4-H Leadership Training Set

During Summer

The National 4-H Council has announced the date for the 1980 Southern Regional 4-H Leadership Forum to be held at the Rock Eagle 4-H Center in Eatonton, Ga. The date for this year's forum has been set for October 13-17.

Each Extension district is allowed to have three volunteer adult or teen leaders as delegates to the leadership forum. Texas 4-H leader delegations have been going to Rock Eagle each fall since 1968.

This year's trip from Texas to Georgia may well be the best one ever. If enough -25 or more -4-H leaders will participate from our state, a chartered bus will be reserved. Ed Koliba, Area 4-H and Youth Specialist from District 12 will serve as 4-H staff coordinator for the trip.

The Southern Regional 4-H Leader Forum is a beautiful experience for leaders. It provides them with opportunities to meet 4-H volunteers, agents, and staff from the thirteen southern states, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. Rock Eagle is nestled among tall pine trees in central Georgia, and the autumn colors and climate add to the excitement of learning and sharing 4-H with 400 to 500 people from other parts of our country.

If you would like to know more about this exciting leadership training opportunity, contact - Jim Irwin, Bailey County Assistant Agent, in the courthouse. Call 272-4559 or come by anytime.

Educational programs sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service are open to all people regardless of race, sex, age, religion, socioeconomic levels, or national origin.

Muleshoe City Council to continue funding for the local office of the Texas Employment Commission through October 1, 1980.

Council members were notified that apparently no formal application has ever been made for state funding for the rent and utilities of the TEC office in Muleshoe, and such funding would be 'doubtful.'

Members of the council were undecided as to the need to continue funding, and said they need to know how much local interest is generated toward keeping the TEC office open here.

Interested persons are asked to contact Muleshoe City Manager Dave Marr and indicate your interest in the local office.

Also discussed during the meeting was a continuing spring and summer problem in the city of Muleshoe.

Grass clippings, small limbs and other debris which are placed alongside dumpsters should be placed inside the dumpster explained the city officials, and in no instance should discarded limbs, clippings, garbage or any other type of trash or discards be placed alongside a dumpster in any alley.

City officials are asking that all discards too large to be placed inside a dumpster be stacked behind the resident's own fence, or at the backside of their property.

A call to the city will obtain a flatbed truck, or Cont. on Page 6 Col 4

Sales Tax Rebate Check Is Increased

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said this week that May rebates to Texas cities of the one cent city sales tax will amount to $38.7 million.

Bullock said that while most cities will receive a larger check this month compared to the same period last year, he does not believe it's because the state's economy is growing at a robust pace.

'We've been tinkering around with our processing system to improve it over the past few months, and as a result, find allocations and rebates have shot up from time to time because of our improved handling of tax accounts,' he said.

Bullock said the overall sales tax collections from the first of the fiscal year through April were up

Ladies' Skating Will Continue Twice Monthly

For a first time, although the crowd was relatively small, the lady skaters of Muleshoe and the surrounding area pronounced the first 'Ladies Skating' a resounding success.

Saturday morning, following the first skating, it was decided to continue the skating on a regular twice-a-month basis, with the next lady's skating scheduled 2-5 p.m. on Saturday, May 31.

Nelda Merriott reminded that even if you are a beginner skater, there will be plenty of room to learn with other women, and get in a lot of good exercise at the same time.

The cost is only $1 for the three-hour skating, so buy, buy or borrow a pair of skates and join the other ladies on the skating floor at the Bailey County Exhibition Center and Coliseum.

$63,212.57, compared to the figure of $47,437.72 for the same length of time last year.

From Morton, the rebate shows an overall 11 percent increase for the year, with a major jump from the $1,780.48 rebated through May last year, and $4,951.99 in rebate checks through May, 1980 and this brings the years total to $18,745.07, compared to $16,825.59 for the same period of time last year.

Littlefield received a rebate check for $14,477.86, up just over 50 percent over the $6,538.95 received for May in 1979. For the year, they are reflecting a 22 percent increase, with 1979 collections to date of $67,231.54, compared to the $82,379.94 collected through May of this year.

At Friona, the current check rebated to the city was $6,073.17, as compared to the $2,981.40 for May, 1979. For the year, Friona shows a rebate increase of 24 percent with $29,312.52 rebated to date compared to the 1979 figure through May of $23,614.4.

Farwell shows the largest increase in total rebate for the year at around 39 percent. Rebate checks through May this year are $8,534.95, compared to $5,350.78 through May of last year. For the month of May this year, the Cont. on Page 6 Col 3

Social Security Business Can Be Done With Phone

With fuel prices going up the way they are, you probably spend a lot of time thinking about ways to cut down on energy costs. Perhaps this is a good time to remind you that most of your Social Security business can be handled by the phone.

What kinds of things can you do by phone? You can call Social Security offices for information and advice or to have them process actions in connection with your benefit or to file a claim for benefits.

Many people call ahead to verify office hours, or to ask what personal records they need to bring in, or where to write for a birth certificate or marriage record, or what Medicare pays for.

Other people call and ask us to process an action for them, like a change of address; or they ask for an estimate of what their retirement or disability benefits might be; or they report a lost benefit check.

And you can file most claims for benefits over the phone, such as retirement benefits for you and your family, or survivors benefits for widows, widowers and children. You can even apply for disability benefits over the phone, or file an appeal of a Social Security decision about your claim.

Here's how to do it. The Social Security employee will fill out the application over the phone by asking you questions, and then mail the forms to you. You review them for accuracy, sign them, and return them to the Social Security office. You can mail any personal records into Social Security; they will be photocopied and returned to you. But even if you would rather bring in the records yourself, you can save time and trouble if you have the application filled out over the phone, and then just drop off the necessary records afterwards.

In a few cases, a personal interview may be required. But I suggest you call first. You can usually save yourself a trip. At the very least, you can cut down the amount of time you might have to spend in the Social Security office if you come prepared. In those few instances where a personal interview is required, and you can't come into the office, Social Security will send a representative to your home. To serve everyone in the best possible way, we restrict such home visits to those who are severely disabled or who have trouble moving out.

To make telephone service more efficient, Social Security has been expanding the use of what we call "teleservice centers"—facilities with staff specialized in handling phone calls from the public. These centers cover a large population, like big metropolitan areas or, in some cases, an entire state. Our 32 telephone centers now service 90 million people. They can usually be reached by toll free numbers available to people living in the service area.

Teleservice centers help you in two ways: they simplify a lot of your business, because you do it by phone; and often they reduce the number of people who visit the local offices, saving you time if you choose to go into a district office yourself. And if you need to be referred to a local office, the telephone service center will direct you to the nearest one or have a Social Security employee return your call.

Over the years, Social Security has worked in other ways to make its service accessible and convenient. One way has been to expand our network of local and branch offices. We now have over 1300 offices in big cities and small towns across the country. And we send out Social Security representatives to contact points in small localities to deal with people who can't get to one of our offices. Again, if you are in the hospital or confined to the home, we send Social Security employees out to visit you.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhill's Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sandy Creek acts like a TV critic this week.

Dear editor:

Because of all the international whoopla I stayed up late and watched that television show, "Death of A Princess."

As a result I have concluded that the whole world is in its second childhood.

Hance Attacks Import, Profits Tax

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance recently announced his strong opposition to the new import fee imposed by President Carter.

Hance, who actively campaigned against the windfall profits tax, claimed the new tax on foreign oil would do nothing to help with the present energy crisis.

"The only thing to be accomplished by these two pieces of legislation will be higher fuel bills," Hance claimed. "Neither will solve the energy crisis even though they are being promoted as major parts of an energy plan. They are simply revenue producers for an already over-spending federal government."

In the next few weeks as the windfall profits tax takes effect, oil producers and royalty owners will see their profits being confiscated by this so-called windfall tax...

As you know if you watched too the show was about the execution of a Princess and the beheading of her male companion for violating the customs of Saudi Arabia. Saudi Arabia got so mad at the British for making the movie it kicked out the British ambassador, threatened to stop trading with England, and hinted it might stop selling the U.S. oil if the movie was shown over here.

This scared the State Department and it indicated it sure wished the film wouldn't be shown over here. The oil companies said they wished it wouldn't either because Saudi Arabia might stop selling them oil, right

And this is not just a tax on producers and royalty owners. It will be the consumers who will be heavily taxed because they will bear the brunt in overall higher fuel bills. The Texas congressman said the people will begin to experience the effects very soon of both the import fee, which will add 10 cents per gallon to gasoline prices, and the windfall profits tax.

"It won't be in the headlines now, it will be in the pocketbook."

Hance, who actively campaigned to exempt independent oil producers and royalty owners from the tax, said he hopes Congress will abolish the tax in upcoming Sessions. "We may see changes in Congress this year which could play a significant role. Also, I will be looking for the first opportunity to legislatively abolish both the import fee and windfall tax."

news as there are networks covering it.

It seems to me that any nation that takes a TV show seriously and threatens all sorts of reprisals against it, and any other nation that takes that objection seriously, is bound to be in its second childhood.

On the other hand, there are several shows on TV every week worth breaking off diplomatic relations over. Where do you apply?

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

TAX CREDIT & CARS

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. -- United Auto Workers President Douglas Fraser proposed a federal tax credit recently to persuade people to trade in their old cars for smaller, new American cars. The tax incentives would be aimed at motorists who own cars about 10 years old that get less than 10 miles per gallon, he said.

Cottonseed flour gives junk food a protein punch

COLLEGE STATION — Junk foods do not have to be filled with junk, claims a nutrition researcher at Texas A&M University.

Such delights as cookies, pies, cakes and candies can be healthy if given the protein punch of glandless cottonseed now being developed at Texas A&M.

"A cookie fortified with glandless cottonseed flour can have 40 percent more protein content," says Rhonda Simmons of Texas A&M's Food Protein Research and Development Center.

To get the 40 percent protein punch, the glandless cottonseed flour is substituted for 25 percent of the all purpose flour in a cookie recipe.

GTE Asking Customer Cooperation

General Telephone customers were urged today to dial their own long distance calls for the best results.

"Management people are manning our operator positions during the strike, and while they are making every effort to give our customers the best service, they are not the experienced operators customers are used to," R. Rex Bailey, vice-president-marketing and customer service said.

Bailey added, customers can usually dial several long distance calls for the price of an operator assisted call.

"If you are calling person-to-person, you can usually call the distant number, ask for the person you want to speak to, and if they are not available, determine when to call back, then call back at that time and still save money," he explained. Bailey added customers encountering a "fast busy" signal when dialing their own long distance call should hang up and try again.

"The faster than normal busy signal means all circuits are busy. The same circuits and if you are running into busy circuits, they will be encountering the same conditions.

Bailey said directory assistance services would not be fully staffed since studies indicate over 70 percent of calls to directory assistance are for numbers listed in the directory.

"If only those customers really needing directory assistance will call, calls will be answered promptly.

ly. However, if the load increases, customers dialing and not getting a prompt answer should let it ring instead of hanging up and redialing."

Horse Pastures Pay With Savings

College Station----Many extra dollars are spent unnecessarily each year on horse feed. For a sixth of the cost of store-bought feed, horse owners can transform nearby lots into good pastures, says a Texas Agricultural Extension Service Specialist. "Good pastures can help maintain healthy and happier horses by furnishing nutritious feed, exercise, sunshine and fresh air," says Dr. Dale A. Lovelace of Dallas, area forage specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Calculating yearly feed costs at $9.50 per hundred pounds and hay costs at $2.50 per bale, Lovelace says feeding horses totally with bought feed costs around $650 a year.

Establishing a pasture of coastal bermuda grass costs about $111.50 per acre the first year and around $45 annually per acre thereafter, says the specialist. Costs of establishing lovegrass and kleingrass pastures are less.

"You can have high quality pastures if you will choose the grass adapted to your area, follow a few simple rules in establishing it, and manage it with a little common sense," Lovelace insists.

Selecting the right grass to meet special needs is the first step in reducing those feed bills.

"Contrary to what we sometimes see printed, there is no 'miracle' grass," Lovelace says.

"Each grass has certain characteristics and requirements for maximum growth and adaptation to the various areas of the state."

For the best grass to fit conditions in a particular area, Lovelace suggests consulting the local County Extension agent.

Preparing the soil for establishing permanent pastures should be no different than preparing it for field crops. A good clean, firm seedbed is important in establishing permanent pastures either from seed or from sprigs. Fertilization is required for high yields of good quality forage adds Lovelace.

Since fertilizer requirements vary greatly from place to place, these needs can best be determined by taking soil samples. Soil sample boxes and information sheets along with instructions on how to take samples are available from any county Extension office.

Weeds can make the difference in whether or not pastures become established, warns Lovelace.

Weeds deprive new plantings of nutrients and moisture, retard grazing, and can completely crowd out new stands. Thus, good seedbed preparation and use of high quality, weed-free seed are helpful practices.

Mother is the name for God in the lips and hearts of little children.

-W.M. Thackeray.

Tarleton students train for careers in horse industry

STEPHENVILLE — Tarleton State University's efforts to train students for the multi-million-dollar horse business are paying off.

Tarleton State began its horse program in 1977 to train people for professions in horse production and management.

The program has now produced its first graduate, has some 80 students enrolled and is receiving inquiries from two dozen states, as well as France, Great Britain, Canada, Guatemala and Australia.

The operation — which offers a diploma in horse production and management — is still the only one of its kind in the Southwest, said Dr. Les Wymack, director of the program at Tarleton State, part of The Texas A&M University System.

Cattle Are Poisoned By Blister Beetles

An old familiar problem has been recently recognized in commercial horse feed. Spencer Tanksley, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A and M University System, said the problem is not a crisis and, "we do not want people to panic."

Blister beetle poisoning in livestock has been a widespread problem in the southwest for years, but frequency of toxic poisoning is low. Cantharidin is a toxic substance produced in the glands of blister beetles, Tanksley added.

Livestock poisoning occurs when animals eat fresh-cut forages or hay which was harvested while blister beetles were feeding. Beetles feed in swarms in small areas of a field so generally only a small fraction of the forage is contaminated. Adults should not occur in significant numbers until late July.

Tanksley said Cantharidin is highly toxic to horses and they may develop colic by eating only two to five beetles. Blister beetles can be found in any type of forage if weeds or other blooming plants are located in the fields. However, beetles are more attracted to alfalfa because of flowering at harvest. Alfalfa is an excellent horse feed, and the agent does not discourage its use as a livestock feed.

The blister beetle problem is not unique to Texas, and purchasing hay from other states will not solve the problem. The level of toxic cantharidin will vary between individual insects of the same species, and animal reaction depends on the number of beetles consumed.

Tanksley said a good understanding of the beetle's life cycle and feeding habits will help plan management strategies to reduce financial losses. The female beetle deposits up to 1,000 eggs in the ground where the larvae live and feed on insect eggs. Grasshopper eggs are the main host for developing immatures, and this close association causes concern for the 1980 production season since grasshopper numbers are expected to be up from 1979.

Following emergence, adult beetles congregate in swarms and feed on the pollen of flowering plants. Common host plants are potatoes, tomatoes, alfalfa and weed species like nightshade and pigweed.

Blister beetles suspected of causing most cantharidin poisoning are the three-striped blister beetle, Epicauta texana and E. occidentalis. The critical problem develops when large swarms of adult beetles are physically incorporated in feed during the harvesting process.

Adult beetles range in size from about 1/2 to 3/4 inch long. General body color is black with longitudinal yellow stripes on the elytra. The bodies are cylindrical, elongated and fairly soft to touch.

Inspection of baled hay for beetles is impractical, according to the Extension Agent. Detection of infested feed is difficult because the pest is small and may be found in only a few portions of a given lot of feed. Previous specimen collections and field observations indicate that hay cut before June 1 should be relatively free from adult blister beetles. Adults are mobile and can be found in pockets throughout a field. When inspecting a field, two days before harvest, Tanksley said to give extra attention to field margins. Adults will be migrating into the field from larval development areas and will be located in the field margins first. Beetle-infested areas should be left unharvested or sprayed with an insecticide. Tanksley said this approach will not guarantee absence of beetles, but will reduce higher populations in harvested hay.

Low-level populations are not as important as abundant adult populations which are suspected of causing the serious problems.

Winter storms can be stored for later use

COLLEGE STATION — Engineers at Texas A&M University have developed a method to store winter weather underground and use it for relief from scorching summer heat.

They have literally retrieved some of Texas' "blue northers" after six months of cold storage.

From November through February, water was sprayed into the cold winter air and chilled to an average 48 degrees. The water then was pumped into a 60-foot-deep underground aquifer for storage.

age. Since July the cold water has been pumped out again and could be used in air conditioning chilling systems, said project supervisor Dr. Donald E. Reddell.

With adequate return, a system moving 200 gallons of water per minute could provide air conditioning for a housing development of 40 homes for about a $2,500 initial investment per home. An annual operating cost of about $500 per year per household would be required.

Do You Know That?

The City of Muleshoe and Bailey County have in the last three years tried to give you the best possible emergency warning system that money could buy.

In the past three years they have installed a fully staffed and equipped Emergency Operating Center- that is in direct radio contact with all City-County-Fire and Civil Defense Units - also is in contact with KMUL and National Weather Service Office. This center is staffed by people that have been trained to operate under any type of emergency.

By using City County Law Enforcement Units along with city of Muleshoe units and approximately 50 well trained fire and civil defense people the Muleshoe-Bailey County Civil Defense can staff a spotting network that extends 20 miles out from Muleshoe covering the area like a net to make sure that any threatening weather will be spotted and the people of the area will receive notice in plenty of time to get to shelter. The shelters are opened and manned by Civil Defense People that stay in contact with emergency operating center by hand held portable two way radios each shelter is equipped with portable lights in case of power loss. Auxiliary generators are in operation at Emergency Operating Center- and KMUL so that the public can be informed of danger even with loss of electric power.

BUT . . . . .

Won't You Help Us Help You

Available in Muleshoe is the Storm Sentry.

We are selling them at our cost, which is $29.00. You may purchase your warning device at the Bailey County Exhibition Center and Coliseum. Only about 15 percent of the people in this area have the Storm Sentry. It will work for anyone within range of KMUL radio. It will work on electric power, or battery power in the event of electric power failure. You can be alerted and know all the details when any severe weather is found in our county, or the surrounding area. We can't tell you about it unless you have a Storm Sentry. If you feel the lives of your loved ones are worth $29.00, purchase them a Storm Sentry for protection.

Gardeners Should Know About Insects

"A stitch in time saves nine," especially when it involves insect control in the home vegetable garden, says Spencer Tanksley, County Agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A. and M. University System.

To insure good yields of high quality produce, insect control in the home garden is a "must," emphasizes Tanksley. So learning about these pests will prepare you for them when they arrive on the scene.

There are more than 30 insect pests which attack vegetables in the home garden, and these are divided into three groups. One group includes those insects which live in the soil and attack seedlings and underground parts of plants. These include cutworms, wireworms, soil maggots and white grubs.

The other two groups are sucking insects and chewing insects. Sucking insects damage plants by inserting their mouthparts into plant tissue and sucking plant juices. Sucking insects include aphids, whiteflies, leaf-hoppers, squash bugs and stink bugs.

Chewing insects damage plants by actually feeding on foliage, stems or fruit. This group includes cabbage loopers, armyworms, flea beetles, grasshoppers and many others.

However, not all insects are bad, Tanksley adds. There are numerous beneficial insects that prey on those that harm plants. These include preying mantids, assassin bugs, ladybird beetles, lacewings, parasitic wasps and spiders.

The Extension Service has a new publication, "Insects In Vegetables", that will help gardeners identify these different groups of insects. Come by the County Extension office for a copy, adds Tanksley.

Sudan News By Evelyn Ritchie

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Churchman left Friday for Serento, Ill. to visit their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Schweppe and Larry Dean.

Ken Williams was in Quannah over the weekend. His grandmother Mrs. Charlie Lowe and Johnny Nelson accompanied him. They did some fishing while there.

Marge Nelson and Donnie were in Seymour over the weekend.

Mrs. E.C. Minyard just returned from attending the funeral of her aunt, Miss Georgia Shaffer of Hamilton with Kathy and J.R. Anslows.

Those visiting in Lougelle Serratt's home last week were her sons, Kenneth and Delbert of Amarillo, Melvin of Hico and Bobie of Lovington.

Joy Logan accompanied her daughter Linda Hunter to Brownfield last Saturday, where Carrie, her granddaughter, competed in the gymnastic meet held there. Carrie won first place and will go on to compete in the nationals competition in Illinois this summer.

Evelyn Ritchie left Saturday for Denver to visit her daughter Andrea and family for a few days.

Natasha Bruton returned home with parents, Wednesday after a visit with her grandparents and uncles, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Nelson, Donnie and Johnny.

Cage Tomatoes Yield Higher; Less Diseases

Instead of staking and pruning tomatoes this year, use wire cages to support the plants, suggests Spencer Tanksley, County Extension agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Caging offers the home vegetable gardener in Bailey County several advantages, including less sun burn and higher yields with less work. Ground rot and fruit cracking are also reduced in cage-grown tomatoes.

According to Tanksley, cages can be constructed from concrete reinforcing wire, hog wire, or any other sturdy wire mesh that has openings of at least four inches. Cut and bend the mesh material into cylinders, then fasten the ends together and snip off the bottom rung. By cutting off the bottom rung, cages can be pushed into the ground about six inches for support. Make cages 18 to 20 inches in diameter and 2 1/2 to 5 feet tall.

Tanksley says all varieties will do well in cages but suggests high-yielding, disease resistant tomatoes such as Bigset, Bonus, Spring Giant, Better Boy, Floramerica and Terrific.

Space plants about 2 1/2 to 3 feet apart in the row, with 4 to 5 feet between rows.

Place a cage over each plant, making sure it is well anchored into the ground. The wire mesh will support the growing plant. No suckering, pruning or training will be necessary. As fruit ripens, pick it through the cage openings.

Initial expense of cages may seem high, but they can be stored and used each year, says Tanksley. Cages can also be used for growing other trailing crops such as cucumbers and pole beans.

Crop Sales Reach New 'High'

College Station—Cash receipts from Texas crops helped boost total agricultural sales receipts to a new high in 1979. Although final figures are not yet in, Texas Agricultural Extension Service estimates place cash receipts from crops at more than $3.9 billion, up from $2.9 billion in 1978. Last year's crop receipts should have an agribusness impact of about $16 billion on the Texas economy. The big jump in cash receipts was due in part to a bumper cotton crop.

says Dr. Carl Anderson, Extension economist in marketing. Intensified efforts in using short-season production systems boosted projected receipts on the 1979 crop to $1.5 billion. An estimated 6.8 million acres were harvested, producing 5.5 million bales. The South Plains area of Texas brought in the bulk of cotton receipts with an estimated $100 million. The Rolling Plains region had the second highest cotton receipts at $24 million. Grain sorghum came in second in estimated sales in 1979 with around $432 million. The actual acreage of sorghum harvested declined by 150,000 acres from 1978, yet receipts increased more than $190 million because of higher prices. The Panhandle region boasted the highest cash value from grain sorghum this year at almost $190 million. The Coastal Bend region came in second with sorghum valued at $110 million. The wheat crop made a sharp gain in 1979, notes Anderson. Texas wheat farmers harvested 4.6 million acres for total estimated cash receipts of more than $415 million, up 167 percent from 1978 when the crop totaled only $155 million. Yields averaging 30 bushels per acre set a record in Texas.

farmers sold their crop for $49 million. A record peanut crop of 516 million pounds brought in receipts of almost $97 million. Central Texas growers led the pack with a $37 million crop while Southwest Texas farmers received an estimated $22 million for their peanuts. Hay was the tenth best seller in the state, bringing in an estimated $65 million in actual sales. Most hay is produced and fed to livestock on the farm. Therefore, cash sales of hay account for only a small part of the total value of hay produced, notes Anderson. North Central Texas farmers cut an estimated $75 million worth of hay followed by Northeast Texas with more than $66 million worth of hay harvested.

Estimated cash receipts in 1979 from other major crops in Texas included pecans, $48.5 million; melons, $48 million; grapefruit, $27 million; sugar cane, $18 million; and oranges, $14 million. While cash receipts from crops were up last year in Texas, net farm income made only slight gains due to increased production costs, points out Anderson. And in the wake of high interest rates and high levels of inflation, the squeeze between costs and sales receipts will be even more severe in 1980. Thus producers will likely hold off on purchasing certain inputs, such as machinery. Great men's faults are never small. —John Clarke.

Vegetable sales totaled $223 million. Sales in South Texas are estimated at $116 million while Southwest Texas farmers registered sales of $27 million. A surprising $160 million was estimated in cash receipts by the Texas nursery industry in 1979, points out Anderson. The Upper Coast showed an estimated $42 million for nursery crops while Northeast Texas posted nursery crop sales of more than $40 million in 1979. Cash receipts from soybeans placed eighth on the Texas crop list. Soybeans, harvested on more than 800,000 acres, brought in an estimated $143 million. Upper Coast farmers got an estimated $81 million for their soybean crop while South Plains Tanksley said fertilizer recommendations are usually based on trunk diameter, making no allowances for confined root zones. This can result in overfertilization, damaging some trees.

 The safest method of computing fertilizer amount is to determine the number of square feet in the tree's branch spread, suggests Tanksley. Then apply two pounds of actual nitrogen for every 1,000 square feet of branch spread.
 For example, a 36-foot branch spread covers about 1,000 square feet. Therefore, 24 pounds of 8-8-8 are required to supply the necessary actual nitrogen amount (24 actual nitrogen amount (24 x .08 equals 1.92). If 16-20-0 is used, 12 pounds would be needed (12 x .16 equals 1.92).

However, if the root zone is confined due to buildings, curbs, walks or streets, compute fertilizer application on actual root zone area, says Tanksley.

If the root zone is 12 feet by 20 feet, or 240 square feet, only 1/4 as much fertilizer is needed as in the above example.

To compensate for the reduced root area, make one fertilizer application in late winter or early spring and a second application in late fall.

The County Agent recommends spreading the fertilizer evenly beneath the branch spread. There is seldom any need for drilling holes into the soil if fertilizer is thoroughly watered in after application.

For more information, obtain a copy of the fact sheet L-1097, "Fertilizing Woody Ornamentals," available at the county Extension office, suggests Tanksley.
