Texas Cotton Farmers Likely To Reduce Crop

Most Texas cotton farmers will likely participate in the 15 percent acreage reduction program recently announced by the Secretary of Agriculture.

While participation is voluntary, farmers must comply if they wish to be eligible for target price protection and Commodity Credit Corporation loans on their 1982 cotton crop. And that's incentive enough.

"Cotton farmers in Texas as well as in other states really have little choice but to participate in the program," believes Dr. Carl Anderson, cotton marketing economist with Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Four To Six Inches Moisture Needed

The annual pre-plant soil moisture survey over the Southern High Plains area is now complete. Bailey County's deficit ranges from two to six inches. The soil moisture deficit, a measure of how much water is still needed to wet the soil in the crop root zone to field capacity, ranges from less than two inches of moisture needed in some areas to more than eight inches needed in other areas.

The wide range of moisture deficits over the 18 county area surveyed is generally due to differences in each soil's capacity to store moisture and to local rainfall patterns.

Other factors also affect the amounts of deficit recorded. In addition to precipitation and soil types, moisture deficits may be different due to individual farm management practices, the type of crops grown in an area, and the amount of water a particular farmer applied late last growing season.

The soil moisture deficit was determined at 135 observation points, including over 50 new sites installed last fall, with the cooperation of the local landowners. Site selection was based on soil type and variation in the saturated thickness of the Ogallala aquifer.

Crews used a soil auger mounted on a small trailer to core the seven foot holes at the new sites. At each site a neutron soil moisture probe was lowered down a two inch diameter, thin-walled aluminum tube set to a depth of seven feet below land surface. Readings were taken at one foot

Host Families Sought For French Teenagers

Host families are being sought for sixty students from France who will arrive in New Orleans on July 13 for a four-week visit. The program is sponsored by the North Atlantic Cultural Exchange League, a non-profit organization which has the official approval of the French government and is widely supported by the French teachers in the United States and English teachers in France.

Participation in the program involves sharing your home with a French teenager from July 13 to August 14. The responsibility of host families is to warmly accept the French student as a member of the family and share everyday activities. The program provides comprehensive medical, accident and liability insurance, and the individual participants bring their own spending money.

Teenagers of Texas and Arkansas host families will have the opportunity to live with a family in France the following summer if they wish.

As the value of international understanding is becoming more and more evident, the NACEL program offers opportunities for building better international understanding. It provides the opportunity for French students to experience the American lifestyle, develop greater skill in speaking English, and establish lasting American friendships. It provides the American families an extraordinary opportunity to broaden their horizons and learn firsthand about the French way of life.

Students are individually matched to families according to interests, activities, and special requests (such as living on a ranch). Families are needed to host boys ages 13 to 19 and a few girls ages 15 to 18.

If you are interested in participating in the program, write to the NACEL coordinator for Arkansas and northern Texas: Mrs. Sue Kimbro, 2105 Wood Street, Texarkana, Texas 75501, phone (214) 794-8273.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's Note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sandy Creek thinks he has found a flaw in a new proposal from Washington.

Dear editor:

I have been thinking about President Reagan's proposal to turn a lot of Washington's activities over to the states.

I have no idea whether it'll work or not but I can see some drawbacks in it that the President may have overlooked.

The main one is that it's going to reduce the amount of fun everybody has cussing Washington.

Like it is, when something doesn't go to suit you, your natural instinct is to rear back and blame it on Washington, but now the President comes along with a plan to make us blame it on Austin.

How can anybody get a unanimous nation-wide complaint on anything when aim has to be taken at 50 different governors? Or 50 different state legislatures?

It's been so long since anybody thought of blaming his state legislature for anything important that it may take us years to get used to the idea. Like it is, if you have a complaint, you write your Congressman. You wouldn't any more think of writing the state legislature than you would the P-TA. Unless he's a lobbyist, the average person can't name more than two or three members of his state legislature, and one of those is known probably because of some shenanigans he has pulled.

If the plan to shift the burden to the states takes effect and thereupon the heat gets too great for Austin and it turns things over to the counties, you know what'll happen next. The county will turn the blame over to you and me.

I have never yet seen anybody who got any fun out of blaming himself.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

There is nothing sweeter than youth, nor anything as truthful.

Brown warns farmers against grain fraud

AUSTIN — Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown warns grain farmers to be aware of grain fraud when selling their products directly from the field or from on-farm storage facilities.

"A recent grain fraud case in South Central Texas, where local farmers were bilked for several hundred thousand dollars as a result of a payment check that bounced, emphasizes the fact that grain producers should be especially careful when selling directly from the farm to unfamiliar buyers," Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown said.

Brown outlined five steps that he urged farmers to take:

1. Insist on cashier's checks or cash if possible. If accepting personal checks, be sure to verify the validity of the check with the bank or other financial institution on which it is drawn.

2. Never accumulate or hold checks, but have them deposited and processed as soon as possible. That way, if one bounces, you will know it immediately.
3. If in doubt about the buyer, accompany each load of grain to the weighing station, or call the station to verify scale tickets.
4. Be suspicious of buyers who offer prices greatly exceeding the going market rate. This could be a tip-off they do not intend to pay.

5. Protect your interest to the last load. Some crooked buyers will deal honestly for a time to gain the farmer's confidence.

Mortgage Payments Take Big Bite Of Family Income In 81

Record high mortgage interest rates and housing costs meant that those buying a home for the first time in 1981 needed to spend about $4 of every $10 earned to meet their monthly mortgage payments.

This is reported by the Family Housing Bureau, a public information service of Chicago Title Insurance Co. that has studied home buying trends over the past six years.

Based on an annual survey conducted in 11 representative markets nationwide, the Family Housing Bureau found that the average monthly mortgage payment as a percentage of income rose to 38.4 percent for first time home buyers in 1981, up from 35.6 percent the previous year.

Repeat or second time home buyers also spent a greater percentage of their monthly income on mortgage payments in 1981, with the percentage rising to 33.4 percent from 30.3 percent in 1980.

In 1976 first-time buyers spent only 23 percent of their monthly income on housing while repeat buyers spent 24.9 percent. Since then, the percentage has risen steadily each year as housing costs have soared and mortgage rates have hit record highs.

Between 1976 and 1981, the average monthly mortgage payment, which includes principal, interest, taxes and insurance, rose to $694 from $329, a gain of 110 percent. Average monthly mortgage payments for first-time buyers rose to $665 from $313 during the same period, while the average payment for repeat buyers went to $725 from $342.

The survey revealed that home prices continued to rise faster than median household income in 1981. The median price of a home purchased in 1981 was $78,200, up 13.8 percent from $68,714 in 1980. But median household income rose only 8.2 percent, from $29,670 in 1980 to $32,130 in 1981.

Since 1976 the median price of a home purchased has risen from $43,340, a gain of 80.4 percent. During this same period median household income has risen 54.1 percent, from $20,840 to $32,130.

However, the study showed that the median cost of a home purchased by first-time buyers slowed appreciably in 1981, rising to $63,180 from $61,450 in 1980, a gain of only 2.8 percent. In 1980, the median price of a home purchased by first-time buyers was up 20.9 percent from $50,800 in 1979.

The rate of increase also slowed for repeat or second time home buyers in 1981. The median price of a home purchased rose to $82,220 from $75,750 in 1980, an 8.5 percent gain. This compares to an increase of 17.2 percent between 1979 and 1980 when the median price rose from $64,600 to $75,750.

Median household income for first time buyers rose to $30,470 in 1981 from $27,430 in 1980, an 11 percent increase. For repeat buyers median household income rose to $33,490 from $31,820 in 1980, a gain of 5.2 percent.

The Family Housing Bureau survey is part of Chicago Title's continuing program to foster interest in home ownership. The company issues real estate title insurance, which insures the existence of non-existence of rights to property for lenders and home owners. The insurance pays the policy holder for any losses if the title insurer is found to be wrong in its determination.

Texas leads nation in cattle production

AUSTIN — Commercial slaughtering plants in Texas produced 321 million pounds of red meat last month, representing a seven percent decrease in production from January a year ago, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown reports.

"This decline in red meat production will not cause a shortage of beef, lamb and pork in the grocery stores. In fact, Texas commercial slaughtering plants reported a five percent increase over the December figures in red meat production. Even though the numbers are down from last year we are seeing an increasing trend for 1982," Brown said.

The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service reports that the number of calves slaughtered during the month of January was up three percent from a year ago at 19,000 head while the number of cattle slaughtered during the same period was down eight percent at 458,700 head.

The number of sheep and lamb slaughtered last month was down 20 percent at 86,100 and the number of hogs slaughtered totaled 123,700, a three percent decline from the previous year.

"Texas is not alone in this decline in red meat production. Commercial slaughtering plants across the United States reported a total of 3.15 billion down eight percent from January 1981," Brown said.

Kill days for January included 21 weekdays (one holiday) and five Saturdays as compared with 22 weekdays (one holiday) in January 1981.

Agriculture serves as 'lifeline' of America

AUSTIN—Agriculture—It's your heartbeat, America," the theme for this year's March 18 Agriculture Day celebration, appropriately describes America's leading industry.

"The food and fiber system employs some 23 million and has assets of $1.1 trillion or 88 percent of the total assets for all manufacturing corporations in the United States. With these figures in mind, you can easily see why agriculture is considered the lifeline of America," Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown, State Chairman, said.

Agriculture Day in America has been set aside as a time to recognize American agriculture as the most efficient in the world. The industry has tripled its productivity in the past two decades and has been so successful that other countries depend on U.S. agriculture to meet their own needs.

"Our farmers today can feed themselves and an average of 77 other people," Brown said. "They have always provided an abundance of high quality food and fiber, despite problems of inflation, pests and bad weather."

In observance of this national celebration, Governor William P. Clements has signed a proclamation for the state, officially recognizing March 18 as Agriculture Day in Texas.

Ranked as the third largest food and fiber producer in America with an average annual income of $9 billion, Texas agriculture plays a vital role in the state, as well as the national, economy. It annually generates $30 billion in the state economy and provides four out of every ten jobs for Texans.

"Agriculture is a mainstay in the state's economy. It is the single largest multiplier of income in Texas. This celebration of Agriculture Day will help us promote a better understanding of agriculture in Texas," Brown said.

Texas has long been a leader in the nation's food and fiber system. Recently figures show that the state leads the U.S. in cattle production and is ranked second in farm assets. It is the leader in goat and sheep production, mohair, wool, cotton, cabbage, other hay and spinach. Texas farmers are responsible for 138.8 million acres of farm and ranch land, the largest amount of land used for farming and ranching in any state. These 138.8 million acres are divided into 186,000 farms and ranches with an average of 746 acres per farm.

Texas farmers are the second largest producers of winter wheat, sorghum, grapefruit, cantaloupes, carrots, white corn, onions, watermelons and pecans. They are ranked third in the production of oranges, rice, peanuts, green peppers and wheat.

"A combination of technology, ingenuity and determination has made Texas an agriculture leader in the nation and in the world and these factors will continue to make us a leader," Brown said.
