More About Mental Health HEALTH TALKS

Prepared by the Texas Medical Association

Kindness is the keyword to good mental health. Those entrusted with the care of people suffering from mental disorders have found that a program of unflinching kindness is one of the first requirements to bringing the mentally ill back to the road to normal.

So perhaps it is unkindness in the first place that leads to a great many of the mental disorders.

There are, briefly, three classifications of mental disorder. In the first class, mental deficiency, the afflicted person may either be born without the physical equipment essential to reaching mental maturity or disease during the lifetime may affect the mind, causing the mental faculties to deteriorate. "Neurosis" is the name usually applied to the second classification of mental disorder; this covers a wide range of "peculiarities", usually considered as failure to adjust on some phase of life while remaining quite normal on others. "Psychosis", the third classification, is the complete failure to adjust, usually leading to the necessity for institutional care for treatment.

Unkindness leads to confusion, which might be called the greatest enemy of good mental health. Everybody gets confused when people and life situations do not follow the pattern they have built up in their minds; the mental picture gets out of balance, is confused. But the ability to fit those new experiences into a picture of life and adjust to them, to bring order out of the confusion, is the sign of good mental health.

When confusion results from a situation that is new and seems unfavorable to you, you will usually have to draw back from that situation to really think it out. With the resources at your command, including friends who may have experienced a similar situation, you can usually find some phase of that problem which fits in with another experience you have had and guide yourself accordingly to adjust to adjust to this new problem.

One of the best examples of avoiding confusion is a lesson taught to school children. Their fire drills are undertaken at regular intervals, not just to prepare them for the event of a fire in that school building, but also to prepare them for an orderly withdrawal from the scene of danger. They file out of the building, never knowing for sure whether there is or isn't a fire, until they get outside and look over very carefully. If there's no smoke, they assume there is no fire and they can go back to the classrooms. If there is smoke, however, they realize there may be some changes in their school activities and they will have to adjust to that change. As children, they view the problem of a burned schoolhouse with the hope of a holiday to come.

Taking that same situation and following up on later reactions to it, you can get a pretty good idea of good mental health. Suppose the schoolhouse did burn but classes were resumed in an unburned part of the building. None of those children have ever experienced a fire before. Most of them returned to school quite ready to resume their studies as soon as the first excitement died down. That would be the normal reaction.

But suppose one child refused to go back to school for fear there would be another fire. Or another

Mrs. Nan Davis was hostess to the Noratadata Club and guests at a luncheon Friday at the Community Center. Mrs. T. A. Revell, president, conducted the business, and the topic for the program was "Get in Step With People." Mrs. G. C. Luncheon was served, after which games of bridge were played with high score prize going to Mrs. J. Q. Foster, and high cut award going to Mrs. Ross Foster.

Others present were Mrs. T. S. Foster, Mrs. Fred Campbell, Mrs. William Brooks, Mrs. J. S. Augustine, Mrs. Dayton Barrett, Mrs. Alvie Cole, Mrs. Reynolds Foster, Mrs. R. T. Foster, Jr., Mrs. William Foster, Mrs. Ewing F. McEntire, Mrs. G. C. Murrell, Mrs. F. S. Price, Mrs. M. C. Reed, Mrs. Neal J. Reed, Mrs. T. A. Revell, Mrs. Hubert Williams, and Mrs. Harold Gober.

LYDIA CIRCLE MEETING

The Lydia Circle met at the home of Mrs. Mud Allen Monday afternoon. A program on Stewardship was given.

Present were Mrs. C. T. Williams, Mrs. Lee Augustine, Mrs. Roy Morgan, Miss Effie Carwile, Mrs. H. C. Lawson, Mrs. J. A. Revell, Mrs. Claude Collins, Mrs. D. C. Durham, Mrs. L. F. Wallace, Mrs. Jack Douthit and Mrs. Allen.

Stanton Druggist Dies

J. L. Hall, 70, Stanton druggist for over 30 years, was found dead in the back of his store this week. Shot to death, Hall was presumably a suicide, although no verdict has yet been rendered.

child went back to school with an idea that he, to, would start a fire at school because he didn't like school anyway and he did like the excitement of the fire. And suppose another went to school but was constantly afraid of another fire and kept watching for one so carefully that he failed to learn anything in his classes.

None of the last three situations would be a normal adjustment to the fire at school. The new situation of the fire was not accepted as "one of those things that just happen" and fitted into the routine of school life. Because there were dangers in school-life to those children, one withdrew from school completely, one went out to embrace the danger instead of the routine, and one followed the routine with an apprehension, a constant worry that interfered with the process of education.

Children obviously are not mental adults but such experiences that form stumbling blocks to their development will often result in their failure to reach mental maturity. It is while they are children that their fears and worries can be guided with kindness to adjust to situations, not to cloud the whole routine.

STERLING CITY EDGES WATER VALLEY 25 To 24

An inspired Water Valley football team, supposedly inferior to the Sterling City Eagles, upset the dopesters and almost upset Sterling City last Friday at Water Valley. The difference between a tie and a victory was one extra point on the side of Sterling City.

The game started as the Sterling City squad carried the ball some forty yards on five plays only to be stalled inside the five yard line by a determined group of Water Valley players. After regaining possession of the ball the Sterling City squad went on to pay dirt after having the touchdown set up by a pass from Charles Davis to Gene Smith. Sterling City led 6-0. After both teams tried to start a drive several times, Sterling City took over and scored on eight plays. The long gain was a pass from Charles Davis to Marshall Blair. Later in the second quarter Sterling again threatened but failed to have the punch to score when they got inside the Water Valley fifteen. Water Valley, then trying desperately to catch up started passing. Two touchdowns came in rapid succession, one off of the spread which was a fake run and pass and the other a sneak pass to their center who had slipped out into the Sterling City secondary. The half ended 12-12. Sterling City came out full of fire in the second half and it looked as if they were going to make a one-sided game out of it as they scored in five plays, making large gains on each play. It was at this point that Sterling City scored the extra point which later was the deciding factor in the contest.

Sterling City then got a break as Marshall Blair picked up a loose fumble and carried it all the way to pay dirt for Sterling City's fourth touchdown. The Water Valley bunch was far from giving up, however. They failed on their first attempt, but later jarred one of the Sterling backs loose from the ball and started passing. Their passing paid off as they again found their center in the end zone for six points. The fourth Water Valley touchdown came after Sterling City had failed to make a sustained drive and had lost some ground on poor ball handling. Water Valley again found the center with a long pass for six more points. Local fans were silent as the Water Valley kicker calmly dropped the ball for the drop kick, but relaxed as the kick was slightly low.

As the game ended, Sterling City had moved down inside the Water Valley five and was threatening to score but the clock caught them. The game was close all the way with Sterling City having a slight edge in yards gained and Water Valley made up for this with three recovered fumbles. Sterling City had one recovered fumble.

Brownies Put On Party Dress

By Betty Barclay

NO cookie enjoys greater popularity than Brownies. However, here are Brownies with a difference. For along with the usual rich chocolate-nut flavor combination, these Brownies have donned a party dress—frosting in swirls or rosettes, to make these little dessert squares worthy of some special occasion. Serve them when Aunt Jane comes for dinner, as bridge club sweets, or when you want to give your family an extra-yummy dessert. Then sit back and enjoy the compliments that are bound to follow after the first mouth-watering bite.

Tea Brownies

½ cup sifted flour; ½ teaspoon double-acting baking powder; ¼ teaspoon salt; ½ cup butter or other shortening; 2 squares unsweetened chocolate; 1 cup sugar; 2 eggs, well-beaten; ½ cup broken walnut meats; 1 teaspoon vanilla; Butter Frosting.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Melt shortening and chocolate over boiling water. Add sugar gradually to eggs, beating thoroughly. Add chocolate mixture and blend. Add flour and mix well; then add nuts and vanilla. Bake in greased 9x9x2-inch pan. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 30 minutes, or until done. Cut in 1-inch squares. Remove from pan and cool on cake rack. Swirl butter frosting on top. Or force frosting through pastry tube to make a rosette on each square. Makes about 6 dozen small brownies.

America's Food Problems At The Plate

It was Grocers' Day at Wrigley Field, home of the Chicago Cubs, as 2,500 grocers from every corner in every state took time out from the five-day session of their 52nd annual meeting of the National Association of Retail Grocers to relax at a ball game. Though most of the sessions and the two miles of exhibits at the meeting dealt with the important problems faced by grocers in getting food to the country's 150 million people, there was time to enjoy a major league game. Shown picking up a few tips about food for their hungry ballplayers are Eddie Sawyer, left, manager of the Philadelphia Phillies and a former biology teacher, and Frankie Frisch, right, manager of the Chicago Cubs, whose appetite for steaks is as keen as his players'. The two pilots are with, right to left, Paul McGowan, general manager of the General Foods Sales Division; Jerry Klomp, Ogden, Utah, president of the grocers' association; George Black of Chicago, and Harold Colclough of New York.
