BALLAST

By BABBler

A strange bill is up for adoption in our National Congress; may be passed before you read this. Its purpose is to make war for us impossible. The idea is to take all the profit out of war, on the assumption that war will not be fought unless it stands to make some capitalists richer.

Now look what this crazy thing proposes to do. In case of war, any business or industry, of whatever nature, that nets $3,000 per year will be taxed $120; an income of $3,000 will be taxed $320; a family business that produces $20,000 per year will give up $10,320. Notice that is a little over one half. A $50,000 income pays $39,720 tax, more than 67 per cent. As the income grows greater, the percentage of tax increases.

Remember that wartime tax is in addition to all the taxes which we now pay—no tax will be taken away. With a few simple figures one can see what that will do to our average incomes.

To be sure, this is in time of war only, but it states specifically, any kind of war, aggressive or defensive, declared or not.

History shows, right recently, that it does not take two to make a war. No man can be reasonably sure that we will not be in a war within 30 days, or 30 months. And the result of this legislation would be the complete destruction of all business and industry in our country which net $3,000 per annum. That would certainly mean revolution at home, regardless of where our war may be fought. Strange to say, some of the bitterest political enemies in our Senate have come together on this bill. The idea seems to be that if we cannot stay out of war, we shall just destroy civilization again, and start over again as Europe did in 476. There followed a 1,000 years known as Dark Ages.

Boys want to be policemen and Indian fighters. Our summer vacations indicate that there remains some of the primitive in us. Maybe we want to go back to European Middle Ages. How would you like to live in a country without law or order—wild outlaws; robbers, plunderers—might is right, and to hell with weaklings? Does that challenge something heroic in us?

We conclude this sermon by saying that the Savior did not seem much concerned with the impending Fall of Rome and subsequent Dark Ages. He called individuals to turn from darkness to Light—to the realization that they live here very briefly at best—and that God can take care, for an awfully long time, of those who submit to Him.

Judge Dicky Here

Judge and Mrs. Frank C. Dickey of Ballinger were welcomed callers at this office last Tuesday. It was their twentieth wedding anniversary, and they celebrated the occasion by visiting the Judges old home town and friends that he knew when he was a boy. He used to play the devil for the News Record. He knew every good fishing hole for miles up and down the North Concho as well as the trees that bore the biggest pecans. He is now a prominent attorney of Ballinger and is one of Ballinger's foremost citizens.

Service in New Baptist Church On April 16th

Sunday, April 16th, the opening services will be held in the new Baptist Church building. For several weeks the Baptist congregation has been looking forward to this initial service with happy anticipation, and they are expecting a great day in many ways.

For the opening service at 11:00 A. M., the pastor, Reverend J. A. Hail, will be the speaker. At the evening hour, Dr. W. B. Everitt will speak. Each night during the week former pastors of the church and visiting ministers will speak.

A cordial invitation is extended to every church, as well as the people, of Sterling County and elsewhere to join the Baptist folks on this eventful occasion in their church life.

Passenger Car License Show Decrease

Friday of last week was the deadline for obtaining car license plates without penalty. Deputy tax collector Henton Emery reports that 296 passenger car plates were issued for 1939 as against 305 in 1938; 80 farm plates for 1939 as against 81 for 1938 and 58 commercial plates for 1939 against 38 in 1938. Showing a decrease of 9 passenger vehicles and one farm vehicle, and an increase of 20 commercial vehicles in Sterling County.

License plates were issued for 434 vehicles of all classes in the county to April 1.

Rain And Hail Here

Rain and hail fell here last Wednesday afternoon. Nearly a half inch showed in the rain gauge. A stiff norther blew all night and Thursday with flurries of snow. At six o'clock Thursday evening the temperature was 40 degrees above. Hail did some damage to the fruit, but the pecans being late in budding, is not thought to be seriously damaged.

Boy Has Close Call When Car Hits Him

Otto Thiers was badly bruised and mangled Friday of last week when a car was driven over his body and dragged him some distance.

He was brought to Sterling where he received first aid and then sent to a San Angelo hospital for x-ray examination which resulted in finding no bones broken. He is at the home of his sister, Mrs. Ben Findt where he is recovering from his hurts.

Otto is a member of the Sterling track team and was with his team mates in a contest with the Garden City team. After running one course, he was prone on the ground resting. A lady driving a car drove over the body of the boy without seeing him until it was too late. She was greatly grieved over the accident.

Furniture is being installed in the new court house and the finishing touches are being made. Completion is expected about the first of May. The May term of our district court will probably be held in the new building.

Trapping Antelope Concluded Until Next Fall

One among the most unique operations the world has ever known was begun and concluded last week when operatives of the State Game and Fish Commission captured and distributed 33 antelope to different ranges from the T. G. Brennand estate ranch about eight miles northwest of Sterling City.

There were several hundred of these rare animals in the roundup, but only 33 were captured and put into padded cages and hauled by trucks to their new home on the range in pastures where thousands roamed 50 years ago.

The hunt was postponed until next fall when there will be less risk to the coming fawns. Also, the men engaged in the work had learned things about trapping antelope which they never knew before. They wanted more time to study the difficult task.

These antelope owe their existence mostly to the nature-loving disposition of the late "Uncle Tommy" Brennand who gave their ancestors a refuge and protection in his horse trap near the ranch home. When a hunter tried to molest them, they always met with a vigorous protest from the kindly old man.

When the old man died, his son the late Tom Jr. became their guardian and he did a good job of it. The crack of a rifle in the pasture was the signal for Tom or some of the cowhands to investigate the cause. A hunter never tried to repeat the offense if Tom got a chance to whisper good counsel in his ear. In this way, these beautiful creatures multiplied until there were hundreds in the pasture.

Then Tom passed away and his brother, Will H. Brennand took charge of the vast estate. Will possesses much of the kindly and compassionate disposition of his late father. Seeing that these antelope had increased in such numbers that their well being was endangered on the range, and unwilling to see their increase hampered, he appealed to the Commission for relief and met with a hearty response above stated.

In the roundup, a large number broke the fence and escaped into John Reed's pasture. Being a friend to wildlife and a lover of nature, John didn't mind this a bit. His pasture now sports about 100 antelope. While on the hunt, John got into the good graces of representatives of the Commission and got their promise of a lot of deer to turn loose on the ranges. A part of Mr. Reed's pasture is especially adapted for deer. It will be a source of pride for this rancher to ride out in his pasture and see antelope, deer, turkey and quail roaming over their native habitat, as they did in the long ago.

The antelope is very much like a goat in habits and disposition. When taken while they are young, they are easily tamed and make lovely pets. In raising a young antelope, you should give it the same food, care and treatment as you would a young goat. They are very hardy and can stand a lot of hard treatment. Like a goat, they will eat stray papers, shrubbery, or most anything that is loose. They like to be fondled and petted and are the most affectionate of all creatures.

The idea that they are the swiftest of all animals of the range is not entirely true. A good cowpony can overtake an antelope on open ground. Most any old cowpuncher will tell you that he has roped many when they were numerous on the range. An antelope never sheds his horns except by accident. Sometimes in fighting or rubbing their horns on a mesquite, they get caught in a crotch of a tree, they "slip" their horns in the same manner that cattle sometimes "slip" their horns, but the antelope of this locality never shed their horns naturally. I have known pet bucks five years old that never shed their horns.

Red Cross Volunteers Assist War Veterans

Red Cross workers in chapters, in hospitals and on posts of the Army, Navy, Coast Guard, and Marine Corps, assisted 122,355 active service men or veterans or their families during the past 12 months. Red Cross service to these men included such personal help as letter-writing, shopping and recreational leadership, but it also included financial assistance to their dependents, help in locating missing members of their families, and assistance in filing necessary applications for pensions, disability pay, hospitalization, or for discharge from active service because of home needs. The average number of men assisted by Red Cross workers each month was 18,790, according to a recent report.

Standard weights show that the average 6 weeks' old chick weighs around 11 or 12 ounces. Actual records from thousands of chicks grown on Purina Startena show that well fed chicks weigh up to a pound and a quarter at 6 weeks. Extra weight at this time gives chicks an advantage in growing into profitable layers.

BOY'S LIFE OF EDISON

MEADOWCROFT

Thomas Alva Edison was born February 11, 1847 at Milan, Ohio. He moved to Port Huron, Michigan in 1854

Edison is known as the world's greatest inventor. The three qualities that made him great were alertness, determination, and energy. When Edison started on anything, he would not try once or twice, and if it didn't work quit, but he would keep on experimenting at it until it worked.

When Edison was about fourteen years old he was a newsboy on a train. He set the car on fire by an explosion in his laboratory, which he had set up on the shelf with his papers and magazines. The conduct or moved him and his laboratory off at the next station and boxed Edison on the ear. Edison was somewhat deaf ever after, but his deafness helped him in some ways.

Later Edison worked as a telegraph operator for some years.

Some of Edison's most famous inventions are the electric light, motion pictures, talking motion pictures, the phonograph, and cement. He improved many things. He took out over a thousand patents. He had a wonderful memory.

LANDMARK MAP FOR FAIR VISITORS

The above landmark map of Manhattan shows principal points of interest, automotive, subway and railway routes to the New York World's Fair, and the locations of nine great Y.M.C.A. centers which are offering Fair visitors the most complete service the organization has ever made available to visitors to any fair or exposition anywhere in the world.

Spread out over Manhattan for the use of visitors to the New York World's Fair will be eight great Y.M.C.A. buildings with a ninth, a specially constructed service building in the very heart of the Fair grounds, all cooperating to offer the most complete non-commercial service ever attempted by the Y.M.C.A. Each of the buildings involved will be near at least one automotive route and one subway line going directly to the Fair. They are shown on the above map as: (1) William Sloane House, 356 West 34th St., the headquarters of the Y.M.C.A. World's Fair Service and the clearing house for all visitors who use the organization's facilities; (2) Seamen's House, 550

West 20th St., especially designed to care for seamen; (3) Twenty-Third Street, 215 West 23rd St., historic Branch of the Y.M.C.A. and a fine community center; (4) Bowery, 8 East 3rd St., the credit-relief center of the organization; (5) Grand Central Railroad, 224 East 47th St., especially designed for railroad men; (6) West Side, 5 West 63rd St., the most complete group of Y.M.C.A. units in the World; (7) Harlem, 180 West 135th St., special building for Negroes; (8) Bronx Union, 470 East 181st St., the only Y.M.C.A. in the Bronx; and (9) the Y.M.C.A. Building at the Fair, located less than two blocks from the Trylon and Perisphere and just 60 yards from the Statue of George Washington. It was erected at a cost of $150,000 to give visitors a place where they can find rest, relaxation and refreshment in a non-commercial, Christian atmosphere.

Each of the Y.M.C.A. centers cooperating in the Y.M.C.A. World's Fair Service will offer many free services to Fair visitors. Some of these will be travel and sight-seeing information, a room registry, listing available rooms in the city which have been inspected and approved by the Y.M.C.A., ample correspondence facilities and many other personal services which will help the visitor see and enjoy both the city and the Fair. An important factor is that the organization will not commercialize on the influx of visitors in any way. The established low Y.M.C.A. prices for both food and rooms will not be changed.
