By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is passing the job of formulating a tough new energy policy to a Congress that clearly is reluctant to accept the assignment.

Carter laid out his comprehensive energy program to a joint House-Senate session Wednesday night, acknowledging that it would be painful and declaring, "I don't expectmuch applause."

He didn't get much applause, either. Yet, Democratic congressional leaders vowed to fight hard for the bulk of the program, which calls for conserving energy through higher automobile and fuel prices and taxes. But they conceded the plan faces major opposition.

Carter told Congress that to deal with the nation's energy crisis the lawmakers must approve taxes and price increases on dwindling fuel supplies and must agree to heavy taxes on gas-guzzling automobiles. His plan for a standby gasoline tax of up to 50 cents a gallon drew the most vigorous criticism. It seemed doomed to an early defeat.

little likelihood of Carter's gas tax proposal passing Congress. And he predicted major modifications would be made in the President's oil pricing recommendations.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill also expressed reservations about the gasoline tax but vowed full support for the President's program, adding that Carter knows "this is his first major fight This is a battle."

And Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia claimed "the problem of supply was not addressed at all" by the President. But noting that Congress still hasn't seen details of Carter's specific legislation, which will be submitted on Monday, Byrd cautioned, "We shouldn't shoot from the hip.... Much will depend on acceptance by the American people."

House Republican Leader John Rhodes of Arizona said Carter talked too much about conservation and not enough about encouraging more energy production. "It was a message addressed to no growth and I don't think that will satisfy the country at

By JOE SALMAN

There was an air of apprehension in the 142nd District Courtroom here late Wednesday when jury foreman J. D. Youngblood announced that the jury had found James W. "Bubba" Stewart "guilty, beyond a reasonable doubt, of voluntary manslaughter."

Stewart, who was accused of murder in the Aug. 20, 1976, shooting death of Bobby D. Sargent of 212 N Midkiff St., Midland, was found guilty of the lesser charge of voluntary manslaughter after four and a half hours of deliberation by the jury.

Throughout the final day of the nine-day trail conducted by District Judge Perry D. Pickett there were more than the usual number of sheriff's office deputies milling

And, during the long time the jury was deciding the fate of the 225-pound, red-haired Stewart, officers stationed themselves at the various entrances to the courtroom, some of them carrying walkie talkies, some in plain cloths and others in uniform.

Other officers were in the hallway — one stationed near the elevator.

To the surprise of the 20 or so spectators who had waited around to catch the verdict they were asked to leave the courtroom when the jury foreman rapped on the door at 6:35 signaling the jury was ready to give the court its decision.

That was not the exact reaction of everyone who was asked what they thought about President Jimmy Carter's energy speech to Congress Wednesday night, but it was the exact reaction of Charles D. Fraser.

Fraser, a Midland banker and president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, said "dammit" and then "I am very disap-"I feel that the only good thing I heard the man come out with was to proclaim what we have known all along that we have a problem in this country," Fraser said.

"I think he set a good stage with his five goals - conservation, production, conversion, development and "I think things are going to get out of hand. The methodology he proposes dosn't show me much for the encouragement of production and it sure doesn't look equitible," Fraser said.

"I can't understand how there is any equity in the concept of invading Texas intrastate market, imposing substantial taxes on wellhead price of crude oil and then rebating that money in dividing up our gas with the rest of the country. It looks to me like the equity is favoring all of those who do not live in Texas," he ex-

Fraser added that he feels there is nothing new about his proposals regarding oil and gas. "I think all we have to do is look at the position of Vice President Mondale or Senator Jackson or Lee White or any of the people we have done battle with for years and say their concepts have been adopted. We felt they were wrong before and they are still wrong

"I think the overall tragedy is that if all of this is adopted into law we have taken a giant step to socialism. I just have to oppose his methods on those grounds," Fraser stressed.

"The only qualification I would put on my comments is that we have not yet received a complete copy of the text of the plan, and I hope that in that text we will find things that will permit us to look more favorably on this proposal," the PBPA president

Carlton Beal, partner in BTA Oil Producers, said, "It looks to me like the President has been brainwashed by his anti-oil staff in Washington. And they have, for all practical purposes, written off the domestic oil drilling business." Beal said. Beal explained that under the present tax setup independent drillers must pay a 15 per cent tax preference on intangible drilling costs which actually is taxing the driller for putting money into the oil business.

"This inhibits finding more oil." "In his overall program he failed to clearly show that he wants to develop the undrilled oil reserves in America to help the energy crisis," Beal ad-

"The most important thing about President Carter's energy plan is the recognition that the United States faces a serious energy problem and something must be done about it," W. G. Marquardt of Fort Worth, Texas Electric Service Co. president, said.

'The thing to do, he said, is to switch from oil and gas to coal and nuclear fuel. Texas Electric began such a program 10 years ago," Marquardt said.

Marquardt said that switiching to coal and nuclear energy is essential, but it will cost a lot of money hundred and hundreds of millions of dollars - to build the power plants needed to switch fuels.

"We must recognize that rapid increases in the use of coal and nuclear fuel will be possible only if environmental restrictions are reasonable and regulatory obstacles are removed.

"Certainly we must all make increased efforts to avoid wasting energy. We at Texas Electric fully support efforts to improve home in-

"Other specific proposals made by the President may present problems and should be carefully studied before being implemented."

Robert Northington, national secretary of the American Association of Petroleum Landmen and a landman for Mesa Petroleum Co. in Midland, said, "I seem to be the only one that is not 100 per cent negative on the President's talk."

Damage in Monahans

MONAHANS - The two tornadoes which struck Monahans Tuesday did $1.1 million worth of damage to buildings alone, city manager Jack Forga said this morning.

Forga said no estimate is available yet on damage to automobiles and personal property.

He said clean up operations were moving quickly. Streets were cleared Wednesday and work is beginning on alleys and to pick up debris from the sides of streets, Forga said.

The curfew which was imposed Tuesday night was lifted late Wed-nesday afternoon, Forga said.

The Salvation Army and Red Cross have set up relief operations. All of the people displaced from their homes have found temporary acations, he said.

No decision has been made yet on applying for state and federal aid, Forga said.

Texas leaders decry message

By the Associated Press

President Carter's energy message left many Texas government and industry leaders unhappy, and most said they are awaiting copies of the 28-page document for further study. Some Texas congressmen said they were upset by his apparent failure to keep his campaign promise to work toward deregulation of natural gas

Several leaders in both the private and public sectors said the message lacked emphasis on incentives for oil and gas producers to find new

Democratic U.S. Rep. Olin (Tiger)

Teague of College Station, chairman of the House Science and Technology Committee, pointed out a need for incentives to develop oil and gas reserves off the North Atlantic Coast.

"Tonight we had an extension of regulation proposed," said Rep. Bob Krueger, Democrat from New Braunfels. He contrasted that with a letter Carter sent Gov. Dolph Briscoe last Oct. 19 stating, "I will work toward deregulation.

Republican Sen. John Tower was more blunt, calling the October letter 'a flimflam job. He's done just the opposite of what he told the governor he would do." Briscoe himself refused to disavow

Carter, preferring to lay the blame on his energy adviser, James R. Schles-

Dr. Schlesinger and I disagree about what a deregulation policy is. But you can have disagreements within a family without being fisagreeable," Briscoe said.

They all were upset about Carter's ong-expected announcement that he wanted to extend controls to intrastate natural gas rather than lift them from the interstate market. Carter said this would iron out price ifferences between producing and ting states. That would mean an increase in the urice of new interstate gas from $1.45 to $1.75 next year, and a decrease in the price of intrastate gas from about $2 to $1.75, which the administration says is the cost of an equivalent amount of domestic oil.

"I'm very disturbed. Federal control of intrastate gas can't be defended," said Rep. George Mahon, Lubbock Democrat.

Rep. Jim Wright, the House majority leader, conceded that Carter's proposal didn't amount to deregulation. He said it would be hard to define exactly what it was. Wright said he was certain Congress would modify much of the plan, and the same idea was in the minds of other Texans.

The tax would be triggered at a rate of five cents a year, beginning in January 1979, if gasoline consumption rose above specified levels.

Criticized as inflationary, inef-fective as a means of curbing consumption and as penalizing lowincome Americans most, the gas tax proposal was widely attacked by lawakers - despite Carter assurances that it would only be levied if conservation goals are not

The proposed domestic crude oil tax is expected to add another seven cents a gallon to the pump price of gasoline by 1980.

Carter said there would be "dollar for dollar" rebates to those who use oil to heat their homes to cover the added costs of this tax.

Pegging prices of domestic oil to OPEC prices gives too much power to the oil cartel, critics said. Jackson said Congress would not allow OPEC to decide how much oil will cost in the United States, and predicted that this portion of Carter's proposal would be modified.

The conservation incentive part of the plan - such as tax credits for home insulation and solar energy measures - won praise from Democrats and Republicans and have the most likely chance of success.

Dr. William Trotter, representing the Midland Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees and Midland County Medical Society, this morning told the society's auxiliary some of the aspects and benefits of creating a hospital taxing district.

"I'm going to give you a tangent you haven't heard before," Trotter began. He spoke before about a dozen members in Midland National Bank

The district would have a fivemember county hospital commissioners administer collecting the funds to operate Midland Memorial with tax dollars. He emphasized that the commissioners would be a separate entity, unlike the Ector County Com-missioners, which directs Medical Center Hospital. "The county commissioners are not going to be involved in this. We're not going to make the same mistake they did" in Odessa, Trotter said. He said the hospital's board of trustees would continue to have direction over the operations of the hospital, although the board of governors would be disolved. A bill is now in the Legislature that will likely be passed soon, Trotter said, and this will call a referendum election this fall that will let the bond issue and district would be a major hardship for the hospital, Trotter said. "If it doesn't pass...we will not expand, we will not renovate. We will do well to hold our head above water.'

Trotter said a feasibility study by a Dallas consultant indicates only a "50 per cent chance of raising the money (for the needed improvement) in the private sector," and then only if a strong effort were waged. He said private contributors that now finance the hospital have indicated reluctance to pay for the $10 million improvements in the private sector.

Nor is he spreading fiction. He just wants people to listen to what he is saying and to take heed.

America should declare war! It is imperative that Americans "consider themselves at 'war' against wasteful personal energy con-sumption," Hochan says. The more the consumer conserves, the more he will have to conserve.

The more he wastes, the less he will have to waste, to use, and, all too late, to conserve. Hochman contends that the American consumer wastes about 50 per cent of the energy he purchases. And were the American consumer to be as thrifty and as energy-conservative as the frugal Swiss, then would have many more years of sil-fuel energy to serve his needs.

He would be enjoying a good standard of living, while scientists and technicians explore, develop, and refine other energy sources.

Primarily, Hochman is talking about solar and wind energy. But he would also include the finite sources, such as coal, plutonium and uranium, and ever-cycling water.

Hochman is a Midland restaurateur who is "caught up" in what he hopes will become a nationwide trend — the conservation of energy. President Jimmy Carter even shares Hochman's sentiments.

His crusade comes under the heading of the Self-Initiated Con-servation Movement — SICM. Hochman holds that the energy crisis is caused by the wastefulness of the "individual consumer of energy." In that individual also lies the solution -conservation. Without voluntary conservation, Americans may face forced rationing of fossil fuels. They may anyway.

This man who propounds sensible (conservative) use of fossil fuels is not in the oil-and-gas basiness.

He wants to make it perfectly clear that he is not associated with the petroleum industry. Such of an association might hamper his cause, Hochman says.

But a man who very much is associated with that industry shares Hochman's views. He is Ed Thompson, executive vice president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

"This is not something that's happened overnight," Thompson said of the energy crisis. He has been seeing it coming for the past 20 years. Like Hochnan, Thompson favors energy conservation

But perhaps unlike Hochman, Thompson foresees a never-ending supply of petroleum. For that, conservation is a must. "I don't look at our running out of

.ever," says Thompson. While the search for more petroleum continues, Hochman is mustering his forces - to wage that real war against waste. He could possibly even use some of that Orson

Cashat is a foreman in the operations department at the Shell Oil Co. refinery in Pasadena, Tex., petrochemical city on the outskirts of Houston.

He started as an oil field worker, drawing a salary of $1.40 an hour, and waited two years until his pay increased to $1.70 an hour before proposing to his wife, Mary.

He now makes close to $20,000 a year, counting in some overtime now and then.

Watching the president's speech on television in the three-bedroom home where the Cashat's raised two daughters, the couple agreed that we should cut down on the use of energy, whether it's the air conditioning system, or driving the cars on a long vacation trip."

The Cashat's own a car, a pickup truck, and a small pleasure boat.

"I think this old place is in good shape," Cashat said, "But it wouldn't hurt to have it checked. Better insulation, lower bills at the end of the month, simple as that."

Cashat, relaxing after his day of work in a pair of worn slippers and a brown and white jump suit, twisted and turned and mumbled when the President questioned whether there is enough competition among the energy producing companies.

Cashat muttered, "Now I don't know about that, I don't know."

HOW THE ANTENNA WORKS

The matching network, installed completely inside the vehicle, excites the entire car into becoming your antenna.

Applied to most vehicles, forward and rear communication distances exceed those for 109" and shorter whips.

This is because the antenna is directive and hence receives less outside background noise. With lower receiver noise weaker signals can be "read" by the CBer.

The antenna may be mounted in: Standard Cars (all sizes), Station Wagons, Vans, Pick-Ups, Dump trucks, 18 Wheelers,

The antenna will work on vehicles having a metal "skin" Its use is not recommended on uncovered vehicles (such as Jeeps), cars having fiberglass tops with no underlying metal, or convertibles.

If Carter program succeeds, future cars will be smaller

By HOWARD BENEDICT

WASHINGTON (AP) - Our cars will be smaller, lighter and probably too sluggish for the speed jockeys. That's the future of the automobile under President Carter's plan to solve

America's energy dilemma. In unveiling his comprehensive energy program Wednesday night, Carter asked Congress for stringent legislation intended to curtail gasoline consumption. Under his plan, if Americans don't cut back, gas prices would go up as much as 57 cents a galion — nearly double — by 1985. Purchasers of 1978 cars that get less than 13 miles per gallon would pay a federal excise tax of $449; that tax would rise to $2,488 by

Those who buy small cars that get ood mileage would be rewarded with cash rebates up to $433.

The plan also has a provision for gas rationing, a step that would be aken in an emergency such as the 1973 Arab oil embargo.

Carter said the penalties can be avoided if conservation is achieved. His solution is to use smaller autos. car and van pools, buses, subways and other public transportation, and drive fewer miles.

Even if Congress approves the con-troversial legislation, Americans will need a lot of convincing to curb use of their automobiles.

Americans currently make 86 per cent of their trips between cities by car. Only 11 per cent of their trips are by air, and buses, trains and ships account for less than 3 per cent.

Some 53 per cent of commuters in metropolitan areas drive to work alone in their cars; 21 per cent are passengers, and only about 8 per cent use buses, streetcars or subways. Carter's plan could change these

At the very least, it would boost the price of gasoline seven cents over the next three years because of higher domestic crude oil prices. The first two cent increase would come next January, adding $14 to the average

The keystone of the message was the 50-cent-a-gallon standby tax that would be levied over several years if the public fails to heed Carter's plea for energy conservation.

It would be imposed beginning Jan. 2, 1979, if gasoline saving measures fail. The initial tax would be five cents a gallon, on top of the existing four-cent-a-gallon federal tax. That would add $35 to the average driver's annual Regular gas now costs about 60 cents a gallon.

Each year the tax would rise, fall or stay the same, depending on how well consumers did in meeting a gas consumption target. But in no year could it rise or fall more than 5 cents a gallon, and the cumulative amount of taxes could not exceed 50 cents.

Consumer prices rise in March

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose six-tenths of a per cent in March, slower pace than in the previous two months, the government reported today.

The Labor Department said smaller price increases for food and other commodities helped to hold down the rate of inflation last month.

The March price rise compared with a 1 per cent jump in February and an eight-tenths of a per cent rise in January, a two-month surge that jump in 21/2 years.

However, the latest report lends weight to the Carter administration view that the January-February price surge was only a temporary reflection of the harsh winter impact on fuel and food costs.

If prices continue to increase for the full year at the March rate, it would translate into a 7.2 per cent rise in prices. That is still higher than what the administration believes to be the underlying inflation rate of 5 to 6 per

U.S. refuses Coke request for reason

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire wanted the American taxpayer to foot the bill for Coca-Cola for his troops, the State Department confirmed Wednesday.

But, added spokesman Hodding Carter III at the department's briefing. Mobutu's request to include Coke in the "overall package" of U.S. military assistance was turned down. The United States is sending Zaire what is officially labeled "nonlethal" military support in Ziare's six-week-old battle against a force of Katangese exiles from Angola. Mobutu then decided to buy the Coke on his own and routed the order for 16,000 cases, costing about $60,000, through Zaire's mission in New York City.

Although Zaire has Coca-Cola bottling plants of its own, Carter and Coca-Cola executive theorized that the available Coke is in bottles, and Mobutu apparently wants it in cans so it could be transported to the field without breakage.

Other administration officials said Mobutu evidently figured he could use the C-130 transport plane he is slated to get from the United States soon to bring cases of Coke from the United States to

Carter was asked at the State Department briefing Wednesday whether he considered Mobutu's original request for Coke as part of American military assistance "lethal or nonlethal" equipment

"As a loyal son of the South," said Carter, who is from Mississippi, "I will say a health-giving and altogether nonlethal request. It is my understanding that it was supposed to be for their troops.

Asked why the State Department refused to send Zaire Coke as part of the military assistance package, Carter replied: "While we understand that Coca-Cola is a well-liked drink in Zaire, we didn't feel that it was high on the list of priority needs of

Carter said that since he did not know how the Coke will be shipped from the United States to Zaire, it would be "speculative" to suggest that American funds will pay for the shipment.

At Coca-Cola headquarters in Atlanta, the company said the Zaire order has not been delivered ending delivery instructions from the customer.'

Sources claim France actively assisting Zaire

The Washington Post

PARIS - France has embarked on a small but significant covert military and intelligence operation inside Zaire in addition to providing publicly acknowledged logistical support to the forces of President Mobutu Sese Seko, according to informed

The French effort was triggered in part by the Carter administration's apparent reluctance to become more deeply involved in shoring up Mobutu's role. French officials now concede. It may have a major impact on the alignment of conservative

African states that have traditionally looked to the United States, France and Britain for support.

Operating in what French sources describe as a "policy vacuum" left by the new American aloofness toward Mobutu's fate, French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing played the key role in persuading Morocco to send 1,500 troops into Zaire to bolster the crumbling Zairian army two weeks ago, according to diplomatic sources.

Other informed sources confirm French press reports that a small team of elite French paratroop instructors was flown into Zaire this month specifically to reorganize Zaire units in Shaba (formerly Katanga) Province to fight invading Katangan rebels. The French paratroopers will not

French intelligence is actively involved in helping the Zairian and Moroccan units plan operations, according to these sources. The French government formally denies that it is providing anything beyond transport of supplies for the Moroccans and routine training by the 100 French advisers who were in Zaire before the fighting began March 8.

Compared to the open French intervention in black Africa under the late Charles de Gaulle, who sanctioned the use of French paratroopers to put down local revolts in Gabon and Congo-Brazzaville, Giscard's involvement in Zaire is highly circumspect

Giscard and his advisers on Africa have been preparing contingency plans for long-range operations into Africa since they became bitterly disillusioned with American intentions in Africa during the Angolan civil war in 1975 and 1976.

France was a silent but deeply committed partner to the unsuccessful, American-backed effort by conservative African forces to win control of Angola from leftist African nationalists supported by the Soviet Union and Cuba. Congressional opposition eventually halted American involvement in the

While former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and former President Ford involved all the weight of their offices in trying to prolong American in-volvement in Angola, the Carter administration appears by design to be leaving any contact that could encourage the French to get into Zaire more deeply to lower-level French-American intelligence links formed during the Angolan conflict.

Washington also appears content this time to let another Western country take the lead in orchestrating responses by anti-Communist regimes in a region of conflict.

Cuban exile jailed for refusing to talk

WASHINGTON - An anti-Castro Cuban exile now living in Elizabeth, N.J., was jailed Wednesday for refusing to testify before a federal grand jury here that is probing the bombing death here last fall of former Chilean ambassador Orlando Letelier.

Even though Jose Dionisio Suarez, a 38-year-old

Republicans defend Ford over remarks

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Republican congressional leaders came to the defense of former President Ford Wednesday, rejecting complaints from Vice President Mondale that Ford had been "unseemly and unfair" in his criticisms of the Carter ad-

House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes (R-Ariz.) said the administration was being "incredibly thinskinned" in its reaction to Ford and Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. (R-Tenn.) accused Mondale of trying to "muzzle" the former President.

The mini-flap was the first outbreak of pure partisan rhetoric between the parties since election day, and all the "combatants" seemed to be enjoying their part.

However, Ford, whose comments criticizing his successor's policies on the economy and the strategic arms talks triggered the whole exchange, continued to remain silent in his Palm Springs, Calif., home. Baker said he had talked to Ford Tuesday and had told him "his remarks were not only appropriate, but highly desirable." That was after Democratic congressional leaders had reported that Mondale - and, to a lesser extent, Carter — had complained at a White House meeting that Ford had violated "American political tradition" by criticizing his successor in his early months in office.

Baker said he thought the Democrats were Baker said he thought the Democrats were overreacting to Ford's comments and Rhodes put the same thought even more bluntly. He said it was "unbelievable" the administration would be upset by Ford's "very mild" comments and suggested it "should cease its whining and get on with the job." "The Vice President is particularly interesting," Rhodes said. "He dropped out of the race for the Democratic presidential nomination because, by his own admission, he couldn't take the strain of campaigning. Now he is leading some of us to campaigning. Now he is leading some of us to-suspect he can't take the strain of being vice president."

State's motto loses in court

By MORTON MINTZ The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court ruled 7 to 2 Wednesday that a state can't force a person to use his private property as a public showcase for an deological message.

The message at issue was "Live Free or Die." the motto of New Hampshire. The state has embossed the message on license plates for private cars since 1969 and made obscuring it a misdemeanor.

The motto clashes with the moral, religious and political beliefs of followers of the Jehovah's Witnesses faith.

And so two of them, George and Maxine Maynard of Claremont, N.H., began early in 1974 to co the message with tape on the plates of their two cars. Children repeatedly removed the tape. Finally, Maynard snipped the words "or Die" off the plates and then taped over the resulting hole as well as Live Free.

"By religious training and belief, I believe my 'government' — Jehovah's Kingdom — offers everlasting life," Maynard has testified. "It would be contrary to that belief to give up my life for the state, even if it meant living in bondage ... I also disagree with the motto on political grounds. I believe that life is more precious than freedom."

Starting in November 1974, the state prosecuted and convicted Maynard three times in five weeks for successive violations. Rather than pay separate fines of $25 and $50, he went to jail for 15 days, saying, "I refuse to be coerced ..."

Maynard then went into the federal courts to request only one thing: an injunction against further prosecutions that, he contended, violated his constitutional rights. His wife, who as co-owner of the cars faced possible prosecutions, joined in the peti-

A panel of three judges granted the injunction. It was right to do so because of the threat of repeated prosecutions and because of the effect of such a continuing threat on their ability to perform the ordinary tasks of daily life which require an automobile," Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said in Wednesday's opinion for the court. Beyond that, Burger wrote, the constitutional right to speak freely is paralleled by "the right to refrain from speaking at all," because both are "com-ponents of the broader concept of 'individual freedom of mind.'"

For that reason, he said, the Maynards had a right, under the First Amendment, to refuse to use their private property as a "mobile billboard" for "an idea they find morally objectionable." Thus they are free from now on to obscure the message on their Toyota and Plymouth station wagon.

The state argued that the motto requirement facilitates identification of cars and promotes appreciation of history, individualism and state pride. The majority rejected the arguments as insufficient.

U.S. currency carries the motto "In God We Trust." Federal law prohibits defacement of currency. But an atheist's use of currency does not denote a belief on his part in the motto, Justice William H. Rehnquist said in a dissent joined by Justice Harry A. Blackmun. "Similarly, there is no affirmation of belief involved with the display of state license tags upon the private automobiles involved here.

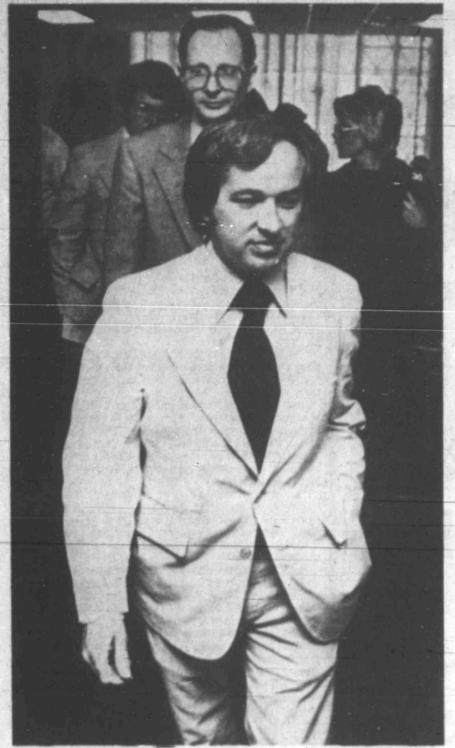

The majority, replying in a footnote, said the bearer of currency generally keeps it in a purse or pocket and "is thus not required to publicly advertise he National Motto."

Several states' plates carry slogans. Idaho's for example, is "Famous Potatoes." The slogans generally are promotional rather than ideological.

Rain, wind delay hotel fire search

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Firemen resumed their gruesome search today through tons of debris for the charred remains of those who perished in a devastating fire at the Central Hotel here Tuesday.

Rain and high winds flooded streets and delayed the grim chore Wednesday afternoon, Asst. Fire Property tax assessment ratios — the percentage Chief Paul Stanford said. Eight bodies had been of market value that will be taxed — could not be found, including five children ranging from several months to 12 years old. Twenty persons were still Stanford said he expects to discover more bodies in the area of the rear fire escape. He said one of the firemen "saw some people in a window" by the fire escape during the fire. A hose was hooked up by the fire escape, Stanford said, but firemen had to pull away from it "because of the intense heat." He said he presumes the people went down with the building. .

Fire Marshal A.D. Carroll contends the fire was the work of an arsonist. "It happened too fast and it was too furious to be anything else," he said, adding that when firemen first arrived, the stairwells between floors 2 and 3 were ablaze. Carroll said the stairwell fires are a prime indicator of arson. Police Chief Ernest Galvan said his detectives had interviewed several people in the last 24 hours. However, by Wednesday afternoon, no one had been

The fire broke out early Tuesday. Several who were trapped were seen leaping from windows. Others, especially the very young and the very old, were caught inside the inferno.

Three of the dead children belonged to Lucy Moore of Houston. She said the other two were her sister's. Mrs. Moore said she and the children arrived in this island resort city by bus late Monday night. They were met by her boy friend, Willy Cokerham, who took them to the rundown complex near the wharves. He said he had just rented one of the apartments for $35 a week.

By The Associated Press

School officials in Texas generally say they are pleased with this week's U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding corporal punishment in schools although they expressed "last resort" feelings about student spanking.

"I think it's a great decision," said Gordon Cotton, deputy superintendent of administration for Houston schools. "I think the federal courts have finally realized they need to leave the discipline to the individual school administrators."

Cotton said he doubts if the Supreme Court ruling that school spankings are not "cruel and unusual punishment" will cause a massive return to the days when teachers carried a paddle as part of their stan-

"We've always used a paddle in Houston, but only as a last resort," he said. "I don't think the ruling is going to change anything here, but it should relieve some of the administrators from worrying about getting sued if they use the paddle.'

Dallas School Supt. Nolan Estes said he sees no effect on Dallas' policy on using corporal punishment as a last resort, with teachers paddling their students only with permission from a principal.

But Doyle Weaver, a spokesman for Citizens Against Physical Punishment (CAPP), said corporal unishment is "unbelievably widespread" in the Dallas school district, and school policy is violated frequently. Asst. School Supt. Jaues Ahhey of Fort Worth said, "I've found very little objection to corporal punishment if used properly." He said corporal punishment is used in Fort Worth schools only in cases of extreme or persistent violation of a school

McALLEN, Tex. (AP) - A task force of federal and state authorities continued to serve federal indictments today in sparsely populated Starr County on the Rio Grande in the largest single crackdown on marijuana and heroin smuggling from Mexico into the United States.

As of Wednesday night, 38 arrests had been made, and Asst. U.S. Atty. John Smith of McAllen said 22 of those were major violators. Bonds set in a total of 62 indictments totaled $22 million and ranged from $50,000 to $1.5 million Drug Enforcement Administration officials said the arrests were the results of a four-month investigation by DEA, the U.S. attorney's office, the Texas Department of of Public Safety. The U.S. agencies also received the cooperation of the Mexican federal police.

The investigation was part of a combined effort named "Operation Wishbone," officers said.

Peveto's bill, the product of more than a year of committee work, won preliminary approval Wednesday, 85-62.

The measure would wipe out hundreds of appraisal offices maintained by cities and special districts, Also up for probable final action was a bill that replacing them with countywide appraisal authorities.

A similar bill passed the House in 1975, only to die in the Senate.

Counties would not be part of the appraisal districts unless they wanted to be.

Cities, school boards, water districts and other taxing authorities would continue to set their own rates and assessment ratios against the property values determined by the appraisal authorities. Three new state agencies would oversee the entire property taxing picture.

One would set appraisal standards and make spot checks to assure that property was being appraised accurately. Another would register appraisers, supposedly guaranteeing they know what they are doing. A third would hear appeals from taxpayers who feel their property has been overvalued by their appraisal districts.

An amendment, accepted by Peveto, contains a 'sunset" provision that would nullify the bill in 1987 -five years after it becomes fully effective - unless extended by the legislature.

raised without notice to taxpayers and a public hearing.

Peveto said the bill would reform a chaotic and unfair system of property taxation, in which homeowners are overtaxed because "the only people with effective remedies today are the big corporations and oil companies that can afford to hire tax lawyers . . . and tax consultants."

Rep. John Wilson, D-La Grange, contended it would force Houston and other cities to start taxing automobiles and "increase the amount of ad valorem taxation the average citizen pays."

"Thank God for a bicameral legislature. I would hope each of us would beat a hot path over to the Texas Senate and, 'Don't take my vote for this bill as serious,' "Wilson said. Rep. Luther Jones, D-El Paso, said Wilson had told

"a falsehood and he knows it is" because of an amendment leaving to the appraising districts what property they put on their rolls. House members defeated, 9843, a Senate bill making Texas part of the Southern Growth Policies Board, which works toward orderly economic growth of the southern states.

Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, argued against the bill, claiming it would squander state funds so "politicians can take a little pleasure trip every year, eat some good food and sip a little wine.

Don Galloway to star in television series

By JAY SHARBUTT AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - When I last saw Don Galloway, it was 1962. He stood furtively at the NBC portals in New York, clad in his NBC page uniform. I asked what he was doing. "Oh, milling around," he said.

It seemed odd. Only crowds mill. Don was milling solo. Clearly, this was a man to watch. As he is an actor, he eventually became watched by millions as Sgt. Ed Brown in NBC's "Ironside" series

Come May 18, he can be watched in an NBC series pilot, "Cover Girls," playing the head of a government agency that uses two lovely women posing as models as CIA-type undercover agents.

Rumor has it the show is somewhat different than ABC's "Charlie's Angels" because Farrah Fawcett-Majors isn't in it.

"It bears absolutely no relationship that I see to any other thing ever on television before," insisted Galloway, crossing his heart and hoping to die if he were not telling the truth.

Of course, Galloway, a tall, happygo-lucky citizen, hails from Brooksville, Ky., and that state contains many people who say outlandish things with a straight face.

Married since 1963 to actress Linda Robinson, he came here from New York that year under a Universal Studios contract. But not because a talent scout saw him milling around as a part-time NBC page. It started when he acted in an off-Broadway opus, "Bring Me a Warm Body." The body chilled in two weeks, but his work led to a job in a soap opera, "The Secret Storm," then to a TV contract.

Don, who studied acting at the University of Kentucky and in New York, played a variety of TV roles "Ironside" but recalls that for reasons unbeknownst to him he often played a sheriff.

"I probably played more of 'em than anybody else," he mused. "The cowardly sheriff, the grungy sheriff, the crooked sheriff ... the list stretches to infinity." Galloway, who this summer returned to the legitimate stage, appearing in Neil Simon's "The Good Doctor, has taken to writing as well as acting in recent years. He said one network - he declined to say more than that its middle initial is "B" - now is considering "The Advisors," a series idea he wrote with actor Morgan Paull and columnist Bert Prelutsky.

He also coauthored, with writer Charles Nicholas, a comedy-Western called "The Last Posse." Alas, he took it to an agent when several bigbudget Hollywood Westerns were busy flopping a few years ago.

He said the agent told him: "I like it, but it's the wrong genre. I can't do anything with it right now." So Don has stashed the script until the genre climate improves.

But among the commercial series, "Family" is the best and most important. It takes the hour-long family drama out of the Family House to 10 p.m., humanizing both the 8 p.m. pap and the 10 p.m. gore.

The "Family" family, the Lawrences of Pasadena, are rather witty folk who avoid emotional extravaganzas and excess verbiage. When a hospital scene began to turn soggy, Dad pro-tested: "It got a bit maudlin there," and Mom smiled. The Lawrences are less certain about eternal verities than the Waltons, this being 1977, but somehow this being 1977, they are also wealthier and less numerous than the Waltons. Their fortunes are rising. In the ratings, the show has generally taken its time slot all but once this season. When CBS extracted "Kojak" from ratings trouble on Sundays and moved it up against "Family" on Tuesday, the ace cop was widely expected to shoot 'Family" down. "Family" won every match.

There, are a few troublemakers who wonder if "Family" is what it used to be. Why has a show built on such distinctive understatement used increasingly melodramatic plots? We've seen a terrorist seek refuge with the Lawrences. We've seen a two-part episode in which Dad loses and then regains his sight. The direction, the acting, the dialogue remain lowkey, but they struggle against plot contrivances that wouldn't be noticed in a series less devoted to versimilitude. Can this "Family" be saved? Nothing seemed . in danger during a recent day on the "Family" set at 20th Century-Fox. And no one seemed especially euphoric over the show's recent success. Tennis champ Chris Evert showed up as a fan of costar Kristy McNichol, 14, and said "Family" is her favorite show. A cake

Blind receiving movement help

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Del Oldbury teaches blind people to move around their homes, their neighborhoods, and in some cases, the city. The 40year-old man is one of five "orientation and mobility" instructors at the Braille Institute here.

Oldbury works with about five students per day, averaging an hour for each lesson. The type and length of instruction depends on the student's needs.

Most students are over 40, but there is a mobility course for children, and one instructor is developing a course for people who are both deaf and blind.

Downtown elect new officers

The Midland Downtown Lions Club elected officers for 1977-78 and heard a program presented by officials of the Midland Cubs baseball team at its Wednesday noon meeting at the Midland Hilton.

Garland Chapman will succeed Horace Robb as president at the beginning of the club year on

Other new officers are George Weis, John Berry and Ray Gwyn, vice presidents Herman Dancy, secrtary treaurer; Larry Hun-nicutt, Lion Tamer; Henry Culp and Goodrich Hejl, tailtwisters, and Carol Hisey, club sweetheart.

New directors are Jerry Speck, Douglas Beck, Eddie Klatt, Don Spence and Keith Summerville.

Bill Rigney, general manager of the Midland Cubs, discussed the game of baseball from amateur to professional ranks. He cited increasing attendance figures and said that baseball "is going ahead as always.'

He said that the cost of developing players for the major leagues has increased from $100,000 a few years ago to $500,000 today.

Jim Saul, the Cubs' field manager, spoke briefly concerning the Midland entry in the Texas League, explaining how players are placed by the major league sponsor. He said his 21 players are young men in the learning process, who want to play baseball and who want to advance to higher classifications in the pro ranks. Discussing his young pitching staff, Saul said, good naturedly, that despite suggestions from the stands, he still will make the decisions as to when pitchers should be changed.

He urged his listeners to come on out to Cubs Stadium to see his team in action.

Threats made

The Los Angeles Times SANTA MONICA Calif. - Comedian BOBBIE nion and business manager, Erin Fleming, now fighting a court battle for appointment as his conservator, Tuesday night threatened the lives of two private detectives involved in the case, according to testimony Wednesday in Santa Monica Superior Court.

The investigators, Norman I. Perle and Fred Wolfson, both testified exciting colors that when they con-fronted Miss Fleming about 10:30 p.m. in the courtyard of a Los Angeles condominium, she reacted angrily.

Texas livestock auction: no place for amateurs

Copley News Service

AMARILLO, Tex. - A visitor to the largest livestock auction in Texas sits rigid in his seat, not daring even to lift a little finger to scratch an eyebrow -for fear he will end up buying 100 head of cattle he doesn't need.

The eyes of the auctioneer are everywhere, his sharp gaze darting from one to another of the hefty, Stetson-hatted cattlemen who line the tiered benches of the arena, his voice atoning that strange humming lingo that only a cattleman can understand. To an outsider the pace of business is breathtaking. A gate swings open to the left of the auctioneer's stand and the next batch of cattle to be sold are driven in from outside pens which cover 90 acres.

The animals huddle together, bewildered, snorting, looking around for a way out while they undergo the critical inspection of the customers. So rapid is the bidding, signaled by the quick nod of a head, the slightest jerk of a finger on a man's lap or some other sign recognized only by the auctioneer, that the sale is made within a few seconds.

Texas is the largest cattle-raising state, and Amarillo, located in the heart of the Texas Panhandle, is the center of the cattle-feeding and marketing industry.

Cattle are sold here at the rate of 10 a minute. When delivery is taken, they are loaded onto big doubledecker trucks that can take 75 animals at a time, to be transported to feediots and pastures across the nation as far away as the West Coast.

"We sell a half-million head of cattle a year," said Jay R. Taylor, manager of Amarillo's Livestock Auction Co. "We're the biggest private cattle auction in the world.

He laughingly dismissed the possibility of a stranger unwittingly making a purchase by raising a finger

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Diet for ailment

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: My sister has just been told that she has diverticulosis and that she must have a diet with plenty of fiber in it. This way, the doctor says, it probably won't get to be anything too serious. But when one of our aunts had the same thing a few years back, she was put on a totally different kind of diet—the really bland sort, no bulk at all the set to be all wrong described. all. One of these has got to be all wrong, doesn't it? I'm thoroughly mixed up. Also, is diverticulosis any relation to diverticulitis? Are they two ways of saying the same thing?-Camilla D.

Dear Camilla: Diverticulosis is a condition in which tiny little sacs protude through the muscular wall of the colon (the large intestine). It becomes in-creasingly frequent with age, and about 20 percent of people over 40 have it, and at least 60 percent of those over 65. Women are affected more often than men.

In about one case out of five, the little intestinal hernias become infected. Then the condition is known as diverticulitis. Symptoms of this illness in-clude pain (usually in the lower left side;, nausea, abdominal distension, abdominal spasm, and alternating diarrhea and constipation. Treatment includes bed rest, antibiotics and sometimes, surgery.

In the past, doctors generally prescribed a lowresidue diet for the control of diverticular disorders. Today, however, the usual recommendation is a diet with a good deal of fiber in it. You can get this from fresh fruit and vegetables and whole-grain breadjust making sure you avoid any small seeds or particles that could lodge in the diverticula and cause trouble. Combined with plenty of fluid, the high-fiber diet prevents constipation and excessive intestinal contraction and pressure.

There is still a certain amount of controversy about exactly what the best diet is for this disorder. And recommendations do vary, depending on individual cases. So it is all the more important for any person with this problem to follow the advice of his or

It is not yet known how diverticulosis develops. But chronic constipation, thickening of the muscular wall of the intestine, and excessive pressure on soft spots are all factors noted in the various studies.

To N. W. of Wabash, Ind.: You're right. A tomato is botanically classified as a berry. Hippocrates was probably the first person to observe and record the symptoms of scurvy. In about 400 B.C., he wrote that he was perplexed by the large number of soldiers suffering from gangrene of the gums. If tomatoes had been available to the soldiers, they would have been

Crawfish up, catching down

By WILLIAM NYE CURRY The Washington Post

HENDERSON, La. — In the morning, when the swamp is still dark and the drapes of Spanish moss hide the falling moon, Emery and Rite Quebedeaux slip their green metal boats into the waiting water. During the next eight hours they wade among the oak and gum trees, easing the boats beside them as they empty and rebait 1,200 wire traps.

The catch has been small this year, barely enough for them and other Cajun fishermen to save the South from a torment worse than a summer without love: a spring without crawfish.

The drought has claimed the red swamp crawfish. The drought has claimed the red swamp crawlish. This would seem inconsequential except for the fervor with which the crawifsh fancier boils, stews, gumbo, bisques, etoufees, fries and pies the humble swamp crustacean to a lofty culinary finish.

Nor is it inconsequential to the hundreds of Cajun fishermen who, unlike Emery and Rita Quebedeaux, do not have their own crawfish farms and depend interest on the Atchefolays and Mississippi River has stead on the Atchafalaya and Mississippi River basin for the bulk of their annual income, their crawfish

The basin has not been generous this year, and this is why: what the crawfish needs is a dry summer and a wet fall - a dry summer in which the female burrows three feet into the ground with 300 to 700 eggs. Then when the swamp flows rich with water in the fall, about mid-September, the young emerge. But last year the swamps remained dry; there was not enough water coming down the Mississippi and Red rivers to spill across the southern Louisiana swamps and the crawfish were not flooded out.

Meanwhile, lush vegetation sprouted where water once ran. Spring saw a modest rise in water levels to finally bring out the young crawfish. But it also inundated all that new plant growth, which then decayed and foiled the water to the point where crawfish and other fish couldn't survive.

The result - a tiny harvest of tiny crawfish. And high prices. Fishermen were getting about 25 cents a pound this time last year but are now getting 55 to 60 cents a pound, with the increase passed on to con-

"Oh heil, gimme a sack," said an offshore oil rig worker who stopped at Amy's Fishery here on the way to his home in Mississippi from his one-week-on, one-week-off job in Texas.

He paid $36 for a 58-pound sack of live, scratching crawfish. "I got 84 pounds for the same price last year," he said.

Later that night the crawfish would be boiled, seasoned and served to two dozen hands that would break the abdomen section off from the rest of the body and eagerly remove a pearly white treasure of crawfish meat. (The crawfish, known in the North as crayfish or crawdad, is, after all, related to the

That ritual, which reaches its greatest frequency in the Lenten season, constitutes a $6 million or more industry in Louisiana, and the state says it accounts for 99 per cent of the edible crawfish production in the country. Small riverways in Southern California, Washington and Oregon are generously alloted the remaining 1 per cent.

Not that appreciation for the crawfish is confined to those areas. Crawfish experts here say the days of cheap crawfish are gone, that prices will stay high because of increased demand, particularly in distant places, where you can find them in some French

About 40 per cent of this delicacy now comes from crawfish ponds, or farms, in southern Louisiana, says Larry de la Bretonne, a crawfish expert with the cooperative extension service at Louisiana State University in nearby Baton Rouge. The other 60 per cent comes wild from the Atchafalaya and Mississippi basins. That is why the reduced flows have had such an extensive impact on the crawfish crop.

Harris Barras, 41, a Cajun in nearby Catahoula who has some 500 crawfish traps in the Atchafalaya swamps, can usually count on making $8,000 to $10,000 a year on crawfishing, the majority of his

Tin, tourism threatening beauty spot

By DENIS D. GRAY

SPINACH

Dill

PHUKET ISLAND, Thailand (AP) - Here is perhaps Thailand's ultimate beauty spot: miles of barely touched tropical beaches, jagged limestone cliffs rising out of the sea, lush mangroves, giant sea turtles and coral gardens.

The wild seascapes served as backdrops for a James Bond movie thriller, "The Man with the Golden Gun." Tourist brochures urge lovers of the unspoiled and the secluded to "see it now ...

Four hundred miles away lies Thailand's Pattaya, a skyline of high-rise international hotels, a beach polluted by oil slicks, pony droppings and a colony of young hustlers preying on sunstarved European tourists. Pattaya is billed as Southeast Asia's

"complete sea resort."

Some tourist officials and environmentalists view Pattaya as a classic example of unbridled tourist development and Phuket as a test case of whether even the world's most farflung paradises can be at least partially preserved from builders, travel agents and governments eager for tourist revenue.

There is talk about trying to go back to step one at Pattaya by putting in controls most agree should have been there when big private developers moved in less than 10 years ago and found a quiet fishing village and a single modern hotel on a lovely curve of the Gulf of Siam.

As for Phuket, the government's Tourist Organization of Thailand (TOT) is trying to implement a master plan. It calls for strict zoning to keep commercial enterprises from encroaching on beach areas, forbidding hotels taller than coconut palms, and other measures designed to lessen the impact of anticipated mass tourism on the environment.

What makes Phuket an even sharper contest of beauty versus profit is that the 25-by-10mile island and its offshore areas form one of the richest tin and its offshore areas form one of the richest tin deposits in the world, contributing about 2 per cent to Thailand's gross national product.

"The beaches in the southern part of the island are already irrevocably degraded," says environmental engineer Harvey Ludwig. "Even if the onshore tin mining stops today, it's doubtful nature could restore them except over a period of many decades."

On-shore miners punch out eyesore craters which are rarely refilled and dump silt into streams that flow into the sea. Offshore, floating dredges suck up everything off the sea floor down to bedrock, then disgorge all but tin concentrates back into the water.

disgorge all but tin concentrates back into the water.

An average-size dredge can eat up about 6,000 cubic yards of seabed a day, "completely destroying the existing marine ecology in the area," according to Ludwig, an American expert who wrote an en-vironmental report on Phuket for the Thai government last year.

A more subtle destruction, now under study, may come from the silt and mud wastes which settle on coral, a fragile organism which needs sunlight filtered through clear water to live. Coral reefs in the Phuket area, a major attraction for skin divers, are already threatened by collectors, as well as by fishermen who use dynamite to increase their catch.

Tourism in any real sense began here about five years ago. Growth has been slow largely because of the island's distance from Bangkok - a good day's drive - and the small airport which can currently handle only small turbo jets.

a few large hotels beaches are dotted with bungalows or local houses that take in young travelers for the equivalent of 50 U.S. cents a night. Other beaches have no structures at all and can be reached only by dirt roads or paths.

Welch appointed BDT chairman

Midland County Commissioner Charles R. Welch has been appointed Midland County chairman of the Beef Development Taskforce, a national organization of cattle producers.

Welch will hold a breakfast meeting with producers at 7 a.m. May 3 in the Midland Hilton to discuss an upcoming beef research and information referendum, which will be voted on soon.

The proposal would have a program to promote the industry through consumer education, research and foreign market development, the taskforce said. It added that more than 80 cattle organizations have endorsed the program, which would cost about $30 million to $40 million to implement.

Revived sorghum mill stopping the traffic

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Where two Tennessee highways — 14 and 15 — come together, the delicious odor of sugar cooking permeated the air recently.

The odor came from an old-fashioned sorghum mill built by Buddy Gray and his family. They planted 15 acres of sorghum and found out there was no place to get it converted to molasses.

Motorists were stopping in droves to watch the operation, to swap stories of older times and other sorghum mills, and to buy.

Instead of the traditional mule pulling the sorghum grinder, Gray had rigged up a tractor which ground grain into juice that sluiced down a piece of galvanized guttering into a tub.

This may be the scene Saturday afternoon before the championship round match of the Region I Girls Tennis Tournament in Lubbock. The possibility of Midland High's Vicki Vasicek (left) and Cary Garton (right) meeting in the finals of this two day event which will determine the qualifiers for the state tourney, is very strong. Cubs suffer third defeat

BY TED BATTLES

Mike Lentz who had beaten the Cubs the night before, was comparing last year's Texas League champions with this year's Amarillo club before Wednesday's game, by saying, "We aren't as strong.
"When we win it will be with good pitching, defense, quickness and by doing the little things it takes to win." A few minutes later, the Gold Sox gave a practical demonstration of what Lentz was talking about by beating Midland 5-2, although managing only five hits. The Sox did it by taking advantage of eight walks, a stolen base, a hit batsman and a couple of sac flies. They shadow boxed for nine innings and didn't come close to pounding anything, yet when it was over they

MOST OF the fans didn't stick around to admire the Gold Sox' footwork. If Tuesday's game was played in ideal weather, Wednesday's game was a cruel joke with tem-peratures in the mid-50s, but wind blasts right out of the northwest into fans' faces was too much. Even spectators showing up with blankets

The win was the second straight by the Gold Sox and left both teams at 2-3 in the Texas League West Division race going into tonight's Pack-the-Park game.

Darrell Turner, the Cubs' opening night winner, will face lefthander Don Alfano, an outfielder turned pitcher who may turn back to outfielding if he doesn't bring that 72.00 earned-run-average back from the moon pretty soon. Don was shocked for eight runs in one inning in his first start against

JUAN EICHELBERGER, hard throwing righthander, notched his first win, going six innings in five-hit

The Gold Sox, who didn't begin spring drills until March 24 and played only nine exhibitions, are still limiting their pitchers to 100 pitches. So when Eichelberger reached that mark, out he came.

Manager Dave Campbell held his breath. "I pulled Juan against El Paso with a 3-2 lead after he threw 100 pitches and it cost us the game."

This time Mark Lee kept the Cubs

For Midland, it was a frustrating night of lost opportunities. The Cubs left the bases loaded in the fourth and fifth, showing only one run for all of the huffing and puffing. In the seventh, Keith Drumright, who collected three of Midland's seven hits, doubled and reached third with only one out, but withered on the vine.

Jack Ledbetter, 0-1, walked leadoff batter Bill Hallstrom and Bobby Mitchell doubled him home in the first. Midland used two walks, a double play and an error to tie it in the second before the Sox tallied twice in the fourth to go in front for good.

Mitchell led off with a walk and scooted to third on a misplay at first and scored on Broderick Perkins fly to right. Tony Castillo was hit by a pitch and Bob Leisle singled in the run

Benson selected top cager

SCHAUMBURG, Ill. (AP) - Indiana senior Kent Benson was named Wednesday the Big Ten's Most Valuable Player for the 1976-77 basketball season.

The 6-foot-11 center narrowly beat out Minnesota's center Mike Thompson. Benson received seven first-place votes and six second-place votes for a total of 19. Thompson, who received six first-place votes and six second-place votes, had a total of 18.

Guard Billy McKinney of Northwestern was third with 14 points and Michigan's Phil Hubbard was fourth

The two youngsters who finished one-two in the girls singles event at the District 5-4A tennis tournament ust five days ago, move on to a greater challenge Friday, as the two-day Region I girls net competition opens at 8:15 a.m. on the Texas Tech University campus.

Escorted by their coach, Larry Burgin, the pair were scheduled to leave for Lubbock by car around noon today, in plenty of time to get a late afternoon workout before the tournament begins tomorrow.

A blind draw was conducted here early Wednesday and six of the ten entrants in girls singles, including Ms. Vasicek, drew first round byes. Ms. Garton did not receive a bye, and will face Connie Beatty, the District 3-4A champion from Amarillo early

No two performers from the same district have been placed on the same side of the bracket, which means Vasicek and Garton would not meet until Saturday's finals should neither one of them be eliminated in an earlier round. In last weekend's district title match, Vicki fended off Cary in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3, to capture the 5-4A title.

Burgin, who has watched his two young proteges blossom into outstanding performers the last seven months, feels the time has never been more ripe for another one-two tournament sweep, and a berth for both girls in the state tournament in Austin, May 5 through 7.

"They're both in top form right now. I've never seen either one of then play better." he said. "Cary has been hitting better the last two weeks than she has in the entire year and a half I've worked with her. And so is

The superlatives to describe Ms. Vasicek's tennis talent are running thin. Just a sophomore, she has been on an incredible winning steak that dates back to last October, when she was beaten by Julie Jones of Abilene Cooper in the Regional Team Tennis Tournament in Odessa. She avenged that loss to Ms. Jones two weeks later in the state tourney, and hasn't lost

Garton has not received the publicity her net talents deserve, playing in the shadow of Vasicek, but she's an outstanding performer with a powerful serve, and should exhibit those qualities here.

"I'd have to say that both girls are the definite favorites," Burgin con-

Midland tennis fans may remember Winstead. She extended Vasicek to three sets in the semifinals of the Tall City Classic more than a month ago before losing. But Vicki met her again two weeks later in a tournament at Abilene, and annhilated her, 6-1, 6-0.

Garton faced Winstead last year and beat her. She hasn't ever played against Roberts, but Vasicek beat her a year ago.

With a bye in the first round, Ms. Vasicek will open tournament play later Friday afternoon against Sharon Landry, the District 4-4A runnerup from Plainview. Should Garton get by Beatty in the opener, she will face El Paso Coronado's Julie Brown, the District 1-4A runnerup.

Rebel girl golfers holding down first

LUBBOCK — The Midland Lee girls golf team jumped out to a 17 stroke lead here Wednesday in the opening round of the 36-hole Region I Girls Golf Tournament at Meadowbrook Golf Course

The Rebels of Coach Shirley Stevenson shot a 351 to put some distance between them and the second place team from Amarillo, which shot a 368. Midland, which finished second to Lee in the district race, is in third at 373, while the Amarillo 'B' team stands at 387. The other four teams are well back.

Wendy Goodwin of Lee, who was runnerup in the 5-4A individual medalist race to Jackie Diass of Permian, is second to Diass here as well, Ms. Goodwin shot an 82 Wednesday, to put her one stroke back of Thursday's final round begins at 8:30 a.m. The top two teams, as well as the top two individual finishers here will advance to the state tournament in Austin in just a few weeks.

MIDLAND HIGH (373): Jean Huestis, 92; Dikka Fitting, 96; Barbara Thompson, 92; Shelley Watson, 97; Sherry Wilson, 93.

Woody wins pistol match

Stanton's Pete Woody won the Midland Shooters Association's monthly 1800 pistol match this week with a score of 1737, 61-X.

Joe Jeffers took first expert with a 1697, 39-X while first sharpshooter went to Pat Preston with a 1646, 21-X. Frank Morgan captured the first marksman title with a 1537, 22-X.

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Mike Durbin of Chagrin Falls, Ohio, averaged 225 to take the first round lead in the Professional Bowlers Association's $125,000 Tournament of Champions.

Durbin, who won this richest tournament on the PBA tour in 1972, held a 28-pin lead over Palmer Fallgren of Las Vegas, Nev. He is trying to join Jim Godman and Dave Davis as the tournament's only two-

Durbin had games of 215, 211, 246, 268, 212, 246 and 234 before slumping to a 170 in his final game. His eightgame block was 1,802. Fallgren, a one-time PBA career winner, had games of 184, 235, 233, 234, 244, 194, 258 and 192 for an eightgame block of 1,774.

Dave Soutar of Kansas City was third with 1,763 while Mike Berlin of Muscatine, Iowa was fourth with 1,741 and Nelson Burton Jr. of St. Louis was fifth with 1,734.

Defending champion Marshall Holman of Medford, Ore., averaged 207 and was in 19th place with a 1,659

Bengal 'birdman' can really pack the fans into a park

When you get right down to it, the only justification For the outlandish salaries paid to free agents, or any ball player or athlete, for that matter, is the number of fans they themselves put in the stands.

On that basis, the only athlete capable of packing a stadium through his own personal magnetism that we can think of is Mark "The Bird" Fidrych.

Last year, on days he was scheduled to pitch, and there were 29 of them, more than 900,000 fans showed up, which, even in Detroit where the ball club was atrocious, was almost enough to keep the club financially afloat.

All the more astounding is that Mark drew that many folks into the ball park even though it was almost mid-season before the word really got out about the kid who talks to baseballs.

WHEN BRAD Corbett made the trade for Willie Horton, making the fourth righthanded DH on the Texas Rangers' roster, the first Manager Frank Lucchesi, General Manager Dan

During spring training, Ray Kroc visited Yuma, Ariz., to watch his San Diego Padres in action in an exhibition.

He figured he wouldn't be recognized when he stopped at a McDonald's to order a hamburger, but the McDonald's chairman was amazed when the restaurant manager recognized him immediately.

Buzzie Bavasi, president of the Padres, however, wasn't surprised.

'It's not every day in Yuma," said Buzzie, "when a man drives up in a Rolls-Royce with a driver and buys a hamburger."....

WHEN BERNIE Sliger waa elected president of Florida State University, football coach Bobby Bowden dispatched a congratulatory wire, "You won the big one."

President Sliger wired back, "Luke 10:37."

Some say 29-year-old Johnny Miller is over the hill, that he can't win anymore because he is a Mormon. The criticism is that he gives too much time to God and family to be a successful tournament tour player.

Former truck driver steers Oakland A's to 4-2 win

By The Associated Press

Rich McKinney had to make a choice between driving a truck and driving a baseball. It was no choice.

Mr. Finley called me and told me it would be the best chance I had since I came to Oakland and I would be foolish not to report," said McKinney. Mr. Finley is Charles O. Finley—owner of the Oakland A's.

And McKinney is glad he called him. Since putting on Oakland's colorful uniform late in spring training, McKinney has been hitting with authority, and Wednesday, he slugged his third home run of the season, leading the A's over the Milwaukee Brewers 4-2.

"McKinney did it to us again," said Milwaukee Manager Alex Grammas. "He's got power and if he's given a pitch to hit, he can hit it out.

McKinney had a pinch-hit, two-run homer in Tuesday's loss to Milwaukee. In addition to his homer Wednesday, he drove in a run with a single, helping the A's break a three-game losing streak. McKinney is as surprised as anybody about his quick start. Usually, he does not start hitting homers until mid-season. He had 22 last year with Oakland's farm club at Tucson, a season he thought might be his last in organized baseball.

A nine-year pro, the 30-year-old McKinney was ready to quit baseball after spending three straight years at Tucson, with only brief stints on the parent club in 1974 and 1975.

"I was going to quit this season because I hadn't had a real shot with Oakland in three years," said McKinney, who planned to drive a truck in Ohio before the call from Finley.

IN OTHER American League games, the Texas Rangers beat the Seattle Mariners 5-2, the Chicago White Sox edged the California Angels 3-2, the Minnesota Twins stopped the Kansas City Royals 3-2, the Detroit Tigers nipped the Boston Red Sox 3-2, the Baltimore Orioles whipped the Cleveland Indians 7-2 and the New York Yankees outscored the Toronto Blue Jays 7-5.

McKinney's homer came off Jerry Augustine in the sixth inning and broke a 2-2 tie. He also drove in a run with a single in the first inning when the A's scored twice. Mike Torrez increased his record to 3-0 with a sixhitter for Oakland.

Rangers 5, Mariners 2 Dave May and Toby Harrah smashed home runs, leading Texas over Seattle. May hit a two-run homer in the third inning. He got a chance to play when Claudell Washington was sidelined with the flu.

Harrah, who broke up a scoreless tie Tuesday night with a three-run shot in the ninth inning, collected his fourth homer of the season. Seattle's Juan Bernhardt also smashed his fourth homer of the year, a solo shot in the fifth.

Owens making NFL return

DETROIT (AP) - Fullback Steve Owens' retirement from the National Football League came to an end Wednesday as Commissioner Pete Rozelle approved his return to the Detroit Lions next season.

Owens, the only Lion to break the 1,000-yard mark in one season, underwent knee surgery at the close of the 1974 season and decided to drop out of football last fall.

The 29-year-old former Heisman Trophy winner will join the Lions June 1 at a preseason training camp.

"I've been working out every day," Owens said from his Oklahoma home. 'I really feel that I can play again. My knee is fine and so is my mental attitude. Now that I have been officially reinstated, I'm rarin' to go."

Twins 3, Royals 2 Utilizing five double plays and solo homers by Larry Hisle, Dan Ford and Craig Kusick, Minnesota nipped Kansas City. Hisle and Ford tagged starter Paul Splittorff with successive homers, giving the Twins a 2-0 lead in Mark Littell, 1-1, relieved Splittorff in the eighth, and with two out, Kusick lofted a shot over the left field fence.

Tigers 3, Red Sox 2 Veteran Rusty Staub and rookie Steve Kemp lined solo homers off Boston's Luis Tiant, helping Detroit beat the Red Sox. Detroit righthander Vern Ruhle, 2-1, earned his first victory over the Red Sox since Sept. 29, 1974, his rookie season, with eighth-inning relief help from Steve Foucault and John Hiller.

Orioles 7, Indians 2 Doug DeCinces rapped a two-run

Are the minor leagues doing their job?

By BOB STEVENS San Francisco Chronicle

In a memorable Pacific Coast League spring training game in 1940, an outfielder missed his cutoff man, another outfielder threw to the wrong base, a pitcher grooved a no-ball, two-strike pitch and got creamed and another pitcher failed to cover first base.

With the winning run on second base, nobody out, bottom of the ninth, the batter grounded to the left side of the diamond instead of the right, forcing the runner to hold his position, The ensuing deep fly ball that might have scored the winning run was squandered.

San Francisco Seals Manager Lefty O'Doul screamed like a gored goat. "Don't the people in the lower minors teach these kids how to play the Thirty-seven years later, we're still seeing the same mistakes-now at the major league level.

JOE MORGAN, Cincinnati's second baseman and the National League's Most Valuable Player the past two seasons, says the farm systems are failing to send finished performers into the big

"The players at the low minor league level don't pay as much attention to the vital little things, the fundamentals they should bring with them to the majors instead of having to learn them in a big league spring training camp. Maybe it isn't the kids' fault; maybe older and wiser managers and coaches aren't hired at that

"Still, the kids don't listen when they are instructed properly. This reflects our society of today: rejecting the discipline of learning, absorbing and applying. I know there are better players, physically, in the minors today than when I broke in with the Houston farm system."

Jerry Coleman, a classic second baseman on six Yankee World Series clubs, is now the radio voice of the San Diego Padres. "They're rushing the kids up to the majors too fast, but that's not the entire answer," he says. "I played for years with the Yankees with two outfielders who shall remain anonymous. They never hit their cutoff man and they'd had four years of minor league instructing.

JOHN VAN Ornum, manage of the Giants' Class A Fresno entry in the Ca 'ornia League, agrees with Coleman. "We just on't have the time to mold a finished product. 'a kid shows above average potential, he'll b in a major league camp or playing in the majors before he's played 200 professional games. He'll make mistakes because he's not ready to play at that level '

Bill Poesdel has been in baseball since the 1930s as a big league pitcher, minor league manager and major league pitching instructor. He's with the Padres now and he blames the system, not the player.

"You see pitchers sent to the big league spring training camp with 2-9, 3-12, 4-11 minor league records," he says, "and they're supposed to be ready. No way. Many of them are destroyed before they really get a chance. Expansion-the demand for more major league players—has had a negative effect.

'There used to be minor leagues all over the country and only 400 major league jobs. A promising kid was kept in the minors for at least four years to learn his trade. Now there are only 18 minor leagues and more than 600 major league jobs to be filled."

Bowlers image-conscious

By HOWARD SMITH AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - It takes more than a. good release and a smooth delivery to make it to the finals of a Professional Bowlers Association tournament these

You have to be well groomed and colorcoordinated. You can't smoke or take a drink of water on camera. You can't chat with your opponent or swear or stomp around in anger or chew on a toothpick or wear your favorite T-shirt.

In short, you have to abide by the rules of the PBA's Image Committee. "The Image Committee was founded 12 years ago when we realized the American public had the wrong impression of bowling," says Eddie Elias, founder of the PBA. "It was considered a basement sport. People thought bowlers were all hustlers. We wanted to change that image."

THE BEST way to get a message across is on national television and the PBA has had great success in that area. ABC has televised the tour for the past 16 years and the ratings have been good enough to keep bowling No.1 in its time slot most of the time. Bowling usually gets better over-all ratings than pro and college basketball, tennis, hockey and golf.
This year ABC televised the finals of 15

ournaments and will show a 16th Saturday, the $125,000 Tournament of Champions, the climactic event of the season. And you can bet Saturday's finalists will look the part. "We have some sort of a past to live down," says Frank Esposito, the PBA's broadcast coordinator. "TV gives us the opportunity to show our improvement.' Esposito meets with the five finalists each Friday night and goes over the ground rules for the televised finals. And he runs a tight ship. Mustaches may not droop below the lip line. Sideburns can't go below the ear lobe. Hair mustn't go below the collar Clothes are color coordinated. If one bowler wear blue, another must wear yellow and so on. "If a man wears a solid shirt I prefer some sort of pattern in the slacks," says Esposito. Even bowling gloves and the towels participants wipe their hands on must fit into the color

"We just tell them 'Look, tomorrow 24 million people are going to see you. How do you want to look? Immaculate, well telecasts of bowling competition to Laserphoto) dressed and well groomed or like a slob?' It doesn't leave them much choice," says

MOST OF the time the bowlers go along with the program, but there are exceptions. "Ernie Schlegel likes to wear outfits made code, more or less."

NEW YORK (AP) — Clev Er Tell is out of straight races after losing his debut last ne Kentucky Derby. He is the second year, was ruled out of the Derby by trainer Jim Simpson because of a fever which will interrupt the colt's training.

> "He (Clev Er Tell) was galloping real strong this morning," said trainer Homer Pardue. "He even tried to run away with the boy. When he came back to the barn he was dead lame."

Pardue said even before X rays were taken, "I can tell you he went bad in the left. knee. I'm afraid he chipped a bone in there. I called the owners and told them he would not run in the Wood or the Derby."
Clev Er Tell, the winner of the Louisana and Arkansas derbies, is owned by J.R. Straus and Izzy Proler. The colt also won the LeComte Handicap at New Orleans Fair Grounds and earned $164,945 this year.

Player agent paints bleak picture By WILL GRIMSLEY the smoked-filled rooms of team ex-AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) - Within the next two or three years, barring an unexpectedly sharp return to sanity, the baseball superstar will be making between $300,000 and $600,000 a year and the average starter will be in the $200,000 bracket. A half-dozen clubs, facing bankruptcy, will be ready to toss in the towel. This is the paradoxically mind-boggling yet bleak picture being painted today by a man who acknowledges that his craft is at the root of this lopsided situation threatening the very foundations of big-time professional sports.

'Greed and avarice have got us into this fix," admits Bob Woolf, a youthful, live-wire Bostonian who was the pioneer in the flourishing profession of player management. "The danger is tremendous."

Woolf, 49, a native of Portland, Maine, graduate of Boston College and Boston University Law School, is a lawyer. The sports world knows him better as an agent. He is identified by an inevitable black satchel. He sits in ecutives and hammers out contracts for today's athletic heroes.

HE AND men of the same calling are the Svengalis who create sports millionaires such as Catfish Hunter, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, O.J. Simpson and Bobby Orr.

The exception is that Woolf has broken ranks and become a modernday Paul Revere, sounding an alarm over agents' abuse of their negotiating roles. He has lectured on college campuses-including Harvard- and only recently set forth his misgivings in a book entitled "Behind Closed Doors.'

"I have lived through the demise of the World Football League and the American Basketball Association. I have seen franchises fold in the World Hockey Association," he says.

"I have seen superstars become instant millionaires, but for every one of these fortunate men I have seen dozens of others, men of great talent, forced into idleness-their skills and lives wasting away.

"They are all dressed up with no place to go. The market has been drained by the salary explosion."

Woolf contends much of the blame can be traced directly to agents and lawyers who have grubbed for everything they can get without regard for the industry.

'Leave a little on the table-that's my theory," he adds. "What do you gain if you make excessive demands and kill off the source? It's not good business practice." Woolf is concerned not only with the greed of some of his cohorts but also their gall. "Some even try to dictate that their clients have special starting and playing privileges," he said.

Player management was relatively unknown in 1964 when Woolf became the legal representative first of Earl Wilson, who pitched a no-hitter for the Boston Red Sox, and later nine of the 12 members of basketball's Boston Celtics, including Sam Jones and John Havlicek.

Modest at first, his stable grew until it covered 300 of the nation's leading athletes with salary assets reaching into the tens of millions. The Washington Post once called Woolf "sports' most powerful man." His clients have included Derek Sanderson, Carl Yastrzemski, Jim Plunkett, Julius Erving, Thurman Munson and Luis Tiant.

THE NEW England attorney says Abdul-Jabbar is the highest paid of all team athletes, making $600,000 a year, and pro football players are comparatively the poorest paid. "Joe Namath's $490,000 and O.J. Simpson's $500,000 are extraordinary," he insists. "There are a lot of regulars in the $40,000 category."

Unrealistic as some salaries are, Woolf said he fails to understand the resentment they generate among the "People think nothing of Frank Sinatra or Sammy Davis getting $100,000 for a single night's per-formance," he said. "Or Paul Newman getting $4 million for a movie. Sports have become show business. The athletes are matinee idols."

Borg's strong service too much for Mayer

DENVER (AP) - Top-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden used a strong service to whip American Gene Mayer 6-4, 6-3 Wednesday night and advance into the third round of a $100,000 Grand Prix tennis tournament.

Borg, Brian Gottfried and Stan Smith were the only seeded singles players remaining after three days of competition.

Gottfried, the No. 2 seed, beat Australian Steve Docherty 6-3, 7-6 and the fifth-seeded Smith defeated Mark Edmondson, also of Australia, 7-5, 6-3. No. 3 seed Rauamirez of Mexico, troubled b an erratic service, lost to Australia's Kim Warwick 7-6, 6-1, while fourth-seeded Roscoe Tanner was upset by South African Byron Bertram 6-7, 6-4, 6-3. Borg said Denver's mile-high altitude prevented him from establishing his usual baseline game. "I was very satisfied with my serve, although I prefer to play from the baseline," said Borg, 20, the Wimbledon champion.

Player agent Bob Woolf is one of the men who has helped to create today's millionaire super star athlete, but he's blowing the whistle in his book "Behind Closed Doors" on his fellow agents. Greed and avarice could destroy a half-dozen clubs he warns. (AP Laserphoto)

NBA standing pat on ref struggle

NEW YORK (AP) - The National Basketball Association shows no signs of backing off from its position against collective bargaining with its striking referees despite a 48-hour halt to picketing by the 24 members of the National Association of Basketball Referees.

Richie Phillips, attorney for the striking referees, had said earlier this week he was "somewhat optimistic" that a settlement to the 12-day walkout could be reached this week. And Wednesday, the referees suspended picketing fpr 48 hours in an attempt "to foster good relations" with the NBA, according to Phillips.

GOOD RELATIONS are one thing, but a change in the NBA's position is another matter.

NBA Deputy Commissioner Simon Gourdine issued a statement Wednesday night indicating the league had received inquiries "concerning possible movement towards settlement of the strike," but reiterated the league's position against collective bargaining with its referees.

"From the beginning of the dispute," Gourdine said, "the NBA has been willing to negotiate with the referees on an individual basis for the playoff games, with other issues to be negotiated after the playoffs.

"That continues to be our position. We are heartened if the increased speculation concerning a possible settlement is an indication that the referees now realize the reasons for settling the dispute on this basis are both sound and fair."

Phillips, however, says the referees remain firm in their demands for collective bargaining and have no intention of settling on an individual basis.

Drysdale qualifies for Dallas

Drysdale earned a spot as one of eight finalists in Dallas next month as he defeated Billy Martin in a marathon three-hour and 20 minute first round match in the World Championship Tennis Classic.

Drysdale qualified for his third Dallas finals appearance with a 4-6, 6-1, 6-4 victory over Martin in a match interrupted by two lengthy rain remains to be filled. In other matches, Eddie Dibbs defeated Andrew Pattison 6-3, 6-3 and veteran Ken Rosewall was eliminated by John Alexander 1-6, 6-2, 6-1. Adriano Panatta topped hometown favorite. 17-year-old rookie Tim Wilkison 6-3, 6-3. Harold Solomon. defeated Ross Case 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

Drysdale joins Dick Stockton, Jimmy Connors, Ilie Nastase, Eddie Dibbs, Vitas Gerulaitis and Voitek Fibak in the finals field. One more slot

MEANWHILE, IN Philadelphia, Coach Gene Shue of the 76ers lashed out at the use of substitute referees in playoff games.

"I don't like the idea of officials calling games who shouldn't be," said Shue after the 76ers beat the Boston Celtics 113-101. "So you know exactly where I stand, I want the best officials and we don't have them.

prestige involved and I don't like it," added Shue. "I don't want to be involved in playoffs where I have a strong team and have this happen. I would like to see the strike ended."

The strike began April 10, the final day of the regular season, and since then the NBA has staffed its games with officials from minor leagues and college ranks to supplement the two non-striking officials, Richie Powers

The striking refs have picketed a number of playoff games, but their actions have not disrupted play.

Neither side will comment on the status of negotiations, or even say whether any talks have taken place. The National Labor Relations

Board in Philadelphia received position papers from both sides on the referees' charges of unfair labor practices. A decision could come by

Watson top name at New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Masters champion Tom Watson says he thinks he has his golf game under control again after a miserable 77 in the pro-am warmup to the $175,000 Greater New Orleans Open.

Watson is the biggest name of the 150 professional golfers playing in the Open, which begins its first round today at the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club. Watson came off the course in sprinkling rain Wednesday, then went immediately to the practice tee. He postponed interviews: 'Sorry, I have to practice.' He hit bucket after bucket of balls-going through every club in his bag-then moved to the putting green. "I got back in the groove by the end of the session," he said when he was finally relaxed enough to talk.

The pro-am was held in intermittent rain and 20-mile-per-hour winds. Clouds which dumped six inches of rain on nearby towns Wednesday did not appear exhausted, and the forecast was for more rain today.

The best individual round of Wednesday's warmup session was a 66 shot by Eddie Pearce. Watson, a regular here since 1967, holds a piece of the course tournament record—a 64 he carded last year to put him in a tie with Ben Crenshaw and Howie Johnson. Crenshaw got his 64 in 1974,

Watson said that while "weather is always a factor," he couldn't attribute his miserable round Wednesday to anything but his own play.

"I wasn't hitting the ball well," he said. "There was no standing water, and the fairways aren't that wet, yet. The greens are good-about medium fast." Watson is leading money winner on the Professional Golfers' Association tour this year with earnings of $177,835. Bruce Lietzke, second on the PGA earnings list with $156,380, shot a 70 in the pro-

Gerulaitis advances to quarters

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) - Topseeded Vitas Gerulaitis of New York met Balazs Toroczy of Hungary, and Ilie Nastase of Romania, playing with a twisted ankle, faced Ray Moore of South Africa today in quarter-final matches of the $100,000 Virginia Beach Tennis Classic.

Other scheduled matches pitted fourthseeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina against Ray Ruffels of Australia, and Bob Lutz of San Clemente, Calif. against John McEnroe of New York.

Gerulaitis reached the quarter-finals Wednesday night with a 6-2, 6-2 victory over Patrice Dominquez of Spain. Nastase, playing with a heavily taped ankle, beat Victor Amaya of Holland, Mich. 6-2, 7-6 in his opening-round match.

"I can serve and come to the net without any problem but I can't come to the sides," said Nastase. "Everybody wanted me to play, so I guess they don't care about my

The Romanian said he wanted to go home this week, but Ion Tiriac, another Romanian who is running the tournament, told Nastase he wanted him to stay. "Maybe it's good for him, but it's not good for me," Nastase said.

Gerulaitis said he did not have any plans in his match with Dominquez. "I've only played him once before and I think we both played just to get the feel of the court. Patrice was a little off and I was pretty steady ...in a case like that I might attack a little more," he said.

Moore beat Anand Amritraj of India 5-7, 6-4, 6-2 in his first-round match Wednesday and Taroczy defeated Bill Scanlon of Dallas 6-1, 6-2. Ruffels used a serve and volley game in beating Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex. 6-4, 7-6, and Lutz, second-seeded, beat Tiriac 6-2, 6-3 in the final first-round match.

Portland, LA, Philly take playoff wins

By The Associated Press

Sometimes the best plays are the ones that don't work. Maurice Lucas saw a play break down in the closing seconds of Portland's National Basketball Association playoff game against Denver Wednesday night, but he knew exactly what to do.

"I looked for Dave Twardzik at the top of the key," Lucas said, "but I didn't see him. So I just took it one-Lucas worked in close, then spun and tossed up a turnaround jumper from 14 feet with 11 seconds left in the game. It went in, giving the Trail Blazers a 101-100 victory over the seven quarter-final series.

"The last play that Luke scored on was not designed for him specifically," said Portland Coach Jack Ramsay. "But Twardzik got tangled up and Luke just made a great offensive play.

for Denver because it came on the Nuggets' home court, where they had lost only five games all season.

"What it gets down to, and it's been plaguing us all year, is we miss free throws and turn the ball over when it counts most," said Denver Coach Larry Brown. "I don't know what to court advantage."

DENVER REELED off 10 straight points at the start of the fourth quarter for an 81-77 lead and was ahead 98-95 with two minutes to play. But Denver star David Thompson missed two free throws and Twardzik scored for Portland, then Thompson threw the ball away and Lucas

The Lakers hit 74 per cent of their shots from the field in the third quarter when they took an 87-82 lead. Abdul-Jabbar clinched the victory with 12 points in the final quarter as well as a key block and a rebound in the closing seconds. The Warriors had cut the lead to 110-106 before Abdul-Jabbar hit a hook shot, blocked a shot by the Warriors' Charles Dudley, then smothered the rebound.

Hockey tourney begins

VIENNA (AP) - The ice hockey teams of the United States and Canada set out today on the forlorn task of breaking the domination of East Europe in the World

Champtionships. The Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia are favored to make the running as usual, even though the championships have been thrown open to professional players for the first time.

"We are only just getting our team together," said Frank Gallacher, manager of the U.S. squad. "It is very, very difficult to put a strong national team into the World Championships." The Canadians, with their star players tied up in the Stanley Cup playoffs at home, sent over a largely inexperienced team that lost -2 and 4-1 to Czechoslovakia in warmup matches. So it looks like it will be as difficult as usual to prove to European fans that Canada and the United States are the home of hockey. Most Europeans, who have never seen a National Hockey League game, have been brought up on these World Championships and have seen the Canadians and Americans, with allamateur squads, constantly being slaughtered by the Russians.

The first day's play at Vienna's Stadthalle today was scheduled to end with a clash between the United States and Canada. Other games on the day's program were Romania vs. Sweden, West Germany vs. the Soviet Union and Finland vs. Czechoslovakia.

"Maybe it's a good thing that we are playing Canada to start with," Gallacher said. "We know each other's style of > Approximately 200 home demonstration club women converged on Midland Tuesday for the District 6, Texas Home Demonstration Association spring meeting held in Memorial Christian Church.

> Featured speakers were Mrs. Charles Warminski of White Deer, state vice president, THDA, and Mrs. Roberta Johnson, District 6 extension agent (home economics).

> Both women spoke of the decline in membership in home demonstration clubs throughout Texas since 1934 and then offered suggestions on recruiting new members.

Mrs. Johnson, a former extension agent for Dawson County, feels that HD women are the best people in the community to see a problem and do something about it. "They are love in action" she said.

She continued by saying, "Everyday some people fight each other - every minute trying to pull against life instead of giving problems to God. But others, like HD women, fight another way - God's

Mrs. Johnson said all homemakers are eligible to share in the cultural programs of home demonstration clubs, who need people with fresh

She said the goals of the membership or expansion committee should be to recruit new members and then educate them to HD work, to help new members understand club programs and their place in the club and to help new members drop out gracefully so they can return later if

She pointed out reasons why women join. These include the following:

-to conform to what community or some indiviual expects of them.

-Security, safety or status.

-Involvement. -Enjoyment.

Mrs. Johnson said people "like to be with people because they are people." Reasons given by Mrs. Johnson for women not joining were: "it's easier not to join, fear of commitment and lack of understanding.

The HD women were told by Mrs. Johnson that to recruit new members they should "invite prospective members to regular and special meetings, make it easier for them to attend by providing baby sitting service, plan a topic of interest to both men and women and then invite husbands and treat prospective members as special people.

Members drop out, said Mrs. Johnson because of lack of interest in programs, interference of family responsibilities, they go back into job market or belong to other organizations.

She urged the women to not let their clubs get complicated.

Mrs. Warminski echoed what Mrs.

The state officer, a 30-year HD member, pointed out that the state of Texas had 43,000 HD women in 1934, but the present membership totals 24,000, even though the population of the state had tripled in the past 43

She said that in 1934 women had to make do with what they had and HD work offered them homemaking programs they needed. Then in the 1940s, women went back to work. But this is not the reason for decline in membership, she added.

New homemaker clubs have organized all over Texas, the speaker revealed, and they want the same programs. "We, (HD women) are the logical people to give it to them."

But, the new members can't get the homemaking skills they want because the older HD women have learned them and don't want to be bothered with teaching them to the younger ones. So many clubs "just socializing, not offering educational programs."

"The young women are left on their own and things become so complicated they drop out," the speaker

A club does not always have to have the agent to give the program because most members are experts on the skills of homemaking.

Times are similar to 1934," said Mrs. Warminski. "It is time for all of us to get busy.'

Among those attending the District 6, Texas Home Demonstration Association, meeting were, left to right, Mrs. W. N. Norred of Big Spring, district director; Mrs. N. E. Holloway of Stanton, state treasurer, and Mrs. Alton Underwood of Big Spring, THDA chairman.

Styles for Fall '77 show 'full effect'

By DOLORES BARCLAY Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Full, flowing, fragile designs in tender fabrics and ice cream fantasy colors were presented by Japanese designer Hanae Mori in a showing of her fall collection.

She calls her styles "the full effect," perhaps because yards of material are used for billowing skirts and bubble-like tops.

"There are times, daytime or evening, when a woman just won't wear sportswear. She tires of says Hanae Mori. "Or, she wants to look particularly beautiful on a particular occasion. That's when she's ready for the full effect."

Tuesday's show opened with unstructured cashmere coats worn with knit dresses and coordinates in lavender and beige. These wrap coats sported wide, jutting cowls and were sashed at

Jackets, also big and geometrically shaped, are meant to be worn unbuttoned over layers. The Mori collection featured these outerwear jackets with turtleneck tops, knit chemise vests and ultra-long scarves, wrapped several times about the neck and shoulders.

Where the Japanese designer has always excelled is with her exquisitely intricate prints. Colors are vivid or soft. Designs are splashy-like her huge roses-or subtle, like her tiny damountain flowers. They also are direct and fresh, as shown by the arrow print.

There was one Big, Bubble top in the show. sporty with lots of room.

Evening wear was quiet and feminine. Even the Mori shimmering metallic gowns and tops in dark gold and silver. Another fabric not ordinarily used for evening wear or matched with lame was ultrasuede. Here, the designer showed a bold, floral pattern on ultrasuede skirts and jackets worn over lame tops.

Girlish chemise dresses, flattering with the dropped waist, were shown in crepe de chine and challis. Fanny wraps, that doubled as scarves or oneshoulder shawls, often accompanied them.

Toffee Pecan Swirls

Revisit past pleasures of mom's sticky rolls

Remember the fresh-from-the-oven sticky buns you loved when you were a youngster? The aroma of their home baked goodness filled the kit-chen—and their tempting taste always called for "just one more."

You can revisit the pleasures of the past with an updated version of this easy-to-bake favorite. The crunchy flavor surprise comes from bits of chocolate covered English toffee candy in the filling. Toffee Pecan Swirls can be made a day ahead of time and refrigerated until baking. They're great for breakfast, brunch, after-school snacks, or anytime friends drop by for

> Who better to turn to for some good advice on the art of making a good drink than a prize-winning bartender? Going right to the top, we asked Al Arteaga, bartender at the Cathedral Canyon Country Club in Palm Springs, Calif. and first prize winner in the 1976 Annual Bartenders Guild Cocktail Contest, for some hints. Incidentally, Al defeated 86 contestants and won a trip to Italy to compete against the world's top mixologists.

Here's Al's winning libation,"The Road Runner, along with some hints that will win you compliments as a party-giver.

To make "The Road Runner," pour one ounce vodka, 1/2 ounce Amaretto di Saronno, 1/2 ounce cocoanut cream* and 1/2 scoop crushed ice into a blender and mix for 15 seconds. Rim the edge of a chilled 41/2-ounce champagne glass with a slice of orange. Dip rim in a sugar and nutmeg mixture. Pour cocktail into the prepared glass. Top with a dash of nutmeg and serve. (*You'll find cocoanut cream in cans at your supermarket either with the canned ethnic foods or in the gourmet section.)

"The Road Runner" could be a runaway success at your next open house instead of eggnog or punch. In case you're not familiar with Amaretto di Saronno, you'll be in for a happy surprise. It's the "in" li-

You'll want a jigger measure clearly all sorts of lively libations that are perking up the marked in half and quarter ounces. party scene these days.

Every good party starts out with plenty of ice. This is no time to stint. Use ice as if your grandfather left you an iceberg or at least a walk-in freezer.

One of the cardinal rules of serving praiseprovoking drinks is to make each drink with fresh ice. Don't piggy-back ice cubes in drinks. Be a sport and toss out the tired cubes and replenish them with fresh ones when pouring another round. And remember not to fill the glasses too full. Juggling acts are for jugglers, not party guests.

To avoid splashing when mixing drinks, add the ice pouring in the ingredients.

To keep the party running smoothly, have suffi-cient glasses on hand. A good rule of thumb is to have twice as many glasses as you expect guests.

To serve drinks at their chilliest and best, have the glasses well chilled by placing them in the refrigerator before the party. Worcestershire sauce used as seasoning

The early fame of the original Worcestershire sauce, as soon as it was perfected in Worcester, England, some 140 years ago, was based on its use over cooked beef, but today it occupies a place of honor on the seasoning shelf in the kitchen as well as on the dinner table

Worcestershire not only adds delightful aroma to meats, but enlivens the flavor of non-meats such as the following Worcestered Noodle and Cheese Roll-Ups and the Tuna Noodle Skillet. Noodles play an important role in these two dishes with cheeses and tuna fish supplying the proteins. A measure of Worcestershire sauce and herbs and onions give these dishes appetite appeal. There's no reason why you cannot add other good ingredients such as green peas, chopped mushrooms, cracked panuts, sliced zucchini, chopped spinach or diced eggplant just to

One of the admirable things about this sauce-in addition to its wealth of mingled aromas-is that it is ever-ready. One reach does it. Incidentally, the original Worcestershire is one of the few products of its kind on the market today that is completely natural. But though it contains no preservatives, it has ex-cellent shelf life. Professional chefs often use it for "correcting the seasoning" of dishes. If a little more is needed, it can be stirred into the nearly finished dish without any radical change in the recipe.
WORCESTERED NOODLE

AND CHEESE ROLL-UPS 8 lasagna noodles 1 tablespoon oil

1/2 cup chopped onion

1 tablespoon original Worcestershire sauce 1 teaspoon oregano leaves, crumbled

1 jar (151/2 oz.) spaghetti sauce

1/2 teaspoon salt 1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened 1 cup (8 oz.) cream-styled cottage cheese 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese Cook noodles as package label directs; drain; set aside in cold water to cover. In a medium saucepan heat oil until hot. Add onion; saute for 2 minutes. Add spaghettic sauce, Worcestershire sauce, oregano and salt. Bring to the boiling point. Reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, for 10 minutes. Combine cream cheese and cottage cheese. Spoon about 1/4 cup cheese mixture on end of each lasagna noodle; roll up jelly-roll fashion. Spoon some of the Worcestered sauce mixture in the bottom of a 12 x 8 x 2-inch casserole. Arrange noodle rollups in casserole. Spoon remaining sauce over roll-ups. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake, uncovered, in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) until cheese is hot and the sauce is bubbly, about 30 minutes. Serve 2 roll-ups per portion. YIELD: 4 portions

TUNA NOODLE SKILLET 3 tablespoons butter or margarine

1/2 cup chopped onion 1 can (10% oz.) condensed cream of mushroom soup 11/2 cups milk

1 cup water 1 tablespoon original Worcestershire sauce 1/2 teaspoon salt

1 package (8 oz.) medium width egg noodles 2 cans (6 to 7 oz. each) tuna, drained and flaked

4 cup chopped parsley
In a large skillet melt butter. Add onion; saute for 3 minutes. Stir in soup, milk, water, Worcestershire sauce and salt. Bring just to the boiling point; stir in noodles. Simmer, covered, until noodles are cooked, and stir until hot, about 3 minutes. YIELD: 4 to 6 portions

Body need not fill up, out with fast foods

By JOSEPH D. WHITAKER The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Every day millions of Americans pull in under "golden arches" and other fast foods restaurants across the country to order their favorite meal. What they consume is a mixed bag of helpful nutrients and harmful calories, according to the experts.

A person eating a McDonald's Big.

Mac, french fries, and a chocolate shake will take into his body nearly 1,100 calories, according to a study of the caloric content of fast foods compiled by leading nutritionists.

A chicken dinner all the Colonel's, with three pieces of chicken, cole slaw, mashed potatoes, gravy and a roll, adds up to 980 caltries. Add a large soft drink at 200 caltries to wash. it all down and the grand total shoots. up to 1,180 calories at one sitting.

A person choosing these meals would be getting more than his daily requirement of nutrients, but probably many more calories than he needs, according to nutrit

It is, however, possible to go into a fast foods establishment and get a nutritionally balanced meal, according to Richard Staltes, vice president of The Nutrition Foundation, which supports nutrition research and education.

"Fast foods can be warked into the diet without much difficulty," said has been lost in preparation," he Stalvey, who estimates that nearly a third of all meals in America are eaten outside of the home and increasingly at fast foods restaurants.

"A person on a 1,400-calorie diet can safely go to a fast food restaurant and have a regular hamburger, with lettuce, tomato and onions, a half cup of fruit or vegetables and a small glass of milk without going off their

Stalvey said that at most fast food restaurants a person can select foods from the four basic groups without an nordinate amount of calories.

One problem with the whole fast food motif is that it is " according to Dr. J. Charles Sterin, research director of the Wholistic Health and Nutrition Institute, of Mill Valley, Calif., a nonprofit health organization.

"Fast foods are prepared fast and they are eaten fast," said Dr. Sterin. "This poses two problems. The preparation process often destroys a lot of the nutritional content of the food. Much of the food is not cooked properly and, in addition, is prepared ours before it is eaten, causing further nutritional destruction.

"In some instances, the restaurant crushed vanilla-flavor ould probably hand out vitamin wafers (about 70 from a added.

Dr. Sterin said that the eating of fast foods also can pose hazards. "Most people dash into a fast foods restaurant and choke down their food in a matter of minutes. They get a bloated feeling. Soon after they've eaten and the bloat goes away they have this strange feeling they interpret as hunger and they're ready to eat again.

Food, including fast foods, should be eaten slowly, thoroughly chewed and each bite savored. The slower pace would give the teeth, tongue, ounces of chips) contains 275 calories. pace would give the teeth, tongue, salivary glands and stomach opportunity to fully play their individual roles in the digestion process, Dr.

The following are approximate caloric values of some foods that can be obtained at quick foods restaurants from coast to coast:

Assemble meal night before

If you work outside the home, and the latest statistics show that almost half of all women are employed, you've got to use every edge you can to simplify dinner preparation.

Getting as much done the night before is a big advantage and here are two new recipes that take maximum advantage of prepreparation

Both Tropical Pork Chop Bake and Savory Tuna Loaf can be assembled the night before, refrigerated, and if you have children at home, they can be instructed about when to pop the contents into the oven. Then all you need to do on arrival is toss the salad, cook a vegetable and you're in business.

Both of these fix-ahead dishes are excellent. Tropical Pork Chop Bake, nestled in a bed of rice, uses canned pineapple and an envelope of brown gravy mix to achieve a beautiful flavor.

Savory Tuna Loaf combines canned tuna from the cupboard with bread crumbs and cheese to make an economical but delicious meatloaflike dish. An envelope of spaghetti sauce mix adds a final, savory Serve either of these dishes with cole slaw. buttered green beans, a frosted cake, and coffee, tea, or milk for a well-balanced and nourishing meal.

TROPICAL PORK CHOP BAKE l cup regular rice

4 to 6 pork shoulder chops Salt and pepper

l can (l-lb., 4-oz.) pineapple chunks l envelope (%-oz.) brown gravy mix l cup water

1/4 cup chopped green pepper Cook rice following directions on package. Brown pork chops; season with salt and pepper. Drain pineapple, saving 1/2 cup liquid. Combine the 1/2 cup liquid with contents of gravy mix envelope, water, green pepper, cooked rice, and pineapple. Spoon into shallow baking pan. Top with browned chops. Bake at 350 for 40 to 50 ninutes, until chops are tender-SAVORY TUNA LOAF

l'envelope (11/2-oz.) spaghetti sauce mix 11/2 cups milk

2 cans (7-oz. each) tuna, drained and flaked 4 cups soft bread crumbs I cup chopped celery 2 or 3 slices process american cheese

Stir together contents of sauce mix envelope and milk; add 1/2 cup of this mixture to egg and mix lightly. Stir in tuna, bread crumbs, and celery. Pack lightly into well-greased 9 x 5-inch loaf pan. Cut cheese in half; arrange on top of loaf. Bake at 400 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes. Heat remaining milk and sauce mix mixture to boiling in small saucepan; serve over sliced tuna loaf. 6 servings.

HAMBURGERS NEVER TASTED SO GOOD!

Lufkin News editor Joe Murray still receiving congratulations. (AP Laserphoto)

Pulitzer Prize in line of duty for newsmen

LUFKIN, Tex. (AP) — Lufkin News Editor Joe Murray says his back is getting sore from taking bows but he forgot to mention those red welts on his arm where he keeps pinching himself to make sure he's not dream-

Murray's dream, indeed the dream of all journalists, came true Monday when he found out the East Texas newspaper received the coveted Pulitzer Prize for its stories on a young Marine who died in boot camp during a mock bayonet drill.

"I keep thinking somebody is going to call back any moment to explain that it was all a mistake," said a grinning Murray. "Our award wasn't the Pulitzer Prize after all, but something called the Pleurisy Prize for our stories on the City-County Health Unit," Murray said from his tiny office.

Murray and reporter Ken Herman wrote some 36 stories on Pvt. Lynn McClure's death, which led to a presidential inquiry, a congressional investigation and eventually, modifications in some Marine Corps recruit training.

And it all started, Murray said, when J.A. Bryan, a Lufkin builder, walked into his office one morning and asked the paper to look into his nephew's death.

Murray, 36, and Herman, who has since quit his job to join The Associated Press in Dallas, discovered McClure, a high school dropout and a slow learner with a police record, had died of head injuries received during a mock bayonet fight conducted with heavy

Herman, a Brooklyn refuge who still has trouble understanding Texanese, was 21 when he began working on the story. Now, with a Pulitzer safely tucked under his belt, he's a bit worried about getting "caught up in that spiral."

"There are a lot of 40-and 50- yearold people around who are damned good and have never gotten any recognition," he said. "Listen, I'm going to AP to learn how to write...I don't want a desk job. I want to learn to write."

The paper received an invitation from the Pulitizer board to enter the series. Murray framed the letter and figured that's about as close as he would ever get to the dream.

When the series placed second in the Texas Associated Press Managing Editors (APME) contest, Murray quietly walked into his office and ripped the citation to shreds.

The disappointment was replaced by disbelief whn Dallas AP Bureau Chief Jim Mangan notified Murray of the Pulitizer. But fate has a way of humbling even the mighty.

Mangan's call came after Murray's paper had already gone to press. Every news sheet, radio and television station in the country was going to beat him on the announcement.

Murray and Herman were taking the award in stride.

Herman said his mother bought "6,000 copies of the New York Times" edition that announced the award. He is a graduate of Florida Atlantic.

"which sounds like a railroad, but is actually a state university."

He came to Lufkin after writing letters to 125 newspapers. "Ah, Brooklyn, Miami and Lufkin," Murray said. "A natural progres-

He submitted to interviews with newspapers and radio and television stations saying, "I am obliging the press because I remember all the nights I've gotten people out of bed with some dumb question."

Hoestenbach introduces measure

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A bill by Rep. John Hoestenbach of Odessa to include airport fuel salesmen as distributors under the motor fuel sales tax has been reported favorably out of subcommittee.

The Ways and Means Subcommittee of the House Committee on State Finance approved House Bill 2072 by Hoestenbach.

The bill would include "airport fixed-base operators" who sell fuel for airplanes under the definition of a distributor for motor fuel tax purposes.

Avoid being active at the wrong time

Some bridge players suffer from the delusion that it is necessary or wise to be active at all times. It is just as important to know when to put your head under the covers and let the storm pass you by.

When West led the six of spades South found himself in an active mood. He couldn't resist playing dummy's jack. East took the top spades and continued with the ten to force out dummy's queen.

South needed two hearts for his game, but East took the ace of hearts and the rest of his spades, defeating the contract.

SHOULD PLAY LOW

South should see that he must develop the hearts. Hence he can afford to lose three spade tricks — not four.

South can get what he wants by playing a low spade from dummy at the first trick. East gets a bargain since he can win that first trick with the eight, but then he can get only two other spade tricks. If East continues to play spades, he will give two spade tricks to the dummy.

If East shifts to diamonds at the second trick, South wins with the ace and leads hearts. East can take his ace of hearts and a total of three spade tricks, but nothing else. If East fails to take the spades, South cannot develop a spade trick but can make his game with four clubs, two diamonds and three hearts.

Vegetarian menu centers around potato dishes

oley News Service

Why not celebrate the delightful produce now available in markets with a vegetarian menu centered on a really splendid potato dish? Serve with asparagus, steamed carrots and a magnificent green salad or spinach salad for a marvelously filling meal.

One potato dish features Swiss cheese and Parmesan cheese layered between thin slices of potato, then baked. A second incorporates Swiss cheese and fresh tomatoes with a hint of tarragon. These are baked in muffin cups and can of course be used as a side dish for roast beef.

Yet a third lovely vegetarian entree is potatoes stuffed into green pepper shells, then baked until golden on top. They could also serve beautifully as a side dish for baked ham

About 700 persons are helping prove two University of Southern California professors' latest theory on losing weight: you can lose by mail.

Working through a correspondence course designed to help people change their eating patterns rather than just go on a diet, Mrs. Albert and Marlene Marston, a husband-wife team, use behavior modification and assertiveness training techniques to help those enrolled take off excess pounds.

Enrollment in the course began about a year ago, Marston said in an interview, and follow-up studies completed recently showed "results as good as any published report using behavior modification."

"The average loss is a pound per person per week. Of course people who are heavier lose a little more. And an encouraging finding is that in a six-month follow-up, people did not regain weight, but lost a little more." People from across the United States, Ireland and Germany were involved in the original research, he said.

The USC weight reduction course works through a weekly assignment by mail. The cost is $90.

Those enrolled keep a food diary and send this in to receive a weekly assignment and evaluation with personal comment from staff members.

Enrollment can be accomplished by writing to Drs. Marlene and Albert Marston, Psychological Research and Service Center, University of Southern California, 734 West Adams Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90007.

"We give the participants a step-by-step strategy to follow," Marston said. A psychology professor, he developed the program which both he and his wife followed to lose weight after traveling abroad and learning about a similar project in Munich, Germany.

'The control group learning behavior modification by mail there (in Munich) was doing as well or better than the people who came to the clinic," he said. "What we developed here was a do-it-yourself kind of approach. You look at your weight problem, understand it, and practice different alternatives.

'It's a correspondence course and we never see the people. They send us at first a history form with lots of information.

"Then each week for 13 weeks they get a lesson which describes some area of the problem, with assignments to do and a diary to keep for food and exercise intake, and observations on yourself which is then sent to us. Our staff goes over this, answers questions, makes suggestions and sends the next lesson. "Positive assertion is being able to ask for what you want. In our lesson on the family conference, for in-stance, you talk to family members about things like how they relate to your weight problem and your eating.

Maybe they bug you or nag you.
"You can ask for what you want; for them to compliment you when you

"Our culture trait of being less assertive than you want to be can make you feel bad about yourself. And a lot of people eat more when they feel bad about themselves.
"We talk about general assertiveness, plan a strategy for the person, and ask them to report back

"The vast majority of people enrolled in the course are women," he said, adding that a new course begins each month. "Fifty per cent of our overweight people are men, but women have more pressures to lose weight in our society.

"A diet is only a temporary aid at best. The course is aimed at slow, steady weight loss since crash diets are quickly regained. The goal is to learn self-control skills and how to eat in a natural, comfortable way that could be permanent." To lose weight, the psychologist advises keeping a diary, "which is very useful in knowing when and why you eat, and how much," and to slow down your eating process.

"Learn to enjoy your food more," he said.

Encouraging free trade puts President in bind

By ROBERT RENO

NEW YORK - The United States, which invented television and made it a worldwide cultural phenomenon, may soon be getting most of its boob tubes from a nation that a generation ago could only export cheap toys and Christmas tree ornaments.

It may also soon be getting most of its shoes, clothes and textiles from countries which 30 years ago didn't wear or know how to make western clothes, one more irony for the America that invented blue jeans for the world, created the synthetic revolution in fabrics, and where cotion was once king.

If you are a television assembler in Indiana, a shoe worker in Massachusetts or a garment industry worker in New York the prospect is upsetting.

The question of whether certain American industries can compete and whether they deserve or need government protection against their foreign competitors has suddenly turned out to be the most ticklish economic issue facing the new Carter ad-

It is ticklish because Carter is committed to both free trade and the moral leadership of the free world. He is also committed to the relief of domestic unemployment, a commitment which organized labor is determined to hold him to.

"The figures are indisputable," says an official of ports doubled last year. Clothing imports were up 60 per cent. Shoes were up a third.'

the American TV set market. This translates simply into lower sales for those American companies that survive and fewer jobs for American workers in these industries.

The domestic industries affected as well as the labor unions who represent their workers have a simple answer to the problem: import restrictions either in the form of import quotas or higher tariffs on specific foreign goods that will make them more expensive in the United States and therefore less competitive against American-made goods.

The hitch is that this would make things more expensive for consumers.

Opponents of import restrictions, who include most professional economists, make several points.

-Any nation, they argue, ends up with higher living standards overall by buying goods at the cheapest price wherever they are to be had even if this means that some people in that country will end up unemployed in the short run.

-Higher tariffs usually result directly in higher wholesale and retail prices and higher overall inflation rates at a time when government policy is directed the other way.

At least 6,000 visitors, 20 per cent more than turned out at a similar fair here last fall, have been drawn to this south China city by a series of hints from Peking of renewed foreign trade after the purge last October of an anti-trade faction in the Communist party.

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - Waves of congressional skepticism greeted President Carter's energy proposals Wednesday night, yielding an instant indication of the difficulties the presidential plan faces on Capitol Hill in the months ahead.

Much of the adverse reaction from congressmen centered on Carter's call for higher taxes on oil and gasoline and on the plan's lack of government incentives to increase domestic petroleum production.

Significantly, however, the critics represented diverse interests and viewpoints and did not necessarily constitute a cohesive bloc.

Rep. John Moss (D-Calif.), a member of the congressional bloc that is especially sensitive to consumer issues, said the President's program "looks like a very costly package to consumers.

Moss, a senior member of the House Commerce Committee which will consider portions of the Carter package, said the President's proposals would cost consumers $38 billion by 1978. "I have a feeling we are buying a pig in a poke, and I'm not certain what kind of poke it is....I'm quite skeptical."

Some business leaders also lodged quick complaints, but their targets were other aspects of Carter's proposals.

A third group, the environmentalists, generally praised the President's message, but some said it offered only partial answers to the energy problem.

One major citizens' group, Common Cause, quickly rallied behind Carter's' plan. Its chairman, John Gardner, said the program "requires sacrifices by everyone - yet each special interest is clawing away ...to eliminate its particular sacrifice.

'Let us stand now and say we are ready to take our share of the hardship and have no intention of letting special interests destroy the program," Gardner said. "The nation's future and the future of our children is at stake."

Even before Carter arrived in the crowded House chamber for his nationally televised address to a joint session of Congress, reaction was flowing from legislators' offices thanks to advance distribution of the text of his speech.

And while many members of Congress praised Carter for his courage and initiative, and while many found portions of the program they could support, there were clear signs that the President's proposals faced an uncertain future.

question that we will pass an energy policy act," and added: "I can anticipate parochialism but I hope the rest of the country will stick together."

Rep. Thomas L. Ashley, the Ohio Democrat expected to be named by O'Neill Thursday to head a select House committee to oversee the energy legislation, said the chance of a filibuster by senators who want price controls removed completely from oil and natural gas looms as the single biggest obstacle to Carter's package. And he said the President may have to take to the stump to sell his plan.

'There is no possibility of holding this together unless there's very concerted congressional leadership as well as White House leadership, Ashley told the Associated Press.

One senator who will have much to say about the shape of the final energy bill, Louisiana Democrat Russell Long, said, "The President should be admired for recommending something constructive ... and Congress ought to cooperate to the extent it can." Long would give no indication of his personal plans, but an aide said by the time an energy bill emerges "we could be talking about a completely different animal.

A senior member of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, Rep. James C. Corman (D-Calif.) said the proposal for higher gasoline taxes will be the hardest part for Carter to sell. Corman, whose San Fernando Valley district includes thousands of commuters, questioned whether higher gasoline taxes will reduce demand. He said cracking down on gas-guzzling cars "may be enough of a solution.

Congressmen from rural areas, whose constituents must drive long distances to work or shop, were harsh in their criticism of the gas tax plan. Rep. Louis Frey (R-Fla.) called it

"It isn't going to cut consumption," Frey said. "It puts an unfair burden on rural areas and it's going to hurt tourism. Rep. Don Bonker (D-Wash.) said "higher gasoline prices simply will not work." He said he was puzzled why "there is so little consideration of gasoline rationing as an alternative to higher prices." Rep. Paul Simon (D-Ill.), said he was willing "to vote a heavy tax on big gas guzzling cars but I am not willing to vote a tax on people who face a real struggle to pay their present gasoline bills."

Congressmen from oil and gas producing states generally joined petroleum industry spokesmen in criticizing Carter's plan for its failure to deregulate natural gas prices or some of the President's proposals "will no doubt be dropped or refined by Congress." Because no steps were proposed to increase production, he said, Carter's recommendations were 'therefore incomplete.'

A.V. Jones Jr., president of the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America, said Carter's plan "will aggravate rather than alleviate domestic petroleum shortages" because it would maintain price controls and impose new taxes.

He accused the President of reversing a campaign promise to work toward elimination of controls.

Carter's package, Jones said, "retreats to the worn, discredited policy of the past - increased government meddling with domestic energy production - the very policy which has created the situation we now face.'

The Carter plan received a warmer reaction in some quarters. Nine environmental and conservations groups, ranging from the Sierra Club to the Environmental Defense Fund, issued a joint statement hailing it as "fundamentally fair and far-sighted" and declaring that it deserves the support of Congress and the public.

Here's list of major energy plan contents

WASHINGTON (AP) - Here are some of the major proposals in the energy plan President Carter outlined Wednesday night in an address to a joint session of Congress.

-A standby gasoline tax increase, starting at a nickel a gallon and rising to 50 cents after 10 years if gasoline consumption fails to decline.

-A tax rising to a maximum $2,488 by 1986 on each gas-guzzling car, coupled with a maximum rebate of $499 for cars getting better gas mileage.

homeowners who insulate their homes or take other steps to make them more energy-efficient. -Tax credits of up to $2,000 for homeowners who install solar heating

-Tax credits of up to $410 for and cooling devices. -Mandatory efficiency standards on new household appliances.

-Forbidding utilities from charging lower rates to customers using large amounts of electricity or

-A new tax on crude oil that could raise the price of gasoline seven cents beyond the gas tax increase.

-Rebating money collected through increased taxes on oil and gas to compensate low income families. The rebates would likely start at $15 and rise to $25.

-Permitting domestic crude oil prices to rise to the current world price, about $13 a barrel, a move designed to provide a profit incentive for the discovery of new oil reserves. and raising the sale price of so-called old oil from developed reserves.

-Continuing federal control of natural gas prices, but permitting a rise in price from $1.42 per thousand cubic feet to about $1.75 per thousand cubic feet.

-Mandatory conversion for industry from natural gas to coal by

-Faster licensing for nuclear reactors, but canceling plans for so-called fast breeder reactors.

Business leaders attack cost of Carter program.

NEW YORK (AP) - Businessmen and energy producers, worried about how to comply with President Carter's new energy policy, have focused their criticism on how much the program will cost.

The program offers billions for taxes but scarcely a penny for supply," David H. Foster, executive vice president of the Natural Gas Supply Committee, which represents gas suppliers. "It is little more than an extension of the bankrupt policies of 23 years of federal price management."

David Roderick, president of U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest steelmaker, said raising enough money to make the changeover from oil and natural gas to coal will be "the greatest problem facing American

Among the costs are a $20 billion price tag for the coal industry if it is to open new mines by 1985.

Carter talk prompts look at promises

WASHINGTON — Following are some of the statements on energy matters President Carter made during his election campaign:

'There is no need to deregulate the price of old oil and natural gas. The price of all domestic oil should be kept below that of OPEC oil."

-Speech, Washington Press Club, July 11, 1975
"I will work with the Congress, as the Ford Administration has been unable to do, to deregulate new natural gas. The decontrol of producer prices for new natural gas would provide an incentive for gas operators and attract needed capital."

The problem is money! In the past, adequate funds always have been made available through voluntary contributions from individuals and organizations. But such has not been the case this time. A minimum of $10,000 is needed for the 1977 project, but to date only about $4,000 have been received by the Human Relations Council, which sponsors and coordinates the program. And this money has come from only a handful of people.

If this is to continue as a community-wide program, financial assistance should come from hundreds of individuals, contributing in accordance with theirfinancial abilities. In other words, small gifts are needed, and appreciated, along with the larger Fortyfive homes have been selected by a special committee for repairs of one kind or another in the upcoming project. All labor is volunteer, with much of the materials provided at reduced rates. More volunteer workers also are needed to do this massive repair job in a single day.

The repairs will make it possible for the elderly homeowner to remain within his own home for years longer than otherwise would be possible.

This is a "taking care of our own" program at its very best, with no government funds sought or accepted.

ART BUCHWALD:

Lust in the spring perfectly natural

WASHINGTON - I have decided to write a column today that probably no one is interested in. It is on the subject of lust! After what many people have called the worst winter in years, spring has finally come, people have discarded their heavy coats and boots and the voice of lust can be heard throughout the land.

I was walking through Lafayette Park with Bradley just the other day, and I said to him as our eyes darted from one breathless vision to another, "Let me ask you something, Bradley. Do you have lust in your heart at this time of the year?".

Bradley said, "That's a dumb question. Of course I do. What else would you have in your heart in the spring?" "I do, too," I admitted. "I think I have more lust in my heart at this very moment than I had during the months of November, December and January

"Do you think they know we have lust in our hearts?" I asked Bradley.

"Who is they?" he asked.
"All of them," I said, sweeping my hand out to indicate everyone who was wearing a miniskirt, a tight sweater or a see-through blouse. "The question is are they provoking our lust on purpose?"

"I think so," Bradley said. "I believe that when they get up in the morning and select their outfits for the day they say to themselves, 'I hope this will make someone lust

"I don't think it's that planned," I said. "I believe it's a subconscious

we're dirty old men. "Or worse," said Bradley, "she'll pretend she thinks we're dirty old men, but in her heart she'll feel very pleased that we would bother to notice.'

"They're more devious in the springtime, aren't they?" I said. 'Spring is the most cruel time of all," Bradley said. "There are days when I don't even want to leave the house because I know I'm going to lust all day. "I'm like that, too," I admitted. "I don't want to get out of bed in the morning because I know it's going to be tough on my heart. "Do you think women lust after men in their hearts the way we lust after women?" I asked my friend.

"I'm sure of it," he said. "The only difference is we don't provoke them by wearing skimpy clothes. It's a different kind of lust - but it's still lust."

WASHINGTON - Sen. Hubert Humphrey is as irrepressible as spring outcroppings of welcome green grass or unwelcome fussing over taxes. The man simply won't be kept down, by cancer or whatever. So, despite the wan look chemotherapy inflicts on him, Humphrey, 65, braves relentless cameras and Senate duties

The public worries about this familiar face, however, and the question is often asked, "How is Hubert mphrey?" The simple answer is that he is fighting the statistics on cancer; that if any soul in the republic can defeat this tyrant it is old H.H.H., and that he bounces around the Senate as always, full of beans and rasping optimism

He's back on his 12 to 14 hour days, offering solemn advice on morning TV programs, attending congres-sional leadership breakfasts at the White House and scurrying to committee meetings. Minnesota groups insist they must see him, so he does that in the afternoon, and occasionally he attends one of those dreaded evening receptions.

As usual, he pants for humanity. He proposed a bill to help lift Egypt out of poverty. He pushes for a new rural ng program. He frets about Africa, and he wants the Food for Peace Program re-formed. This week he met with the National Assn. of Crime Victims Compensation Board, which means he wants money to be paid to poor souls victimized by Beneath this show of vigor and ebullience is the realization by Humsatisfactory manner is another amazing aspect. Citizens banded together, perhaps as never before, in coping with the tremendous problem which had struck their community all of a sudden - with little warning. Congressional auditors probing E-Systems Inc.

By ROBERT L. JACKSON The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - Congressional auditors have opened a new inquiry into the sale of military radios by E-Systems Inc., a Texas "electronics warfare" firm already under scrutiny in the Korean influence-buying in-

Auditors from the General Accounting Office, according to congressional sources, have begun to reexamine an army contract modification favorable to E-systems. The modification was made at a time when Army and company officials reportedly had a close relationship.

The Department of Justice is considering a separate investigation. Benjamin Civiletti, chief of the department's criminal division, said he had asked the House Government Operations Committee to "furnish us with certain information it may have in its possession.

The furor over E-Systems revolves around its sale of military field radios to the U.S. Army, the South Korean Army and other overseas customers in 1973 and 1974.

The Korean sales, which attracted the attention of the Securities and Exchange Commission, resulted in payment of more than $1 million in commissions to two Korean consultants in Los Angeles. The SEC has said in court papers that it is seeking to determine if such funds were paid "in the form of bribes" to members of Congress or military officials without disclosure to E-Systems stockholders.

The Dallas-based company, which is publicly held and had $320 million in sales last year, has denied knowledge of any wrongdoing. The two consultants, Howard P. Lee and Jong Ho Yoo, have declined to answer questions of SEC attorneys, citing their Fifth Amendment protection against possible self-incrimination.

E-Systems sold $32.7 million worth of radios to the Korean government and $11 million to the U.S. Army, some of which apparently went to other allied countries. The firm also has had a long-standing relationship with the Central Intelligence Agency.

government reports show. GAO investigators, according to Rep. Gerry E. Studds (D-Mass.) and other sources, are looking into the U.S. Army's decision in late 1974 to increase E-Systems' contract to $11 million from its original $3 million without competitive bidding.

The Army did so despite a contrary recommendation at the time by the GAO. The GAO had ruled that Bristol Electronics of New Bedford, Mass., was a lower bidder and deserved the Subsequently the House Government Operations Committee, after a field investigation and hearings, said in a written report: "The many unusual circumstances (of the case) cannot help but arouse suspicions that someone in DOD (Department of Defense) was intent upon favoring E-

Although E-Systems is head-quartered in his home state, Rep. Jack Brooks (D-Texas), the committee chairman, said in a statement that the contract "seems to smack of favoritism and predetermination.'

At the time of the Army's controversial actions, Eugene E. Berg was assistant secretary of the Army for installations and logistics. overseeing the office which awards such contracts. Berg later became a vice president of E-Systems.

He was succeeded in his Army post by Harold L. Brownman, a former vice president of E-Systems.

E-Systems spokesman John Kumpf said the company has heard nothing from the GAO, but "as far as we're concerned it's old stuff." Kumpf said the Berg and Brownman shifts were totally unrelated to the contract.

In a letter last week to Sen. Edward W. Brooke (D-Mass.), which The Los Angeles Times obtained Tuesday, Clifford L. Alexander Jr., the new

Secretary of the Army, said:

"From the information I have been provided, I would agree that the Army did exercise poor judgment in the application of procurement management procedures."

Alexander said the Army would not, however, try to "redress past actions" by awarding the rival Massachusetts firm a noncompetitive contract, as Brooke had suggested.

Brooke, in his letter to Alexander. called the E-Systems case "the worst subversion of government procure-ment regulations I have ever

Yantis changes mind

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) Hugh C. Yantis Jr., executive director of the Texas Water Quality Board, said today that he now does not oppose legislation that would consolidate the three Texas water agencies.

Yantis has been outspoken previously in his opposition to the consolidation, which was recommended by the Hobby-Clayton government economy commission.

"Every major recommendation that I had offered has been accepted and every major recommendation by other state agencies has, I believe, been accepted and, as the bill presently is drafted, I have no professional reason to oppose it-and I do not do so.

Yantis said he spoke personally and not of-ficially for the Texas Water Quality Board.

Yantis also noted there has been speculation that he might head the combined agencies.

"This is only speculation-it happen and it may not happen," he said. "No one has made me any promises or implied any promises in this matter whatsoever."

The legislation concerns the Texas Water Quality Board, the Texas Water Rights Commission and the Texas Water Development Board

Carter claims program will increase output

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - President Carter claimed Wednesday that his comprehensive energy program would have only a small inflationary impact on the economy and would actually increase national output and jobs. Officials predicted there would be 100,000 extra jobs in the economy in 1985 as a result of massive capital investment expenditures to convert from the use of petroleum-based products to other fuels.

Their estimates Wednesday did not take into account the impact of a proposed "stand-by" gasoline tax. But even if this tax - which could go as high as 50 cents a gallon -were triggered, the administration said that Gross National Product "would still increase and the inflation impact would still be small."

While many non-government sources also said that the broad effect of the program on the economy would be small, assuming that a rebate of the new taxes could be made workable, they disdagreed on the direction.

Typically, private economists predicted that Carter's program would cause the economy to contract mildly, rather than expand. And they see a somewhat larger inflationary

Former Economic Council member Otto Eckstein, president of Data Resources, Inc. - whose computer model has been used by the Carter administration for its basic projection - said in a telephone interview that the administration's estimates were too optimistic.

Eckstein said that the ad-ministration had failed to take into account two major factors. First, 'the auto industry is being asked to achieve the kind of technological breakthrough they haven't achieved since they discovered mass production in increasing miles-pergallon of U.S. cars."

And second, although the economy would benefit from new industrial investment for conversion purposes, 'the whole complexity of doing business for a time has been increased. Those fellows (in Washington) never consider the uncertainty factor."

Thus, in contrast to the administration estimate that GNP would increase by 0.7 per cent in 1978 because of the program, Eckstein predicts a decline of 0.2 per cent in that year, accelerating to a decline of 0.8 per cent in 1980.

Reaction makes clear President faces stiff battle on proposals

By JOHN M. GOSHKO The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The reaction to President Carter's energy proposals Wednesday night made clear that he faces some stiff fights with special interest groups if he's going to see the program become law in the form outlined by his administration.

General support for the President's call for immediate action on the energy front came from almost everyone: members of Congress, governors of states, leaders of industry and labor, spokesmen for consumers and environmental

But, when it came to addressing the specific parts of the program, most expressed reservations that could strip the program of its essential

The general tone of the reaction was summed up by John Gardner, Chairman of Common Cause, who said: "The President's energy program requires sacrifices by everyone - yet each special interest is clawing away at the program to eliminate its particular sacrifice."

That was most immediately apparent in Congress, where reaction ranged from outright hostility from Republican members to the guarded response of Democrats on controversial points like stiff taxes on the sale of gasoline. The Speaker of the House, Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. (D-Mass.), reiterated past support for the aims of the plan. But when reporters reminded O'Neill that Carter's speech had evoked few outbursts of applause, the Speaker conceded, "He's going to have to give us some help along the line."

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Bryd (D-W.Va.) was even more cautious, saying only, "I hope all of us would give it the consideration it deserves. There is always time down the road to say no. Several other prominent Democrats in both houses focused on the gasoline tax proposal in terms that were summarized by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) "It hits the average worker too hard," he

Perhaps the clearest warning of what lies ahead was sounded by Rep. Al Ullman (D-Ore.), chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, which will have a decisive effect on shaping the bill. He said, "Parts of the plan will no doubt be revised in the interests of workability and equity.

On the Republican side, Rep. John J. Rhodes of Arizona, the House minority leader, seemed to speak for many members of his party when he said that, aside from Carter's call for a crash program of home and business insulation, he didn't think Eddy gets much of the program.

Rhodes attacked the gasoline tax. called Carter's plan for heating millions of homes by solar energy "a pipe dream," and criticized the program's "lack of emphasis on increasing the energy supply' blueprint for "now growth" in the

William Brock, chairman of the Republican National Committee, sounded a similar note. He called the plan "a prescription that will result in inflation, reduced economic growth and loss of jobs. It has no sense of vision for the future."

The proposals drew a variety of reactions from the governors of states, which have been given different positions in the energy equation as the result of their geographic locations and their respective energy resources.

Democratic Gov. Edwin W. Edwards of Louisiana, a major oilproducing state, also criticized Carter's failure to say anything "about producing more" and called the plan "an unproductive program that is neither fair nor effective.

By contrast, Democratic Gov. John (Jay) Rockefeller of West Virginia, a major coal producer, was impressed by Carter's call for a diversion to coal by industry. He termed the program "fair and realistic" and said, "He has asked us to change our values."

James Thompson, Republican governor of Illinois, applauded Carter's plan to rebate part of the gasoline tax to the states as "an encouraging note to all 50 governors. And Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, whose state is heavily dependent on overseas oil imports, enthusiastically welcomed the President's speech as "an extraordinary address" pointing the way to a fairer nationwide sharing of energy burdens.

Among businessmen, spokesmen for the housing, steel and textile industries all applauded the President's call for conservation. But many industry sources, particularly those in Potential under way;

The most skittish business reaction came from the auto industry, which made clear its concern about the plan's call for tax penalties to force buyers away from large "gasguzzler" cars. Henry L. Duncombe Jr., chief economist for General Motors, warned that government attempts to force the manufacture of cars unattractive to consumers would trigger a nationwide recession.

However, Roy D. Chapin Jr., chairman of American Motors, which specializes in small cars and which has been experiencing slumping sales, said that "any energy program designed to save gas and direct people to smaller cars is going to help American Motors.'

Spokesmen for unions seemed concerned about the possible adverse effects on employment in industries like automobiles. They also were hostile to the gasoline tax, which was described by George Poulin, vice president-elect of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, as "anything but

Three consumer and environmental groups associated with Ralph Nader issued a joint statement calling the Carter plan "a big improvement over prior presidential energy policies." But they also criticized the program for making concessions they claimed would unfairly reward producers with excessive profits and for failing to seek ways of making big oil com-

In some respects, the most interesting comment came from Frank Zarb, who had been the energy czar of President Ford's administration and who had fought unsuccessfully to get an energy program through

"It all looks familiar," he said. "I don't see how I can be critical. because so far I haven't seen anything new. It's the same program.'

Zarb predicted, though, that the Carter program might reap the benefit of the two years of controversy engendered by the Ford administration's previous efforts.

"When we introduced our program in 1975, we were like two ships passing in the night," he said of Congress. "But Carter has the benefit of those two years of debate and a lot more

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

1814 1916 1416

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market was mixed today, making no clear-cut initial response to President Carter's energy package.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 4.41 at 938.18, but gainers and losers were about evenly balanced in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed Eldon A. Grimm at Birr,

Wilson & Co. noted that investors had had considerable advance notice on most of the Carter package.

"A lot of it was leaked ou ahead of time," he said, "and a lot is going to be up to Congress. This is so complicated and so involved, it's going to be debated for a long About half of the Dow's decline was accounted for by Eastman Kodak, which tumbled 31/4 to 651/4 in active trading. The company said it would reduce the workforce on its instant film by about 150 people.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was off .16 at 54.54. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index lost .24 to 112.96. Volume on the Big Board stepped up to 11.67 million shares by noontime, against 9.17 million at the same point Wednesday. Stocks with Alaskan oil interests gained ground. 1.oandard Oil of Ohio climbed 3 to 88, and Atlantic Richfield was ahead % at Eugene Nowak, petroleum industry analyst at Blyth Eastman Dillon, said investors found Carter's proposals for pricing of oil from the North Slope favorable for the profit outlook on that oil. He also noted, however, that Congress is still to be heard from on the subject.

Cotton

NEW YORK (AP) - Cotton futures No. 2 NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 were mixed at midday. Future prices traded in a narrow range in light dealings. The market lacked any new developments, brokers said.

The average prices for strict low middling 11-16 inch spot cotton advanced 115 points to 72.84 cents a pound Tuesday for the 10 leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Midday Prices were 20 a bale lower to 65 cents a bale higher than the previous close. May 78.08, Jul 76.00 and Oct 72.85.

Welcome back Bulldogs!! We hope everybody had a great vacation, even if you were trying to write a term paper in three days, or on a European tour. Some drama students and others traveled to New York City for a five day paradise. They attended plays, museums, and toured other noted attractions. While some students were East, Mrs. Curry, the French teacher, and some students went to Europe for the vacation. Included in their tour were Brussels and Paris while everybody tried to soak up all the sight seeing they could. Although no one was ready to come home, Monday came too soon as the familiar faces made their way through the school doors. We hope everyone enjoyed their Easter egg hunts and that the Bunny was good to all.

During the holidays, our MHS netters were in Abilene for individual district competition. This Friday Cary Garton and Vicki Vasichek will be in Lubbock fighting for regional titles. The two winners from this region will go on to state competition. In the boys division Jeff Bramlett and Kirk Farquer captured the boys doubles title and will compete the following week. Good Luck ya'll, see you at State!!

Also in Abilene was our wing-footed track team. Despite rain, our boys performed their usual good work. Good going fellas!

Over their vacation the Bulldog baseball team faced the Lee Rebs in exciting, close game. Although the Rebs out scored the Bulldog by 10-8, the guys are looking good and ready for action!

Notice that all the smart people have been absent Tuesday and Wednesday. Well, they have been busy taking the tests to see who will be our next valedictorian and salutatorian. Hope all those countless hours of studying pay off!!

Mr. Socialite, Miss Goatroper, and Biggest Mouth—these and other dubious awards have been the main topics covered in your third periods. We'll find out the insulting?, flattering?, results at he Senior Breakfast, May 3. All seniors be sure to at-

Graduate enjoys catty business

WICKENBURG, Ariz. (AP) - Phil Reinhardt, a 31-year-old engineering graduate from the University of Oklahoma, is engaged in a catty business here. With his partner, Larry Johnson, 24, he mines and Reinhardt said he stumbled upon the vein of a rhyoilte-like material - a brittle white rock formed by volcanic action - while checking out a silver mine in New Mexico three years ago. "I wanted to get into something adventurous and I talked to a geologist there who told me about this vein. The first sample of the stuff looked like cat litter and I decided to market it as that," he said. The material, he said, absorbs more ammonia than any leading brands of cat litter. Ammonia is the major source of odor in cat urine, he added. "I didn't know what I wanted to do with my life when I went to Wickenburg and found the mine. A lot of people laughed because they couldn't relate to cat litter. People just don't think much about where cat litter comes from. But it really got into my blood," he explained.

When you revolutionize car technology for openers, what do you do for encores?

When we introduced the Rabbit back in 1975, the public and automotive experts acclaimed it as the car of the future.

The engine sat sideways to leave a lot more space for passengers. It had front wheel drive for greater tracking stability and more efficient transfer of power. It had rack and pinion steering to give the driver precise feel of the road. It had negative steering roll radius for controlled stopping in the event of a front tire blow-out.

And that's just a partial list of the engineering innovations that went into the 1975 Rabbit. But we didn't stop there.

In 1976, we introduced a new Rabbit with dozens of changes inside. For example, we simplified the radiator and coolant recovery system, we improved flow-through ventilation and the automatic shift console and, in addition, we increased engine displacement from 1.5 ftr. to 1.6.

And while the '77 Rabbit still looks a lot like the '75 Rabbit, underneath there's a world of difference.

One of the most important is the addition of C.I.S. fuel injection. It boosts the engine's output by about 10% to 78 H.P. (California models—78 H.P.). And while that may not sound like much, it's enough to get the Rabbit hopping from 0-50 mph in a mere 7.7 seconds (California models—7.9 seconds). That's faster than the Jaguar XJ61, and even sports cars like the Alfa-Romeo Alfetta.*

C.I.S. helped the Rabbit deliver 37 mpg highway, 24 mpg city with standard transmission, according to 1977 EPA estimates. Of course, your actual mileage may vary, depending on your driving habits, the condition of your car and optional equipment.

optional equipment.

What CIS fuel injection and all the differences What CIS fuel injection and all the differences isted below really add up to is Rabbit's unique combination of overall economy, performance and interior roominess.

See for yourself. Visit your nearest VW dealer and test drive the 1977 Rabbit. You've got to drive it to believe it.

If you're VW, you get on with making a great car greater.

Improved front seat belt retractors. (2-door only) Neatly hidden and design to keep out dirt and dust.
