Jeff Davis Starts J. L. Copeland, Lambs To Contracting Fall Lambs

Jeff Davis, Sterling livestock dealer, has opened the lamb buying market by contracting for approximately 16,000 head of feeder lambs for fall delivery. Jeff will ship these lambs to the feed pens and wheat fields.

The lambs were all bought here in Sterling County from Aaron Clark, J. T. Davis, J. L. Glass, Corporal Durwood George McEntire, Jack Mims, W. B. Atkinson, Claude Collins, and Fowler McEntire.

As far as we know, this is the first contracting for fall lambs in the state.

Pvt. Jim Roberts Is a Real Sharp Shooter

"Up on the Anzio beachhead," said Pvt. Jim Roberts, 29, a 45th Infantry Division doughboy from Sterling City, "I really sharpened up my shooting eye."

A rifleman who fought on the beachhead for four months and who previously had seen rugged combat with the 45th in southern Italy and Sicily, Roberts has returned to the United States. An interview with the Texas sharpshooter was released by the War Department last week.

"At Anzio," said Roberts, "I was grateful to Uncle Sam for giving me the best shooting iron a doughboy can have-the M-1 rifle. A good many times, it made the difference as to whether I'd go on living or whether the Heinie who was shooting at me would be the survivor.

"Sometimes in combat a man gets to talking to himself, and at times when I'd get a good bead on a Jerry sniper or machine gunner and let him have it, I'd say "There's another one for Lilly

Lilly May is Mrs. Roberts. The tall rifleman, who wears the Purple Heart and the Combat Infantry Badge, planned to spend a furlough in Sterling City with his wife.

Roberts was wounded during the successful American attack on Piedmonte, Italy, shrapnel tearing into his leg but failing to halt him in his advance with the rest of the company.

"After we took the town," he Little Spiced Cakes said, "the medics fixed me up and in a few days I was as good as

Roberts gives "Lilly May" credit for bringing him out of what he feels was his narrowest escape in months of combat crammed with narrow escapes.

"A Jerry 88 shell just missed my head," he grinned. "It whizzed by with a whoosh and a big wind and lit right behind me. But it was a dud and just plowed into the ground without going off. Cecil H. Barnes Representative-Elect

Wishes to thank you for your votes and expression of confidence. You have been most kind and I shall make the people's interest my rule of action.

I admire the fine vote polled by my opponent. I wish to commend him for the fair race he made. I am happy that our race was a friendly one. I wish him well and will always be happy to see him.

My ideal to serve my District well transcends and erases any human tendency to hold a grudge against any who did not vote for me. I want your cooperation in all right purposes, and expect to deserve your respect only by rendering conscientous service.
