Speaker Suggesting Education Program

Many cities are really beginning to face water problems, according to Patricia Bruno of the High Plains Underground Water District. She was guest speaker for the Muleshoe Rotary at noon Tuesday, and cited many of the problems, mostly caused, she stated, by lack of adequate planning by city officials.

"No one needs to tell us we're in a water short area," she commented to the Rotarians. "We need to search for new sources of water, new wells, and new legal rights."

Ms. Bruno spoke of soaring water costs and proposed some solutions to the ever-growing problems faced by some cities. She said they just completed a water study in Farwell, and are just beginning another survey for the City of Friona. Recently, Friona has been in the news with a lack of adequate water to serve the community.

Cited as major water users in this area are for irrigation and for power companies.

Advocating 'use less water' Ms. Bruno said an educational program was necessary. "We need to make sure our cities are utilizing water to the fullest and most economical extent."

She suggested changing the water metering, and charge for the use of water where people will cut down on usage, especially in watering lawns and yard, which she said was 35 percent or more how water was used by residences.

She added that the national average of water consumption is 85.6 gallons daily per individual, the average in Amarillo is 97.5 gallons per resident each day.

Also, Ms. Bruno, speaking of the educational programs, said people need to be informed where water comes from, and why does it cost so much.

She suggested restricting use of water for parks and for school irrigation, recreational lakes, add flow restricters for residences and adding low water use toilets. This can save 10,000 acre feet of water per year, she commented.

Also, leaks cause another major water loss. She suggested that cities use effluent water in some manner, such as irrigation and landscaping.

Brief remarks were made by Muleshoe City Manager Dave Marr, who is also president of the Muleshoe Rotary Club. He explained that all waste water from the city is already utilized in watering alfalfa, and the city also has several other innovative water - saving measures implemented at this time.

On July 4th

"With the July 4th Celebration behind us, we can look back and remember a very enjoyable day," said John Gulley, manager of the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture. "For those who came to town on the fourth, it was a time of family and celebration. Now is a time for gratitude."

Gulley also commented, "While it would be impossible to thank everyone who worked, participated, and contributed money, we would like those who worked so hard to make the day a tremendous success to know how much we appreciate their time and efforts."

The Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture is already planning additional events for the remainder of 1980. The Christmas lights committee will be meeting again soon to discuss plans for the Christmas decorations for the city.

Crowds In Muleshoe During Celebration

Although a smaller crowd than usual spent a big part of Friday at the Bailey County Exhibition Center and Coliseum, it was still an enthusiastic group who visited the booths and the Mule Shoe pitching during the day.

A large crowd was on hand for the Pony Relay Race and the 4-H Omelet Rodeo. Many viewers were back and forth at the Mule Shoe Pitching, which was held at the miniature golf course site. Ed Neutzler won back the title he held several times in the past.

A record 140 persons registered for the Old Settlers Reunion, and several more were reported to be at the reunion who went too late to get registered.

Proving to still be a very popular event was the 'Kid's Activities' with many entries and a large number of winners.

Winners in the 3-5 year old Hot Wheels were Steven Wayne Wagnon, Tres Treadwell and Marianne Tombs.

For the Small Bike division, 0-5 year old winners were Tod Allan Shipman, Casey Allen Dupler and Donda Magby. The winners in the older division were Colby Miller, Edi Black and Kristin Chitwood.

ana, Sean Shipman and Crystal Cox.

In the regular Bike division, winners were Chad Griswold, Wes Jarmon and Heath Scott for the 6-8 year olds and Troy Golden, Michael Dupler and Clint Leonard won the 9-12 year olds.

Texas No. 3 Producer of Vegetables in U. S.

AUSTIN—Vegetables produced in Texas would make up into a mighty big salad, the third largest in the nation, in fact. The state's production of fresh vegetables, recently valued at $230.8 million, makes it the number three producer in the nation, reports Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown. According to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, the state was first in harvested acreage of spinach and watermelons, and second in cabbage, cantaloupes, carrots, bell peppers, onions and honeydew melons. The harvest of 2.2 billion pounds of fresh vegetables was down nine percent below 1978, but value rose eight percent. Spring and summer onions brought more money than any other crop, $50.8 million. They were followed by cabbage, $29.3 million; cantaloupes, $29 million; watermelons, $23.1 million, and carrots, $20.3 million. Texas had 10.4 percent of the total harvested acreage, 8 percent of production and 7.9 percent of the total value of fresh market vegetables produced in the United States. California ranked first, Florida second, New York fourth and Arizona fifth. These states accounted for 69 percent of the harvested acres, 77 percent of production and 81 percent of the value of fresh market vegetables and melons. Carter has decided against debating Anderson.

NEWS OF PETS

Food For Thought
Like many people in these inflationary times, dog owners are looking for a way to provide their pets with a good tasting, nutritionally balanced meal that doesn't cost a lot.

Well, now there's Gaines Complete—a new soft-moist dog food that offers meaty taste, carefully balanced nutrition and convenience at a lower price than the leading brand—up to 30¢ less!
Developed through extensive research, new Gaines Complete combines tender pieces and chewy chunks with a meaty taste dogs love. And, it comes in two popular flavors—Beef flavor and Cheese Flavor—at a price people can appreciate.

Now you can read "energy labels" on appliances—and feel like a whiz! They tell you how much your annual "energy cost" will be to run the appliance. It's budget-wise to do this, since you can save much money—depending on your choice of appliances. Here's why: if you choose an energy-efficient appliance that will save you lots of energy dollars through the years, even though it costs more to buy than standard models, your savings may be great. Remember that the price tag on an appliance isn't the total price. One needs to consider the operating costs, too. How to decide is the part that confuses many of us—but now there's an easy way, and even a "super-easy" way. First, look for the yellow-and-black "Energy Guide" labels on new models of appliances. Older models will not have the tags. They're on seven types of major household appliances—refrigerators, freezers, dishwashers, clothes washers, water heaters, room air conditioners and furnaces. Here's the "super easy" way to decide which appliance is more energy-efficient: Read the big number on the yellow-and-black labels—see which is lower, and take that model home with you, providing it meets your needs.

But what if the energy-efficient appliance will cost you more to buy initially? Does the higher purchase price offset the energy savings? This is a common question, since many energy-efficient appliances do cost more to buy due to insulation differences or more efficient motor parts. Often, the lower energy cost of the more efficient model will offset the higher purchase price over the appliance's lifetime.

There's an easy way to figure all this out, so you'll know for sure. Basically, here's what you'll be doing, first, calculate the difference in purchase price between the two models in question by subtracting the cost of the standard model (it's the one with the higher annual energy cost—and it has a lower EER, or energy efficiency rating) from the cost of the more energy-efficient model. Next, determine the annual energy cost of the two models—since the big number on the yellow-and-black label is an "average" cost based on an "average" utility rate. To find your own actual energy cost, you'll need to know what your local utility companies charge you for electricity or gas. Call your utility companies and ask what they charge for a kilowatt hour of electricity—and a therm of gas. Then use the chart at the bottom of the yellow-and-black label to determine the average annual energy cost of the standard model versus the energy-efficient one. At last, you're ready to figure out the total amount of money you'll save with the more energy-efficient appliance over the long run.

Two simple steps will give you that figure. 1) Multiply the annual energy-cost savings by the number of years you expect to keep the appliance. This is your "LONG-RUN SAVINGS" figure. 2) Write down the initial PRICE DIFFERENCE (you filled that in on the worksheet—it's the first total on the bottom half of the sheet). Next, subtract the initial PRICE DIFFERENCE from the LONG-RUN SAVINGS figure. Once that's done, you will know your TOTAL energy-cost savings. In addition, if you also wonder how soon you'll recover the extra money you paid to buy the higher-priced energy-efficient model, simply divide the price difference by the ANNUAL energy-cost savings (not the long-run savings figure). In summary, you can now use the energy-cost information you find on appli-

Newly Married Couples Should Know What To Expect

People don't just marry each other -- they marry into a family and all its influences, says Diane Welch, a family life education specialist.

A critical factor to the success of the new couples' relationship is how well each gets along with the other's family, she points out.

Mrs. Welch is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A & M University System.

There are some factors which can cause problems, and newly married couples should know what to expect she explains.

First, parents still may want to "parent".

They have put a large amount of time, money energy and self into child-rearing, and they aren't ready to give up the role.

Expectations of what the newlyweds "should do" can bring confusion and conflict.

In addition, one or both persons in the new marriage may still depend on their parents for emotional and / or financial support or for decision making help, the specialist continues.

A mate can resent this, and trouble may result.

In other cases, individuals may have had poor relationships with their own parents and may transfer these feelings and / or hostilities to their in-laws.

When this occurs, self-examination and re-orientation of attitudes may help.

Finally, each family over the years has developed its own "styles" of thinking, believing and behaving, she adds.

It may take time for each family and each of the newly married partners to get used to the others' habits and ways.

On the other hand, this "in-law" thing can be positive and rewarding with happy and meaningful in-law relationships, Mrs. Welch suggests.

Here are some ideas for a positive approach:

Remember parents are still parents and probably have a strong emotional tie to their children. They love your spouse and your spouse loves them.

There is always fear of rejection in a new relationship. Enter it with the attitude of acceptance.

Forget the negative connotation of "in-laws" and expect to see positive qualities.

Share the responsibility of maintaining contacts with both sides of the family with your mate. Try to equalize involvement.

Take an adult attitude towards problem-solving. Listen to advice and recommendations but make decisions and work out problems as a couple.

Put the origins of conflict and confusion in their proper place. Work out frustrations with your mate. Avoid directing anger towards his or her family.

Leave comparisons alone. When the actions of families or family members are evaluated one side against the other, there can only be defensiveness, rebuttals and harsh feelings.

Resist feeling threatened by the attention of your mate to his or her family. Focus on the security of your relationship with each other.

Think of the extended family as a source of love, support and satisfaction. Expect this and work towards achievement.

TOPS Has Weekly Meeting

Senator John Tower Opens Office In Lubbock

West Texans gained a more direct pipeline to Washington this week with the opening of U.S. Senator John Tower's regional office in Lubbock.

The new office is the fourth one staffed by the senior Texas senator to give citizens easier access to their government. Others are located in Austin, Dallas and Houston.

Senator Tower is expected to personally welcome citizens at an official opening this summer, according to office director Christian A. Steed.

"We're open and ready for business now, and hope people will soon ask us for help with federal-related problems or requests or let us know their opinions on issues of concern," Steed said. "In addition to national issues such as defense, the economy and energy, West Texans also place high priority on agricultural policy, export markets, predator control and water problems."

The Lubbock-based office is intended to serve citizens in the Panhandle, South Plains, Permian Basin, and the El Paso area. Constituents may visit, telephone (806) 762-7533, or direct their letters to 1001 Main, Room 730 Court Place, Lubbock, Texas 79401.

"Once the public is informed about the services available through the Tower office, I feel confident we can become a significant force in making their concerns known to the Congress and federal agencies."

In Breaking Eggs by Quantity It's What's Inside That Counts

AUSTIN—Very few homemakers would attempt a recipe calling for a million-and-a-half eggs, even if they could find a bowl big enough to handle the job. But did you ever wonder how the bakeries, hotels and institutions who demand such huge quantities of eggs meet the need?

Fortunately, the tedious task of cracking, separating and processing such quantities of eggs would only take a few days, thanks to some specialized firms and their efficient mechanical helpers.

It may not sound like the most glamorous profession, but there are about 185 companies in the United States (two of which are in Texas) that make egg breaking a full-time job, according to Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown. And there are plenty of businesses perfectly willing to "shell-out" for the convenience and quality of ready-to-use farm fresh eggs.

As well as saving time, there are other practical benefits in purchasing egg products in liquid or frozen form. One is simpler quality control, since all processed eggs are pasteurized to kill harmful bacteria, and their wholesomeness guaranteed by U.S. Department of Agriculture inspectors. Another selling point is that companies can order yolks only, whites only, or any combination they wish. A customer can also specify that additional ingredients be mixed with the eggs prior to delivery, thus eliminating time-consuming steps in his manufacturing process.

From another viewpoint, breaking plants provide a valuable outlet for the estimated one out of 10 eggs which, for reasons such as shell appearance and small cracks, do not meet established standards, and therefore cannot be cartoned and sold at retail level.

RECIPE

Italian Beef and Sausage Supper

- 1/4 lb. link sausage (3 or 4 links)*
- 1/2 lb. ground beef*
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon basil (optional)
- 1 medium tomato, cut in wedges
- 3 tablespoons water
- 1 package (10 oz.) Birds Eye Italian style vegetables with a seasoned sauce

*Or use 3/4 lbs. ground beef and omit sausage.

Brown sausage well in skillet; set aside and cut in pieces. Pour off all fat. Add ground beef, salt and basil to skillet; saute just until meat is evenly browned. Add tomato wedges and cook 2 to 3 minutes. Move meat mixture to side of skillet. Add water, vegetables and sausage. Bring to a full boil over medium heat, separating vegetables with a fork and stirring frequently. Serve over hot cooked spaghetti, if desired. Makes 4 cups or 3 servings.

NOTE: Ground beef may be shaped into small meatballs before browning.

his orders are for frozen whole eggs, frozen egg whites and frozen yolks, although the company is prepared to sell liquid eggs in bulk loads of 40,000 pounds.

After the eggs are processed, salt or sugar can be added at the plant, depending on the intended use.

Salted yolks will be used in the manufacture of mayonnaise, while yolks with sugar added will go into commercial baking. Whole eggs are utilized in making commercial pastries and noodles. Pure egg whites have a variety of edible uses, but also are needed in the manufacture of glue and paste.

So that nothing is wasted, the egg shells can be ground into commercial fertilizer, and eggs not suitable for human consumption can be dehydrated and used in pet foods.

While the 185 egg breaking plants in the United States provide an important service to the American food industry, their product is also a hot item in many foreign countries. In one recent year alone, the U.S. shipped more than 26 million pounds of frozen eggs to hotels, bakeries and institutions abroad. Japan is by far the largest customer, followed by Switzerland, Mexico, the United Kingdom, West Germany and the Netherlands, according to the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Several Texas companies are presently working to market frozen eggs overseas, and are listed in the Texas Agricultural Export Directory. This directory, published by the Texas Department of Agriculture, lists a wide range of food products available for export from Texas farms.

Is Canning, Freezing, or Dehydrating Best for Preserving Vegetables?

By Robert L. Haney
TAES Science Writer

To hold down food costs, more and more people are turning to home preservation as a means to either save extra food when it's cheapest to buy or to store the surplus of a home garden.

Is it best to freeze, can, or dehydrate? There is a decided difference in energy cost and product quality, according to Dr. Ki Soon Rhee, food scientist at Texas A&M University, who made a comparative study of food preservation methods for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Carrots, zucchini and summer squash were processed by canning, freezing and dehydration according to methods commonly used in the home.

Energy use was measured and the cost preservation was calculated, with the packaging and amortized equipment cost included. Palatability and vitamin content, of the processed products, important measures of quality, were carefully checked.

Freezing required the shortest processing time and resulted in products with the best eating quality with

Good Lawn Mower Design Helps Prevent Accidents

Some lawn mowers just can't cut it when it comes to safety. But even mowers with safety features can be dangerous if operators are careless, tired or in too much of a hurry. Working within inches of a blade whirling at approximately 230 miles per hour is no time to be careless, the Texas Medical Association (TMA) says.

The United States Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) says good lawn mower design can help prevent accidents that cost about $253 million and about 77,000 amputated fingers and toes, cuts and broken bones yearly. Among its recommendations, the commission says a walk-behind lawn mower should have a foot guard in back and a deflector shield to shoot debris downward when a grass-catching bag is not being used.

To further prevent injuries, TMA urges mower users to take special care to avoid injuries to hands, feet and legs, which the CPSC says are the most common places hurt. These precautions include shutting off the mower completely our quality farm products," commented Commissioner Brown.

Whether they are sold here or abroad, eggs remain nature's most perfectly packaged product. But in these days of inflation and tight profit margins, for some, it's what's inside that counts.

before unclogging the discharge chute or blades and making sure that feet and hands are clear of the blade area before starting the motor.

Other important precautions include mowing across a slope instead of up and down it. This mowing method will help improve mower control and footing for walk-behind mower operators. Riding mowers should move up and down the slope for better stability.

Footing also can be treacherous on wet grass. Not only does it increase danger, but wet grass is harder to mow, clogs the mower easier than dry grass does and increases the chance of shock for electric mower users.

One of the major hazards electric mower users face is being shocked because a cord is cut even slightly. Mowing the area nearest the electric outlet first and then working away from it, keeping the cord behind at all times, helps decrease this danger.

TMA says injuries to other parts of the body often occur when small objects

Making sure people and pets are far away from the mower is a good way to avoid such accidents. This precaution is necessary because a mower, even with a grass catcher, can sling objects from any side.

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa,

I am fifteen years old and very much in love with a sixteen year old boy. He is very handsome and kind. We go to the movies a lot and have fun. But when he gets around a certain girl he rejects me. Should I try to hold on to him?

Fifteen—Miss.

Answer:

Just how does he reject you, fifteen? Do you mean that he talks to the other girl or dances with her more than with you when you are at a school party?

It is nice at your age to have a very special friend who takes you to the movies and on whom you can depend for dates but it never pays to be too possessive. Have a good time with other girls and boys and keep on with this boy as long as he pays you attention and you like him.

Louisa

Dear Louisa,

My sister and I go to church without hats and one of my friends who goes to another church said that all women should wear something on their heads. None of the young girls in our church wear hats. Who is right?

Emma—Fla.

Answer:

It depends on the church. Some require that their members have a covering of some kind on their heads—other churches let the women decide for themselves.

According to Kenneth E. Graeber, executive director of the State Property Tax Board, the notice is required whenever a jurisdiction proposes to adopt a tax rate which is three percent or more above a maximum tax rate calculated by the jurisdiction's assessor. The maximum tax rate is a rate which would provide sufficient revenue for the current year's debt service and provide operating revenues equal to those of the prior year.

Graeber pointed out that some confusion exists due to the calculation and wording of the "Notice of Tax Increase". For this reason, many jurisdictions have chosen to run explanatory advertisements adjacent to the notice required by law.

THELMA THWARTUM -- By Alex

Local Government Advertising Taxes

During the next two months a number of local governments throughout Texas will be publishing newspaper advertisements titled "Notice of Tax Increase".

The notices, which include the percentage of proposed tax increase, are required under the state's "Truth in Taxation" statute. They are intended to insure taxpayers have notice that a jurisdiction's tax revenue is likely to increase, and that they have a right to appear at a public hearing to speak either for or against the increase.

According to Kenneth E. Graeber, executive director of the State Property Tax Board, the notice is required whenever a jurisdiction proposes to adopt a tax rate which is three percent or more above a maximum tax rate calculated by the jurisdiction's assessor. The maximum tax rate is a rate which would provide sufficient revenue for the current year's debt service and provide operating revenues equal to those of the prior year.

Graeber pointed out that some confusion exists due to the calculation and wording of the "Notice of Tax Increase". For this reason, many jurisdictions have chosen to run explanatory advertisements adjacent to the notice required by law.

"It is important that taxpayers be aware that the percentage of increase shown in the notice relates to the jurisdiction as a whole. A specific individual's taxes may increase at a greater rate, may remain the same, or may decrease," Graeber noted.

"The tax bill on an individual piece of property will depend upon the value of the property less any exemptions, multiplied by the jurisdiction's assessment ratio and tax rate," the SPTB official added.

In jurisdictions throughout Texas, compliance with truth in taxation will follow this sequence: --After the board of equalization certifies the jurisdiction's total assessed valuation, the tax assessor will calculate the maximum tax rate and publicize it by publication in a newspaper of general circulation in the jurisdiction.

--If the governing body chooses to adopt a tax rate which does not exceed the calculated rate, it may do so at any meeting. Other items of business may be on the agenda but the tax rate should be adopted as a separate item from the jurisdiction's budget.

--If the governing body determines that a rate which exceeds the three percent limit must be adopted, the members must give notice of a public hearing on the intent to adopt a higher rate. The jurisdiction must publish a notice no smaller than one-quarter page of a standard-size or tabloid newspaper, and must set the date of the public hearing at least seven days from the date the notice is published.

The date, time and location of the public hearing must be stated in the notice. The date must be on a weekday and not a public holiday. The hearing must begin after 5 p.m. and before 9 p.m. The location must be in a public building in the jurisdiction's boundaries.

Names of all members of the governing body, showing how each voted on the proposal to raise the tax rate and indicating those absent, must appear in the notice.

As an option, the jurisdiction may mail the notice by first-class mail to each registered voter. If published in a newspaper, it cannot be in the section with legal notices and classified ads.

--At the public hearing, the discussion of the tax rate should be the only item on the agenda. Taxpayers should be given ample opportunity to express their opinions and discuss the issue with members of the governing body.

At the conclusion of the hearing, another record vote must be taken for the purpose of a second public notice. In addition, the officials must orally give the date, time and place of the meeting to adopt the tax rate. The second notice will be identical in form to the first except it will include a statement that "a public meeting to vote on the proposed increase will be held on (date), (time) at (meeting place)."

Cotton Still Texas 'King'

Cotton still reigns as "king" among crops in Texas and it impacts the state's economy to the tune of $7 billion a year.

Texas boasts more than half of the nation's cotton acreage, with some eight million acres planted this year. An average cotton year could result in 5.5 million bales and sales of $1.8 billion, assuming 60 cents a pound for lint and $120 a ton for cottonseed, points out Dr. Bob Metzger, cotton specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. This compares to $1.5 billion crop in 1979.

However, few cotton farmers are getting rich due to skyrocketing production costs.

Cotton has a far-reaching effect on Texas' economy, with gins, oil mills, compresses-warehouses and machinery supplies being some of the industry's key ingredients, notes the specialist.

Texas boasts 783 active gins that generate about $150 million a year. And the 21 oil mills that process about two million tons of cottonseed annually generate another $274 million. Then there are the state's 29 compresses-warehouses, marketing associates, cottonseed delinting plants and the seed industry that bring in additional millions of dollars.

Of course, with a lot of Texas cotton going into export channels, the crop helps pay the bill for much of the foreign oil that comes into the U.S.

In a nutshell, Texas cotton means a lot to the state and nation, contends the specialist.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sand-hills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sandy Creek comes to the defense of the United States this week, in his own fashion.
Dear editor;

It has become a pastime for some people these days to keep asking: Can't the United States do anything right? included in the remark is the implication that other countries don't do anything wrong.

Why, they say, twice in one week the nation's nuclear war warning system went haywire because somebody forgot to replace a 43 cent chip in a computer. I don't believe this.
You can't buy anything anymore for 43 cents.

Some people think everything runs smoothly for example in Russia, although nobody thinks it does in Iran. However I read an article in a magazine last night that said: "The amount of bribery of public officials in Russia is enormous. Graft and bride-taking is widespread in all segments of government, and stealing

Your faithfully,
J.A.

on the job is commonplace." And it's not just among public officials. Hubcap stealing is as prevalent there as here, although Russian youths don't stop there. They go for windshield wipers and rear-view mirrors too. The volume is not as great there because there are fewer cars. To buy a new car in Russia you have to put your name on a waiting list, pay the full purchase price at that time and then wait two years for delivery. Why didn't Chrysler think of that? As in all countries, if you're important enough you don't have to wait. Premier Brezhnev has 10 cars, while the average citizen has a bicycle. Government leaders explain this by pointing out that nobody needs 10 bicycles.

Just recently Russian newspapers themselves were reporting widespread complaints from people who've been short-changed by cashiers in state-owned restaurants.

What this proves is that the United States has no monopoly on human nature and it's wise to count your change, regardless of what form of government you're dining under.
