

Last Thursday President Eisenhower delivered his second State of the Union message to a joint session of the House and Senate. The Constitution requires this, at the beginning of each session. Since the time of Jefferson, it was always done by written messages, read by the clerks of the respective Houses until Woodrow Wilson broke that precedent by appearing personally before the joint session.

By and large, the message was typical of other similiar messages by prior presidents of recent years, covering in general terms a variety of subjects with details to be submitted later in special written messages.

One of the first orders of business, where time is vital, is cotton acreage legislation. Last Spring the House passed a bill which set the 1954 acreage at around 22 million acres. But the Senate did not act or and Collector of Sterling County. on it before the recess, and the In doing so, I wish to thank all of Secretary of Agriculture had to the people of this county for their make allocations under the old law past cooperation and assistance in —the limit being a little more than 17 million acres. That was done after the cotton farmers voted over- tinued cooperation, assistance and whelmingly in favor of controls.

On the second day of the session the Senate Agriculture com- Pol. After the Senate acts the measure will have to be compromised by a conference committee. This should be completed within another week. Under the House version, several provisions should prove very helpful to our cotton growers in Texas. In cases where a farmer is allotted a certain number of acres but does or none at all, he may surrender it and let the County Committee reallocate it to others in that county who desire to plant more than they were allotted. Yet, the farmer who surrenders the acreage will, in computing acreage in future years, be given credit for the acreage even though he did not plant it.

Another important provision in the House bill will permit acreage in a county to be determined by individual history of cotton planted Reelection as Clerk in the past, rather than by the socalled county factor as at present. That should help individual farmers in many instances.

The House bill also permits more flexibility in giving credit in drouth FICE IN THE COUNTY". areas for the cotton a farmer would have planted had it not been for the dry weather. That should also help in our area.

The Senate committee cut the acreage to 21.3 million acres, whereas the House had set it at nearly 22 million. It will probably be set somewhere between the two fig-

North Concho River Soil Conservation News Column

On Friday, January 8, George Skeete of Water Valley held a range pitting demonstration on the old Hardin place just west of Water Valley on the San Angelo Highway.

George recently purchased the pitting plow to get his range land in shape to hold some moisture when it does rain.

There were about twenty-five interested ranchers present and much interest was shown for using this kind of operation on the bare spots and other places where the turf is short on range land in the vicinity. It was pointed out that by pitting on the contour that much water could be stopped from running off and held up to re-establish a turf on bare ranges. The pits also offer a very good seed-bed for planting range grasses.

Mr. Skeete pointed out that the extra moisture put in the ground by pitting would easily offset the cost of doing the pitting, since the plows are relatively inexpensive and do not require much power to pull.

when you know how! And the "know-how" in making this luscious Lemon Angel Cake is lemon pudding and pie filling mix. The pudding, made in a jiffy, gives that real lemon flavor to the frosting and when combined with the other ingredients list. ed below provides a fluffy golden topping for an angel cake,

Lemen Angel Cake 1 package lemon pudding and pie filing mix; 1½ cups water; 1 egg; ½ cup butter; 1½ cups sifted confectioners' sugar; 10-inch angel food cake.

Combine pudding mix and 1/4 cup of water in saucepan. Add whole egg and blend well. Then add remaining 11/4 cups water. Cook and stir until mixture comes to a full boil and is thickened. (This takes about 5 minutes.) Remove from heat. Cool about 5 minutes; stir once or twice. Chill.

Cream butter until soft. Add sugar gradually, blending well after each addition. Add chilled pudding gradually, beating well with rotary egg beater.

Split cake into three layers. Spread frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake. Makes 10 to 12 servings.
