

WONDER DRUG SAVES EYES

PHILADELPHIA—Most eye infections "can now be treated effectively with a special liquid preparation of terramycin," newest of the earth-mold "wonder drugs," according to the report of a team of six physicians at Jefferson Medical College here. The doctors tested the new form of terramycin in treating 116 cases of eye infections. Only 9 of the 116 cases failed to respond to the drug.

Among the fifteen types of infection represented in the test was one case of suspected trachoma, a major ailment in which the outer eye becomes infected and overgrown, with blindness as a possible result. Prompt improvement followed treatment with terramycin and the doctors recommend further trial of the "wonder drug" in localities where trachoma is widespread.

Deep-seated troubles, such as ulcers that occur in parts of the eye hard to get at, also responded favorably to terramycin. Other conditions treated successfully included conjunctivitis, infections following external eye damage and venereal disease, and a form of shingles.

Terramycin has been prepared not only as an eye drop solution, but as an ophthalmic ointment designed to be used where inflammation and scaling are a problem.

EITHER a bird's-eye view or a close-up would show these Chocolate Birds Nests to be pretty attractive; but no bird will have a chance of moving in and setting up house-keeping, because the nests will be all "taken" in no time—chosen on the spot by any one who discovers they are a mouth-watering concoction of creamy rich chocolate, tender shredded coconut, and crisp roasted peanuts.

Chocolate Birds Nests
1 package (8 squares) candy-making chocolate; 1 cup roasted peanuts, skinned; 1 cup coconut, toasted; ½ cup coconut, untoasted; Jelly Beans.

Heat chocolate over boiling water until partly melted; then remove from boiling water and stir rapidly until entirely melted. Add nuts and toasted coconut; stir until peanuts and coconut are completely coated with chocolate. Drop from tablespoon on waxed paper. Shape with 2 teaspoons to form nests. Cool until firm. Fill nests with plain coconut and jelly beans. Makes 14 nests.

Note: If desired, drop by teaspoon on waxed paper. Makes 2½ dozen clusters.

All Puffed Up

By Betty Barclay

A lovely puffy soufflé is a great satisfaction to a hostess. She can afford to feel a little puffed up herself as she serves this masterpiece of cookery to her guests. And there is something especially wonderful about a dessert soufflé. Try this Coconut Soufflé, for example, as a delicate and superb ending for your next company dinner.

Coconut Soufflé

2 tablespoons butter; 3 tablespoons flour; ¼ teaspoon salt; 1 cup milk; 3 egg yolks; ¼ cup sugar; 3 egg whites, stiffly beaten; ¼ cup coconut, cut or chopped; 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Melt butter in saucepan over low heat. Add flour and salt and stir until smooth. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly. Cook, stirring constantly, until smooth and thickened. Remove from heat.

Beat egg yolks slightly; add sugar gradually and continue beating with a rotary egg beater until thick and lemon-colored. Then add flour mixture and mix well. Fold into beaten egg whites. Carefully fold in coconut and vanilla and turn into a greased 1-quart baking dish. Place in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 50 to 60 minutes. Serve hot with fresh or canned fruit or fruit sauce. Makes 8 servings.

For your home—use paper drinking cups. Cheap to use—cleaner, less work in dish washing. Don't spread germs in your home—use paper cups. Get cups and dispensers at the News-Record.

THE BEN ATWELLS TO BEDSIDE OF SICK RELATIVE

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Atwell left the first part of this week for Fort Smith, Arkansas, where Ben was called to the bedside of a sick sister, Mrs. R. E. Hobson. Mrs. Hobson suffered a stroke last week-end, and was in a very critical condition.

Mrs. Worth Allen and her two youngest children visited in Iraan for Easter. Worth and son, Tony, went out to Sierra Blanca to look after ranch interests there.

New Spring Topper

By Betty Barclay

YOU know what a new hat does to make your wardrobe look newer and more attractive. Well, a new "topper" gives added zest to some of the old stand-bys in the food department, too. Take that family favorite, chocolate tapioca pudding, for example.

Very good of itself, but dress it up as suggested here, and what have you got! Something pretty tempting, you'll find!

Spring Temptation
Prepare chocolate tapioca pudding as directed on the package. Turn into sherbet glasses and chill. Garnish with Pistachio Topping.

To make Pistachio Topping, whip ½ cup chilled heavy cream with 1½ teaspoons sugar and ¼ teaspoon each vanilla and almond extract. Add a few drops of green coloring. Serve on chilled pudding and sprinkle with pistachio nuts.

A MATTER OF TRANSLATION

Editorial

John Q. Public, a guy who ought to be vitally concerned, rarely takes the trouble to brood over the mathematical figures of government which the newspapers print from time to time.

Perhaps, in the immortal words of a very successful politician it was all "planned that way." For governmental mathematics are so huge and bewildering that John Q. is unable to translate them into realities or into practical applications. Such a situation, of course, is just what many politicians like.

Yet John does have a sort of uneasy feeling about "government spending," and he surely ought to have because John's standard of living (and even his destiny) is tangled up in those figures.

Let's translate a couple of them to show you.

As of last October, civilian employees of the local, state, and Federal governments of the United States numbered 6,402,000. At the same time, there were 55,400,000 in private jobs. Thus, simple division shows that John and eight of his working neighbors are paying the wages of one of those government workers.

As of last June 30, the Federal government owed debts of $281,000,000,000, the state governments $5,323,000,000, and local governments $18,324,000,000. Translated that means that John is himself in debt for $1,865—and so is every other member of his family. Furthermore, those governments are going to collect from John and his family, come what may.

A great number of those employees were put on government payrolls, and a large part of those debts were made, because John (who is nobody but you and me) asked our governments for more and better services and benefits.

When translated, however, they just don't look so tempting anymore.

PEACEFUL WAY OF LIFE IS POSSIBLE

EVANSTON, ILL.—Relief from the worries, tension and insecurity which beset the world has been found in seven simple rules by Dr. James Roscoe Miller, president of Northwestern University. The 45-year-old educator, administrator and medical scientist, took time out to relay these rules to the average citizen to wage his personal war on frustration. Northwestern is marking its 100th year as one of the nation's great schools of learning.

Dr. Miller describes the following rules as a high road of courage, common sense, gratitude and faith:

- 1.—Live each day for itself, making the best possible use of it without ruing the past or fearing the future.
- 2.—Build an unshakeable faith in God as early as possible; the earlier in life this is done, the quicker will emerge a contented citizen.
- 3.—Know that security is relative, and that your land is the world's richest in opportunity, in established government and in natural resources.
- 4.—Don't be frightened by inflation, an unavoidable result of high public spending. It will end with a turn to peaceful pursuits.
- 5.—Continue to hope and pray for world peace, never conceding that an instant that war is "inevitable."
- 6.—Accept as inevitable, however, the sacrifices entailed in a costly defense program—but, as a good citizen check on how YOUR money is spent.
- 7.—When fear and discontent arise, count your blessings; no other people enjoy the comforts of our Constitution and our high moral heritage.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Slim And His "Ali Species"

Slim Baker, who's always doing something crazy, had a lot of people smiling last week because his entry won a ribbon in the Women's Club Annual Pet Show.

Seems as though Slim saw a strange-colored alley cat with no tail over at Central City and brought it home. He washed, combed, and brushed it and put a collar on it with a card reading "Ali Species." Then he enters it in the show.

Hanged if the ladies didn't think it was some rare kind of cat and gave it a special award! When one of them asked Slim where she could get one like it, he said, "It's all yours, M'am—I can get an 'Alley Cat' anytime I want!"

From where I sit, some of us are pretty easily "taken in" just because someone else says it's so. Whether it's awarding prizes or passing judgment on a person's right to enjoy a temperate glass of beer—let's take a good look from stem to stern, and learn what it's all about before making up our minds.

Chinchillas—That's Gold in Their Fur!

Nestled in the beautiful Shenandoah Valley, at New Market, Va., is the Greer-Hale chinchilla ranch, second largest producer of the world's most valuable fur-bearing animals.

Chinchillas are worth their weight in gold, literally. Coats of chinchilla start at $35,000—hardly a bargain basement item—with the top around $100,000, and are understandably rare.

Trapped by the Chinca Indians in the Andes Mountains hundreds of years ago, chinchillas were introduced to this country in 1923 when 11 of the little animals were brought here from South America. This was the nucleus of a great new industry, but there's still no large-scale commercial use of the furs, nor will there be until the chinchilla population reaches a level permitting such operations.

Sold for breeding purposes, chinchillas command $1,200 to $1,500 a pair. The Greer-Hale ranch, with a respectable inventory of more than 700 pairs, ships several hundreds annually to all parts of the United States, Canada and Europe.

Careful planning went into the substantial but handsome ranch building which protects this million-dollar investment. A warm, dry shelter, providing proper ventilation was essential to the health and well-being of the precious chinchillas. Fire safety was equally important.

These requirements were met by building the structure of tile and covering it with a roof of fire-resistant asphalt shingles. This combination also achieved another objective—an attractive appearance, harmonizing with the coloring of the rolling Virginia countryside. The roof of dark green blends with the natural red tile walls and white trim. Standing out against a panel of even darker green shingles, large, white letters proclaim the name, Greer-Hale Chinchilla Ranch.

Unique is the chinchilla. It has a head like a rabbit, tail like a squirrel, stands on its hind legs and its actions are suggestive of a kangaroo. The silvery gray fur with blue undertones is incomparable in beauty and durability, each hair finer than a strand of spider web. One yard of precious fur, so soft that it can be touched without "feel," weighs the same as a yard of pure silk.

The attractive building shown above, at New Market, Va., shelters more than 700 pairs of chinchillas, prized for the beauty of their silvery gray fur, while girl at right displays luxurious chinchilla coat—priced at upwards of $35,000. Chinchillas sell at $1,200 to $1,600 a pair as breeding stock. The ranch house, protecting a million dollar investment, has a roof of fire-resistant asphalt shingles in dark green to blend with the natural red tile walls and white trim. The name is painted in white on a panel of shingles of a darker green.

Chinchillas mate at an early age and, if permitted, stay together for life. Papa chinchilla helps with the babies, but you know who's boss. Born with their eyes open, the little ones walk immediately. Litters number one to four, but two is the average.

Among the cleanest animals in existence, chinchillas take daily sand baths. Herbivorous, they live on small prepared pellets of grain costing an average of $2 per year per animal.

Owners of the flourishing enterprise at New Market are Dr. E. E. Hale and W. W. Greer, Jr., the former a dentist who continues to practice his profession "for the love of it" in a West Virginia coal mining community.

One of the pioneers of chinchilla raising in this country, Dr. Hale served as national director of the industry for seven years. He occasionally applies his dental skill to the chinchilla business, performing oral surgery when one of the little fellows is discovered to have a defective molar.

KEROSENE REMOVES STAINS

Kerosene can be rubbed on sinks, bathtubs, wash basins and other fixtures to remove stains. A scratchless cleaning powder or a paste made of kerosene and powder also is effective. But chemicals never should be used because most fixtures are coated with enamel which would be damaged.

A Glad Wedding Anniversary Surprise

On the 15th of this month the Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Weimer were quietly enjoying their wedding anniversary with their family, not knowing any one else here knew of the occasion, when some gifts began to come in from friends of Sterling City. Among these gifts was the first payment on a car. The family is very appreciative of such kind expressions from their friends.

Margaret Ritter, daughter of the Dan Ritters and student in TSCW at Denton, spent the Easter holidays here with her parents.

Services at the Methodist Church Easter Sunday

There was a record number of 94 in Sunday School at the Methodist church Sunday with comfortably filled house for the church service. Three came into the church and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Brooks dedicated their infant, Beverly Frances, to God and the church. The evening service was called off in interest of the youth revival at the Baptist Church.

Fern Garrett, student in A.C.C. spent last week-end here with her parents, the Taylor Garretts.
