Lubbock Man Electrocuted

An electrocution left one man dead late Tuesday afternoon.

Killed was Douglas Finley, reportedly an employee of Lubbock Water Works, who had backed a truck belonging to High Plains Drilling Company into overhead wires. The accident occurred approximately three miles south and three miles west of Muleshoe.

Finley was brought to the West Plains Medical Center at approximately 5 p.m. May and after an hour's attempt to revive him failed, was pronounced dead. His body has been transferred to Lubbock.

Another man, a Hispanic male, was involved when he pulled Finley out of the truck. He was not injured. No further details were available at press time.

Finney Promoted To Bank President

The Board of Directors of the Muleshoe State Bank announced the election of B.E. Loyd as Chairman of the Board and the promotion of Bob Finney to the position of President of the Muleshoe State Bank. These position changes were brought about by the pending sale of Bill Loyd's interest of the bank's holding company, West Texas Bancshares. The sale still must be approved by the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas.

Mr. Loyd's interest in West Texas Bancshares is being purchased by a group of investors led by Mr. Kenneth Burgess. Mr. Burgess is currently Chairman of the Boards of the Olton State Bank, Security State Bank of Littlefield and State Bank Shares (a multi-bank holding company).

Bill Loyd will continue his duties at the Muleshoe State Bank while awaiting regulatory approval of his purchase of the First National Bank of Clovis, New Mexico.

Bob Finney was employed with the Muleshoe State Bank in 1971 as Cashier and Operations Officer; he was promoted in 1974 to Vice President and Cashier, and in 1978 became Executive Vice President.

Bob came to Muleshoe after serving a tour of duty with the United States Army. He graduated from West Texas State University with a Bachelor of Science in Agribusiness and a Masters of Business Administration in Finance. Bob was employed by the First National Bank of Canyon while attending WTSU. Bob also has a Graduate Degree in Banking from the American Banker's Association Stonier Graduate School of Banking, Rutgers University, New Brunswick, New Jersey.

Bob was recently elected Mayor Pro-tem of Muleshoe and is serving his third term as councilman. He is the chairman of the newly formed Bailey County Appraisal District, is Vice President of the Board of Directors of the West Plains Medical Center, and is a member of the Muleshoe Rotary Club. He has also served on other civic and charitable boards such as the Arthritis Foundation, Jaycees, United Fund, City Planning Com-

Most Valuable Players Named By Coaches

The highest honor bestowed upon an athlete by Muleshoe High School is the "Fighting Heart Award." Tuesday night, Carroll Precure and Lupe Pacheco were named as recipients of this award. Carroll is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Precure and Lupe is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pedro Pacheco.

In the presentation of these awards, Coaches Brandon and Morris emphasized the qualifications necessary to receive this honor. "Most of all," Morris said, "we look for a special kind of person; one who competes at all times, a good citizen, a respectful person. Both Lupe and Carroll are the epitome of these qualities."

The prestigious Most Valuable Player Awards went to students in each sport, both boys and girls. In football, Marvin Lewis; basketball, Kathleen Patterson; boys track, Quincy Kirven; girls track, Marylyn Lewis; volleyball, Maria Flores; boys golf, Ronnie Angeley; girls golf, Denise Wilson; boys tennis, Brad Poyner; and girls tennis, Kathy Tutt.

The speaker for the evening was Dr. Bill Forney who is athletic director for the UIL. In Dr. Forney's address, he encouraged all young men and women to "strive for the best they can be. You gain something by learning it -- although sometimes you do not get all you deserve; and sometimes you get more than you bargain for. Just remember, the ball can bounce both ways."

Forney's final words to the assembly of parents, students, faculty and officials were to paraphrase a quote by President John F. Kennedy: "I pity the people who never taste victory nor defeat. Experience the challenge, meet the obligation and then, realize the accomplishment in all things you might do."

Assailing Acid Rain: Up To Congress Now

After more than two years of painstaking deliberation, the National Commission on Air Quality has recommended a change in the Clean Air Act that could effectively end acid rain. In its report to Congress last month, this panel of experts from industry, academia, government, and the environmental community proposed "significant reductions in sulfur dioxide emissions by 1990." While environmental groups have objected to other Commission recommendations for changes in the Clean Air Act, which is up for Congressional reauthorization this year, most have hailed this proposed attack on sulfur dioxide emissions.

How do these emissions become "acid rain"? Though scientists still debate the intricacies of chemical changes they do agree that sulfur and nitrogen oxides are pumped into the atmosphere through tall industrial smokestacks, where they undergo complex chemical reactions with other particles and sunlight. A significant portion of these sulfates and nitrates filter down to the earth as dry particles, which, deposited in lakes, on leaves and branches, can lead to acidification. When moisture accumulates in the atmosphere it sends these same particles to earth as sulfuric and nitric acid in rain or snow.

This acid does not color or cloud the precipitation; it doesn't assault the nose with a caustic odor. It simply kills—fish, aquatic life, entire lakes. At least 212 once-teeming Adirondack lakes are now sterile. Wildlife experts say that without aggressive action, more than 50,000 North American lakes will die in just two decades. In addition, forest and crop growth may be significantly stunted by acid rain, and thousands of people may die from breathing sulfates.

Up to now, environmental protection laws have not effectively met the challenge of vinegary acid rain. When they were forced to meet local emission restrictions, some industries built taller smokestacks to send emissions far from their production sites. Many of these tall smokestacks spew sulfur directly into Canada—at the rate of about four million tons per year. Canadians estimate this causes $2 to $4 million in damages yearly. Unfortunately, US smokestacks are not the only sources of acid rain—Canada pumps 1 to 1.4 million tons of sulfur emissions into the US each year.

In other words, the US sends Canada two-to-four times the amount of sulfur emissions it receives. To compound the problem, bedrock formations in Canada, as in some parts of northeastern US, make the soil particularly sensitive to acidification. One-half to three-quarters of a million square miles of rolling green Canadian hills and forests have been affected by acid rain.

Canadians are understandably incensed. When President Reagan arrived in the Canadian capital of Ottawa last month, he was greeted by hundreds of protesters, many carrying placards with the message, "Acid Rain Go Home." Our northern neighbors want the US to regulate sulfur dioxide emissions and regulate them fast. If Congress approves the Commission's acid rain recommendations, the US will be well on its way to clearing the air between the two countries.

Congress, however, is feeling pressure from industry lobbyists, who charge that the Clean Air Act hampers economic growth and stymies energy development. Unfortunately, own way industry is trying to cut back on costs is to switch to coal combustion, the largest single source of sulfur emissions in the nation. And industry fears that if Congress approves the new anti-emission recommendation, it will have to cover the costs of cleaning up emissions from even the tallest smokestacks.

Such clean-up costs are not so prohibitive as industry would have us think however. According to the US Environmental Protection Agency, most coal can be easily and inexpensively washed, and the sulfur can be mechanically extracted. Expensive chemical coal cleaning and scrubbing processes, when properly designed, can produce sulfur compounds for dry wall, cement, fertilizer additives, and commercial sulphuric acid.

So, actually, the commission's proposal—if enacted—may cause little economic hardship for industry, while promising cleaner lakes, and clearer diplomatic skies. The recommendation has miles of deliberation and arbitration behind it, and will travel many more miles before it becomes law. But if Congress acts now, and passes this urgent proposal, fish and other aquatic life in North America will receive a needed breath of fresh water, and an extension of life.

mount is $59.00 which is the average cost of headstones purchased by VA.

Application for the VA headstone or marker should be addressed to Director, Monument Service (42), Department of Memorial Affairs, Veterans Administration, 810 Vermont Avenue, N. W., Washington, D.C. 20420.

Nursing Homes First Annual Life Festival

The desire of residents of nursing homes to help others has fostered creation of the First Annual Life Festival giving added impetus to the observance of Nursing Home Week in Texas this year.

The traditional "week" which begins on Mother's Day Sunday each year (May 10, 1981) was established to encourage the general public to visit nursing homes to learn for themselves the quality of care and the diversity of activities in today's modern licensed nursing homes.

Some of those activities have been amazingly productive. Withing the past few years the residents of Texas nursing homes have raised over $300,000 for the Heart Association, Ronald MacDonald Houses and other worthwhile causes. Sid Rich of Austin, president of Texas Nursing Home Association to which a great majority of nursing homes belong said: "From all reports we receive the residents in our member homes are happiest when they are doing something which allows them to help others and to prove that they are still useful members of society even though they live in nursing homes. The Life Festival gives them that opportunity and will be combined with our special week from now on so the public can join our celebration of research and medical science which is constantly adding healthier, longer, and more productive years for all mankind."

Proceeds from Life Festivals staged at nursing homes this year will be donated to the Leukemia Society of America in support of its research and patient aid programs.

Mrs. McCormack is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

In many "work-at-home" cases, the potential "employee" or "investor" (you) is asked to send a membership or registration fee to a company "for more information" or "to obtain the materials necessary to start the job," Mrs. McCormack notes.

Too often, these "job materials" and "investment secrets" turn out to be simply promotional literature--not work, she says.

Lubbock Summer Repertory Theater Auditions Set For May 9-10 At Tech

Auditions for the 1981 Lubbock Summer Repertory Theater season will be May 9-10 at the Texas Tech University Theatre.
Three musicals will be performed during the summer season. They are the American classic "Oklahoma," "110 In The Shade," based on "The Rainmaker," and "The Robber Bridegroom," the story of a country-western Robin Hood. Performances will be on Fridays and Saturdays June 19-July 11 in the Lubbock Civic Center Theater.
The theme for the summer repertory is the Golden Days of the Old West.

Rehearsals for all shows will begin approximately June 1, the first day of summer school registration at Texas Tech.
Persons wishing to audition should prepare one musical selection, preferably from one of the three musicals. Auditions will be 10 a.m. to noon, 1-5 p.m. and 7-11 p.m. May 9 (Saturday) and 1-5 p.m. May 10 (Sunday). Call backs will be 7-11 p.m. May 10.
Auditions will be for actors, singers, dancers, and technicians and are open to anyone, including high school students and children. All participants in the summer productions must enroll in the course, "Practicum in Summer Repertory Theater," at Texas Tech and may enroll in an additional theater arts or music course. Three to six hours of summer credit at the graduate or undergraduate level may be earned.
"Oklahoma" will be performed June 19-20 and July 3-4.
Song and dance routines tell the story of "Curly," who lives in the western Indian territory that is now Oklahoma, as he tries to get his girl, "Laurey," to go to a box social with him and eventually to marry him.
The play, intended to portray folk character, includes vocabulary and phrases of everyday speech and imagery drawn from subjects on the Oklahoma frontier. Songs include "Oh, What a Beautiful Mornin'," "The Surrey with the Fringe on Top," "The Farmer and the Cowman," "Kansas City," "Many A New Day" and "Oklahoma."
The musical is based on the play "Green Grow the Lilacs" by Lynn Riggs. "110 In The Shade," based on the N. Richard Nash play "The Rainmaker," has music by Harvey Schmidt and lyrics by Tom Jones. The summer production will be directed by guest director Paul Richards.
The play is set in a Southwestern Plains country town during a drought. As cotton and cattle are dying, con man "star-buck" comes onto the scene and claims he can make it rain. As he tries to work his magic, he has a powerful effect on the lives of the people, particularly "Lizzie Curry," a resigned spinster.
The musical includes ballads and lively songs like "Love, Don't Turn Away, Is it Really Me?" and "The Rain Song." Songwriters Schmidt and Jones got their start doing undergraduate shows at the University of Texas in the early 1950's.
"The Robber Bridegroom," based on the book and lyrics by Alfred Uhry with music by Robert Waldman and scheduled for performances July 10-11, features a country-western band on stage. Townspeople gather for a country hce-down in a barn and begin to tell the story of "Jamie Lockhart," a famous Kolvin Hood-like robber who lived in the area in 1792.

The program requires no qualifications.
Other Texas colleges and universities offering the Elderhostel program are Abilene Christian University, Hardin-Simmons University, St. Mary's University at San Antonio, Stephen F. Austin State University, North Texas State University and Texas Tech University.
Persons interested in participating in Elderhostel may obtain additional information from Kerr at WTSU.

Courses also will be available in home horticulture, personal finance and investments.
The 15 persons who have registered are from Missouri, California, Ohio, Dallas, and Austin in addition to the Texas Panhandle area, said Jane Kerr.

WHAT'S IN IT FOR YOU?

The risk of skin cancer may be decreased for a number of Americans. Many years of overexposure to the sun may be harmful to your health. This is true of everybody, but especially of light-skinned and redheaded people, and those whose work requires them to spend many hours in the sun—farmers, fishermen, construction workers, for example.

Spending long hours in the sun may cause a possibly premalignant condition.

While some develop only a deep tan, others eventually develop solar keratoses—red, scaly patches on the face, hands, neck and other exposed parts of the body. Anyone with such symptoms should see a doctor. Solar keratoses in some cases can become malignant. However, doctors can prescribe effective therapies.
Doctors have a prescription drug available in both cream and solution. It is made by Hoffmann-La Roche Inc., and it is often prescribed with good results for people who have solar keratoses.
Only a doctor can diagnose and treat solar keratoses. If you suspect you have this treatable disease, it's a good idea to see your doctor.

NEW ORLEANS '84 FAIR

Small Business Means Jobs, Better Economy

The biggest thing about American business today is that it's small.

Since World War II, most of the country's big corporations have grown larger; they've expanded overseas and gobbled up smaller companies through corporate mergers. But government figures today show that of the 11 million businesses operating in the United States, 10.8 million can be considered small. Eighty-two percent of the nation's businesses, for example, have annual sales of less than $100,000.

So while much attention today is focused on large corporations, the fact is that small businesses--including hundreds of thousands of "mom and pop" operations--are thriving and are contributing significantly to the nation's economy.

Small business also contributes to local economies. Any American city would suffer dire losses of jobs and income were it not for small firms operating.

The importance of small business to the country will be highlighted during Small Business Week, to be observed May 10-16. Outstanding small business persons, so judged by their peers, will be honored during ceremonies sponsored by the US Small Business Administration (SBA), a small, independent federal agency charged with assisting small businesses and fostering their growth.

A high light of Small Business Week will be the selection of the outstanding small business person of the year, chosen from state winners of that honor already named. He or she will be honored during a special ceremony in Washington, DC. National winners in certain categories, such as banking, have also been chosen for their efforts on behalf of small business causes.

The 10.8 million firms which are considered small by SBA's size standards account for about 58 percent of the nation's employment and provide the livelihood, indirectly or directly, of more than 100 million Americans. Eighty percent of the nation's small companies employ fewer than 10 persons.

Figures also show that small firms account for half of all production by American business.

As might be expected, small firms have more trouble than big firms in raising capital needed to expand or survive in these times of high interest rates and high inflation. Despite such financial difficulties, America's small entrepreneurs have retained their ingenuity. Small businesses have been responsible for more than half of the new product and service innovations since World War II. In fact, almost every energy-related innovation of the last century has come from small business--including the air conditioner, gasoline engine, electric light, and electric auto. Small companies also bring their innovations to market faster than large companies.

Hundreds of thousands of Americans start their own businesses each year, and that interest in becoming one's own boss is as high as ever. In the year ending September 1, for example, 306,000 present of prospective small business owners attended 7,930 SBA-sponsored business management training Plant leaves provide a source of food used in the development of fruit. Thus it's important to protect foliage from diseases.

Although plant foliage is subject to attack from bacteria and fungi, losses from fungal organisms are by far the most common in this area. Fungicides to control diseases caused by fungi include: captan, folpet, zineb, sulfur, copper, maneb and other maneb combinations.

Two new fungicides being used in the area are benomyl and chlorothalonil. Since these are more specific in their actions, they will often out-perform older standard fungicides when used properly.

Bactericides are used to control bacterial diseases. Those most effective contain some form of copper or an antibiotic (streptomycin sulfate).

Following is a list of commonly used pesticides for disease control and what they are effective against. This list does not include the host plant, so you need to read the label closely before purchasing the product to make sure it can be used on the particular vegetable that has a problem in your garden.

Benomyl can be used on fruit rot, foliage and powdery mildew. Captan can be used on fruit rot and foliage. Copper containing pesticides may be used on fruit rot, foliage, and for bacterial diseases may be used on fruit and foliage. Chlorothalonil may be used for fruit rot, foliage and powdery mildew. Folpet can be used for fruit rot, foliage and powdery mildew.

Also listed is Maneb and maneb combinations which may be used for fruit rot and foliage. Streptomycin sulfate can be used for bacterial disease on fruit and foliage. Sulfur may be used for powdery mildew. And Zineb may be used for fruit rot and foliage.

Combination products or those as general purpose materials, should be examined closely to make sure they contain a fungicide, if one is needed. Often general use products contain only an insecticide and thus would have no effect on any disease problems.

Traveling around the county, I have visited with numerous growers who prefer to use a dust rather than a spray. In tests done in other areas, no difference can be demonstrated between a dust or spray application.

The secret of good disease control with either of the pesticide formulations is early detection of the disease, thorough pesticide coverage, and continual applications as long as weather conditions favor disease development. When using dusts, apply them in the evening to get better distribution of the pesticide over the leaf. Dusting when leaves are wet with dew can result in an uneven distribution since dust will be attracted to water droplets. Sprays can be applied at any time.

I often get questions in the office about the effect of rainfall on a spray or dust application. If leaves have dried for two-three hours after the application, little pesticide will be removed by rain. However, if foliage has not dried, then repeat spraying or dusting.

For a pesticide to be effective against a disease, it has to be on the leaf during the time when the pest is present and developing. For most diseases, that is during and immediately after rainfall or heavy dews. During periods when diseases are severe, it may be best to apply the pesticide before a predicted period of wet weather. This will protect foliage and fruit during this critical period.

The secret to disease control is to use the proper pesticide, apply it at the proper time, and continue applications as long as the weather favors disease development.

Next week I'll deal with the most enjoyable part of gardening -- harvesting all those mouth-watering vegetables.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sandy Creek reacts to the Pulitzer Prize hoax in a minor way.

Dear editor:

When the Washington Post got taken in by one of its own reporters who made up a story, got it printed on the front page and won a Pulitzer Prize for it, only to have to give it back, the paper took up over three pages of type explaining and apologizing.

This seems to set a bad precedent. If everybody who ever got taken in by a political promise or a slick salesman used that much space regretting it, no paper would have room for anything else.

I don't know what those editors were thinking about when they let the story appear without checking on it, but obviously they were not, when they were young among those of us who were taken in by that ad that said send 10 cents for a magical gadget you could place under your tongue and mystify your friends by throwing your voice. It didn't work and the dime was wasted but it was excellent training for being on the lookout for frauds.

As you can see, lack of a ten-cent gadget when they were young left those editors unprepared to face the realities of life in the nation's capital.

But the oddest case of being taken in occurred a few weeks ago in Iran. Some international sharpster in Paris convinced the Iranian leaders he had 50 million dollars worth of sophisticated military equipment to sell on the black market, and they shelled out. Then they found out he didn't even have a B-B gun, and they were out 50 million.

Nobody likes to see anybody get taken in, but if you'll recall the televised scenes of those Iranian students parading those blindfolded Americans in front of the embassy and using the American flag to haul trash in and the Ayatollah bragging about rubbing the US nose in the dust, you'll have a hard time keeping from laughing over their buying 50 million dollars worth of nothing.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Honeybee - Vegetable Growers Friend

Honeybees have a king-size job in Texas--that of pollinating the $50 million crop of cucurbits. Cucurbits include watermelons, cucumbers, cantaloupes, pumpkins, squash and gourds.

Some 79,000 acres of cucurbits are grown annually in Texas in every county, either commercially or in backyard gardens, says Tom Longbrake, horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A & M University System.

"The cucurbit family absolutely depends on insect help to transfer pollen from male to female flowers," points out Longbrake.

Only femal flowers can produce fruit, but to do so each female flower must receive pollen from the male flower. Once transferred, the pollen fertilizes the immature seed, causing it to be fertile and grow. Unfertilized fruit abort when viable pollen is not transferred.

"Most cucurbit flowers are open for only one day. Since honeybees account for about 85 percent of all flower pollination, the importance of this insect to the cucurbit family is vital," emphasizes Longbrake.

One strong hive of honeybees is required to pollinate the closer row-spacing of cucumbers, squash and cantaloupe. Pumpkin and watermelon may get by with a strong hive per four or five acres. Each open female flower may require five to ten visits by bees for adequate pollination. Therefore, skipping on the number of bees available to pollinate can affect potential yields.

"An experienced bee-man will be able to advise a grower on the number and placement of hives for an adequate fruitset," suggests the horticulturist. "Unlike some other plant types, cucurbits receive little help from the wind. Because of sticky pollen, they must rely on insects for adequate pollination." So, bees are a key partner of cucurbit farmers.

Thyroid tumors and x-rays

HOUSTON, TX. — Did you have x-ray treatment involving your head or neck when you were a child?

If so, you may now be part of a "high-risk" group who has an above-average chance of developing tumors of the thyroid gland at any time from five to 30 or more years after this x-ray exposure.

Dr. Guy R. Newell, director of cancer prevention programs at The University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute says, "If you are in this category, it is important to be examined by your family physician."

"Fortunately, only a small percentage of these irradiated patients have developed thyroid tumors. Most are benign (non-cancerous), and even the cancerous ones usually can be removed successfully by surgery," he adds.

Mother's Day

The observance of Mother's Day is a recent one in the United States, beginning only in 1907. Then it was the idea of Miss Anna M. Jarvis, a Philadelphia school teacher, formerly of Grafton, Virginia, that at least once a year sons and daughters should pay tribute to mothers.

Miss Jarvis arranged for a special church service and suggested white carnations be worn by those attending.

The observance, on the second Sunday in May, has rapidly spread to every part of the United States and the fact that it became custom in all the states only four years after it had been suggested testifies to the sentiment for such an observance in this country.

In later years, the custom of wearing a white carnation on Mother's Day was changed. Those whose mothers were still alive wore red flowers, instead of white. First observed in the United States, Mother's Day has become an international occasion and mothers in every area of the world are now honored each year.

More than anyone else, the mother who cares for home and her children is destined to influence the character and future of the country.

Often the responsibility is combined with a back-breaking and steady ordeal of sewing, washing, mending, cleaning and teaching. It is to this mother, who dedicates her life to her home, her family and children, that the country owes a debt of gratitude. This mother represents the finest in our civilization.

Busing Ends

In Los Angeles, in mid-April, 7,000 students in the public schools returned to schools in their neighborhoods and ended long bus runs to achieve ethnic quotas in schools. That action resulted from a referendum against busing, upheld by the California Supreme Court as constitutional.

At the end of the current school term, mandatory busing to achieve racial quotas will end for another 14,000 students as the busing program there will come to an end.

This result of an eighteen-year-old fight against busing in Los Angeles is certain to prompt other local votes on the issue. If the U.S. Supreme Court upholds the constitutionality of such voter expressions, the process of increasing busing is likely to be reversed.

This change would have majority approval in the U.S. (polls show a majority of both blacks and whites often oppose mandatory busing) but it will not end busing altogether. Where courts find that discrimination patterns exist, busing can be ordered. In some cities, also, a majority might support the racial quota concept.

But, in general, as the 1980 presidential election showed, busing school children to distant schools to achieve racial quotas has not been supported by most parents.

It has been a noble experiment, in intent, and it achieved results in some schools. But it has created friction and lowered standards in many others; the end of the controversy is still not in sight, and hinges on the view of the Supreme Court, where the Los Angeles case is to be tested.

Statisticians are not the only men interested in figures.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN—The 67th Texas Legislature has passed a bill which would exempt the co-generation of electricity from government regulation by the Public Utility Commission.

Co-generation is the use of waste process heat emitted by an industry or small-scale user to generate electricity. Facilities to use this wasted energy are commercially available, but industry has avoided using them because of fear of becoming regulated utilities. This new law, which is now in effect, should erase the fear and encourage industry to employ energy-saving co-generation capability.

Use of co-generation will result in numerous benefits not only to industry, but to small-scale and residential users of electricity as well. Major industrial operators may experience a rise of up to one hundred percent in fuel-efficiency by using co-generation. The excess electricity not used by the generator may then be sold to a utility thereby aiding all consumers. The consumer's utility bill will either be lowered or will be held to less-than-expected increases as a result of the sale of excess electricity.

Small-scale users of supplemental energy sources such as wind or solar power may also sell excess electricity to the utility in the area.

In addition to the obvious benefits of conservation, the economic savings resulting from co-generation will serve to relieve the general rate payer from having to finance all of the large new power plants that otherwise would be needed.

The passage of the co-generation bill is another milestone in our state's quest to identify and develop potential sources of energy conservation.

WASHINGTON NOTES

ON COMBAT TROOPS

The Pentagon announced recently it will create an independent Rapid Deployment Command and officials indicated they hope eventually to be able to station U.S. combat troops in the Southwest Asia area.

SAUDI SALE

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker said recently that President Reagan's plan to sell advanced radar planes to Saudi Arabia probably will not be submitted to Congress until mid-summer and that the lawmakers won't decide the issue until fall at the earliest.

BRADY RECOVERING

White House press secretary James Brady was making a "very satisfactory" recovery from a sudden five-hour operation to close holes that allowed air to seep into his bullet-damaged brain.

ON INFLATION

Inflation slowed to a 7.5 percent annual rate in March, the lowest pace since last summer, due largely to moderating energy prices, the government said recently.

HIT HARD?

The Reagan administration, hoping to deflect charges that its proposed spending cuts hit hardest on the Northeast and Midwest, released a study recently supporting administration claims that the reductions are spread equally across the country.

KREMLIN WARNED

President Reagan overrode his secretary of state and lifted the 16-month-old grain embargo against the Soviet Union. But the chief executive warned the Kremlin not to interpret the move as a sign of tolerance for Russia's "aggressive acts around the world."

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower
U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS
142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

Evaluating new administrations after the first 100 days in office has become a tradition among political commentators. That's not a magical number, but since it does serve as a useful benchmark, let's look for a moment at what the Reagan Administration and the new Congress have done in their first hundred days.

The Administration has had the cooperation of the Congress in focusing attention and energy on the critical problems facing our economy. These problems did not develop overnight and won't be solved immediately, and for that very reason it is urgent that we act now to start the healing process.

In addition, both the Administration and the Congress seem to have learned the painful lesson from past years that trying to concentrate on too many issues at the same time means nothing is accomplished.

On the economic front, the Administration proposed a plan for economic recovery which has more chance for meeting its goals than any proposal put forth in years. Broad, bipartisan support has emerged for the domestic spending cuts that form one of the two platforms on which the plan rests. These cuts were approved overwhelmingly by the Senate, and by the end of the 100-day period, prospects for passage in the House looked good.

Moreover, the Senate Budget Committee had reversed its earlier action and approved a budget resolution consistent with the President's plan.

The other platform on which the economic recovery plan is built is a three-year reduction in personal income tax rates. The tax cut faces more opposition in the Congress than the spending cuts.

These tax cuts are essential to the program, however, because we must act to encourage hard work, savings and investment. If we don't cut tax rates, most people actually will wind up paying much more in taxes than they are now -- making it even more difficult to keep up with the cost of living.

While the primary focus of the Administration and the Congress' attentions has been the economic program, progress was made during the first hundred days toward rebuilding our defense system.

The Administration kept its promise to propose a stronger defense, with more adequate funding. The Senate Armed Services Committee gave its approval on the 99th day of the new Administration to a spending authorization bill which is fully consistent with the Administration request. After a decade of neglecting our defenses, we are on the road to correcting the downward trend.

Finally, in a move of particular interest to Texas, the President lifted the grain embargo -- which had unfairly burdened farmers while failing to accomplish its objective of hurting Soviet meat production.

So all in all, the first 100 days of the new Administration and the new Congress have been productive ones. But however good the beginning, it is only a start. There is much work to do. The citizenry is watching us, and we know it. I am confident we will make real strides during the rest of the Congress toward meeting the responsibilities of government.

Loan Rate Cut For West Texas Cotton Under Fire

Senator Lloyd Bentsen on Thursday said he will oppose a decision by the Senate Agriculture Committee to cut the loan rate for the low-micronaire cotton produced in West Texas.

"This ill-considered action by the committee will cost cotton producers on the High Plains some $19 million a year and I will oppose it on the Senate Floor with every means at my disposal," Bentsen said.

The committee acted to effectively lower the cotton loan rate while working on the 1981 farm bill. It is seeking to require the US Department of Agriculture to compute loan discounts for low-micronaire cotton using a 1:1 ratio of past loans to current markets. Under existing law the Secretary of Agriculture has discretion in computing the discounts. USDA has traditionally set the discounts at a 5:1 ratio.

"West Texas cotton is totally different from cotton grown in other areas and survival of this vital agricultural industry is dependent on maintaining loan rates at their current level," Bentsen said.

"The change reflected in the committee action will distort the market for the low-micronaire, short staple cotton, which is produced almost exclusively on the High Plains of Texas, and I will push to change this so that the loan program for this area will continue to reflect the true

Freezer Jam Is A Cinch!

Imagine the flavor of Strawberry Mint Jam lavishly spread on warm biscuits, morning toast or tender pancakes. Don't tax your imagination when it's so easy to prepare no-cook freezer jam with liquid fruit pectin to help assure a good "set." Reusable freezer containers not larger than one pint in capacity with tight-fitting lids can be used. Or, you may prefer standard glass jelly jars with two-part lids. As fresh strawberry season moves along, try another freezer jam or jelly recipe printed in the leaflet tucked inside the package of liquid fruit pectin. Think of all the eating pleasure you'll create!

STRAWBERRY MINT JAM

1-3/4 cups prepared fruit (about 1 qt. fully ripe strawberries)
2 tablespoons chopped fresh mint*
4 cups (1-3/4 lb.) sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 pouch Certo fruit pectin

*Or use 1 tablespoon crushed dried mint leaves.

First prepare the fruit. Stem and thoroughly crush, one layer at a time, about 1 quart strawberries. Measure 1-3/4 cups into large bowl or pan. Add mint.
Then make the jam. Thoroughly mix sugar into fruit; let stand 10 minutes. Add lemon juice to fruit pectin in small bowl. Stir into fruit. Continue stirring 3 minutes. (A few sugar crystals will remain.) Ladle quickly into scalded containers. Cover at once with tight lids. Let stand at room temperature 24 hours; store in freezer. Small amounts may be covered and stored in refrigerator up to 3 weeks. Makes about 4-1/3 cups or 5 (8 fl. oz.) containers.

Last year USDA, at the urging of cotton farmers of the Southeastern US announced micronaire discounts based on a 2:1 ratio. Senator Bentsen at that time joined with other members of the Texas Congressional delegation in a successful fight to reverse this decision.

TORNADOS

If one struck, would you know what to do?

Tornados respect no geographic boundaries. Over the last five years 4,245 tornados have touched down in 46 different states. While they can occur anytime, March through August are considered the "danger" months. State Farm Fire and Casualty, a major home insurer, offers the following suggestions to help you get ready for the coming tornado season:

GETTING PREPARED

- Know how to get emergency weather information in your community and know what it means.
- A National Weather Service "tornado watch" means conditions are right for tornados to form.
- A "tornado warning" means a tornado has been sighted, take cover.
- Most communities use sirens or horns to warn of a tornado sighting, know what your system is and what it means.
- Plan and practice what your family will do in case of a tornado.
- Have a prearranged place in your home (basement if you have one or in interior room or under stairway if you don't) to go for shelter.
- If you're in a mobile home, get out. If a shelter is available, go to it. If not, lie in a ditch or other depression.
- If you're in a car, get out. Lie in a ditch or other low area.
- Be sure you have the right kind of insurance and enough of it to cover all damage a tornado could do.
- Make an inventory of everything in your house and keep it in a safe place away from home (like a safe deposit box). It will be a great help in speeding payment for your losses.

IF IT HAPPENS

- Cooperate fully with law enforcement and disaster service officials. Check your local news media for instructions and information on emergency services available.
- Notify your insurance agent of your loss as soon as possible. He can advise you what to do next.
- Stay with your property to guard against vandalism or looting until law enforcement agencies organize protection.
- Protect against additional damage, board up broken windows or holes in the walls or roof; cover or otherwise protect furnishings from further damage by rain or wind. If necessary, have ladders turned out to prevent damage from explosion or fire.
- Don't be rushed into signing repair contracts. Fly-by-night repairmen often prey on tornado victims. Be sure you know with whom you're dealing. Your insurance agent or adjuster should be able to help; or ask your Better Business Bureau or friends or relatives to recommend someone.
- Keep receipts for all repairs and additional living expenses. Most homeowners insurance contracts will reimburse these costs; casualty losses exceeding $100 that aren't reimbursed are generally tax deductible.
