 142 in the tournament that is sponsored by Mutual of New York.

LEE TREVINO, again trying a comeback from major back surgery last year, matched par 72 and was at 146, one stroke ahead of new Masters champ Tom Watson and Ben Cren-shaw. Crenshaw shot a 71, Watson 73. Wynn, who turned pro when he was 19 and spent the next decade learning the club pro business plus a stint in the military, has won only $6,944 this season, most of that in the last three four times, withdrew twice and was disqualified twice.

'I had my head all wrong," he said. "It was like I was just waiting for something bad to happen so I could get mad as hell, shoot my 76 and get out of town.

HE SPRAINED his left wrist in Florida, then, using a fade off the tee, turned his game around and played reasonably well in the next three tournaments.

He keyed his second-round action on birdies on all four of the par five dholes. He reached one of them with a four wood second shot, chipped to within 3-4 feet on two others and scored with a putt from off the green on the other one

He birdied the fourth from 10 feet and wedged to five feet on the sixth. He caught two bunkers, and saved par

Final 5-4A golf reset

ABILENE - An early Friday morning downfall of rain here forced postponement of the final round of the 5-4A golf competition, which was scheduled for Maxwell Municipal Golf Course.

It has been rescheduled for Tuesday morning. San Angelo holds a three-stroke lead over Midland Lee and a 19-stroke advantage over Midland en-tering the final 18 holes of action. The top two team finishers and the top two individual medalists qualify for for regional play up in Lubbock.

Walzel also shot 68s for 36-nole totals of 137.

At 138 were Ed Sneed of Pompano Beach, Fla., and Larry Nelson of Kennesaw, Ga. Sneed, one of four players tied with Ewing after Thursday's round, had a two-under 70 while Nelson shot 67.

Lon Hinkle of San Diego, Calif., shot a 69 to stand alone at 139. Eight players, including first-round leaders Ed Dougherty and Dale Hayes and 1969 U.S. Open champion Orville Moody, were at 140. Five players stood at 141. Richard.

Meissner, the other first round leader, had a 74 for 142. Pretournament favorite Hubert Green shot a 73 for Ewing played in the morning and watched his five birdies, one bogey effort hold up on the 7,124-yard Killearn Golf and Country Club course.

White's 38 points paces Celtic win

SAN ANTONIO, Tex (AP) — JoJo White scored a playoff career high 38 points Friday night to pace the World Champion Boston Celtics to a 113-109 first round National Basketball Association playoff victory and a twogame sweep of the San Antonio Spurs.

The Celtics clinched a second-round playoff berth in Philadelphia against the 76ers on Sunday.

It was Boston's sixth straight victory over San Antonio this year, " including both playoff games in the best-of-three series. The Celtics won the first game in Boston 104-94 Tuesday. San Antonio battled to within four points with 53 seconds left in the game at 111-107, but the two teams exchanged free throws to settle the Boston beat San Antonio 44-33 in rebounds, the area in which San Antonio Coach Doug Moe said his team would have to imprve drastically if they hoped to beat the Celtics. They failed.

Boston's Charlie Scott was evicted from the game by referee Roger McCann with 4:20 left in the third period. Scott was called for a technical on San Antonio's Coby Dietrick after he put up a free throw and Scott knocked the ball from Dietrick's hands. Scott was ejected when he refused to quit arguing with the official.

A group of five regular NBA officials, who are striking the playoffs, picketed outside the Convention Center Arena. McCann and Don Drurr officiated the game.

San Antonio charged off to an 8-0 lead on six straight points by George Gervin and a dunk by Billy Paultz. But White scored seven straight points to get Boston close again. Boston led 25-24 at the quarter and the game was a see-saw affair until less than three minutes remained in the half. Then Boston outscored San Antonio 9-5 and gained a 58-50 intermission advantage.

The teams battled evenly through the third period with White hitting key baskets to help Boston expand its lead to 90-81. John Havlicek and Dave Cowens added 16 points each for Boston and Sidney Wicks added 15 points.

Gervin led San Antonio with 30 points, including 12 in the fourth quarter to pull the Spurs within striking distance. Larry Kenon had only 14 points for San Antonio before fouling out in the final period. Paultz added 20 for San Antonio.

Cooper gained the most ground in the 440 with 24 points and the only 1-2-3 finish of the night as Tod Mosshart, Wayne Cobb and Ricky Hoff crossed over before Lee's Berry.

The Cougars were also 1-2 in the pole vaults even though James Goff upset Richard Williams as both cleared 14-0 feet.

Cooper also won the mile relay and both hurdle events behind Tim Roberts in the 330s and Mike Blake in the 120s. Tim Orr was the Cooper surprise in the long jump with a 22-10.

SAN ANGELO won the 880 behind the 1:56.7 of flashy Ed Bruning, and the 220 was won by teammate Roy Young with a 22.4.

That was all the Bobcats could muster in firsts with the exception of Ledet's two wins. Ledet also won the discus with a toss of 171-1. He was the only two-event winner.

Many thought the final point total between Cooper and San Angelo would be reversed. But that's the unexpected - which really should be the expected in 5-4A track.

Stumbling Reds miss Perez, Gullett now

CINCINNATI (AP) - The diagnosis is in on the Cincinnati Reds' stumbling start. The problem may be more in the mind, rather than the Fat Cat Syndrome or a rack of sick bats.

That's the view of the nation's bestknown psychologist, a man who has served as consultant to such former world champions as the Oakland As and the Pittsburgh Steelers.

According to Dr. Thomas Tutko: -Batting star Pete Rose is not in a slump, but rather he is suffering from "covert hostility."

-The world champions have not collapsed, but are just undergoing "a familial disruption.

-The Reds' relief pitching pro-blems may have more to do with tension control and assertiveness than hanging curve balls. Dr. Tutko, who authored the book "Sports Psyching," views the loss of former Reds Tony Perez and Don Gullett as psychological factors in the

"The Reds have always seemed to be a family unit," Tutko said. "But with Tony Perez and Don Gullett gone, and the troubles they had signing Rose, and the fact Rawly Eastwick has not signed yet- all of these things have tended to disrupt the family.

"It doesn't take that much to remove the little extra feeling that you're going to win, no matter what,' he said. Tutko said Rose may be suffering carryover effects from his widely publicized and bitter contract dispute. "While I have no way of knowing for sure, I think the situation with Rose might be this: Although he says he's over the hassles with the club and is going to give 110 per cent, he has a covert hostility toward the management for what happened, maybe because of the ad that the club took out in the newspaper."

"So," he continued, "while consciously he thinks he's playing hard, on the subconscious level he wants to pay the management back for what it did. And how can he accomplish that? By doing poorly."
Tutko said he expects "Rose will realize what is happening, and then go about it, and then start working even harder. My guess is that he will bounce back."

TEE TIME

No. 3 gets aced again

REX WORRELL Hogan Park golf pro

Francis insists, the team should be able to offer more than token resistance when the Montreal Canadiens meet the Blues here tonight in the third game of their Stanley Cup quarter-final playoffs.

"We've got to start putting the puck in the net," said Francis, the coach of the Blues, who have been outscored 10-2 and trail the Canadiens 2-0 in the best-of-seven series.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — All the tricks in the dossier of Emile Francis aren't likely to be enough to bail out the National Hockey League's St. Louis

'There's no way I've figured out to win a hockey game without scoring a goal," he added. "If we take advantage of our chances, anything could happen.'

The Blues, who were outclassed 7-2 by Montreal in the quarter-final series opener, tried a defensive ploy which did not work while losing 3-0 in the second game.

"That was to stop them from get-ting the jump on us," said Francis, whose centers were deployed behind the defense at the blue line for one

"It was to keep them within range. We changed afterward and forechecked. The big thing that hurt us was that we didn't cash in on our scoring op-

An emphasis on offense at the outset may be in order for St. Louis when the two teams meet on Arena ice, Francis suggested.

"We're just looking for some way to get out in front for a change," he saide "We haven't tried everything we can, but we're sure running short on time

While concentrating on the attack, the Blues also will attempt to slow Canadiens right winger Guy Lafleur. who has scored four goals and notched the same number of assists.

"The strength of their team is their defense," Francis opinioned, however. "Those big guys muscle you off the puck and pretty soon it's in your end, where one pass produces a goal. I'd say their defense is the best

A fourth game in the series will be played at the Arena on Sunday night, with a fifth game to be played in Montreal Tuesday if needed.

"They're great but they aren't unbeatable," maintained Francis, whose Blues pinned one of only eight regular-season defeats on the Canadiens in a 7-2 game Jan. 12.

'Our forechecking that night was strong and we made the most of our chances." Francis recalled. "Everything has to click again in order for us to beat them.'

Bucks win coin flip for Indiana's Benson

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Stability, tranquility and the Milwaukee Bucks seldom have been synonymous in the zany and turbulent world of the Na-tional Basketball Association, but everything fell into place in the Arena's V.I.P. room here Friday.

Subtract the battery of microphones thrust before the beaming faces of James Fitzgerald, Wayne Embry and Don Nelson, look beyond the frantic reporters—some scribbl-ing notes and other sprinting for telephones— and the scene was not unlike that of a wedding reception.

THE BUCKS had plenty to celebrate—and not just their winning of a coin flip with the Kansas City Kings for rights to the No. 1 pick in the NBA's college draft. The Bucks said they almost certainly will pick Indiana's 6-foot-11 All-American Kent Benson, but there were other reasons for the buffet of shishkabob, rice and hot bread and the open bar.

Fitzgerald, the suave Janesville, Wis., businessman whose successful corporate struggle for controlling in-terest in the Bucks last year had severely split the franchise, used the coin flip occasion to announce a sweeping reorganization.

Fitzgerald said that Embry, profes- home run to lead the sional sports' first black general revamped Oakland A's to manager who last Nov. 22 had announced his resignation, effective Minnesota Twins Friday. next month, will remain with the next month, will remain with the The victory was the Bucks. Fitzgerald said Embry has fifth straight for the agreed to a two year contract as vice president-consultant.

Embry will not be primarily involved in the business aspect of the corporation. Until July 1, he will concentrate on the draft and signing of players. After that, he will be a con-sultant on personnel matters.

Nelson, former Boston Celtics' star who joined the Bucks as assistant coach last September, became head coach when Larry Costello quit under fire Nov. 22. Fitzgerald said Nelson will be retained as head coach and be given additional duties as player per-city leagues.

Games begin at 5:30 p.m. League champions will meet in the city playoffs at the conclusion of the of business operations, while retaining his duties as public relations chief. Former Bucks star Jon McGlocklin, who joined the club's broadcasting team this past season, will assume additional duties in community relations and promotions.

THE HAND-PUMPING, backslapping scene was in sharp contrast to the grim night last November when Costello and Embry had announced their resignations. At the time, the resignations had seemed to culminate the bitter power struggle instigated by Fitzgerald, who, as a minority stockholder in 1975, unsuccessfully had fought the Bucks' trade of superstar Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to Los Angeles for Brian Winters, Dave Meyers, Junior Bridgeman and Elmore Smith.

"We are tickled to death that we could work out something that would let Wayne work out his personal goals and keep his hand in the Bucks' operation," Fitzgerald said.

Embry is a partner in three lucrative fast food chain outlets here. Before Friday's announcement, it had been rumored he would join the Chicago Bulls as general manager while continuing to live here and manage his business interests.

FITZGERALD SAID the Bucks will have no general manager in the con-ventional sense of the term.

series sweep

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - In the four-year playoff history of the World Hockey Association, there have been six four-game sweeps.

Three of them have been by two-time WHA champion Houston and two of them by defending champion Winnipeg. The other was by the nowdefunct Cleveland Crusaders. The Indianapolis Racers are just one victory away from joining that select circle, but Coach Jacques Demers thinks the possibility is remote at best. The Racers carry a 3-0 lead into tonight's, game of the first-round playoffs against Cincinnati. The Stingers haven't won at Indianapolis all season.

"No one in his right mind predicts a four-game sweep over Cincinnati," Demers said. "For us to win Saturday will be far more difficult than in any of the previous three games. The Stingers have just as much pride as we do, and they'll be out to take this series back to Cincinnati for a fifth game Sunday

Indianapolis defenseman Ken Block said, "We're not there yet. We're only three-quarters of the way."

If Demers downplays the possibility of a sweep, he isn't too shy about what a victory would mean.

"We're on the verge of the greatest upset in the history of the World Hockey Association," he said after Indianapolis' 5-3 victory in game No. 4 Thursday night.

The Racers finished third in the WHA Eastern Division behind the high-scoring Stingers.

"I think this is an underrated hockey team," said
"I think this is an underrated hockey team," said Brian McDonald, the 32-year-old veteran of the young Racers' team, who scored the go-ahead goal in the third period Thursday night.

McDonald says the Racers are a team of 'no-"On paper we don't look like much, but every night we've got somebody different doing the job." he said.

"You can have all the high salaries you want, but if they don't have heart and desire, it doesn't do any good. We've got heart and desire. We've got something to prove to management and to Jacques."

The victory was the first in five starts for the Phillies, who lost two games at home last week to Montreal.

Expos starter Don Stanhouse got himself into trouble in the second inning by issuing a PHILADEL MONTREAL MO MONTREAL pitch. Johnstone then stroked a double to the right field corner to drive in two runs. Montreal's Ellis

The Expos added their second run in the bottom of the eighth when Cash singled, went to third on Foli's double and scored on Valentine's infield out.

Hill believes state to collect Hughes' taxes

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Hill believes that Texas will collect at least $150 million in inheritance taxes from the estate of Howard Hughes.

"Texas is really the only rightful claimant," Hill told a news conference Friday. Hill said Texas' case is so strong that the struggle among several states to tax Hughes as a resident may be settled voluntarily. "We have accumulated more than 30,000 documents right in this office to show that Howard Hughes never intended to make his domicile anywhere but Texas," Hill said.

The latest evidence was filed Thursday in a Houston probate court in which Dr. Ellsworth Alvord Jr., a professor of pathology at the University of Washington, said special tests of brain tissue and nervous system sections showed that "in all reasonable medical probability Howard Hughes was not afflicted by any structural or neurological disease affecting his mental competence."

Hill said most of the state's documentation comes from bank and tax records, including a 1944 letter in which Hughes said: "I am a Texan, will always be a Texan and I will never change my mind."

He said he thought recent estimates of the size of the estate were away off.

"This estimate that the estate is only about $168 million is ridiculuous," he said. "We know he sold property worth more than $600 million in the last few years of his life . . . I believe it is much nearer to $1 billion plus. . . . I still don't rule out it might as high as $2 billion.

Hill said the trial on the estate taxes might be postponed from the present September date but he rould expect it to be held in 1978 with the appeals finished by 1979 at the latest.

Green tells jury he did no wrong'

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Palestine Dist. Atty. Billy Ray Green testified Friday he had been in a peepshow booth only about a minute and had just finished bending over to deposit his quarter when a man in plain clothes burst in with a large flashlight and said, You're under arrest."

Green told the jury in his public lewdness trial he did "nothing wrong" in the booth before the arrest in the early morning hours of Jan. 18.

Prosecutors charge Green performed an act of oral sex on a University of Texas graduate student in the curtained booth.

Green said he had looked in several of the booths during an investigation of what Austin law enforcement officers "regard to be or not to be por-

The narrow aisles in the dimly lit area of the peep loudly it nearly gave him a headache. Any conversation had to be shouted, he said.

He entered booth No. 18, he said, and noticed another man. "I said something like, 'Oh, how is the movie?' He said, 'It's just about over. You've missed

"I moved back where I could see the screen. The movie ended shortly thereafter. I decided to put another quarter in. I assumed the man who was in there had seen it and would move on. I proceeded to bend over to locate the slot for the quarter. I took considerable care to get my quarter in."

He succeeded in depositing the quarter, he said "About that time, a man burst into the room and said, "You're under arrest."

"He did not look like any officer I had ever seen in my life." The officers did not behave as if a raid were taking place, he said.

"I wasn't sure what was going to happen to me. It didn't look like a raid. I saw no uniformed officers anywhere. I had not been frisked. I had not been handcuffed. I had not been informed what I was being arrested for. I was beginning to think I was being taken for a ride."

When they got outside on the street, the man told him to get into an unmarked compact car, Green

"I was firmly convinced I was being taken for a ride by some thug who wanted to hassle me or rob me," said Green. "I made a value judgment at that

Green's judgment was to run "as fast as I've ever run in my life."

Police re-arrested him moments later on the seventh floor of a hotel.

Tower against Lucey for post

DEL RIO, Tex. (AP) - U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said Friday that the U.S. ambassador to Mexico should be a Mexican-American and that he opposes the nomination of Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucey to that post.

"He doesn't even speak Spanish," Tower said of Lucey.

At a wide-ranging news conference, Tower also said he supports Houston City Controller Leonel Castillo for U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Commissioner.

The senior senator from Texas also said he supports more strict regulations concerning issuance of social security cards to curb employment of illegal aliens. He said he does not favor a bill by Rep. Peter Rodino making it illegal for employers to hire illegal aliens, but has reservations about granting amnesty to aliens already in this country. About the Panama Canal issue, Tower said the Senate as now constituted would not pass a treaty handing the canal back to the Republic of Panama. Tower said he thinks the Equal Rights Amendment is a "dead issue."
