Not All Floors Require Insulation, But Some Do

Workman installs mineral wool batts in the ceiling of an unheated garage in a split-level house. The insulation blocks the escape of heat through floors in the sleeping level above, helping keep bedroom floors warm.

When should a floor be insulated? When should insulation be left out of floors?

These are questions asked frequently by builders as well as home-owners who want to make a house as comfortable as possible.

Insulation engineers say the hard and fast rules for insulating floors are:

1. Do insulate the floor above an unheated area. Examples of these are floors above crawl spaces, unheated garages, or porches with living space above them.

2. Don't insulate if the floor is between two heated areas.

3. Don't insulate the floor above a basement unless the house is heated electrically and the basement is not heated.

Engineers explain that floors above unheated areas, such as a crawl space, attached garage, or porch, need at least a two-inch thickness of mineral wool installed between the floor joists to keep floors warm and comfortable, and to stop heat loss.

Without insulation in these floors, heat in living areas quickly radiates through the floor and is dissipated in the cold area below.

Insulation in floors separating two heated areas is not necessary or desirable, the engineers point out, because mineral wool stops the natural upward flow of heat.

In an occupied second floor, for example, leaving the floor uninsulated means that fewer heating units—radiators, registers, convectors, and the like—are necessary since considerable heat rises into upstairs rooms through the ceiling of the first floor.

Lone Star 4-H'ers Rate Honors

Four Texas 4-H Club members are off to a good start in 1958 richer by practical experience and material rewards. They were judged best in the state for their 1957 project work, and each received a valuable award. Their over-all 4-H records were reviewed by the State Extension Service which directs the 4-H programs in cooperation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Clifford Smith Keith Lowery Raby Beakley David Kuperman

Clifford Smith, 17, of Willacy county, is a boy who believes that livestock is both fun and fundamental to an all-round farm. Named state winner in the 4-H Meat Animal program Smith received a smart pen and pencil set in recognition of his selection, the gift of Thos. E. Wilson, donor of awards.

After six years Smith's beef project has reaped big dividends. He handled 81 head of cattle. His herd bull, valued at $11,000, is responsible for 42 award ribbons and trophies.

Smith is plowing back cash prizes and profits into his project to build up his herd of Herefords. He has made three trips to the Texas 4-H Round-Up, and was president and junior leader of his 4-H Club.

A boy who has no trouble seeing the forest for the trees is Keith Lowery, 16, of Nacogdoches county. He was named winner of the state 4-H Forestry award and received a handsome pen and pencil set from American Forest Products Industries.

For his tireless efforts in five years of 4-H forestry, Lowery owns over 40 acres of timber. Earnings from pulpwood sales will help finance his college education, he says.

This energetic lad cleared, pruned, measured and ringed trees in his father's 700 acres of woodland. He helped set out 30,000 slash seedlings. Also he built and repaired the fences to protect them.

Lowery has won 4-H awards for his poultry project, and was active in judging poultry, livestock and soils.

A friendly smile and a silver tongue paid off in top state 4-H honors for Raby Jean Beakley, 17, of Brown county, and David Kuperman, 16, of Stephens county. The pair were named winners in the 4-H Public Speaking program, and their persuasive oratory was rewarded by The Pure Oil Company.

Miss Beakley was presented with a certificate of honor and a beautiful set of silverware. Her firm belief in the joys of rural living was the foundation of her winning speech, "Fun on the Farm."

During her nine years of 4-H Club work, Miss Beakley gave 28 speeches to audiences of close to 2,400 people. In addition, she appeared on radio and TV programs.

Kuperman also received a certificate plus a handsome 19-jewel wrist watch. An eloquent explanation of what 4-H leadership training means to America's future was the basis of his award-winning talk.

Several 4-H talent-night and radio speeches rounded out this talented youth's six years of 4-H Club work.

'Pouring Wool' Easy Insulation for Attics

Mineral wool insulation in "pouring wool" form can be used by home-owners who want to insulate an attic floor themselves.

Pouring wool comes in paper bags that are light and easy to handle. The mineral wool is simply poured out of the bags into spaces between the attic floor joists and smoothed to an even depth of at least four inches.

Louver Shutters Ideal As Interior Blinds

Louver shutters of ponderosa pine installed on the inside of windows serve double duty both as a decorating material and functioning blinds.

The louvers block out light and give complete privacy to a room, yet permit air to enter. The rich texture of the louvers adds charm to practically any decorating scheme.

ROOFING DEFIES WINDS

Surveys of hurricane and tornado-damaged areas have shown that wind-resistant applications of asphalt shingles have remained firmly in place even when houses were lifted off their foundations by the wind, or entire roof assemblies blown down.

'New' House—Old Site

Remodeling Solves Problem

Remodel or tear the old house down to the ground and build anew?

This is a problem faced by many owners of old, outdated houses, particularly farmers who can't move away to new locations, or families who don't want to leave the friendliness of a familiar neighborhood.

In the case of Dennis F. Haines, of Haven, Kans., the answer was remodeling, since the old house occupied the best site on his wheat farm and was in sound structural condition.

As the "before" and "after" photographs show, remodeling changed the awkward-appearing house into a modern-looking home, giving greater comfort and more space, plus the conveniences of up-to-date living. The total cost was less than a third the price of a new house of comparative size.

Principal structural changes included removal of an upstairs wing, enclosing one front porch for a kitchen, and another porch for an office.

The house was given a complete new look by reroofing it with a deep shade of asphalt shingles to make it appear lower, and choosing a color for siding that harmonizes with the new roof.

Haines specified asphalt shingles, since they had given years of trouble free service on the old house and are available in a wide choice of colors.

To bring more light into

Old house, bottom, became "new" house, top, after it was remodeled by its owner, Kansas wheat farmer Dennis Haines. New roof of asphalt shingles and new windows of ponderosa pine help give the house its modern look.

downstairs rooms, new windows of ponderosa pine were installed all the way around the house. These are stock units consisting of a wide pane of fixed glass above modern hopper windows which open for ventilation. Windows upstairs were flanked with louver shutters of ponderosa pine to make them look bigger.

Other new features included a new heating plant, central air conditioning, a modern new kitchen, and complete interior redecorating.

The remodeling was designed by Arthur B. Campen of Peoria, Ill., modernization consultant and remodeling editor of Practical Builder magazine.
