BALLAST

BY BABBLER

Interesting to sit and watch a group of energetic eager American youth taking a final examination. For a while energies are regimented and efforts concentrated while physical activity is restrained. Yet, they can concentrate, and they are not bashful about asking questions. Their minds are agile and sometimes surprisingly retentive.

Surprises add to the interest. That thing we consider important and most easily remembered is sometimes totally forgotten, and the next line will contain some professors' phrase which might as well have been missed.

This week several thousands of them will graduate from our high school and colleges. All will be told strange stories by commencement speakers. We think it significant that fewer and fewer millionaires and more and more preachers are being used as commencement speakers.

Under the Protestant system the preacher ought to be our wisest citizen. The wisdom of the world is written in his Bible. He should know that book, if he knows nothing more. No other person has the equal chance. Too often the preacher has devoted his time to something outside the Bible and the clergy has not the recognition for intelligence and wisdom that the Lord intended.

Many times that is the fault of the ministers; many times, the people. If the preacher isn't paid and encouraged in his work, it might possibly reflect on the ministry and the preacher be in no way to blame.

We rejoice in the current educational requirements for the protestant ministry and shall support any more to heighten them. There is evidence in our short life of increasing respect for our preachers by the Masses.

000

Play on words: The charge was brought against a preacher and his denomination that they made no appeal to the Masses. He replied, "Yes we do, but after we get them, they are no longer 'them asses.'"

000

We like Chas. Driscoll's telling of the unfinished condition of the New York World Fair. New York ought to appreciate it, though some will criticize.

Public Schools Closing Today

The Sterling City Public Schools close today. The graduating class composed of five boys and ten girls are scheduled to receive their High School diplomas this afternoon. They are: Carl Abernathy, Elsie Gregston, Colbert Littlefield, Wilma Hudson, Clydean Everitt, Lucille Hodges, June Gerber, Frances Blackburn, Finis Westbrook, Elsie Knight, Jean Durham, Joy Mills, Bonnie Lee Collins, Reynolds Foster and Phyllis Bowen.

The whole scholastic year of 1938-39 has been crowned with success. Peace and harmony among all the elements that composed the school, has prevailed. The town and county have worked diligently with a common purpose to make our school a success. They made a good job of it.

Superintendent O. T. Jones and his able staff of teachers are to be congratulated for the splendid showing they made. They did their best and won the hearty approval of all concerned.

The wages of a school trustee is usually paid in cussin. Our whole Board of trustees for the last year has been underpaid. So far as I know, they have not received a single cussin. If they got any cussin, it must have been done by some woman who didn't know how to cuss worth a doggone. Those boys did their best. That is all a steer can do. If they made any mistakes, I never heard of them. If anyone else ever knew of a mistake they made, I rise to remark that it was a mistake of the head and not of the heart, for we all know they did what they thought was best.

Those boys and girls who were granted diplomas are to be congratulated on their achievement. They are the salt of the earth. Thoroughbreds—everyone of them—not a scrub in the bunch. They are to take up the torch of life when it is thrown to them and to bear it to light the pathway of human weal. They will be the future sovereigns of their land and country, and whatever it shall be, they will make it so.—Uncle Bill.

Smallpox Can Be Absolutely Prevented

Case reports reaching the State Department of Health indicate that smallpox is rapidly forging to the front in list of preventable communicable diseases over Texas at this time.

"Smallpox epidemics would never occur if everyone, especially children could be effectively vaccinated," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. "At the present there is an increasing lack of vaccination among school children and this constitutes a menace."

"Modern safeguards have removed legitimate objection to vaccination. The virus is made from calves and, consequently, is incapable of transmitting human blood diseases. Among some ten million vaccinations performed in the Philippine Islands, there was no loss of life or limb or demonstrable injury to health."

"A primary vaccination with one successful revaccination will, as a rule, protect throughout life from the milder forms of smallpox, but this is not true in the severer types of this disease. Therefore, be vaccinated and revaccinated at least every five years, so that you will have the greatest protection possible and the least chance of being sick. Revaccination should also be done after each time you have been near a known case of smallpox. Vaccination is not to be feared but rather sought as the only safe, positively harmless and absolute certain safeguard against smallpox. See your doctor today and be sure that you are protected."

Farmers and Ranchers Get Over $50,000

County Agent, H. P. Malloy reports that the arrival and distribution of 76 farm and ranch checks for compliance work alone in 1938 through the Sterling County Agricultural Conservation Association.

The total sum of these checks was $48,642.45. This added to $1,844.03 for farm conservation in 1938 totals $50,486.48. Fifteen farm checks and four range checks are still due.

Wool Sells Here At 24 Cents

Sterling Wool & Mohair Company report the sale of 28,000 pounds of wool during the past week at prices ranging from 23 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 24c per pound. The sales were made to Henry Maginot and Rosenthal Bros. of Boston.

Among the buyers looking over the wool accumulation here this week with a view to purchasing later, were: R. L. Rosenthal of Rosenthal Bros. of Boston; Henry Maginot; G. C. Buton, representing Forte Dupee & Sawyer of Boston; Sumner Willis, representing Walter Morison of Boston; and Gilbert Wright and Jeff Salis, buyers for Wright Bros.

About 175,000 pounds of twelve months wool are now in storage with Sterling Wool & Mohair Co., with several clips incomplete, and more is arriving every day. Shearing which has been delayed by rains, is getting under way again, and it is probable storage of the local concern will be well filled within the next few days.

Car Over-Turns When Tire Blew Out

A man and two women sustained bruises and scratches last Tuesday when their car in which they were travelling turned over on the highway a few miles east of town. A tire blowout is said to be the cause of the mishap. The parties were brought here and Dr. Swann administered to their hurts. They left for Lubbock after being repaired.

Party Turns Back On Account of Death

Miss Zula Cotten returned from a trip to California last Saturday and is at her desk in the County Agent's office. Her party had planned to visit the Worlds Fair at San Francisco, but on arriving at Los Angeles, one of the party received a message that a brother-in-law, Hoke Smith of Sweetwater had died. The party turned back and made the trip to Sterling City in 29 hours

LEGISLATIVE ACTIVITIES

BY SENATOR PENROSE B. METCALFE

The Senate last week finally passed my bill to eliminate possibilities of evading the gasoline tax law. It is estimated that the bill will bring in an additional $500,000 a year. The tax on gasoline was in no way changed, but provisions were made to tighten regulations on refunding the tax on gasoline used for non-highway purposes.

When the sales and natural resource tax constitutional amendment came up for final passage in the House, it received only 84 votes, lacking 16 for the necessary 100 votes, and therefore the prospect of submitting the issue to the people becomes slim. On the other hand, sentiment for financing the social security program by passage of a bill levying the necessary taxes was strengthened and it is probable that some sort of tax measure will be passed before the legislature adjourns.

The House passed my bill to remit one-half of the state property taxes collected in Coleman County to the Central Colorado River Authority for a period of ten years for use in water and soil conservation. This measure was handled in the House by Representative W. R. Chambers.

An important development in the land vacancy bill highlighted activities in the House when the members of that body voted to concur in Senate amendments. The bill gives the landowner the preferential right to purchase vacancies, and at the same time protect the school fund by making adequate provisions for uncovering of vacancies by good faith applicants.

The Senate passed the House bill by Chambers, Burkett and Howington, authorizing commissioners' courts to revise property tax assessments where property is valued at an excessive figure in comparison with similar or nearby property.

In the Senate debate was started on the rural aid school bill. Several members in the Senate, determined to prevent the Fair Trade Practice Act from coming up for consideration, promoted lengthy debate on every measure brought to the Senate's attention.

Rag-Chewing Over Schools

According to the Stanton Reporter the citizens of Dawson and Martin Counties are chewing the rag over school consolidation and other matters pertaining to schools. If they asked me about it, I would advise those people to settle their differences as Sterling County did in 1920. Sterling up to that time had only makeshift schools and plenty of rag chewing. Some of the old wise ones got together and made the whole county into one independent district. The county lines were the district lines. Seven trustees from different parts of the county ruled. All the little schools in the county were cared for and instead of a 60 day term, they run them 9 months in the year. Only one school in the county in operation now, but it is a mighty good one. Regan, Glasscock and other counties are operating their schools by this method, and rag chewing is almost unknown. They have mighty good schools in the counties I have named.—Uncle Bill

CANNED BEEF

During the Spanish-American war they fed the Soldiers "Algerized Beef," that is spoiled beef that had been treated with chemicals to disguise the taste and odor. Hundreds of the boys died from eating the carrion. Even dogs died from eating the poisoned meat. It was all right for the men who sold this beef, but hell on the men and dogs who ate it.

Now another beef scandal is on tap. Last week President Roosevelt O.K.'ed a contract to buy 48,000 pounds of Argentinian beef for the army—about one pound for each soldier.

American dealers offered canned beef at 23 cents a pound. Argentine dealers are said to have offered canned beef of a better quality at 9 cents a pound. Mr. Roosevelt is being roundly criticised for buying Argentine beef of better quality at 9 cents a pound instead of American beef of inferior quality at 23 cents a pound.

Some of Mr. Roosevelt's critics complain he is "knocking" on American beef when says that the Argentine beef is of better quality than American beef.

What Mr. Roosevelt said about the beef in question, is based on samples of canned beef submitted to his experts along with bids, and not on the quality of American and Argentine beef as sold over the butchers counters.

There is a potent reason why the Argentine canned beef might be of a better quality than American canned beef. All first class American beef is sold over the butchers counter. Old cows, old bulls and other inferior beef animals go to the canneries and are mostly packed in tins or some form of sausage and it is this class of beef that is involved in the Army beef contract.

Down in Argentine, they do not enjoy a good local market as we do. They have fine ranges and cheap labor. They can produce good, fat beef at about one-third cost that we do. Argentine cattlemen are glad to sell their beef at almost any price. In order to compete with American canners, they put their beef in cans for export and then have more than enough for the market counters.

As I said before, Americans use the meat of old bulls to can, while the Argentinians use the meat of their best cattle to can for export. First class beef as sold here on the markets is not involved.

Naturally, Mr. Roosevelt wanted to supply the army with the best of beef at one-third the price as offered by American dealers.

The contract involves too small amount of cattle to amount to anything except for political uses.

The fact that only 48,000 pounds of canned beef involves only 48 1000-pound steers, or about a day's supply of bully beef for the army.

Except for furnishing something for politicians to beef about, the thing is too small to be considered. If Mr. Roosevelt had O.K.'ed the purchase of the 23 cent beef of inferior quality, they would have busted a circingle in shouting extravagance. They would be saying that he was wasting the people's money by buying 23 cent beef when he was offered better beef at 9 cents a pound.

But, you don't hear these fellows beefing about the time Mr. Roosevelt O.K.'ed the purchase of their old starving cows, sheep, goats, hogs and horses at a better price than the markets would bear, and then furnished them feed to save what animals were left. You don't hear them bucking and bellering about the money they got to clear their pastures of cactus and other growths building dams, drilling wells and saving them from the financial bow wows. No, no, they forget all that, but when he bought a day's run of good beef for the army they throw a string of fits. Well they must have something to bellyache about and it might as well be a few cans of beef as anything else.

Most of the opposition to the Dies Congressional Investigation Committee was "made in Germany." Hitler and his followers don't approve of having the activities of Nazism in America investigated. If Hitler's diabolical designs and devilish secret schemes were brought to light, it wouldn't look good to the average American citizen.

The Dies committee can harm no one who is loyal to Uncle Sam and his government. It is the spy and the traitor who have cause to dread the investigation. It is the "Hitler hooligans" who are cussin' Dies. When you hear a man criticising Dies and the activities of his committee, you can truthfully answer, "Your criticism was made in Germany." True Americans are safe. It is the un-American who has cause to fear Martin Dies.

If you are among the old folks pensioners and a slick looking fellow calls on you and says, "For a dollar, I can get your pension

"WE HATE WAR"

We hate war. We think it is brutal. A world war now would be horrible. Any war of conquest would be inexcusable and wicked beyond anything the world has ever seen. But the fellow who says that the United States should never engage in a war except on our own soil has certainly given the matter little thought. Suppose that they should undertake to sink every American ship that they could find on the high seas. Suppose that they should send their submarines abroad and begin plugging holes in the bottoms of our battle ships. Suppose that they should land their armies in Mexico and overrun the country. Suppose they should send swarms of airplanes over to Mexico and to the countries of Central and South America on both sides of the Panama Canal. Suppose they should under take to blockade our ports at Boston, New York, New Orleans, Galveston, Houston, and San Francisco. They could or might do all of this, if unopposed, without invading a foot of our territory. Should we wait till all this should be done and then our soil actually invaded before we should lift an arm in defense? Such a course would be worse than folly; it would be utter lunacy. Yet we keep hearing individuals and groups asserting that Uncle Sam should never fight except on her own soil. Pooh! —Lynn County News

Brother Hill you have said what I have all along been trying to say.

God knows that I would hate to see a war. I have lived through the horrors of three major wars, and I realize that Sherman was right when he said, "war is hell."

But war is one of the evil inheritances of all flesh. It is like a deadly contagion that spreads among people and kills almost as many as the deadly traffic of modern days.

War kills its thousands, but the automobile kills its tens of thousands, yet, who is it that would be so unselfish as to discard his automobile because it kills in the aggregate more than war?

Who but a fool or yellow coward would trade his country for peace and slavery? Who is it that is willing to discard his liberty and the blessings which free America guarantees him, in order to appease the ambition of a heartless dictator?

It would be a sorry day if Uncle Sam were to wait until an enemy actually invaded our soil, destroyed our homes and murdered our women and babies before he would strike in defense. Only a coward and a fool would wait for such an event.

The wise and the brave would meet the enemy on the high seas and never let them land. They would carry the conflict into their own camps and never let them put their dirty feet on American Soil. I am speaking of wise and brave Americans. I have no reference to that yellow bellied rabble who would barter their grandmothers' chastity for peace.

Brother Hill, I have no patience or respect for those who are willing to enjoy the freedom and liberty which this country gives to all its citizens, and then not be willing to defend them to the last cartridge. Only those whose veins courses ice water instead of warm red blood are guilty of such contemptible attitudes.
