BALLAST

BY BABBLER

Football is in the air; both yerbally and actually. The de-velopment of the passing game in recent years keeps the ball in the air much of the time. The six man game designed for small high schools is largely a game of passes, forward, lateral and back. It is this game that we are most interested in hereabouts.

Beginning last year all the small chools for many miles about are playing football many of them for the first time. Three of the local players last season had seen a game one of these had played grade school ball three or four years earlier. The spectators were wonderfully kind and considerate of the coach who could not make winners from this material. Nevertheless, we had a fair team before the season closed; a fine session of spring training; and the prospects look good.

Our schedule opens September 22, at home, Water Valley being the opponent. That is followed by Forsan, Westbrook and Garden City in as many weeks; one week rest. and a repitition of the the four games. Half of these will be played st home and half away. The winner of this schedule, figured on percentage basis, will play the winner of a similar schedule north of the T. P. for the district championship. This final game will be played November 24. Our boys are determined to play in it.

The equad is made up of one senior, Benny (The Great) Green, and a host of juniors, sophs and freshmen. At least four freshmen bid fair for a position this season, and guarantee good teams for the next three. Billy Chesney and fred Mitchell in the backfield and Tom D. Davis and Dan Dearen on the line will make our upperclassmen fight long and hard for the right to play. The juniors hold the edge in numbers and talent with Geo Mills, Claude Broome, Durwood Rhoden, Dick Abernathy, Jim Bob Clark, Joe Allen Mathis, Fred Currie and Jr. Thiers. The sophs present Ross Foster, Winston Churchill and Louis Blanck,

He has already made himself popular with the boys.

One other new teacher comes to our high school this year; Miss Ferrell replacing Miss Doveta Young in the home economics department. She is in the harness doing her work with a smile that is contagious. The Grade School has a new teacher for the first grade, Miss Reitser from

The first bunch I saw start a new scholastic year, many of them are now grandfathers and grandmothers. But it was the same old thrill last Monday morning when I looked into the faces of nearly 200 bright and promising youngsters.

Supt. O. T. Jones began by the introduction of each of the teachers. Some of whom were holdovers from last year's service, while there were new faces on the staff. They all looked good to me, Supt. Jones reviewed a program of general work in the school for the coming year. Then he introduced Prof Durham who made a talk to the boys and girls which they enjoyed to the limit. He gave the crowd the benefit of his 42 years of observation and experience since the time he was superintendent of the school.

Others present were introduced and made encouraging talks. When ing halfback, promising that he will all was said and done each teacher went to their respective class room with his or her pupils to begin their

Infantile Paralysis

Infantile paralysis, like typhoid fever and intestinal disturbances of infants, is largely a summer disease Although cases may occur during any month of the year, over half of the total number occur during July, August, September and October To date, 109 cases of poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) have been re ported to the Texas State Depart ment of Health in 1939.

Direct contact between persons is regarded as being the chief factor in the spread of infantile paralysis Because of the season prevalence of the disease, flies and other insects have been suspected of conveying the virus or germ. Insect trans mission has not, however, been scientifically proven. Although animals are subject to paralysis, they are seemingly not susceptible to the human type of this paralytic disease. Carriers are difficult to determine; this fact makes advis able the reduction to a minimum of human contacts during an outbreak

Early symptoms of infantile paralysis comprise headache, fever, vomiting, intestinal disorder, drowsiness and irritability, followed by neck or back stiffness. Prompt medical care, early recognition and reporting of case to health authorities make possible the use of valuable preventive and control measures.

After the acute state of the disease has passed and walking is permitted the patient, under no circumstance, must the affected part be fatigued. It is observed that the secret of successful rehabilitation lies in con tinuance of professional guidance and large doses of patience.

Our Congressman Makes Excuses For Germany

At a barbecue in San Angelo last week, Congressman C. L. South, among other things in his speech, about his own country and its allies of 20 years ago: Changing to the current subject of the European crisis, South assailed the Versailles Treaty that followed the World War as a cause for the turning of Germany into an outlaw nation. The treaty, South said, was unjust, unreasonable and without the spirit of conscience. It was too harsh at the time, he claimed. The victorious nations were drunk with victory and thus put the yoke of defeat too heavily on the German state. So secretly, Germany rearmed, and has grown to be an outlaw, seeking to regain her lost station. The treaty, as conceived by Woodrow Wilson, was not carried so we have the grave situation today, South reasoned.—San Angelo Standard

I am sorry that Congressman South said that, Especially at a time like this. Excusing, if not condoning Hitler's schemes of plunder and robbery as well as plunging the whole world into a deadly struggle.

Of course Mr. South had a right to express his views in public about the sins of Uncle Sam and his Allies against Germany in 1918, but dogbite me, I can't it see that way. To save me, I can't find it in my heart to make excuses and give comfort to one of the greatest monsters that ever disgraced the soil of Europe. (I am sorry that a man whom this great district has honored has so little judgment, so little regard for the feelings of those wto served so gallantly under the banner of freedom twenty years ago in order to crush the enemy of humanity and try by agreement to make the peace of the world secure

Twenty years ago, like a great gang of bandits, Germany set out to conquor the world and convert it into a vast German empire. Without cause or warning they rushed Belgium, a friendly and unspecting people and committed unspeakable crimes against the Belgians sparing neither age or condition. It was the same way in France. It seemed that they had no other motives except to kill, conquer and destroy everything that opposed their will.

When the nations in their righteous indignation rose up and brought the German to the point of crying for peace, the Allies among whom was your Uncle Sam, sought to place those people in a condition where they would be helpless to repeat their outrages against hu-

Any veteran of the A. E. F. will tell you that if the Allies had torn up Germany as the Germans had torn up France and Belgium those people would have lost their taste for war quite awbile and that the world would be at peace today.

From a German viewpoint they were badly treated at Versailes, but from an Allies viewpoint the Germans richly deserved it and had it coming to them. They started the war without just cause and because they got the hot end of it, they have men like Herr South out on excuses for that jailbird Hitler and trying to lead the people of this country to believe that they and

BEYOND ME

It is beyond me why some people so gladly and industriously lend themselves to spreading Hitler propaganda. What good to their neighbors and countrymen they can do by denouncing the people of of their own country for things said and done twenty years ago, is more than I can understand.

Men and women who justify and excuse the acts of Hitler in his war on women and babies are little less than traitors who give comfort to an enemy in time of danger.

These carriers of poison no doubt were German sympathizers during the World War and are sore because Germany failed to conquor the world as she had set out to do. It was a sore disappointment to them when the Allies won the war. Those making excuses and condoning the acts of Hitler because of the treaty at Versailles, compelling Germany to make partial amends for the hideous treatment accorded Belgium and France when they were so sure of victory.

Some of these folks are industriously spreading Hitler's Story that the Ship Athenia was sunk by a British floating mine, when in fact and in truth, the victims of that disaster plainly saw a German submarine rise out of the water and deliver the fatal blow and then fire shells among the helpless victim who were struggling in the water for their lives. These Jackasses bearing lies for Hitler may yet find themselves in trouble of their own making.

Yes I know that every man and women is guarnteed the right of free speech. We all are aware of that, but did it every occur to you that he who invokes this constitutional right is responsible for what

If I were a puking, pusillan mous buzzard who regales himself on putridity, I would consult the dignity of my beak before I would use it as a vehicle to carry lies for Hitler who is now wanted by the whole civilized world for murder Arson, theft, kidnepping and every other crime against mankind .-Uncle Bill

It has been very dry and hot here for the past weeks. It has been so calm that only enough wind blew to make the windmills bring water for household purposes. Most of the ranchers have been using gasoline engines to pump water for stock, Yet, in spite of the drouth and heat. ranchmen report their stock in fine condition. The price of lambs and wool as well as cattle keep these boys in fine spirits.

are to blame because of a treaty with Germany a generation ago.

If and when a bandit and his gang are caught, handcuffed and brought before the bar of justice to answer for his crimes, I suppose that Herr South would say. "give him back his gun and his liberty and turn him loose to again prey on humanity", but you and I would say;"let the law and justice take its course. Let him be put into a condition where he will cease from troubling. That was what the Allies did to the Kaiser at Versailes in 1918, and of which Herr South is beefing and bellyaching about this

If I were so much grieved and offended because of the acts of my country and its allies twenty years ago as it seems that Herr South is I would buy a ship load of dogs and set sail for Germany where my talk and sentiments would shine and where my dogs could do things to the Poles.

In a talk with a group of World War veterans the other day, Herr South had snagged his umbilicus with them. They didn't like his talk at San Angelo. They said he wasn't in that war and they wondered what was the matter with him,

It is unfortunate for South that he saw fit to make those remarks. Let us hope that he was misunderstood and that he still is willing to give America and her former Democratic Allies credit for justice in their dealing with Germany.

It seems the boys are raring to go from the way they have been talking and acting lately, and 1 sincerely believe we're going to have some team this year. First, Benny Green, our biggest hope for the coming season. Benny, the little ball of dynamite, outruns, outblocks, outtackles and outkicks anyone on the squad for the coming season. We're planning a lot on you, Benny, so don't disappoint us.

Next, Durwood Rhoden, whom we also expect a lot of. Durwood is going to be mighty hard to beat at center and end. They haven't and don't seem to come to big for him. Haven't I got that right?

Then there are the others: Jce Mathis, end; Billy Chesney, halfback and end; Fred Mitchell, half; Lloyd Sharp, center and end, and too will be almost unbeatable at these two positions. Don't you think so?

Then there is Dale (Pup) Hall, half; Jack Mathis, whom for some reason unknown will not report for football this season. But confident. ially, I think Jack has plenty of good reasons for not returning, so please do not be asking him why for I'm sure he doesn't wish to discuss it.

One more thing: there are several citizens who have assisted the foot- 24, 1814. Fifteen days after peace the coming winter is somewhat ball team considerable and we appreciate it a lot. Now, I am calling on each and every citizen in Sterling County to give their utmost support to the team this year. World Beer Consumption Gains As Moderation Movement Grows steadily increasing in the wake of temperance education advocating moderation and sobriety, reached a new post-war peak with the production of 196,000,000 barrels in the fiscal year 1938, according to preliminary figures collected by the League of Nations, at Geneva, Switzerland.

The world increase of 2,000,000 hectolitres (1,700,000 barrels) over 1937 was due primarily to the estimated increase of 3,000,000 hectolitres in Europe, where temperance promotion and governmental advocation of beverages of moderation have gained wide headway in recent years.

The United Kingdom, Germany, Austria and Japan were among the major countries producing more beer during the fiscal year 1938 than during the previous year. Other nations reporting increases were Bulgaria, Estonia, Greece, Hungary, | produced last year, WORLD-WIDE consumption of Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Netherbeer and ale, which has been lands, Poland, Sweden, Yugoslavia, Egypt, Morocco, Tunis, Union of South Africa, Guatemala, Mexico and Peru.

The United States showed a slight decrease in the amount of beer produced. More recently the figures have turned upward again, indicating that beer production in this country follows the general business

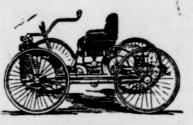

Starting with the post-war period. during which wide-spread movements of temperance education were developed in many sections of the world, consumption of beer as a beverage of moderation has been on the increase. Even discounting the amount attributable to the return of legal beer in the United States, a world-wide gain of approximately 14 per cent is reflected in a comparison of the 123,000,000 barrels produced in 1920 with the 196,000,000 barrels

BIOGRAPHY Leslie Fenton

If you have a story to tell, tell it fast-and make it land with a sock. That is the creed by which Leslie Fenton works, and it was one reason behind his selection to direct full-length features after his outstanding success with Crime-Does-Not-Pay two-reelers and other

He works and acts on the principle that "brevity is the soul of wit"-and screen story-telling, too. It's tempo that counts with him, and to him it must be speedy. The slow, laborious method of telling a tale is not for him.

"Let's get some action into this," is his constant thought. And action marks any Leslie Fenton production, action that is told in a series of graphic, speeding sequences.

Fenton, once an actor, by his own choice turned to directing. His first assignment was a Crime-Does-Not-Pay short, and such was the skill of that and all his subsequent efforts that attention was soon riveted on his technique, which led to his di-recting "Tell No Tales," his first feature-length picture.

Authenticity of characterization and personal supervision of wardrobe are other Fenton fetishes, When he was assigned to "Tell No Tales," Fenton set to work with the casting department in selecting the sixty-five supporting actors in the picture.

"And believe me, we had a job on our hands," he recalls. "Each and every one had to fit the part. I was anxious to get over a telegraphic effect of instant identity. It was absolutely necessary for the character introduced to register instantaneously with the audience.'

Born in Liverpool, England, Fenton came to the United States at the age of ten and settled in Ohio with his family. Graduating, he went to New York and joined the Charles Blaney Stock Company, from which he stepped to leading roles in Broadway productions. He then came to Hollywood to appear in numerous films. Among the pictures in which he appeared in important roles were "What Price Glory," "The Showdown," "The Drag Net," "Dy-namite," "A Dangerous Woman," "The Man I Love," "Woman Trap," "Paris Bound," "Broadway," "Night Flight," "Lady Killer," "Marie Galante," "White Lies," "Stolen Harmony," "Men Without Names," "The Casino Murder Case," "Chinatown Squad," "Murder on the Bridle Path," "Sworn Enemy" and "China Passage."

Since becoming a director, he has turned aside but once to act. This was the role of the condemned mur-derer in "Boys Town." Fenton believes in the importance of wardrobe, including his own. At the studio he is a fashion plate in sports attire. For each scene in one of his pictures, he personally supervises the players' wardrobe.

Fenton's second feature, "Stronger Than Desire," provided an example of how he pays attention to wardrobe. In this his wife, Ann Dvorak, played a defendant in a murder trial. He kept her mostly in black "because it gave the mental Impression of tragedy so necessary to the role."

Fenton says he likes directing so much he never again intends to break away from that profession.'
