Demos unite on tax issue

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate Democrats are determined to back President Carter's economic plan, turning down repeated Republican efforts to hand Americans immediate cuts in their income taxes.

Carter has insisted on holding any tax cuts until later, when he plans to offer his own plan for a comprehensive restructuring of tax laws. He has threatened to veto any immediate tax cuts tacked on to his economic proposal.

Still, Republicans spent Wednesday trying to get their Democratic colleagues to accept two amendments that would have provided workers with across-the-board individual tax

Fire threat stymies well shutoff efforts

By JOHN VINOCUR

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) -American-led troubleshooters trying to save the North Sea from further massive pollution failed in three attempts today to choke off the runaway Bravo offshore oil well. Fearing a fire threat. Norway ordered a temporary halt in all production in the area.

Officials of the Phillips Petroleum Co., the well's owner, said they did not know when or how the "blowout" specialists would try again to cap the

"It's a setback, and any setback is serious," Robert Archambeault, Phillips director of engineering for the midsea Ekofisk oil field, said at a news conference. "It certainly doesn't leave the situation without a possibility for recovery."
Norwegian Industry Minister Bjert-

mar Gjerde, citing safety concerns, ordered a temporary total halt in all production at surrounding platforms in the Ekofisk field in the middle of Norwegian officials, who fear the possibility of a seaborne fire in the field, said 6½ million gallons of crude oil had spilled into the North Sea since the well blew out last Friday.

Archambeault said that a "blowout preventer" had mistakenly been placed upside down on the wellhead before last week's accident.

"It's a good possibility that the well could have been sealed if the blowout preventer had not been installed in an inverted position sometime last week," he said.

Phillips officials also said the half moon-shaped steel discs called "blind rams" that were used today to try to close off the well had been tested to withstand only 4,000 pounds per square inch of pressure, but that the from the seabed was estimated at 4,350 pounds of pressure per square

The crew, stationed on a nearby barge, boarded the Bravo rig at dawn in good weather to begin what they hoped would be the final phase of the capping operation. The rig is situated 170 miles southwest of Norway.

The seven-man team used hydraulic pressure to put the rams in place over the spurting wellhead. The rams held back the oil for a few seconds each time, but then they burst open under pressure of the gas that is pushing the oil up from 10,000

There were no injuries during the procedure, which was described as one of the riskiest in the entire capping process because of the possibility that sparks from the steel rams might ignite the gas and oil

Archambeault, of Dayton, Ohio had told reporters Wednesday night that if the machinery used today failed, the crew might try to winch a four-ton capping device over the gusher. The president of Phillips Petroleum Norway, Gordon Goering, rejected

HUD spokesman says 'no chance' for city request

By LARRY SUTHERLAND

Spokesmen in the Dallas district office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development say there is virtually no chance of Midland receiving $946,000 in Community Development Block Grant money for fiscal year 1978 without city acceptance of an estimated $66,000 rental subsidy assistance program.

Community Development money is used to aid residents of low- and moderate-income sections of Midland

The Midland City Council Tuesday voted to file an application with HUD for the $946,000 — but flatly rejected taking the rental subsidy. The rental subsidy is provided under Section 8, Title II of the Housing and Community Development Act. Leo Garrett, director of Community Development program for the Dallas office, said the city is "either going to take Section 8 or they aren't going to get the damn money" from Com-munity Development funds.

The city has twice before refused to accept rental assistance as part of its application for Community Development money. The Dallas office recommended denial of Community Development money, but the department in Washington, D.C., acceded to the city's request

Garrett said the department let the city have the funds the first year because the program was just getting started. The funds were approved by default, Garrett said, because the department took no negative action within a required 75-day period.

The Community Development funds were approved last year because the city had a housing rehabilitation program in the grant request, and this was considered adequate to meet requirements for housing assistance, Garrett added.

But this year there is a new secretary of Housing and Urban Development, Patricia Roberts Harris, who sent a telegram recently to the Dallas office making known her homeowners, which the city has agreed to, and renters, which the city has not agreed to.

Garrett said the telegram clearly states the need for the city to use Section 8 money or provide rental assistance with the city's own money. "The secretary is taking a hard-nose position," Garrett said. Garrett said City of Midland will receive a letter soon revealing the telegram's stipulations.

Development representative for Midland, said Community Development fund applications must

U.S., Cuba gain accord on fishing

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States and Cuba have set preliminary maritime boundaries between the two nations and reached an agreement that will allow Cuban fishermen to take surplus catches within 200 miles of the American shoreline.

Terms were reached in two rounds of talks in New York and Havana and a joint announcement was issued today by the State Department.

Details of agreements between the two countries, both of which have adopted 200-mile fishing limits, were not immediately disclosed.

The boundary agreement was needed because Cuba is only 90 miles off the U.S. coast. The fisheries agreement brings Cuba in line with several other nations, including the Soviet Union, which regularly fish near the U.S. coast and have applied for permission to catch specified numbers of fish within the zone.

Zane Grey fans gather at dry watering hole

ORLA - Just another Saturday afternoon was slipping by when J. M. Darnell pulled his pickup truck to a stop at Wes Phillips's filling station. does it often — stops for some neigh-borly talk at this sparsely-settled desert spot in far West Texas.

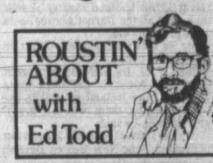

The place is a watering hole, although there's not a drop of drinking water naturally flowing hereabouts. It has to be hauled in. Phillips does that.

Darnell was bringing his friend some of that stuff that watering-hole conversation is made of - a handful of Western paperbacks. A novel or so by Zane Grey was in

Darnell sauntered into the service station office and handed Phillips the books. He was pleased. Good reading there, both agreed. Together, they've read about everything Grey ever wrote. "I knew that man personally before he died," said Phillips, who wasn't bragging or name-dropping. Mayors don't do that. Phillips is the mayor, et al, of Orla, population 23, by his count

Outside, a slight breeze was stirring around in the cool warmness of early spring. Inside, it was warmer; the breeze was shut out.

Time to go. Darnell is an oilfield pumper, and he was heading back to Eunice, N.M., his home for the past 43 years. The day's work was behind

His departure was delayed by a curious sort from Midland. They struck up a conversation.

"I used to push tools at Hadacol Corner," Darnell said of the oilfield in the Spraberry Trend southeast of Midland. That was years ago. While working at that Upton County site, Darnell said he ran into another Darnell, a fellow called "Big Ed." He was wearing a badge.

J. M. Darnell said he told "Big Ed" Darnell, the Midland County sheriff then, that all the Darnells hereabouts were probably kin.

Big Ed said that he doubted that he was any kin to him. Then, J. M. Darnell told the sheriff that "way back" in the 1800s some Darnells from Ireland set sail to the States. One of them was his great-grandfather, he said.

Committee hears reports on projects

The Midland County Committee on Aging heard reports on projects for senior citizens at its Wednesday

The congregate meals program, to give senior citizens meals in groups, is scheduled for review in Austin May 20, committee member Elmer Burrall said. The kitchen addition at the Senior Citizens Center in Odessa has been completed and equipment is being installed.

Reports were received on mass transoportation, activities for Senior Citizens Month in May and a hotline for senior citizens coordinated by the Department of Public Welfare.

Among activities for May is an open house at Midland College May 6 and a showcase and fair May 13 at Dellwood Plaza. At the fair, senior citizens will sell hand made crafts.

The committee will tour Hillcrest Manor May 25. The facility includes low-rent apartments for senior citizens and is under construction.

Applications for apartments will be accepted, beginning June 1. The committee is considering providing assistance to persons moving into the apartments.

Casa de Amigos will hold a free medical health clinic Wednesday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at 928 N.

have acceptable housing assistance programs, which means aid for renters. "If other sources were available they could be utilized, but it is generally recognized that Section 8 is the only way" for a city like Midland.

The city's $946,000 application now will be forwarded to the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission for routine review and then will be forwarded to the Dallas office.

HUD - at all levels - will then have 75 days in which to review the application, and if the national office does not take direct action to turn the funds down, then it is approved, Brown said.

Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. has voiced support for the Community Development program, but is adamantly opposed to Section 8.

"I object to it in principle," Angelo said, and if the federal government insists on forcing Section 8 with Community Development, "then the community would be best served by telling them to keep the whole thing."

Angelo said the rental subsidy program falls far short of providing adequate assistance to low income persons. "I don't think it is fair to the people because to a large extent it (rental subsidy) provides a disincentive to the people who get it" from improving their financial condition.

He said that as the recipient's income increases, their subsidy decreases.

The only councilman to agree to HUD's demand for including Section 8 with the Community Development application was Martin NeilI, who will be leaving office soon.

The Community Development application includes a city allocation of $220,000 for housing rehabilitation, and Angelo said this should be adequate to meet HUD demands for housing assistance. It only addresses the problems encountered by homeowners and does not affect renters, however.

Other CD allocations approved by the council include $310,000 for the paving and curbing program, $114,000 for park improvements, $25,000 for city code enforcement, $30,000 for clearing out weedy lots and demolition of vacant buildings, $56,000 for planning and management, $28,000 for administration and $23,000 for contingency.

From October 1976 through September, the city has been allocated $576,000 in Community Development

The city recently started using $160,000 of that for housing rehabilitation and approved $135,000 for street paving.

Annual rodeo slated for June

BIG SPRING - The four performances of the annual Big Spring Rodeo and Cowboy Reunion will be June 22 to 25 in the Rodeo Bowl.

Tommy Steiner will produce the show again this year, said Charlie Creighton, rodeo board of directors president.

Quail Dobbs, a rodeo clown of Coahoma, again will be featured at the rodeo, which attracts some of the top cowboys in the nation.

The interior of this house on South Marshall Street recently was renovated with Community Development funds. Such funds to continue housing rehabilitation, street paving and other improvements for low- and moderate-income persons beyond September are in jeopardy. (Staff Photo )

Measure would require disclosure of income

By WALTER PINCUS
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Top federal officials including judges, flag-rank military officers and senior FBI employes would be required by law to make annual public disclosure of their income and net worth under a bill introduced in the Senate this

Sponsored by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.) and Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.) the measure is patterned after disclosure provisions recently adopted by the Senate and House for members of Congress and their top Chances for passage are considered good because Congress has already voted similar rules for itself and President Carter has supported the concept. Nonetheless, some vocal opposition is expected from both civil servants and judges who traditionally have opposed making their personal finances public.

The purpose of the law, which would also apply to the legislative branch, is to have a single, uniform public financial disclosure standard for the entire government. The President, according to White House Counsel Robert Lipshutz, plans to submit his own public disclosure bill "within the next week or so". It will be "compatible" with the Ribicoff-Percy measure, Lipshutz said Wednesday.

President Carter had planned shortly after taking office to issue his own executive order requiring public financial disclosure by executive branch officials. It was held up when the Justice Department advised the White House that such an order violate the federal privacy act. As drafted, the Ribicoff-Percy bill also would restructure the Civil Service Commission and rename it the Civil Service and Ethics Commission.

An ethics division would be established within the commission and would have its own presidentially appointed director who would administer and enforce the disclosure law and any ethics code for the executive branch.

The bill would require an unprecedented amount of public financial disclosure by all federal judges, civil servants beginning at the rank of GS-16 and military officers from brigadier general and rear admiral on up.

Those covered would have to report

-The amount and source of all earned income received over $100

-All unearned income, such as dividends, rents interest and royalties, by category of value. -All gifts received of $100 or more or, if transportation or food and lodging, over $250.

-All assets valued at $1,000 or

-All financial transactions of $1,000 or more involving stocks, business properties or real estate.

-Any liabilities of $2,500 or more. If a spouse's income were $100 or more, the identity of the employer but not the amount received also have to

Under an existing executive order, civil servants of GS-16 and above already file financial statements within their agency or department. But that same order requires those reports to be kept confidential.

Defense Department officials also file detailed income reports with the general counsels of the respective services. Those reports, too, are kept confidential.

WASHINGTON - AFL-CIO President George Meany urged President Carter to reconsider his minimum wage position Wednesday on behalf of a broad-based coalition that is campaigning for a higher wage floor than the administration wants.

Meany's appeal came as the House labor standards subcommittee marks time on proposed minimum wage legislation in hopes that the White House will signal a willingness to compromise.

Thus far, sources said, there have been no signals. The newly formed Coalition for a Fair Minimum Wage, ranging from civil rights groups and the National Organization for Women to the AFL-CIO, Teamsters and other union groups, reflects a change in the go-it-alone strategy that contributed to the AFL-CIO's defeat on the construction site picketing bill in Congress earlier this year.

The AFL-CIO regrouped for the minimum wage fight after defeat of the picketing bill and Carter's decision to support raising the minimum wage from $2.30 to $2.50 an hour, with future increases pegged to 50 per cent of average manufacturing wages.

The AFL-CIO has been pushing for a $3 minimum. with future increases equivalent to 60 per cent of manufacturing wages. Pending legislation calls for $2.85 and 60 per cent.

quality 'down'

WASHINGTON (AP) -The quality of recruits entering the Army during the past three months fell to the lowest level in at least a year, and if the trend continues it could lead to recruitment of more women. A high school diploma is a main standard of quality for the armed services. But figures obtained from Pentagon manpower officials show that only 47 per cent of the Army's recruits in January through March were high school graduates.

This is about 9 per cent below the Army's minimum objective and well under levels reported by the Marines, Navy and Air Force.

The continued downward trend in the Army's recruit quality seems likely to fuel a debate over continuation of the all-volunteer concept.

Some Congress members, including Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, contend the draft should be restored. Defense Secretary Harold Brown disagrees.

Army officials, who blame recruitment problems partly on congressional cutbacks in funds, could turn to the acceptance of more women as a way of bolstering quality.

Sources said about 90 per cent of the women recruited into the Army have high school diplomas, which the Army has said "is the best measure of quality as it relates to motivation, discipline and probability to complete the full term of enlistment."

The Army now limits its uniformed women to about 50,000 out of a total force of about 775,000.

Some officials argue that women have shown they can perform well in a wide variety of military jobs and that the doors should be opened wider to them.

Recruit Former CIA head raps disclosure

By RICHARD PYLE
WASHINGTON (AP) — Former
CIA Director Richard Helms says making the nation's over-all in-telligence costs public would mean nothing to the American public. "It would fall in the dull thud department," he said. But Helms and two of his successors, William Colby and George Bush, warned a Senate committee Wednesday that revealing the spending total would generate demands for further details that eventually could imperil U.S. intelligence operations seriously.

Despite the warning, Adm. Stansfield Turner, current CIA chief, said any risk in publication is warranted by a need to be more open with the American public.

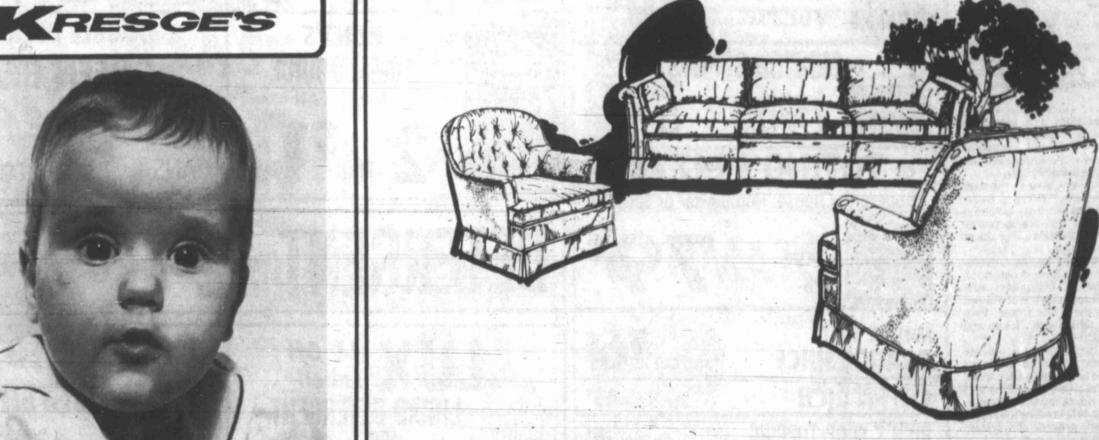

The Senate intelligence committee, trying to decide how much the public know about spending for espionage, arranged to hear today from a panel of three constitutional experts. The panel held its meetings to decide on authorizing intelligence funds for the next fiscal year in closed

Now it faces a decision on whether to make any figures public or whether to maintain the traditional secrecy under which the money is hidden in military and other appropriations.

Colby told the panel it faced "a watershed decision."
"If you decide to make this total budget figure public, I confidently predict that you will be inundated by a series of questions in the coming years as to what the figure includes and what it excludes ... and I believe in a very short time we will be losing much of the value of the sums appropriated for these intelligence

Plains trek only brought him trouble

By RICHARD E. MEYER

WASHINGTON (AP) — It all began with a walk. Walking, figured Travis Britt, would be the best way to show that he was supporting Jimmy Carter's presidential campaign.

So last summer, in mid-presidential campaign, Britt walked from his home in Riverdale, Md., to Plains, Ga., where he shook Carter's hand and they talked of changing the country, ending racial discrimination and giving blacks new hope.

But it brought Britt, who is black, a lot of trouble.

He and his son, Travis Jr., a ninth grader, are meeting with the President today in the Oval Office at the White House. Carter hopes the meeting will end the trouble.

"I am glad you walked to Plains, Mr. Britt," Carter wrote him after hearing of the family's trouble. "I was proud to shake your hand."

The trouble started last fall after Britt got back from his walk to Plains and his son went back to school. Black youngsters taunted him about his father's walk. He slugged one of them.

Somebody slashed the tires on his father's car. Then somebody overturned another family vehicle and rolled it down a hill behind the Britt's apartment.

"The kids ... say what he did wasn't smart," said Travis Jr. "They say he walked 1,000 miles to shake a white man's hand."

After his walk, the elder Britt tried to volunteer his help in Carter's campaign. He said he got an icy reception. So he worked on voter registration. From Carter, he got nothing but an invitation to see the in-

"I was hoping to get black people to support Carter," Britt said. "If I had ever thought it would bring hardship on my family, I never would have

Rep. Gladys Noon Spellman, D-Md., read about the Britts' troubles in a suburban newspaper.
"The racial overtones trouble me," Rep. Spellman told Carter in a letter. "In a county where students have evidenced rumblings of racial unrest engendered by court-ordered school busing, it is asking a great deal of a young black teen-ager to cope with remarks like: 'your father walked 1,000 miles to shake a white man's hand."

"It was your hand, Mr. President." Carter then wrote to Britt:

"I'm particularly concerned about the abuse your son has experienced at school. Your walk to Plains was an important, symbolic act, Mr. Britt. It was a gesture of the hope for the future, which many Americans share with you.

"Please don't allow the shallowness and unkind-nesses of some to diminish your vision. I hope you can explain to Travis Jr. that, although it's hard to ignore the remarks of his classmates, the beliefs you hold are honorable and worthy of defending."

Under his signature, Carter wrote in longhand "P.S. — You and Travis come to see me at the White House — J.C."

Memo implies lack of regard for Congress

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A two-star Air Force general wrote his aides that "I'm not overly concerned about unapproved work" on an $800 million project Congress had ordered stopped, according to documents released Wednesday.

Maj. Gen. Robert L. Edge, Air Force assistant chief of staff for communications and computer resources, continued in a recent handwritten memo that Congress "doens't know about" the computers the service was buying despite the order, and he asked, "Why rock the boat unnecessarily?"

"A classic exhibition of contempt here on the part of the Air Force for the Congress," charged Reps. John E. Moss (D-Calif.) and Charles Rose (D-N.C.) in letters to President Carter and Defense Secretary Harold Brown protesting the Air Force's going ahead with a project Congress has canceled.

Moss is third-ranking Democrat on the Government Operations Committee while Rose is chairman of the House Administration computer sub-

Project Max, according to the file, was a new name for part of the $800 million Advanced Logistics System the Air Force wanted to install to keep track of its aircraft repair program through computers and data processing. The House and Senate Appropriations Committees in a 1975 conference report

The report, under Keech's interpretation, allowed the Air Force to do "mission essential" work on the management system. Keech said Project Max work the Air Force to do "mission essential" work on the management system. Keech said Project Max work since 1975 has been in that category. He added the management system is vitally needed to manage aircraft repair efficiently.

A. Ernest Fitzgerald, the Air Force management executive who got fired after blowing the whistle on the ballooning cost of the Lockheed C-5 cargo plane, disagreed with his boss, Keech.

Project Max, Fitzgerald said in a telephone interview, is really a system "for justifying costs rather than controlling them. It's the same system Lockheed and Boeing use to justify their costs."

Carter bill stops short of fuel ban

By DON IRWIN The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - President Carter Wednesday proposed to strengthen his efforts to halt prolifera-tion of nuclear weapons, but proposed no all-out ban on the export of enriched uranium fuel that could be used for bombs.

The 55-page Administration bill and a set of related policy assurances sent to Congress proposed basic revision of controls on the export of materials and techniques used in making nuclear weapons.

If Congress agreed, the independent Nuclear Regulatory Agency (NRC) could withhold licenses for the export of nuclear materials or facilities until it received notification from the executive branch that the transaction would "not be inimicable to the cause of common defense and security.'

The bill specifies that this judgment be supported unanimously by the State, Defense and Commerce Departments, and Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and the Energy Research and Development

THE BILL WOULD set up machinery for review by the president and congress in the event the Nuclear Regulatory Agency and the executive agen-cies differ on the merits of an export license applica-

The bill would set stiff conditions for new nuclear export agreements and proposes that existing agreements be renegotiated to meet the new standards. But it would permit the President to grant exceptions from these conditions if he considered such action in the long-term interest of nonproliferation.

"Instead of requiring countries that want our nuclear exports to foreswear fuel enrichment and reprocessing for all time, it allows us to draft new agreements using incentives to encourage countries not to acquire such facilities," Carter said in a message to Congress that accompanied the bill.

Carter made clear in his message his opposition to the far more rigid curbs on nuclear exports contained in bills now before committees in both houses

Those bills, the message said, "would impose criteria that could force a moratorium on our nuclear exports, adversely affecting certain allies whose cooperation is needed if we are to achieve our ultimate objective of nonproliferation."

The bill fleshed out the position Carter took April 7, when he ended support by the U.S. government for production of plutonium and urged other nations to curb use of the plutonium in power reactors. Plutonium is deadly in itself and can be used in bomb

CARTER'S PROPOSAL would forbid the export of "significant amounts" of uranium except for "gram quantities for research." It would also ban exports of highly enriched uranium, another weapons-grade material, "except when the project is of exceptional merit and the use of low enriched fuel ... is clearly shown to be technically unfeasible.

But the bill specifies that the President himself must directly approve any export of highly enriched uranium that would bring any nation's supply of the material to more than 15 kilograms (33 pounds) approximately the amount required for a bomb.

White House aides presented the Administration bill as an interim measure designed to stabilize international nuclear relationships until there is universal adherence to the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

Meanwhile, the bill would rely on the International Atomic Energy Agency to set standards for policing nonproliferation safeguards in countries which are U.S. nuclear customers, but are not themselves nuclear powers.

Five nations, in addition to the United States, are known to possess nuclear weapons today: the Soviet Union, Britain, France, China and India. Half a dozen others are believed capable of developing nuclear weapons within a few months.

THE BILL WOULD require any nonnuclear state that expects to continue to receive nuclear supplies from the United States to agree to accept International Atomic Energy Agency safeguards over all nuclear materials and equipment within its jurisdic-tion, whether or not they originated in the United

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Police using tear gas and firing warning shots Wednesday dispersed thousands of African students marching through the streets of Soweto, Johannesburg's black township, to protest steep rent increases scheduled to take effect May 1.

Three African youths were admitted to the Soweto Hospital Wednesday afternoon with gunshot wounds, which doctors described as flesh injuries. A police which doctors described as flesh injuries. A police warrant officer was also injured when students began throwing stones at police riot vans.

Wednesday's rioting is the most serious racial confrontation this year, and the first since early February, when an estimated 6,000 students protested final examinations by marching and burning their textbooks on school lawns.

Last year more than 500 Africans were killed during six months of sputtering anti-government riots in several South African cities over such issues as language and subjects in the classroom, detention of students and black militant leaders, alleged police persecution, the lack of African political power and unequal living conditions for South Africa's 18 million black residents, who outnumber whites by more than four to one.

more than four to one.

The demonstrations Wednesday were triggered by a new complaint: the government's unexpected announcement last week that African home rental prices would almost double.

The move will virtually affect all residents of the sprawling township of more than one million residents, since South Africa's new home ownership plan for blacks has net yet gone into effect. All Soweto homes, officially listed as more than 100,000,

Straddling the fence

ministration is trying to reconcile public policy with private choice on the issue of saccharin. It's proposed regulations for the artificial sweetner will satisfy some and displease others.

People who want to add saccharin to their food would be able to buy it at a pharmacy - in a package warning that its use carries a risk of cancer. But saccharin would be banned from the marketplace otherwise, no longer permitted as an ingredient of processed foods and drinks or cosmetics.

This simply is straddling the fence on the issue of the scientific evidence linking saccharin with FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy acknowledges that the debate is not over, and it is by no means certain that the proposed regulations will survive the hearing process which began recently.

Can the government come with anything better? The case against saccharin is not conclusive, but it cannot be ignored.

WASHINGTON - Washington is going to need a wailing wall after President Carter's energy proposals. I have never seen so much crying and anguish in a city since the President addressed Congress.

I was walking by the White House when I saw a man in a pinstriped suit sitting on a curb sobbing un-controllably.

Usually I don't like to get involved, but in this case I sat down next to him and gave him my handkerchief. "What's the matter, fellow? Are you

Food should be for people and not for profit???

WASHINGTON - The White House celebrated Food Day here last week, an event which left a bad taste in some people's mouths. Cattlemen, poultry and dairy farmers - indeed the entire food industry was sore because the big moment was a meatless meal. They were even more unhappy with the White House memo which concluded: "Food should be for people, not for profit!"

Now there is no question that there is justified concern about what goes into the millions of tons of processed food we put in our gullets every year. So if the alarmists want to use the White House to express their concerns on the foods nearly all Americans are compelled to buy, that's fine.

I happen to agree that much of the processed cereal, dessert gunk, frozen dinners, bread, and other mass-produced food, to say nothing of "convenience foods," really is a disgrace on the marketplace. Perhaps that's why George Koch, the high-salaried president of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, refuses to even try to rebut the rhetoric emanating from industry critics like Dr. Michael Jacobson, cochairman of the Center of Science in the Public Interest. In 1975 the organizers of Food Day ublished a list called The Terrible Ten, which was chosen, Jacobson said, "to epitomize everything wrong with the American food supply The foods were: Wonden Bread, Gerber desserts, Fruite Brute, Pringles, Coca-Cola, Breakfast Squares, bacon, sugar, prime beef and grapes. With activist Midge Constanza running the White House's Public Liaison Office, it was to be expected that the Food Day sponsors would have a field day assaulting the food establishment. Some of that assault is deserved. But the rhetoric in the memo written in her office was too strong, and how easy it is to rant on about 500 million people going hungry in the world and, in the next sentence, lambast "giant corporations" controlling our food supply, "at our expense healthwise and dollar-wise.

The silliest statement in the memo from Costanza's office is the simplistic slogan: "Food should be for people, not for profit. If President Carter believes that, why did his family raise peanuts?

Why, indeed, is Billy Carter at this moment presumably dealing in the peanut business, if it is not for profit? The farmer goes to work every morning in hopes that he will have a profitable year. He invests his labor and money, sells his crops and counts the difference, which is profit.

Truck drivers, warehousemen, distributors, food salesmen, wholesalers, supermarket barons and your friendly mom and pop store are all in the food business for profit. The millions of people who raise, transport, package, broker and sell food do it presumably because they and their families must also eat. I say all this if George Koch won't.

The truth is that the United States is the greatest producer of food in the world, mostly because of the profit system. Our farmers are the most productive when they are least hampered by government controls. Earl Butz remains the best secretary of agriculture of our time, because he pushed to free the farmer from the government. Ask any farmer.

Now the food processors, distributors and supermarket barons are something else. We should blow the whistle on them when they pander the demand built by television advertising. We should try to educate people on what's good food and what isn't. We should leave many alluring boxes on the shelves and force the supermarkets to put something there that is good for us. This is called, by the old-fashioned term, competition in the marketplace.

There is question today, whether the United States is the best fed or the most overfed nation in the world. There is no question that we produce the most food and that we spend the smallest amount of our take-home pay for food of any major industrial nation. I would think that Secretary of Agriculture Robert Bergland, and the President's consumer affairs adviser, Esther Peterson, would acknowledge that. Bergland once farmed for profit. Mrs. Peterson was vice president of the Giant Food Stores chain, whose president, Joseph Danzansky, is regarded as a Carter supporter and

Senate plans final vote on textbooks legislation

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Senators planned a final vote today on a controversial bill providing state text-books to parochial schools. The House continued trimming the $15.7 twoyear general appropriation bill.
Free textbooks for parochial and other private school pupils would cost the state from $5.4 million to $7.2 million over the next two years and would mark a major watershed in state policy.

Senators tentatively approved the bill, by Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, on Wednesday.

The House worked until 11 p.m. Wednesday on proposals by the chairman of the House Appropriations committee to trim the bill his committee had approved.

Representatives cut $57 million from the bill in one "omnibus amendment" whose major item was a $43 million slash of proposed increases in Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC).

They planned a short work session today since buses were scheduled to leave early in the afternoon to take them to the Lower Rio Grande Valley for a weekend as guests of that area's Welfare cuts provoked emotional debate and a reminder that the budget bill had to reduced drastically in order to leave enough money for a teacher pay raise and larger benefits for retired teachers.

"This is the first real opportunity we've had to provide money for a teacher pay raise and for retired teachers," said Rep. Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, of the amendment chopping the welfare increase.

The amendment reduced the AFDC hike from the $8.68 per month per recipient recommended by the appropriations committee to $3 bringing the monthly grant to $35. Presnal is chairman of the committee, but did not favor the $8.68

"It is a national scandal how we take care of our cattle, how we take care of our wheat fields, how we take care of our hogs and how we neglect our children," said black Rep. Al

Price, D-Beaumont. Another black lawmaker, Rep. Clay Smothers, D-Dallas, said he had doubts about a welfare increase because some of it would be "going to thieves" through welfare fraud.

House committee vote on car pollution victory for environmentalists

By MARY RUSSELL The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - President Carter and environmentalists won a significant victory Wednesday as the House Commerce Committee rejected by a tie vote an auto industry proposal that would have delayed and weakened auto pollution emission

Instead, the committee accepted 30 to 12 a Carter administration proposal that is a proposal between the auto industry and House and Senate bills.

The key 21-to-21 tie vote came on an amendment to the Clean Air Act by Rep. John Dingell (D-Mich.) and Rep. James Broyhill (R-S.C.) that was backed by auto manufacturers, the United Auto Workers, the AFL-CIO and auto parts makers.

The Dingell-Broyhill amendment would have delayed imposing tighter controls on car emissions for two

In addition, while tightening standards somewhat for the mode year 1980, the amendment would never have reached the standards for two pollutants, carbon monoxide and oxides of nitrogen, that Congress mandated in the 1970 Clean Air Act.

President Carter's proposal would grant the auto companies a one-year delay before phasing in tighter standards on all three auto-exhaust pollutants: hydrocarbons, carbon nonoxides and nitrous oxidss.

Lobbying up to and during Wednesday's committee meeting was intense. President Carter telephoned committee members during the session. At least three members, Reps. Thomas Luken (D-Ohio), Bob Gammage (D-Tex.) and Martin Russo (D-Ill.) received calls from Carter. All three voted for the Dingeli-Broyhill amendment.

On the tie vote, the key turned out to be Rep. Tim Lee Carter (R-Ky.), who voted for President Carter's com-promise, though in past years he had supported Dingell and the auto industry.

On Monday, Rep. Paul Rogers (D-Fla.), who, as chairman of the health subcommittee, is shepherding the clean air act through the House, accepted an amendment that Rep. Carter sought - which would relax slightly the clean-air standards for his Kentucky district and other areas.

Health insurance vote expected

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Senators were expected to set coverage standards. take a final vote today on a bill wiping out standards designed to protect Texans from being shortchanged when they buy individual health insurance policies.

They voted 21-8 Wednesday to tentatively approve the measure, sponsored by Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port "I don't think a state agency should mandate what

Rep. Ron Coleman, D-El Paso, a sponsor of the 1975 act, said he planned to organize opposition to Parker's bill if it reaches the House

'What Carl has done here is remove all guarantees and protection that the legislature gave consumers last session to insure they will receive minimum benefits when purchasing hospitalization in-

Standards were issued in December. They will apply to all policies after Jan. 1, 1978.

Included are definitions of numerous terms, such as "hospital" and "pre-existing conditions" that some companies have manipulated in order to deny benefits to policyholders.

Joe Christie, chairman of the State Board of Insurance, pushed for the 1975 law, saying that abuses by health insurance companies were the most common source of complaints to the board.

The 1975 measure received attention mainly because of a provision requiring all policies to have plain language descriptions of their terms. That authority would remain in force under Parker's bill.

"What we'd have would be a policy that is as readable as Mother Goose but would not contain any benefits. That is precisely that that bill is designed to do," Christie said.

Standards set by the board require all health policies to provide such things as guaranteed amounts for hospital rooms, miscellaneous hospital charges, surgeon's fees, hospital out-patient services and anesthetics.

"The public has to be protected from the sale of hospitalization policies which are merely pie-in-the-sky health insurance packages that don't really provide necessary services to the patient when they become ill," Coleman said.

The trustees of Midland Memorial Hospital feel that the facility should be the finest full-service community hospital anywhere, Mickey Cap-padonna told members of the Downtown Lions Club Wednesday noon at their meeting in the Midland president of the hospital's of trustees discussed the existing facilities and said the major needs of the hospital include a critical care pavillion, increased size of the obstetrics department and nursery area, correct traffic pattern by providing surgical corridors and four additional elevators, and refurbish and refurnish all patient rooms.

Under the remodeling, enlarging and overall improvement program outlined by Cappadonna, the hospital would have 220 patient rooms, 96 per cent of which would be private. The hospital now has 175 beds "We will have a totally renovated hospital when and if this program is completed," the speaker said. He said the program as proposed

A special meal for mother on her day... Cold Beef and Mushroom Toss.

Or try a bloomin' lunch for mom

Mother's Day is, ideally, Mom's day off. She would be pampered and fed and loved to show just how special Cards and gifts are nice expressions, but any mother would be most delighted-if not surprised-if her kids put together their very own Mother's Day lunch for her.

Boys as well as girls are becoming wizards in the kitchen. This recipe for 'flower pots'' would be a terrific Mother's Day surprise. Its ingre-dients couldn't be easier-a simple mixture of ground beef and rice. perfectly seasoned with instant tomato and instant onion soupssomething to be found on almost every pantry shelf today.

The "pots" are simply stuffed green pepper cups. The "flowers" are cute and simple to make: just cut four "stems" with leaves attached from a green pepper cup. Bright red cherry tomatoes are "flowers" which bloom proudly atop the stems. After the pots are filled, plant the stems into the middle of the mixture for a delightfully edible "blooming" lunch.

If your children haven't thought themselves about preparing Mother's Day lunch, leave some recipes, such as this one, around where they can see it. They'll get the idea!

BLOOMIN' LUNCH FOR MOM

5 large green peppers 4 small to medium cherry tomatoes 1 pound ground beef 2 envelopes instant tomato soup 1 envelope instant onion soup ¼ teaspoon oregano (optional) 1/2 cup instant rice 11/2 cups water

Prepare "flower pots" and garnishes round.

Flower Pots: Cut top off green peppers; remove stem and seeds. Reserve 4 "pots"

Stems: Cut 4 stems with leaves attached from remaining green pepper

Flowers: With 1/2 a toothpick, attach a cherry tomato to the top of each of the 4 stems. "Plant" the end of the stems in the middle of each pot.

In large skillet, brown ground beef; drain. Stir in instant tomato and onion soups, oregano, rice, and water. Bring to a boil, then simmer covered 5 minutes or until rice is tender. Fill 'flower pots' and insert garnishes into meat mixture. Makes 4 "flower

Here's an easy dinner idea for Mother's Day

It all started in 1907, Congress made it into a national holiday in 1912, and everybody agrees if anybody rates a day, it certainly is mother. She dishes up over 1,000 meals every year, plus who knows how many snacks, cleans house, does the laundry, helps with the homework, chauffeurs to the farthest corners of the suburbs, nurses the sick and the wounded, settles disputes better than Kissinger, makes do on an always too limited budget, and holds the family together with a pride forged of steel.

Dad and the kids, take her to a restaurant if you will, but if you want to make a completely relaxed but totally unforgettle Mother's Day, turn her loose to do some reading, concentrate on hobbies, or visit a friend while you take over in the kitchen.

To help you, here's a new recipe especially created for Mother's Day. Cold Beef and Mushroom Toss is a hearty salad dish that's guaranteed to make a hit with mom, yet is simplicity itself in preparation, so don't worry about a thing. She'll "ooh" and over the intriguing dressing you've deftly created with a few herbs and Worcestershire sauce.

A beautiful side dish . . . but one you won't have any trouble making . is Rice Pilaf Salad. It's subtly flavored with yogurt and a package of au jus gravy mix and has a sprinkle of peanuts for some welcome crunch. For a well-balanced Mother's Day dinner, also serve crisp vegetable relishes, warm club rolls, a beverage, and a festive cake for dessert. If you have a baker in the house, fine; otherwise spring for one at a bakery. RICE PILAF SALAD

1 cup uncooked regular rice envelope (%-oz.) Au Jus Mix 1/3 cup each plain yogurt and mayonnaise

1 cup each cubed tomatoes and sliced celery

1/2 cup diced cucumber to 2 tablespoons chopped green onion or chives 1/4 cup chopped peanuts

Cook rice according to package directions omitting butter and combining contents of envelope of Au Jus Mix with the water for rice; cool. Just before serving, toss lightly with remaining ingredients except peanuts which should be sprinkled over top of salad. 6 servings. Dairy sour cream can be used in place of yogurt. COLD BEEF AND MUSHROOM

1 1/2 pounds cooked lean beef roast

1/4 pound fresh mushrooms 1/2 cup salad oil 1/4 cup wine vinegar 2 tablespoons Worcestershire Sauce 1/4 teaspoon each Basil, Marjoram.

For dressing, combine remaining ingredients except lettuce and mix together well. Just before serving, toss beef and drained mushrooms with all or part of dressing. # Burning off more calories than eaten only way to shed pounds

By DARLA WELLES Copley News Service

There is no easy way to lose weight. That's the message from Dr. Grant Gwinup, chairman of the division of endocrinology and metabolism at the University of California at Irvine School of Medicine.

Gwinup said in an interview that there's only one way to shed pounds. And that is to burn off more calories

And that, Gwinup admits, is not easy for most people in today's mechanized world. It may, he said, require a major revamping of life-style.

"Most people get essentially no exercise," he said. "We're all so conditioned to living efficiently with garage door openers, power lawn mowers, power steering, power toothbrushes, elevators, escalators...We'd be much better off if we abandoned all that and lived differently, getting the kind of exercise we'd have gotten if we'd lived a thousand years ago." He likened the body's fat stores to the fuel burned by an automobile.

"It's an energy-rich substance deposited in the body to sustain it during periods of not eating. Un-fortunately," he said, "most of us carry around enough fat to sustain us for weeks or even months if we did not eat at all. And in doing that, we suffer from a health point of view.

"But there is no easy way to get rid of those excess pounds of fat. Each one of them represents 3,500 calories. To lose one you have to burn off 3,500 more calories than you take in.

"The best way to do that is through some form of aerobic exercise. That is, not pushups or calesthenics, but rather something that uses the whole body like swimming, cycling, jogging

"From the practical standpoint, walking is good. It's hard to find an excuse not to walk."

And it's a highly effective way of working off pounds with or without dieting, Gwinup said.

He bases that statement on the results of a study conducted recently at UC-Irvine. The study followed for a year the progress of about two dozen people in a daily walking program.

At the outset, Gwinup said, the participants ranged from "just slightly chunky to omigod!-are-you-

At the end, all had achieved dramatic and sustained weight loss without dieting. In fact, some participants found they were eating more than they had prior to embarking on the exercise program and still losing

COLLEGE STATION - There is no excuse for anyone who likes homegrown vegetables to go without, says a Texas Agricultural Extension Service horticulturist.

For those without outdoor space, a 'mini-garden" can be put on your windowsill, patio, balcony, rooftop, or almost anywhere the sun shines, points out Sam Cotner.

Mini-gardening, or growing vegetables in containers, offers an advantage to the backyard plot. These little gardens can be moved to the sun, placed out in the rain without being flooded, and are almost resistant to soil insects, weeds and diseases, explains the Texas A&M University cient.

Mini-gardens can fit into trash cans, gallon cans, washtubs and wooden boxes. Other containers commonly used are 8-to-10-inch pots and 3to-5-gallon cans.

For any container garden, good drainage is essential, emphasizes Cotner. In many respects, Kelley, has been the antithesis of J. Edgar Hoover, the man who headed the FBI for 48 years and built it into one of the most famous law nforcement agencies in the world. Hoover built his image — and the bureau's — by playing the tough guy in public. When Alvin (Creepy) Karpis, a member of the infamous Ma Barker bank gang, threatened Hoover's life, Hoover personally flew to New Orleans, where, with drawn gun and press watching, he arrested Karpis. By contrast, during the re-cent Hanafi Muslim terrorist action in Washingtin, Kelley stayed at his desk and quietly directed his

Where Hoover was frequently a strident, publicity-seeking autocrat, Kelley has assumed a lower profile for himself and for the bureau. And he has used modern management techniques in running the bureau. Where Hoover grabbed every case he could for the FBI and issued periodic reports on how many stolen cars the bureau had recovered, Kelley has narrowed the FBI focus, concentrating on organized agents to work with local police. And when the local police got most of the publicity, Kelley was not

Kelley has critics, some of them on Capitol Hill, who say he has not been a strong or forceful director. A former member of the Senate Judiciary Committee said: "He's a nice guy and I think he's conscientious, but I really wish he were tougher."

WASHINGTON — After four years as director of "I thought I should be low profile. I'm not a the FBI, Clarence Kelley has failed to achieve two of swashbuckling type of administrator."

Kelley's stature was damaged last summer when his most cherished goals — the full restoration of the bureau's credibility and its reconciliation with many he was forced to concede he had been deceived by citizens estranged by the era of Vietnam and FBI personnel, whom he could not even identify, into believing that illegal FBI burglaries had ceased in But Kelley feels that when he retires from the 1966. In fact, the burglaries continued into 1973,

> The subject of illegal FBI break-ins continues to haunt Kelley. A former FBI supervisor has been indicted in New York in connection with break-ins, wiretaps and mail-openings during an early 1970s probe of the radical Weather Underground and the justice Department is seeking more indictments. Charges and disclosures of this type of action and of FBI counterintelligence programs aimed at disrupting militant political groups, heaped on top of the reaction to the abuses of the Watergate years, have served to keep FBI morale and public credibility low. They also have overshadowed real reforms initiated by Kelley.

-When Kelley took over as FBI director in mid-1973, the bureau was handling 2,100 domestic security investigations. The targets ranged from serious espionage cases to individuals whose politics were just a bit too liberal for the archconservative Hoover. Today, about 100 internal security cases remain active. The domestic intelligence unit, which conducted many of the illegal break-ins, has been reorganized and reduced in size.

-During Hoover's tenure, the bureau was inundated with make-work cases, "everything that was coming through the door," as Kelley put it. In a "quality over quantity" program, Kelley forced the

Illegitimate children decreed eligible to inherit

By PHILIP HAGER The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court has struck down a state law that prevented illegitimate children - but not legitimate children — from in-heriting estates from their fathers when no will has been written.

By a 5 to 4 vote, the justices held unconstitutional an Illinois act similar to laws in 20 other states that permitted illegitimate children to inherit only from their mothers.

The Court said there was no ustification for drawing such a distinction between legitimate and illegitimate children.

"....We have expressly considered and rejected the argument that a state may attempt to influence the actions of men and women by imposing sanctions on the children born of their illegitimate relationships," Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. wrote for the ma-

"...Difficulties of proving paternity in some situations do not justify the total statutory disinheritance of il-legitimate children whose fathers die (without wills)."

Eight states — including California - permit illegitimate children to inherit from their fathers where the father has acknowledged the child as

The case before the justices (Trimble vs. Gordon, 75-5952) involved the claim in behalf of an illegitimate child to an estate valued at $2,500, left behind by Sherman Gordon of Chicago. Gordon died of a gunshot wound in 1974 and left no will. The child was denied the claim on the basis of the state law. The Illinois state supreme court upheld the law.

The justices - deciding their 12th case of alleged illegitimacy discrimination since 1968 - concluded that the Illinois law denied the child equal protection of the law under the 14th Amendment of the Constitution.

The majority rejected contentions

by attorneys for Gordon's sister that the state had a valid interest in trying to prevent spurious claims against estates by illegitimate children who might be unknown to the dead man's Justices William J. Brennan Jr., Byron R. White, Thurgod Marshall and John Paul Stevens joined Powell in the majority.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Potter Stewart, Harry A. Blackmun and William H. Rehnquist dissented

Rehnquist, in a dissenting opinion, said the majority was guilty of "a conscious second-guessing of legislative judgment in an area where this Court has no special expertise."

In another case (Fiallo v. Bell, 75-6297), the justices in a 6 to 3 decision upheld a federal law that grants immigration preference status to il-legitimate children of mothers — but not fathers - who are U.S. citizens or permanent resident aliens.

The distinction was permissible, the Court said, because it has been long recognized that it is up to Congress not the judiciary - to establish controls over immigration.

Congress enacted the distinction .. perhaps because of a perceived absence in most cases of close family ties, as well as a concern with the serious problems of proof that usually lurk in paternity determinations, said Powell, again writing for the ma-

"....This distinction is just one of many drawn by Congress....to provide some - but not all - families with relief from various immigration restrictions that would otherwise hinder reunification of the family in this country."

In this case Marshall, Brennan and White dissented. Marshall, in an opinion joined by Brennan, said the majority's deference to Congress on immigration amounted to "abdication."

Bensten urging Senate approval on new judgeships, new court

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., said he will push for Senate approval of legislation creating 10 new federal district judgeships in Texas and a new 11th Circuit Court to include Texas and Louislana.

The bill has been approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

"Justice delayed is, too often, justice denied and the situation of our federal courts in Texas — the heavy caseloads and the backlog of cases — results in far too much delay for participants in civil and criminal trials," Bentsen said.

"The legislation voted out by the Senate Judiciary Committee will take off some of the pressure by providing our state with additional judges to help shoulder the burden."

The committee bill would add five new district judges in the Southern District of Texas, three new judges in the Northern District and one each in the Western and Eastern districts.

An average of 488 cases were filed before each district judge in Texas last year, compared to the standard of 400 cases per year set by the U.S. Judicial Conference.

Although the number of cases filed is not the only gauge of assessing the workload of a judge, the judicial conference and the Senate committee are in agreement on using it as the measurement.

"This is not the final solution to the problem of overcrowding and backlogs of cases in our federal court system. A thorough overhaul is needed and we will continue to work toward that goal under the speedy trial act, "But for the interim, these additional judges will help to insure the constitutional guarantee to a speedy trial," Bentsen said.

By GAYLORD SHAW

The Los Angeles Times WASHINGTON - President Carter has formally ordered a government-wide effort to upgrade federal dam safety programs and "avert such tragedies as the Teton Dam failure,' the White House has announced. Aides said Carter's action was spurred in part by the findings of in-

Nearly $25,000 was raised for the Hart Scholarship Fund as a result of a March 29 concert in Detroit, tripling the college's previous fund of $8,000.

That was only the beginning, however, as a 31-member committee including Gov. William Milliken and Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal has set out to raise an additional $250,000 to give the 2,100 student school its first major scholarship fund.

"It's incredible, ab-solutely incredible," said Dr. Ken Shouldice. president of the college, which is the smallest in my wildest dreams did I ever guess this could happen ... from almost nowhere to this,'

Members of the Hart family, including his widow, Jane, are not certain why the senator picked the tiny college, rather than one of Michigan's better known institutions, as the benefactor of the Hart

He mentioned the idea only once, shortly before his death Dec. 26 in an unexpected reply to his wife's question about what he wanted done about those who would like to build a memorial to his life and work.

Mrs. Hart said her husband may have been interested in the college because the family had a summer cottage at Mackinac Island for many years and because he was interested in the fact that many of the students are the first in their families to attend

Most of the college's buildings are located on the site of old Ft. Brady, deactivated after World War II. It was originally a branch of Michigan Tech University, but later achieved independence.

A year ago, a gover-nor's efficiency com-mittee suggested that the college might be closed if Kincheloe Air Force Base, 22 miles south of here, was shut down by the federal government.

Leak places Supreme Court in ticklish dilemma

By T. R. REID The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Last week's leak about the Supreme Court's deliberations on the appeals of convicted con-spirators H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and John N. Mitchell has placed the court in a ticklish dilemma from which the nine justices will not easily escape.

The news report said the court had voted 5 to 3 not to review the cover-up convictions of the three former Nixon administration officials

The report said all three justices voting to review the convictions were among the four appointed to the court by Richard M. Nixon. And it said

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, a Nixon appointee, had delayed an official announcement of the outcome because he hoped to convince some justices to switch their votes in favor of hearing the appeal.

The news story, reported last Thursday by Nina Totenberg of Na-tional Public Radio, but not officially confirmed, has become news in itself because leaks of the court's secret votes on which appeals to hear are extremely unusual.

Moreover, according to lawyers in the Watergate case and other court observers, the report could con-ceivably influence the outcome of the

BANKAMERICARD

Lawyers representing the three former Nixon aides scheduled a meeting to consider how to deal with the development.

They said that if the Court does deny review in the case, they would be likely to file a petition asking for a rehearing on grounds that the decision was tainted by the report of the initial vote.

The publicity problem is particularly serious in the Watergate case, because the defendant's chief grounds for appeal are that the trial judge, John J. Sirica, and the jury were un-duly influenced by the massive publicity surrounding the Watergate

If the justices refuse to hear those arguments, the defendants may contend that the Supreme Court, the nation's last arbiter of legal disputes, was itself improperly affected by publicity in the case.

On the other hand, if the court grants review (known legal jargon as "certiorari"), that would inevitably create suspicion that Burger had, in fact, worked among his colleagues to reverse an earlier vote against

"To grant certiorari now would be like Roger Maris' 61st home run," said Prof. Arthur Miller, of George Washington University's Law School. "Whether the story is true or not, there's always going to be an asterisk saying, "But there was another vote

Miller, who has often criticized the secrecy of the court's proceedings, said the leak was "appalling, but it shows you what can happen when the court insists on keeping its cert votes

The court's final opinions normally reveal how each justice voted on the case, but decisions on granting or denying certiorari are usually reported without a breakdown of the vote within the court.

Totenberg's report, which was distributed by her editors to other media and widely reported, has prompted the predictable speculation about the source of the leak.

A gossip column in Tuesday's editions of the New York Post said the "most popular choice as the story's original source was Justice Potter Stewart, said to be a close friend of Bil Totenberg was quoted in the gossip column as saying, "As for the in-quiries about Potsy, I think this is sex-

Bill would restore pay, rank to federal worker hit by no-fault demotion

By MIKE CAUSEY

WASHINGTON — Thousands of federal workers hit by no-fault demotions since July 1, 1975, would have their full pay and civil service grade restored permanently under legislation introduced by Rep. Robert N.C. Nix (D-Pa.). Nix is chairman of the House Post Office-Civil Service Committee that will handle — and almost certainly approve - the bill.

His plan would also protect workers downgraded in future through no fault of their own by guaranteeing that they would not have to take pay or grade cuts for as long as they remained in their jobs. Positions "red-lined" for demotion would not actually be downgraded until the incumbent left them either because of a transfer, promotion, retirment or death. Nix's proposal does not deal with because of various reorganization plans of the White House.

Insiders expect, however, that the Carter administration will come up with a similar legislative package of its own to protect the job and pay status of employes whose positions are affected adversely by reorganiza-tion or consolidation of agencies. President Carter has repeatedly told federal employe groups that nobody would lose pay, rank or a job as a result of any of his reorganizations. But there is not yet any legal way to deliver on that promise.

Nix's bill concerns itself with federal white collar and blue collar workers whose jobs are found either by internal agency or Civil Service Commission audit — to be overgraded. Normally in those cases workers are demoted to the rank determined proper for that position. They lose their grade, but keep their saved pay feature, incidentally, is the reason for the July 1, 1975, date in the Nix bill)/

The committee chairman said he wants the government to act vigorously to wipe out overblown grades, which cost money and distort the job picture in agencies. But at the same time, Nix says he wants to be sure that employes due to be demoted or those demoted since July 1, 1975 would not be punished for the classification errors of their agencies. Nix's plan would simply mean that nobody hit by an agency or CSC-ordered downgrading would suffer loss of pay or grade. Instead they would keep his current rank and the salary and future salary increases that go with it until he leaves the job. Then, and only then, would the position be downgraded so the next person coming in to it would take the lower grade and correspondingly lower

The proposal might strike some editorial writers as a boondoggle, but it makes good sense in the long haul. It will cut back on the number of costly and time-consuming adverse action grievance cases that frequently result from a no-fault demotion.

Also, the no-fault demotion protection should make employes more receptive to bona-fide job audits, since the incumbent would not be hurt. Finally, it would make agencies less timid in wielding the gradecutting ax, since they would not be harming people, but would be making cuts on paper that would take place

The future savings to the government could be tremendous - if enough grades are found to be overgraded and are cutback — with the minimum of pain to on-the-job employes, and the minimum of resistance from the bureaucracy.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Freezing vegetables

Dear Dr. Solomon: Can freezing vegetables reduce their vitamin C content?-Dolores Q.

Dear Dolores: Quick-freezing vegetables produces very little loss of vitamin C. What is bad is allowing them to stand around a long time at room

Dear Dr. Solomon: Our children, like so many children, seem to have something in their mouths all day long-usually something sweet. The result is a pile of dentist bills we could very well do without. Can you suggest anything that would help them break the habit and take better care of their teeth?-

Dear Inez: It often helps, if you explain to your children what the scientific facts are, so they realize you are not asking them to give up a pleasure without good reason. Sugar is the main cause of cavities, because the bacteria that are in your mouth all the time change it to acid aimost immediately, and the acid eats into the enamel.

It isn't only the amount of sugar that matters; it's also how frequently you eat it and how long it stays in your mouth each time. The acids act on the tooth enamel for at least 20 minutes after you have finished eating. So three regular meals with sugar in them would be followed by at least an hour of active acid. If, on top of that, you have three sweet snacksmorning, noon and evening-there is another hour of cavity-producing acids right there.

I doubt if it is possible to get children to swear of snacking. What you can do is encourage them to snack wisely rather than unwisely. And that means avoiding sweets, especially those that stick to the Encourage your children to cut down on ice cream, soft drinks, caramel, fudge, other candy, cakes, pie, fruits in sweet syrup, peanut butter with added sugar, hot chocolate and milk shakes.

Urge them to try any kind of fresh fruit or fruit packed in water or its own unsweetened juiceoranges, apples, pears, peaches, grapes, melons, grapefruit or tangerines. Raw vegetables are also good-especially celery, cucumbers, cauliflower, slices of green pepper, radishes, tomatoes. For drinks, favor plain milk, fruit juices and juice com-

Scientists say

long-sought quark exists

By ROBERT GILLETTE The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - Three scientists havereported that they have obtained experimental evidence for the existence of quarks, an elusive subatomic particle believed by many theorists to be the most fundamental unit of matter.

Physicists George S. La Rue and William Fairbank of Stanford University and Arthur F. Hebard of Bell Laboratories in New Jersey said their experiments suggest, but do not prove, that the long-sought quark

Confirmation of their work would lend an important new measure of credence to current thinking among physicists about the basic construction of matter throughout the universe.

SCIENTISTS HAVE been searching for quarks since 1964, when their existence was first predicted by Murray Gel-Mann and George Zweig, both of whom are now at California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, Calif.

Their prediction was considered radical at the time, for it implied that such particles as electrons and protons - long presumed to be fundamental units of matter — were themselves composed of still smaller units, which Gell-Mann dubbed "quarks." The ensuing search for quarks has met with so little success that many scientists have begun to doubt they can be separated from larger subatomic particles — if indeed they exist.

Most of these efforts, however, have involved bombarding protons with cosmic rays and high-energy fragments of matter flung from accelerators at Stanford University and elsewhere. According to theory, a quark thus dislodged could be identified by a uni-que feature: it would carry an electric charge equal to only one-third that of an electron or proton.

IN A REPORT prepared hurriedly Tuesday for presentation at a meeting of the American Physical Society, physicists Fairbank, LaRue, and Hebard said their hunt for the quark took a very different approach. Rather than biasting their prey from other particles, they modernized a classic experiment in physics to set a trap for the quark.

The experiment was performed in the early 1900s by Robert Millikan to take the first measure of an electron's charge. Millikan measured the charge on the surface of falling droplets of oil and found they were always a multiple of a single number - that carried by a single electron.

For oil droplets, Fairbank and his colleagues substituted tiny balls of niobium, a metalic element. They cooled these to 452 degrees below zero Fahrenheit (near absolute zero) and suspended them in a magnetic field.

By watching the motion of the niobium balls, they were able to calculate the charge imparted by elec-trons and protons on the surface of each ball, which they then tried to neutralize.

Out of eight balls, they were able to erase virtually all electric charge. But on two, they said, a charge that was "very close" to one-third of that on an electron persisted. This was the predicted value of a quark's charge.

THE PYYSICISTS suggest that cosmic rays and other forces occasionally separate quarks from the nuclei of atoms and that these free-floating quarks may temporarily attach themselves to ordinary mat-ter — such as a cold ball of niobium.

One problem, they said, was to make sure elec-trical and vegnetic fields generated in the experi-ment did not cause the balls to mimic the effects of a fractional charge.

"After carefully examining these possibilities," they said. "we are satisfied that 'spurious' forces could not have caused the effect."

There were indications that the one-third charge they observed could be transferred from the niobium to other metals. The next step then will be to isolate the charges and observe their other properties.

"In this way we can tell if they really are the clusive quark," they said.

Eban accounts decision may be coming

By DIAL TORGERSON The Los Angeles Times

JERUSALEM — Israeli Treasury officials may decide this week on the legal implications of Abba

Eban's embarrassment of riches.

The problems of the former foreign minister are giving the Labor Party its latest nervous moments as t moves toward a crucial national election May 17. Like Yitzhak Rabin, who quit as prime minister because of his personal finances, Eban is being in-vestigated for possible foreign currency irregularities.

Israelis are required to have Treasury Ministry permits to hold hard-currency accounts abroad. Rabin and his wife, Leah, admitted that they had held Washington accounts without such a permit.

Eban said he had a permit for 10 years, allowing him to hold several overseas accounts, but cannot find his copy of it. Similarly, the government has been unable to locate such a permit in its files. And, in any case, all such permits expired in February, 1975, and new ones had to be obtained — and Eban did not get one at that time.

"Failure to renew the permit would be a technical error and not subject to prosecution," a Treasury spokesman said. He said that a decision on whether to prosecute may be made within the next several

The most embarrassing thing to Eban and the Labor Party — in which he now ranks No. 3 on its list of candidates — is that the preliminary investigations have shown that he has made more than $100,000 from books and lectures. This is a huge income by Israeli standards.

He commanded fees in the United States as high as $3,500 per lecture, it was reported here. His books, including "My People," which has been translated into many languages, have told well, and his speeches made during the period in the 1960s when he served as Israel's ambassador to the United Nations have been issued in the form of a record album.

A government official who knows the former foreign minister said, "Eban is punctilious in his handling of financial matters, and it seems highly doubtful that he or his bankers would have done anything illegal. 'But what hurts is a matter of esthetics. Here is a

"But what hurts is a matter of esthetics. Here is a socialist leader who has earned $100,000 and who seems to be wary of bringing all his money back to Israel. Is that, people will wonder, because he lacked faith in the Israeli economy?

"For a single lecture, he was making almost the annual wage of an Israeli white-collar worker. The Labor Party is nervous about him making public appearances because it is afraid people will start asking him questions about these things." One Israeli paper said that Eban had asked the party to cancel all his appearances before nonparty audiences until after the Treasury Ministry makes a report on its investigation. But another paper said that Eban was sticking to his original schedule. The party itself referred all questions to Eban, who was not available for comment. Insiders said they assumed that the party would like to see Eban maintain a low profile at least until after the Treasury report is issued.

The mere fact that the government is looking into Eban's finances is an acute embarrassment to party that lost its candidate for prime minister over

Three Tall City cinder men make bid for state

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

LUBBOCK-For three Midlanders. the Last Chance Express moves into the Texas Tech oval here Friday and Saturday as the Region I Track and Field Meet will board the select few for a trip to Austin and the state meet

This is the last stop on the Express rails after a long track season for many, but it will be the road to glory for those than can earn a state berth. Fail here, and it's all over. Win, or place second, and dreams can be

Two seniors and a sophomore carry the hopes of Midland into the regional meet, and no one can blame them if they have had dreams of the University of Texas oval, where the state meet will be held.

MIDLAND HIGH'S Robert Wilson, a two-time District 5-4A champion, will make his second bid for a state berth in the mile run while Lee's David Skinner will be in his first regional 880 dash. Lee sophomore Jeff McCowan has hopes in the shot put in his first year of high school com-

Wilson, who was knocked down in a mile race last year in the regionals, may be Midland's best bet at gaining a state berth. He won a regional berth two weeks ago with a new 5-4A mile record of 4:21.8. Wilson, however, has had a best of 4:18.7 this year to lead provided the top three don't improve all Region I times.

Wilson will not be without some stiff competition, however. Jose Paz of El Paso Austin has a 4:19.0 this year while Jaun Olivares of El Paso Jefferson owns a 4:20.1. San Angelo's Lon Albert, who has never beaten Wilson, has a beat of 4:24.5. All of the other runners appear to be in the 4:28.0 class.

SKINNER PRODUCED a 1:58.0 two weeks ago in the 5-4A meet in Abilene to advance to the regionals, and that was his best time of the year.

Skinner, however, is improving almost weekly after taking up the 880 for the first time in his senior year. He ran the mile last year, but has found a home in the 880.

Omar Carrasco of El Paso Austin. owns a 1:56.6 this year while El Jefferson's Gilbert Juarez has an 880 time of 1:56.7, the same mark as 5-4A champion Ed Bruning of San Angelo. Skinner ranks fourth with his 1:58.0, but needs to improve by less than two seconds to be in the thick of it, Ysleta's Juan Gonzalez owns a 1:59.5. McCowan is the dark horse in the shot put. His best mark this season is 53-9 feet, which came in the Tall City Relays. McCowan, however, is only a sophomore and it is reasonable to assume that he can improve. The best thing is that he will have two more shots after this year, and could become one of the best in the state by the time he is a senior. It was a real accomplishment that he qualified for the regionals as a sophomore. Mc-Cowan had a toss of 52-11 in the district meet. San Angelo's Harold Ledet is the favorite in the shot put, and his toss of 62-81/2 is one of the best in the state. El Paso Burges' Dan Hunter owns a 57-61/4 for the second best mark.

LEDET AND Hunter are expected to battle it out for the discus title as well. In a San Angelo meet this year, Ledet and Hunter locked horns in a spectacular duel. Hunter won with a toss of 189-7 while Ledet had a 189-6.

Cooper heads the 5-4A charge with nine individuals and a relay while San Angelo has seven and a relay.

The regional meet will begin Friday at 11:30 a.m. with selected field event finals and the running prelims at 3:30

Saturday's competition starts at 9:30 a.m. with the remaining field event finals, and the running finals are set for 1:30 p.m.

McCowan will enter the shot put at 11 a.m. Saturday while Skinner will be in the 880 at 1:40 p.m. Wilson's mile is scheduled for a 2:50 p.m. start.

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Olympian Sam Colson has been named track coach Clemson University, the school where he trained for the Montreal Games.

Bramlett, Farquhar buck regional odds

By PAUL DOMOWITCH R-T Sports Writer

LUBBOCK - Can Jeff Bramlett and Kirk Farquhar pick up where Vicki Vasicek left off? Should David Zimmerman even bother showing up 3. Will the ridiculously antiquated blind draw once again force premature championship matches, and prevent the best high school tennis players from this region advancing to Austin? And what famous dogs will be up here this week? These are just some of the questions up for grabs as the Region I Boys Tennis Tournament gets underway Friday morning here at the Texas Tech University courts.

The format will be similar to the girls tourney, which was held here a week ago. Competition for the twoday event will begin at 9:30 a.m. Friday, and run through until the semifinal round, scheduled for 3 p.m. The singles and doubles championships will be played off Saturday morning

There is only one alteration. While the girls AAAA competition was played on the Tech women's courts, the boys AAAA matches, both singles and doubles, will utilize the men's courts, which are located near Jones Stadium here on the campus.

The only one of the questions posed above that can be answered assuredly is that Abilene Cooper's Zimmerman must show up. The UIL said so. But that's about all he'll have to do. If Yasicek's route to the girls singles title last weekend was considered relatively easy, Zimmerman's chase for the boys' crown this weekend could be called a cake walk. There are some good players in the event, but none on a par with Zimmerman, the 1976 Texas state runnerup, and a good bet to go all the way this year.

Midland High's district championship doubles team of Bramlett, a sophomore, and Farquhar, a junior, rate strong consideration here, but the blind draw being used at regionals, which forced Vasicek and Robin Winstead to meet in the semifinals of the girls event last week, and cost Winstead a berth in the state tourney, may do the same for the Pack combo. Drawing a first round bye, the pair will oppose Dale Anderson and Dan McMillan of Lubbock Coronado in a 10 a.m. quarterfinal match on Friday. Should they get by them, they'll probably have to face El Paso Irvin's Richard Holmes and Jose Rivera in the afternoon semis. The two El Pasoans are the pre-tourney

"It's a tough break," admitted their coach, Larry Burgin, "but that's gonna happen when you use a blind draw instead of a seeding system. It hurts the reputation of the entire region too, because we end up not sending our two best to Austin.'

Chew's three-run homer paces Cubs over El Paso

EL PASO - Outfielder Earle Chew's three-run homer gave Midland's Cubs a lead they never relinquished and relief pitcher Andy Muhlstock put out a seven-run fire in the eighth inning in a 12-9 Texas League win over the El Paso Diablos here Wednesday night.

It was the second straight win for the Cubs over El Paso, which had an eight-game winning streak after beating Midland the first game of the series. And it sent another bumper crowd of 7,625 disappointed.

Chew's home run came in a five-run second, and came after a walk, Duane Gustavson's double, a two-run double by Tony Pepper and a Steve Davis

MIDLAND SCORED four more in the sixth to take a 10-2 lead, using five walks, a hitbatsman and run-scoring single by Karl Pagel to do the damage. Steve Davis hit a solo homer in the seventh and Keith Drumright singled and scored on a hit by Bill Huisman for a 12-2 lead in the Then Darrell Turner, 2-1, suddenly and completely lost his touch, yielding four doubles, a single and Clay Peters' homer in the eighth. Larry Groover relieved, but also gave up two walks and a single before Muhlstock arrived to get the final out by fanning Lawrence Rush with the tying run at the plate. It was Muhlstock's second save.

The Cubs and Diablos meet again tonight at 7:30 p.m. (MST). with the Cubs holding a 2-1 edge in the series and showing a 5-6 record for the Pepper had three hits for the Cubs while Gil Kubski and Steve Stroughter had three hit nights for El Paso.

Chew's homer climaxed the inning and sailed over the scoreboard in left field. It was his first of the year.

Pack's Nixon honored

Midland High track coach Edwin Nixon has been selected as the District 5 Cross Country Coach of the Year by the National High School Athletic Coaches Association.

District 5 includes the seven state area of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

Carey E. McDonald, executive director of the NHSACA, said that nominees were evaluated on the basis of high school career coaching or administrative excellence and performance and professional service to the coaching profession.

ABC juggles hot potato

By HOWARD SMITH AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - It sounded like such a good idea at the time-a boxing tournament to determine U.S. champs in various weight classes. A way to bring some order out of the chaotic world of U.S. boxing, give a whole group of unpublicized fighters welcome exposure and, in the process, produce a money-making television show.

Veteran promotor Don King, a man with more connections than an erector set, would put it together. The Ring magazine-the "Bible of Boxing"- would rank the fighters. James A. Farley Jr., the respected chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, would serve as unpaid advisor to make sure everything was on the up and up. And ABC would pick up the tab to the tune of $1.5 million. It sounded great and it got off to a great start. The ratings were impressive-second only to "Wide World of Sports" among winter sports shows.

BUT SOMEHOW it has all come apart amidst charges of kickbacks, favoritism, phony records and at least one claim that a fight was fixed. A grand jury in Landover, Md., is sorting out the charges and counter-charges. ABC has hired its own man, investigator Michael Armstrong; to look into the matter. And the bouts have been suspended with only six of the 16 shows having taken place.

King has fired some of his closest associates. Farley has suspended himself from the New York State Athletic Commission following revelations that his expenses were paid by King. Welcome to the Wonderful World of Boxing.

ABC, to its credit, has done most of the investigating of its own tournament, airing charges, checking out allegations, submitting information to 697-3671 683-0978 the grand jury. But the network has drawn flak from all quarters, anyway.

SOME FEEL the network should have gotten more involved in the fights beforehand to make sure everything was legitimate. Others contend the opposite—that television should not get involved in the competition aspects of the deal, just pay the bills and aim the cameras

When the tournament was first announced, it was' warmly received by the media. Now that it is in trouble, the media is leading the charge against it. Such is the nature of the beast. ABC, with its money and cameras, was responsible for the tournament. It got the credit when things were going good. It has to expect some blame when things come apart.

ABC officials admit that if they did anything wrong, it was placing too much reliance on the rankings in The Ring magazine, rankings on which the tournament is based. Some of those rankings, it turns out, are based on incorrect records. Who knew? King brought the idea for the tournament to ABC.

The Ring, supposedly above suspicion, would rank the fighters and Farley would supervise. Now those assurances are in doubt. WHAT NEXT? ABC will await the grand jury findings and Armstrong's report. Then the network has three options. It can dump the whole thing, writing it off as a good idea gone bad. It can resume where it left off, ducking the inevitable verbal darts and hoping nothing else goes wrong. Or it can substantially restructure the tournament and try again next year. The fallout from the King tournament, meanwhile, has had an effect on CBS, which is rethinking its heavy committment to boxing. "We are reviewing our entire situtation in regard to boxing," says Barry Frank, president of CBS Sports. "In light of everything that's come out recently, we want to make sure our own skirts are clean.' CBS is committed to four boxing shows, all on 'Sports Spectacular.' After that, we shall see.

An interesting sidelight to this business is the recent tendency of ABC and CBS to sign up fighters on their own. George Foreman and Sugar Ray Leonard and under contract to ABC, while Howard Davis is in the CBS stable.

Terms of the deals are different but, with the exclusion of Foreman, they call for the network to televise a certain number of fights per year. The networks claim they have no control over opponents and simply have contracted to televise a certain number

But what happens if you have a multi-year contract with Joe Palooka and Palooka gets beat up his first couple of times out? Who is going to watch a guy who keeps getting beat? Isn't it in the network's best interest to ensure that Palooka gets weak opponents and thus protect its investment?

Welcome to the Wonderful World of Boxing.

PHILADELPHIA (AP The Philadelphia Eagles have been promising for years to turn around a woebegone program that has produced only one winning season in the last 15 years. The newest hope is Ron Jaworski.

Words of optimism were spouted when the National Football League team brought in quarterback Roman Gabriel, middle linebacker Bill Bergey and Dick Vermeil, the latest in a steady succession of coaches.

The pep talk was heard again Wednesday when Jaworski, known as "The Polish Rifle" when he was with the Los Angeles Rams, signed a series of five one-year contracts. Terms were not disclosed.

"I'm accepting this challenge because I know it can be done. The direction is right," said the four-year veteran, the Rams second-round draft choice in 1973.

NAGOYA, Japan (AP) - Teruo Sugihara, a veteran Japanese pro golfer, fired a three-under-par 67 Thursday and took a one-stroke first round lead in the $200,000 Chunichi Crown international invitational tournament.

A total of 117 golfers, including 10 amateurs, from nine countries teed off in rain on the 6,728-yard, par-70 Nagoya Golf Club Wago course.

The 39-year-old Sugihara, winner of the tournament in 1974, had three birdies in his round of 33-34.

Kenji Mori and Seiichi Numazawa, both of Japan, and Hsu Sheng-San of Taiwan all trailed Sugihara by one stroke.

American Tom Purtzer, winner of this year's Los Angeles Open shot a first round 71 and shared ninth place credits his development as a pitcher to a more mature attitude he has acquired in the past year, when he says he began to understand the meaning of Christianity.

"OVER THE last year I've had a lot of spiritual experiences," said Denny. "Through the help of teammates like Bob Forsch and Don Kessinger, I've accepted Jesus Christ. He comes first; pitching comes second.'

"I've never been happier. My concentration is better. I'm getting along better with people.

"My No. 1 reason for success, I believe, is that the Lord is watching out for me," Denny added. "The guy upstairs saw to it that I got a lot of runs."

Hector Cruz and Ted Simmons wielded the big bats for the Cards, driving in four runs apiece. St. Louis scored four runs in the first inning and two in the second, then broke it open with eight runs in the fifth. Simmons and Lou Brock each drove in two runs in the big inning.

But pitching with a 14-1 lead is not as easy as it seems.

"I found myself getting lackadaisical," said Denny. "I had everything I could do to stay in the ST. LOUIS game. I started thinking more about my lead than my pitching. Denny went eight innings, with Clay Carroll pitching the ninth. "In three of Carroll pitching the ninth. "In three of my five starts, Manager Vern Rapp has asked me if he can bring in a reliever so they can get some work. That's fine with me. Some day I may need a reliever and he'll be ready."

Pat Zachry allowed just five hits in dealing the Braves their fifth straight loss as Cincinnati completed a sweep of its three-game series at Atlanta. "Now it will all level off," said Reds

Manager Sparky Anderson, confident his team has broken out of its early season slump. "We should play .700 ball for a while, I think."

Did the Braves cure Cincinnati's slump?

"It wasn't just the Braves," replied Anderson. "It would have been whoever we had to play. The time had arrived.

Dodgers 7, Padres 6

Ron Cey, who has hit safely in all 17 of Los Angeles' games this season, tied the major league record of 27 runs batted in for the month of April with two against the Padres on a single and a homer.

The mark was set by Willie Stargell of Pittsbugh in 1971 and equaled by Reggie Jackson, then with Oakland,

The Dodgers have hit 26 home runs in their 17 games so far, including five by Cey in the past five games.

Pirates 7, Phillies 3 Pittsburgh posted its fifth victory in a row, behind Bruce Kison, who held the Phils scoreless until the ninth. Dave Parker hit two doubles, driving in two runs and scoring one, leading the Pirates' attack.

Twins forget about Campbell

By The Associated Press

Bill Campbell's treasure map led to Boston, but the Minnesota Twins still turn to their bullpen for some riches of their own.

Things looked bleak for the Twins when Campbell, the American League Fireman of the Year in 1976 with 17 victories and 20 saves, played out his option and signed with the Boston Red Sox, who made him a rich man. But Tom Johnson is doing the same things Campbell did for Min-nesota while Campbell is having his problems with his new club.

Although he was scored on Wednesday for the first time in seven appearances this season, Johnson notched his third consecutive triumph, in Minnesota's 5-3 victory over the Seattle Mariners, with Butch Wynegar's two-run single capping a three-run

Gold Sox defeat San Antonio in 11th

By The Associated Press

An 11-inning slugfest finally ended with Amarillo besting San Antonio 12-10 in their Texas League game Wednesday night.

On other fronts Midland outlasted El Paso 12-9, Shreveport beat Tulsa 5-1 and Jackson downed Arkansas 9-6.

Steve Smith's single and Kurt Wittmayer's sacrifice fly drove in the winning runs for Amarillo in the second extra inning at San Antonio. Amarillo grabbed a 10-9 lead on a grand slam homer by Ron Leisle in the ninth. San Antonio loaded the bases with two out in the 11th but the rally died as Jeff Leonard grounded out to the mound.

Shreveport's Harry Saferight went three-for-four at the plate, belting a home run and driving a pair across the plate, in the victory over Tulsa. The Louisiana club went ahead to stay in the seventh inning as three of its pitchers teamed to twirl a five-

COLLEGE STATION - Today's quilting "bees" add extra excitement to a renewed trend in home decorating-as they recall part of America's heritage with a social mood and many of the old traditions.

In years past, when a woman finished a quilt top, she invited her neighbors to a quilting bee. At most, twelve could be invited, but to avoid crowding, seven was preferredputting two people on each side of the quilting frame including the hostess.

When distances were great, a quilting bee was not called until two or more tops were ready. Then the hostess borrowed quilting frames and invited the whole countryside to come early and stay late. The quilts were put in and furnished by women working in relays until an evening feast was served. Then men arrived dressed up and ready to party or court the

Show gears fashions, cosmetics to often forgotten young junior

By LANA CUNNINGHAM

Too often fashion stories are geared to the woman, junior or small girl while the in-between girl, those in the area of age 11 to 13, are left out.

Sherry Hewett, an instructor at Trinity School, solved the problem by putting together a fashion show and cosmetic demonstration geared to the young junior girl.

Brenda Cauthen and Sherry
Campbell, both of The Shop for Pappagallo, showed the clothes and cosmetics which would be "right" for Campbell used Anne deCompiegne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henri deCompiegne, in showing the right cosmetics and techniques to use. She stressed using a moisturizer under their foundation, even at their age.

The right shade of foundation should be used, but it should not be overdone. Campbell also said the girls should purchase the correct type of foundation according to their skin. with dry skin should buy an oil based foundation while those with oily skin should get a water-based type.

She demonstrated contouring to obtain the perfect oval face and to highlight or downplay certain features, such as a nose that is too

Blushers also were used to bring out highlights. Lip colors, she said, should coordinate with blushers and face

Eyebrows should start directly above the tear duct and arch directly above the cuter edge of the iris.

Before going into the fashions,
Cauthen outlined some do's and don'ts when purchasing clothes. Most girls can be identified by one of two ways, the fashion nut or the cool shopper, she said. The fashion nut buys a lot of current styles which are short-term clothes while the other type buys fewer clothes, but these are quality classic styles which can be worn longer. When purchasing clothes, the girls should check to see if the outfit can be changed to go with several different accessories, if it is of a style and color fortable in it. "If it is too trendy for her, she will probably wear it once or twice and then leave it in the closet," Cauthen said. The wearability of the clothing and its cost also should be considered, she added.

Modeling the outfits were Nora Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aubray Price, and Janet Stone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Stone.

Sundresses are the most popular style this season and can be worn for dress-up occasions or to school with a blouse. Shown for sportwear were walking shorts, a jacket with matching pants, trimmed t-shirts with pants, and a strapless jumpsuit (not for school, Cauthen emphasized).

Accessories included artificial flowers which can be worn in the hair, on the outfit or around the waist. Visor caps and shoes, including flat laced-up shoes with sportswear and open sandals with heels for dresses, also were shown.

Careful trip planning keeps children happy

By BETTY PEACH Copley News Service

The 4-year-old raced happily up and down the aisle of the plane on its nonstop flight. With his quick changes from cowboy to rustler to lawman, he kept up a rapid, noisy gunfire from pointed fingers.

The weary passenger beside me caught the lad's arm and suggested firmly: "Go outside and play.

The boy's mother ignored the polite protestations of passengers. She gnored the boy, too.

She had taken a tranquilizer at the beginning of the five-hour flight, and dozed blissfully through her child's maverick shenanigans.

It is possible to travel with children, retain one's sanity, and not drive the other passengers up the wall. But it takes some advance planning, some preparation and training for the children, and a firm hand en route.

Traveling in the family automobile is easier on everyone

Give each child a zipper case in which he may take games and books of his choice, plus a toothbrush and one fresh shirt. One family that makes a 1,500-mile trip to visit grandparents each year, has a small padded table that slips into the back seat. The two children sit on either side and use it for working puzzles and playing games.

The family plans the trip in advance, with stops scheduled every two hours at parks or points of historical

The children have a map of the route and know in advance what to expect. They all play catch a few minutes to let the children run and work off steam.

The route differs on the return trip, to keep the children interested.

Each child has his own luggage and some freedom of choice in what he takes. The mother insists on washwear fabrics, and in multicolored prints wherever possible. Fewer spills of mustard, grape jelly and catsup will show, she reasons. Every few days they stop at a coin-operated

Regardless of how the family travels, health rules are the same. Be sure children are in good health when the trip begins. Take adequate supplies of any medication taken regularly.

Carry a thermometer, children's aspirin, sunburn lotion, insect repellent and a healing lotion for bites, adhesive bandages and cotton

The informality at the destination and the means of transportation dictate the wardrobe for children as well as adults. A young mother of two small daughters who are excellent swimmers takes two swimsuits, a cap, a pair of shorts and a shirt, one dress and a change of underwear per child. It is all they ever need at any

"I believe children will live up to what is expected of them when they are on vacation," says one young mother. "Sometimes my children are hellions at home, but they know how to behave when traveling.

Coleman was raised in Kenya as the son of one of the first colonial policemen sent there by England. Fulfilling a childhood dream, Mrs. Coleman went to work at a Nairobi hospital in 1959.

Two years later she met Bryan, and they were married in 1964. Carlos was born in Africa in 1967.

By the early 1970s, Mrs. Coleman said, they realized their adopted homeland was undergoing rapid change and Europeans would be the first to feel the effects.

Economic signs reach near high

The March index of economic indicators of Midland rose to a near record high, The First National Bank of Midland reports.

Only December's index of 271 points was higher. Compared to March a year ago, airline boardings at Midland Regional Air Terminal were up to 22,369, an increase of about 3,000, residential building permits increased by $1,600,000, for a total of $2,821,600, and bank deposits amounted to $607,062,000, an increase of about $70,000,000.

Midland had 21,341 gas meters, 27,436 electric meters, an estimated 70,350 telephones and 35,360 persons employed last month.

The bank said all indicators were up significantly over March 1976 and only building permits decreased when compared to February. However, building permit valuations for the first three months of this year are up $3.1 million over the first three months of

The economic report said movement of new families into Midland is strong for the first quarter of

There was an average growth of 75 family units per month for the first three months of 1977, nearly double that of the same period 1976, the bank said.

Austerity is costing a lot more these days

WASHINGTON (AP) - Austerity is getting more expensive all the time, the government says.

The Labor Department has said it costs an urban family of four more than $10,000 a year to support an "austere" living standard. The same family needs $16,236 to live moderately and $23,759 for an existence with some luxuries, the new figures show.

The cost of living, based on calculations from last fall, rose 4.7 per cent for the austere budget, 6 per cent for the moderate budget and 6.6 per cent for the higher budget over the previous year.

The department makes its calcula-tions for a hypothetical family with a 38-year-old bread-winner, a wife who doesn't work outside the home and their two children, a 13-year-old son and an 8-year-old daughter.

The estimates include personal income taxes and Social Security payments.

As was the case in 1975, living costs were lower in Southern cities than in other metropolitan areas. A poor family of four would have found the lowest costs in Austin, Texas, and the highest in Anchorage, Alaska. The high-budget family would have found a low of $20,628 to maintain its standard of living in Austin and a high of $29,667 in metropolitan New York and some areas of New England, the Labor Department said.

Market mixed, backs up

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market was mixed today, backing off after Wednesday's rally amid interest-rate worries.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 8.14 on Wednesday, had pulled back 1.02 to 922.74 by noontime today.

Gainers held a small edge on losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Some analysts said the Federal Reserve's actions in the money markets Wednesday suggested that the central bank had decided to foster a slight increase in short term interest rates.

There has been speculation that the Fed might begin to tighten credit because of a recent bulge in the money supply. Another report on money-supply trends was due at the NYSE close today.

Westinghouse Electric led the active list, up ¼ at 20¾. The stock touched a new high for the year Wednesday, when the company said its earnings trend was continuing to improve.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks was down .04 at 53.38. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .13 to 111.70.

Volume on the Big Board set a relatively quiet pace, totalling 7.75 million shares by noontime against 7.93 million at the same point on Wednesday.

Midland Youth Center chatter

By LORI JONS, LIZ RUWWE, & NANCY HUDSON

Oh the joys of Spring-warm afternoons, bloming flowers, senior parties . . . Just think, only 36 more days and we'll be enjoying the fun of summer. What a wonderful thought! These last few weeks surely are busy ones (most Seniors will vouch for that!). Last weekend's Senior Girls' Party was just the beginning. But, oh, what a beginning it was! Everyone looked really cute in their Hawaiian outfits as they danced and partied all night. Balloons, flowers, painted Hawaiian screens, and a pineapple ice sculpture set the mood for the evening. Special thanks go to Mr. Wimberly, Mrs. Blanchard, Mr. Collins, and all the parents who helped make the party a success.

One wild weekend inspires another, and this weekend is it. Saturday night will be a double-feature starring the MHS Junior-Senior Prom and the LHS Senior Girls' Party. The prom is open to all Midland High students and their dates. The Junior class has brought "Spyce" from Abilene to play at its free-ofcharge formal-semi-formal dance. The dance will be from 8:30 to 12:30 Saturday in the Midland Youth Center. Refreshments will be served. Don't miss the big event!!!

A lot has happened during the week to keep MHS students busy, too. Tuesday was election day. The Juniors and Sophomores (and a few Seniors!) took time out Tuesday to look over the prospective cheerleaders for next year. The vote was tallied later that day. The Bulldog yell leaders for next year are Holly Holt, Ken Hedrick, Sharon Ellis, Stephen Kennedy, Kim Sewell and Jason Foreman, with Cliffy LaForce serving as the alternate. Congratulations, ya'll!

While everyone else was choosing cheerleaders, the Seniors were voting on the Dubious Awards. The results of these ballots will be announced at the Senior Breakfast at 7 a.m. Tuesday in the Dellwood Plaza mall. The breakfast will be catered. Tickets are $3 each and can be bought from Mr. De Wayne Davis, any Senior Class officer or other Seniors. Be sure to BUY YOUR TICKETS!!

The Youth Centers held their annual board meeting Monday night, when the incoming and outgoing board members were announced. Many thanks go to Mr. Dick Saxe, Mrs. Jean Ward, Mr. A. # Oklahoma Citian made shopping in stores easier

By NICHOLAS C. CHRISS The Los Angeles Times

OKLAHOMA CITY - The next time you are shopping in the supermarket, you might want to say a word or two of thanks for Sylvan N. Goldman of Oklahoma City. Were it not for Goldman, you might not be comfortably pushing a chrome-plated shopping cart loaded with oversize boxes of soap flakes, six-packs of beer, frozen turkeys, disposable diapers, corn flakes, toothpaste, artichokes, sacks of oranges and all the rest.

Goldman is the man responsible. He revolutionized the supermarket business in 1937 when he invented the shopping cart.

He has not become famous for his invention, but he has become very rich. For years he received a royalty on every shopping cart sold — and there were millions and millions of

When Goldman invented the cart, he was in the supermarket business. so he had plenty of incentive. His invention led him to form the Folding Carrier Corp. to make and market the carts. Today, he and his two sons operate Goldman Enterprises, with huge investments around the country in banks and real estate. He has also become a backer of the arts.

GOLDMAN'S SHOPPING CART patents ran out some time ago, and he has been out of the business since about 1955. But he still wears solid gold shopping cart cufflinks.

'There is no question that this has been one of the few inventions...that made possible...the whole self-service operation in supermarkets and drugstores or general merchandise stores," said Dr. William Applebaum, a recently retired expert on food distribution and lecturer at Harvard's graduate school of business.

Until 1937, shoppers - mainly women — had been loading groceries into wicker baskets that they carried under their arms.

But the introduction of the cart "made shopping much easier," said Applebaum, and also "made it possible to buy a larger order. In time the basket carts became larger and larger because the orders became larger and larger, because the product mix in the stores increased.'

But most important, perhaps: "The retailers found that when they did have a larger basket, the customer bought more," Applebaum said.

Today's shopping cart, Goldman aid in an interview at his office, is about five times as large as the first ones he put into one of his markets here on June 4, 1937.

In the morning Oklahoma City Times that day, Goldman had taken out a large teaser advertisement telling readers there was a "new device"

"Can you imagine wending your way through a spacious food market without having to carry a cumbersome shopping basket on your arm?"

Goldman did not tell the public what the device was because he wanted shoppers to come to his Standard Supermarkets to see what it was all about. But when he arrived at one of his stores, he was crushed to see that there were no throngs of shoppers using his invention.
"I went down there with great expectations. When I got there there wasn't a damned soul using a shopping cart.'

Goldman saw the worth and ease of the shopping cart and he thought everybody else would, too. He asked customers why they weren't using the

"I've pushed my last baby buggy forever, I hope," a woman told him.
"Don't you think this arm is strong enough to carry a shopping basket?' an offended male replied.

This was the greatest innovation in self-service I was giving them, but nobody wanted it," Goldman ex-claimed, still in awe 40 years later at how stubborn people could be.

A week later he took out another advertisement in the morning paper that proclaimed: "Shoppers came, saw and said, 'It's a wow.

Goldman, chuckling, recalled, "It was the biggest lie." Things did not go much better nationally, either.

Supermarket managers said they were worried that children would knock cans and bottles off the shelves with the carts and that they would start pushing one another about. You cart in the supermarket.

But Goldman cleared away the apprehensions. He hired men and women of various ages to come into his supermarkets and pretend that they were using the shopping carts so that customers would get the idea. Eventually they began to, and before he knew it he could not keep up with orders for shopping carts in

Siesta saved —temporarily

The Washington Post

ATHENS - It ws a battle of wills from the beginning. Innovative changes were pitted against deep seated traditions.

The tenacity of the Mediterranean temperament has apparently triumphed, however.

Thus the time-honored siesta, in which life comes to a virtual standstill between 2 and 5 p.m., has been saved at least temporarily.

Midway through a three-month experiment in which Athens' shops worked a continuous 9 to 5:30 day, the government of Constantine Karamanlis grudingly has conceded that during the summer heat, shops may revert to their split-shift day.

It was, said Loukas Yannopoulos, "a struggle between Eastern mentality and modern efficiency.'

But few Athenians seemed willing to give up their traditional ways.

Since the government's new timetable took effect in February, it has provoked a public outcry. Though shops no longer were shuttered at midday, periodic strikes closed them temporarily. More importantly, customers stayed away.

"At the end of the day I have muscle aches all over," said Antonio Samora, wrestling a sheep to the ground. "A hot bath feels good.

It is hard labor, giving these hair-cuts, but the pay is 75 cents a head and an ambitious worker can finish one in about four minutes.

For several months Gonzalez and his 20 men roam the state, setting up their tents on ranches and putting their dogs and their electric clippers to work.

Much of their time is spent in Kern County, which has the biggest concentration of sheep — about 140,000. It is a $6,300,000 annual business in the coun-

A sheep's woolly coat, which takes a year to grow, weighs about 10 pounds. The growers get between 70 cents and 80 cents a pound for it. Gonzalez gets $1.25 for each haircut.

When it comes to losing their sweaters, some of the sheep are downright uncooperative, but where there's wool there's a way.

The first step is to herd the animals inside the tent. This is done with the encouragement of trained dogs, who bark and nip at any of the ones who make ewe turns.

Then it sort of becomes a rodeo. One of the workers in the production line grabs a sheep and wrestles him to the ground, holding him with a well-placed knee in the side.

The four legs are sheared and then tied together, to make it easier to get at the rest of the coat.

"Sometimes they try to bite us," said the 45-year-old Samora, who has been at it for 29 years. "And if they kick around too much, we wind up cutting ourselves."

The din inside the tent is earsplitting — the yapping of the dogs, the whining of the gasoline engine powering the shears, the shouting of Gonzalez, the bleating of the protesting

As each coat is removed, hopefully in one piece, it is gathered up by wooltyers, who are paid $25 a day. They take it to a machine which compresses it into large bags for ship-

Once fleeced, the shivering sheep is kicked into an outside pen, where he stands in his naked diploma.

During his lifetime he will go through this annual ritual about 10

As for the shearers, the one thing they worry about is rain, because that means no work. Wet wool doesn't cut.

"It's hard work," Gonzalez emphasized. "It takes three years to train a man, and not everybody can get the hang of it."

Legislators organizing to combat the Pentagon

By GEORGE C. WILSON The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - House members from 16 states have put together a new coalition to combat the Pentagon. and their first demand is for a moratorium on closing any more bases in the Northeast and Midwest.

Rep. Michael Harrington (D-Mass.), an old Pentagon foe who is chairman of the newly formed coalition, charged in a recent interview Tuesday that former President Nixon punished the Northeast and Midwest in military spending as he tried to build a political base in the South and

With the blessing of House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill (D-Mass.), Harrington and his allies are demanding that President Carter aid the ailing economies of the Northeast and Midwest in the 1970s the way President Roosevelt helped the South in the 1930s and 1940s.

The economic tide already has turned against the Northeast and Midwest, Harrington said, with the near bankruptcy of New York City only one example of why the Federal Government must redirect its flow of

Because he and the other 203 House Democrats and Republicans in the coalition consider their regions' economic survival at stake, Harrington said, they have organized special task forces to play political hardball with the Executive Branch.

The coalition's taks force on defense, for example, is dominated by members who are on House committees which decide how much money the Pentagon gets each year.

"We talked about canceling the B-1 bomber just to get their attention," said one staffer on the coalition, asserting that the days of the Pentagon brush-off are over.

For openers, coalition leaders have demanded in a letter to Carter that he declare a moratorium on all activity but the Department of Defenses associated with the closure or significant reduction of military installations, including the outflow of missions and personnel, in our 16 state area.'

The letter, which went to the White House April 6, also requested a meeting with Defense Secretary Harold Brown to present the coalition's case for "a transfusion" to failing economies in the 16 states Rep. Donald J. Mitchell (R-N.Y.), a member of the House Armed Services Committee who is co-chairman of the coalition's defense task force, said he is confident Brown will meet with the group. No date has been set.

The coalition's nine-member defense task force is comprised of four members of the House Armed Services Committee; three members of the Apporpriations Committee; a member of the Ways and Means Committee, and the chairman of the Public Works Transportation Subcommittee. Coalition members argue that the South and West over the years have gotten a disproportionate share of the Pentagon's dollar in the form of military bases and defense contracts.

General Motors to keep swapping engines

The Los Angeles Times

INDIAN WELLS, Calif. - General Motors Corp. has no intention of discontinuing its policy of substituting an engine built by another GM division when the regular power plant for a particular car is in short supply, GM President Elliott M. Estes said

GM's decision to continue such swapping. swapping of engines when necessary comes despite a growing flap over the recent disclosure that GM had substituted Chevrolet-built engines in about 128,000 1977 model Buicks. Oldsmobiles and Pontiacs. More than 10 states, including California, have now filed consumer fraud suits against GM because of the engine

Speaking to reporters after addressing the spring business conference of the Motor Car Dealers Assn. of Southern California, Estes said the company's current "engine useage" policy will undoubtedly have to continue as the automaker begins building more smaller and lighter cars to improve fuel economy and is forced to meet stricter air pollution standards.

'From an economy of scale point of view, we're going to have to continue this program," Estes said.

Engine swapping, according to auto industry spokesmen, is nothing new. It happens frequently during periods' of strong car sales when one car line is selling better than others.

Adviser says California needs nuclear plants

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - California will have to build a significant number of new nuclear power plants to meet its energy needs through the end of this century, James R. Schlesinger, the Carter Administration's ranking energy expert, has concluded.

Air pollution problems with coal and increasing scarcity of oil and natural gas will force the state to overcome the reluctance of many of its citizens toward greater reliance on nuclear energy, Schlesinger believes.

Moreover, he has no intention of helping the state escape this choice by diverting to it a major extra share of the nation's limited oil and gas sup-

Schlesinger has communicated these views to several Californians, including Sen. Alan Cranston, the Senate's Democratic Whip.

"I have grave concerns about nuclear energy," Cranston said in an interview, "both as to cost effectiveness and as to safety. But Mr. Schlesinger believes we may be driven to using more of it, at least for the next couple of decades.'

An aide to Schlesinger said Saturday that Administration energy officials have not yet begun charting energy requirements on a state-bystate or region-by-region basis, so there are no federal estimates as to how many new nuclear plants California may need. But, he said, "there just aren't very many alternatives" to increased use of nuclear power in the state.

At present, California relies heavily on low-sulfur oil and on natural gas, two of the cleanest-burning hydrocarbon fuels, for generating its electricity. Under President Carter's proposed energy program, heavy penalty taxes and in some cases outright bans would be levied against the burning of these fuels in electric utility and industrial boilers.

The objective of these policies is to force utilities and industry across the nation to switch from oil and natural gas to some other fuel, primarily coal, so as to free the scarcer fuels for other

Because of its special vulnerability to air pollution problems, California" will have difficulty burning coal, particularly near heavily populated

This does not mean that use of coal necessarily is ruled out. Pacific Gas and Electric Co., a major utility based in San Francisco, has selected alternative sites for two 500megawatt coal-fired plants in the northern part of the state. It believes that by use of stack gas scrubbers and other pollution control technology, and by burning low-sulfur coal, it could meet air quality standards. Numerous objectsions have been raised to expansion of nuclear power in California, but among the most important have been concerns over earthquake dangers, disposal of radioactive waste, and diversion of

At present, several nuclear plants are in operation in California; one in San Onofre, another in Humboldt County, a third in the Sacramento Valley at Rancho Seco. Others are in various stages of development, including two additional units at San Onofre, two in Diablo Canyon near San Luis Obispo, one at Sun Desert in the Imperial Valley, and another proposed in Kern County.

The Diablo Canyon plants, built by Pacific Gas, are virtually complete. But concerns about an earthquake fault so far have held up the licensing of those plants, and some analysts believe that major new construction work would be necessary to calm fears that an earthquake would pose unacceptable risks of radiation close proximity to fault lines, finding sites free from such concern has proved difficult.

In view of the problems with nuclear power, the California Energy Conservation and Development Commission has undertaken a study of how the state might make extensive use of coal. Besides direct burning of coal within the state to produce electricity and to heat industrial boilers, it is possible to convert coal into synthetic gas or oil. Although the technology for doing this appears well within reach, there are no major commercial plants in operation. While such processes would produce a largely pollution-free fuel, there is considerable concern about pollution at the conversion site.

Midlander completes five Irion gas wells

John L. Cox of Midland has completed five extenders and staked site for a new project in the Ela Sugg (Wolfcamp) gas pool of Irion County, about 14 miles northeast of Barnhart.

No. 3-E Miss Ela, 41/6-mile south extension to the field, gauged a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 2.955 million cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-liquid ratio measuring 178,939-1. It finaled through perforations at 7,857-7,930 feet, after fracturing the section with 30,000 gallons. Condensate gravity was 62.6 degrees.

It is 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 25, block 14, ULS.

No. 2-E Miss Ela, 31/2 miles south, rated an absolute, open flow potential of 4.486 million cubic feet of gas per day through perforations at 7,907-7,965 feet. Pay had been fractured with 30,000 gallons. Gas-liquid ratio was 80,138-1, and fluid gravity was 67.4 degrees.

Wellsite is 660 feet from north and 990 feet from west lines of section 25, block 14, H&TC survey.

Cox No. 1-F Miss Ela, 11/4 mile south extender, had an absolute open flow potential of 4.124 million cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-condensate ratio of 46,884-1. Condensate gravity is Cox No. 1-H Miss Ela, 21/2-mile southeast extender, finaled for an absolute open flow potential of 4.434 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 7,940-7,984 feet. Gas-liquid ratio was 59,583-1, and gravity of the condensate was 65.2 degrees. The pay section had been fractured with 40,000 gallons.

By BERT BERLINER

NEW YORK (AP) - New York artist Ron Kron surrounds himself with a mixed group of well-known personalities — Joan Crawford as "Mildred Pierce," Louise Lasser as "Mary Hartman," Burt Reynolds as the Cosmoplitan centerfold.

Lately, though, the circle has widened to include former Presidents

Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford, with more political figures ready to join.

'Politicians are the stars of today,' says Kron, 35, whose two-foot-tall brittle latex sculptures of famous personalities will be exhibited at New York's Bleecker Street Gallery this Kron's fascination with marionettes while growing up in Hopkins, Minn., is evident among his 40-odd "portraitin-sculpture" dolls. Endowed with real hair, glass eyes and movable limbs, most are movie stars cast in well-remembered roles.

Kron first turned his attention to politicians when the Watergate scandal burst into the news. The result was Richard Nixon nude under a Watergate towel. Next came Gerald Ford holding a Halloween bag labeled "trick or treat." "The bag contains the pardon Ford gave to Nixon," Kron

Once in a while he's commissioned to do a private individual. One patron ordered a doll in the likeness of a friend as a Christmas present.

"The friend opened this large box and was stricken to see himself,"Kron recalls. "There's something macabre about seeing yourself lying in a box, even if it's giftwrapped.

Kron wants to do some personalities from television commercials. He cites Nancy Walker who plays Rosie the waitress, hawker for Bounty paper towels, and Margaret Hamilton as Cora, the general store proprietress who sells Maxwell House Coffee.
