Once All Walked

Germany and Italy, meaning Hitler and Mussolini, are said to be working together closely. They are to control Austria, and Hitler's share in the control might not please that intensely Catholic country too well. Germany's influence will increase along the Danube. Germany and Italy combining make that possible, with nobody inclined to fight about it.

In return for recognizing Italian sovereignty in Ethiopia Hitler is to have important Ethiopian concessions.

A million years ago, when our ancestors went out seeking something to eat, preferably some feeble human being easily killed, everybody walked. Now nearly everybody rides. Across George Washington bridge over the Hudson river, opened five years ago, about 100,000,000 human beings have crossed in 31,000,000 automobiles, while fewer than 1,000,000 have crossed on foot. Buses alone carried 11,638,000 over the bridge.

How rapidly progress moves once it starts! Seventy-five years ago, both sides of our country were connected by telegraph for the first time. Now men talk around the world by radio. Seventy-five years ago they only talked across the continent, now they fly the continent and on beyond, across the Pacific ocean.

Those hostile to new ideas might remember that a little more than seventy-five years ago men were beaten for re-election to congress because, as the voters put it, "they were foolish enough to vote money to experiment talking over wires." They were defeated for willingness to have the government try out Morse's electric telegraph idea.

Berlin reports that German book-sellers must sell, and Germans must read, only books that the government thinks they ought to sell and read. The public will be compelled with "loving force" to read what is good for them.

That takes Germany back to the Seventeenth century, when the English government decided that Englishmen must read only what the government thought was good for them.

All books must be submitted and wait for approval before printing. Along came a man named John Milton with his book the Areopagitica, printed by him without anybody's permission, denouncing an infamous law that would control men's minds and freedom of thought. That settled it; the law died.

Somebody will kill it in Germany, in time.

In the Spanish civil war, hostages have been seized, on both sides, including many women, and are held with this threat: "If you kill hostages taken from my side, I'll kill yours."

England and other countries almost tearfully are begging both sides in Spain to exchange hostages instead of murdering them; the British government officially expresses the fear that women "are in danger of wholesale massacre." Nice civilization, is it not?"

Dr. Bakst, young teacher of mathematics at Columbia university, thinks he has a sure formula for winning on horse races; "he tried it and won, 1,000 times, not with money, just mentally."

Anybody can win mentally, they do it constantly at Monte Carlo and elsewhere, but nobody can win money, except accidentally—never on the long run.

A brave truck driver, name unknown, saw a lady with a difficult name, Mrs. Anastasia Aduszkia.

Election Is Landslide For The Democrats

Lions Club Putting On A Benefit Program

Ripping, fast-moving, delightfully different comedy; stifling suspense, hair-raising excitement, and chilling terror intermingled with hilarious, side-splitting capers in the three one-act plays to be presented by the Lions Club Players on the high school stage Thursday night, November 12.

Keen humor is the first offering a clever domestic skit entitled "A Pipe of Peace" to be played by Gus Barr, Harry Ethyl Hubbel and Willie Mae Meyer.

Miss Hubbell has done dramatic work with amateur groups at San Antonio, Junction and here before, appearing in such notable plays as "The Thirteenth Chair" and "A Pair Of Lunatics".

Gus Barr has done amateur work here and at San Marcos Teachers College where he was a member of the college dramatic club, and a student of dramatic and speech arts. His most notable appearance on his college stage was in the role of Androcles in George Bernard Shaw's brilliant satire "Androcles And The Lion."

Willie Mae Meyer will be remembered for her splendid characterization of the poetry-writing, love-sick daughter of the newly-rich society smitten Smith in "Crashing Society." Also for her scintillation bit in that hilarious one-act, "Betty Behave."

The second show of the evening, "Show-up" is a gripping, dynamic drama; an emotional avalanche built on the efforts between eleven and twelve o'clock of a prominent actress to save her brother, who is falsely accused of murder, from a mid night electrocution. The players are Albertine Hallmark, Annie Lee Pearce, C. T. Sharp and Gus Barr.

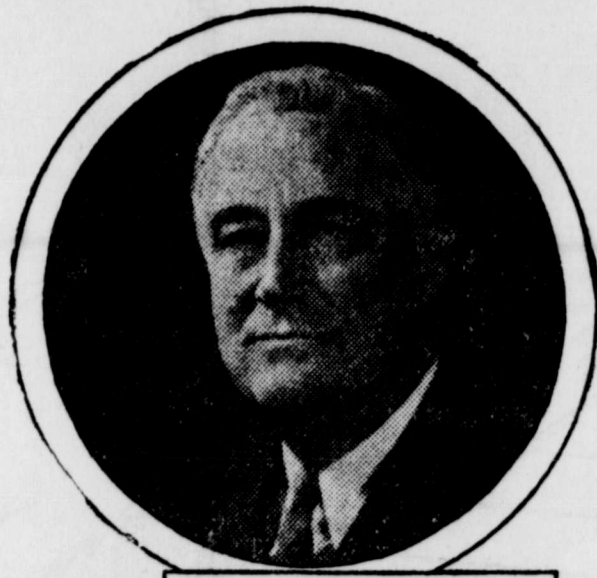

The work of Albertine Hallmark in "Show-up" is expected to gain for her even more praise than her stellar performance in that very clever presentation of the Junior class last year, "Climbing Roses".

Annie Lee Pearce shifts her assortment of talents and pulls out another trick with her work in "Show up" that compares favorably with her two-piano rendition of "12th Street Rag" on last year's Lions program. Those who can be impressed will never forget that sizzling arrangement and the deftness with which it was rendered. And her role in "Show-up" will prove another unforgettable performance.

C. T. Sharp is a natural in his role of a sympathetic, kindly, soft-voiced police lieutenant.

Starring Henry Latham, veteran of many successful local presentations, the third play, "Hugo In A Hurry" is a scream from beginning to end. Its comic situations, clever lines, and the antics of Hugo make it uproariously funny from the first speech to the time when Hugo, who is to be married that night remembers that he has forgotten to get the license. Of course that is very sad.

Others who complete the cast are George Sullivan, whose role is also good for many laughs, Pearl Faris, the trouble maker, Mary Arnold Hefley, the wife who is sacrificing her happiness to take up chairty work. Willie Mae Meyer, who tries to keep down trouble, and D. L. Hunt

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT
re-elected President of the

the disillusioned husband who feels sure that the silly notions in his wife's head were not there when he married her.

The curtain will be raised on the first of these one-act plays promptly at 8:30 p. m. according to Gus Barr who is the director-in-charge of the program. Tickets will be on sale several days before the performance. All proceeds will be used by the Lions Club in community charitable enterprises. Admission charges are to be ten cents for children, twenty-five cents for high school student and thirty-five cents for adults.

Wimodausis Entertains For Federated Clubs President

To honor Miss Ethel Foster, president elect of the Sixth District, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, and the charter members of the local group, the Wimodausis Club entertained with a luncheon, Wednesday, in the home of Mrs. Claude Collins.

Special guests for the occasion were Mrs. Frank Friend, first vice-president of the state, and Mrs. E. S. Noble, a district chairman, both of San Angelo.

Mrs. W. N. Reed, Wimodausis president, made the welcome address to which Mrs. W. E. Allen responded on the part of charter members.

"The Club of the Future" was Miss Foster's topic. She urged cooperation with state and district organizations in carrying out to the fullest extent the programs outlined by such groups.

As an entertainment feature, Mrs. W. W. Lipps read "The Last Leaf," a short story by O. Henry, and Mrs. Claude Collins Jr. played "Ballade in A Flat" by Chopin as a piano solo.

Mrs. Friend spoke on pioneer women and their achievements while helpful suggestions on club institute and parliamentary drills were given by Mrs. Noble.

The Collins home was artistically decorated with roses and dahlias. Imported Dresden china flowers as place card holders carried out the scheme.

Hostesses assisting Mrs. Collins: Mesdames R.P. Brown, O.D. Worthy, C. A. Bowen, Nick Reed, Ralph Collins, J. B. Atkinson, Sam Mahaffey, H. B. Lane and Raymond Collier. Other club guests were Mesdames Templeton Foster, John Reed, Pat Kellis, R. L. Lowe, V. E. Davis, W. L. Foster, Fowler McEntire, O. T. Jones, W. E. Allen, Erie Conger, W. W. Lipps, Miss Prebble Durham and Miss Ethel Foster and the two San Angeloans.

Think They Have Discovered Gold

H. Clay Read and son, Earl, are convinced they have unearthed flour gold near our city which will result in a big development program when the proper machinery has been installed to recover the gold. They have recently found additional areas in which flour gold is in evidence.

The new tract is 1800 feet long and is three quarters of a mile west of the original discovery.

They have now located an area containing more than one billion tons of flour gold bearing material and they ask that the public visit this deposit, secure samples and send them to reliable assay offices in any part of the nation and ask for an essay on flour gold.

They have also discovered, at right angles to their original discovery tract, three immense deposits of decomposed lava. These outcroppings showing a face of 18 feet lay 400 feet south and 40 feet below the original. Seemingly the lava was forced up through the original gold bearing sands. The decomposed lava carries showings of gold and silver.

Mr. Read is repairing a washed out section of the road leading to the coming gold field one mile north-east of the city and as soon as this is completed he invites one and all to go out and secure samples.—Big Springs News

Ship Live Foxes

Last week we made mention of the fact that R. P. Brown had a contract to deliver 24 live foxes to a Fox Hunters Association in East Texas.

Last Friday Mr. Brown shipped out 23 of the 24 live foxes that had been gathered off the range within a week by Thad Green, C. J. Dunn and others. They had captured 25, but the dogs killed two of them before the hunters could rescue them.

As before stated, the hunters took their dogs out in cars and let them out on a fox trail. After being chased, the fox would climb up a tree and then a man would climb after him, catch him and put him in a sack without hurting him. The boys received $46 for their catch and had a lot of sport besides.

The P. T. A. and Wimodausis club are asking the people of Sterling to cooperate in clothing destitute and needy school children. If any one has out grown clothing and shoes to fit boys and girls, ages 6 to 14 years, please send these things at once to Seth Bailey's store. The clubs will place the clothing where it is most needed. Thank you.

Republicans Suffer Most Decisive Defeat In History of Party, Losing All State And National Control

5 STATE AMENDMENTS CARRY

Reports over the Nation show that Roosevelt carried all the States except Maine and Vermont.

Roosevelt's popular vote was 25,347,442.

Landon's popular vote was 15,835,381.

Roosevelt's electoral vote was 523 Landon's electoral vote was 8.

It was the worst defeat that the Republicans ever suffered. Only a small handful of Republicans will be there to answer the roll call in the next congress.

Roosevelt received congratulation from the leaders of his bitterest political foes, as well as many of the heads of the nations of Europe. At this time, Roosevelt is the outstanding statesman of the world.

The Democrats are assured of 75 senators out of a total of 96, while in the House 334 Democrats out of the total of membership of 535 have been elected, with results still doubtful in a few races. Out of 33 governors elected, the Democrats placed 25.

In the State election, all Democratic nominees were overwhelmingly elected. The Republicans had hope of electing a congressman in the San Antonio district, but Congressman still holds a 4 to 1 lead over his Republican opponent, Clemmens. Five of the six proposed constitutional amendments carried, the State liquor monopoly losing.

The general election in Sterling County was rather a one-sided affair.

The regular county, district, state and national Democratic nominees polled most of the votes.

There were a lot of slacker voters in Sterling county. The returns show only 384 went to the polls and voted. Of these, 370 votes were cast for Roosevelt and 14 for Landon.

Allred received 374 to Harris 10 for governor.

Most all the county, district and state nominees polled the full vote of the county.

Four of the Amendments were defeated.

The write-ins for county and precinct officers were D. K. Durham for County Attorney, W. F. Kellis county Surveyor, and J. C. Standsberry for Constable of precinct No. 1.

Teachers Entertained

To honor the teachers of the Sterling High School the Wimodausis Club entertained with a bridge tea Saturday afternoon in the home of Mrs. W. E. Allen.

The Halloween motif was carried out in the decorations, table appointments and refreshments. Hostesses assisting Mrs. Allen were Mesdames W. N. Reed, R. L. Lowe, W. L. Foster, E. F. McEntire, O. T. Jones, Pat Kellis and John Reed.

The honored guests were Misses Lucile Smith, Marjorie Smith, Helen Little, Agnes Abernathy, Florence Allen, Reta Ball, Edith Miller, Pearl Farris, Harry Ethyl Hubbel, Mildred Simpson, Delene Reid, Mrs. Rogers Hefley, Mrs. H. M. Carter, and other club members.

IRONY OF JACK FROST

Jack Frost paid this country a premature and unwelcomed visit last Tuesday night.

On Monday night a boreal blast slithered down from the north and laid the flowers and much of the green that decorated the range very low.

At night, the clouds that had lingered in the sky, had floated away to the south and left a cold, still night to deal death to the tender vegetation that since the copious rains had become a riot over these hills and valleys.

The temperature on Wednesday morning was down as low as 26 degrees above zero. Ice formed and hydrants in exposed places were stuck hard and fast.

This visit of Jack Frost was 12 days earlier than the average for such visits—November 15 is considered the average date for a killing frost in this part of West Texas. Last year, it came on the 13th. of November.

Perhaps, fate dealt an ironic hand in sending Jack Frost on a blasting errand on the night of November 3. You see it was the night after the day of the presidential election. Quite a few Republicans has taken root on the warm Democratic soil in Texas. They had sprouted, grown and blossomed like cockleburs along the barpits of the highways and were lifting their heads and nodding to the passersby. They were the flowers of Landon to be cut down by the grim reaper.

A Republican born on Democratic soil is of few days and full of disappointment.

He goeth forth to the election full of wind and hope. Behold a land slide overwhelmeth him and where is he? It covereth him up and it masheth him, yea muchly—even the wind is gone out of him. Even the colored man whom he had beguiled with visions of forty acres of land and a mule, refuseth to do him honor in his day of loneliness.

He betheth his summer wages that Landon winneth and behold, Landon tearth out behind. As goeth the flowers when Jack nipped so go the man who betheth on Landon.

I have been surveying land for forty years, and I find my greatest critics are those who know the least about the science. I have found fellows who wouldn't know an isogonic loop if they met one in the road, or tell the length of a vara, yet they could tell me all about the business.—Uncle Bill

DON'T CHEER

"Don't cheer boys, the poor devils are dying," was the admonition of Commodore Schley to his men at the great sea fight off Santiago, which practically put an end to the war between the United States and Spain in 1898.

The Spanish fleet had been bottled up in Santiago Harbor for weeks, while the American fleet stood at the mouth of the bay patiently waiting for the Spaniards to come out.

At last one day, the Spaniards steamed out for the open sea rather than to surrender or die in the harbor.

As they came out, Schley and his men pounced upon them, and one by one sent them to the bottom of the ocean.

Amid the wreck and slaughter, the American gunners and sailors uttered a cheer. The great heart of Schley was moved with pity. He raised his hand and said: "Don't cheer boys, the poor devils are dying" and then gave orders to perform the acts of mercy which made that battle so famous.

Last Tuesday, the Republicans sailed out with blare of trumpets and flying colors, and they went down in ignoble defeat. Don't cheer boys, they have fallen down and lost their terbacker!

Be sports, and let not by word or action how their crushing defeat has thrilled you. They are still your friends and fellow Americans. They had a perfect right to their political belief as you had to yours.

Lets all be tolerent and try to persuade them to cooperate in making this the best government on which the sun shines. Put whatever bitterness which the late campaign generated, on cold storage.

Let us all remember that Roosevelt is your president, my president and the president of us all, and as did those of old, hold up his hands in the great work he has undertaken.

Hardly a large pasture in the country that does not have more or less unpatented school land in it. These school lands were bought on 40 years time. If not patented at the expiration of 40 years from the time of purchase, the land is subject to forfeiture to the State.

Everybody who owns unpatented school land, would do well to look up their awards and find out when the time expires. You might overlook this matter and lose your land.

Bluebonnet Girl Points Way

Frances Nalle, official Bluebonnet girl at the Texas Centennial in Dallas, which closes November 29, is wearing a real blue bonnet here and a dress of the period when great herds of cattle were moved over the Chisholm Trail out of Texas. Miss Nalle is standing beside a marker which was sent to the Ford exhibit by P. P. Ackley of Elk City, Oklahoma, who as a one-time cattle driver is interested in permanently marking the famous cow trail. Miss Nalle is an employe of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, co-exhibitor in the Ford building.

Helping preserve the history of the old Chisholm trail, one of the most famous cattle trails in the United States, P. P. Ackley of Elk City, Okla., who as a youth worked as a cattle driver, is interested in a movement to mark the cattle route. He has sent one of the markers to the Ford exhibit at the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas, where it has been installed on a reproduced section of the Chisholm trail.

The Ford exhibit includes nine reproductions of famous "Roads of the Southwest." The Chisholm trail is particularly well known to the older residents who engaged in the cattle business.

Ackley, who for years helped drive great herds of cattle over sections of the Chisholm trail, has been trying to stir interest in marking the cattle route permanently. He has made several of the markers such as has been installed on the replica of the trail at the Ford building.

The era of Texas cow trails was well under way by 1867. They followed the natural water courses and connected producing and consuming areas. From 1867 to 1896, more than 98 million cattle and 10 million horses were driven from Texas to northern markets and sold for more than 243 million dollars. Texas was the chief producer of livestock in the western states.

The Chisholm trail was named after John (Jesse) Chisholm, a half-breed Cherokee trader and frontier stockman of Paris, Texas. He was the first to use the trail in supplying the frontier forts of Kansas with foodstuffs. The trail ran from the Rio Grande in Cameron County, Texas, to Dodge City, Kansas.

The first day I sent out these statements several came in and not only paid up, but had their subscription moved up a notch or two.

Tall Tales

As told to: ELMO FRANK E. HAGAN and SCOTT WATSON

Escape in Siberia

SIR HORACE PLUNKETT of England, or "Hod" Plunkett as the cowboys in western Nebraska and eastern Wyoming in the early days knew him, had some thrilling adventures on the American frontier, but his narrowest escape from death was in Siberia.

One day his horse went lame near a Russian village. Being in a hurry to reach St. Petersburg, he left his horse there and hired another one, hitched to a sleigh. In the midst of a dark, dismal forest, he heard a howl and saw a huge timber wolf pursuing him.

Sir Horace lashed his horse into a mad gallop, but the wolf gained on him at every jump. Just as the fierce beast sprang at him, Sir Horace dropped down into the bottom of the sleigh. The wolf shot clear over him and lighted on the horse's hindquarters.

The terrified horse kept on running even after it was half eaten up. Then Sir Horace sprang up. His whip gave the wolf a terrific cut. With a howl the beast sprang forward just as the horse died and fell out of the harness which dropped on the wolf.

Sir Horace then grabbed up the reins. By lashing at the wolf constantly with his whip he kept it going forward at a terrific pace. A few moments later it raced into a town and came to a plunging halt in front of an inn. Out dashed a group of Russians who killed the wolf and, as Sir Horace stepped out of the sleigh, pressed forward to congratulate him upon his escape.

An eighteen-year-old girl, alone and in agony, gave birth to a child; and, according to police, immediately killed it, dropping it from a roof. A jury convicted her of manslaughter, and the judge let her go on probation; she must report once a month to prove that she is behaving. Four jurors that helped convict her told the judge they regretted their verdict.

Every mother knows that the unfortunate girl, after ne horrible experience and solitary agony, was at least as nearly insane as any shell-shocked soldier.

Lost--A Man

I have lost a Mann. I think maybe you can help me locate him. He is not a Baker nor a Black one, but has Sharpe eyes that Pearce the Hart. The last time I heard of him he lived a Longshore the Hudson in a Brown house. It was a beautiful place. The sweet Williams grew along the Brooks and the Swan could be seen daily. But woe came to him. His Butler quit him and took the Key. This was some Case to Cope with for he was left to wander in the Wood and mingle with the Bugg. At daytime he was happy and enjoyed watching the mud Martins playing in the Reeds but at Knight when the owls were Hooten in the Lane fear would make his Lipps tremble. As he was a Foster child he had no family and he was Lowe in spirit. No King to turn to, he wandered to the Mills to find work. But the Sparkman had quit his job and had began to Revell in sin so he Bade this Worthy Mann to travel on.

He thought he might be a black Smith but Cole was scarce and he could not burn Stone. Says he, "I Barr none this is terrible, I'll just go to Sterling City."

So he hitched his horse and began to Walker down the road, but he was anxious and soon began to Trotter.

Women Play Important Part In Choosing Today's Motor Car, as They Do In Making It

An Attractive Ensemble at Ford Exposition

Careful Operations in Manufacture of V-8, If Work Is Light and Pleasant, Are Turned Over to Women to Do

National surveys have shown that women are responsible for the choice in approximately 75 per cent of all automobile sales in the United States. They also have an important part in the building of cars and such tasks as they perform are demonstrated daily at the Ford Exposition building at the Texas Centennial in Dallas.

Of the more than 300 employees in the Ford building 65 are women. The modern motor car is by no means an exclusively "man-built" machine. Women, too, add their quota of ingenuity to the manufacture of cars at Dearborn, Mich., and in the "village industries," originated by the Ford Motor Company.

Engineers long since have learned to design automobiles with the woman definitely in mind. This influence is to be seen in special types of upholstery, interior arrangements and color combinations. At every point where beauty can be added without sacrificing any degree of durability or comfort, the modern automobile has been built to meet this demand.

The average woman car owner of past years was interested primarily in appearance and style of her car. She wanted a car that "looked as smart" as her neighbor's. But she left the mechanical and engineering questions to the "man of the house."

Today, however, she takes keen interest not only in appearance, but in mechanical equipment as well where the choice of a car is concerned. She demands a car that is quiet in operation—handles easily in congested traffic and on the open highway—and one that gives the utmost safety for herself and family.

Women are not able to do all the jobs in a large industry such as car manufacturing, but there are scores of tasks to be executed that require the delicate touch of feminine hands and fingers.

In the Ford building at the Centennial in Dallas 14 girls are hired to operate special sewing machines in the exhibit where upholstery is made. Another large group is employed by Essex Wire. Fourteen girls in this exhibit demonstrate the making of headlight wire assemblies. The Firestone Tire and Rubber Company exhibit in the same building employs another group of girls.

There are seven girl members of Jose Manzanares South American orchestra. This orchestra gives concerts each night, except Mondays, in the court.

Women are becoming particularly interested in the program of "Village Industries," as operated by the Ford Motor Company. In Michigan today there are a number of small industrial units where certain small parts of the Ford V-8 are manufactured. It is here that many women work under ideal conditions, living in small communities and doing work that is light and agreeable.

In the Ypsilanti, Mich., plant, one of the largest of the village industries, for example, 58 women are entrusted with the delicate operations involved in assembling starter switches that will later find their way to a Ford V-8 car. At another plant of this character 73 women are employed steadily.

Naturally, in the arrangements of the Ford Exposition building, the women's viewpoint was taken into careful consideration.

Came Back To Life

According to the Associated Press Mrs. Margaret Bonham of Great Doddington, England, died last Monday.

The church bells tolled the news of the death of the 62 year old woman. Plans for the funeral went forward and everything was being made ready for the burial, when one of the daughters of the dead woman went into the room and found her mother sitting up. She had been in a coma which was mistaken for death by the nurses at her bedside. She is now recovering.

PREPARED FOR WAR EMERGENCIES — Not quite a peaceful home scene as mother and daughter, wearing gas masks, continue at their knitting during the recent rehearsal of air raid defenses in Paris.

NEW INNOVATIONS — Some of the 1937 cars show many new innovations. Pictured here is the 1937 Plymouth with new radiator grille. Bigger bodies on new rubber-poise mountings, safety-styling, complete soundproofing, "air-plane" shock absorbers and hypoid rear axles are other Plymouth innovations this year.

"EVERYTHING — including hair from the neighbor's dog" was found in the dirt filtered from a residence in New York. J. J. Donovan, Manager of General Electric's Air Conditioning, told the National Sales Executives Conference in New York recently. Tiny shreds of steel rails, plaster, coke, petroleum, sulphates, and ammonia were found. Unless it is filtered out, this stuff is breathed into people's lungs.

"YOUNG AMERICAN SINGERS deserve to be encouraged," said Mme. Lotte Lehmann, famous grand opera soprano. "Students of every kind need the encouragement of security. I meet so many music students on my concert tours — and wish they could all have the kind of encouragement that is being offered in the Camay $1,000 a year for life contest!"

Miss Little: J. S. who was it that supported the world on his shoulders, according to the ancient myth?

J. S. Cole: It was Atlas.

Miss Little: Correct. Now, how was Atlas supported?

J. S. Cole: I think he must have married a rich wife.

Mr. Jones: I will use my hat to represent Mars. Is there any question you would like to ask before I go on?

Bubba: Yes, is Mars inhabited?

Thomas: Would you object to a husband who smoked in the house?

Georgina: Yes. But I intend to keep quiet about it until I get one.

Correct Posture Is Essential To Growth

Correct posture in school children and adults as well, is necessary to proper physical and mental development, says a warning from the Texas State Department of Health.

"Good posture is a sign of self-respect and plays an important part in winning the respect of others," said Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer.

"Many of the ills of childhood and the deformities of adult life have their beginning in poor posture acquired during childhood," he said, "and it is particularly important that the child's posture conform to nature's dictates. As a rule, most children are born in good physical condition and yet examination of large groups of school children show a high per cent to be suffering from poor posture. Fatigue and malnutrition are productive of poor posture. These lessen the size of the chest and decrease the lung capacity. Abdominal organs may also be pushed out of natural position which may seriously interfere with their action. These conditions must be corrected before the body is able to attain normal weight and nutritional standards.

"School children who have poor posture are said often to average lower in attendance and in school mental and physical activities than those who have good posture. A child may be forced to hold his body in an unnatural position by a desk that is too high or too low. Desks and work tables should be just high enough to allow the feet to rest on the floor and the forearms and hands to rest upon the tops without the shoulders being hunched up.

"Begin early in life to teach your children to stand straight and to sit straight for health and self-confidence, and they should grow into strong well built men and women."

Red Cross Nurses Combat Disease on Wide Front

At the close of the fiscal year ended June 30, there were 673 Red Cross nurses bettering health conditions and caring for the sick in 604 communities. These Red Cross public health nurses cared for a total of 233,616 persons during the year and made more than a million visits on their behalf.

The annual report of the American Red Cross states further that these nurses cooperated with doctors in examining 671,057 school and pre-school children, with 342,861 physical defects found and curative treatment arranged in 209,080 cases.

In 979 Red Cross chapters 1,733 graduate nurses taught Red Cross home hygiene and care of the sick, issuing certificates to 53,126 persons completing the courses. In addition, 1,777 Red Cross reserve nurses were called upon during the year for disaster and epidemic control work.

Red Cross Potential Life Savers Number Nearly 2,000,000

First aid and life saving certificates issued by the American Red Cross since the start of the service 26 years ago now number 1,888,702. During the past year the Red Cross qualified 222,693 persons in first aid and taught water safety and rescue methods to 80,961.

This army of First Aiders and Life Savers is one of the great safety factors in the nation. They are trained to give immediate first aid at the scene of accident, thus saving many lives and preventing permanent injury. Red Cross training includes skill in treating for shock, splinting fractures, checking arterial bleeding, applying artificial respiration, towing drowning persons to safety, and in the safe handling of boat and canoe.

Red Cross volunteers, framework of the organization, last year gave a total of 1,707,220 hours of service, producing 685,074 garments, 4,355,719 surgical dressings, 16,773 Christmas bags for soldiers, sailors and marines serving overseas. Perhaps the most important undertaking of these generous contributors to the public welfare is the making of braille books for the blind, with 342,000 pages printed during the past twelve months.

Of the 16,500,000 school children enrolled in the Junior Red Cross societies of 52 nations, more than half are members of the American Junior Red Cross representing 34,882 schools in this country.

Red Cross chapters aiding the needy in their communities act on approximately 22,674 family problems each month.
