Paris: Many Newspapers
Surprise for Karl Marx
Mr. Eden Was Tired Out
A Big Somersault

This world is really no bigger,
now, than the palm of your hand;

wherever you are, news comes pouring in—a Pullman car on the Mohave desert has the "Examiner"; flying across, the Levand brothers hurry to the airfield at Wichita with the latest "Beacon"; and on the ocean, a newspaper appears every day; the radio feeds it; in Paris, ten times as many newspapers as are published in New York tell you anything you choose to believe, from editorials written by men who do not know that the royal and imperial French families died and were buried after the war of 1870 to fery-eyed moderns who think they can graft Karl Marx and Lenin on Jacques Bonhomme, the French peasant, and produce a French Utopia, with a Russian accent and a pair of high boots.

They do not know Jacques Bonhomme, who bought his land in the revolution at bargain prices with inflated assignats, and means to keep it, nor do they know the small-sized French bourgeois, who thinks more of one four-cent franc than some of our governing geniuses think of a billion 59-cent dollars.

The Marx-Stalin-Lenin brotherhood in America, by the way, does not understand the inside feelings of the U. S. A. citizen, with his bungalow, automobile, radio set, washing machine and furniture, all "nearly paid for."

Send HIM, instead of a bill for his last installment, the statement, "No more private property," and see what he says and does.

You take your choice of dozens of Paris daily newspapers; the wild kind, that say anything and lose money; the tame kind, that say nothing and make money, but very little of it; the mummified kind, that still take "Madame La Marquise" seriously, and think themselves back in the days of old Madame De Defand and Lord Bolingbroke.

You have, also, newspapers from all the Lilliput countries nearby—English, Italian, German—and the news is in them, only you must know how to extract it. They are queer little newspapers, and if that be provincialism, make the most of it.

In London, for instance, Lord Rothermere's newspaper tells you that Mr. Eden, British foreign secretary, has gone to "a secret destination" in the country for a week's rest.

English statesmen always go to "a secret destination," for reasons unknown to Mr. James Farley, who relaxes at the ringside, or President Roosevelt, who rests fishing, on a battleship, with fifty reporters on another ship, nearby.

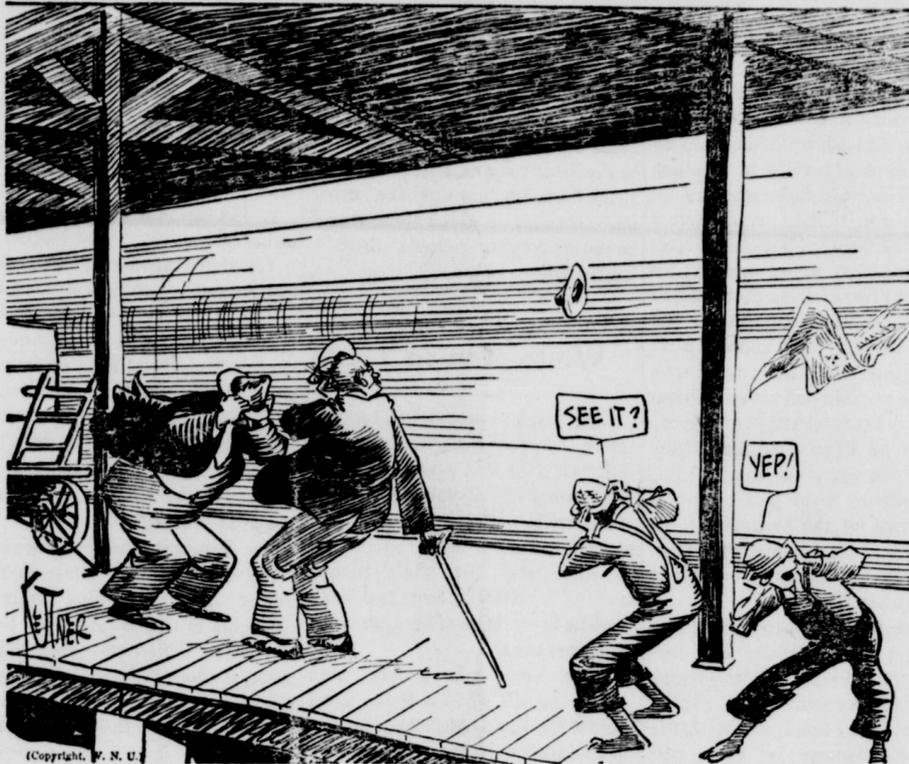

You wonder that a man as young as Eden should need a rest. Gladstone, at nearly twice his age, was talking in the Commons at four in the morning—but Gladstones are few, Tim Healy's also.

Rothermere's writer thinks Eden is all tired out after his Geneva speech, telling just why England lifted the Italian sanctions. It was he who made a speech recently, just as earnest and much louder, telling why those sanctions must NEVER be lifted. That was turned a big somersault. The English know how to do that, and you are supposed to laugh.

Eden told Baldwin what the doctor said, and Baldwin said, "By all means, my boy, hurry off to a secret destination," and Eden hurried. In America, the business man would say, "Doctor, there are a few things that I must settle first," meaning, perhaps, his income tax. He would hang on one day, and finally go to a really secret destination, in the graveyard.

SUNDAY MAIL

There is a petition being circulated and numerous signed by the patrons of the Sterling City postoffice asking the Postoffice Department to extend the Sunday mail service on from Carlsbad to Sterling City.

This is no new thing. For many years, the News Record has urged that this most necessary service be established, but it has always met with sufficient opposition to defeat it, although the real business men of the town realize the benefits of it.

As a recognition of this necessity, private enterprise has undertaken to supply this lack of service by having the Fort Worth Star-Telegram and San Angelo Standard transported to Sterling City by bus, and through the courtesy of the management of the Butler Drug Co. these papers are distributed to subscribers. The employes of this concern play postmaster for several hours every Sunday morning, while the bus man plays mail carrier.

While the folks enjoy their Sunday papers, yet, they realize that a letter that might mean much to them which is due to arrive on Sunday, is held over until Monday noon. A package of perishable matter that should be due to arrive on Sunday as it would be in almost any other town, is delayed in transit—from Saturday noon until Monday noon.

Big Springs, Coahoma, Westbrook Colorado, Bronte, Colman, Ballinger San Angelo, Merizon, Barnhart, Big Lake, Carlsbad or Sanitorium, (26 miles east of here on a good paved road) all have their Sunday mails. If it is good for these towns, why shouldn't it be good for Sterling? If not, will someone arise and give a sane reason.

Some say that we do not need a Sunday mail. This is what they told me when we were using an old board shack for a school building and we wanted to erect a stone building for the Sterling City kiddies. They said we could patch up the old board shack and make it do for several years, but they went ahead and erected it and now they are proud of it. They may not have needed it, but they thought they did.

When the county's costly records were housed in an old wooden fire-trap and we wanted to build a new court house, there were those who said we didn't need it. They said it would break the county to build a $25,000 court house. We thought we needed it and went ahead and built it, and the county isn't broke yet.

In 1909, we wanted to build the Santa Fe into Sterling City. While the move was popular, yet, there were those who said we didn't need it. We thought we did, and we built it. Since it was finished, I have heard no one kick about it.

In 1920, our present magnificent school was divided into about a dozen little makeshift schools scattered over the county. They were operated from 40 days to six months with the town school, by straining itself, managed to run nine months. We saw that the poor little kiddies didn't have as much break as the little niggers of East Texas, yet, when all these makeshift schools were consolidated and converted into decent schools of which we all are so proud, there were those who said we did not need it. In fact some wanted to lick me because I had a hand in helping to establish decent schools in Sterling County. Some are still so sore about it that instead of subscribing for the News-Record, the county.

County Chairman Pearce says that a runoff in Sterling County will not be held unless candidates pay the expenses of a runoff election.

Lone Star Awarded To Woodrow Mills

Woodrow Mills, member of the Sterling City Future Rancher Chapter, was awarded the Lone Star Farmer Degree, the highest honor given by the Texas Association of Future Farmers, in recognition of his outstanding work as a student in vocational agriculture. This degree was awarded at the State Convention of Future Farmers and Ranchers held at Stephenville, July 23, 24, and 25.

The awarding of this degree to Woodrow makes the third degree of this kind won by Sterling boys. Herbert Mills and Roy Tom Foster being the other local boys that have gained this recognition. Herbert is now an American Farmer.

Reynolds Foster, Finis Westbrook and adviser, H. M. Carter attended the convention. Over 800 boys from all parts of Texas were present for the three day meet.

Our V. A. Instructor Is Taking Short Course

H. M. Carter, local V. A. teacher is attending a ten day short course put on by Swift & Company at Fort Worth. The work consists of working with the cattle and sheep buyers in the stock yards, determining what class and grade the different animals fall into, following the animals on through the packing plant, and then grading the carcasses after they had gone to the chilling room.

Following this work at Fort Worth, Mr. Carter will attend the District Conference held at Alpine by the Area II. Supervisor A. J. Bierschwale, assisted by representatives of the State Vocational Department of Austin and A. & M. College.

Worth Durham came in from Austin last Sunday. Worth has just completed his law course at the University of Texas, receiving a LL. B. degree, and is now a full fledged lawyer.

With The H. D. Clubs

Mesdames Henry Merrell and Jim Henshaw, the foods demonstrators in the Sterling City Home Demonstration club, have each made extensive plans for the year's work in the home foods supply demonstration. Both have planned a canning budget to fit the needs of their families. Their goal is to, as nearly as possible, provide, equipt and fill a pantry whereby they can actually "live-at-home" twelve months out of each year.

Each is planning a fall garden and a winter salad bed. Mrs. Merrell will use an old hot-bed which she will re-fertilize. Mrs. Henshaw has plans for making her hot-bed using old material which she has. Sub-irrigation is to be tried by both these ladies in their fall gardens. Mrs. Merrell has about 40 feet of old discarded iron pipe, and after boring holes 12 inches apart, these will be laid some ten inches deep. Both these demonstrators will use some home-made concrete tile. This method of sub-irrigation will cut down labor in irrigating the garden, and lessen the amount of water needed, and will prevent the crusting of the top soil.

A meeting of girls who are working on summer projects was held at the high school Tuesday, July 28. The girls made oral reports on their summer project plans and progress up to this time.

Some very interesting projects are being carried on in room improvement and various other phases of homemaking.

The Mexican ladies in Sterling City and vicinity are to meet with Misses Mildred Simpson and Delene Reid Thursday afternoon at the Mexican School for the organization of a Home Demonstration Club for these people.

The County Home Demonstration Council will meet Saturday in the Home Demonstration Office for a business session.

Boro: On the 24th to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Foster, a girl.

In the primary last Saturday, Congressman South polled 215 votes in Sterling County. His opponent, H. F. Miller, a Townsendsite polled 207 votes. Those who are posted say that there are not over a dozen Townsend advocates in Sterling County, and under normal circumstances, Miller's vote would have been very light. They say the Miller vote was cast as a protest against South's conduct in the recent post office controversy. There were 65 who declined to vote for either candidate. South is not at all popular in Sterling County.—Uncle Bill

GOOD NEIGHBORS

Speaking of good neighbors, Tom Fullick relates that once upon a time he loaned one of his neighbors a garden plow. After this neighbor had used the plow for several months, Tom needed the plow and asked his good neighbor to return it when convenient. He did so and charged Tom a dollar for hauling his plow home. Instead of kicking the pants off of this grafter, Tom handed over the dollar.

And this reminds me that last winter I loaned a man my crosscut saw to saw up some wood. After getting the job done, he lost the saw. The man is gone, so is the saw. I need it. I would gladly do like Tom Fullick did to get it back. It does one good to have such people for friends and neighbors.

Another good neighbor of mine swiped two long 4x4 planks together with a lot of other pieces of lumber from the printshop a few nights ago. If I find this obliging neighbor and he fails to return this stuff, I hope Dr. Swann will be reasonable with me in his charges for picking the charge of No. 6's out of the neighbor's skin. I also hope that the jury will not bear down too hard on me for planting the crop.—Uncle Bill

THIS WEEK

Driving through Normandy, from Havre, where the ships land, would interest American farmers, especially any whose lands are "worn out" after comparatively few years of cultivation. On lands in this part of the world, wheat has been grown for three hundred years, and today yields better, bigger crops than ever.

In Rome, as in other places on the earth's surface, one city is piled upon another. Dig down through one and the other appears. Invasions, plagues, famines and the grinding ice have wiped them out.

Those that read this today are the descendants of men such as the inhabitants of the Stone age villages. And still we are worried, looking down at the enemy, poverty, that may climb up and attack us in old age.

they borrow it from their neighbor—they all read it.

The construction of highway no. 9 was a popular measure, however, there were those who said we didn't need it, but we went ahead and got the road. We may have not needed it, yet, we thought we did and most everyone likes it and thinks it is worth the money. Only for this road Sterling City would look like 30 cts

This again leads up to the question of Sunday mail service in Sterling City. There are those who say we don't need it. They can't give a salient reason why, but they object to it, because it would interfere for an hour or two with the postmaster's religious meditations, devotions and Sunday's rest. God knows I don't want to interfere with any man's religious worship—not even a Chinaman's. I respect religion of every kind, for we all need all the religion we can get, and then some, but I am wondering if the post office is maintained for the benefit of its patrons and the welfare of the town which it serves, or for the benefit of the postmaster?

The persons who sign this petition think they need a Sunday mail service which amounts to the same thing as if they really need it. Those who think they don't, would suffer no possible damage or harm, and surely they ought to be sports enough to allow their neighbors to have that which they want and think they need when no possible harm could come of it.

I respect every man's idea of Sunday, but I am not so strong as the Jews were about the Sabbath when Jerusalem was besieged by a hord of heathen enemies. These enemies had been successfully beaten and held at bay until the Sabbath. The Jews were so full of this Sabbath Day religion that they refused to fight on that day, and as a result, the city was burned and the inhabitants slaughtered.

Now some of you boys may get sore about what I have said in this writing. I have tried to make myself plain. If you do get sore about it, come around and take it out on me. I am old and tough and my back is broad, but for Pete's sake do not play the coward by stopping the paper without paying for it; don't kick my dog, kill my young chickens, pull up my young corn or put up a dirty job on my children and grandchildren—take it out on me.

I am going to die one of these days. When I do, they will lay me over yonder on the bill. When they do, all you boys who are sore at me because I helped to bring all these things of which I have often written, each of you contribute a large stone and build a monument over my bones that the children of men may read of what you conceive to be my perfidy. Inscribe on each stone my greatest sin in your estimation. Let the man who glories in ignorance and who is sore at me because I deplore it, carve on his stone: "He loved children. He helped to tax me to build a school house for them."

Let the next one carve: "He helped to tax me to build the court house."

And the next one: "He helped to build the railroad."

The fourth one: "Here lies my inveterate enemy. He was among those who were instrumental in consolidating the schools for which we are taxed."

The fifth man will inscribe: "He helped to build the highway."

Number six will say: "He was always for the good of the town and county."

Number seven will write on his stone: He helped to establish a

Sunday mail service and other fool things. Let him be damned.'

Let them build a monument to the memory of these sins that all the world may read what a visionary creature I have been and of the miseries I have dealt them in helping to conquer the wilderness and make it a better place for humans to live. At that moment I shall peep over the Pearly Gates and say: "Boys, don't kick my dog or put up a dirty job on my children because I did these things that you have written on the stones that mark where my bones are. If you, through some hook or crook ever ascend to the Pearly Gates, I shall ask St. Peter for a transfer to the other place because I think there would be more congenial souls there.—Uncle Bill

Landing of The First White Men In Texas

Four hundred and eight years ago the thunderous green surf of the Gulf cast a curious cargo upon the white sands of Galveston Beach. It was a crude raft, fashioned of palmetto logs calked with pitch and lashed together with green thongs made of horsehide. Sails fashioned of white linen shirts of Spanish noble men were used.

There were only sixteen men aboard the raft when it broke itself against the shores of Texas, and of that number only four were ever to come out of the wild and barbarous land alive: Cabeza de Vaca, treasurer to the King of Spain; Dorantes, Castillo, and the first Negro to enter the Land of the Tejas, Estavatico, the Moorish slave.

The shipwrecked party found an Indian dog, gathered some wild onion and added the last of their corn grains. The first stew ever concocted by a white man in Texas was cooked and eaten, and then the Conquistadores, who were all that was left of the Panfilo Narvaez expedition that had landed on the coast of Florida early that spring, set about rebuilding their raft.

But fate and the waters were against them. They piled all their clothes, their armor, their weapons and provisions upon the reconstructed raft and tried to launch it. Only to be tossed back upon the beach by waves, their goods and chattels at the bottom of the Gulf. The Conquerors, who had set out to make conquest of the New World, were conquered by it.

It was the year 1528, and winter, biting cold.

The Indians came and made them captive and the saga of seven years of torture, servitude, and slavery began. These were the first men to explore Texas, and from their story when they reached Spanish settlements in 1536 came the legend of the Seven Golden Cities of the Cibola the mirage toward which many gallant men were to struggle during the next century.

The fantastic story of Cabeza de Vaca and his three companions is one of the outstanding dramatic moments in the Cavalcado of Texas the Texas Centennial Exposition's greatest show, which is now playing twenty performances each week to packed houses at the Exposition.

If you want to buy the best of groceries at a modest price, go to Hornbuckle's. He will make you glad that you did so.

W. M. S. Program

The W. M. S. had its regular monthly program taken from the "World Outlook" at the Methodist church Monday, June 27.

Mrs. Lester Foster had charge of the program, the theme being "Working Together in Schools." "Togetherness," in connection with the scripture lesson taken from Cor. I, and Heb. was ably given by Mrs. Lester Foster. Mrs. John Welch led in prayer, and a letter concerning Singing College from Dr. Wu Yi Fang was given by Mrs. Jim Atkinson. Mesdames Rufus Foster and Templeton Foster presented an interesting dialogue in which graduates from the Bible Teacher's Training School, Nanking, China, tell of their school. A report was given by Mrs. W. McDonald on Euba College. The program was closed by a prayer.

Plans were discussed and made for a basket picnic to be given at the City Park at the next meeting August 17th.

R. S. Williams Leaves Hospital

R. S. Williams, 44-year old Dallas broker who, with five others were hurt in a car wreck on highway 9 opposite the H. H. Allard ranch about two weeks ago, was able to leave the hospital at San Angelo and go to his home in Dallas last Tuesday.

Williams suffered a brain concussion which rendered him unconscious for over a week. The five others hurt in the collision have all recovered. The cars were hopeless wrecks.

Oil and Gas Bargains

Up at the Open Air Service Station D. O. Mercer is selling Cosden Gasoline for one cent per gallon LESS

Why not give Cosden Gas a trial? It is fine motor fuel. It will get you there and back for less money. A cent on the gallon soon runs into money.
