Lions Club Luncheon

Lion Fred Campbell showed colored films of the tour that was taken by the 4-H club boys last fall—wherein their projects were checked on by an interested group of adults as well as the boys.

The films were made at each of the boys' places. At noon that day the group were given a barbecue at Fred Hodges' ranch.

"MY LIFE IN THE WHITE HOUSE" * * * * Senator Taft may or may not, get to be President. . . But he'll never be a stranger to 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. It was there, while his father was President, that he spent many happy hours. HEALTH TALKS

Prepared by the State Medical Association of Texas

The mouth is the gateway to the stomach and the organs of digestion and the outlet of the voice box, part of the channel of respiration. As an inlet, the mouth caters to the physical well-being and as an outlet you might consider the mouth an expression of the mental well-being, a reflection of thoughts and personality.

The primary function of the mouth is its capacity to start food on its alimentary canal route. Though it may substitute for the nose as the intake of air for breathing purposes, neither the nose nor the mouth likes that substitution unless it is absolutely necessary, such times as when the nose is stopped up or damaged or the physical exertion of the body is so great that the oxygen needs cannot be met by the nose.

You're supposed to breathe with your nose and eat with your mouth. The mouth starts with the lips, a thin skin that forms a lining all the way from the opening of the mouth to the stomach. The mouth ends with that gadget that hangs down like a bell and wobbles up and down when you say "Ah". In between the lips and that gadget (the uvula) are the gums, teeth, cheeks, tongue, hard palate (roof of the mouth), soft palate (the downward dip towards the back of the mouth that pulls the uvula up and down), and all the openings of the salivary glands, the sprinkling system for the mouth.

Every part of the body has its own waterworks. In the nose the mucus serves as the waterworks, keeping things circulating in a stream. In the mouth, the salivary glands serve to moisten the mouth and lead the essential ingredients into the stream that flows into the stomach.

Everything in the mouth is concerned not only with food going down but also with sounds coming up. The giggling up and down of the uvula is part of the "Ah" sound, just like the lips have to help with the "p" sounds, the teeth are needed for the "th" sounds, the roof of the mouth for "i" sounds and so on.

The tongue flaps about in conversation and also rolls food up to a ball before helping shove the food down the hatch.

The "hatch" is the throat. The part that adjoins the mouth is called the oropharynx, and such things as tonsils, the roof of the tongue, and that big hole back of them belong in the oropharynx category. The throat portion above the level of the mouth is the nasopharynx (belonging to the nose) and the part below the level of the mouth is the laryngeal pharynx (belonging to the larynx).

Food travels from the mouth to the pharynx to the gullet (esophagus) into the stomach. There it gets doused with hydrochloric acid, a powerful chemical which causes the solids to disintegrate. From the stomach the food goes into the small intestine where more chemicals are added and the whole thing looks like mush.

This mush is dumped into the large intestine where the fluids are squeezed out and sent to all parts of the body. The solid matter completes the circuit of the large intestine, goes into the bowels, and is periodically expelled from the body.

Perhaps the main difference in the respiratory and digestive systems lies in the fact that the respiratory system doubles back on itself while the digestive system is a one-way tract. The air you breathe goes into your lungs, makes the circuit of the body with blood for replenishment of all parts, picks up waste products and returns to the lungs to have those waste products expelled from the body when you exhale.

The food you eat goes into the stomach and intestines, picking up chemicals and leaving such nourishment as is necessary along the route, and the waste product is eliminated from the body by the bowels. The kidneys serve both systems for the removal of liquid waste products.

There are dividing partitions between the respiratory and digestive systems all the way down the line. The air channel from the nose and the food channel from the mouth meet there in the oropharynx for a brief space before the air channel takes the forward track through the epiglottis into the larynx, trach-

Behind The 8 Ball

SEEN IN STERLING CITY—Alvie Cole still going around with his big toe wrapped up that he dropped the barrel on recently . . . Lee Hunt about ready to through away his crutches following his broken leg incident (result of a cow kick) . . . Hugh Harzke about to finish his building south of the Drive-In Grocery for the E & B Butane Co. . . . H. A. Chapple with his little red cap on . . . Chesley McDonald's rolled-up pants leg falling down repeatedly as he made the rounds dancing in the baby skit at "Shooting Stars" . . . The kids in the "Snow White Act" doing a good job of the skit. . . . Milburn (Fred Waring) Smith announcing the Bubble Song almost didn't get the word "bubble" out. The highway department patching up the pavement on the highway through town this week . . . Horace Donalson training his little Shetland pony to pull a cart . . . People dusting out their rain gauges following the dust storms (or West Texas rains).

8-BALL
The dust storm of Monday had enough moisture in it to momentarily give us a ray of hope for a rain.

8-BALL
The blowing dust reminds me of the early '30's when dust storms were so common. Guess we have reached that cycle in our weather again.

Perhaps next year will be a humdinger as regards rainfall.

8-BALL
The dust is hard on people. W. Y. Bengé says the dust has got him. Says he can spot a lunker 12 coughs and then beat him all hollow.

Thursday was the first day of spring. But, you can't fool me. It has been spring all this year with the exception of one or two nights.

ea (windpipe), bronchi and lungs, while the food channel takes the backward track towards the spine through the esophagus (gullet) to the stomach.

Below the lungs and above the stomach is a dome-shaped muscle which forms a sliding partition. This muscle, called the diaphragm, works up and down like a butter churn, shoving up against the lungs and pushing out the air, then pushing down against the stomach, possibly to give the stomach contents the impetus to get going on into the intestines. The diaphragm just keeps batting back and forth in pretty good rhythm most of the time; when it gets hung for some reason or the other, you usually end up with the hiccups.

WIMODAUSIS CLUB NETS $105 FROM "SHOOTING STARS"

The Wimodausis Club netted $105 for their part of the "Shooting Stars" stage production at the local school auditorium last Friday and Saturday nights.

The president of the club, Mrs. Fowler McEntire, expressed her thanks and the thanks of the club to all those who helped in any way in the production.

The production was a take-off on television. The entire scene was set in a television studio and gave scenes and acts from various programs.

As the curtain rose, the studio was agog with excitement as the first television (coast-to-coast) broadcast was ready for the air. Harry Bradstreet, as Milton Berle, was boss (director) of the affair.

The Roxy Rockettes consisted of Virginia McCarty, Christine Tilley, Clara Tindall, Gingee Lane, Jacque Foster and Winona Blair.

Jacque and Ginger acted as the studio pages.

Mrs. H. A. Chapple acted the part of Fran Allison, reading the story of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. Willean Glass was Snow White, Cecelia McDonald was the wicked queen, Johnny Augustine played the part of the prince and dwarfs were David Durham, Reynolds Lee Foster, George Allen Davis, George Loven, C. L. King, Rodney Batten and Ronnie Allen.

A number titled "Backstage Queens" featured Shirley Langford, Bobbie McEntire, Esther Bird, Kay McEntire, Charlene Drennan and Charlotte Berry.

In a "Happy Hayride Show" appeared Shirley Cole, Wanda Williams, Bernice Green, Charlotte Berry, Billie Green, Sarah Reed, Esther Bird, and Robbie Blackman.

With Mrs. Bill Barbee as Dinah Shore the following appeared as the (colored) Jubilee Singers—Mrs. W. B. Durham, Imogene Bolton, Carol Campbell, Mrs. Ray Lane, Mrs. W. D. Farnsworth, Mrs. H. D. Glass, Mrs. David Glass, and Mrs. G. C. Murrell.

With Milburn Smith as Fred Waring he and his chorus sang several numbers. Harry Bradstreet as Milton Berle, gave a merry number, entitled "Mints Spiry."

Appearing as baby counterparts of well known stars, the following appeared in baby clothes: R. T. Caperton as Eddie Cantor, Marvin V. Churchill as Ed Wynn, Chesley McDonald as Jimmy Durante, Bill Barbee as Faye Emerson, Temp Foster as Eleanor Roosevelt and W. D. Farnsworth as Dagmar.

Winners in the baby contest held in connection with the affair were Janie Copeland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Copeland, Jr. and Billy Hull Barbee, son of the Bill Barbees.

Mrs. John Arizola Dead

Mrs. John Arizola, 23, died last Friday night at 11:50 in a Big Spring hospital. She had entered the hospital only that day there. A native of Fredericksburg, she was buried there.

Survivors include the widower, the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tottilo Vallerio, nine sisters and one brother.

Burial took place at 3:30 p. m. Sunday at Fredericksburg.

LAST WEEK THE HOUSE disposed of one appropriation bill, adopted a conference report on an immigration measure, and recessed on Thursday for the week-end.

The economy coalition in the House was very much in evidence as the supplemental appropriation bill was dissected and amended in a number of respects. I offered one amendment to prohibit the employment of nearly 400 additional Federal employees, and for other purposes. It was adopted and alone will save many millions of dollars during the years to come. The initial cut provided by the one amendment amounted to $1,390,000.

The wetback bill was cleared by the conference committee to which it had been referred to iron out differences between the House and Senate. The compromise version was promptly adopted and sent to the President. It is a vast improvement over many of the proposals advanced by the Administration, and is considered a fairly good bill in most respects.

Meanwhile, the farm labor crisis continues and the present processing agreement with Mexico to expire in early May. A new agreement is to be negotiated in Mexico City soon, to enable Mexican workers to be recruited to work in areas on this side of the Rio Grande where there is found to be a shortage of domestic help. The trouble has been that the agreements have been so weighted down with red tape and unworkable provisions, that the program has had the effect of encouraging wetbacks to come across in numbers and has deprived many people of badly needed labor. We can only hope that the new agreement will be an improvement.

... as the saying goes in France across-the-sea. On this side of the ocean we say "Everybody to his own taste." But a family taste test will give a happy vote of approval to this recipe for Frozen Crunch a delightful new cooler that is as refreshing as a sea breeze itself. It's a mixture of ice cream, nut meats, and the new candy-coated rice cereal that lends itself so well to recipes:

Frozen Crunch

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1/4 cup chopped nut meats
- 1/4 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- 2 cups candy-coated rice cereal, crushed
- Dash of salt
- 2 teaspoons gelatin
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 1 1/2 cups hot milk
- 1/2 cup sugar
- Dash of salt
- 1 cup cream, whipped
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Melt butter in skillet over low heat. Add nut meats and brown sugar, stirring constantly, until sugar melts and caramelizes lightly. Add cereal and salt; mix well. Cool and crumble.

Combine gelatin and cold water; mix well. Add hot milk and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add sugar and salt and mix well. Chill until slightly thickened. Then fold in whipped cream and vanilla.

Turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator, setting control for coldest freezing temperature. When partially frozen, turn into a chilled bowl and beat with rotary egg beater until fluffy and smooth. Fold in 1/2 of the cereal mixture. Return to tray and freeze 30 minutes longer; stir. Then spread remaining cereal mixture over the top and freeze until firm. Freezing time: 2 to 4 hours. Makes 1 quart.

You can even Europeanize this interesting treat: for Mocha Biscuit Tortoni, simply turn the ice cream and cereal mixture into 4- or 5-ounce paper cups. Top them with the remaining cereal mixture and freeze them until firm. This makes 12 to 16 servings.
