North Concho River Soil Conservation

Herman Garlington recently sold the lambs that he has been running on 100 acres of oats. At the time of sale the lambs showed an average gain of 20 pounds, or a net profit of $1400 an acre on his small grain.

Ralph Bynum reported that his contoured rows were standing full of water after a hard 0.8" rain last Saturday and no runoff occurred. On an area where contour tillage had not been established it was estimated that approximately 70 per cent of the rainfall ran off. The runoff, however, was caught and held on the land by newly constructed terraces.

Plantings of a mixture of yellow blue stem, African love grass, side oats gramma, perennial sudan and sweet clover were made on the F. S. Price ranch this past week to determine if these grasses are adapted to the area covered by the North Concho River Soil Conservation District. Seeding was done at eight locations farthest away from water to give the grasses some protection from grazing during the early growth stage.

Rainfall last Saturday is reported as follows:

Herman Garlington	0.80
J.T. Davis	0.31
Lee R. Reed	0.35
Bade Bros	0.10
J. I. Cope	None.

New Rules For Selective Service

Due to manpower shortage in the armed forces, the time has come when all young men with deferred classifications will be considered for the armed forces or further extension of deferments.

For further consideration on agricultural deferments it will be necessary that each registrant have in his Selective Service File a plan sheet showing his full status on his agricultural work.

Whether you be a ranch owner or a ranch hand between the ages of 18 and 37, this information is very essential. You should go to the War Board and submit the proper information without too much delay.

Each ranch employer who has ranch hands that he considers irreplaceable should report his full set up to the County War Board, who will in turn pass this data to the registrant's Local Board.

Should you neglect doing this and are placed in 1-A classification, and are ordered up for examination and induction, do not criticize your local board—because the time has come when most men between the ages of 18 and 37 will be seriously considered for induction into the armed forces.

Card of Thanks

I wish to express my deep appreciation and thanks to all of you who were so kind at the illness and death of my beloved husband. May God's richest blessings be with all of you.

Mrs. F.M. Williams and children.

LOST—Black Sheaffer Fountain Pen. Beth Abernathy.

Chasing Old Sol

I was brought up on a farm. Most old timers of my vintage was born and brought up that way.

When I was a kid, they usually had me and my brothers out at work in the field before sunrise. Seeing the sunrise always had a fascination for me. Many were the mornings while "suckling" my hoe have I watched Old Sol come up out of the east and spread his light and his blessings over the world and dispel the blanket of darkness that had prevailed for the past twelve hours.

With my hoe handle clasped to my bosom like a foud mother giving nourishment to her baby; with one foot resting on a knee, I would stand there and watch the sun rise in all his glory and wonder where he had been during the night; what he had seen and where he was going that day; what he would see and what he would do. Then my oldest brother in tones of authority would say, "Hey there, Bill, your hoe has been suckled long enough. Get to fighting the crab grass."

I knew what that meant and I lost no time in attacking the crab grass that choked the corn and cotton away from their share of the plant food that Mother Nature was giving out from her swelling bosom.

But attacking the grass and weeds with my hoe did not make me cease wondering about Old Sol.

I had learned at school the winter before about "longitude and time" in Davies Arithmetic, that the sun apparently travelled from east to west at the rate of 60 miles every four minutes. As my hoe scraped the crab grass from around the cotton stalks, I would calculate where Old Sol would be when mother blew the dinner horn, the hounds howled and the mules brayed.

These vagaries have followed me all my life, and the urge has been strong in me during all my days to follow Old Sol on his journey westward, so Friday night of last week, Aunt Nan and I boarded a west-bound T & P train at Big Spring for Wickenburg, Arizona.

Back in the early '80s, railroad agents were so insolent and mean that I planned to shoot the first one I caught away from the protection of his office, but the depot agent of today is a fine fellow who holds his job because he is that way.

At Big Spring the agent was courtesy personified. While making out our tickets, he instructed how and what to do in a way that we understood. Then he followed us to the train and bid us Godspeed. Can you beat it? A depot agent wishing you good luck as if he were your own son. This proves that courtesy is your best stock in trade. It costs you nothing, but it is a priceless possession.

Next morning we waked up in El Paso. In two hours we were speeding across the Gadsden purchase in New Mexico. Mr. Gadsden made a mighty good buy when he bought that strip of land for Uncle Sam. Had Congress backed Gadsden he would have included a part of the

The envy of the world today is the average American family. That family has the world's highest standard of living. Statistically speaking, that average American family is composed of three and four-fifths persons. It uses three-fifths of a bathtub and owns one-half of a house, listens to nine-tenths of a radio, and gets about twice as much electricity for its money as it did 15 years ago.

Obviously, three-fifths of a bathtub wouldn't hold water very well! That is just another way of saying that three out of five American homes have bathtubs. The figure about electricity applies only to homes that have electric service (four out of five). But as an average of all these homes, it is a fact.

Most families own more electric appliances now than they did in 1929. Over the years as they used more electricity the cost per unit used was steadily reduced. So—though your total bill today may be as much as it was in 1929—yet you are getting twice as much electricity for your money.

The cost of electricity has not only been steadily reduced but it has stayed down while most other prices are going up. Today, electricity is just about the biggest bargain in your war-time budget! For this you can credit your electric service company, manned and managed by practical business people. Their hard work has made electric service dependable and cheap.

As we speeded across the vast wastes, I contacted the nigger porter. (In speaking of colored people, I like to say "nigger" because my boyhood working and hunting pals were Negro boys who always referred to their people as "niggers.") To me, "nigger" is a term of respect to colored race.)

This nigger porter was a genial cuss, full of information and energy. He watched over us as if he had been a paid servant. He was kind, generous and courteous. The last kind act this nigger did was to help us out of the train at Phoenix and deposit our baggage on the payment and wish us good luck. He was a good nigger.

When our nigger bade us goodbye, Paul and Hattie B. met us and after a lot of greeting as is on such occasions, these children of our brother and sister soon had us in their automobile speeding toward Wickenburg 54 miles to the northwest.

I never dreamed that Phoenix was such a big city. We drove miles and miles along the brilliantly lighted streets. Phoenix is a mighty city which the magic waters of Salt River has built.

The old sister and brother were up looking for us when we arrived at their home in Wickenburg. We will be their guests until Tom and Pat get things straightened out on

Look Out!

By Gadabout

Once again I'm here with the latest gossip.

Friday night found most of the S.H.S.'s at a dance in a local warehouse. Jerrie had quite a time. Everyone enjoys a good dance once in a while. Paula Sue, where were you? Practically everyone was wondering.

Saturday night Billy J. had a little "muddy trouble." But it ended all right. (He ran out of gas, too.)

Sue and Frances seemed to be doing a little bit of O.K. Sunday afternoon. But after all we don't blame them.

Charley is all smiles. John Lancaster is home on leave. We are all glad that he is here. The Navy certainly agrees with him.

I'll be seeing you around!

Scholastic Census Underway

Census taking is now under way. A majority of the blanks are already in. Since each child rendered is worth $25.00 to the district, it is important that no one be missed.

If you know anyone of school age (born after September 1, 1926 and before September 2, 1938) who has not been rendered, call the school and report the oversight. Remember the apportionment is $25.00 for each child rendered but nothing for one overlooked.

Those who are now six years old and those who will be six by Sept. 1, 1944 are the ones usually overlooked. If you know of such a child, please notify the superintendent.
