Sterling Voters Favor Daniel and Wilson

Sterling County voters gave Will Wilson and Price Daniel the big end of the votes here last Saturday in the Democratic runoff primary election.

Price Daniel for governor got 136 votes to 99 for his opponent, Ralph Yarborough. Two of the boxes gave Yarborough top spot—being the Divide box—giving Yarborough 11 to 7 for Daniel. The box at Roy Foster's ranch house gave Yarborough 8 to 7 for Daniel. The largest box (No. 1) gave Daniel 91 votes to 65 for Yarborough.

In comparison, Daniel got 191 of the votes in the first primary here and Yarborough got 68. However, W. Lee O'Daniel, who didn't make the runoff, got second place here in July with 125 votes. Only about half of the July voters turned out last Saturday to vote. This is usually the case in a runoff election where there are no local races to be decided.

Will Wilson for Attorney General got 169 votes here last Saturday to 63 for his opponent Tom Moore. It was not even as close as was in the July primary. Wilson then got 173 votes to Moore's 169.

The Democratic Committee members met Tuesday afternoon and canvassed the votes. No difference was found in the returns posted on Saturday night and reported to the Texas Election Bureau. The returns were certified to the State Democratic chairman George Sandlin following the canvass.

Refund to Candidates Due

Candidates will get around a 40 percent refund on their assessment, said county chairman Jack Douthit. He reported that it seemed assured that such a refund would be made, after final expenses were all paid. Candidates had been assessed 5% of one year's salary of the office sought.

The refunds will be made early next week, said the chairman and such will wind up work of the committee for two years.

Members of the executive committee include the chairman, W. R. Brooks—secretary, Reynolds Foster, W. H. Owens and Ross Foster and J. S. Cole. The committee expressed thanks to all who helped hold the elections and helped in any way to carry on the elections.

FED CATTLE DUE TO PULL STOCKERS AND FEEDERS UP

Fort Worth—A glance at cattle and calf prices a year ago on September 1 and those in effect today, appears to augur higher prices for stocker and feeder classes in the near future.

A year ago at Fort Worth fed steers and yearlings of choice grades sold in the $20 to $22 field, as August fades similar cattle are selling in the $22 to $25 bracket here.

Choice stocker steer calves a year ago sold around $19 to $21, and steer yearlings sold at $18 to $19 down. This week similar yearlings are selling from $18 down, and choice steer calves around $18 to $20, possibly more on lightweights in straight loads.

Granted the "spread" between replacement cattle and fat cattle was too narrow a year ago, the spread now appears too great to be maintained when the feed crops get a little closer to "in" in the cornbelt.

This situation could spell a more favorable fall stocker and feeder price range than any had dared hope for earlier.

PRICES AGAIN STRONG ON ALL CATTLE AND CALVES

All classes of cattle and calves sold on a strong to higher basis at Fort Worth Monday. Some slaughter steers were 25 to 50 cents higher. Trade was very active, virtually everything sold before noon and weighed shortly after noon. An unusually swift clearance for this time of year and with a heavy run.

Comparative prices: Good and choice steers and yearlings $17.00—23.00. Plain and medium steers and yearlings $12.00—17.00. Rannian yearlings and very common kinds $10.00—12.00. Fat cows $9.00—12.00, a few heiferish kinds to $13.00. Canners and cutters $6.00—9.00. Bulls $9.00—13.00.

Good and choice fat calves all weights $15.00—17.50; fancy heavies $17.00—18.50, two loads prime creepeds from Bonds Ranch, Hicks, Texas averaged 516 pounds and topped at $19.50. Cull to medium grades $19.00—14.00. Stocker steer calves mostly $15.00—19.00; quotable to $20 or above in choice load lots. Heifers and stocker heifer calves sell $2 to $3 under similar steers. Some good stocker steer yearlings $18 down.

WILLIAM BONNER AND HAPPY SHAHAN JUDGES

William Bonner of Gainesville and Happy Shahan of Bracketville will serve as judges of the special Aberdeen-Angus Stocker and Feeder Sale at Fort Worth September 7. Both are widely known in cattle circles all over the nation and both are breeders of both commercial and registered cattle.

HOGS UP STRONG; SOWS SHARPLY HIGHER

Choice butcher hogs topped at $17.50 to $17.75 at Fort Worth Monday. This equals the year's best prices here, and represents a strong to 25 cents higher market. Sows were 50 cents to 75 cents up and sold at $14 to $15.

This price compares with a top of $17 at Fort Worth just one year ago this week. Sows in this week a year ago sold for $12 to $15. Heavy sows this week are $2 above a year ago.

LAMBS CLOSE LOWER; OLD EWES OFF 25-50 CENTS

Early sales of choice fat lambs were steady and up to a $20 top at Fort Worth Monday. Later sales were 50 cents to $1 off. Some of the lambs selling in the $17 range were comparable to lambs $1 above that range at the close of last week. Slaughter ewes at $3 to $4.50 were 25 to 50 cents under last week. Feeder lambs sold from $16.50 down. Yearling muttons sold from $16 down. Old wethers $10 to $12.

A year ago this week fat lambs topped at $19 to $19.50, and feeder lambs sold from $15 to $17. Slaughter ewes a year ago sold mostly at $5 to $5.50.

Queen Dina of Jordan
—Beauty Plus Brains

From a simple school-teacher to the queen of an entire nation—this is the Cinderella story of Jordan's beautiful Queen Dina.

Once upon a time, as our true story goes, a young student prince visited the home of distant relatives in Egypt. And in this home Prince Hussein of Jordan met his princess, Dina Abdel-Hamid Al-Aoun, daughter of the house. In addition to her beauty, the prince was impressed by his cousin's determination to pursue her education at Cambridge University in England. In an area where the veil remains more common than lipstick, a thoroughly modern woman was still somewhat of a novelty.

The prince continued his education at Harrow and Britain's Royal Military Academy while Dina earned the degree of Master of Arts at Cambridge and took a job as salaried lecturer in English literature at the University of Cairo. Several years later, after his father's death, the newly-crowned King Hussein visited Dina's father to ask for the hand of the daughter he had never forgotten.

Jordan's lovely Queen probably has the best formal education enjoyed by any queen in history. And even before her marriage in April 1955, Dina added to her formal knowledge by visiting, incognito, Jordanian villages and refugee camps and talking to leaders of the feminist movement. By the time of her marriage, she was prepared to assume not only the honors of royalty but the responsibilities of good citizenship in her adopted land.

The Queen's daily routine in the palace at Amman now reads something like a cross between the duties of an executive and a busy housewife. Up at eight, she has breakfast and goes over the local and foreign press. Then comes her mail, much of which she handles personally; and the supervision of numerous orders necessary for the smooth running of a royal household. If she has any time left before luncheon at two, she reads her favorite books of philosophy and poetry, including works by Shakespeare and Gibran Khalil Gibran, the great Arab-American poet.

Lunch is usually with the King and his guests, who come from within the official circle or abroad. The meal may be followed by a walk or reception of the Queen's own visitors, particularly men and women who are working to promote progress and welfare among the people of Jordan. Dinner is at nine, again with the King; and the rest of the evening may be spent watching movies at the palace or driving to visit a hospital or charity party.

Typical of the Queen is the fact that she greatly admires the vitality of American women, and during her teaching days she emulated her western sisters by driving her own small car alone through Cairo's crowded streets. And what will be the effect of her influence on Jordan? Her marriage was barely eight months old, when the King promised to build a new university in her honor. Further progress may surely be expected from Jordan's personable but hard-working Queen.

why "do it yourself"
when electricity's
so cheap?

Electric saws and drills and other power tools can save you hours of work on a single project. And dozens of other electric servants—like washers, dryers and dishwashers—save work and worry for other members of your family.

Go upstairs, go downstairs, go all around your house and look at the ways electricity is working for you. Then think of the low price: just a few cents a day.

What else in your family budget does so much, costs so little?
