Two Hit And Run Wrecks Checked

By City Police

Wednesday morning, Muleshoe City Police arrested a local man, who was charged with failure to leave information at the scene of an accident and driving without a driver's license. The man allegedly was involved in two hit and run accidents within a few minutes late Tuesday.

In the first accident, a man reported a car had hit his pickup in the 100 block of South First Street. When the pickup was hit from behind, the driver lost control and spun around twice before slamming into a light pole at the intersection of South First and Avenue B.

Officers started checking for the car which had left the accident site, and found it in the 900 Block of South Main Street.

The driver had apparently lost control of the car on a slight curve at the end of the street skidded off the roadway and smashed into a junk car in a lot on the west side of the street.

When officers arrived, they found no one around the wrecked vehicle.

The first accident was reported at 11:40 p.m. on Tuesday night, and the second accident involving the same vehicle was reported just a few minutes later.

DEBRIS OF A FARM HOME.... Mr. and Mrs. Bob Gage went to Amarillo late Friday evening to help their son, Dondi, move. They were called back to their home early Saturday morning, being told their home, a suburban-type vehicle, tractor and home car had been totally destroyed by fire. They are staying temporarily at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Wood.

Fire Called Arson In Burglary Attempt

Double possible arsons, less than 24 hours apart, are being investigated by members of the Bailey County Sheriff's office and the Muleshoe City Police this week.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Henderson said he is seeking help from anyone who may have any type of information about the person or persons involved in a $100,000 fire near Muleshoe early Saturday morning.

After answering what was first believed to be a 'routine' fire call to the Bob Gage home two miles south and approximately three-fourths of mile west of Muleshoe, the fire turned out to not be so routine.

When investigators could get into the former garage area of the home as some of the ashes began to cool, they found that apparently the house had been burglarized while the Gage's were in Amarillo with their son, Dondi.

The door to a late model suburban-type vehicle was standing open and investigators found the remains of a microwave oven, a small television set and several guns inside the gutted vehicle.

Ag Boosters

To Sponsor

Youth Skating

The Ag Booster Club from Muleshoe High School will sponsor youth skating Saturday night, August 9 from 8-11 p.m.

Admission will be $1 and a concession stand will be available. Proceeds from the skating will be used to help pay for a suburban recently purchased for the Ag Department at MHS.

Also, the hood of the vehicle was partially raised, the top of the air breather had been removed and a five gallon gas can was under the hood.

Deputy Sheriff Henderson was aided in the initial investigation by Muleshoe City Detective Hal Bynum. The officers surmised that apparently the intruders had loaded the microwave,

Community Shower Set For Gages

Women of the Muleshoe Primitive Baptist Church are planning a community shower for Mr. and Mrs. Bob Gage, who lost their home, one vehicle, furniture, clothing, linens, dishes, and other personal items in a devastating early morning fire on Saturday.

The shower will be in the dining room of the Primitive Baptist Church across the highway from West Plains Medical Center 7-10 p.m. on Tuesday, August 12.

Coordinators of the shower said if anyone has items they need to have picked up, call Charlene Cargile at 272-5195; Patsy Shafer at 272-3487; Myrtle Creamer at 272-3265 or Sherry Shipman at 272-5105.

Items may also be delivered to any of the women named or to the Muleshoe Home Center.

According to a spokeswoman, this is a community wide effort to help replace some of the items lost by the Gage's in the fire. Although they had some insurance, it will not be sufficient to pay for the estimated $100,000 or more loss.

television and guns and possibly other merchandise into the vehicle before attempting to 'hot-wire' it to start. The officers said that apparently the carburetor had been primed with gasoline and when the burglars attempted to spark the vehicle to start it, the gas fumes exploded, resulting in the fire.

Speculation included that the person or persons who were attempting to start the vehicle had to be burned, however, a check of local and area hospitals showed that no burn victim had been taken to any hospital within approximately a 100 mile radius.

Deputy Henderson contends that in the type of explosion and fire which consumed the Gage home, whoever was responsible for the theft and explosion has to be injured, and perhaps injured badly. He asking that anyone with any information please contact him at the Bailey County Sheriff Office in Muleshoe.

The second possible arson occurred shortly before 3 a.m. Sunday, Mrs. Jackie Lobough returned to her duplex apartment on West Ave. G and opened the door to find smoke pouring out of the apartment. She woke up the other occupant of the duplex to the west, Don Leak, who in turn, called the fire department at 2:52 a.m.

Arriving at the fire, the Muleshoe Fire Department found the couch blazing in the living room of the apartment. Fire Chief Jack Dunham then found all the gas outlets in the home turned on, leading the fire department to believe the fire was deliberately set.

Mrs. Lobough told investigators that she had just returned from Lubbock

Light Rain Fell Here This Week

Heavy clouds moved into the area Tuesday night and teased the area with a promise of rain that nearly failed to materialize.

Most of the moisture received was again in the southeastern part of the county, with the Bula community receiving approximately one-half inch. The rain was accompanied by very high wind, but no major damage was reported by residents of that area. They received very little light hail in the storm.

At Needmore, as the rain fell, Deputy Sheriff Bob Henderson reported he was driving through light hail on the highway. The hail did not leave damage to the very few growing crops in the area.

Western Farm Supply at Needmore said the community received .2 in rain Tuesday night.

Jack Bates northeast of Needmore, and the Muleshoe National Wildlife Refuge both reported .08 with no hail.

In Muleshoe, as well as other locations in the area, only a small amount of moisture was recorded, up to .05.

Rain skipped through the area Sunday night late, accompanied by brilliant lightning and booming thunder. As the clouds moved over Muleshoe, up to just over an inch of rain was deposited throughout the city.

Amounts ranged from .85 to nearly an inch and a half in town, to the north and east of Muleshoe, from a trace to no moisture was reported.

Foster Fertilizer at Lazbuddie said they received only a trace, and little to no moisture was received in the Pleasant Valley area.

Most of the rain that fell was around Bula, where the accumulation was one to two inches in a spotty

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Muleshoe High School cafeteria, and all members of GPI are urged to attend.

According to Redwine, Nystrom will be going into detail on the site specific study and possibly release the proposed location of the huge fuel alcohol plant planned for this area.

Christmas Lighting Program Proposed

"Muleshoe has good water in storage, and as good or better than any other community in this area," said Clayton Yeager of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper, consultants, Tuesday morning. "You have adequate well protection through 1985, but based on population growth in the near future you are looking at a new well by 1985."

Yeager, who is drawing up a new 701 Master Plan Study for the city was speaking Tuesday morning to the Muleshoe City Council. He then spoke to the Muleshoe Rotary Club at noon, explaining some of the same projections for the city during the next few years.

In the next five years or so, Yeager is predicting that an expenditure of some $214,000 will be needed for a new well, additional water lines from six inches up in size and adding to the loop lines.

According to Yeager, Muleshoe has a higher than average daily consumption of water. Basing his figures on water pumped by the city in past years, his projection is some 200-225 gallons per day, per resident.

He said that as the style of living goes up for local residents, water consumption goes up with dishwashers, washing machines, and other water consuming items. He also cited the very arid conditions, which force the use of more water for lawns, ornamentals and other vegetation here.

According to the preliminary census figures, there are 4,607 persons living in Muleshoe, some 400 less than predicted by city officials. Also, the figure released for residents of the county is 7,771, another figure which is said to be considerably less than the actual residents of the city and county.

Texas temperatures vary across the state

COLLEGE STATION — Newcomers may find it hard to get used to Texas weather — especially this summer's sizzling 100-degree temperatures.

However, as natives know, the state's immense size and varied climates and geography can cause significantly different spring and summer weather even in the same month.

According to meteorologists at Texas A&M University, the Panhandle town of Stratford had a 29-degree reading on May 4, 1978. Two weeks later, Presidio recorded a 108 reading.

Also in 1978, Dimmit reported 18 consecutive days of freezing temperatures in March.

COTTON TALKS

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

As of August 1, with a five-day no-rain forecast, estimates of eventual dryland cotton abandonment on the High Plains are steadily rising. One experienced observer now places from 200,000 to 300,000 acres in the "past the point of no return" category.

However, despite six to eight rainless weeks of record-breaking temperatures, most as yet are refusing to give up on production from the two million-plus acres of unirrigated cotton that remain standing. One of the most respected "forecasters" at this point is placing overall dryland yield prospects in a range from 95 to 120 pounds per acre. Another authority, a little more optimistic, sets possibilities between 120 and 160 pounds.

Meanwhile glowing reports are being heard from cotton under irrigation, some saying "best we've seen in years." Many of these reports however are being tempered by expressions of concern over a growing bollworm problem which authorities warn could bring drastic yield reductions unless timely and effective control measures are taken.

In 1979, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, the 4,566,000 acres in the 25 counties represented by Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, were split about 54 per cent dryland and 46 per cent irrigated. Because of a slight expansion of cotton acreage in irrigated areas this year and the loss of some dryland cotton early in the season, it is thought the estimated 4.3 million standing acres at August 1 may well be about half irrigated and half dryland.

But it must be kept in mind, says PCG Executive Vice President Donald Johnson, that probably less than half of the assumed 2.15 million acres under irrigation has enough water to produce optimum yields under this year's conditions.

Prevailing market prices at harvest time also will have some influence on total production from the High Plains.

Under the disaster program, farmers with drought-stricken, low-yielding cotton can choose not to harvest it and receive a payment of 19.5 cents per pound on 75 percent of the projected yield set for the farm by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. If they harvest 50, 75 or 100 pounds per acre, those pounds will be deducted from their disaster payment eligibility.

Therefore if harvesting is to be a paying proposition, the value of harvested lint and seed will have to exceed 19.5 cents per pound by enough to cover the cost of harvesting and ginning.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Texas Democrats backing Mass. Sen. Edward Kennedy in the presidential sweepstakes are pressing this state's delegation to opt for an open convention in New York next week.

Kennedy forces around the nation are positing that President Jimmy Carter's low standing in the polls warrants a change in convention rules. Carter cannot win, they argue, and the Democrats should now release all delegates pledged to any particular candidate so that the party may easier nominate a winner against GOP nominee Ronald Reagan.

Carter has more than enough first ballot pledges to sew up the nomination, if the conventioners stick to those pledges.

Pro-Carter state party leaders are working to squelch the open convention movement which would give Kennedy a new shot at the nomination. Indications are that Carter will keep his pledges, and that even if the convention was "opened," he would still win the party's nod.

In this state, the struggle pits such party leaders as Texas Democratic Party Chairman Billy Goldberg, a Carter supporter, against National Democratic Committeewomen Billie Carr, a Houston liberal backing Kennedy. Carr says she has been told by several Carter pledges that they would switch to Kennedy if rules allowed.

A Code Word

A change in the rules at this late date "sounds good but an open convention is a code word for subverting the decision of 20 million Democrats who voted in the primaries and precinct conventions," Goldberg said.

Much of the new in fighting is regarded as just a rule or ruin fight by Kennedy, who was thoroughly trounced by Carter in the primaries, despite record inflation and home mortgage rates at that time caused by deregulation of certain sectors of the economy. If such is the case, Kennedy, who has effectively knocked off the rust from his national political machine, may be making bitter enemies who will keep him from the nomination in '84.

Brother Trouble

The Democrats are looking bad and they know it. Carter is troubled by low poll ratings and scandal involving his brother Billy's role as a Libyan agent. While the Republicans work in unison and watch with glee, the Democrats know they must begin on Convention Day One to make intraparty peace and start catching up. The 1980 presidential election may well be won or lost on the first day of the convention.

State Property Taxes

One group of politicians breathing sighs of relief are Texas legislators who voted for tax relief measures last session. Now is the season for local governments—cities, counties, school boards, etc.—to prepare budgets for the coming fiscal year. Word coming in from around the state is that inflation and other factors are prompting many local officials to seek large property tax increases. State legislators, who were secretly saying all along that the Proposition 13 tax revolt should have been aimed at local and federal officials, are glad that the heat is off their backs: the Legislature effectively wiped out state property taxes last session.

Nothing stays the same in politics and their relief may be short-lived. Seeking tax revenues, Texas cities may make a raid on the sales tax and seek increases there. And the Legislature, which may be forced next session to raise presently low state taxes, had hoped to keep the sales tax hike option for itself.

AG Opinions

In a legal opinion issued last week Texas Atty. Gen.

Mark White ruled Comptroller Bob Bullock may not deposit his employees' salaries directly into banks unless he sends a separate pay warrant for each employee to the bank. Bullock had wanted to save money, time and effort by sending a lump sum to the banks of his employees, but White ruled it must be sent by individual paychecks.

White also ruled the Texas Municipal Power Agency is not a public utility as defined in the Public Utility Regulatory Act.

Teachers Attend Seminar

Five local teachers attended a Leadership Development Seminar conducted by the Texas State Teachers Association at Texas Tech University, Lubbock, July 28-30, to prepare for the opening of schools this fall. They were Barbara Finney, third grade teacher; Jo Jinks, resource teacher; Mary Helen Gutierrez, first grade teacher; Eloise Wilson, second grade teacher; and Lucy Faye Smith high school business teacher.

Seminar participants worked in professional areas such as instructional improvement, professional development, parental involvement in school, school - community relations, classroom discipline, teachers and testing, legislation, parent-teacher cooperation, political action, communications, and many others.

TSTA President Dora Scott of Houston reports that in-depth instruction received by classroom teachers and administrators at the seminar will reinforce the importance of her theme for the 1980-81 school year--TSTA/NEA: Working for Teachers and Kids.

More than 175 TSTA members attended the seminar.

"Health Foods" Here To Stay

It appears that "health foods" are here to stay and growing in popularity. Many grocery stores have well-stocked health food counters, and their customers regularly buy what used to be considered fad foods like whole grains, raw nuts and seeds or bean sprouts.

Customers shopping on regular grocery aisles often look for foods labeled "no additives or preservatives", "no artificial flavors or colors", or "naturally grown".

There is no reason to condemn the use of health foods. But fortunately, the user may be misled if he

Consumers have been led into the organic food movement by false claims of product-superiority, and

Southwestern Food Heritage

Southwestern foods trace much of their heritage to the Indians, says Dr. Rose Tindall Postel, a foods and nutrition specialist.

Blended with spicy touches added by the Spanish, the foods became the multitude of flavorful and hearty dishes typical of Southwestern cooking today, she adds.

Dr. Postel is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Southwestern Indians were predominantly farmers who raised large crops of maize, squash, beans, melons and pumpkins.

Unlike other agricultural tribes from the various regions of the United States, the men, rather than the women, of the Southwest tribes did the farm labor.

Hunting for wild game was for sport, and most meat was obtained by trading with tribes who hunted buffalo on the Great Plains.

Thus, meats were used sparingly -- most were buffalo, rabbit, and some wild turkey.

Corn was hand-ground between rough stones, and the bread was baked in outdoor dome-shaped ovens typical of the Pueblos, or Southwestern Indian villages.

In addition to these farm-grown products, the Indians used fruits and seeds of plants native to the region.

Fruit of the prickly pear cactus, beans of the wild mesquite and nuts from the pinon pine were some.

Mesquite beans were pounded into flour, mixed with water to form a dough, shaped into tiny, thin cakes and sun baked.

Pinon cakes were made by the same method. Pinole was made from dried maize, mesquite beans, parched corn and water. On some occasions meat jerky was pounded into bits and added to the mixture to make stew.

These foods may seem dull and bland, but add the influence of the Spanish, who brought garlic, onions, peppers, tomatoes, highly seasoned sausage, citrus fruits and spices, and you have today's exciting Southwestern cuisine.

in the future. He suggests planning to add another treatment station adjacent to the current treatment station. A group from the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture, including John Gulley, manager; Hal Anderson, president; Merlyn Neel, immediate past president; Tommy Gunstream and Vi Lindsey, attended the meeting with a proposal for Christmas lighting for the city.

"For many years, the City of Muleshoe has been decorated for Christmas. The decorations which we now have were purchased by the city in 1968, and have reached the end of their useful life," according to one of the group. "The Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce would like to propose a lighting program to be initiated during the 1980 Christmas season."

The C of C proposed an on-going program, with a beginning capital outlay, to be supplemented during the year for additional decorations and maintenance and repair.

They also propose starting with decorations on Main Street, at a cost of $8,771 then adding one to three new decorations each year. A committee would select the location of the decorations after the initial location.

They also propose refurbishing the large artificial tree at a cost of $455.

To pay for the decorations and continue the program the C of C is opting to add a minimal amount to the water bill for the city's residents probably in the amount of 10-20 cents per month. This would be used to purchase the new decorations and for maintenance and repair.

The figures used were studied by the council, who agreed to consider the proposal. Lubbock uses the type decorations chosen by the C of C, which are large Christmas trees encircling light poles, this eliminating the 'across-the-street' decorations which are whipped and destroyed in the wind and by large, tall trucks and other tall vehicles.

City Manager Dave Marr was instructed to check with Lubbock on maintenance costs and for their experiences with the decorations which they have used for the last 12 years.

A decision will be made possibly at the next city council meeting, concerning the proposed purchase of the Christmas decorations.

In other action, City Manager Marr was asked to check with people who have purchased used Texas Department of Public Safety cars and find what service the vehicles give. The City of Muleshoe has the opportunity to purchase two of the vehicles if they decide it would be a feasible expenditure for the city.

Students attending the citizenship seminar have the opportunity to enter the first annual Texas Farm Bureau Young Speakers for Free Enterprise speech contest, explained Schuster. To enter, students will need to present at least three speeches on a free enterprise during July 21 through September 12, 1980 and be Farm Bureau members.

Students wishing to compete will enter a district contest during September 22-October 15, 1980. Two students will be selected from each district contest to compete in the state contest to be held at the 1980 Texas Farm Bureau Convention in San Antonio, November 30-December 3, 1980.

RELEASES GAS
MIDDLETOWN, PA. -- The venting of radioactive krypton gas resumed recently at the disabled Three Mile Island nuclear plant after technicians modified equipment that sounded an alarm and held up the release for 30 hours. Officials said only equipment failure or unfavorable weather would stop the release.

Weather Study Funds Are Available

Chicken Little was partially right: some things DO fall from the sky.

And those things -- rain, hail, tornadoes, plus the clouds that produce them -- are of special interest to faculty and student researchers working in Texas Tech University's graduate program in atmospheric science.

A new master's degree in atmospheric science is tailored to the specific climate of the South Plains -- semi-arid, with a tendency for storms to be severe. Focus of the program is on "atmospheric convection", said Dr. Donald R. Haragan, chairman of the Atmospheric Sciences group in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Atmospheric convection includes cloud formation and the processes that result in precipitation, and the development of severe storms that result in hail and tornadoes.

One feature of the program is its emphasis on applied research. The four-member graduate faculty and student researchers are involved in research projects funded for a total of about $150,000. Haragan expects this figure to increase to about $200,000 next year.

Research is designed to increase man's knowledge about the atmosphere, Haragan said. The three major research projects now under study include the High Plains Experiment (HIPLEX), an examination into the feasibility of weather modification; a Nuclear Regulatory Commission-funded study of tornadoes; and a National Science Foundation-funded study of tropical convection.

The master's program is "heavily science and mathematics oriented," Haragan said, and requires completion of 30 semester hours of courses plus a six-hour thesis. Person with undergraduate degrees in physics, mathematics or engineering, as well as meteorology, may apply for admission to the program and the various fellowships and teaching or research assistantships available.

In addition to working for the federal government, graduates can find a growing job market in private industry, Haragan said. Commodities firms, airlines and large corporations concerned about air quality standards are among employers of trained meteorologists. Also, the oil industry hires consultants trained in atmospheric sciences.

ONE-WORLD MONEY You'll Pay for Money Policy DICTATORSHIP

Here's your chance to fight

Bill, do you know that the moneychangers are planning to close our banks, declare national bankruptcy, declare our money worthless, wipe out our savings, just to establish one world money? Do you know that the Federal Reserve System is a private profit corporation which has 12 Class A stockholders and that these moneychangers are more powerful than the President and Congress combined, that neither Congress nor the President controls our money system except this group, and that a former chairman of their board told Congress they could shut this country down in a week? Do you know that Congress has put control ($2704) of pricing farm products and all other commodity futures, as well as complete control of the pricing of their gold and silver futures in the hands of the Federal Reserve System, this private corporation? They have everything rigged now to declare national bankruptcy and make our money worthless anytime they want to do it...and that, do you know, Bill, that you can read a few issues of the SPOTLIGHT and "The Day the Dollar Died" for proof, if you want it...Do you know that H.R. (4986) gives this same Federal Reserve System (a private corporation) the power to declare "Bank Holidays" nationwide or in selected areas? and that these bills have already been passed this year? This means the Federal Reserve System can close all the banks, and no depositor will be allowed to touch his money until Washington gives its OK? This bill will allow the "Fed" (a private corporation) to suspend all reserve requirements for banks, which in turn will increase a massive money supply, which in turn will create runaway inflation. Bill, do you know that F.H.A., S.B.A., and bank loans can be a trap? If foreclosures come, they would like to use the county sheriff to foreclose and confiscate the land and property away from the people. Bill, do you know that in spite of what you have heard, our government has obligated itself for about 8 1/2 TRILLION dollars and that your share is about $113,000? The Arabs have already decided to refuse to take the dollar. Other European nations are planning to follow suit and force us into one world money and bankruptcy, which would be the biggest money theft of all time...and worse than that, do you know, Bill, that President Carter has signed a new treaty with the United Nations to make it illegal for us citizens to own private property...and a treaty supercedes the Constitution of the United States? But, Bill, there's a way out of this. Do you know that the people of this county have a legal law case which was tried in Minnesota 12 years ago...and what happened was that they overturned the Federal Reserve Bank Act, the National Bank Act, and stopped foreclosure on a mortgage that was held against a farmer...and that court case has stood up to this very day? Investigation shows that the case was tried in a common law court with a common law jury in a justice of the peace court. That proves that the ULTIMATE power to save this nation, under Almighty God, lies in the hands of the people on the county and in common law juries and a justice of the peace court. Did you know the COUNTY government is the highest government in the land and that a common law jury can nullify or turn over any man made law that is not compatible to or with the Constitution? You haven't heard many people tell you that lately, have you? Well, the people in county courts can stop the Federal government in its tracks today...so if you want to stop illegal foreclosures...and save your farms and homes...and help save the nation...and help stop national bankruptcy...then its very important that you and everybody else attend this Seminar at the Friona Community Center, Friona, Texas on August 9th at 8 P.M.

Alcohol Fuel Symposium

There is good news and bad news for the farmer who wants to make his own fuel.

That was the message for participants in an Alcohol-Fuel Symposium sponsored jointly by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Center for Energy and Mineral Resources at Texas A&M University last week.

The good news is that technology needed for building successful on-farm ethanol plants is developing rapidly and alcohol fuel may be the short-term answer for current fuel problems.

The bad news is that small-scale alcohol plants are not yet economically feasible for the average farmer unless federal and state tax credits are favorable.

"Now is the time to think alcohol," Dr. R.R. Davison, professor of chemical engineering at Texas A&M University, told conferees. Davison believes that as a short-term solution to high prices and scarce petroleum fuel, alcohol is the fuel which will give the nation lead time for developing alternate fuels.

"There is a high possibility that alcohol can become a very important fuel, and technology is available already for converting gasoline driven motors to alcohol fuel," he said. Experiments that Davison has conducted since 1972 with Dr. W.B. Harris, also a Texas A&M chemical engineering professor, on fueling automobile engines with methanol and ethanol show that the conversion is relatively simple.

"Although we can never produce enough ethanol to eliminate our dependence upon petroleum, if we can reduce oil imports while coal and other alternate fuels are developed, alcohol production will have served its purpose," Davison said.

Practical techniques and safety warnings for the on-farm alcohol producer were detailed for conference participants by Dr. Bobby L. Clary, professor of agricultural engineering at Oklahoma State University.

Critical to fermentation of the feedstock which has been cooked to gelatinize starches and treated with enzymes to convert starches to sugar is control of temperature, Clary warned. Fermentation takes place at about 90 degrees F., never over 95 degrees. Control of pH (acidity) is also important, he added.

Agitation of feedstock during cooking, saccharification and fermentation is essential, Clary said.

"Producers must also have a knowledge of safety hazards to avoid real problems," Clary pointed out. High pressures, high temperatures, possible explosion of ethanol or dusts, handling acids, and threat of suffocation from improper disposal of carbon dioxide, a by-product of production, are dangers the farmer must be aware of.

Economically, Clary said, commercial producers with larger operations than on-farm units can make ethanol for $1.60 per gallon and sell it for up to $2 per gallon. Crucial to cost efficiency, however, is the federal and state subsidy of $1.05 in his home state, Oklahoma. Not many states have yet matched the federal tax credit of 40 cents a gallon for ethanol, the engineer added.

An economist's analysis of ethanol production costs conveyed the bad news to

Vegetarianism Is It Safe

As much as we hear about the questionable properties of foods, many people -- especially calorie-conscious dieters -- have at least considered the advantages of trying a vegetarian diet.

According to Dairy Council dieticians, vegetarian diets can be nutritionally adequate if carefully selected. But very strict vegetarian or "vegan" diets pose potential health hazards, especially for infants and young children who may be eating the same diet as their health-conscious parents.

Even though there are several varieties of vegetarian diets -- some allow fish and poultry in addition to plant foods; some allow dairy foods and eggs -- the quality of protein intake should be the main concern of vegetarians. Animal and vegetable proteins differ in quality; that is, in the kinds and amounts of body-building amino acids they contain.

Animal proteins are generally higher quality than plant proteins. For good health, the protein we take in must contain certain amino acids in amounts and proportions needed to build and maintain muscle tissue.

Vegetarians can improve the quality of the protein they eat by several methods. First, they can combine animal protein, like milk, with the cereal and vegetable proteins they eat; for example, milk and cereal, or macaroni and cheese. Second, they can add extra protein to the diet by eating vegetables with a high protein content such as soybeans or dried beans. Third, the quality of vegetable proteins can be improved by combining vegetable protein foods within each meal that complement one another's amino acids; for example, corn complements beans.

Most vegetarian diets are would-be farmer fuel manufacturers.

Dr. Loyd K. Fischer, professor of agricultural economics at the University of Nebraska, told his listeners that his analysis of a plant producing 6,000 gallons of ethanol per year shows that ethanol may cost the producer as much as $4.50 per gallon when both fixed and variable costs are considered.

"With the technology currently available for small-scale plants," Fischer said, "on-farm production of ethanol appears to be an exceedingly high cost source of fuel." He added that there is not much basis for expecting any dramatic improvement soon. He cited high costs of feedstocks and energy needed for cooking and distillation as two reasons on-farm ethanol production is not feasible.

Farmers attending the symposium received practical information on how to build an ethanol plant from Henry O'Neal, Extension agricultural engineer, and Delane Sprinkles, farmer and ethanol producer of Marlin.

O'Neal pointed out that there is not yet a standard design for small-scale alcohol plants, so there is need for innovative thinking in the field. Sprinkles, who described his own plant, said he has made several changes in his plant since operation began. He emphasized the value of a hydraulic system to provide power for agitating the cooker and fermentation tank. He also told conferees that careful steam cleaning of fermentation tanks between batches was essential to eliminate harmful bacteria. ****

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sandy Creek discusses political lies this week, we think.

Dear editor:
The problem of lying by public officials has been in the news lately, as it has been since governments were invented.

Some people are outraged when they hear some of the official's lying, but that's because most of us set higher standards for politicians than we do ourselves. As Mark Twain said, truth is a precious commodity and should be used sparingly.

Studying a politician lies can be useful. The nature of his lies is one of the best standards I know for gauging his importance and estimating how far he will go. For example, a six-bit politician (in pre-inflation days known as a two-bit one) will lie whenever it's handy or he's cornered, with no thought of how he's going to get out of it. This variety rarely gets past the state legislation level.

On the next level there's the politician who will lie only when he believes there's little likelihood of getting caught and has an explanation if he is. Congressional material.

At the top level are the truly successful politicians. They'll lie only when they know there's no likelihood of getting caught, at least in their lifetime. History is full of them. Some have been excellent leaders and produced national holidays.

Now there's another side to this truth-telling business. For every politician who has lied to voters, there are thousands of voters who have lied to him. This explains his defeat when everybody was telling him he was winning. It explains why he led in the polls and lost at the ballot box.

It's said that the people get the kind of politicians they deserve, and it's possible the politicians get the kind of voters they deserve, excusing the readers of The Journal.

You'll notice I sign this not yours truly but Yours faithfully,

Veterinarians say to thank the skunks for rabies increase

COLLEGE STATION — Skunks, which already account for three-fourths of all rabies cases in Texas, seem to be spreading the disease at an alarming rate to horses and cattle as well as pets, says a Texas A&M University researcher.

For the first five months of 1980, rabies cases in the state are 10 to 15 percent ahead of the same time last year, previously the worst on record.

Despite widespread appeals for people to vaccinate pets and avoid contact with skunks, rabies has continued to be one of the largest health problems overall because of the skunk population and its ability to tolerate mankind's encroachment, said Dr. Leon Russell, professor of veterinary public health.

"They are ornery little beasts. They can live in culverts, under a porch or in a storage shed," said Russell. And although skunks can adapt to city life, some of their natural enemies — coyotes, bobcats, and foxes — have a harder time doing so.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN—There has been much concern around the state over the recent phase-out of the lowest level of nursing home care, which is designated as Level II care.

Level II care is the type of nursing care needed by those men and women who have special health care needs that must be met but who have no physical disabilities that require actual residence in a nursing home. The phase-out of this type care was begun in accordance with Rider 49 of the Appropriations Act passed by the last legislature.

Rider 49 was drafted in response to the many requests legislators received from older Texans who preferred to have their health care needs met in the safety and comfort of their own homes. It provided for the establishment and operation of alternate care programs, such as foster homes, communal living, and in-home health treatment to meet the needs of these older citizens.

With the phase-out of the Level II care program, people around Texas began to express their fear and concern that many of our elderly citizens would be turned out of the nursing homes with no place to go. However, this has not and will not happen. This legislation affects only those men and women whose health care needs fall into the Level II category and suitable living arrangements will be made for them.

The alternate care program of the Texas Department of Human Resources has been funded and is now beginning to get under way. The Board of Human Resources has approved the

by Mark White
Attorney General

AUSTIN—"No artificial flavors or colors!" reads the advertisement for Brand A's Natural Wheat Cracker! Is Brand A Company a new health food producer? No, Brand A Company, like other giants of the food industry, is merely keeping its eye on what will produce a profit. And adding such words as "natural," "no preservatives," or "organic" to their products labels is proving to be a money-making idea for members of the food industry.

Supermarket shelves are being flooded with "natural" products, some of them containing a long list of chemical additives. And some products that never have contained additives suddenly are displaying "natural" or "no preservative" labels. Along with new formulations and labels have come higher prices, since the food industry has realized that consumers are willing to pay more for products they think are especially healthful.

Consumers who purchase these "natural" products are often surprised to learn after reading the list of ingredients that the food contains an additive. How can a product named Brand B's Natural Lemon Flavored Creme Pie contain sodium propionate, certified food colors, sodium benzoate, and vegetable gum, but no cream, and still be a "Natural Lemon Flavored Creme Pie?" The food industry defends this type of labeling by asserting that the word "natural" modifies only "lemon flavored," not the pie itself. Such an argument seems to have little merit when you consider that "artificial lemon flavor" probably does not exist. In addition to using indeterminate modifiers in a product's name to convince consumers of the food's nutritional value, food companies also attempt to associate their products with "natural" scenes by picturing outdoor or farm scenes on the packages. By so doing, the company hopes to create the impression that its product is as "natural" as the depicted scene.

The Texas Consumer Protection Act prohibits "representing that goods...are of a particular standard, quality, or grade...if they are of another." Therefore, a representation by a food company that its product is "natural" when it is not violative of the Consumer Protection Act. The definition of "natural" may be interpreted so broadly, however, that it is difficult to prove that the product is not "natural." At this time, the Federal Trade Commission is considering adopting a staff proposal which would allow a producer to use the word "natural" only if its product underwent minimal processing and contained no artificial ingredients.

If you have any questions concerning the advertisements employing the adjective "natural" contact the Consumer Protection and Antitrust Division of the Attorney General's Office.

'HOMEOWNERS BEWARE

Do you have a Homeowners Form A Insurance Policy on your home?
We would like to take a few minutes of your time to explain the major differences between a Homeowners Form A Policy and a Homeowners Form B Policy, Both Forms have a 1% deductible but with a Homeowners Form A you (not the insurance company) must pay the depreciation on damage to your home caused by fire, lightning, hail and windstorm. For example, if hail destroyed your roof and the replacement cost was $2,000, it could cost you up to $1,000. for depreciation.
There is no depreciation on your home with a Homeowners Form B Policy.
With a Homeowners Form A Policy you would have no insurance coverage if a tree were to fall on your home or if your washer overflows and ruins your carpet. These losses would be covered with a Homeowners Form B Policy.
The cost of a Homeowners Form A Policy is approximately 25% less than a Form B, but it could cost you much more in the long run if you have a loss. Therefore we recommend Homeowners Form B for all of our customers.
Your agent will be happy to tell you which form you have, so take a few minutes and call him. It could save you hundreds of dollars in the future if you have a loss.
