ESA Mother Banquet

The Epsilon Delta Chapter of E.S.A. held their annual Mother-Daughter banquet Saturday, May 10th, in the Bailey County Civic Center.

Mrs. Beatrice Blackburn presented a program of excerpts from Dr. James Dobson's book "What Wives Wish Their Husbands Knew About Women". Some of the high points of her presentation were fatigue and time pressure are our greatest cause of depression.

Every obligation we shirk causes loss of self esteem. Fatigue makes cowards of us all. When you are tired you are attacked by ideas you thought you had overcome.

She added, "No one rushes more than the mother of multiple preschoolers. Mothers of children under three have a greater need of loving support from their husbands. The hardest time of the day for mothers of young children is from 6 p.m. - 9 p.m. Children are aware of tension and are the inevitable losers in a tension full life style."

"The mother-child relationship is vital to the healthy development of children. Mothers should welcome the opportunity to shape the lives of their children."

Magann Rennells presented the D.I.A.N.A. award to Jenne McVicker. This award is given to a woman outside the organization who has unselfishly given of herself to a remarkable degree to benefit others.

This is a woman who exemplifies in her daily life the wholesome and inspiring qualities of love, faith, and courage.

Jenne is the mother of four and the grandmother of three. Her husband says of her, "She's a crusader." Magann says of her, "Anything that needs to be done, Jenne can do it."

She is chairman of the Methodist Mission Home in San Antonio, chairman of the Myasthenia Gravis Foundation, past president of the Muleshoe Hospital Auxiliary, a Santa's helper and active in the Esther Dorcus Circle.

The outstanding pledge was Sylvia Vourazeris and the outstanding member was Jan Crawford.

Other awards were given to Virginia Bowers sister, Barbara Dalton from Ft. Worth, who traveled the farthest and Jan Crawford's mother, Ann Roberts, who had the most grandchildren.

Other awards were given Elaine Burgess received the aging mother award for her daughter Laurie, who is graduating from M.H.S.

Jo Blackwell presented five year pins to Charline Gregory, Elaine Burgess, and Virginia Bowers.

Ten year pins were presented by Magann Rennells to Jo Blackwell and Diana Harrison.

Motherhood is the keystone of the arch of matrimonial happiness.

OUTSTANDING MEMBER...Jan Crawford, on the right, received the outstanding member award at the Epsilon Delta Chapter of E.S.A., Banquet Saturday evening. Making the presentation is Pat Young.

Want top-quality eggs? Buy those that have been refrigerated, and keep them refrigerated. Store them in covered cartons—even though the refrigerator has special compartments for them. Covered cartons keep them from picking up refrigerator odors. Store them broad-end-up -- to prevent movement of the air cell toward the egg yolk and faster deterioration. Don't wash them before storage, since washing will remove the protective organic matter that seals the shell pores.

Commercially, eggs are washed, but then they're dipped in oil so they'll be more aesthetically acceptable to the consumer.

Store leftover raw yolks or white in the refrigerator -- covered. But be sure it's no longer than two to four days. In storing yolks, cover them with oil or water, and use them within a day or two.

You can freeze egg whites and use them later without much loss in volume, if you plan to whip them -- but they'll be slightly less stable due to some breakdown of the thick white.

Also, freezing the whites won't drastically affect the product you plan to use them in even if the product depends on beaten egg whites for its structure.

Mental Health Drive Planned

Mrs. Tom Jinks and Mrs. Paul Poyner have announced that 20 bell-ringer marchers will go house-to-house in Muleshoe during May.

Mrs. Jinks is Bellringer chairman for the drive benefiting the Mental Health Association in Texas.

The Mental Health Association is a voluntary citizens organization which operates entirely on private contributions such as those raised in the Bellringer campaign.

According to Mrs. Jinks, the association depends largely on volunteer efforts for both its programs and fund raising.

President John Stevens expressed his appreciation to the Bellringer chair and to the marchers. He commented, "Only a small number of mental health patients remains in American mental institutions. The majority have been released from the back wards of mental hospitals, often winding up on the back streets of big cities and small towns, a forgotten and isolated minority.

During May, National

Mental Health Month, public television stations nationwide will present "Back Wards to Back Streets," a documentary examining the plight of the deinstitutionalized mental patients. The telecasts will be on Public Broadcasting Stations, such as KENW-Portales.

"Bellringer workers collecting in Muleshoe," he added, "will be going to most of the houses in Muleshoe during this month. They are expecting many generous donations to help them feel successful in the important job they have volunteered for."

Pass The Amendment

The latest Gallup Poll shows two-thirds of the voters now in favor of a constitutional amendment requiring Congress and the President to annually balance the budget. We have been debating this issue now for years. It's time the people had their way.

Of course, there may be some disadvantages, even dangers, in passing such an amendment. There might have to be exceptions in years of national emergency or for other reasons. The people can act on these problems when they arise.

But for now, it's time the people's will worked its way. It's time that the nation passed the budget-balancing amendment. It's time we risk the amendment's dangers, rather than the danger of political leaders annually overspending; this has brought the country to the edge of a catastrophe--and nothing in the amendment could be worse than what we face today as a result of not having it.

Thus, admitting some of the arguments about the amendment's imperfections, one can easily see it's far better than the imperfections of recent years, which have robbed the average citizen of billions, wasted, and which have produced ruinous inflation and a weakened dollar. Also, a sound principle is involved--spending only as much money as one has.

Carter & Begin

It's now clear, after an assessment of the visits of Prime Minister Menachem Begin and President Anwar Sadat, that President Carter got no concessions from Begin.

The whole idea of the two visits was to prod or pressure Begin into living up to the spirit of the Camp David agreements of 1979. Sadat and Carter were agreed on what would be demanded from Israel in the way of agreements toward establishment of a real Palestinian homeland. The U.S. has every right to demand concessions, too, because of the massive flow of aid from U.S. taxpayers, which keeps Israel alive.

But the New York primary showed Carter what U.S. Jews could do--especially to a Democrat. And by the time Begin arrived, the challenge of Senator Ted Kennedy had become real. Carter therefore backed away from the strong posture he would like to have assumed. Begin gave not an inch. The U.S. achieved nothing.

Carter might have helped his nomination chances with this milk-toast performance. In fairness, it should also be noted that Kennedy and Ronald Reagan are outdoing Carter in demagoguing for Jewish votes. That didn't help the president.

NEWS REPORT FROM WASHINGTON

Congress & Rescue Try- Call For Logbooks- Why Only 8? The Abort-

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- Both the Senate and House Armed Services committees are intensely investigating the military's botched rescue effort in Iran. In recent days the chiefs of staff have been called before the committees. Penetrating questions have been asked.

President Carter, however, has limited the detailed information members of the Joint Chiefs may furnish Congress. At a recent session when logbooks were called for, by a committee member and the concurring chairman, committee members were told the logbooks would be produced but that there would be a delay.

A representative for Joint Chiefs Chairman David Jones initially told House Armed Services Committee that sandcreens had not been removed from the helicopters involved in the ill-fated venture. But the next day he recanted and admitted they had been removed--to gain three percent more power.

The investigation is centered on two key failures--the failure to provide adequate backup helicopters and the failure of the mission to continue with five copiers, one less than the plan called for.

The most stinging criticism of committee members is the unexplainable failure of planners to provide at least six backup helicopters. The Pentagon's unimpressive answer to this criticism is that the helicopters' mission-ready status had been greatly improved prior to the rescue effort.

The Pentagon claims the eight helicopters used, which normally have a mission-ready average of only 28 percent, had been improved up to 94 percent! That's the justification for having only two extra helicopters. (The average mission-ready capability of all helicopters is said to be only 40 percent.)

But the members have not been convinced of this claim, nor have many been convinced that the mission couldn't have been carried out with five copiers. The suspicion is that the five fully operational copiers could each have carried eight extra men and have had a good chance to get the rescue job done. The brass so far has denied this.

Some committee members are also not satisfied with the thus-far flat-out denial of the mission leader that he felt he could continue the rescue effort. There are conflicting reports about this, including the claim that some, that fateful night, wanted to continue and felt they could succeed.

enterprise system work for us today. Texas currently enjoys one of the most favorable business climates in the nation because of the free enterprise system. In a 1975 report entitled Ranking of the States by Business Climate, Texas ranked above all other states in terms of taxes, laws and regulations. Our state is one of the few which is currently free from the burden of corporate and personal income taxes. Property taxes generally run $50 below the national average depending on location. Gasoline and diesel fuel taxes are among the lowest of all the sunbelt states. In comparison with other industrial states, sunbelt states and states without an income tax, Texas has the lowest per capita tax burden. Tax figures such as these, which are created and maintained because of the free enterprise system, attract new personnel to Texas and make it the fastest growing state in the nation. Personal income has risen over 200 percent in the past ten years. Retail sales are at the third highest level in Texas. Our medical and educational facilities are the envy of many other states across the nation. The transportation system we enjoy is one of the finest anywhere in the world. And the list of attributes is endless. These facts and figures are but a few of the many examples of the free enterprise system in existence today. This system gives us all a chance to better ourselves in our professional and home environments. Maintaining the free enterprise system is one of the top priorities of the members of the Texas Legislature. I have always firmly believed that our government is at its best when it governs the least.

Mild '79-80 winter may mean famine for Texas insects

COLLEGE STATION — The spring may mean famine for some bugs as a result of one of the mildest Texas winters on record.

"It's possible the mild winter will delay bud break in the southern part of the state," warned Dr. Marvin Harris of Texas A&M University's Department of Entomology.

If that happens, some of the insects will die because nature's food chain has a triangular relationship of plant, insect and environment.

Harris explained trees and shrubs require a winter rest period to grow. The mild winter could very likely cause the trees to sleep in late, delaying their sprouting of new buds which will eventually turn into leaves.

Without leaves there is nothing for the insects or their offspring to eat, so it's goodbye bugs for this season.

JUNIOR HIGH STUDENTS HONORED-- Receiving the Most Valuable Player awards for the Three Way Junior High School were Artemio Guillen and Glenda Peacock.

The Board of Directors of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. in called session on Thursday, May 8, voted by the strong margin of 28 to 4 to support a bill commonly known as the "Kent Hance 65 percent of parity bill," numbered 6815 by the House Agriculture Committee.

The bill calls for minimum Commodity Credit Corporation loan levels at 65 percent of parity on wheat, feed grains, cotton and other farm commodities. PCG's action came on the heels of a PCG Board session with Congressman Hance the previous Monday in which Hance told members he would like to have strong support from the organization.

The new PCG position represents a dramatic reversal of standing PCG policy favoring cotton loans based on an average on U.S. spot market prices. That basic policy had been in effect without serious challenge since 1977.

A Budget Committee waiver and clearance from the House Rules Committee are now necessary before the Hance bill can be brought to the House floor. Hance has said he expects both the Budget and Rules Committees to act on the bill sometime this month, but in the meeting with the PCG Board gave it only a 10 to 20 percent chance for survival in the House.

Immediately after the Thursday meeting, PCG President Joe D. Unfred of New Home sent Congressman Hance the following telegram.

"PCG Board of Directors Thursday, May 8, voted 28 to 4 to support H.B. 6815. We stand ready to support your efforts. Please let us know your plans to move the bill to the floor and what we can do to expediate its enactment in time to be of assistance to producers in 1980."

Cotton's parity price as of April 30 was 106 cents per pound. Should the Hance bill beat the odds cited against it and become law, that parity price would set the cotton loan level at 68.9 cents per pound on the base quality, Strict Low Middling 1-1/16th inch, 3.5 to 4.9 micronaire at average location.

Parity prices are announced as of the end of each month, and presumably the actual loan level under the Hance bill would depend on when it became effective. Should the Hance bill not become law, and barring other legislative changes, the loan for 1980 will remain at 48 cents per pound as announced at the end of October.

The loan value of cotton qualities that dominate

High Plains production of course would be below that of the base quality. For example the base 1979 loan rate at High Plains warehouse locations was 50.35 cents while Strict Low Middling Light Spot 31/32 inch, 3.4 micronaire (used by statisticians as the average High Plains quality), was 644 "points" less, at 43.90.

Premiums and discounts that determine the loan value of individual qualities change from year to year. They have not been announced for 1980, but the 644-point 1979 discount applied to the hypothetical 68.9-cent base lone rate used above would bring the loan on the average High Plains quality to 62.46 cents.

Years when the quality of High Plains cotton falls below average, obviously its loan value would be lower. A case in point is 1979 when most High Plains cotton "miked" far below the multi-year 3.4 average, increasing the loan discount by as much as 540 points.

Nature does her best to persuade mankind that this is a pleasant earth.

If adults set the proper example, it might be possible for young people to follow their lead.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sandy Creek takes a look at foreign policy this week. It's hard to tell what he sees.

Dear editor:

In every newspaper and magazine you pick up and on every day's TV news lately America's foreign policy is one of the main subjects of discussion.

Some experts say our foreign policy is in shambles, others say it's not, while some like me and a good many Congressmen don't know what it is.

In all the discussion however the main point is always, "How is our foreign policy going to affect some other country?" How is it going to affect China? Or Japan, or South Africa? Or Egypt? Or Israel? Or England? We're always worrying about it.

Yet never have I heard of anybody in any of those countries ever worrying about how their foreign policy is going to affect us. Government officials in Washington are always worrying that if our foreign policy takes this turn or that turn we'll "lose" China or Yugoslavia or India or South Africa or whatever.

Don't any of these countries ever worry about losing us?

Isn't there anybody in the British Parliament saying if England's foreign policy takes such and such a position the United States will fall into the arms of Chad? You never heard of Chad? I hadn't either till a few weeks ago. It's a country down there somewhere I think in Africa or possibly Australia and this brings up something I've been giving some thought to.

There are I've been told about 200 countries in the world. I can see how a Secretary of State when he was in grammar school could, if he paid close attention and didn't keep looking out the window, memorize the names of the capitals of all the 50 states in the U.S. But I don't believe there's ever been a Secretary of State who could rattle off the names of all those 200 countries.

And if you don't know a country exists, how're you going to have a foreign policy towards it? How're you going to wring your hands over a country you have to look up in a geography book?

It's too big a problem. Me, I have all I can do wringing my hands over the weeds out here on this Johnson grass farm, a sizeable job, as I find it's impossible to wring your hands and swing a hoe at the same time. Like a foreign affairs expert, I generally settle for wringing my hands.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.
